THE HEALTH FOR VICTORY MEETING

Conducted by Miss Meehan, Home Service Advisor

All the ladies attending the regular Health for Victory Club Meeting, Thursday afternoon, Oct. 28, 1943, in the Home Service Hall of the Potomac Edison Company were urged to join in the U. S. War Food Administration's "Food Fights for Freedom" crusade. The ladies were asked to pin up on their kitchen a chart on which each Health for Victory member is to score herself and her family daily on four points.

First, to produce as much food "as you possibly can—on the farm or in Victory gardens." Second, to conserve food by wasting nothing, "cleaning" the plate, preserving in the home, substituting plentiful for scarce foods, and serving the right foods for strength and health.

Cheerful acceptance of rationing is the third point listed on the chart as vital to sharing our food with America's fighting men and our Allies. Point No. 4 stresses "play square with food by buying rationed food only with your stamps and by paying no more than top legal prices."

Miss Mary Meehan, Home Service Advisor of the Potomac Edison, who conducted the meeting, told the members that "food does fight for freedom, and it is we—the women and homemakers of America—who can make food one of the most powerful single weapons for final victory."

The subject for the meeting—Wartime Cakes and Pastries—tied in closely with the crusade, particularly with conservation of scarce foods. Of the ingredients that go into wartime cakes, pies and cookies, flour and cereals and still available in sufficient quantities for continued use. But, for sweetening, we must replace some of the sugar we normally would use with corn syrup, molasses or honey. Butter, lard and vegetable fats are rationed, but this shortage is not too serious because we still have drippings, poultry fats and suet to use as alternates. As a matter of fact, these wartime desserts not only taste excellent but are less fattening than the extremely rich cakes, cookies and pies that were so popular before the war.

A telegram from Roy F. Hendrickson, Director of the Food Distribution Administration in Washington, was read requesting that women everywhere be apprised of an important development in the Irish potato situation.

There are ample potatoes to carry us through the winter, but immediate storage space is needed for the all-record crop of 460 million bushels. American homemakers are asked to cooperate by buying their winter's supply now and storing them in their own homes.

RHEUMATIC FEVER

At the regular meeting of the State Board of Health on September 23, 1943, rheumatic fever was added to the list of reportable diseases, according to an announcement just made by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health. The importance of this disease and its crippling heart complications is shown by the fact that among children between the ages of five and fourteen years of age in Maryland, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease caused more deaths than any other disease except tuberculosis.

The cause of rheumatic fever has not been discovered, but it is known that this illness tends to run in certain families. In the United States in 1941 there were 497 deaths from rheumatic fever between the ages of five to twelve and 1,206 deaths in the same age group from tuberculosis. In Maryland for the same year there were thirteen deaths in the age group from five to fourteen from rheumatic fever and thirty deaths from tuberculosis in the same age group.

AIR RAID WARNINGS

The War Department recently issued an order curtailing the activities of ground observers and others in the information centers on the eastern seaboard.

Attention is called to fact that this does not in any way affect the operations of the Civilian Air Raid Warning Service. We will continue as we have in the past. The Civilian Air Raid Warning Section in all Information Centers will be manned around the clock as usual with a complement. This policy also applies to the Warning Districts and their personnel, as we cannot operate at the Information Centers without the Warning Districts being fully manned at all times. The Civilian Air Raid Warning Service is the only connecting link remaining between the Army and the Civilian, which will operate on a twenty four hour basis and must be maintained at all costs.

The blackout on Wednesday night was part of this program.

Despite critical shortages of manpower and material, the communication facilities of the U. S. have been expanded to handle millions of words more every day—probably the greatest and fastest exchange of intelligence the world has ever known.

SERVICE MEN LETTERS

Containing Thanks For the Kits and The Record

Mr. Stonesifer: Dear Sir: I am just writing to thank you for your kindness for sending me the Carroll Record. I am very glad to get it because it keeps me in touch with boys from Taneytown. I left Florida in June to come overseas and here I am. I am somewhere in the South Pacific and we are having some time. I would like to tell all my friends some of the things that we do. First we have rain all the time so you know what we work in, then we sleep in tents, but they are very nice. I can't tell what kind of work we do but we are winning the war. I read the letters in the paper from the boys in the Army but I hope that they don't have to come where I am. I am still with some of the boys that was in Fort Belvoir with me and that makes me feel much better because we were trained to fight this war.

This is the first time since I have been in the Army that I won't spend Christmas at home so I'll say Merry Christmas to all my friends, aunts and uncles back in the States, and to my wife and children not to worry about me, because I will be home soon. I enjoy reading the Carroll Record and please don't stop sending it to me.

Cpl. EUGENE L. HILL, A. S. N. 33065773. Co. C 870 Engr. Ann. Bn APO 928 care Postmaster San Francisco, Calif.

The Carroll Record Co. I certainly do thank you for the home-town paper. I know I am going to look forward to its arrival each week with eager anticipation.

One could not wish for anything better, being away from home—it's truly a treat. Appreciatively. PVT. JOHN C. ELLIOT, Sq. 223, 51st. Tr Group, Keesler Field, Miss.

Someone in the Pacific. Dear Mr. Stonesifer: It probably seems strange to you that you haven't heard from me for quite a while, but I can assure you there is a very good and definite reason for my failing to write. I am writing this letter from the high seas—somewhere on the South Pacific. I fully realize that it won't get mailed until I reach Australia, but maybe after I land there I won't have an opportunity to write.

I have been out here on the Pacific for two weeks, and have thoroughly enjoyed every minute of the trip thus far. Of course, we are now entering the more dangerous waters as we get closer and closer to the South Sea Islands.

The Blue Pacific! How often have we heard that phrase! And yet, no one who has never seen it can actually appreciate the truthfulness of the statement. The water is deep indigo-blue, and flashes brilliantly in the sunlight. And the sunrise and sunset can never really be appreciated until you see that golden ball of flame rise or set beyond the horizon. It is a picture no artist can paint. The colors are vividly beautiful—these words cannot do them justice!

The trip thus far has been fine. The water has been reasonably calm except for today. We're really rolling and pitching. But that only breaks the monotony of the trip—makes it more exciting! We've passed several ships enroute back to the states, and saw a whale resting quietly upon the surface. Other than that, we've sighted nothing but water since we pulled out of the San Francisco Harbor.

I suppose I've taken up enough of your time, so I'd better bring this letter to a close. I fully realize that we've quite a distance to cover yet, and if anything truly exciting happens, I'll have to convey it to you in another message. Until then, and until I get back to the states again, I want to thank the Taneytown Community Project again for their very useful kit, and I want to express my thanks to you and the Record Company for all you've done, not only for myself, but for all the rest of the Taneytown boys in the service. You don't know what great morale builders you are! Keep up the good work! Sincerely, LT. WILLIAM R. SELL O-861099 A. P. O. 12315-D care P. M. San Francisco, Calif.

Hello Friends: I have arrived in England and getting along swell. Sure hated to leave all of you and the states but I'm still in the Army.

I find things here very interesting and the people friendly and nice being around. Our camp and work is nearly the same as in the states, we're still working in warehouses. My second day here I met Tommy Dayhoff, sure was a big surprise for he's the first Taneytown boy I've met since I've been in the Army.

I have been receiving your paper every week and enjoy reading the home news very much. Thanks a million for sending them to me. Well I'll have to close for tonight. Hope I'm soon home with all of you. Again thanks. PVT. KENNETH A. BAIR, 442nd. Eng. Base Depot Co. A. P. O. No. 510 Care Postmaster, N. Y.

Gentlemen: At this time I wish to drop you a few lines in appreciation of your paper. (Continued on Eighth Page.)

CARROLL COUNTY CHILDREN'S AID

Opens its Annual Drive for Funds

The Children's Aid Society of Carroll County is conducting its annual campaign for funds. The period of solicitation started on Monday of this week and will continue until Saturday, November 6.

Donald C. Sponseller, county campaign chairman says: "Fifteen years ago the Children's Aid Society of Carroll County was organized to provide care and protection for neglected and dependent children in this county."

In order that the Society may continue this necessary and beneficial work it must depend largely upon the contributions of the people of Carroll County. The annual campaign will be conducted from Oct. 25 through November 6. An earnest appeal is made to the people of Carroll County to be most generous in their contributions to this organization which administers its funds in Carroll County for the benefit of our underprivileged children.

The opening of the campaign, which aims at gathering $4,000, was held at the Westminster Riding Club Saturday afternoon and there was a large attendance of officers, workers, foster parents and their children.

Mrs. Frank T. Myers, president of the society, was in charge of the program. Gladys Miller and Mary Clingan gave recitations; Joanna Sellman, aged four years, sang "Betsy Ross Flag." Mrs. Gladys M. Wimer led in group singing with Mrs. Caroling Wantz Taylor at the piano. Prof. Philip Royer, violinist, with Mrs. Gerald Brackett at the piano, rendered four selections that were most pleasing to the children as well as the adults. Miss Bonnie Custenbender, social director for the county paid tribute to the foster parents and expressed her pleasure in seeing so many present.

Mrs. Myers appointed on the nominating committee, who will report at the February meeting, there will be no December meeting, the following: Mrs. Samuel Bare, Mrs. J. Pearre Wantz, Jr., Mrs. Frank Haines. An appeal was made for toys that can be repaired, and the kits for the teen age girls for Christmas, and as always, more dolls.

The Kiwanis Club, through its boys and girls committee, have fostered the plan of victory gardens for the past two years among the girls and boys, and they have been gratified with the results given them. Dr. Fred Schmitt, in behalf of the club, presented cash prizes to the winners in the victory garden contest as follows: first, five dollars, Evelyn Pitt and Ralph Harris, second, three dollars, Dorothy Pitt, Mrs. Powell and Louis Erb; third, two dollars, Eva Walking, Herbert Blizard and Harry Frock; and 4th, which included all those who entered gardens—one dollar, Margaret Kelbaugh, Jeannette Miller, Charles Crumble, John Arbaugh, Wade Miller, Kenneth Scott, Paul Pitt, Richard Fowler and Louis Kelbaugh. The children gave a rising vote of thanks to the Kiwanis Club as their token of appreciation.

The children were entertained in the basement lounge of the club house. Kiddies movies of favorite characters were shown by Boyd Rutan.

The puppet show, which was in charge of Mary Emma and Margaret Whitfield, fascinated the children. The girls handled this intricate entertaining and delighted the children with a one act play featuring their clown in Clippo Becomes an Actor; popular Mother Goose in charades which kept some of the children guessing; and a spooky Halloween play. The children were treated to ice cream.

The hostess committee served ginger bread with lemon sauce and coffee. All of the district chairmen and their workers present were supplied with their campaign material. Those who were unable to attend will receive their working materials shortly.

Carroll Countians Among the Invited Guests

Two local citizens, Mrs. Allen Feeser and Miss Belva Koons, together with four Westminster women Mrs. Agnes Jones, Mrs. Gladys Weimert, Mrs. Martha Smith and Mrs. Miller Richardson, were among the guests at a banquet at the Hotel Willard in Washington, Wednesday of this week at 12:30 P. M., when Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was the guest speaker.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke principally of her recent trip abroad, embracing in her address many items relating to war work, the Red Cross and other topics of interest to the women present.

The banquet was held under the auspices of the Soroptimists' Club of Washington, which extended an invitation to the Westminster Club.

At the banquet the Carroll County group visited the Senate, where they listened for a short time to a discussion on the floor, and then were treated to a ride on the railroad through the tunnel to the Senate Office Building.

TO COLLECT OLD CLOTHING, RAGS

A nation-wide collection campaign for discarded clothing, used fabrics, and rags is being planned to meet heavy industrial and military requirements for wiping cloths, according to WPB. Officials emphasized that they do not want clothes that the owner will wear again or can use. The discarded clothing also will be used for local relief and relief and rehabilitation purposes abroad. Materials collected will be separated and classified for best possible use. It is expected that the collection program will be handled by individual states and communities.

URGES FARMERS TO COLLECT SCRAP

In support of all-out "Victory Scrap Bank" drive to collect iron and steel scrap, Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, has urged farmers to comb their farms for all possible scrap. Pointing out that next to industry, the greatest source of heavy scrap is the American farm, Mr. Jones said: "American farmers are doing the greatest food production job in history. However if we are to insure ample steel for wartime production, millions of tons of scrap iron and steel must come from our farms in the next six weeks."

BAD NEWS

That was bad news we think that informed the world that the German army had overrun northern Italy and was storming Rome itself. Evidently somebody let the German leaders outsmart them. That blunder will prove a costly one.

From reports that appeared in the daily press we were led to believe that the Allies were about to strike at "the soft under belly" of Germany. Before that blow can now be struck the German army will have to be destroyed or routed and either task will be a man's size job.

We fear the war has been lengthened a year or more because of this one move. It is about time for all of us to throw off our complacency and get down to the real business of winning this war. W. J. H.

YOU'VE MET THEM

Some people are happier being miserable than they are in being happy without being miserable. They go around with their eyes popped out looking for trouble. They keep their long snoots well toward the earth hoping to pick up the trail of scandal. They can sit in the parlor and lick the skillet in the kitchen. To see any one happy pains their disposition and a smile gives them the bellyache. Their idea of a pleasant evening is to sit around with a long face and tell stories of disease and the graveyard. If they think that you are feeling well they tell a tale about some healthy sucker who dropped dead after a full meal. If you look clean they can remind you that too much bathing is dangerous, and if you are slovenly they recite the story of Bill Jones who died from filth. Nothing just suits them. They think the Earth's an awful place and that most of the people are headed for hell. Their idea of getting to Heaven is to sit around sighing and groaning. To them it is a sin to wear a bright color or a feather on the hat. Music is a device of the Devil and laughter is a sign of a weak nature. The sunshine makes them uneasy. They love the shadows. They serve God because they are scared to death of the devil. They can tell you enough of your faults in a minute to damn you forever. They exude gloom like a devil-fish throws off ink. There is always such a cloud around them that you can't tell just what they are up to. They are good at laying people out both before and after death. As pallbearers they are not so bad. They would be fairly in place at a wake if they could be kept from kicking on the funeral baked meats. But after all, poor deluded mortals they might think that they are playing the right system. As for us we'll take a chance on the sunshine and the smile. We think that God placed all the beauty and brightness in the world for men to work to achieve our ambitions but how often the call comes when there is still so much to do. Well, anyway, here's hoping that we all get all the good we possibly can during this short stop called life.—The Times, Westminster.

HOW TO HAVE GOOD GOVERNMENT

The responsibility for good government in a democracy rests upon all of us who are citizens—that is, directly upon you and me. We are the ones who make the choice. We are free people who select our own candidates. If they are bad, we have no alibis, for we chose them. If they are good, we can take the credit.

The choice of our leaders is our responsibility. We must not elect a mediocre man because we like him, or because he feels entitled to the job. We have done that too often in the past, at too high a price. We must select our candidates not from the bias of party, but on the basis of past record, ability and character.

But we must not only select. We must be willing to act. The express obligation of all men is to exercise their right of franchise. Furthermore, we must be willing to serve. If able men say they are "too busy" to run for local offices they have only themselves to blame if they find nincompoops the incumbents at whom they rail because of their inefficiency.

Popular government can only be maintained if the people are able to govern themselves. This is a republic consecrated to the ideals of democracy, not a master state. Any attempt of the state to rule would mean the death of the nation.

The men of our choice must, like

SURPLUS WAR STOCKS POSE A POST-WAR PROBLEM

More than a year ago President Roosevelt designated the Budget Bureau as the proper agency to supervise the disposal of surplus Government property.

The bureau in turn delegated to the procurement division of the Treasury Department the task of handling actual operations. The volume of sales normally runs to about $1,000,000 a month. Recently, according to the Wall Street Journal, it began to increase and has already

This is a natural development, easily foreseen. In a war effort of such tremendous proportions which must be continually readjusted to meet shifting conditions on battle fronts around the world, it is inevitable that original estimates of specific needs should time and time again be proved wrong and that surplus stocks of many items should be accumulated. Disposing of them offers no problem now and presumably will not as long as the war lasts. In a period of ever tightening shortages of civilian goods, whatever the Government can spare can be fitted in one way or another into the civilian economy.

But the upward sweep of these sales does call attention to the fact the Government, now the biggest buyer in the nation, will be in a position to be the biggest seller when victory is won. It will be caught in a serious dilemma. On the one hand it will possess enormous stocks of equipment and commodities and there will be strong pressure for it to write off part of the war cost by selling them for whatever they will bring. On the other hand, those same stocks will constitute an ominous competitive threat to business seeking to reestablish peace time markets and there will be equally strong pressure for a withholding policy.

That was the situation after the last war and it will infinitely be intensified after this war, which has long since dwarfed its predecessor in size and scope. Unfortunately, past lessons are primarily negative. They show simply how disruptive the liquidation process can be if it is not well planned in advance and based on clearly defined policy. It is not too early to begin exploring this aspect of domestic post-war planning.—Baltimore Sun.

A FARM GOAL

The United States has approximately 400,000 acres under cultivation. The wartime need of food is resulting in the production of tremendous crop yields. But experts, surveying the future, are confident that this country can produce a great deal larger food crop. They envisage a crop gain of 50 percent after the war.

There are 140,000,000 acres of potential crop land consisting of wood lots, pastures, marshes and dry ground which can be made arable. But it is estimated that 40,000,000 acres are now under cultivation which should be abandoned as crop land. If those acres are withdrawn, there will be a net gain of 25 percent in America's crop land.

The experts are of the opinion that land can be made to produce 20 percent more than it does now. This does not contemplate intensive cultivation in the Japanese style but simply the application of common sense science to agriculture. This already has been proved on 27,000,000 acres in the United States.

After the war expansion of agriculture to its rated capacity may be highly desirable. Home coming soldiers will be looking for places to establish themselves. Many of them prefer farm life. Nothing would be more salubrious to the country than to establish as many of them as possible on land that produces good crops. And that is one of the goals of an expanded food producing program.—The Frederick Post.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF SAFETY

The Sporting Arms and Ammunition Manufacturers' Institute advises that we make "safety first—always!" our motto. It gives the following as the ten commandments of safety.

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the cardinal rule of gun safety.
2. Carry only empty guns, taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp, and home.
3. Always be sure that the barrel and action are clear of obstruction.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot.
7. Never leave your gun unattended unless you unload it first.
8. Never climb a tree or a fence with a loaded gun.
9. Never shoot at a flat hard surface or the surface of water.
10. Do not mix gunpowder and alcohol.

the prophets of old, be capable of inspirational leadership in time of peace and in time of crisis alike. "We must," according to the words of the prayer book, "make choice of wise legislators and faithful counselors, who soberly, justly, and with a godly spirit, may enact things just and wise and merciful for the benefit of all people." They must be men whom we can trust—so that we can confidently follow them. There has been too much pleading and not enough leading in government.

Great is the need for leaders. Great is the need for men of vision who can face facts with courage, see things realistically, state truths honestly, accept responsibility humbly—and never lose sight of the unalterable ideal upon which this nation was built—a government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

NEW "FREEDOM" DESIRED

We clip the following from The Republican, Oakland. Our Republican friends, of course, will enjoy it. Those of us who are Democrats will just grin and bear it.

An American newspaper publisher in the Far East, Charles James Fox, has suggested a Republican program which he feels can win against the New Dealers' present hold on American public opinion.

It is a good program. He declares that since even our postage stamps are being used to advertise Democratic Four Freedoms, "let us raise them one and make it five.

1. Freedom from hypocrisy by which has been fed up with slippery slogans that adjust themselves to any idea but have no real substance.
2. Freedom from Government secrecy by which, in these crucial times, the public is allowed only those facts which the authorities, from their own points of view, regard as safe.
3. Freedom from a swollen Federal bureaucracy by which, with the war as an alibi, the constitutional rights of the individual and of the States have been ruthlessly invaded.
4. Freedom from governmental plutocracy by which the taxpayers have been forced to sacrifice billions, by the use of which the Washington Administration, both at home and abroad, has attempted to gain support for dreamy world plans that disregard economic, international and American constitutional laws.
5. Freedom from Downing Street diplomacy by which our foreign policy has been unduly influenced by British statesmen, the shrewdest the world has yet produced.

With these five freedoms we can cast aside the scratched cards of the present New Dealers, get a new deck and give everybody an old-time square deal.

Fertilizer Boosts Sugar Beet Yield

Test Shows Increase Of 3.7 Tons Per Acre

Farmers growing sugar beets to help fill America's war-time needs have found that by following a few simple soil improving practices, they can increase the tonnage of beets harvested per acre.

The value of such a procedure was illustrated by a series of practical farm tests conducted over a nine-year period by members of the soil science department of Michigan State college.

Based on average results obtained from 18 different experiments on various farms throughout the state's sugar beet area in the nine years span, it was found that sugar beet yields were increased 3.7 tons per acre by the use of 300 pounds of 2-16-8 fertilizer. The results of the tests were described by J. F. Davis, assistant in soils at Michigan State college.

"Calculated at the estimated price farmers will receive for their 1943 crop of beets," said Mr. Davis, "this average increase would mean $42.33 more per acre for every grower following such practices. The cost of the fertilizer is reckoned at $5.20 per acre. Thus a return of $8.14 would be realized for every dollar spent for fertilizer.

"With the limited acreage of sugar beets each individual farmer can handle in view of the present labor situation, the use of as much fertilizer as possible to secure maximum production per acre should be of special significance during the present war emergency. Growers often ask: 'How much fertilizer can be applied that will still result in a profitably increased yield?' The answer is that while the return per dollar spent for plant food may diminish as the rate of application per acre increase, fertilizer can still be a good investment as long as the profits per acre increase.

"One important factor revealed by the studies is the necessity of having experiments continued for a long period of time in order to provide reliable information. For example, if the nine-year average is taken, 300 pounds of fertilizer increased the yield of sugar beets on the average, 3.7 tons per acre. On the other hand, if the results are based on a four-year period only, the fertilizer response was considerably less. It is logical to assume that the reliability of results increases with the length of time the experiments are conducted, and therefore, actually larger returns than shown by the data presented for the four-year period could be expected.

"Additional advantages from adequate fertilization of sugar beets will be found in the form of a residual effect that carries over from two to three years. The increased yields from this residual effect have been great enough to pay a considerable portion of the fertilizer applied to the preceding crop. In many cases this residual effect has been more than enough to pay the entire fertilizer bill. All things considered, the residual effect of the fertilizer will greatly exceed the extra expense involved in handling the larger crop. Now, when great quantities of beets are needed for cattle feed, every raiser should try to increase production in every way."

This New York city girl, who is taking a special course at Converse college, Spartanburg, S. C., found cotton picking a novel experience. She quickly adopted the southern method of using both hands.

Agricultural Notes

It is expected that 1943 will see the total production of chicken meat in the United States nearing four billion pounds.

"North Carolina Echo," Holstein-Friesian cow at North Carolina State college, has produced 672 pounds of butterfat and 18,181 pounds of milk in 361 days. This is 3½ times what the average dairy cow produces.

South Mexico Yields Hidden Mayan Cities

The ancient Mayan world extended in a huge arc, with the Yucatan as its center, through Guatemala, Honduras and the Mexican states of Tabasco, Chiapas, Campeche and Quintana Roo. Hidden by dense forests, this great empire has surrendered many archeological treasures and great cities, such as Copan, Palenque, Uxmal and Chichen-Itza.

The forests and dense undergrowth of southern Mexico and Central America have just given up another secret of this once mighty people. As peasants on Hacienda Holcatzan, 45 miles east of the Mexican state capital of Campeche, were burning weeds and underbrush to prepare the land for sowing, the ruins of a vast city made their appearance.

The ruins lie in a depression roughly a mile and a quarter in diameter, surrounded by little hills, or cues, apparently used for burial purposes. Long, low buildings, many of them in an excellent state of preservation, are grouped around patios to form many quadrangles. The ruins contain several pyramids, each surmounted by a temple.

The most imposing structure is an immense building, one story high with vaulted chambers and battlements. The building is extremely well preserved and resembles the ruins at Chichen-Itza and Sayil, in the Yucatan.

Turnips Can Replace Silage In Herds' Winter Feeding

Dairymen who have no silos can produce from six to eight tons of turnips per acre to take the place of silage in the winter feeding of their cows, says John A. Arey, extension dairyman. According to Arey, the feeding of 20 to 30 pounds of turnips per head daily will materially increase the milk production of dairy animals.

He recommends that the turnips be seeded early in August on low, fertile land which has received a good coating of manure and 600 to 800 pounds of a complete, high grade fertilizer. The purple top or Pommeranian white globe are two good varieties to plant.

Turnips and other root crops are slightly laxative and tend to keep the cow's digestive tract in good condition, thereby enabling her to get more out of the other feeds which she consumes.

The tops of the turnips should be removed in harvesting and the crop stored in a cellar or hilled as with sweet potatoes. Before feeding them, the turnips should be cut into small pieces with a spade to prevent the cows from choking on the whole root. The turnips should be fed after milking and not before. If they are fed before milking, a flavor of the turnips will be found in the milk.

Five Guianas

Strange as it may seem, there are five Guianas—British, French, Dutch, Brazilian and Venezuelan—though only the first three usually figure on maps. The Guiana group, a large egg-shaped chunk of north central South America, is completely surrounded by water—the Atlantic ocean on the northeast, and, reading counter-clockwise, the Rivers Orinoco, Casiquiare, Negro and Amazon. The Casiquiare connects with both the Orinoco and Amazon systems, making an island of the Guianas.

Three Guianas—British, Dutch and French—are foreign owned, and constitute the only non-independent soil in continental South America. Of these, the British territory is largest, but it is smaller than either Brazilian or Venezuelan Guiana.

Return Scrap

Thousands of tons of battlefield salvage are being returned to the United States. That which can be repaired is being processed for re-issue, while scrap iron is being disposed of through normal trade channels for return to the war effort.

The number of items and the volume of this battle scrap and salvage are increasing by such proportions that the army has found it practical to establish a segregation yard at a port of embarkation. The rapidly increasing salvage tonnage is being poured into this yard for proper distribution under the guidance of officers with proper experience in the scrap and salvage industry.

Synthetic Coatings

When supplies of natural rubber from the Far East were cut off, the plastic which had been used as the "sandwich" in laminated automobile safety glass was quickly adapted to coat fabrics for army raincoats and other military articles. The synthetic resin coatings for fabrics equal rubber in wearing qualities, and are lighter in weight. They resist air, sunlight, oil and grease much better than the natural product, and they even remain flexible in sub-zero temperatures.

Keep Ship Bottoms Clean

A ship with a bottom fouled from sea grass and barnacles often requires 10 per cent more fuel to make normal speed than would be required if the ship were clean. For this reason, antifouling paint is used on the bottom of ships from keel to load line. The anti-fouling paint is applied after a previous coating of anti-corrosive paint. Not only is fuel saved, but the added speed might conceivably enable a ship to dodge a torpedo.

FEESERSBURG

Monday—rainy and so dark at 9:30 A. M., we must put on the lights for particular work, and if the clocks were turned up another hour, it would be 10:30. After a quiet Sabbath we are starting on another week's duties, and they are numerous—something to be thankful for.

Oh! but Rev. Bowersox preached a splendid Reformation sermon on Sunday morning from the text, "The Just shall live by Faith." A vase of beautiful flowers were placed at the front by Miss Viola Dayhoff. The music was inspiring, and a good sized audience was present, Sunday School followed with the Supt. F. P. Bohn in charge, and an interesting lesson.

In the Church Bulletin the etching shows "The Pastor pays a call," and the poll parrot on its perch must have made some remarks for a short sermon on swearing follows. In the news of the Parish we learn that St. Luke's (Winters) and Mt. Union Churches have already paid their 1943 benevolence apportionment in full; and St. Paul's, Uniontown nearing the goal. Miss Margaret Singer is home after more than two years in Iceland, as Hospital Secretary for the American Red Cross, and gave an interesting talk of that country and her work.

At Baust Church repairs and improvements have been added and a cleaning up process is on, as well as a $1,000 campaign to meet these expenses. Miss Dorothy Crumbacker, Clear Ridge, spent the last of the week in our town visiting relatives and being entertained. She is employed during the week at the Uniontown Defense work.

Mrs. Clara Wolfe accompanied a Uniontown friend to Baltimore, on Saturday to visit the Optician who has been trying to assist her eyes. Mrs. Esther Sentsz Angell and small son, Johnny, of Middleburg, spent two days with the Birely sisters last week, where they were in the throes of housecleaning and two days yet to go.

Mrs. Wm. Corbin, Clear Ridge, just returned from a visit with her husband in camp in Kentucky, was calling on friends in this community on Sunday, stopping with Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wolfe. She and her Grandma Mrs. Clara Crouse when asked of Kentucky she said it was too dry there to judge the country, but the hospitality of the people is beyond compare—the way they adopt and show kindness to the soldiers and their wives. So say they all.

Many trees have lost their leaves—giving a real winter appearance to the landscape and we saw few brilliant in color this season; but we are grieved most of all for the pine shrubbery on our front lawn; the drought was too deep for its substance, and most of it seems dead or hopeless.

Added to our private Zoo are a lot of small shoats; and out there is the little ground Hog sitting under the big oak tree—eating acorns greedily; and mice wherever they can get, and they don't stop for wood—but just eat their way through; and we might as well sing "good morning to you".

Loses His Wife, Gets Gun, Kills Judge, 4 Others

Enraged Husband Wounds 2 More, Then Shoots Up Police Station.

OGDEN, UTAH.—Austin Cox, 38, apparently enraged because a judge granted his wife a divorce, borrowed a shotgun, critically wounded two persons and shot to death five others, including the judge.

Then, while state and local police barricaded highways and searched the streets of Ogden with their guns drawn, Cox invaded a police station and fired a fusillade of shots before he was captured. Overpowered by policemen, he demanded that he be executed immediately.

Those killed were District Judge Lewis V. Trueman, Mrs. Jane Stauffer, 29; a Mrs. Burton of Rigby, Idaho; Mrs. Betty A. Brooks and Sam Nelson.

As police reconstructed the weird chain of events, Cox started off his rampage with a telephone call to a friend, who told him his former wife could be located at 2240 Lincoln avenue, Ogden.

Neighbors Get It. Cox drove to the address in his old car, got out and strode to the door of the small cottage. Mrs. Burton answered a knock and Cox, without saying a word, killed her instantly with a blast from his .12-gauge shotgun.

Mrs. Jane Stauffer, Mrs. Burton's daughter, ran out—and was the next killed. Her husband, Bert Stauffer, followed and was greeted with another charge from the shotgun.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks, living nearby, heard the shots and came outside. Cox turned the gun on them, killing Mrs. Brooks and blowing Brooks' hand off.

Ascertaining that his former wife was not in the cottage, Cox strode across a small courtyard, meeting Nelson, a neighbor.

Cox then shot and killed Nelson. Cox jumped in his car and drove two miles to the home of Judge Trueman, a veteran Utah jurist.

Cox ran to the rear of the judge's home and fired through the kitchen window. Trueman, hearing the shots, climbed out of bed, telephoned the police and returned to his room to dress.

Kills the Judge. Only half-dressed, Trueman went to the window, saw Cox's gaunt figure on the lawn and asked him what he was doing there.

Cox replied with another burst from his gun. The charge hit Trueman in the face, killing him.

In the meantime, a neighbor attracted by the sounds of the firing, notified police, giving a full description of Cox's old model sedan.

City police, sheriff's deputies and state highway patrolmen started looking for the killer.

But Cox, unnoticed by the officers, drove through the center of downtown Ogden to the rear of the police station. He strode into the building, his shotgun in his hands.

He poked open the door of the main police office, deserted by all civilian police and occupied only by two military policemen.

Cox fired one shot into the air, pellets striking one officer in the ear. He then pointed his gun at an officer behind the desk.

But the officer, Lieut. John A. Smith, military policeman, grabbed Cox's gun. As they grappled, Sergt. Frank Snyder, another military policeman, jumped on Cox and in the ensuing melee Cox lost his gun. Taken to a cell, Cox showed no remorse.

Sicilian Girl's Tip Nets Briton 130 Prisoners

ON THE ROAD TO CATANIA, SICILY.—A pretty Sicilian girl was responsible indirectly for a British army officer's capture of 130 Italians, it was revealed today.

Capt. Colin Morris was put ashore in Sicily as an official observer, and later became separated from his troops. He carried only a revolver.

Then, in a lonely area, he met the girl who told him there were soldiers concealed nearby.

"Figuring there were a couple of Italians I went to the stone house she pointed out to me," Morris said, "and kicked open the door."

"I yelled 'Avanzo mucho pronto, suos bumos'—my idea of Italian—and it worked. One by one they filed out. My eyes bulged as the line grew longer.

"Finally there were 130 lined up, carrying automatic arms, grenades, machine guns, rifles and revolvers," he said.

Love for Puppy Traps Young Denver Robber

DENVER.—Policemen held the 16-year-old author of a one-man crime wave but they admitted they never would have caught him but for his cocker spaniel puppy.

Officers for some time had suspected the youth of a wave of minor thefts afflicting Denver drug stores. But when they went to his rooming-house to question him, he jumped out a window and escaped, leaving his puppy behind him.

The pup was taken to the pound and after a few days the poundmaster noticed that a boy was showing up regularly each day to visit it. He called the police and the youth was arrested.

U. S. Air Strength Doubles in Britain

Soon Will Carry Full Share Of Bombing Offensive.

"AN AMERICAN BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND.—Maj. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, commander of the Eighth U. S. air force, disclosed that American aerial strength in Britain had been doubled since March and would be doubled again by September.

American air strength, he said, was increasing from 15 to 30 per cent monthly in both bomber and fighter squadrons and the preponderance was in heavy and medium bombers that will spearhead the Eighth air force's part of the blistering bombing attacks on Germany's industrial centers.

"By the end of the summer," Eaker said, "the USAAF will be carrying its full share of the bombing offensive with the RAF."

He said the policy of using American bombers extensively for daylight operations while the RAF carried the brunt of the mass night attacks would not be changed.

"Experience emphasizes the rightness of our decision to adhere to daylight bombing," he said. "Our accuracy has been even better than we anticipated, our planes have proved their ability to defend themselves and our losses are running less than 4 per cent."

Eaker asserted that American daylight attacks would be made in waves following the destructive pattern laid down by the RAF.

"We shall, by and large, launch as many assaults on any favorable day as we have an overall force to effect and as there are targets requiring destruction," he said. "We will time these thrusts or assaults and we will route them so as to confuse the enemy and split and saturate his defenses."

Woman Learns Bus Sign Meant Capacity, Not Fare

ALBANY.—It was bound to happen. A bus driver, who stopped at the end of the line before starting his next trip, stepped off the vehicle to smoke a cigarette.

A woman and a man got on the bus. Soon he heard an argument in progress.

"What is wrong lady?" he asked. "I put three dimes in the coin box and he put in only one," she replied vehemently as she stared at the man seated across the aisle.

"The fare," the driver explained, "is one dime."

"But," said the woman, "it clearly says on the outside of the bus, 'Seats 30; stands 10.' That means if you want a seat it costs 30 cents, standing room 10 cents. And he," pointing her finger at the male passenger, "is sitting."

The Lesson-Sermon also will include passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, among which is the following, page 6—"We cannot escape the penalty due for sin."

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Pay Off: Recently, as perhaps you read, a Newark woman obtained a maid by including in the compensation, permission to wear her mistress' fur coat. Just about that time, a young Westchester matron, that she might engage in war work, was seeking a maid to look after her home and young child. When she was about to despair at finding the right combination, a young woman of striking appearance called. The interview brought out that she was educated, refined and intelligent, also that she was employed by one of the best known model agencies in New York. Questioned as to why she wanted to change to domestic service, she replied: "I don't see any future in modeling and I love children. Before coming to you, through inquiries, I learned all about you and your family—and that you wear beautiful clothes."

Discord: A scout reports that when Johnny Long was playing in New Orleans, he noticed Rubinoff in the audience. After the number, Long introduced Rubinoff who took a bow. But the audience kept on applauding so the violinist finally walked to the podium, whispered a number to the orchestra's pianist and motioned to Long for his violin which was handed over. As Rubinoff raised his bow, the audience hushed in expectation of a treat. But instead of music, the most awful screeching resulted. Rubinoff, suspecting a gag, glared at Long who for a moment, stood red-faced. Then he understood. Since he is a south-paw fiddler, his violin is strung in reverse. Thus Rubinoff, playing from a normal stance, got only wrong notes. A violin hastily borrowed from the string section (all right-handers) fixed up what looked like an international situation.

Honeymoon Lane: Linda Paige of the Hotel Delmonico, is working hand-in-hand with the chubby little fellow with the bow and arrows and for a variety of reasons, principally the ban on driving, is finding the going a bit tough. The cause of her new industry is the Open House for Officers, located in the hotel. Among the thousands of young men of the Allied Nations who are entertained there are of course many who have matrimony on their minds. Getting married is easy enough but a place to spend a honeymoon right now is another matter. Consequently Miss Paige is busily digging up and listing places that are within easy reach of New York by train or by bus, yet sufficiently remote so that the newlyweds may spend a week or more in a little world of their own.

Co-operation: Speaking of soldiers, they continue to crowd midtown hotels, especially on week-ends. Because of the congestion, some actually sleep in lobbies, or in bus station washrooms, though the situation has been relieved by the opening of several centers where cots may be obtained at small cost. But while the midtown hotels were overcrowded, it seems that inns in the Greenwich Village section had empty rooms. Downtown hotel men got together with midtown hotel men and put into effect an arrangement whereby overflow business is sent to Greenwich Village, the downtown hotels paying cabfare. The system is said to be working satisfactorily to all concerned, the downtown hotels getting more business and the service men free taxi rides.

Start: Milton Bacon, lecturer and "God's Country" raconteur of CBS, was born in Missouri and because of his father's death, at an early age was forced to give up school and go to work. His first job was as messenger for a Carthage, Mo., newspaper. He literally set fire to his work. Then, with a friend, he tried to hitch a ride west on the cowcatcher of a locomotive. The engine stopped a few hundred feet from the station with the cowcatcher and the boys right over a fire on the tracks. The engineer saved them. After so much fire, Bacon entered the insurance business which, through the years, took him all over the country. In his travels he met and talked with thousands of persons and it is that first-hand material that now makes up the greater part of his programs.

Ollo: Tommy Dorsey thinks it's silly to say women are as young as they look—they can't all be under 30. . . . The Peekskill Military academy has a staff officer named Captain Kidd. . . . A member of the Broadway fraternity leaving for the army was given a farewell dinner at the Cafe Madison the other night. Jack Haley, asked to eulogize him, said: "He was a good man as good men go. And as good men go, he's going."

Gets Rats Drunk So He Can Capture Them

Death Doesn't Wait, Even for City Council

LOS ANGELES.—The mills of the gods grind slowly, but sometimes, it appears, city councils grind even more slowly. Jasper Cross, a city employee, applied on March 18 for a leave of absence. When finally the council, along in June, acted on the application, they found Cross had been dead since April 9.

British Baronet Sought in America

Gervase Parker Power Heir To 107-Year-Old Title.

LONDON.—Living somewhere among America's 130 million there may be a doctor, an actor or even a truck driver who, unknown to himself is the eighth Baronet Power. The British are attempting to clear up a 15-year-old title mystery and a search is on for the descendant of a man about whom little is known except he probably went to the United States some time between 1860 and 1870. But if the descendant can be found he can claim a baronetcy which is 107 years old.

The baronet's name will be Power. He will be a descendant of John Power of Kilfane, County Kilkenny, Ireland, and a son, or perhaps a grandson, of Gervase Parker Power, who is believed to have died in the United States, probably about ten years ago, in his nineties.

According to Cyril Hankinson, editor of "Debrett's" directory of British peerage, the Power baronetcy was created in 1836 and was carried on until 1928, when the seventh Baronet Power, Sir George Power, an opera singer, died.

Thereafter a search began for Gervase Parker Power, who was the senior heir to the title. The missing man was known to his family as "American Geoff" and was the son of Lieut. Col. Gervase Power, who, in his turn, was the third son of the first baronet.

In line of succession to the title after Gervase—if Gervase had no sons—is a 26-year-old British army captain, Anthony Ambrose Granitan Power. But Hankinson said the title probably never will be awarded unless it can be determined what became of Gervase.

Dog Is Clever, but His Owner Is Not Grateful

TOLEDO, OHIO.—Teddy, a combination spitz and collie pup, celebrated Mother's day by bringing home a pound of butter to Mrs. Roy Cox of Toledo. It was a nice gesture—and the only reason Mrs. Cox wasn't grateful is that Teddy came by the butter dishonestly.

He was caught red-handed when Patrolmen Joseph Gulch and Al Papenfus saw him pause in the street to unwrap the butter. They followed him and saw him deposit his ill-gotten gains at the rear door of the Cox home.

There followed an impromptu trial in which the driver of a dairy truck testified that he had left the pound of butter at another address. The police, serving as judges, ordered Cox, the dog's master, to pay for the butter and give the dairyman a ration stamp for it.

Police and dairyman left, marveling at the dog's cleverness, but deploring his criminal tendencies. What happened to Teddy after the door closed is a matter of speculation.

Sailor Loses His Wallet; Returned With War Stamps

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—John Joseph Stevens of the navy may be on the high seas now, but he won't forget Schenectady right away.

Traveling through the city on his way to an embarkation point, he lost his pocketbook during a blackout, but through the co-operation of the Travelers' Aid, the USO and employees of a drug store, he now has his wallet back, plus $10 in war stamps.

Through papers in the pocketbook, which was found in a drug store after the blackout and turned over to the Travelers' Aid, it was discovered the penniless sailor was on his way to an embarkation point. The wallet was sent special delivery to him at once and a few days later back came a letter of thanks with $10 inclosed to reward the honesty of the drug store employees. The drug store employees decided to convert the $10 reward into war stamps and send them back to the sailor.

Milk Delivery Problem Is Solved in London

LONDON.—This city's milk delivery problem has been solved by a transfer of customers which has effected tremendous savings in manpower.

About 693,567 regular purchasers were shifted from one dairy company, enabling the firm to reduce its staff more than 34 per cent. The men released have gone into military service or war production.

It is estimated that another 4,500,000 exchange of customers will have to be made in London before the scheme is complete.

Lucky Penny Goes To War 4th Time

It Started Military Career During Civil War.

METROPOLIS, ILL.—A talisman, now carried by Arnold R. Kugler in the marines, is going into battle as a good luck charm for the fourth time.

An 1855 United States penny, it started its military career with Rufus Cullom in the Civil War. It received its baptism of fire at Shiloh and went through the siege of Vicksburg and with Grant's army into Tennessee. When the war was over, Cullom returned to his home and put his "lucky penny" away for safe-keeping along with other battle relics.

When American soldiers were called in the Spanish-American war 33 years later, Cullom gave his talisman to his nephew, W. P. Bunn. Young Bunn went through the Spanish-American war in the Caribbean area, seeing many of his comrades killed or injured or die of disease, yet he came through the war unscathed.

Nineteen years later, Bunn was watching Yankee soldiers embark for France to fight in World War I. Simon Korte, now a retail merchant in Metropolis, asked Bunn if he had anything that had been carried through the Spanish-American war. And the copper coin went off to war a third time.

Korte fought at the front in France and was with the army of occupation in Germany. When he returned to Metropolis he handed back to Bunn the coin that had kept him uninjured and safe through three years of service.

Bunn, now an overseer at Fort Massac State park near Metropolis, consented to give the good luck token to Arnold Kugler when he asked for it. Kugler was Illinois state assistant superintendent of parks before his enlistment in the marines.

Bunn says he doesn't think he is superstitious, but—"You just watch," he admonished "Kugler will get his share of Japs or Nazis and then he'll come home safe and sound, the 1855 penny in his pocket. I hope the coin doesn't have to charm some soldier through another war."

Cook's Soybean Sprouts

Soybeans together with their inch or two-inch-long sprouts can be cooked as a vegetable, served in salads, fried, mixed in stews or casseroles, or added to scrambled eggs or omelettes. They do not get mushy in cooking, cook quickly in 10 to 20 minutes, and cause no intestinal gas as do most kinds of dry beans.

Separate Chicks

Sexes should be separated as early as possible since this is a well recognized practice of all good poultrymen. The separation of the sexes not only provides the needed extra floor space but it also allows for a better and more uniform development of the pullets.

Just Anything to Make Conversation, the Idea

BOISE, IDAHO.—Taxi Driver Isabelle Guthrie, hauling a sergeant and his wife, commented: "Judging from the labels on your bags, you've traveled quite a bit."

"Yes," said Master Sergt. J. T. Hopson. "I've just come back from India."

"That's where my husband is," the driver said.

"Say, I'll bet you're Jim Guthrie's wife," cried Hopson. "He's shown me pictures of you."

Time to Harvest Vetch

Vetch should be harvested as soon as most of the seed has matured. If the vetch is allowed to remain too long shattering will cause loss, especially with hairy vetch. One of the best methods of harvesting, whether the crop is planted alone, or supported by cotton stalks or a small grain crop, is with a small combine. Adjust the speed of the cylinders properly to prevent cracking of the seed.

BONDS OVER AMERICA

On the fringe of West Virginia's Bethany College is an old white frame house, the home of Alexander Campbell a century ago. Son of a Presbyterian, he founded the Disciples of Christ.

Home of Alex Campbell

H. Trotter, chief Nazi labor recruiter in Belgium has just said: "The church in its protest against labor deportations is taking a political action which has nothing in common with religion."

Cover Crop Provides Good Food for Plants

Vegetable growers will find the month of August a favorable time to sow cover crops, either after an early market crop has been removed or just before the last cultivation of a late market crop.

Being a nitrogen gatherer, hairy vetch is one of the best of the winter cover crops, provided its requirements are met. A good crop of vetch will return to the soil, when plowed down next spring, the equivalent of several hundred pounds per acre of nitrate of soda. The seed of hairy vetch should be inoculated if neither vetch nor peas have been successfully grown on the field in recent years. Vetch will not tolerate excessive soil acidity, and it makes a better stand with a moderate amount of seed if it is drilled rather than broadcast by hand and scratched in.

Where conditions are believed to be quite favorable to vetch, it may be seeded alone at the rate of 25 to 30 pounds per acre. It is usually best, however, to sow vetch with some other cover crop. Ten pounds of the clovers—crimson, sweet, mammoth, red or alsike—and 15 or 20 pounds of vetch per acre are a good combination for sowing in August on well limed soil. Domestic rye-grass mixed with vetch or one of the clovers, about 10 pounds of rye-grass with either 10 pounds of clover or 15 pounds of vetch, also makes a good mixture.

Find Wheat or Barley Exceptional Pasture Crops

Wheat or winter barley are better pasture crops than rye in many cases, since rye frequently causes off-flavor in milk. A mixture of early seeded winter barley with wheat or rye is worth considering, the barley furnishing the bulk of the pasture in the fall, and the other grains next spring. If wheat is to be harvested for grain, whether or not it is pastured, it should be sown after the fly-free date, to avoid damage by Hessian fly.

A field of winter grain to be pastured is an excellent place to sow grass, clover or alfalfa, assuming cows are not allowed on the field when the soil is quite moist, since pasturing reduces the competition of the grain crop with the young seeding at a critical period in the life of the seeding. The grasses are sown in late summer or early fall with the grain, and the clover and alfalfa seed are broadcast on the grain late in the winter or early spring. The extension agronomist points out that under these circumstances a very small quantity of grass seed with the winter grain is sufficient—three pounds of timothy, five pounds of orchard grass or eight pounds of smooth brome grass per acre. Mixtures of these grasses should be reduced proportionately. To use more grass seed than this will severely crowd the clover or alfalfa.

Remove Exposed Nails

House and yard must be kept free of upturned nails. Boards with nails in them can be handled in at least three ways. You can turn the board nail down. This helps, but there is always the danger that the board will be turned up again. You can put the board away where people won't step on the nail, but the nail is still a potent menace. The best practice is to pull the nail out of the board.

Nails are just one of many hazards which produce dangerous wounds. Other cuts and scratches must be guarded against too. Ice picks, needles, razors and knives must be handled safely. Cans must be opened with can openers only, preferably the revolving-motion type. When you use tools, be sure you use the safest tool in the safest way.

Boron Necessary

Boron—like nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash—must be present in soil if plants are to grow satisfactorily. It is in the interest of the bigger and better crops that boron-deficient soils be found and treated. Very often a few cents worth of boron will make a field several times more productive—a good investment any time and a real necessity now.

A good way to detect boron deficiency is through turnips and rutabagas because they show decided abnormalities if not given enough of the element. Farmers who grow turnips or rutabagas are urged to cut open a few. If they show dark brown blotches in the tissues, the soil is boron-deficient. In cases of severe deficiency, the central tissues of the root may be split, but in mild cases only the brown blotches will be apparent.

Soybean Lecithin

Lecithin, a fat-like compound, was until recently obtained in pure form only from egg yolk and brain substance. Now it is commercially prepared by blowing steam into solvent-extracted soybean oil and is widely employed in the food and edible fat field. Tests at the Brooklyn Polytechnical Institute show that added to mineral lubricating oils soybean lecithin aids them in withstanding severe operating conditions. By use of this natural product, synthetics composed of critical materials may be released, it is pointed out. Soybean lecithin contains phosphorus and nitrogen, two elements believed to have desirable properties as "additives" for lubricating oils.

Snow Evidence

CONSTABLE TOM DRAKE of the Canadian police parked his car alongside the road.

The two men climbed over the snowbank made by the road plow and started across the field, following a double line of tracks. On both sides, save for the double line of foot-prints and a few deep impressions about two inches square, the snow lay in an unbroken blanket.

Presently they came to a clump of shrubbery. Behind it the footprints ended. There was a deep impression in the snow about the size of a man's body.

"This is where it happened all right," Drake said. He pointed to the foot-prints. "That set of prints there was made by Morrison as he approached. That other line, heading back the way we came, was made by him returning with Edwards' body across his shoulders. The impressions are deeper."

"It must have happened before last night's storm," Sam Bailey said. "Except for Morrison's, there isn't the sign of a foot-print."

Drake shook his head. "Morrison said when he found the body it was lying out in the open. If it had happened before the storm it would have been covered with snow, wouldn't it?"

Bailey scratched his head. "Seems logical. Still, how did Edwards himself get here without leaving any foot-prints?"

Both men looked puzzled. "Wait here," Drake said. He made a wide circle of the spot. All he found was several deep impressions, about two inches square, which he had observed when he first entered the field.

"Not a sign of a human foot-mark," he reported to Bailey. "I thought perhaps someone might have done some long-range shooting. Let's get back to the car."

"There's no one around here hates Edwards enough to want to kill him," Bailey observed. "It must have been a stranger."

"If there were any strangers around we'd have heard of it," Drake lighted a cigarette and puffed a few moments in silence. "Edwards has been having good luck this winter with his traps. There's a report that he brought in a silver fox. Times are hard, and men do strange things when the reward amounts to the profit a silver fox pelt would bring."

He was silent again. Bailey guessed he was recalling the names of men who might go so far as to commit murder for a silver fox pelt.

"Joe Lambert's wife is going to have a baby," Bailey hazarded. "He needs money bad."

"It wouldn't be Joe. He hasn't the courage."

Suddenly Bailey grinned. "Well, how about Nifty Shepp?" Nifty Shepp lived alone on the outskirts of the village, a lazy, shiftless, lovable sort who frittered away his time inventing worthless gadgets during the winter which he sold to tourists during the summer.

Suddenly Drake snapped his fingers. "By golly, I think I've got it!" He drew on his gloves and started the car.

"Got what? The murderer? Who was it?"

"Nifty."

Fifteen minutes later Drake stopped in front of the shack in which Edwards, the murdered victim, had lived. They went inside.

"He was sitting here at the table when it happened," Drake said. "Those dark stains on the floor were made by blood." He flung open the back door and went out. "Just as I suspected," he said a moment later, re-entering the room. "Come on, we're going to call on Nifty."

It was ten miles to Nifty Shepp's place. The short northern day was drawing to a close when they reached it. A light showed in the cabin's window. "Go in and talk to him," Drake directed. "Keep him inside while I have a look around."

Ten minutes later Drake entered the kitchen where Bailey and Nifty Shepp were engaged in conversation. Nifty looked up in surprise at sight of Drake.

"Why, howdy, Tom. Didn't know you were here too. You been sittin' out there in the cold all this time?"

"No, Nifty, I haven't. I've been searching your barn. I found a pair of stiffs in there, one of your inventions. Those stiffs make an impression in the snow about two inches square. If you were carrying anything as heavy as a man while wearing them they'd sink pretty far down into the snow. I also found a trail that led off through your back lot toward Edwards'. Going that way it's only a couple of miles. We found the marks of stiffs all around Edwards' body. Bailey, clamp the cuffs on him before he gets a notion to plug us too."

Long-Distance Walker

In 1868 Edward Weston walked 100 measured miles in Westchester county, New York, in 22 hours, 19 minutes and 10 seconds, and in 1870 the same distance in 21 hours and 38 minutes in a New York rink.

His most remarkable feat probably was his walk from New York to San Francisco (3,895 miles) in 1909 at the age of 70 in 104 days and seven hours, and his return trip the following year by a shorter route (3,600 miles) in 78 days.

U. S. Camps Hold War Captives

22,110 Germans and 14,516 Italians Interned in Wire Stockades.

WASHINGTON.—The war department has announced the location of 21 war prisoner camps in the United States in which are held 36,688 captives—22,110 Germans, 14,516 Italians and 62 Japanese. While many of these prisoners presumably were taken by American forces in Tunisia, officers said that others were captured by troops of Allied nations.

Located in 17 states, the present camps have a capacity of approximately 55,000 but they are being enlarged, the army said, and new camps also are planned.

The standard stockade at the prison camps is an area enclosed by a double barbed wire fence, with guard towers controlling the narrow land between. Such a stockade contains three compounds, each with hut shelters and other facilities for 1,000 men.

Guarding a Stockade.
 To guard such a stockade for 3,000 men and administer its affairs, the army assigns a detachment of three military police escort companies, with 24 extra officers, all housed outside the stockade. Normally the three companies are rotated, one on guard, another on the alert, and the third engaged in training exercises or in supervising groups of prisoners at work outside the stockade.

Within the compounds, the prisoners are organized into companies of 250 men, each commanded by an American officer assisted by several army enlisted men, but are permitted to administer their own affairs.

Relaxing the restrictions which have governed information concerning prisoner of war camps, the army said that reporters would now be permitted to visit them, but may not interview prisoners. Nor may photographs showing recognizable features of inmates be published.

Visiting Permitted.

Having unrestricted access to the camps are diplomatic representatives of the governments looking after the affairs of enemy countries—Switzerland for Germany and Italy, and Spain for Japan; representatives of the International Red Cross, who handle postal and other personal interests of the prisoners, and agents of the International YMCA, who look after the welfare and recreational work.

With the exception of three—Angel Island, Calif.; Camp Blanding, Fla.; and Fort Meade, Md., which are being used only temporarily—the camps are expected to be used as permanent prison stockades for the duration.

German prisoners are held at the three temporary camps, the army said, as well as eight others—Camp Breckinridge, Ky.; Camp Chaffee, Ark.; Crossville, Tenn.; Camp Gruber, Okla.; Hereford, Texas; Huntsville, Texas; Roswell, N. M., and Stringtown, Okla.

The camp at Crossville, Tenn., also contains Italian prisoners. Italians are held also at Camp Atterbury, Ind.; Camp Carson, Colo.; Camp Clark, Mo.; Florence, Ariz.; Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.; Ogdon, Utah; Camp Phillips, Kan.; Weingarten, Mo., and Camp Wheeler, Ga.

The Japanese prisoners are held at Camp McCoy, Wis.

Sailors Quell Two Bears In Pit to Rescue Girl

SAN DIEGO.—Two sailors leaped into a bear pit at the San Diego zoo, fought off three Malayan sun bears, and rescued 13-year-old Joyce Howlett.

She had been clawed and bitten severely.

The zoo director, Mrs. Belle Benchley, said the girl must have climbed over a fence and leaped a moat to get in the pit.

Her rescuers, W. H. Fields, aviation machinist's mate, and Leon Chriskrutz, naval training station sailor, first fought off the bears with clubs, then subdued them by turning a stream of water on them from a hose.

Would-Be Extortionist Finds Job Unprofitable

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—The ambitions of 19-year-old Roger Barker to be the nation's greatest shake-down artist came to a sad end here when he was given a five-year prison sentence along with a five-year probationary period. Among the famous people to whom he wrote threatening letters of extortion were Bette Davis, Rosalind Russell, Mickey Rooney, Deanna Durbin and former Governor Culbert L. Olson—without one single paying bite from anyone.

Beggar Through Hobby Has $2,200 in Banks

LONDON.—Although Frederick W. Hopkins, 63 years old, apparently begs as a hobby, according to the police, he got 21 days of hard labor in prison as his sentence in Lambeth, England. When arrested for his fifth begging offense police found papers on him showing he had $2,200 on deposit in banks.

Face powder, used by at least 90 per cent of American women, has for its base and bulk, so-called French chalk. This high-grade talc is mined in Italy, France, India and Canada, and has flowed into America at the rate of approximately 28 million pounds a year. Most of this supply went into fine face powders and talcums.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.,
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

Lesson for October 31

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON ABSTINENCE (International Temperance)

LESSON TEXT—Leviticus 10:1, 2, 8-11;
Proverbs 31:4, 5; Luke 1:13-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beware, I pray thee, and drink no wine nor strong drink.—
Judges 13:4.

Total abstinence from all alcoholic liquors is the only sensible and effective policy for Christian people. Some, who want to use alcohol themselves, like to stress the Bible's teaching of temperance. They point to the use of wine on the part of people in biblical times, although they fail to note that more often than not it was non-alcoholic. (See "The Bible and Wine," published by Loizeaux Brothers.)

Another thing they ignore is that we live in a different day with a mechanized society, when alcoholic beverages are offered through high pressure advertising and in highly distilled and potent form.

What we are most interested in is what the Bible teaches about the matter. We note that—

Abstinence is Necessary
I. For Spiritual Obedience (Lev. 10:1-2, 8-11).

In the religious life of a nation one expects the leaders to set the example for the people to follow. Two things we may rightly demand of those who serve the nation in its religious life: (1) a vision of God and obedience to that vision in life and service, and (2) the exercise of sound, God-guided judgment in the affairs of the people.

But note what happens when the prophet and the priest turn to wine and strong drink. They err in vision (Isa. 28:7). That is, they have no clear concepts of divine truth, and lead the people into error. Further, we see that "they stumble in judgment."

To every true servant of God comes repeatedly the opportunity and the need of rendering judgment, that is, of advising and counseling those to whom he ministers. If his mind is befuddled by the use of alcohol (or, for that matter, by any other kind of worldly indulgence) he will "stumble," and cause his people to stumble.

A sad incident is related in Leviticus 10:1, 2, of the sons of Aaron.

We are not told directly that they were intoxicated, but it is implied in the fact that there is an immediate injunction against the use of wine by the priests (Lev. 10:8-11).

II. For National Order (Prov. 31:4, 5).

It is a notorious fact that the liquor interests strongly influence the political life of a nation. (See "The Wrecking of the 18th Amendment," by Ernest Gordon.)

While political leaders may make sanctimonious protestation that government agencies are not influenced by the liquor interests, it is common knowledge even to those who are slightly informed that the two are closely associated.

The result of that unholy alliance is rightly described in Proverbs 31:5—"They . . . forget the law, and pervert the judgment of any of the afflicted." Much of the sad disorder in the body politic is traceable directly to the door of the makers and sellers of alcoholic beverages.

It is a depressing and disturbing thing when the leaders of a nation are known to lean on alcoholic stimulants—the broken reed on which man can only be pierced. The destructive influence of their example can be imagined.

III. For Personal Usefulness (Luke 11:13-16).

John was to be born into a life of such blessed usefulness to God and man that he was to be a "joy and gladness" to his parents, "great in the sight of the Lord," and instrumental in turning "many of the children of Israel . . . to the Lord."

Such a life is worthy of emulation on the part of every young man and woman. What is the secret of it? Undoubtedly, fine Christian parentage had much to do with it.

Other elements also entered in, such as rearing and training, but of great importance was the fact (v. 15) that he was not to be driven by the false stimulants of this world, but by the infilling of the Holy Spirit of God. No "wine nor strong drink," but being "filled with the Holy Ghost"—there, young people, is the secret of a happy and useful life.

Note that John was to be "great in the sight of the Lord" (v. 15)—nothing finer or more distinctive could be said about a man. That greatness simply could not exist along with indulgence in "wine nor strong drink." Being filled with the Spirit precludes the use of intoxicants.

Let us bear that in mind when we are tempted to be led astray by the smooth arguments of those who talk "temperance" as a ground for indulgence. Our boys and girls—yes, our men and women—need a constant warning against the evils of alcoholic liquor. (See Alcohol, a Deceiver, Depraver and Destroyer, published by Moody Press, Chicago.)

16-Year-Old Tar Recalls 3 Years Of Adventures

Saved Self on Two Sinking
Ships and Was Wounded
On a Third.

NEW YORK.—A 16-year-old seaman with a crew-style haircut and a South Carolina accent, told reporters here how he first went to sea when he was 13 years old, saved himself on two sinking ships, got a shell splinter in his left leg in the shelling of another, and this spring married a Mississippi girl—who is 15.

Harry Osborne Crossland, the seaman, who said he had just signed on as second cook for another voyage, held his press conference like an old hand in the second-floor library of the Andrew Furuseth Club of the United Seamen's Service, Inc., at 30 East 37th street.

Actually, he had four experiences with the enemy, but one of the ships, a small converted tanker "with one hatch hole" was able to make it to port with the aid of two other craft and a supply of chain. Mr. Crossland had little else to say about this incident, and he was even more reserved in telling of the converted freighter on which he received his wound. The shell hole in it was big enough "to drive a 20-ton truck through," he explained, but because it has not yet been officially listed as a casualty by the navy, Mr. Crossland could not say where it was shelled or what happened to it. He only said that he was "laid up in the Virgin Islands four days with this leg."

Left Home at Eleven.

A Columbia, S. C., boy, he left home when he was 11, he said, and headed for Texas "to find those wild, roaming cowboys." He never found the cowboys, but in Texas City, Texas, which is on Galveston bay, he was attracted to the sea and signed up as a deckhand on a gasoline barge by saying he was 16. When he was actually 15, which was two years later, he "went and got my second papers" and a rating as a second cook.

How or where he learned to cook, he could not remember, and he said with no trace of anticipation nor regret that he had never tasted any of his own cooking, but he recalled with delight the Swiss steak and banana pudding which his mother used to make. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Crossland of Columbia. His father, he said, works in a textile mill.

Just before the war, a small converted cargo vessel on which he was serving broke in two a mile and a half off the coast of Trinidad, he said, and went down. But he said none of the crew, all of whom were saved, could decide whether the craft had been sunk by a shell or torpedo.

Seventeen Days on a Raft.

He was on a raft 17 days, he said, after his next ship went down. It was a tanker, empty at the time, and he said it was torpedoed in 1942. He and his companions landed their raft on the coast of Argentina. He said he preferred serving on tankers. As to the danger of being on one when attacked by the enemy, he said: "If she's hit, she's going to burn. If you're lucky, you're going to get out of her."

His wife, who is working for a sheet metal company in New Orleans, where she is living with her mother, was formerly Miss Vera Nell Shettles. He knew her seven years, he said, and "promised her when I was old enough I'd marry her." He said she had $12 "of her own money," and he borrowed $10 of it so they could be married.

She is anxious for him to settle down on shore, he said. "I'm going out again," he said. "If I get it again, I'm going to quit."

Many Chinese Are Slain For Helping U. S. Fliers

CHUNGKING, CHINA.—Nearly 100 Chinese families were slain by Japanese punitive columns last year in eastern Chekiang province alone for assistance given in the rescue of the crews of several American bombers which landed along the east China sea coast after the April 18 bombing of Tokyo, the Chinese high command announced.

Several thousand homes were reported to have been destroyed in the same sector.

(Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau Jr. announced last April 28 the receipt of a message from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek saying that Japanese troops had attacked the coastal areas of China where many of the American fliers landed and "slaughtered every man, woman and child in those areas." The number of the casualties was not stated.)

Grandmother at Age 31 Faints When Notified

LOS ANGELES.—Mrs. Irene Welles, who at 31 looks scarcely old enough to be a mother of a grown daughter, said she guessed she was one of the youngest grandmothers in the world.

The attractive brunette was so excited she fainted when informed that her 15-year-old daughter, Mrs. Neta Mae Peterson, had given birth to a son, Robert Dale.

Robert Byron Peterson, war worker and father of the baby, is 24.

Dry Cleaning

If you insist on home dry cleaning, the Safety Council recommends the following procedure:

Use a non-flammable fluid, even if you're just taking spots out of a garment. (Products advertised as non-explosive may still be flammable.) When possible keep your hands out of the solvent by using a hand type suction washer.

Do the cleaning outside the house on a day when there is enough wind to carry the vapors away. Dry the garments outside the house. Keep children and pets away. The importance of care in dry cleaning cannot be overemphasized. Don't arrive for your date with St. Peter ahead of time.

Store Lemon Flavor

When using lemons in a way that does not call for the rind, pare off the yellow portion carefully and put it through the meat chopper (using the finest plate). Then dry the grated peel, place in a tight container, and use as a pleasant flavoring when a fresh lemon is not at hand.

Plant Grouse

Michigan has planted a total of 267 sharp-tailed grouse, representing the biggest season of sharp-tail stocking in the state's history, the department of conservation has announced. The birds, all from Alberta, Canada, have been planted in six northern lower Michigan locations.

Heart of Bolivia

The "heart" of Bolivia is the "altiplano," a plateau formed between parallel ranges of the Andes. It is one of the highest places of habitation in the world, most of it being more than 10,000 feet in altitude, with peaks rising to more than 20,000 feet.

Mahogany Texture Uniform

In addition to its size and large proportion of straight-grained wood, the mahogany log is distinguished by a total absence of the alternate rings of dense and less dense wood which characterize many other woods. The result is an unusual uniformity of texture.

Outwitting Maggots

As several generations of bean maggots hatch every spring, the safest way to prevent injury to the beans is to plant them between generations of the maggots, so that the plants have sprouted and are above ground before the maggots attack them.

Wind Blows Grave Deed 150 Miles, Kills Owner

FORT PAYNE, ALA.—The day after Hackleburg, Ala., was hit by a tornado, James Long found a deed to a Hackleburg cemetery lot in his field.

An investigation revealed it had been issued to A. H. Powell, postmaster, shortly before the storm hit. Powell and his wife were killed by the twister.

Halloween Party, 1943 Style

Because hundreds of thousands of American boys in army camps here in this country will not be home for the family's traditional Halloween celebration, the National Halloween committee is asking every family to help in organizing a large-scale party or to invite at least one soldier or sailor to a house party. Here is a general Halloween party scene, with the table filled with traditional holiday delectables. Parties similar to this are being encouraged by the committee, a non-profit organization.

Prepare Christmas Packages Early

To Poultry and Livestock Owners

SINCE there's not enough protein feed to go around, we must stretch our present supply to produce all the meat, milk and eggs necessary for VICTORY.

This means we dare not waste precious feed on unthrifty livestock or poultry. We must cull unprofitable producers—save more pigs—stamp out disease and parasites—prevent costly losses.

We know from our many farm contacts that most of these production "accidents" can be prevented. We are convinced that our food goals can be reached without additional labor or expense, and with the feed we now have, simply by plugging unnecessary production leaks and stopping easily-preventable loss and waste.

Accordingly, as our part in the "Food for Victory" effort, we have volunteered for "active-duty" in the service of feeders of this community to help stamp out such wasteful Production Saboteurs.

We will gladly call at your farm at any time to assist in such feed-saving practices as culling chickens—worming pigs—disinfecting houses, birds and animals against parasites and disease—checking feeder and watering space, etc.

We also offer a helpful war-time production survey of your livestock and poultry, based on a series of practical production guides suggested and recommended by both national and state agricultural authorities.

This "feed-stretcher" service is offered to every feeder in this community regardless of the feed he is using. Nor will you be obligated in any way. We only wish to share with you and other patriotic Americans the important task of winning the War!

'Ghost' to Fight Again for France

Reported Killed in '40, He's Ready to Join Giraud.

NEW YORK.—Max Justes, a tall, sturdy Frenchman, who left New York in 1940 to go to the aid of his invaded country, was with an artillery regiment near Sedan when the Germans broke through the French lines, and soon afterward he was reported to have been killed in an attempt to stem the Nazi tide. Standing at a New York bar, Max Justes announced he was on his way back to the front "to put some of the Nazis where they thought they had put me."

Mr. Justes had a simple explanation of how he rose from the supposed dead to fight once more for France. "I just wasn't killed," he said. "I wasn't even wounded. When my regiment retreated I went with it. We were near Vichy when the armistice was signed. After being demobilized, I returned to New York in 1941."

The report of his death, published in a New York newspaper, spread gloom among his friends, and Mr. Justes said: "I didn't realize I had so many friends until I came back to life." One of them, Marcel Brammerel, of 85-48 214th street, Queens Village, Queens, was stunned one day, when, walking down Fifth avenue, he bumped into Mr. Justes. "I thought he was an apparition," Mr. Brammerel related.

Before he left in 1940 Mr. Justes operated a travel bureau at the Hotel Pierre and after his return he established the Maxandre Parfums company, at 441 Madison avenue. Though he prefers perfume to gunpowder, he explained, "there's no choice in the matter while Germans are still in France."

Mr. Justes, who has first citizenship papers, has been released by his draft board to return to service with the French army. His two companions, who are naturalized citizens, are awaiting releases.

DETROIT LETTER

Two classes of people living in this state can now breathe a sign of relief—those who are short of coal and the poor fellows, who, like the woman who said that she "just lived on coffee, and that it was one of the necessities of life," must have their hard liquor regularly, as through the efforts of the Governor and other state officials, 600,000 tons of coal are being sent to this state, to relieve the shortage which, in addition to the 2,000 tons that are arriving daily, it is thought will allow each family at least a ton a month—a pretty low estimate, if we are to judge from our experience for the past 25 years. But every little helps and we make a prediction that the present shortage of fuel will be forgotten when the warm days of summer roll around again.

As for the liquor shortage, the thirsty boys should be cheered by the announcement that the present situation will be relieved shortly, so that the "bottle-necks and long lines of impatient buyers at the state drug stores" will not be necessary any more—good news indeed, to the poor suffering fellows, for which all should be thankful, as we certainly do not want these poor high-wage earners to suffer for the want of anything that would keep them from spending the money that they do not know what to do with.

The time for the Fall Election is drawing near, and we have just passed through as dirty and mud-slinging campaign as we have experienced for many years. The two candidates for Mayor have certainly thrown pretty near all the dirty flings at each other, as they could think of, and it now remains to be seen which of the two will be chosen, and personally we do not hesitate to say that it is hard to say which is the worst fitted for the job.

We had our first snow of the winter last Friday night (15th.) but as yet have not had any killing frost, at least in our neighborhood. We can tell you this, as the Government has removed all restrictions on information as to the weather, which gives us a chance to use that old subject as something to write about. In fact, looking back over the past summer, we must say it has not been a bad one, from the weather point of view, as we have had quite a bit of rainfall, and plenty of sunny days—and on the whole we have not suffered from weather conditions as badly as you folks did back home, something, at least, to be thankful for.

I am closing this with a clipping from the show paper published by the Federal Mogul Company, for which the wife of our youngest son, Cyril, works. The clipping speaks for itself, and we hope it will prove interesting to our many friends among your readers.

The song "Coming in On a Wing and a Prayer" has taken on new significance for a group of soldiers stationed on Guadalcanal.

Cpl. Cyril Reid, husband of Lillian of the Tool Design Department, is an airplane mechanic in the Army Air Corps and has written home describing just such an incident.

A plane, returning perhaps from a raid over enemy territory, circled the field—the men below watching with amazement. Could he make it? Could the pilot possibly bring that battle-scarred ship safely to earth? From their positions below it was evident that the wings were shattered beyond repair. It would take nothing short of a miracle to bring that ship down without crashing.

So, with prayers on their lips and in their hearts, they watched the achievement of that miracle. The plane, almost demolished by enemy fire, made a beautiful landing. The waiting men, no longer petrified with fear, rushed forward and found that once again the words of the song were true. The ship had come in "On a Wing and a Prayer" with her full crew aboard.

Since the plane was completely beyond repair, Reid asked and received permission to take a small piece of the wing as a memento of a truly memorable experience.

Closely following this incident, a Jap plane, shot down by a Yank fighter plane, crashed several miles from Henderson Field, was located by Reid and a group of his buddies. Upon permission from their commanding officer, they removed parts of the plane as souvenirs.

The results of these two incidents has netted Lillian two very novel pieces of jewelry. From the wing of the Yank plane that came in "on a wing and a prayer," Lillian proudly displays an attractive bracelet, close examination of which reveals nicks and scratches made by enemy bullets.

A second bracelet quickly followed the first—this one made from a piece of metal from the ill-fated Jap plane. The interesting part of this bracelet is that a portion of the rising sun insignia can be seen on the under side of the bracelet, although Lillian insists it's the "Divine Sun" and not the setting sun insignia.

SEVEN GREAT WORLD RELIGIONS

Seven great world religions have filled the thought of man—Seven great world religions now cover life's full span—Seven great world religions now fill man's earthly need—Seven great world religions Time to Eternity speed.

Hinduism was the first—cradle of ancient man—Buddhism there was found upon an earthly plan.

Birthplace of religion was India's sun-kissed soil—Seeking for a common good—God over all.

Buddhism in its infancy in China and Japan

Built upon meditation a precept and a plan

That later in its infamy produced a VILE Japan.

Zoroastrianism also was ancient India born,

Where early creeds to meet man's needs

Held all things else in scorn.

Across the centuries they came, In time each bursting forth in flame.

Twas not till Judaism was born That God was praised and idols scorned.

Unto Old Abraham on Ur's Plain The truth was first for man's true gain.

Here Monotheism had its start And stamped itself upon the heart.

From Abrahams loins two systems sprang

The world to circle round.

God's promise was to Abram given That his seed should in the end be

As numberless as the sands on the shore of the sea.

From Abraham, of Sarah born was Isaac;

From Hagar on the other hand was Ismiel,

From whom in later years there sprung

Mohammed. Mohammed who from Abraham sprung

Held to the thought could do no wrong

Or right or wrong, or weak or strong

Two hundred million is the throng from Hagar to descend.

From out of Israel's loins has sprung Thru David's line the Christ—Savior Divine.

"God works in a mysterious way His wonders to perform" Who can say;

Who can say in his own way That he is led from day to day

Adown the course of Time.

Mankind down thru the ages gone Has come at length where there is found

A true religion that shall be Man's hope for Time and Eternity.

TO PROVIDE MORE SOAP

An increase of about 9 percent in the nation's scrap supply, without using additional fats and oil, is expected under adjusted soap formulas recently prescribed by the War Food Administration. The formulas call for a larger use of domestic non-fat materials, principally rosin, as a substitute for fats.

BONDS OVER AMERICA

Deep within San Francisco's Chinatown lies St. Mary's Park, a mere speck on the city map, but it is here that a new landmark greets the eye of the visitor. It is an heroic statue of Dr. Sun-Yat-Sen, first president of China.

Years ago the French erected a statue to Dr. Benjamin Franklin, economist, scientist, humanitarian. One of the first acts of the Nazi conquerors of France was to remove this memorial to this American statesman.
