HALLOWEEN PRANKSTERS WARNED

Warning against damage to automobiles and tires through Halloween vandalism is sounded by the Keystone-Automobile Club.

Parents and school teachers are strongly urged by the Club to instruct children against the practice of defacing or damaging motor vehicles as part of their merry-making activities. Automobiles, it is pointed out, are more essential to the national welfare now than ever before, and acts which were at least tolerated in other years cannot be condoned in wartime.

"We don't want any repetition of the destructive acts of former years," said R. J. Quinn, acting manager of the club. "Painting and marking cars with chalk and soap is a most obnoxious practice. The finish on many cars has been virtually ruined on 'mischief' nights in past years.

"Breaking of milk bottles is another practice that should be dealt with severely by the police. Irreplaceable tires should not be subjected to this menace. When 'fun' reaches such a stage it is no longer 'fun' but criminal vandalism.

"Broken door handles, stolen radiator caps and gas tank caps are other items difficult to replace.

"We appeal to parents and teachers to lend their aid in the prevention of these acts perpetrated by Halloween funseekers. We also suggest that in the Halloween season empty milk bottles be kept off doorsteps and porches."

CARROLL COUNTY

MERCHANT NOTICED

J. David Baile's Store at Medford Described in Balto. Sun

A staff correspondent of the Baltimore Sun devoted 54 inches of news space this week to a write-up of our distinguished "storekeeper extraordinary," former Senator J. David Baile, of Medford.

The principal thing that attracted the attention of the correspondent was a community auction, one of the sales that are frequently held at that place, where you can buy cradles—of different kinds—boot jack, spice cabinets and anything on to draft horses and farm machinery.

Mr. Baile comes in for considerable personal notice, with his store which is said to be "Carroll County's largest store," with sales of $200,000 annually and his 850 acres of farm land—all the land in sight from the store.

Mr. Baile likes to think back to the last war when he sold sugar for 8 cents a pound while other stores were charging 28.

"We had enough sugar in stock to last the scarcity," he explains. "People came from miles around to buy from us. As a matter of fact, as near as I can remember, storekeepers didn't have nearly so much trouble getting along in that war. Sugar and flour were scarce and high, but that was about all.

"Flour in those days had to be sold pound for pound with cornmeal as a kind of rationing, but I don't remember things being anything like they are now."

Now 65, Mr. Baile went to work in the Medford store, which was founded in 1866, for his uncle at the age of 12, quitting school in the fourth grade to do so. He remembers that his first store required that his feet hit the floor every day at 4 A. M. so that he could hang out the letter bags at the station in time to be picked up by the daily "fast mail" to Baltimore.

Today, fifty-three years later, Mr. Baile, in addition to having expanded the Medford store to a $200,000 enterprise, is president of the New Windsor bank, a director of the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Montgomery county, a director of the Potomac Edison Company, a member of the War Bureau, member of the board of the Maryland school for the Deaf in Frederick and president of the Carroll County Historical Society.

With the report in hand that more than the half-way mark had been reached, the general committee of the Carroll County War Memorial Fund, urges that all districts stress the completion of their solicitation through the coming week in order that the extensive drive that has been in progress since September 30. Those districts that were unable to organize until a very late date, will require some longer time for their activities.

The districts and their quotas and collections are as follows, according to the report given at the meeting of the county chairman, and general committee, and advisory committee on Monday night at the Charles Carroll Hotel with Arthur P. Scott-head of the industrial committee as the host:

ESTIMATED $30,000 IN HAND IN WAR MEMORIAL DRIVE

Taneytown, $3400, no report.
Uniontown, $1275, $535.
Myers, $1275, $3000
Wooley's, $9400, $1500
Freedom, $2550, $539.93
Manchester, $2550, $407
Westminster, $25,000, $11,765.63
Hampstead, $2550, $776.93
Franklin, $1275, $385
Middleburg, $1200 no report
New Windsor, $1275, $1515
Union Bridge, $1275, $460
Mount Airy, $1700, $146.42
Berrett, $1275, $1621.15

The above reports are incomplete and chairmen are making a check-up this week to find out cash in hand and amounts pledged.

Scott S. Bair, chairman of Westminster district, has received a number of letters from the men in service, who write their views on the matter of his proposed War Memorial as a tribute to those now serving and to those who served in World War No. 1. Their letters are most interesting, but chiefly they are interested in what is being done about the memorial, wondering if it will go through, or whether it will be an attempt as it was following the other war and the aim not accomplished. Inquiries also are asking if the names of all service men and women will appear in the Memorial Hall or if there will be only certain districts represented.

Mr. Bair called a meeting of all of his captains of the 200 workers, Wednesday night. It was found that a number had not completed their house to house canvass and within a few days the thermometer will group more thousands dollars for Westminster district. The thermometer continues to attract attention to passersby on the grounds of St. John's school. The goal of $50,000 appears on one side and the results of the Westminster District on the other.

RETURN OF LOST RATION BOOKS THROUGH MAIL

Under arrangements made with Post Office officials, J. William Eggleston, State OPA Rationing Officer, announced this week, that finders of lost ration books may now drop them in the mail without prepaying postage or enclosing them in envelopes. The books will be returned to the person whose name and address appear on the cover, on payment of a five cent postage-due charge.

"It is felt," said Mr. Eggleston, "that this procedure will appreciably increase the percentage of lost books returned."

When the addresses cannot be found, the Post Office will forward the book to the nearest local War Price and Rationing Board.

THE HEALTH FOR

VICTORY CLUB

Will Meet in the Demonstration Hall in the Fuss Bldg.

The next meeting of the Taneytown Health for Victory Club will be held Thursday, October 28, 1943, at 2:30 P. M., in the Home Service Hall of The Potomac Edison Company.

A cordial invitation is extended to all the ladies of the community to attend this meeting. Mrs. Arthur Garvin, chairman of the club, announced today that "Wartime cakes and Pastries" will be the subject of the meeting.

Recipes used will call for corn syrup, molasses, or honey in place of sugar; drippings, poultry fats, and suet as alternates for butter, lard, and vegetable fats; and the economical use of milk and eggs. These wartime cakes and pastries are satisfying to the taste and a lot more satisfying from a nutritional standpoint than many of our pre-war cakes and pastries.

CHILDREN'S AID DRIVE FOR FUNDS

The 1943 Financial Campaign of the Carroll County Children's Aid Society will be conducted this year from October 25 to November 6th. The campaign outing which will be held at the Westminster Riding Club on Saturday, October 23, will mark the official opening of the drive. The outing will begin at 2 P. M. All the campaign workers, solicitors, district chairmen, foster parents and children are urged to be present.

Mrs. Frank T. Myers, president of the Children's Aid Society, will extend a welcome to all present. State's Attorney Donald Sponseller as county campaign chairman will give a short campaign talk for the purpose of creating enthusiasm and inspiration for the workers. The campaign material will be distributed to all the district workers, and it is desired that as many as possible be present to receive it as it will save the committee a great deal of extra work.

An item of interest for the afternoon will be the presentation of prizes to the children having the best Victory garden. There will be a number of prizes awarded. The prizes will be presented by a member of the Kiwanis Club which club sponsored this project.

An enjoyable program has been planned for the entertainment of all. Mr. Philip S. Royer, director of music in the schools of Carroll county and a member of the faculty of Western Maryland College, will play several violin selections, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Gerald Brickett. A puppet show and movies will be provided for the entertainment of the children.

It is hoped there will be a good attendance so that the campaign will get off to a fine start.

INFORMATION TO FARMERS FURNISHED BY AAA

Home canned foods may be sold under present OPA regulations but eight blue points should be collected for each quart.

Each person in your family may give away up to fifty quarts of home canned food without collecting rationing points. No money may be accepted for such transfer.

Farmers slaughtering animals other than poultry for sale in whole or in part should apply to the county U. S. D. A. War Board for a slaughter permit. Ration points (red) should be collected for sales of meat and butter.

All ration points both red and blue which you collect on above sales should be turned in to the local OPA office. The County AAA office can furnish you with a chart showing the proper number of points to collect.

Farmers have been given a priority on time and tools in farm machinery repair shops for the repair of needed agricultural equipment. Ask your repair man to give your job preference.

Watch for food shortage propaganda and take it with a grain of salt. The fact is over-all food production may even exceed last year. Reductions in total field crop production will be felt due to unfortunate weather conditions. This is especially true of Maryland.

Need a gasoline engine? Production for 1944 has been increased to the point where we expect to have a substantial supply. Farmers needing engines for essential farm work may secure a priority rating of AA-2 from the County USDA War Board to make the purchase.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

The total of 3326 benefit checks sent to covered unemployed by the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board in September averaged $14.15, the highest rate ever paid.

The September payments totaled $47,201, a small reduction from August. This brought the aggregate for the nine-month period ending September 30, to $772,499, which was 75 percent less than the total for the corresponding three-quarters of last year.

September was the second month in the Board's history when unemployment benefits did not reach $50,000.

WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Taneytown Girl Among Recipients of War Stamps

Winners of the State Girls 4-H Club contests in Maryland and delegates to the National Congress in Chicago this year have recently been announced. Carroll County girls made a very good showing. It was announced by Miss Justina C. Crosby, Home Demonstration Agent for Carroll County.

Mary Hull, of New Windsor has been chosen as the Maryland representative at the Chicago Mail Order Company's Style Revue to be held at the National Congress in Chicago during the end of November. She remodeled the navy blue tailored suit which she will wear in the Revue from a suit outgrown by one of her brothers. The total cost of new materials used in this remodeling was $1.44. This suit will be on display at the P. T. A. Bazaar at Westminster High School on Friday evening, October 22nd. It is an excellent example of what can be done in renovation at very small cost.

Three Bonds were presented to Maryland 4-H Club girls by the International Harvester Company for outstanding service in the war effort. Jewell Haines, of Woodbine represented Carroll county in this contest and was one of the winners. All three winners have been of service in knitting for the Red Cross, soliciting funds for the Red Cross, investing their own funds and selling war stamps to others, collecting salvage, conducting recreation programs, canning for home and school, raising Victory gardens, planning nutritious meals, conserving family clothing and aiding farm labor.

Six other girls have received awards of war stamps from the Landladies Organization for exceptional help in the farm home during war times. Mary Frances Six, of Taneytown was the Carroll county winner.

ROAD PLANS READY

Plans for construction totalling $38,000,000 for the improvement of Maryland's highway system are underway now, Governor Herbert R. O'Connor made known recently, and will be ready for immediate initiation whenever the war ends.

Such an overall State highway construction plan, Governor O'Connor had told the State Roads Commission a short time ago, must be a major part of the Post-War program now being formulated by the Maryland Commission on Post-War Reconstruction and Development, appointed by the Governor some months ago.

Not only will this $38,000,000 program serve to bring Maryland's road ways and bridges into line with the needs of the post-war era, Governor O'Connor declared, but it will help greatly to take up any unemployment slack which may develop in the State in the inevitable period during which Maryland's war plants must be converted to peacetime uses.

The $38,000,000 of construction will be a part of a total $50,000,000 roads program, the Governor declared, which is being prepared to give recognition to the highway needs of every section of the State. Already roadways to cost $10,000,000 are planned for the counties, plus some $16,000,000 worth of roads in Baltimore City and adjacent areas, much of it in connection with the proposed Baltimore Harbor Bridge, which will cost $12,000,000.

NEW S. S. NUMBERS

More than 1,010,111 social security account numbers had been issued to workers in the State of Maryland before July 1, 1943. A year prior to that date 900,598 had been issued to Maryland workers—an increase of 109,513. Figures are not yet available for the third quarter of 1943, but many persons, in this section, who never before held jobs covered by the Social Security Act found employment in business or industry during the past three months.

E. Clyde Thomas, manager of the Hagerstown office of the Social Security Board, calls attention to the fact that employers in preparing their next quarterly payroll report must include the name and account number of each new employee, in addition to the wage data about their other employees.

Mr. Thomas said that it is to the advantage of the employer as well as to that of his employees that he make an accurate and complete social security report. Otherwise he may have to go back over his records, years later, and check previous reports in order to assemble information which the law requires.

COMPARING SALARIES

There is a slight difference between some of our salaries or wages and some others that we have read about. Now we are not complaining that we do not receive enough but that we must (?) help to pay the fellow who is getting too much.

Some fellow who does not know how to count money, or how it must be raked together will say, "There he goes again, growling about the other fellow's prosperity." No, not that, we are not really complaining, for we did not help to pay the highest salary last year. We only want to set some folks thinking—thinking about the enormous figures, and thinking about the object for which America pays its greatest outlays of cash under ordinary circumstances. Here are some figures made public by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Louis B. Mayer, movie producer, drew the biggest pay check—$949,765.84—reported to the Treasury for the calendar year 1941 or fiscal year ending in 1942.

The motion-picture industry, as usual, furnished the lion's share of the personal service incomes above $75,000 shown in corporation income-tax returns.

The list of such incomes included 922 names, 215 of them movie figures. Lowe's, Inc., paid Mayer $157,500 salary and $792,265.84 in commissions for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1942.

Second place in the listing went to a big-money newcomer, C. G. Swebilus, president of the Dixwell Corporation, Hamden, Conn. The management and engineering service firm paid him $631,809.16 salary for the year ending November 30, 1941, and $499,148.11 for the next fiscal year.

Swebilus also is vice-president of the war-expanded High Standard Manufacturing Corporation which he organized in 1926 to produce pistols, small tools and similar articles.

E. G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Company, was third, with an income of $537,725—$357,724 in the form of a bonus—for 1941.

When it comes to the film stars themselves the figures are interesting. Poor Bud Abbott and Lou Costello had to eke out a living somehow on $608,423.15 for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1943. Hard luck wasn't it?

For individual salaries we have them ranging from $390,000 down, but not so far down at that. There is a long line of these movie stars, and some of the lower priced people draw salaries that make the salary of a congressman or judge look like small change.

In many instances American people are pouring out this stream of cash to people who are counteracting the best teaching of the churches, schools and colleges. To these we pay what we call fair salaries, then turn and give a movie star a hundred times as much as a pastor or teacher, and only undo much of the far better work of the spiritual and intellectual upbuilder.

Of the 922 people who received over $75,000 a year, 215 of them were connected with the movies. Does it indicate a wholesome condition in the thinking of the American people?

OPA ORDERS THE JOURNAL

The OPA in Baltimore must have made up its mind to find out whether any of the newspapers in the State are reading the reams of material their office is sending out every week because a couple of weeks ago it addressed a letter to the Journal, saying, "Please quote price of one subscription to the Journal for one year."

We returned the OPA's letter with the notation "$2.00 per year" and the signature of the publisher. In an early mail came a weighty envelope from the OPA containing a purchase order for the Journal for one year, a "public voucher for purchases and services other than personal" in triplicate, a form for payee's identification of account, a two-page set of instructions for the vendor, and a post card which was to be returned to the OPA upon shipment of the merchandise covered by the purchase order.

The Journal bookkeeper pondered the voluminous papers for more than an hour, but finally gave up in despair. She couldn't figure out just what she was supposed to do with them. After reading the instruction sheet, the Journal's publisher, none too good a figures, filled out the purchase order to the best of her ability and sent it off with a prayer.

You guessed it! It came back today with a half dozen other forms and the notation: "The voucher attached is not in proper form for payment and is returned to you for reasons XX2 below."

"XX2" said, "We are unable to identify this purchase. Citation should be made to the purchase order or contract number which the material or service was furnished."

Back to the first pile of forms. With a sigh of joy we discover a number—3R1-457-44—and off the whole kaboodle of forms go again to the Maryland office of the OPA. If we get the $2.00 we'll let you know.

Seriously now, when there is a war going on and every ounce of manpower is needed to put the national defense program across and every inch of paper is needed for worthwhile communications, couldn't the OPA order the Bethesda Journal on one sheet of paper and pay for it on another? Why, in the name of high heaven, must it waste reams of paper and the time of dozens of clerks to order one newspaper? Multiply this action by ten thousand to represent the approximate number of newspapers in this country and you get a pretty fair idea of where your tax money is going. And who is benefited? Certainly not the Bethesda Journal. We wasted at least $5.00 worth of time trying to figure out just what the OPA wanted us to do and in writing this editorial.

And we don't have the $2.00 for our subscription either. We'll probably have to go through the ordeal of those forms another time or so before our compensation comes through.

This is what's known as the great American form of government red tape. What an institution and what a way to spend money!—Bethesda Journal.

TO MARYLAND TAXPAYERS

Another invasion of States Rights and Parliaments Rights is being attempted in Bill S. 637 now before the Senate.

Notwithstanding the fact that nearly every State is now able to reduce its own debt and has ample or even excessive tax revenues, this proposed law would take $300,000,000 from the Federal Treasury and give it to the States for education. This at a time when the Federal debt will soon equal our total national wealth and when the Treasury proposes new Federal taxes that even startle Congress. The Bill proposes giving the States $300,000,000 annually.

The Bill states that it does not control education but it specifically directs:

1. That $200,000,000 must be paid to teachers;
2. That state costs of education must be kept up to the cost of 1942 or the State will get no subsidy;
3. That reports on progress of education must be made to Washington.

The United States Supreme Court already has said, in Wickard vs. Filburn 317 U. S. III, "It is hardly lack of due process of law for the Government to regulate that which it subsidizes."

Parents whose principal duty it is to rear their children, now have some control of education while control rests in the States and local boards. What chance of supervision would they have if our schools were placed under some bureaucrat in Washington? And with Federal money going into our schools, it will be only a short time until the entire control is taken from the States and local boards.

From the dollars and cents standpoint, Maryland would lose $2,000,000 if the subsidy becomes law.

Maryland's share of the cost of the $300,000,000 subsidy, based on its proportionate contribution to Federal income, would be $5,158,000, while it would receive only $3,018,000 under the subsidy. In effect, taxpayers would be forced to pay $2,000,000 for the privilege of being forced to pay another $3,000,000 mainly for teachers' salaries.

It is true that the schools have lost teachers to war industries and to the armed forces. But so has every employer. Is it likely that a teacher who thinks so little of his profession, that he will desert it for a temporary war job, will be brought back to the schools by this subsidy? And certainly this proposed law will not bring back those teachers who have joined the armed forces.

There appears no sound reason for the passage of S. 637. It is clearly nothing more than a labor subsidy. Maryland taxpayers are facing even greater war taxes than ever before and with their own salaries frozen for the duration they can not afford to spend $5,000,000 to get $3,000,000.—Harry S. Middendorf, President, Maryland Public Expenditures Council.

TIME FOR SAFEGUARD OF AMERICAN TAXPAYERS

With the Government on a spending orgy which seems to know no bounds, and a great part of which is being carried on under the guise of war necessity, it is high time that the American people begin to take the situation seriously, and call for more rigid accounting of the way in which their money is being handled.

A striking example of what can happen, and what is happening with entirely too little attention being focused on such happenings, is illustrated by a news item appearing under a Detroit headline. The article stated that machine tools which cost the government nearly a million and a half dollars had been sold by the Army Air Force Material Command as scrap for seventy-six and a half thousand dollars. "on orders from the Army and War Production Board officials in Washington."

Lieut. Robert Ludvik, who handled the sale, said most of the tools had not been used before, and that some were standard tools which could be resold immediately at a much higher price. Approximately forty per cent of the one hundred and ten tons of machine tools could have been reclaimed after minor changes and adjustments, he claimed.

We have not only his word for the ridiculousness of the sale but also that of one of the manufacturers whose company bought some of the discarded tools. He is reported to have charged that many of the tools the army sold at such ridiculously low prices are the kind "we are making for the government now." Our American people should demand to know who ordered such a sale and why, and who benefitted from it.

Such abuses, perpetrated in the name of the government, is all right, it seems, as far as our present administration is concerned. It may be all right with the Administration, but it is not all right with the American taxpayer.

The time has come to safeguard the rights of the American taxpayer, and to call a halt to this flagrant misuse of taxpayers' money. Some sort of supervision over the open-handed military authorities and the gentleman in charge of the alphabetical war bureaus should immediately be devised by Congress to avoid further mishandling of such sums of money by those who clearly seem to have no appreciation of how to handle it.—County Record-Townson.

WRITE TO THE BOYS

Senator Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts told the Women's National Press Club, of Washington that the boys at the front live in an almost total blackout so far as the news from home is concerned. Returning from his trip around the world he found that our soldiers abroad don't receive newspapers, and that news from home is usually personal from families and so forth; but they do manage to get some of the sport returns from the big games and some news from the war fronts but that general news is lacking. This all fits in with a recent "soldier's plea for letters" written by Corporal Edwin R. Jones and published in his home newspaper, the Portland Oregonian. It is worthy of being passed on to editors in the 48 States served by this weekly letter from Washington. It is as follows: "A tranquil African night. Stars can atwinkle and a quarter moon beats a golden path upon the Mediterranean. 'Tis no wonder then, in this solemnity, that we should think of our homes, our friends and our families."

"There's no doubt that many soldiers on these far-flung outposts of the world are lonesome. Even today many enlisted men receive few letters. If you've never been away from home little can you surmise the elation some friendly letter may bring to some forgotten soldier."

"Mail call to soldiers on foreign soil is their entertainment, luxury and enjoyment rolled into one. Maybe you've never witnessed a soldier day after day looking forward to mail call yet seldom receiving a letter. A bystander can offer little in way of consolation, but he may be quite aware of the mental process involved since he, too, at some time or other, has been through identically the same experience.

"In our first few months in basic training centers throughout the United States we were deluged with mail. Today it is quite the contrary. Letter writers have diminished until the mail from home is, in the main, from the immediate family or, perhaps, the girl friend."

"We are weary; we are tired and there's not one of us who isn't anxious to finish Hitler and kin. In the meantime there is no greater morale builder than a letter."

"What about those community friends? How many community club members write to former personnel? Once we quite frequently attended church—what's doing? What's become of the corner drug-store gang?"

"Simple events and happenings are extremely interesting. Recently we ran across a news item which stated more letters were being mailed home by soldiers than were received. Of course, this naturally left the question—are we soldiers to cheer the home front or is the home front to cheer us?"

"Put yourselves in a soldier's shoes and think. Having done this, grab a pen and write. This little touch of human kindness will play its part in hastening home-coming."

Perhaps the best morale builder the Nation could inaugurate would be a National drive to "Tell Him the News."—National Industries News Service.

Dairy Farmers Support Nation-Wide Milk Drive

Uncle Sam needs more milk from every farm to help win the war. American milk is a mainstay of the food supply at home and the healthful dairy products keep the boys at the front in fighting trim. The 3-point milk production program sponsored jointly by the War Food Administration and the Dairy Industry Committee is planned to aid dairy farmers to produce more milk for victory. The 8 points are: provide abundant pastures; plenty of good hay; abundant silage; condition cows for freshening with eight weeks' rest; feed good roughage liberally; feed balanced rations using protein concentrates wisely; feed to avoid summer slump; raise calves with less milk and send more milk to market.

Grain-Eating Insects Should Be Destroyed

Pests Spoil Millions Of Bushels Annually

When every bushel of grain is urgently needed as a war material, it is more important than ever to see that as little as possible is eaten or spoiled by insects that infest granaries.

To assist farmers in combating these little saboteurs, the University of California has published a bulletin entitled "Insects Affecting Stored Food Products." This booklet describes many of the pests of the South and Southwest and gives the methods for their control.

Among the most common is the granary weevil. It is chestnut brown, about an eighth of an inch long, and hard-shelled, with a long snout. The adult female bores into a grain with her beak and deposits an egg in it. She can lay about 200 eggs in this way. The young hatch in a week or two and eat out the inside of the grain enclosing them. Three or four weeks later they become adults, and in turn lay eggs, so under favorable conditions seven or eight generations are produced in a single year.

In the household the granary weevil may be controlled by locating and destroying the infested materials, and by protecting other food products from it. In two or three months it should be eradicated. In storage and warehouse, fumigation, heat, or cold treatments are usually required.

Grain Borer Nuisance.

A serious nuisance in the South is the lesser grain borer. It is somewhat less than an eighth of an inch in length, and has a cylindrical, stubby body. The larvae hatch in a week or two from eggs attached loosely to the grains. Wooden structures that have contained infested grain should be fumigated or sprayed to kill the adults.

A somewhat larger beetle is the cadelle. It is often more than a quarter of an inch long, and black or dark brown. It attacks stored grain as well as cereal products and shelled nuts, and often damages wooden storage bins.

Because of its long life and rapid reproduction, the saw-toothed grain beetle is one of the worst of these destructive insects. Its slender flattened body is about an eighth of an inch long, loosely jointed, hard-shelled, and brown. A row of spiky projections along the sides of its midsection give it its name.

Common Grain Eater.

Another common grain eater is the confused flour beetle, a reddish brown insect, about an eighth of an inch long, with a hard, cylindrical body. It is found in large numbers all over the world. It prefers flour or other processed cereal, but will attack grain too. Eggs hatch in a week to ten days.

Other grain-destroying insects are: the flat grain beetle, reddish brown, and a sixteenth of an inch long; the broad-horned flour beetle, similar to the confused flour beetle, but slightly larger, the yellow meal worm and the dark meal worm, both dull black in the adult stage.

Heat is simple means of killing these pests. Flour heated to 130 degrees will be freed of it, yet the flour will be uninjured. Fumigation is most satisfactory in large establishments.

Ring Worm on Calf

To stop ring worm on a calf's neck, first remove the scales by the use of a stiff brush, soap and water, says J. A. Arey, at N. C. State college, and then paint the spot with tincture of iodine.

Ring worm is a parasitic disease and occurs on the calf's head, neck, shoulders and rump. The hair comes out and a gray scaly crust is formed over the bare surface. The stalls should be thoroughly cleaned and whitewashed.

New Spin Machine Tests

Fuses for Army Shells

The possibility of "duds" being used in artillery barrages is now as remote as the thought of Mussolini leading a triumphant procession through the streets of Washington.

Through its design of a spin test machine that simulates the action of a shell in flight, Willys-Overland motors has destroyed the apprehension of gun crews on every front that they may be unwittingly loading projectiles with defective or non-operating fuses.

The use of the "spinner" at the Toledo war plant, where it was conceived as an assembly-line method of inspecting volume production of fuses for 40-mm. anti-aircraft shells, has reduced rejections from an original figure of 20 per cent to one-tenth of 1 per cent, according to Joseph W. Frazer, president.

At the same time, he disclosed, approximately 150 of these machines are installed in government loading stations and munition plants throughout the country to test millions of different type fuses monthly.

In explaining the operation of the spinner, which weighs 55 pounds, Frazer pointed out that the two arm units of a 40-mm. fuse, the firing pin and the rotor assemblies, are designed as safety features that prevent the shell from exploding because of bumps or jars while in storage, transit or handling. As a result, he said, the fuse cannot be detonated until centrifugal force due to the spinning action of the shell as it passes through the rifling of the gun arms both units.

Marine Experiences Four

Seasons in Single Week

Col. James McE. Huey, a retired marine corps officer, is credited with the unusual distinction of having experienced four seasons in less than one week.

The incident occurred in March, 1937, while Colonel Huey was aboard a coastal ship cruising in equatorial waters.

On March 22 the vessel crossed the equator at 1:30 a. m., going from winter in the northern hemisphere to summer in the southern. The sun crossed the equator at 5:30 the same morning, changing the season from summer to fall.

Six days later the ship, traveling northward, crossed the equator again and ran into spring.

Ships, it is claimed, rarely are in that particular position during the passage of the equinox.

Cuttings Often Root

Cuttings of green growing branches frequently root within a few hours. Wood of the size of a pencil usually is about right, although larger and smaller pieces are used. Removing all leaves close to the stem except two at the top helps the cutting to get started, and placing three-fourths or more of it under ground helps form a root system.

Light summer pruning of shrubs tends to check growth of twigs and leaves, and aids the plant to form a crop of fruit and flowers for next spring. Pruning should include removal of dead or diseased limbs and the cutting back—not too heavily—of branches which are obstructing other plants, or getting in the way of pathways or windows.

Pruning below ground—if not done too heavily—as well as above ground, also encourages formation of flowers and fruit, Miss Hatfield says. This operation, called root pruning, is performed by sinking a sharp spade into the ground and cutting a portion of the root. This may be done up to July 15. It may be tried on healthy fruit trees and shrubs which do not bloom as freely as they should.

Syrup Improves Juice

Natural fruit flavors are more pronounced when a syrup is made of the crushed fruit or juice rather than using water. One very good method of preparing the juice is to crush and heat some of the smaller and riper fruit to boiling, using very low heat in order to prevent sticking and scorching. When the juice flows freely, strain and sweeten to taste. This can be cooked with the sugar to make a syrup or added to the fruit unsweetened.

Another point worth remembering when canning fruit with little or no sugar is to preheat the fruit in the juice or syrup. This not only improves the flavor but makes it possible to get more fruit into the jar, which is good wartime economy in glass jars, caps and shelf space. Avoid packing the fruit too tightly, for a good proportion of fruit to juice is desired in the finished product.

Confucius Advocated Spectacles

Confucius, who is reputed by the Chinese to have been the inventor of spectacles, is said to have taken a pair of shoes to a cobbler for resoling (just as American men now take their shoes for tapping after giving their ration coupons to their wives). When Confucius called a few days later the shoes were unfinished. The cobbler and his wife had quarreled and she had thrown red pepper into his face, which had so inflamed his eyes that he could not do his work. Confucius gave the cobbler a pair of spectacles to wear, the legend goes. These not only overcame the effects of the red pepper, but they also cured him of a squint he previously had.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

S. L. E. Mabry, who has just completed 42 years and six months of active service, is the oldest red cap at the Pennsylvania station. Mabry, in whose mustache there are a few gray hairs but who is still able to master even heavy bags, was born in Georgia in November, 1874. He came to New York 50 years ago and took whatever jobs he could find. January 1, 1901, he became a porter at the Pennsylvania station which in those days, was at the foot of Twenty-third street. Pennsylvania trains didn't run into New York then, passengers crossing the Hudson by ferry. When the tunnels were completed and the new station was opened at 33rd street in 1910, Mabry moved uptown. He has no idea as to how many bags he has carried in all those years or of how many miles he has walked to and from trains. But he is proud of the fact that there isn't even one black mark on his record.

Mabry has carried and still carries the bags of many prominent people. They are merely a part of his every day existence. He gives well known the best possible service, the same as he does anyone else. Remains in memory a prominent visitor of many years ago—"Queen Victoria's son." The prince of Wales, who was to become king of England after the death of his mother, had plenty of baggage.

New York has a hotel room black market, racketeers being quick to capitalize on the lack of accommodations for hordes of travelers. It works like this: The racketeer waits until he sees a hotel guest check out. Then he hurriedly registers for the room just vacated. In the evening when would-be guests find there are no accommodations, the racketeer comes up with the statement that he has a desirable room which he will be glad to turn over for a consideration. Nine times out of ten, the traveler, rather than seek farther, is willing to pay double or more for a place to lay his head. House detectives, managers and others keep a sharp lookout for the racketeers but they shift from hotel to hotel and there is a demand for rooms at all hours of the day.

During a recent hot spell, a young mother up at Pleasantville noticed that her baby was suffering from a rash. Thinking the trouble was prickly heat, the mother carefully dusted the infant with powder. The treatment seemed to bring relief—at least the baby became quiet and remained that way. The mother went about her household chores but now and then gave her child a glance. Finally, she discovered that instead of sleeping, it was wide awake and was making attempts to lick its hands. Investigation disclosed the fact that she had dusted the infant with powdered sugar.

The other morning, Assistant District Attorney Julius Helfand was examining prospective jurors for a murder trial. A number had been excused because of their convictions in regard to the death penalty when Abram M. Morrell was called.

"Have you any prejudice against capital punishment?" Helfand asked. "No," was the answer in a tone of absolute sincerity.

"What is your business?" continued the assistant district attorney. "Salesman of tombstones and mausoleums," replied Morrell. P.S. He was excused.

Isabel Hewson Manning and "Dickie" King were discussing strange wedding customs at the Stork Club the other afternoon. It is Miss Manning's belief that oddest prevails among the Bugis tribesmen of the Celebes in the Dutch East Indies. For three days before her wedding, the feet of the bride-to-be must not come in contact with the ground. So during this period, she is under the influence of drugs administered to her as she is carried about on the shoulders of members of her family.

Manhattan librarians have developed an odd sideline—translating unintelligible letters received by relatives from loved ones on fighting fronts. These missives contain jargon, foreign phrases and even pidgin English. Prize of the lot was a letter declaring the writer had won a "Sancho Pedro." . . . Turned out to be a card game, not an award. . . . Before departing for "over there," many a married service man buys a wedding ring for himself. It's a symbol of what he's fighting for—for his home. . . . So eager is Dinah Shore to entertain the service men abroad she signed for only five weeks on the new summer program replacing Edgar Bergen - Charlie McCarthy.

We are in receipt of a History of the Ev. Lutheran Church of Waynesboro, prepared as part of the 125th anniversary celebration they are having this month. At first it was a Union Church, where Lutheran, Reformed and Presbyterian worshipped. The Lutheran first communion was held Oct. 31, 1818—Rev. John Ruthrauff, pastor. 66 persons partook of that first sacrament, and Oct. 3, 1843 786 communed. The second church was built in 1830 by Presbyterians and Lutherans; the German Reforms which were the larger congregation, withdrew and built a log church in 1826; and in 1866 the Presbyterians withdrew to their own new church. The first Lutheran church was erected in 1869—at a cost of $11,000; and was remodeled in 1885—with membership of 400. The present rebuilt edifice was dedicated in 1905, and the splendid new S. S. building in 1930.

THE LIGHT OF DAY IS FADING

The light of day is fading fast,
Soon darkness will appear,
Into the realm of slumber at last
We all shall disappear.

Towering trees around us wave,
In the breezes as they blow,
Onward thru life's dreary waste,
Each of us must go.

Sad the day of parting when
We the end approach,
Have we done our work quite well
Each of us may ask.

Thru the years we glide along
Joyously with quip and song
But at last there comes a day
When we must the piper pay.

Have we walked serene with God
As we o'er the earth have trod?
Have we lent a helping hand
To one who could understand?

If we have to others given
Things they needed—hard have striven—
We can face the future bold,
God the end will then unfold.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Probation after Death" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 24th.

The Golden Text will be from Psalms 16:3—"I have set the Lord always before me; because he is at my right hand, I shall not be moved."

Among the citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon will be the following from the Bible—Rev. 2:7—"He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches; to him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of, the Paradise of God."

The Lesson-Sermon also will include passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, among which will be the following page 292—"Truth will be to us the 'resurrection and the life' only as it destroys all error and the belief that Mind, the only immortality of man, can be fettered by the body, and life controlled by death."

DETROIT LETTER

Last week, when I wrote about Detroit's problem of what to do about the delinquency of the younger generation, I had no idea that it is of such importance as it has turned out to be. Not that my little article had anything to do with the awakened interest, for it must be admitted that a reporter in the Free Press, is to be given all the credit for this sudden interest. It seems that all the organizations that stand for civic righteousness have awoke to the necessity of doing something to remedy the situation. The parents, I fear, are the ones least concerned, as churches are throwing open the doors of their recreation rooms and basements, to provide places where the youngsters can meet without congregating on street corners, dance halls, and other questionable places, and the police department and courts seem to be deeply concerned, and all sorts of plans are being advanced by sensible people and also by the crack pots who are constantly filling up the space in the dailies entitled "The Voice of the People." Our plan would be to send home the women who work in the factories, and tell them to take care of the children, while the men earn the living for the family, which, at the wages that are being paid now, they can surely do.

But that will never be done, as is shown by things that we read about daily. The women have gotten a taste of the big money, and have found out about the so-called pleasures of the high life this money can bring them, and their motto is "Let the children run wild, what do we care?" I will relate just one case, where a man and his wife, both working in a war plant, took their young daughter out of school, and, by means of a borrowed age certificate, secured her a job in the same plant, thus raising the family income to $174.00 a week, and leaving five other children to look after themselves, the oldest being still in school. In this case, the law took hold, and each of the parents received a jail sentence and fine, while the daughter was sent away to another state to prevent her testifying. There is no doubt that this is not an exceptional case, and we feel that many more cases like it could be uncovered if a proper investigation would be made.

Another thing has arisen to plague the people of this fair city and that is the scarcity of coal, brought out more vividly by the little touches of cold weather, that are warning us of the approach of winter. All summer, the coal dealers have been begging the people to have their coal bins filled, and in some cases, even then could not fill all the orders received, but now it appears that a survey reveals that over 60 percent of the people who heat by coal have none at all, or only what they had left over from last year. What will happen when the real need of fuel comes, and none is to be gotten, is to be seen, and will, no doubt remind us of the first winter we spent out here, that of 1917, when the same situation prevailed. Dealers who had other years thousands of tons of coal in their yards report that they have now only a few hundred tons, and so you can see how serious the situation is now, and how much more so it can become later on. So that no one of our friends might think that we are caught in this jam, we will say that we took the coal dealers' advice early in the summer, and so feel that we are right well fixed for a warm house next winter, unless the heating system breaks down, and we will meet that question when we come to it.

We notice that you have had some heavy frosts back home (we can mention the weather now without the fear of being jailed), but so far we have had no "killer" out here, as yet. Indeed, we have been enjoying some very mild days, something like our old Indian Summer, minus the smoky-looking atmosphere. Our hope is that this condition will keep up a long while yet, as one of our correspondents from Taneytown writes, it makes the winter shorter, and they are sure long ones in this neck of the woods where I have often said before, there are only two seasons—summer and winter.

We had thought of telling you of two things that commentators on the radio have beaten us to. The one was the predicament our good governor has gotten himself into when he made that wager with the governor of Nebraska, in which he would beat the other in raising its quota of the 3rd. War Bond drive. Our Chief Magistrate won, but now that he has his pig, he does not know what to do with it, on account of OPA regulations. It would have simplified matters a great deal if the other fellow had won, for then he would have had no trouble with his winnings, they being some of Michigan's famous beans, which we do not think are rationed as high as meat.

The other story would have been about the fellow who was to act as the Pied Piper of California, and clear a town of rats by blowing a cornet. You, no doubt heard of his failure, but we cannot help feeling sorry that his attempt was not a success, and that he could have been induced to come to Detroit, where the rat population is increasing beyond description, and where they even eat green tomatoes, something we had never heard of before. Some years ago the health Department had the alleys patrolled by a car equipped with a hose with which it forced exhaust gas from the car into the dens where they could be found, and that measure, to some extent kept the rat population down, but since the beginning of the war, like a lot of other things, this activity has been discontinued, and we can certainly notice the result.

Last week we noticed the serious operations our grand-daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Wilson, has had to undergo. At present, we are glad to be able to report that she is improving about as fast as can be expected, but has more operations to undergo, which will keep her in the Hospital for a long time.

One thing more, and I am done for this week. In addressing mail to any of our family, I must ask our friends to include the Zone number in our address, in order that we may have prompt delivery. Write the name of our street, city and state thus.

Granddad Finds His Tony—a Yank

Happy Reunion an Incident Of Sicily Invasion.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA.—The old man's eyes were dark and pleading.

He had taken off his straw hat and was standing on the white-hot street of Palermo in front of a building guarded by a tall American soldier. He spoke rapidly in Italian. Then he stopped and his eyes anxiously searched the soldier's face. The soldier shook his head.

"No compree, Pop," he said, "From the inside of the building a voice bellowed: 'What's going on out there?'"

"There's an old guy trying to tell me something, but I can't savvy what he wants," the guard said. "He's a nice old guy, too."

Other voices heavy with sleep murmured "can the gab."

The guard looked at the old man again. The old man's eyes were glistening but hopeful. The soldier whispered, "you wait a second, Pop—stay right here—I got an idea."

He slipped inside the doorway and picking his way between the rows of men stretched on the stone floor he tiptoed over to the corner. He shook one of the sleeping men. "Hey Tony," he whispered.

The soldier's eyes opened. "What's up? What's happening?"

"Can you come outside a second, Tony?" the guard asked. "There's an old guy that wants something and you can speak this lingo."

A few minutes later Private Tony Calato of San Francisco was in the old man's arms and the old man was crying and laughing and kissing the soldier on both cheeks while the bewildered guard and other soldiers watched with amazement.

"He's my granddad," said Private Calato. "My dad was born over here, and so when Gramp saw the American army in Palermo he figured I'd surely be along and he's been hunting for me."

Foe Agents Trip Trying to Relay Data to Germany

Flow of Harmless Letters Tips Secret Writing, but FBI Reads 'Em.

WASHINGTON.—Once again the vaunted German spy system has proven vulnerable at its weakest link—communications.

Communications, in the world of espionage, mean the important business of transmitting information back to headquarters. And that was where Ernest F. Lehmitz, 57-year-old New York air raid warden, and Erwin H. De Spretter, 52, one of his aids, fell down so hard that they dropped straight into the arms of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Lehmitz and De Spretter, both of whom promptly pleaded guilty to espionage recently, are the latest of a long list of Axis spies to be trapped through this weakness in procedure.

Gestapo Gets Secrets.

The gathering of vital military secrets seems to be easy enough for Gestapo agents in this country. But getting the information to Berlin without detection is another matter.

This was so in World War I and has proved repeatedly so in World War II.

Lehmitz and De Spretter operated cleverly enough. Each lived on Staten Island, tucked away in New York harbor, where they could conveniently observe ships entering and leaving the port.

Lehmitz, employed as a waterfront café porter, kept his ears open for stray bits of information dropped by sailors and merchant seamen. He made a practice of visiting other waterfront cafés for this purpose. Trained in the espionage school in Germany, he was able to piece together odd fragments into a coherent informative picture of ship and troop movements.

He lived the role of an enthusiastic air raid warden and super-patriotic Victory gardener. He was a naturalized American citizen, though back in 1917, when he was an employee of the German consulate, he was listed as "a dangerous enemy alien."

Access to Plants.

De Spretter, born in Uruguay of a German father, is an engineer, educated in Germany. For a time, he too, was an air raid warden on Staten Island.

De Spretter ran a heat treatment and brazing company in Manhattan which had access to war contract specifications. He acted as consulting engineer for munitions companies. Thus, he was able to give to Lehmitz, who served as penman, considerable data about war production.

Lehmitz used invisible ink to write his secrets between the lines of apparently innocuous letters addressed to recipients in Lisbon, Madrid and Switzerland. The addressees were other German agents who forwarded the communications to Berlin.

All went well (from the enemy's point of view) for a while. But a few months ago the British censors at Bermuda, examining Clipper mail, grew suspicious of Lehmitz's stream of letters. The censors called the FBI's attention to the prolific correspondence.

It was no trick for the FBI, once it had a batch of Lehmitz's missives in hand, to discover the messages written in invisible ink.

British Find Beaches Are Busy Despite War

LONDON.—Despite a new Nazi terror practice, that of machine-gunning sunbathers along southcoast beaches from the air, Britain's seashore resorts today are enjoying the best business season since the war began.

So great has been this summer's rush to south and southwest coast beaches in England, however, that a serious food shortage has been caused in some areas.

Official government requests not to travel, and the stronger deterrent of beach strafing by Fock-Wulfes, have apparently had little effect on vacationers.

New coastal defenses are being set up against the wave-skimming raiders who flash above the beach at 400 miles per hour, machine-gunning and cannonading women and children sunbathers indiscriminately.

Close Shaves Are Routine

For Americans in Sicily

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY, SOUTHERN SICILY.—Two United States paratroopers, Private Wilfred J. Thomas of Milton, Ore., and Private Cecil E. Prime of Bartow, Fla., related how they had killed or helped to kill six enemy troops since landing on Sicily as they waited their turn in the chair of a Sicilian barber shop.

As they finished his stories, the Sicilian barber finished with the customer in the chair and turned toward the two Americans. Private Thomas, who had told of killing three Italians, got into the chair and looked at the little barber waiting with a razor in his hand. Then he leaned back, bared his throat and said calmly: "Shave."

Bookkeeper Slashes

Self Over Red Tape

PASADENA, CALIF.—Relatives said that Mrs. George Green, 64, a bookkeeper in a metal shop, slashed her wrists because she had to fill out too many government forms.

Neighbors found her writhing in the bathtub, screaming: "I couldn't do a thing with them."

Booted River Men End Big Log Drive

Run 50,000,000 Board Feet Of Lumber in Idaho.

LEWISTON, IDAHO.—The "river rats," those hardened men with the high-water pants, spiked boots and battered fells, have written into history this town's biggest log drive, an important factor in America's production for war.

The calked boots of the loggers have "reared" the last stragglers of 50,000,000 board feet down the racing Clearwater river and into the quiet Lewiston millpond of Potlatch Forests, Inc. The usual drive is 40,000,000 feet.

As storied an event as the cattle roundups or mining rushes of the old West, the log drives have been dwindling in this century until Potlatch officials say that their drive is one of only a few still in existence as an annual event, and "probably the biggest."

The drives have continued only because the Clearwater is a much larger and longer river than usually reaches into the forest areas. The drive starts 120 miles upstream in the forest area of North Idaho where Beaver Creek cascades into the north fork of the Clearwater.

The heavy timber in the rugged district can be logged off into the river and floated to the mill at much less expense than building railroads into the forests.

Big as was the drive, officials said that it would supply less than one-third of the lumber to be cut by the company mill here, said to be the largest white pine sawmill in the world. Transportation by rail is also heavy as the company strives to meet the war demand for lumber.

This year's drive was worse than many, but still not far from typical.

Six Tell Story of 30 Days in Open Lifeboat

DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA.—After 30 harrowing days in an open lifeboat in the Indian ocean, six seamen have landed here with one of the strangest of this war's many stories.

Twenty-four men from a torpedoed Allied freighter started out in the lifeboat; 16 died of deliriums or jumped overboard before they were finally rescued.

Five days out they were sighted by a plane; the men became encouraged and finished most of the remaining food and water. But a storm blew up, heaving up 40-foot waves around the small craft.

One wave capsized the lifeboat and the compass, instruments and remaining water were lost. The boat was not sighted again for 25 days.

During that time all the men would have died except that a flying fish flew into the boat and provided a miniature meal for the survivors. Later a rainstorm came and the men caught fresh water in an old raincoat.

Finally after a month adrift, a plane sighted them and signaled: "Thumbs up, help coming soon."

But the weather grew worse and more men died. When the storm ended the sun returned, burning and parching the men. They prayed for rain; when it returned there was a violent storm again.

Their last two matches were used to light a distress flare to signal another plane, which directed a freighter to their rescue.

The Burglars

By STANLEY CORDELL
 Associated Newspapers.
 WNU Features.

MRS. RATHBURN was careful and scrupulous and generous to a fault, yet there were those who did not hold to her ways at all. There was Mrs. Hughes, for example, who was the wife of the bank president in the village and was never happy unless she was worrying about someone.
 "But it's so dangerous, my dear. A lone woman living way out here. And with so much money in the house."
 "So much money?" Mrs. Rathburn smiled. "Are you quite sure there is so much money, Mrs. Hughes?"
 Mrs. Hughes flushed, but spoke her mind. "One doesn't have to be the bank president's wife to know that you put no store in banks. Everyone in the village is aware that you haven't been in the bank since—since—"
 "Since the bank holiday, when all my savings went up in smoke." Mrs. Hughes flushed again. She gnawed at her lower lip. Everyone knew it, hadn't been her husband's fault.
 "Forgive me, my dear." The momentary bitterness went out of Mrs. Rathburn's eyes. "That was unkind of me. Please don't worry. Thieves are cowards and stupid."
 She spoke with confidence, yet there had been times when qualms possessed her. After all, she was a lone woman living in isolation out on the trunk highway where she served meals to tourists. She would not always serve meals to tourists.

It was a choice of entrusting her money to a bank or to a loose brick in the fireplace.
 One day the roll of bills and change that was hidden behind a loose stone in the fireplace would amount to the sum necessary to purchase the chicken farm on which she had her heart set.
 The men came one night when the rain fell in sheets and the wind roared down the fireplace chimney. They entered noiselessly and stood just inside the door of the small living-room, water dripping from their coats and the brims of their hats.
 "Lady, we don't aim to hurt you none. Just hand over the money an' you ain't got nothin' to worry about."
 "If I turned over the money I'd have everything to worry about," she smiled. "But what makes you think there is any money?"
 The tall man was impressed by Mrs. Rathburn's composure.
 "Look, lady, like I said, I don't want to hurt you none, but I ain't gonna stand for no kiddin'. See? Everybody knows you don't have no truck with the bank an' that you keep the dough hid here."
 Mrs. Rathburn looked at the tall man brightly. "As a man of intelligence you can understand how such stories would get around about an old woman who lives alone and doesn't gossip about her business. People do talk and it's rather fun hearing of the stories they conjure."
 "Aw, whang her over the melon 'n let's go through the joint," snarled the man at the door. "We didn't come here to argue."
 "I'd appreciate it if you boys wouldn't ransack my home. It always makes such a mess," She rose. "I can perhaps set your minds at rest about the money." She crossed to a desk, rummaged through it and presently returned with a bank book. She held it open for the tall man to see. "You can see for yourself the entries as my milk man made them. Almost daily." She laughed. "I'm sure no bank would present me with such a book unless I deposited the money, would they, sir?"

 This last stroke of strategy was the tall man's undoing. He swelled a bit with importance. He glanced at the book, then snarled an order at his companion. The pair departed.

Mrs. Rathburn bolted the door, then called Constable Colt in the village. Then she backed out her old sedan and drove to town. She went at once to Banker Hughes' house.
 Mrs. Rathburn opened her bag. "No. I have the money here. Will you kindly open an account with it for me tomorrow. The bandits, being men, were easy to handle. You might use this book for the new account. It's the one I had before the bank holiday. I kept it for sentimental reasons. I felt that it would never pay me a thing, but it did, didn't it?" Then Mrs. Rathburn, because she was a woman, fainted.

HONORING OUR PARENTS

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:12; Luke 2:48-51; Mark 7:6-13; John 19:25-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—Children, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right.—Ephesians 6:1.

Right relations between children and parents have much to do with the peace and prosperity of a community and a nation. Experience has demonstrated that to be true, but even more basic is the fact that it is in accord with the promise of God.

One of the bad breakdowns in modern life is that of proper honor and obedience to parents by children. In all too many homes God's order has been reversed and instead of honoring and obeying their parents, children (both young and old) have taken the place of "boss," and mother and father must obey if they want peace and rest.

The need for our lesson of today is both great and acute. The future happiness of hundreds of thousands of children and the present welfare of thousands of neglected and boss-ridden parents will depend on the intelligence and faithfulness with which this lesson is taught in our churches, and the honesty of heart with which we all receive its truth.

I. The Command and Promise (Exod. 20:12).

We are told by Paul that this is the "first commandment with promise" (Eph. 6:1-3). The Lord was not making a bargain with man, or seeking to draw out obedience by a prize, but there is obviously a great reward in the observing of this commandment.

Then, too, as the children of God (if we are such) through Jesus Christ, the first and most important consideration to come before us is, What is the mind and will of the Maker of us all regarding this matter of the relation between parents and children? His words are plain—we are to "honor" our fathers and our mothers.

The word "honor" carries with it a great many things, but perhaps the three outstanding elements are respect, obedience, and affection. Our Lord Jesus Christ, who is the Saviour and then the Example of believers, presents a beautiful pattern of true obedience to this commandment.

II. Willing Obedience (Luke 2:48-51; John 19:25-27).

The fact that Jesus was God manifest in the flesh only enhanced His conduct. He who is divine presents an example of obedience and consideration both as boy and man which we do well to emulate.

1. As a Boy (Luke 2:48-51). The boy Jesus, increasing "in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man" (v. 52), had come to His twelfth year and with His parents had gone up to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover.

There moved in His heart the conviction that He must now be about His Father's business—an altogether proper and commendable purpose, but one which resulted for the moment in separation from His parents. This was far more serious than a physical separation, for we read that they did not understand Him (v. 50).

Tragic indeed are the consequences of our failure to understand our children. Notice, however, that Jesus did not withdraw Himself from their watchful care, nor refuse to obey them even though they failed to understand Him. Equally tragic are the results of hasty and bitter separations brought about by the disobedience of children.

2. As a Man (John 19:25-27). The value of our lesson will be greatly reduced if we see only the responsibility of children while they are young. We are the children of our parents as long as we and they live.

One marvels at the carelessness and hardness of heart that will permit men and women who have time and money for everything else, to neglect their aged parents and even shunt them off into a public institution for care.

III. Hypocritical Disobedience (Mark 7:6-13).

Such an important commandment naturally held a high place in the thinking of the community. To violate it involved a measure of shame which men sought to avoid. So the Jews of Christ's day devised a scheme which made it possible for a man to appear to be very religious even as he deprived his parents of the honor and help to which they were entitled by the law of God.

The man who was so avaricious that he did not wish to support his aged and needy parents could entirely evade that God-given responsibility by declaring that his property was "Corban," that is, dedicated by a vow to God. Thereafter no matter how great was the need of his parents they could receive nothing.

Thus do men make "the word of God of none effect" (v. 13) through their traditions. The method differs but the spirit persists even in our day.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, BOSTON, MASS., JUNE 7, 1943

Boston, Mass., June 7.—The Christian Science Board of Directors today placed "prayer" at the top of the list of defensive and offensive weapons that free-thinking peoples are counting upon to win the global war against oppression and suppression. In a statement to the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, the Directors then followed with the term "miracle of deliverance" which is to be accepted, they said, as the logical answer to righteous prayer.

Thus, deliverance from the hand of the oppressor was seen by the Directors to be no miracle at all, but rather a simple witnessing to the fact that power springs from the prayer of understanding.

"A praying people can never suffer defeat," summarized the Directors remarks to several thousand Christian Scientists assembled in The Mother Church.

Because of the gasoline and transportation shortages, the attendance was more localized than it has been for many years. But the reports heard from the broad field of Christian Science activities indicated that demands for spiritual enlightenment were as universal as ever, only growing more and more pronounced under the stress of world conditions. From the armed services and along the home front, the reports revealed unusual demands for church literature, hinging upon an increasing effort to bring prayer to bear upon the crucial tests of the times.

"Battles are not won," the Directors said, "through trust alone, but through intelligent, scientific preparation and skillful execution. As we reach out to God through understanding prayer, the human footsteps to bring our deliverance from this cruel warfare and all evil will be revealed."

"Yes, the demands of the hour are crucial," the statement said, "they are imperative; they call upon us as Christian Scientists to be instant in prayer—not just prayer of affirmation and expectancy, but prayer that demands, through spiritual understanding, that the might of right prevail now."

"This is the method of prayer used by the master Christian. Our Leader, Mary Baker Eddy, tells us in 'Unity of God' (p. 11) in speaking of the healing, by Jesus, of the withered hand, 'He demanded a change of consciousness and evidence, and affected this change through the higher laws of God. The hand was restored whole.'"

"Christian Science teaches" the statement continued, "that this is an hour of miracles. In the Christian Science textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures' (p. 591), the following definition of miracle is given: 'That which is divinely natural, but must be learned humanly.' So it is divinely natural to expect and witness the answer to righteous prayer. The miracles does not come through wishful thinking, however, but through the preparation of the heart, through steadfast, radical reliance on God."

MRS. DAISETTE D. S. MCKENZIE
Incoming President of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts

The Directors also announced the election of Mrs. Daisette D. S. McKenzie, of Cambridge, Massachusetts as President of The Mother Church for the ensuing year, succeeding Mrs. Elizabeth F. Norwood, of Brooklyn, Massachusetts.

The new President first became interested in Christian Science in 1887 during the very early days of the movement. Hence, Mrs. McKenzie became instrumental in the pioneering of this religion in the city of Cleveland. She served ultimately as Reader in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Cleveland, and as a member of its board of directors. In 1898 both Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie were called by Mrs. Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, to become members of her last class taught in November of that year.

Unity of purpose and action which is the common goal of all nations in this war, said the incoming President has been attained in the Christian Science movement under Mrs. Eddy, who the new President described as a master in the art of spiritual strategy. "She leads us, not through self-assertion, but by spiritual animus and example. On this point we have her own words: 'The little that I have accomplished has all been done through love—self-forgetful, patient, unflinching tenderness.'" (Miscellany p. 247).

In this decisive, and final conflict, the speaker stated, determining the immediate future of the world, "how exceedingly blessed it is to belong to this valiant army of those who are working, both defensively and offensively, for civilization and Christian ideals. The outward organization of the Christian Science movement, sacred and important as it is, is but the outward and visible sign of that Unseen Army comprising all the great and good of the earth, both past and present.

The retiring President pointed out that it is not people who are waging the present world conflict, but "forces of evil working through people to destroy the very foundation of true Christianity." This form of human domination, she said, would attempt to force upon mankind a godless system in which "there is no Christliness, no love." She concluded with the exhortation to those on the battle front to realize their protection in the presence of God and His truth, and for those on the home front to keep their minds filled with the spirit of godliness "which giveth to all men the right of individual salvation."

A. Warren Norton, Manager of The Christian Science Publishing Society, reported an increase in the circulation of all Christian Science publications, including The Christian Science Monitor. The exigencies of war have been met in part, he said, by the reductions in size of some of the periodicals. The circulation of the Christian Science Sentinel, reduced to pocket-size, was reported at the highest in its history.

Emphasis was placed by Mr. Norton upon the public recognitions of merit won by the Monitor during the past year for outstanding editorial and news content, and typographical make-up. He referred to the winning of Columbia University's Maria Moors Cabot Award for outstanding contribution in the field of Inter-American Relations, the Monitor being the first newspaper in the United States to earn this recognition. The Monitor also won the P. Wayland Ayer competition among daily newspapers for excellence in typography, make-up and presswork. On May 28 this paper also obtained a medal of distinction for service in journalism from the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri.

State, provincial and national legislative bodies, were shown to have dealt fairly with Christian Science activities in the statement of Arthur W. Eckman, Manager of Committees on Publication. He alluded to the sympathetic understanding of public officials in dealing with gasoline, tire and automobile rationing. The State of Delaware, he noted, adopted a bill legalizing the practice of Christian Science. He warned against an increasing tendency, however, in legislative halls to impose blanket regulations involving compulsory sickness, disability and hospital insurance which would bring about indirect compulsion upon Christian Scientists to accept medical treatment. There are now fourteen chaplains of our denomination serving in the Armed Forces of the United States, he said; thirteen in the Army and one in the Navy. He pointed out that fifteen vacancies in the Army remained to be filled.

Other reports revealed a continuing advance of religious education despite the exigencies of war. The Christian Science Board of Lectureship found that the purpose of its new regional system of allocating lecturers to serve the churches more acceptably and to reduce the need for travel has been fulfilled in gratifying measure. Where lecturers have not been able to appear personally in some countries because of war, authorized lectures have been read to the audiences, it was said.

From the Trustees under the Will of Mary Baker Eddy came the report that since the year 1913, when the Trustees were first appointed, they have expended $6,400,000 on church work. Announcement was also made that the sales of Mrs. Eddy's works, including "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," had more than doubled in the last two years.

Australians Make Use Of Ancient Fish Traps

BRISBANE.—Fish traps constructed centuries ago now yield fine catches for the natives who found them on Mer island, in Torres strait, Australia. Builders of the traps, formed of stones set side by side in huge squares over a total area of six square miles are unknown, but Brisbane historians believe they date to a Spanish or Dutch occupation in the 17th century.

Fish are stranded in the hollow squares when the tide recedes. Size of the stones indicates a large labor force was necessary for the project.

Britain's Finance Chief Lakes £18,750,000 Error

MONDON.—The No. 1 man of British government finance made an error of £18,750,000 in a recent house of commons debate on post-war international currency, he acknowledged.

The question was raised by F. W. Pethick-Lawrence, Laborite, who asked whether when Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood had estimated at £25,000,000 the theoretical aggregate of the United Nations credit quotas in the proposed international clearing union he did not mean $25,000,000.

Sir Kingsley agreed that he did.

Naval Training station here calling attention to the fact that a name was missing from one of the lists because of the inability of mechanical tabulating machines to handle a name of such proportions. The name is that of Nicholas Vandervoortmaarschalk—21 letters, believe it or not.

Serious Feed Shortage Looms; Solution Rests In Farmers' Hands

Purina Dealer Sponsors "Food for Victory" Crusade to Help Stretch Feed

"The answer to the feed shortage," says the Purina Merchant of this city, "is a wiser use of the feed we now have."

Protein ingredients are 2 million tons short of demand, he points out. Estimated feed grain crops will not feed present poultry and livestock populations, and the government is now discouraging enlargement of flocks or herds beyond the feed capacity to support them. There is also an acute transportation shortage which limits the shipping of feed long distances to deficit areas.

"Our Problem"

"The answer to the feed shortage rests largely in the hands of farmers and feeders," the Purina Dealer points out. "It is entirely possible to reach our increased food goals with the livestock and poultry now on farms, and with the feed now in sight, simply by using our feed more wisely and by plugging unnecessary production leaks."

He states further that—"disease, parasites, overcrowded and unsanitary quarters, preventable accidents, inadequate feeding and watering facilities, wasteful feeding methods, low producing birds and animals—all cut down food production and waste vital feed supplies."

More Food From Less Feed

Cutting straight to the heart of present farm difficulties, the Purina Dealer is sponsoring a "Food for Victory Crusade," purpose of which is to spread decreased feed supplies to cover increased food goals.

He is counseling with local farmers on improved management, more careful sanitation, and better feeding methods which have been approved by both state and national agricultural authorities. Recommendations are in the form of "Action Sheets," designed to help farmers stretch their feed by turning a greater share into marketable human food.

Every hour adds new names to American casualty lists. Shortening the war by one single hour would justify superhuman effort. Producing adequate food supplies on schedule will save that hour, perhaps a month, perhaps a year. Massing stock piles for invasion, sending food to our fighting allies, these will save American lives. Farmers, join the Crusade to produce MORE food for an EARLIER victory!

If feeder space is lacking, there is a tendency on the part of poultry owners to fill the feeders so full that feed will be wasted. Every pound of wasted poultry mash helps the Axis. If necessary, nail a few boards together to make additional feeders.

Mental Conflicts Blamed As Cause of Absenteeism

DETROIT.—Emotional conflicts of war workers—relatively ignored by industrial medicine—may cause absenteeism, inferior output, high sickness rate, and a large labor turnover, two Cincinnati psychiatrists warned in Detroit recently.

Pointing out that most of the efforts of war plant doctors have been directed toward the safety and physical health of workers, the doctors emphasized that recognition of emotional troubles is of greatest importance today because of intense production schedules and the manpower shortage.

The medical men, Drs. John Romano and Milton Rosenbaum of the University of Cincinnati and Cincinnati General hospital, addressed a group of the nation's psychiatrists who met in Detroit.

Noise in war plants, rivalry between the sexes, sleeping difficulties of workers on the night shift, and conflicts caused by racial problems are among the psychological headaches for war plant officials, the doctors said.

In addition, many emotional problems peculiar to women have entered the picture with the rush of this sex to the assembly lines, they said.

Little understood, said the doctors, is the fact that emotional distress may be expressed in the form of impersonal or somatic symptoms—fatigue, listlessness, phobia, hysterical behavior, and feelings of discrimination or depreciation toward fellow workers.

Panama's Rubber

Panama's rubber comes chiefly from the Castilla tree, native to Central America and, next to the Hevea tree, the leading rubber-producing tree of the Western hemisphere. The average Castilla tree yields from one to three pounds of latex for each tapping. The trees are tapped twice a year. By cutting down the tree, more rubber can be obtained at one time, but that method ends the productivity of the tree.

Dog Scares Him In Load of Potatoes

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A commission firm truck driver was startled at seeing a movement in a recently arrived carload of potatoes—took a second look and discovered a frightened fox terrier.

The dog apparently had made the nine-day trip from Phoenix, Ariz., and appeared none the worse.

War-Time TELEPHONE TIPS

Now that telephone materials have gone to war, we must get along with the facilities we have until a happier day. You can help keep service good for everyone, including yourself, by following these simple rules:—

1. Be sure you have the right number before placing a call. Consult your directory.
2. Answer all calls as promptly as possible.
3. If you're on a party line, apply the Golden Rule to your use of the line.
4. Don't ask "Information" for numbers that are listed in the directory.
5. Hang up carefully after each call. Don't let a book, or other object, hold the receiver off the hook.
6. Take good care of the telephone instrument and cord in your home and office. They're made of scarce and critical materials.

WE'VE VOLUNTEERED

For Service on the Farm Front

PROTEIN feeds are scarce. We can't sell more. So what we can sell must count for more. This means we dare not waste good feed on unthrifty livestock or poultry. We must cull unprofitable producers—save extra pigs—stamp out disease and parasites—cut down mortality—prevent costly waste.

We know from our many farm contacts that most production losses are preventable. And we are convinced that our wartime food goals can be reached, without additional labor or expense, and with the feed we now have, simply by plugging unnecessary production leaks and preventing feed waste.

To this end, and as our part in helping to win the war, we are volunteering our services to all livestock and poultry owners of this community.

Regardless of the feed you use, we will gladly call at your farm to assist you in such feed-and-food-saving practices as culling chickens, worming pigs, checking feed and watering space, etc.

We will also help you with "Production Surveys" of your livestock and poultry, based on a series of war-time guides, suggested and recommended by both national and state agricultural authorities.

Our service is offered solely in the interest of "More Food for Victory," and our call will not obligate you in any way. See us for a "Feed Stretcher Survey" of your farm.

EFFECT OF SPEED

Tests of the effect of speeds on tires recently conducted by Associated Transport, Inc., operators of 3,500 motor vehicles, showed that motor truck tires wear out more rapidly when driven at a maximum speed of 35 m. h. than at 45 m. p. h. The tests also showed 107 percent more application of brakes at the lower speed, increasing tire and brake lining wear; 47 percent more gear changes at the lower speed and higher gasoline consumption.
