OUR SERVICE MEN

Many and Varied are their Experiences

Somewhere in New Guinea, Feb. 25, 1944.

The Carroll Record,

Dear Sir:

It has been several months since I have written to you, and I still receive the Record now and then. Just yesterday I received the issues of December 10 and 24, a little late, but I'm always glad to get them, for it does help me to keep up with some of the things that are going on back home, and it's just too bad that the mail travels so slow.

I can't say much about the Navy but I know you all want to know how I am, and how I am getting along with the Navy life. I'm well, and the Navy life is the best service over here, I think, even if it is little tough at times. For it's not like being in the States, but some day I hope to get there, for it's been over a year since I've been there.

Every morning we are up on time to see the beautiful sunrise and it often makes you think of home, and the sunset of evening is something to see. It's very hot during the day, but cool at nights. The only recreation I get, is swimming now and then, and the thing that keeps my morale up is mail from home, now and then we get to see a show.

Just received word this week from my brother Louis, telling me that he's in England, and my other brother Neal was in Miami, Fla., the last time I heard from him.

It won't be long now until winter will be over, and I know my mother will be glad of that, and I guess she won't be the only one.

There's always plenty of work to be done, therefore we never have a dull moment, and the time does fly by.

I guess I had better sign off for now, for there's not much I can tell about, will have to wait until I get home. I hope I'm on time to wish you all a happy Easter, and may God be with each and every one of you.

Thanking you again for the swell paper and if any one cares to write me, my address is as follows:

The Carroll Record,

Dear Sirs:

I am receiving your paper and take this opportunity to convey my thanks to you and your staff for your thoughtfulness. I feel quite sure that many service men have been made very happy to be able to read of the happenings from their own home town communities. It has been the kind gestures such as the one shown to me by the Carroll Record that has made these men happy and has produced a great uplift to their morale.

I enjoy reading your paper very much and again say "many thanks".

THE RED CROSS WAR FUND DRIVE

Solicitors are Being Warmly Received in Taneytown

From the Red Cross War Fund Drive Committee headquarters in the Taneytown District comes the encouraging report that the solicitors are being welcomed into the home of everyone in the district, and in many cases the family contribution has already been laid aside awaiting the call of the solicitor.

A prisoner of war package, the same package of which over 5,000,000 have already been prepared and which is being delivered to each prisoner of war as rapidly as possible by the American Red Cross, is on display in the front window of The Potomac Edison Company store. We marvel at the completeness of this package. It encloses the following:

6 pks cigarettes
7 vitamin C tablets
4 chocolate bars,
1-6 oz. pkg. army biscuit,
1-12 oz. can corned beef,
1-8 oz. pkg. cheese,
1-2 oz. can soluble coffee,
1-1 lb. can oleomargarine,
1-1 lb. pkg. prunes,
2 cakes soap,
1-1 lb. can powdered milk,
1-1/2 lb. box lump sugar,
1-6 oz. can Pate,
1-12 oz. can luncheon meats,
1-6 oz. can strawberry jam,
1-8 oz. can salmon.

These prisoner of war packages are consigned to the International Red Cross Committee at Geneva, Switzerland, for distribution to American prisoners of war and internees now in the camps. One food package per week is allotted to each American prisoner of war.

This year the American Red Cross is asking for $200,000,000 to carry on this and other humanitarian work to serve the armed forces. Have you made your contribution to this worthy cause? If you have not yet been personally contacted, you may leave your contribution, if you so desire, either at the Birnie Trust Company or the Taneytown Savings Bank. Taneytown District's quota is $1,800, and your individual effort will help us to achieve our quota.

After singing the Old Rugged Cross the meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

FUTURE PREMIER GIVEN SHAKING

An occasion when Mr. Churchill, Prime Minister of Great Britain, then a high-spirited school boy, was vigorously shaken by an indignant Hove, Sussex, shopkeeper is told in the Union Church Magazine of the British Isles.

The article relates that a group of nosy boys from a nearby private school used to buy peas for their pea-shooters at this particular shop not far from Brunswick Road. The shopkeeper noticed that one always seemed to be the leader and she often heard the others call him Churchill. One day this Churchill thrust his hand into one of the sacks and threw a fistful of grain into the face of the astonished storekeeper.

"Then, presumably for the first and last time in his life, he fled. He was pursued, apprehended, and taken. A good shaking having been administered, the culprit was warned that should so grave an offense be repeated, his ears would be soundly boxed."

"Upon this the young gentleman instantly and with great courtesy expressed his regret and handsomely apologized."—Scottish Rite News Bulletin.

DETROIT LETTER

Blackmarketing of Rationing

We wonder if other communities have the same amount of trouble in the enforcement of OPA regulations, especially in the rationing of gasoline, as the officials who look after this part of the country are having. For some time there have been rumors (and pretty loud ones, too), that a large number of counterfeit coupons, especially of the C2 denomination, have been in circulation in the city and surrounding community, but now we are told that these rumors have turned out to be facts. It is charged that a big majority of the dealers are in this scheme, and investigators have rounded up thirty or more, at the time this is written, and have also discovered that all classes of stamps are being used in the scheme.

Now we are informed that another kind of game is being played with genuine stamps. A few days ago the daily papers told us of a plan in which an employee of one of the largest Rationing Boards in the state located in Lansing, our state capital, was doing a landslide business by selling genuine stamps to dealers; the principal part of her customers being those in business in Detroit. The sale of these stamps amounted to over 15,000,000 miles of black market driving. This clerk, a woman in the Lansing office, and head clerk at that, had transferred or sold to one dealer 19,200 coupons and to others 114,000 coupons, the sale of which netted her $20,000. It is charged that a conspiracy existed among these parties, and a full investigation is being made by the Federal authorities.

It is estimated that as high as 30 percent of the coupons found in the hand of the 22 filling stations that were checked, proved to be counterfeit and hearings are to be heard shortly, the result of which may give us something to write about in our next. If a conspiracy is found to exist, and the parties to it are found guilty, there is no doubt that heavy fines will be imposed, and at least a year's imprisonment will also be added to that penalty.

The above goes to show how hard it is to get people to obey laws that interfere with what they call their liberty, even if they feel that they are absolutely necessary to the prosecution of the war and bring nearer the day of victory. The woman referred to, has in the past, been very prominent in crusades against the Black Market, in other goods that are rationed, and has been an eloquent speaker against it, but the temptation to make easy money was evidently too great for her to withstand, as it has been for so many, especially those members of our legislature who are now under fire in that bribery investigation at Lansing. As is usual, in these cases, something turns up that is amusing, and there is no exception in this case. The attendant at a filling station near us suspected that he was about to be questioned, and as he had a lot of coupons that he knew he had no business in having, he hastily put them in his mouth and washed them down with a glass of water. His action did him no good, however, as the investigators searched him and found a lot of illegal coupons in his pockets. And we suspect that if a lot of other attendants were to be subjected to search, the same result would be obtained.

At the last regular meeting of our Legislature, a new apportionment of seats in the lower house was made, in which our county was given six more members, and a corresponding number was taken from other counties or districts in the state. This was done to hold the membership of that body down to 100, the number which is prescribed by the State Constitution. The members of the district that were combined with others to do this are not satisfied with this change, and it is occasioning some discussion in Wayne County, as the law as passed, also directs the county to divide the city into districts, instead of leaving it in one district with 23 members, as present. This does not suit the gang that has been successful in sending a solid delegation of New Dealers, principally Polacks and Negroes to represent our city, with the result that we are having about the finest political scandal that has ever turned up in Michigan. They are fighting hard to prevent this new apportionment, and we will have to wait to see what success they have.

At this writing, one of the most important strikes that has ever occurred here, is now in progress. It is a strike of the employees of 25 of the largest creameries in the city, and affects about 400,000 families, hotels and restaurants, owing to the fact that 3,000 drivers are among the strikers. For two days, now, no deliveries have been made, and the situation is causing much distress among families which have small children, hospitals, etc. In our next letter we hope to be able to tell you that everything in the milk line is normal, but it looks as if the WLB, the bureau that governs the wage problem seems to have had a hand in bringing on this strike, owing to the delay in making a decision referring to a request for a raise in wages, made many months ago.

According to reports we may have a new war on our hands soon. We refer to the dispute with Ireland. Well, the Irish always have had the reputation of taking part of the under dog, and surely Hitler and his cronies are in that position at this time. That part of Ireland which is

NEW FARM GASOLINE RULES

To aid in the drive against the black market in gasoline the Office of Price Administration announced that after April 1 the five-gallon "R" coupon will be invalid at filling stations and may be used only by those who buy gasoline at bulk plants or who have it delivered into storage tanks on their premises. Farmers buying most of their gasoline at filling stations have until April to exchange at local boards their "R" coupons, which will be accepted at filling stations. After March 15, "R" and "E" coupons in all cases must be endorsed whether for gasoline delivered into storage tanks or picked up at filling stations. However, to ease the task of endorsing these coupons, the consumer buying a large quantity of gasoline may endorse a whole strip or block of coupons with a single signature and address written across the required number of coupons given as a unit for his single purchase. For one gallon of gasoline he continues to endorse one "E" coupon.

practically politically free, surely is governed by an optimistic bunch, as we cannot see how they have anything to gain by bucking the Allied Nations, and being situated as their country is, we think they are making a big mistake. But, as we inferred above, if you want to find a big scrap like the one we are in, without an Irishman in it, on the wrong side, you will have to look up your history of the world for many years in the past.

JOHN J. REID.

(In looking over my letter in last week's Record I found that I had made a mistake in my mention of the Edsel Ford estate being put up for sale—the sum asked for it should have been $500,000 instead of $500.—J. H. R.)

MD. LEGISLATURE

Special Session Closed Last Week

The Special Session of the General Assembly of Maryland just concluded, which was called by Governor Herbert R. O'Connor primarily to consider absentee voting and teacher, State employee bonus legislation, will go down on record as "one of the best-planned and conducted sessions in the history of the State," veteran legislative observers declared here today.

The absentee voting bill adopted, they pointed out, reflected the months of interest in and study of the subject by Governor O'Connor, as a member of the Executive Committee of the Governor's Conference, and by Attorney General Walsh who was called in by Governor O'Connor to help draft uniform legislation for submission by the Council of State Governments to all the States.

With regard to the teachers' bonus, the Legislature gave approval to Governor O'Connor's proposition that it was a matter for joint County-City-State action, thus preserving the Maryland policy of local responsibility in educational matters.

The success of the Governor's efforts to limit the session to strictly emergency matters met with hearty cooperation from the members of the Assembly who were highly praised by the Governor for their steadfastness in adhering to the purposes for which the session was called.

MARCH WINDS

The March winds blow their gentle breeze

While passing thru the swaying trees
And outward o'er the fields do go
To dry up the melting snow.
About the place the daffodil
Shoots up her green blades thru the soil

While from the center gay and bold
Gleam flowers of bright and yellow gold,

To tell in language bold and clear,
Winter had gone and spring was here
Out in the barnyard, wings a-flop
Crows lustily the strutting cock,
While all about, with necks apen
His harlem wonders what he's seen,
Tis not the thing he sees, tis clear
Tis what he feels—yes, spring is here. W. J. H.

EIRE'S NEUTRALITY

Although the De Valera Government has refused the American request to expel Axis diplomatic agents, the question is not closed. The joke about the Irishman who knew "who he was neutral against" well expressed the wide-spread unofficial frindliness in the Free State for the United Nations cause. The people of Eire have thousands of sons in the British Army, grandsons in the American. They cannot feel easy about an official neutrality which, whatever its good faith, does give aid and comfort to Germany.

When President De Valera says that no American losses will be caused "through any indifference or neglect of its duty on the part of this State," he may be technically correct. Eire may have done what it considered necessary to prevent espionage, although the fact that the German diplomatic staff was for long much oversized and the State Department's information about radio sets raises a question as to whether more could not have been done. Possibly that is the main purpose of the American measures.

Eire undoubtedly has obtained some material advantages from a neutral position. Southern Ireland has not been bombed. Her people eat better than do Orangemen, Scots, Welshmen or Englishmen. A majority have supported official neutrality. But the fact that her people are proud of the sons they have sent to fight in the British Army—even though those sons cannot come home in uniform—indicates that many of them were unwilling to do nothing to halt Hitler's new barbarism or to accept protection against the tide of Axis conquest. Indeed, it is hard to believe that Eire's neutrality is not founded more on the ancient grudge against England than on any enjoyment of a sideline position in such a fight as this.

Possibly the American note will do more than increase pressures to check espionage. It may help the people of the Free State to see that in a larger sense Mr. De Valera's words cannot be true. For in the fight against the evil of Nazi aggression and oppression neutrality itself is a "neglect of duty" by a Christian and civilized state in the strategic position of Eire. And if the American people have felt that the neutrality of Argentina was endangering the lives of their sons, how much more must they feel it about the neutrality of a country in the position of Eire.—Christian Science Monitor.

OUR CHANGING COUNTRY AND SOLDIERS WILL VOTE

There has been so much speculation about One World that it is time to examine affairs of our changing country. Within the period of half a month following the "blow-off" by Senator Barkley, the President and his Administration have been put on the defensive.

Democrats and Republicans apparently have succeeded in becoming "independent." If that determination lasts Congress will fulfill its responsibilities to the people as the legislative branch of the Government.

The Republicans have made great gains in the past two years and have captured most of the Governorships in the Northern States, and there is every reason to believe that the next lower House of Congress will be Republican, with the possibility that the Senate will also be anti-Roosevelt.

There has been more open opposition against the fourth term since the first of the present month than in any previous period of time. The theory that one should "never swap horses crossing a stream" has been attacked in the Senate.

The Republican leaders have fresh hopes that they will be able to "stop Roosevelt." But those same leaders are not agreed upon a candidate to lead their political procession this fall.

With so many great questions involved in the affairs of our changing country it is certain that the coming campaign will be a very bitter battle.

Congress has been spending a lot of its time over inconsequential details with reference to the Federal ballot for soldiers. The so-called "bob-tailed" ballot simply carries a place to write the name of "your choice for President," and that line covers the whole Presidential ticket as a vote for President, Vice-President and electors of the same party. Two blank spots are set aside in which to express a choice for Senator and two more spaces are left for voting for Congressmen.

No wonder Congress refused to rubber-stamp that idea. The different States all show a disposition to prepare ballots carrying the list of candidates just as they will appear in all the polling places within the States. The chatter that goes around that some States might not do this is called in the language of the streets as "just nonsense."

Congress has been trying to please the President, but has found it almost impossible to do so. But if Congress has its way the policy outlined for State ballots, including full offices, will go through.

The soldiers' ballot and other questions in which the White House and Capitol Hill disagree are being handled gingerly in Washington, largely due to the fact that Democratic Senators and Representatives are actually anxious to heal the breach that exists in their own party—for a particular reason, known as "politics."—J. E. Jones.

RETURNING VETERANS

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States raise the question of how many of the returning service men after the war will settle down in their home towns. They suggest that a good many may be drawn away by the ties which they are forming elsewhere. They recommend a program which communities can adopt to induce the returning men to settle in their home towns.

Millions of these men have traveled widely and seen many cities and states, and some may be inclined to settle in some of these places. This will be a misfortune for their home towns. The old saying has it that distant pastures look the greenest, but there are great advantages in settling in a place where a man is familiar with conditions and where his friends are located.—Frederick Post.

New Night Fighter Plane, Black Widow, Is Due Soon

WASHINGTON.—A powerful new night fighter, a speedy, fast-climbing twin-engine plane called the Black Widow, is in production for the United States army air forces, the war department announced.

Officially known as the P-61, the new plane is heavily armored and is "equipped with the latest devices" for destroying enemy bombers, the announcement said.

Air force technicians and Northrop Aircraft, Inc., of California, began developing the plane more than two years ago, and the contract for the first model was let to Northrop in January, 1941.

Our Servicemen Smoke 50 Million Cigars a Month

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—More than 50,000,000 cigars are smoked every month by members of the army, navy and marine corps among huge quantities of every kind of tobacco product, Col. George F. Spann, commanding officer of the Jersey City quartermaster depot, said.

Colonel Spann said a substantial part of all purchases of items for resale overseas was made up of nationally known brands of cigars, pipe and chewing tobacco, snuff, pipes, pipe-cleaners, lighters, cases and almost a billion packages of cigarettes a year.

Hope You're Left Over, Berlin 'Good Night'

STOCKHOLM.—Travelers from Germany say the progressive intensity of the Royal Air force raids on Berlin is reflected now even in the way Berliners say good night.

Early in the war they wished one another "a bombless night." Now the expression commonly used is "Blieb uebrig," which means "Hope you're left over."

Discover Healthy Men Can Stand Under Heat

Recent investigations have revealed that men who are already in good physical condition can be expected to work effectively within a few days after they start in a hot climate, or they can be prepared for such work by a few relatively short daily exposures in artificially heated rooms, The Journal of the American Medical Association points out, adding that "These observations are of immediate practical importance to the armed forces and to industry." The Journal says:

During the winter season S. Robinson and his co-workers at the fatigue laboratory of Harvard University carried out experiments in which five men walked on a motor driven treadmill from one to one and one-half miles a day in a room in which desert conditions were simulated. The purpose of these observations was to determine the rate and degree of adjustment to hot climates. An artificially heated room, where the temperature was 104 F. and the humidity 23 per cent, was employed. The men walked on a motor driven treadmill at a rate of three and one-half miles an hour on a grade of 5.6 per cent (one walked on a grade of 4 per cent). During all experiments the men wore standard army summer clothing. Pulse rates were determined by palpitation, rectal temperatures by clinical thermometers and skin temperatures by four thermocouples respectively located on the chest, back, thigh and upper arm. The rate of water loss was determined by weighing in the nude before and after work. . . . All but the one man who walked on the lower grade approached heat exhaustion in the early experiments, this being manifest by high skin temperatures, rectal temperatures of 103 to 104 F. and heart rates averaging 178 beats per minute during the last 20 minutes of work. The daily walks were continued for 23 days. The comparable heart rates of the men declined from the average of 178 at the beginning to 155 on the seventh day. The average skin temperature of the men at the end of the work experiments declined from 98.4 to 96.5 F. and of the rectal temperature from 103.4 to 101.7 F. during the same period. About 80 per cent of improvement noted was found to have occurred in the first seven days of exposure.

Recover Coal From Bed of Susquehanna

The anthracite regions of Pennsylvania are a good 150 miles from Harrisburg. Decades ago, anthracite was shipped to Pennsylvania's capital down the Susquehanna river and over a canal which then paralleled the river.

Coal still comes to Harrisburg by water—but not by boat!

Quantities of small particles of coal are carried down the river by high water and settle to the river bed in quiet waters. In the immediate vicinity of Harrisburg alone approximately 100 dredges and flatboats search for these hidden deposits of river bed coal. Each year about 150,000 tons of coal are mined in this peculiar method.

The coal which is recovered is available in three sizes, ranging from rice-sized grains down to a coal that is no larger than a grain of dust—yet it is all prime anthracite and finds a ready market.

War Declaration

The President does not have the power to declare war. This power is vested in Congress itself under Art. I, Sec. 8, Par. 11 of the United States Constitution.

A bill or joint resolution declaring war does not differ from any other bill or joint resolution and cannot become effective until it has been approved by the President or passed over his veto by two-thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives. It has been the practice for Congress to declare that a state of war exists and to charge the President with its prosecution, as commander-in-chief of the army and navy. Congress then provides for the raising of troops and money, neither of which the President can do.

Stinging Nettle

The stinging nettle is not a newcomer to British fields. Roman soldiers carried the seed to England, planted them, and later used the plants as "stimulants" to combat the cold of the "unendurable" English winters. They rubbed the stinging leaves on their shivering bodies as an aid to circulation.

As late as 1860, England used this Roman weather gift for nettle fiber cloth, but the importation of cheaper and more easily obtainable materials placed the nettle back in the useless weed class.

Knock Out Teeth

To attain the standard of beauty demanded by bridegrooms in the far-off south Pacific isle of Malekula, as well as to maintain one's social standing by conforming to the conventions of society in that island paradise, girls must have two of their teeth knocked out. More over, the teeth must be the two upper central incisors. No other teeth will do, and if the dentist-practicing medicine man makes a mistake and knocks one of the wrong teeth out, a girl loses her opportunities for marriage and becomes socially ostracized.

WORLD OF FOOD
by LEO REINER

WE'RE NOT AFFRAID WE CAN EAT IT UP!
HE'LL GET MY HUSBANDS VOTE!

VITAMIN A IS THE BLACKOUT VITAMIN. EAT RIPE YELLOW AND GREEN VEGETABLES, LIVER AND EGGS.

IN THE DAYS OF ANCIENT ROME, FRIED PEAS WERE AS GREAT A DELICACY AS OUR PEANUTS AND POPCORN. CANDIDATES HANDED THEM OUT AS OUR POLITICIANS HAND OUT CIGARS AND CANDY.

REAL MAYONNAISE IS MADE FROM FRESH EGGS, INDIVIDUALLY TESTED, OTHER INGREDIENTS ARE EDIBLE VEG-ETABLE OILS, VINEGAR AND SEASONING.

STRAWBERRIES FIRST GOT THEIR NAME FROM THE FACT THAT IN OLDEN TIMES THEY WERE BROUGHT TO MARKET AND HUNG ON STRAW.

We will pay $5.00 in War Savings Stamps for each strange food fact submitted to us and used. Address, A WORLD OF FOOD, 239 West 39 Street, New York, N. Y.

We promise

At the top of every War Bond you buy are these words:

"The United States promises to pay . . ."

These may not sound like such brave words. But actually they are the hope of the world!

THEY ARE a promise by the country to its citizens, but also a promise by the citizens to the country and to the people of the world; a promise that obligations recognized and accepted will be paid in full.

The millions of us who buy these Bonds, do proudly and solemnly promise:

. . . that partial victory shall not breed the kind of weakening over-confidence which can rob us of complete victory;

. . . that unity shall rise above all squabbles, and differences;

. . . that this war shall be fought through to a finish with all that we have and all that we are;

. . . that the sacrifices of today, and the larger sacrifices of tomorrow, shall be accepted willingly, in the humble knowledge that they are small when set beside the sacrifices of our men who are fighting;

. . . that we will not turn our backs on the rest of the world after victory is won; but will reach out the hand of friendship, and assume our proper share of responsibility in seeing that freedom, equality, and orderly justice become possible for all people, everywhere;

. . . that neither our own fighting men nor any of our allies shall be let down in any way whatsoever now, or in the hard-fighting days to come, or in the peace that will follow victory;

. . . that we, the people, will dig into our pockets, purses, and savings to make the success of the War Bond program a symbol of our determination.

These things we subscribe to. These things we believe in. These things we promise.

FEESBURG

We had a very rainy Sunday and night, then this Monday morning the sun shines brightly—tho' the sky is full of storm clouds; but most wonderful of all is the appearance of green grain and grass where yesterday it seemed so dead, of course the pussy willows have been in bud and bloom the past month, and even forsythia bloom could be forced, but this living green represents springtime.

The Lenten Service at Mt. Union last Wednesday evening was well attended, and spiritually instructive on "Jesus in Gethsemane." There was a goodly number present from the other three churches of the Parish. This week's service will be at Winter's Church—with the subject—"Betrayed by Judas."

On Sunday morning Rev. Bowersox spoke earnestly on "The Uplifted Cross," which points to the best. The Bulletin gives a pen sketch of one studying a Ledger at the time for accounting with "you, Inc" and a thoughtful sermonette. Dollar donations for the Bulletin were received from each church, and from Mt. Union by Mrs. Rosa K. Bohn, and her sister Ella in memory of her husband—George Crumbacker and their son Harold. There's a message from the pastor's son, who weighs 14½ lbs at 4 months of age, and through an interpreter he thanks the people in the Parish who have been so nice to him, and admits he likes to have a fuss made over him. Mrs. Russell Fleagle and Mrs. Howard Koons are patients in Baltimore Hospital. There's some fine Christian Comfort messages with Bible texts. We are proud of the Bulletin, and our pastor is an artist.

We are grieved to learn of the passing of Joseph C. Lincoln, whose Cape Cod stories we have thoroughly enjoyed. Many a pleasant hour we've had with his quaint and lovable characters, with unusual names, and many hearty laughs his comical expressions have afforded us just every day folks clean and wholesome. Have read nearly all his books, and felt as if we knew the author—and will miss him.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Wolfe attended the concert given by "The Prairie Pals" at Taneytown last week, where they saw and heard the world's famous aimless musician, who was born without arms. The Lions Club, of New Holland, Pa., placed him in the Good Shepherd Home for crippled children at Allentown, Pa., where he graduated with honors. With his feet and toes he played trombone with the High School Band and plays a Hawaiian guitar and drives his own car—the only licensed armless driver in the world. He has a wife and son, and is now on a tour in musical entertainments; but what some can do despite their handicaps is always amazing! His name? Ray Myers.

We liked "Ezra's" article on "Going Fishing," it was interesting, real—and often too true, and something to think over; only we never had realized we play hooky from God.

Every day this week commemorates interesting history—but we'll only mention the Cotton Gin on which a Patent was issued on March 14, 1794 to Eli Whitney, a young man from Mass., who had just graduated from Yale College and gone to Georgia, to teach school; and because he was ingenious they begged him to make a machine to separate the cotton seed from the fibre. It had to be done by hand and took a whole-day to clean or gin a pound. Whitney tried experiments in machinery but had to make his own tools. At last he made a crude machine and the leading cotton planters were invited to examine it. They saw it would be successful; then one night the building was broken open and the machine carried off. Other machines were made from it—but it was long before the inventor could get any compensation for his labor after the invention was perfected the cultivation and manufacture of cotton grew to immense importance, and American cotton supplied the world.

Bricker Fights Philosophy of Scarcity

Columbus, O. (Spl.)—"We must bury forever the philosophy of scarcity. We must fight to restore the damage done by the bureaucratic belief that the forces of nature, yes, even human nature, can be controlled by a directive. We must replace regimentation with reliable information and advice. We must help the farmer to help himself rather than continue to tell him what he must do."

This is the message that Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio is carrying to American farmers in his campaign for the presidential nomination at the Republican convention.

"The farmer wants and is entitled to our faith," Gov. Bricker says. "Given this faith and this advice, I am convinced that he will neither go bankrupt, gouge us, nor let us down."

"The agricultural program of the Republican Party will be drafted at the National convention. I expect to participate in the drafting of that program, and I shall regard that platform as a pledge to be kept."

Governor Bricker was born and reared on an Ohio farm. Six generations of Brickers have been farmers before him.

In Governor Bricker, Ohio agriculture has found understanding and help. When he became governor, all of the state's agricultural institutions and organizations began to operate in unison for the first time. They are all represented in his Ohio War Agricultural Committee named on the day after Pearl Harbor to assist farmers to get the materials, labor and supplies needed to meet the tremendous food demand. Other states have followed Ohio's lead in making the state's own tractors, trucks and operators available for emergency plowing, planting and marketing. The Ohio farm labor recruiting program has become a national model.

Governor Bricker approaches the agricultural problem convinced that "without freedom of price and freedom of movement of goods to market in recognition of the laws of supply and demand, we cannot hope to escape confusion, directive upon directive and control upon control, until the whole system breaks down of its own weight. There can be no total managed economy for the simple reason that there can be no total management of the forces of nature."

Poultry Records Aid In Cost Control

Data on Expense, Income Assist Manager

Poultrymen will find that keeping records on the flock as to production and costs of feed and other supplies will give much valuable information to the grower, says C. J. Maupin, Extension poultry specialist at N. C. State college. He points out that this is particularly necessary at this time because of the high cost of feed.

Contrary to the prevailing opinion, demonstration flock records show that the highest average returns above feeding costs are secured on these flocks in the spring of the year when egg prices are often the lowest.

Many growers ask about the feed cost of producing a dozen eggs. The records show that this was lowest in March, April and May, when egg production was highest. The highest cost of producing eggs came in October, November and December when the average production was low and egg prices were high. The average feed cost was 21 cents per dozen during the winter as compared with 12 cents in the spring.

According to Maupin, the records clearly show that good breeding and proper flock management pay excellent dividends. High production per bird means low cost of production per dozen eggs. Cull hens have no place in the laying flock, especially when feed costs are high.

In managing the flock, many growers find it good practice to keep two-thirds pullets and one-third hens. Other poultrymen prefer all of the flock to consist of pullets.

Maupin suggests that every poultryman buy a note book and keep a record of the number of eggs he produces per month and the money he takes in, and compare this with the money he spends on his flock.

Graded Eggs Sell Higher.

Another smart practice to get the highest possible return from your flock is to grade your eggs. Under OPA ceilings, a poultry farmer can get about 15 cents a dozen more for graded eggs. This can easily be done on the farm.

Eggs which are well handled will almost always measure up to the Grade A standard for interior quality. You can grade and sell your own eggs as Grade A without a permit, provided you will gather them from your nests twice a day and keep them in a cool place. The eggs must be candled so that the poor quality ones can be removed.

In candling, the large ends of the eggs should be placed against the hole in the box with the small end tilted down. Twirl the egg before the light and then quickly shift it so as to bring the small end before the light. Any blood spots will usually show up plainly as the inside moves about from the quick turn.

After the eggs have been candled, they should then be divided into sizes. A pair of small egg scales will be helpful in doing this job.

Peru Good Tea Country

Edward C. Elliott, a British tea expert from Ceylon, who was engaged to supervise tea growing in Peru's agricultural experiment stations, reported that growing conditions in Peru were better than in Ceylon or anywhere else in the Far East. Tea plantations totaling 1,200 acres have been established in Peru with production of about 250,000 pounds of dry tea this year. Hundreds of more acres will be planted and a factory for drying and processing tea will be built at the Tingo Maria agricultural experiment station.

Defend Your Right

"I do not agree with a word you say but I will defend to the death your right to say it" is usually attributed to Voltaire, but scholars have not been able to find it verbatim in his works and it apparently was attributed to him in S. G. Tallentyre's (E. Beatrice Hall) "The Friend of Voltaire," published in 1907. Miss Hall in a letter in 1935 confessed that she invented it as a paraphrase of Voltaire's words in the Essay on Tolerance—"Think for yourselves and let others enjoy the privilege to do so."

New Adhesive

A radically new type of adhesive is used to bond the thin sheets of wood molded into military helicopter bodies. When ply-covered forms are heated in ovens, the adhesive becomes fluid, allowing the layers of thin wooden strips to move into intimate contact. After 20 minutes the adhesive sets as a permanently tough, heat-resistant, insoluble material. Plywood of this type will withstand being boiled in water for three hours.

Chemical Hot-Water Bag

Because of today's advanced technique in fabric coating, medical corps doctors now have a "chemical hot-water bag" which can save a wounded man from succumbing to shock. A little cloth bag coated with "Butacite" polyvinyl acetate resin and charged with chemicals generates heat when a couple of teaspoons of water are added.

Mark Pigeons That Can

Reproduce in Winter
Pigeons which produce squabs during the winter months are valuable and should be marked in some way at this season so that young stock from them can be saved in the future for breeding purposes.
The season of normal squab production is in the spring and early summer when all pairs in the loft are producing regularly, usually at the rate of a pair of squabs each month. During the season of heavy squab production when prices are low, young stock is usually saved for later breeding purposes to replace older pairs that must be removed from the pen from time to time.

Poor pairs of pigeons producing only for four or five months may not have more than eight or ten squabs in a year for market purposes, these being produced when squabs are lower in price. The better pairs will produce from 16 to 18 squabs a year, and it is from these that breeding stock should be saved.

Agricultural Notes

In spite of wartime difficulties the poultry industry must produce approximately 60 billion eggs, four billion pounds of chicken meat, and 560 million pounds of turkey meat this year.

Every fourth person working on farms today is female. A few years back less than one out of a hundred farm workers was a woman.

Dog Finds Home After

Adventures With Youth

PINDALL, ARK.—A small, stray black and white shepherd dog found a home and a name here recently. One day the dog found a friend in Robert Watson, three years old. Two days later boy and dog disappeared. Posses hunted all night through dense Ozark mountain underbrush. A neighbor, Edkara Blythe, 23, found Robert and the dog three miles from home. They must have "bedded down" in a heavy carpet of leaves during the night, said Blythe. Temperatures were in the 30s.
Robert's parents said he could keep the dog.
Tonight, Robert was at home in his bed. Beside him was dog "Spot."

Twenty Years to Go

By ELEANOR WALSH
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

MARION WILSON looked through her desk drawers that morning for the last time to make sure they were empty. She glanced briskly about the private office, which she rated as executive secretary to Mr. Swift, and saw that no relic of the many years she had spent there remained. Only on the desk itself was there anything of hers, a glass paper weight, and this she put in her handbag. Then she walked into Mr. Swift's office. She felt shaky, after all these years, as if she had come to ask for a job, not to give one up.

Mr. Swift grinned. "Well, Miss Wilson, so you're still set on it, eh? Don't know that I blame you. Must be a wonderful feeling to wake up in the morning and think, I don't have a thing to do today. It's a feeling I've never had." He laughed comfortably.

"Oh, but I'll have plenty to do," she insisted. "Plenty. I'm going to do the things I've been putting off all these years. I'm going to read and travel and—oh, everything. Don't think for a minute that I'll be bored. Why, I've a whole lifetime to catch up with and I'm going to do it while I still can."

He looked at her curiously. "You've never told us your age, of course. All I know is you've been here twenty-five years, made a fine place for yourself, and now you're retiring. And you don't look over forty. I'd expected you to stick around another twenty years."

She made no reference to her age. "I want to prove to myself that life can be something more exciting than coming to the office at nine every day, getting off letters, dictation, interviewing, phoning, and leaving at five."

"You'll find travel possibilities limited right now," he reminded her. "There's a war on, you may have heard."

"What have you done about replacing me, Mr. Swift?"

"I have someone coming in the day after tomorrow."

"If she needs instructions, don't hesitate to call me. You're sure you can count on her?"

"Pretty sure. Of course it's a woman's privilege to change her mind."

"Not in business it isn't," Marion put out her hand. "Goodbye," she said. "It's been a wonderful twenty-five years." She walked quickly through the outer office where the stenographers sat, and looked neither to the right nor to the left until she was in the city street.

In less than an hour she opened the door of the comfortable apartment where she had lived, alone except for a maid, for eight years. "Henrietta," she called, and Henrietta came trotting from the kitchen. "We're unemployed," Marion told her gaily. "We have the whole world before us."

"Yes'm," Henrietta said dubiously. "What you gonna do with yourself?"

"Why, I'm going to clean my desk and answer some letters that have been lying around for months, and—oh, I may take a trip. I haven't decided. But I'm free!"

Marion looked at her rather blankly. Then she hung up her coat and proceeded to the spinet desk and got to work. When she had sorted and discarded, she was startled to find that the entire job had taken only twenty minutes. That was strange, surely; she had been dreading the task for ages. She started to look over some of the letters she must answer. They were all more than a month old, and out of date now. There wasn't one person to whom she could find anything to say. Write her old friends she was retiring? Maybe they'd think that she'd really been forced out by advancing years. She smiled a little. Many of them were grandmothers now. No, she wouldn't brag about her leisure until she was used to it.

Well, there were a couple of novels lying around that she'd meant to read. She picked one up and read the first page three times before it began to make sense. She put it aside. For some reason she couldn't concentrate. "Henrietta," she said. "Is lunch nearly ready?"

"Yes'm. About ten minutes."

She walked about the apartment straightening a few things. Nothing needed doing, because Henrietta was so meticulous.

Finally lunch was ready. Marion ate in peace. It was totally unlike the crowded drugstore at the noon hour. She told herself that this was no end of an improvement, that she didn't miss the bustle at all, that she was delighted to be away from it. When she finished she glanced at the clock. It was one. Mr. Swift would just be getting back to the office. Suddenly with a gasp almost of terror she rushed to the phone and dialed his number. "This is Marion Wilson," she said—and then didn't know how to go on.

He came to her rescue. "Think you'll feel like coming back tomorrow?" he asked.

"Oh, yes!" she panted. "But—the new girl!"

He chuckled. "You're the new girl, although I wasn't expecting you till the day after tomorrow. Thought you had more endurance. Shame on you!"

Her face was aglow with new hope. Another twenty years, he had said earlier. Twenty more busy years!

THE LODGE MEETING

Someone said to me the other day, "Lodges are on the way out." And it put me to thinking. Why are they on the way out? They must have some reason for being. They could not reach such a high state of popularity if there was no good in them. Why, I look back fifteen or twenty years and I remember that every cross-roads had a lodge, and larger cities plenty of 'em. And now they are on the way out!

Perhaps it just seems as though they were petering out. It may be that men are too busy to get together once a week and think of the widows and orphans. Could it be that men have grown more selfish—and that someday they will return to their senses and restore their faith in mankind and once more extend the helping hand to the less fortunate.

Well, I thought of all this and decided to go to my lodge the other night and get some first hand information. When I got there I had some difficulty in getting in because there was a little matter concerning a pass word that I had positively forgotten. But with the indulgence of the brethren I got that straightened out. I began to fraternize with three or four other members that had assembled. The first one I talked to asked me where I had been during the last year or so. He thought I had left the community. The second asked me if I had been sick. The third, was the secretary (I found out pronto), he called me to one side and in a subdued tone remarked, "There is a little matter of dues—." Finally the Lodge Meeting got under way. There were not enough members to fill the chairs, so I was called upon to take my old place. What a mess I made of it.

On my way home I thought to myself, "What is the matter with that Lodge?" And suddenly the answer came to me. There is absolutely nothing wrong with the Lodge. I am to blame. If all the members are like me that Lodge will soon die, it is a wonder it hasn't died already. Do I want to see it die? Of course not! Then I had better do something about it. And that is what I determined to do as I was walking home that night.

Protect Local Government, Says Ohio's Bricker

Columbus, O. (Spl.)—As Gov. John W. Bricker swings into his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination it is increasingly evident that the big issue will be: "Shall government direct the lives of our people or shall the people direct the government?"

At Dallas, Texas, he said: "There is no compromise between autocracy and a republic. Either the people will control their government or government will control them."

In a recent New York address, he attacked growing bureaucracy which substitutes "rule by men" for rule by law. "Not accountable to the Congress," this bureaucracy, he said, "exercises its power through decrees, orders and directives issued in the name of the Executive branch of the government. They make government policy. They are legislature, administrator, judge, jury and sheriff all rolled up in one."

Repeatedly, he has declared: "The gravest duty we have is to keep this government the kind our soldiers are fighting to preserve."

During his three successive terms as Governor of Ohio, Mr. Bricker has consistently urged the Legislature to "keep local government close to the heart and the hand of the people."

Governor Bricker, bitterly opposed to the world trend toward centralization of government authority, points out: "If America is to remain a dominant force for good in the world, if our people are to continue to enjoy self-government, policy-making power must be taken from the hands of bureaucrats and returned to the elected representatives of the people. We are involved in such a mixture of social reforms and regimentation for political power in the conduct of war, that the party in power cannot unscramble. That will be the responsibility of the Republican Party."

Transplant Seedlings With Care

It's a critical moment in the life of a tender young plant when you move it from its warm indoor seed bed to your Victory Garden. At best, any transplanted seedling is given a serious setback from which it takes time to recover and resume growth.

Tomato, pepper, and eggplant are three of the vegetables that must usually be started indoors almost everywhere in the United States, and transplanting must take place carefully and only after both soil and weather are warm.

Before being set out in the open ground, a seedling should at least have made its first true leaves. If possible, choose a cloudy day, or do the work in the evening when the sun is low. If the young plants must be set out in sunshine, be sure to shade them for a few days until they become adjusted to their new quarters. An ordinary berry box is a good protection, the openings permitting some ventilation.

Slide a small trowel, a knife blade, or even a sharpened pencil under each seedling and lift it gently from the seed bed. Keep the roots unbroken and leave as much of the original soil around them as you can.

The ground into which the seedling is to be transplanted should be worked up fine at least four or five inches deeper than the depth of the hole for the plant. The hole itself should be deep enough and wide enough to receive the roots without crowding.

Fill the hole with water before transplanting. Then lower the seedling into the center of the hole before all the water is soaked away. Fill in around the roots with fine soil and firm the plant into position. Round up the soil at the base of the plant and press it down with your fingers. The more closely the roots come in contact with the moist soil, the sooner they are likely to start growth. When transplanting tomato plants, set about two inches of stem into the hole along with the roots. The underground portion of the stem soon puts out roots which help the plant to make a quick, strong, sturdy start.

JESUS CRUCIFIED

LESSON TEXT: Mark 15:22-27, 29-39.
GOLDEN TEXT: He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him; and with his stripes we are healed.—Isaiah 53:5.

The crucifixion of Christ brings us to that darkest of all days in the history of the world, when wicked men with cruel hearts and hands crucified the loving Son of God. But, thanks be to God, it was also the day when bright hope shone forth for sinful humanity, for in His death Christ bore our sins upon the tree, the veil was rent, the old sacrifices were set aside, and the "new and living way" was opened into the "holiest by the blood of Jesus" (Heb. 10:20).

The cross is not just an ornament to decorate the steeple of a church, or to adorn a man. It speaks of the black horror of the cry, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" But it also tells of our God, who "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son" as its Redeemer.

What does Calvary mean to us? It means that—

I. The Saviour Died So We Could Live (vv. 22-27).

The details of and circumstances surrounding the crucifixion are of deep interest to every Christian. We stand with Luther and weep as we see Christ's unspeakable agony, not only of body but of spirit, and we cry, "For me, for me!" How can any believer contemplate the cross and withhold self, substance, or service from Christ?

There would be less careless, selfish living if we would go often to the story of the death of Christ and recognize the loving, sacrificial devotion of Christ.

Equally heart-searching is the message of the cross to the unbeliever. He knows he is a sinner (Rom. 3:23); he knows that "the wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23), and he knows that "neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). Here at the cross he meets that one "who his own self bare our sins in his own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed" (1 Pet. 2:24).

Note the difference between the two thieves who were hanged with Jesus, for it is the difference between those who face Christ in our day. One nailed on Him (Luke 23:39), while the other, repentant, had a faith that looked all the way into Paradise (Luke 23:43).

II. The Son Was Forsaken So We Could Be Accepted (vv. 29-36).

Awful was the railing and mocking which our Lord endured on the cross. It must have made His devoted, loving heart well-nigh break as He saw the scorn of the very ones He died to save.

Yet it was as nothing compared to that moment when He who knew no sin "was made sin for us" (II Cor. 5:21). Bearing the awful load of the sin of the world He knew the bitter agony of being forsaken by the Father. He turned His head away and we hear that saddest of all cries, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"

We cannot fathom the full meaning of that hour, we dare not attempt to explain it, we can only accept it and thank God that because He did become sin for us we may be "made the righteousness of God in him" (II Cor. 5:21). He died that we might live. He was forsaken that we might be "accepted in him" ("the beloved") (Eph. 1:6).

After the darkness, however, comes the light. He died not as a martyr, a vanquished gladiator defeated in battle; no, there was victory.

III. The Veil Was Rent So We Could Enter (vv. 37-39).

The death of Jesus was not the pitiful weakening of a human martyr. Here was the Son of God, crying with a loud voice (v. 37), giving up His spirit to the Father (Luke 23:46), declaring that the work of redemption was "finished."

As a visible indication of that fact, and as a declaration that the old dispensation of law had given place to the new dispensation of grace, God tore the temple veil in twain. Only He could have done it.

No man could have torn this sixty-foot long, twenty-foot wide, and inch-thick curtain, and note that it was torn from top to bottom. This was the act of God. This veil had hung in the temple to keep all but the high priest out of the Holy of Holies, and he entered with fear and trembling but once a year as the representative of the people.

Now all this is changed. We have now, "brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us, through the veil."

Therefore, "let us draw near with a true heart and full assurance of faith" (Heb. 10:19-22).

'Belly Grader' Among Jobs Listed in Packing Plant

A "belly grader" in a packing plant grades hog bellies according to the cut, amount of lean meat, thickness of the slab and the perfection of trimming. But a "brain picker" must remove hog brains from the split skulls by hand and place them in pans for storage.

A "ham shaver" must pull out the nails from the hind feet and shave away any hair left on the legs as the hog comes from the de-hairing machine. An "offal laborer" has the job of opening the stomachs of hives and sheep, emptying the stomach of its contents and placing the drained stomach in a barrel. An "offal washer," or "stomach scrubber" as she is sometimes called, removes the blood and foreign matter from viscera to prepare them for packing.

A "neck washer" doesn't sound particularly unpleasant. The job, however, consists of removing the coagulated blood from the necks of suspended hog carcasses. This may be done by spraying with a water hose, by scraping with a combination scraper and hose or by scrubbing with a combination brush and hose.

Removing the fatty tissue from the pancreas is the job of a "sweetbread puller," while a "vein pumper" uses a pickle hose to inject the meat with a pickle solution. As for the "viscera table man," he trims the fat from the glands of sterilized viscera.

Bolivia Noted for Highest Capital; Steamer Service

About twice as large as Texas, Bolivia has no seaport, must use rail connection with Peruvian and Chilean ports for Pacific outlet, or turn to the headwaters of the Amazon River for Atlantic contact.

Bolivia's land-locked Andean plateau, cradled two miles high between snow-capped ranges two miles higher, stirred the world's interest with its "world's highest capital, La Paz," and its "world's highest steamer service" on Lake Titicaca.

Low tropical plains to the east of the mountains make up about seven-tenths of the national domain. On the south they merge into the Gran Chaco region, scene of a recent boundary war with Paraguay.

More than half of Bolivia's 3,226,000 people are Indians, successors to one of the New World's oldest cultures. Influence of Spanish occupation endures in names and institutions. Sucre, the nominal capital, has a university founded in 1624. La Paz, biggest city, with 200,000 people, is the actual seat of government.

Damping-off

Damping-off causes much damage to vegetables, both by reducing the percentage of germination and by rotting off the stems of seedlings at the surface of the ground. It is most serious on plants started under glass, but often injures crops started in the open. For plants started under glass, the soil may be treated with formaldehyde dust, or, for small lots, heated in the oven to kill the disease organisms. However, the simplest control measure for plantings made either in the open or under glass is seed treatment with a suitable material. The home gardener will find it to his advantage to buy seed already treated, but if this is not available, he may treat his own seed.

Rough Area

The physical character of the Gallipoli peninsula makes it a formidable area to attack. This was sharply brought out in the 1915-16 campaign, when the Allies tried to advance from beachheads in the face of Turkish guns on surrounding heights. Gallipoli is so hilly that "it is impossible to move about in it anywhere without being commanded from some other point."

Its interior is a broken mass of chalk and sandstone, furrowed by winter-flowing rivers. Valley sides are steep, valley floors often marshy. Even the gentler hill slopes have been broken by erosion and covered with fragments of chalk and sandstone. Hills press close to the shore.

Willow Checks Erosion

The idea of using the willow tree as a soil-builder dates back to pioneer days, when settlers planted willows to stop soil erosion along water-courses and roadways where boggy conditions were encountered.

No native tree has a root spread as dense and water-absorbing qualities as great as the willow. Frequently the root system is greater in diameter than the crown spread. It is our greatest tree drinker, and when planted in dense stands it has been known to lower the water table of the area.

Imported Phosphate

Before the war, Japan imported as much as a million tons of phosphate rock for fertilizer a year. Most of it came from sources now closed to Japan by war.

The United States provided Nippon with a quarter of a million tons of phosphate rock a year, and even larger amounts were supplied by Egyptian and French North African sources. Christmas Island, off Java's southern coast, was another large source of Japanese imports.

Huge Postwar Task in Europe

Repatriation of 30 Million
Homeless People Is Stupendous Job.

ATLANTIC CITY.—Europe is going to look like a great railroad station the first few months after the Germans decide to surrender unconditionally.

Ragged and hungry people will trudge homeward all over the map of Europe. Here and there one white-faced person will recognize another white face. They'll fall on each other's shoulders. And it's no fiction writer's notion that they'll sob silently before the questions come: "Where have you been?" "Are you all right?" "Have you news of the children?" "Is mother living?"

And what about the hollow-eyed children? Their hair cropped because of lice. Their stomachs protruding because of malnutrition. Their wrists limp, their faces suspicious and lined, like old people's.

They may not recognize their parents when the relief committees return them to their home towns. The years will have passed, and how are the parents to recognize them?

30 Million Homeless.

It is believed that 30 million persons or more have been torn from their homes in Europe.

The problem of returning those still living to their homes will be stupendous. It's estimated in London, where committees for the exiled governments are at work, that during the first few months of peace it will be necessary to move 150,000 people a day.

To get the Belgians home it will take 1,000 trains. With 600 persons to a train, 12 trains daily, months will be needed.

The unhappy Poles are perhaps the most tragic of Europe's people. In 1939, when Germany invaded Poland, more than 1,500,000 Poles were driven from western Poland. But, even before the Germans tossed out these Poles, some 300,000 had fled the invading armies. And after that the Germans snatched another 1,400,000 as prisoners and slave labor.

On the eastern side of the country the Russians deported close to another 1,500,000 to Siberia.

The Polish rehabilitation committee figures it will take 1,600,000 tons of food to feed their country the first six months.

The French have lost 1,250,000 workers to Germany, and another 750,000 Frenchmen are held as war prisoners.

Slavs Are Scattered.

The Yugoslavs have been scattered through four countries. About 600,000 were taken to Italy to work for the Fascists. Another 200,000 were scattered by the Germans through Poland, France and Germany. Now, several thousand in southern Italy are free again to go home, but as yet there's no way to get them there.

Little Holland has lost very high numbers proportionately. A total of 374,000 workers has been herded into Germany, Poland, and as far as the Dnieper; 37,000 have been taken into France, and some 50,000 are war prisoners.

Greece estimates 12,000 of her people are in refugee camps in the Middle East, and another 160,000 have ebbed across the country before the armies.

Norway lost only 2,000 labor conscripts to Germany, but recently 100,000 of her officers were arrested and shipped to Poland.

Czechoslovakia has lost 1,000,000 persons who are scattered through concentration camps and labor camps.

But the most curious irony of all is what happened to Hitler's notions of a "pure race." That was to be in Germany, of course. And today it's difficult to imagine a greater melting pot. Men and women from a half-dozen countries are working in Germany. And Germans? They're off in other countries waging war.

Even Seconds Help

Long distance calls continue to crowd the circuits. We have adopted many arrangements to get more calls over the lines than they were ever designed to carry and to get them through faster.

When you must make a call, here's a way which may speed your service a little. Give the operator the details of your call in the following order:

FIRST—give her the name of the distant city and state.

THEN—give her the telephone number you want.

If you do not know the number, give the operator the name and address so she can get the number for you.

WAIT—until the operator asks for your telephone number.

Simple, isn't it? But it will help to speed your call.

Amazing Properties

Silica gel—made by treating "water glass" with acid—has some amazing properties. One quart of the coarse, white granulated substance is capable of absorbing almost one pint of moisture from the air without changing appearance. Porosity accounts for it. It has been estimated that one cubic inch of silica gel contains 50,000 square feet of pore surface, about one acre. This material is used today in cloth bags which are tied to military motors and metal equipment to prevent rusting in shipment.

Lumber Fire-Proofed

Lumber is now being fabricated in large quantities, chemically made so fire retardant that it is classified on a combustibility scale closer to asbestos than to ordinary wood. A recent Underwriters Laboratories report on this new type of building material states that fire resistance is achieved in proportion to the amount of the chemical—chromated zinc chloride—deposited in the wood.

Women Scientists

The first woman member of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, the oldest organization of its kind, was admitted in 1841, although the academy was founded in 1812. The first woman member was Lucy Sistar, wife of Thomas Say, the entomologist, who was one of the seven founders. Today several hundred of the academy's 1800 members are women.

Where East Seems West

When reveille sounds at the marine corps post in Balboa, Canal Zone, Leathernecks there start the day's routine with the impression that the sun rises in the west. Because the Pacific entrance to the Panama canal is 25 miles east of the Atlantic entrance, the sun rises from the Pacific, seemingly, and appears to set in the Atlantic.

Baltimore County Wins State Honors in 4-H Safety Program

BALTIMORE COUNTY has been named by the state club office as reporting the most outstanding 4-H farm safety work in Maryland during 1943. As a reward, the county, in which H. B. Derrick is extension agent, will receive from the Mennen Company a special, gold lettered, hardwood plaque (right) signifying the honor.

In the county's activities, Maryland fire and hazard check sheets were sent to all 4-H'ers. Members checking their homes and farm buildings for hazards were given credit in the Wartime 4-H Production Program.

Twenty-three members completed the survey and returned their reports to the county agent's office. Seven members submitted outstanding reports and were requested to submit stories as to how they prevented fires and accidents on their farms.

The importance of safety and fire control was emphasized and discussed at 4-H Club meetings. As a result many lightning rods, as well as rungs on silos and hay mows, were repaired, chimneys cleaned, rotten boards in floors; steps and walks replaced, and water and sand made readily available near farm buildings. The reports also indicated that many other safety measures were adopted.

To The Builders, Heating, Plumbing and Metal Contractors of Carroll County, Md.

Drawings and specifications may be secured at the office of the County Commissioners for the erection and completion of a garage and office for County Roads Department.

Bids shall be in the hands of the County Commissioners at the Court House, on March 27 at 10 o'clock a.m.
