SCRAPPAPER AND RAGS P. E. PURCHASES

To Be Collected Tomorrow by Boy Scouts

Taneytown will have its fourth general collection of scrap paper, cardboard, magazines, and even rags to-morrow, May 13th, when the Boy Scouts gather it with the cooperation of the Reliable Junk Company. It will speed the collection if the paper and other material are tied securely and placed on the curb in front of your homes.

The next such collection will come in about six weeks, as soon as a worthwhile quantity can accumulate. The proceeds from its sale are placed in the camping fund of the local Troop 348, sponsored by the American Legion Post 120, to be used after the war emergency for a permanent cabin for year-around hiking and camping purposes The response to these efforts on the part of the people of Taneytown has been most gratifying, and besides bearing directly on a critical war effort, this measurably aids the city's youth program now and will have an even greater influence when the full benefit thereof can be reaped in two or three years time.

boys, already are working in the vital food-canning field as part-time agri-cultural workers, without losing time from their studies, Cannon said. Thirty-five youths have been employed for the past week, cutting aspara-gus for a canning plant in Westminster. The boys work in the fields from six to ten o'clock each morning and then rejoin their classes in school. They are transported 'daily to the asparagus fields in trucks furnished by the cannery.

Farm boys graduating from high school, who intend to continue assisting parents or relatives in food production, are in every way encouraged by USES to continue this vocation after graduation, Cannon stated. FIGHT THE INSECTS

The warm weather of the past week has accelerated the development of the flea beetle and numbers of them are already at work in the newly set out tomato fields.

County Agent Burns describes the insects as tiny black or varied colored beetles that jump when disturbed. Their presence can be detected by small round holes eaten in the leaves of tomatoes, potatoes, etc., and if they are allowed to feed undisturbed, they may completely sap the life from the growing plant.

Many growers use ordinary hydrated lime as a dust to keep the insect from the plants. Though lime is a good repellant, County Agent Burns recommends that this practice be dis-continued as it retards the development of the young plants for a week to ten days and frequently leaves a permanent stunted effect. In its place, he suggests the use of a dust composed of 9 lbs gypsum or talc and 1 lb. of arsenate of lead appplied as soon as the insect appears. If plants should be well covered with dust throughout the growing season, the beetles will be effectively controlled without causing any ill effect to the plants.

If arsenate of lead cannot be obtained, calcium arsenate may be substituted at the same ratio.

Newly set out tomato plants may be protected if the tops are dipped in a solution of 3 teaspoonfuls of arsenate of lead to one gallon of water the plants before planting out. set out plants in the hot sun will result in scorched foliage, severe injury or complete loss.

SCHOOL LUNCH BILL DEFEATED

On March 7th, the House killed a rider to H. R. 4278 authorizing $50,000,000 for school bunch programs. The Senate amended the bill on the

The question involved is more than that of adequate lunches for school children. Children must be properly nourished. If parents cannot guarantee this, then the counties or cities can. Or, if all else fails, the State may undertake the work. There is ample authority and financial ability in Maryland to insure that her children are properly fed, if parents are unable to perform that duty. To permit a Federal Bureau to provide our children with free lunches would mean starting another invasion into purely State business and parental authority by the Federal Government. While the bills above noted, on their face, refer merely to supplying adequate lunches for children, experience with Federal bureaus teaches us that there is no telling to what extent bureaus will seek to enlarge their pow-

From the financial standpoint, the proposal is startling. On the one hand—the average individual has high wages and full employment, the counties, cities and states have ample financial resources, and most states have large surpluses. On the other -the Federal government has had to borrow money to pay expenses for the last decade, and its debt is growing by the minute. Surely common sense indicates that such a purely lo-cal matter should be handled by the individual or the local government, which can well afford it, and not by izens to tell our Senators, George L Radcliffe and Millard E. Tydings, prior to planting. It is important, if this procedure is used, to see that the dipping solution is completely dry on is Senate Office Building, Washington,

KNOW YOUR MAN

Never in all our lives have we heard more complaint and bitter criticism of leading men in our government than now. And yet the average voter does nothing, or very little, to correct matters.

In the primary on May 1, only about one voter in ten took the trouble to go to the polls. This is an exceedingly dangerous practice. We are apt to conclude that the nominations will not be changed by our votes anyhow, and just let the selections made by the leaders stand. That gives free rein to machine politics. Every voter ought to be as much concerned about the making of the ticket as about supporting the candidates at the polls.

But the primary is over and the tickets made up. Now we ought to discharge our duty in a narrower field. It is time now to begin investigation of the various candidates. Of course, if you are a mere machine voter, you will not trouble yourself about this; but if you have a sense of responsibility as a citizen you will want to know whether the man of your party is really going to represent you. You can never tell by his former record. Issues are live and are problems of the future. You will be perfectly justified in putting direct and pointed questions to both candidates for the Senate, and both candidate for the House of Represenatives from our district.

This matter ought not be put off until just before the election. Begin now, so that there may be time to know your man, and having reached the place where you think you know, help to acquaint as many others as possible with regard to him. Public opinion, informed and aroused, is the best guarantee of good government and real liberty. Patriotic platitudes may hoodwink the unwary, but they are meaningless and dangerous.

Here are some of the questions we would like to put to Messrs Randall, Tydings, Baldwin and McQuaid:

1. What do you propose to do in a positive way about the usurpation of authority by the central government?

2. What do you propose to do in a positive way about the overriding of individual liberties guaranteed by the Bill of Rights?

3. What do you propose to do about the continued multiplication of the number of government employees and the sky-rocketing of public debt? 4. What do you propose to do about securing representative action in making peace and post-war plans. 5. What will you do to preserve individual initiative, to promote private enterprise, and to counteract the efforts of recent years to throw America into National Socialism? These are only a beginning. There are many related questions. Talk about the four freedoms is just so much hot air, when the action of leaders contradicts them all. We are at the most critical point in our history, "in an age on ages telling." Is America to be really the land of the free and the home of the brave, or is it to be the land of the chained and the home of the slave? Let us hear from the candidates now. What do you propose to do about it?

PRESERVING DEMOCRACY

We are told repeatedly, and repeatedly tell ourselves and others, that the present war is being fought to preserve the principles of democracy and freedom, but it behooves every one of us to stop and think just how much we value those things ourselves while we are fighting to bring them to other people. A good conception of how highly we value them can be gained from a study of the vote cast in the primary election which was held this week.

Here, we do not have to fight to gain the privilege of enjoying freedom of speech, freedom of religious worship, freedom to do and think as we please within reasonable limits, freedom to go to the polls and cast our vote for the person whom we feel is best qualified for an office. Our forefathers fought, bled, and died in order that we might enjoy freedom such as this, and it has been dumped onto our lap without any struggle on our part in order to attain it. We should, therefore, guard it jealously as a priceless possession, and should take advantage of every opportunity to show our appreciation of the privilege we enjoy.

Such does not seem to be the case when we consider the little interest shown by our people in the type of officials who are elected to office to of how a person votes, it should be considered as a duty by everyone of his ability at election time. GOVERNMENT BY DIRECTIVES

The government of the United States has ceased to be a constitutional government.

The theory that the government at Washington is a government "of the people, by the people" has been from your newsdealer. abandoned.

The Constitution of the United States proclaims in Article I, Section 1: "All legislative powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House or Representatives "

Article X of the Constitution reads "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

Why continue the sophistry that The people are getting their stride this is a constitutional government and soon we will find the press filled when the branch of it created to exewith promises and abuse as despensed cute the laws has usurped not only periodically by the candidates and the powers of the branch created to make the laws but also "the powers This is going to be an interesting | not delegated to the United States"

And what are executive orders? Louis Ludlow, Democratic Congressman from Indiana, answers as fol-

"Executive orders mainly originate in the bureaus and are expressions of bureaucratic minds. They often embody the whims of bureau chiefs.

They have the effect of laws." They are, in short, the orders of a governing class that has usurped the powers vested by the Constitution in the Congress or reserved to the people by the Constitution. They are the whims and caprices of those little fuehrers who have eased themselves into fat Federal jobs where they are now exercising unconstitutional authority and robbing the people of the liberties for which their forefathers fought the Revolution.-Robert A. ANSWER IT WITH WAR BONDS!

WHILE your boy is away fighting, he's not only growing up into a man who will be glad to take his place beside you on the farm when he gets back. He's getting used to first class equipment—learning how to handle guns and machinery and jeeps. He isn't going to be pleased with run-down farm buildings and worn-out equipment. He's going to know what's what—and it's going to be up to you to see that the farm comes up to scratch.

Right now, War Bonds are helping to provide our boys with that fine fighting equipment, and thereby hastening the day of Victory. But afterward, you get $4 back for every $3 you put in, if the Bonds are held to maturity. And you can use it for all the things you'll be needing. Put it into new buildings and fences, new stock and maybe a home with modern comforts—and that super-duper tractor!

On farms and ranches all over the country, far-sighted owners and tenants are keeping careful track of places where money will have to be spent when the war is over. Against these future expenses they are salting away their dollars in War Bonds. It's the safest, easiest kind of postwar planning. The safest, because Uncle Sam stands behind them. The easiest, because you can get large or small denomination Bonds to suit your needs, at your bank, post office or Production Credit Association. Between trips to town you can order through your rural mail carrier, or write direct for them yourself,

But, however you buy, keep right on buying them!

YOU NEVER GET LESS THAN YOU LEND! And you can get ½ more than you invest. When held 10 years, Series E War Bonds yield 2.9% interest compounded semi-annually. You get back $4 for every $3.

Of course, no one should cash a Bond unless he has to; but if an emergency comes along, Uncle Sam will redeem them in cash—at full purchase price—any time after you've held them 60 days. Don't hold back a single dollar unnecessarily from the purchase of War Bonds, YOUR HELP, IS NEEDED TO WIN THIS WAR.

PEACE—BE STILL

When Jesus trod the open sea and bade the waves be still. He forced all Nature to obey His Sovereign, Divine Will. It was not often that He spoke in such commanding tone, He took upon Himself the load—trod the wine-press alone.

Shall Jesus speak and bid the troubled waves be calm? Can he give man free-will to act, and then avoid war's harm? Why does this world, created by a hand that is Divine,

Persist in its iniquity, destruction and rapine?

Will this war end in a stalemate of envy of bitter hate? Can civilization long endure such despicable state?

What reason can we ever give this aweful thing to stay? One hope there is and only one-repent of sin and pray.

When the war-drum sound is ended, and the battle-flags are furled And mankind comes back to sanity, we'll have a peaceful world. When man can curb his passion, his avarice and greed,

A happy world will be our lot, and heaven will be our creed. W. J. H. 1944.

SUGAR FOR CANNING

Effective today Boards are authorzed to grant a maximum of only 10 pounds of sugar per person for home canning on the first application. Later consumers will be permitted to apply for additional amounts of canning sugar not to exceed 10 pounds per person, and the second applica-tion will have to be accompanied by a statement as to what use was made of the initial allowances, including that secured by the use of Stamp

He Lived, but by All the Fates He Should Have Died

His Vital Organs Shot Out, U. S. Soldier Recovers To Tell About It.

BATTLE CREEK .- Pvt. Floyd A. Lambert, 20 years old, of Onekama, Mich., should be dead today.

He should have died January 9 a year ago when Jap bombs and cannon shells ripped great gashes in his chest and abdomen.

But he didn't die. By all the fates, Private Lambert should have died on a New Guinea beach during the ten-hour operation in which surgeons worked without an anaesthetic. But Private Lambert is "feeling pretty good again now," and tells one of the strangest stories of the war.

Bullet Catches Up.

Lambert was with the Transportation corps at Milne bay, helping to put into the hands of the infantry and air corps all of the necessary tools of war for the New Guinea battles.

"We were unloading 105-mm. shells and high-test airplane gas from a Dutch freighter when the Japs showed up," Lambert recalls. 'They sent over six dive bombers and 25 fighters and all of 'em started down on us.

"A 500-pound bomb went through the deck about 10 feet away from me. A 20-mm. cannon shell hit about five feet on the opposite side of me and a 50-caliber machine gun bullet caught up with me. It got me in the chest, going through the left side and down, tearing the hip bone Hole in Abdomen. "When things calmed down and I tried to get up, I was three decks below where I'd been hit. Something had torn a big hole in my abdomen, and my stomach and intestines were lying outside me.

'I must've been too choked to feel anything 'cause I stuffed 'em back inside with my hands and held 'em there while I tried to climb a ladder. A couple of Canadians helped me over the side to a navy PT boat and rushed me to shore.

"I guess I was too shocked by it all to feel anything," Lambert relates. "All I felt was a little burning sensation. They untangled all that stuff and put it back where it belonged and sewed me up."

During the operation, Lambert was given seven blood transfusions, and in the following ten-week period he was given 52 quarts of blood

Yank Whose Teeth Come Out Thrills Natives

GREEN ISLAND, NEW IRE-LAND GROUP. - Natives of this newly occupied island have received their biggest thrill not from planes, guns, or bulldozers, but from the false teeth of an American Seabee.

Passing a native village, the Seabee was invited in to a meal of roast pig. When a piece of meat was handed to him, he casually pulled out his upper plate and began chewing. The natives gathered around, gesticulating excitedly, and the Seabee had to put the plate back in and remove it several times.

The natives looked on in awe. When the Seabee left one of them followed him back to camp. Then a delegation called at his tent, bearing baskets of fruit as gifts. Later the natives invited him to another feast, telling him in pidgin English that they had invited other islanders, to let them see this amazing white man with the removable

Chicken in Bombing Is Dug Out After 25 Days

LONDON.—When rescue workers digging in the 25-day-old wreckage of a bombed convent found a chicken still alive and kicking, they decided that only the name of Joe Louis would fit such a hardy bird. Joe was lifted out of the wreckage that had pinned him down for 25 days and the rescuers found three eggs beside the chicken.

Nobody was able to explain how a fowl named Joe could lay eggs, but the name still sticks.

Sailor Is Trapped for Hours in Greasy Flue

BOSTON.—Seaman W. J. Fraser, U.S.N., was hauled, grease-covered, from a restaurant ventilator flue in which he had been wedged headdownward for many hours.

During the night he had plunged from an alleyway through a screen into the grease-coated vertical foot pipe, which led to a big ventilator fan. It was not until after a grillman tried to turn on the big fan at 5:45 a. m., heard "funny noises," and shut if off, that Fraser's plight was discovered.

Barking of Polish Dog

Is Silenced by Germans LONDON.—Because Mrs. Zofia Czechon's dog growled at the dog of German Col. Richard Kunat, she was sentenced to pay 1,000 marks or serve three months in prison by a Nazi court at Plock, Poland. The judge held that Kunat's dog was "very quiet and well-bred," but said Mrs. Czechon was guilty of "bringing up her dog in a spirit of hatred for everything German."

Parrot Buried 3 Days

Swears at Rescuers LONDON. - Rescue crews who had dug through the wreckage of a bombed-out London house for three days searching for a parrot got the bird recently.

The acid-tongued parrot emerged from the debris swearing lustily at his rescuers and was turned over to his owner, still muttering unprintable words.

Russ Girls Learn Fineries of Life

Campaign Started to Teach Them to Be Ladies.

MOSCOW. - The Russians, who have been so busy winning the war that they have had little time to deal with some of the fineries of life, are starting a new campaign to teach girls how to be little ladies.

The campaign is headed by Maria Butkevich, director of school No. 516, Moscow, who invented the slogan, "There ought to be a corner of order in every school."

Soviet schools, factories and clubs all have different kinds of corners, some devoted to literature, some to the Red army, some to political education, etc. Corners of order will include soap, towels, needles and thread. In recognition of differences in capacities between boys and girls at certain ages, the Russians open-ed separate schools for boys and girls last September, and they now are past the experimental stage. They have worked out well, and authorities are of the opinion they should be continued. The primary purpose of the girls' schools was to make them better patriots and prepare them for society and for motherhood. For years, of course, the Russians have been one of the most polite and gracious people in the world. Their old society was one of the lushest in Europe, and under the Soviets official life has continued the same with great emphasis on formalities.

With the coming of the war, evacuations, and with virtually everyone working for the front, the attention which the authorities would have liked to give this aspect of life had to be devoted to something else.

But now new courses will include thorough instruction in discipline and morals, says teacher Butkevich, will show the youngsters how to behave in the company of adults as well as other children, and how to behave in such public places as theater. ters, restaurants and stores.

Cling to Broken Vessel

33 Hours, 61 Tars Saved AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT.—Rescued after clinging 33 hours to the after section of a torpedoed ship in an Atlantic blizzard, 61 Allied seamen have been brought to this port aboard a rescue vessel. Besides the sailors landed here, 11 other survivors of the merchant vessel have been taken to an American port by a British cargo ship which picked them off life rafts and boats after they stood by the tossing remnant of their ship in seas too rough for a transfer. All crew members

The sailors recounted how their forward half, with no men aboard, was whisked away by the high seas. Charlie Cleveman of Boston, 21year-old utility boy, jumped from

MARYLAND UNEMPLOYMENT NEWS

Maryland's unemployment reserve fund has passed the ninety-six-and-a-quarter million dollar mark as the result of contributions by employers, covering industry in the quarter ending March 31, and indications point to a total of more than a hundred millions by the end of July, when payments for the second quarter's activities will be nearing completion, it is announced by the Unempleyment Board's Director, S. C. Cromwell.

Benefits paid for unemployment in the month of April amounted to $65,296, being $25,592 less than the $60,290, being $25,592 less than the total paid in April last year.

The average amount of the weekly benefit check in April for total unemployment was $16.90, while that for the partially unemployed was $8.73.

The steady increase in the benefit check has been due chiefly to two causes an advance in the weekly reference. causes, an advance in the weekly rate directed by the last Legislature, and the generally higher wages resulting from defense activities in the last calendar year, the earnings in which constitute the base for compensation to the unemployed.

Electric Finger Finds Needle in Heart of Woman

First Time in History of Medicine That Feat Was Possible.

NEW YORK .- Removal of a twoand-a-half-inch sewing needle from the ventricle of a woman's heart, the first case in medical history, and use of an electronic finger which made the feat possible, was reported to the New York Surgical society.

The needle was completely embedded in the wall of the left ventricle, one of the two chambers which pump blood into the arteries. The operation lasted more than two hours, during which the heart continued its work uninterrupted.

Like Human Finger.

The woman, who used the needle in an attempt at suicide while mentally deranged, is now well. Her name was not made public. The operation was reported by Dr. Alexander E. W. Ada, New York city.

The electronic finger is surfaced with stainless steel. The dimensions are those of a human finger, except that it is longer. A cord connects it to a meter whose dials show the presence of any metal near the fin-

Before the operation, the finger was pointed at the woman's chest. It came to rest at a location slightly different from the one indicated by X-rays as the surgeon's best entry.

All through the operation the electronic finger from time to time guided the surgeon. After the sac inclosing the heart had been opened and the heart was bared, the finger showed that the needle was in the back of the pulsating organ.

Might Mean Death.

Now the electronic device reached its most critical job. The lie of the needle had to be located exactly. A hair to left or right might result in failure, for the heart wall would have to be cut and sewed up again and two cuts could not be contemplated.

The finger moved back and forth ever so slightly, guided by the surgeon, the dials indicating a line directly under which the steel should lie. Dr. Ada inserted a probe into the heart wall. He pressed gently, then exclaimed:

"I can feel the needle." The incision was half an inch deep in the heart itself.

28,000 Die of Hunger, Cold in Nazi Prison

ALEXANDRIA, EGYPT. - Beatings, torture, and death from cold and hunger are the lot of Russian prisoners in German hands, five Red army soldiers who escaped said. They are at a British camp in the desert near here.

Pvt. Walentin Sizakim, formerly an electrician in Moscow and then an anti-tank gunner, was captured in February, 1942, near Chernikov. He said Russian prisoners were selected like cattle for heavy labor is. In one camp 28,000 Russians died of cold and hunger, he said. At another camp the daily death rate was 150. Women and children were imprisoned and treated the same as soldiers, he said.

Sizakim and thousands of others were shipped to the Ruhr and employed at heavy manual labor. They received only a small portion of bread and two bowls of soup daily. Many died, and all lost much weight. They were worked 11 hours a day and were beaten and tortured for the slightest reasons.

Prisoner Goes for Help When His Captors Crash

BATH, N. Y. - Two Chemung county deputy sheriffs were returning with a prisoner from Buffalo when their car crashed into a tree on the Buffalo-Bath highway.

The prisoner, Thomas Dowd, of Elmira, N. Y., held on a Children's court charge, rushed to a nearby farmhouse to summon help for the injured officers and waited until authorities arrived.

The deputies, Gordon Brinthaupt of Elmira and Roy Hazen of Bath, were dead when an ambulance arrived. Dowd escaped injury.

Germans Use Music to Soothe Savage Shoppers

LISBON.-Music is being mobilized in Germany's food shops, markets and department stores to soothe the buying public irritated by the acute shortage of consumer goods.

The Ostdeutscher Beobachter of Posen, discussing the use of music in war factories to counteract afternoon fatigue, said a similar practice had been extended to soften the harsh atmosphere of empty shelves confronting customers and clerks in retail shops.

Battered Bomber Battles Foe. Fire

Crew Conquers Rockets and Spewing Flares.

UNITED STATES FLYING FORTRESS BASE IN BRITAIN.—Like a boxer who bloodied his opponent's nose but could not knock him out, five German "rocketeers" chased the blazing Flying Fortress Eight Ball across the sky for two hours but finally had to give up in the face of plain Yankee guts.

A German shell pierced the fuselage of the bomber as it was coming back from a raid and exploded in a pile of flares, starting a blaze that swept through the ship like a prairie fire.

Rockets fired by the German planes ripped the Fortress full of holes but, under the masterful handling of its crew, it kept fighting back and won.

In defiance of the onrushing enemy fighters, three crewmen, one of whom already was injured, dived into the blaze with bare hands and literally tore the inside out of the plane until they extinguished the

That enabled the struggling pilot to shake off the enemy and bring the battered bomber home.

A rocket exploded in the right wing and "blew up like a balloon." Another in the tail barely missed the gunner, Sergt. Donald Degan. Then a shell whizzed through the left waist window and exploded, searing the face and hands of Sergt.

The next shell knocked the radioman-gunner to the floor and started

Gun; Becomes Heroine

MOSCOW.-Manshuk Mamedova, 20-year-old machine gunner who fought on in battle despite wounds and inspired her Red army comrades to hurl back a German attack. has become the second living woman hero of the Soviet Union.

The broad-faced, black-eyed girl from Kazakhstan joined the arm as a volunteer in 1942, and asked for machine-gun duty.

"But you know nothing about machine guns," her commander said. "That's all right, I'll learn," she

She learned with rapidity to operate the gun-and with considerable accuracy. The Red army's winter offensive found Manshuk in the front ranks, where the Germans launched fierce counter-attacks, maining mortar fire on Manshuk's sector.

She held her ground, said the Red Star newspaper account of her heroism, for almost an hour before a shell overturned her gun and wounded her in the head.

She regained consciousness, saw green-uniformed men moving upon her position, righted the gun and turned its fire on the Germans. The Nazis were turned back in that sec-

New Phosphate Mills Assure '44 Fertilizer

WASHINGTON. — Production of superphosphate fertilizers at the rate of 8,000,000 tons annually for the 1944-45 season is now possible, the War Production board said, but preliminary surveys indicate a demand for at least 9,000,000 tons.

The estimate of minimum needs represents an increase of 2,000,000 tons over production for the 1943-44 crop year.

Construction of several new acidulating plants is now under way, WPB reported, and will do much toward bringing production and demand into balance.

I noted news releases from Washington said that the head of the OPA has virtually turned down the appeal of the milk turned down the appeal of the milk producers, without even waiting for this committee to report the evidence brought out in the Macon meeting. This fact within itself shows what the people are up against in dealing with the OPA and other government bureaus. The very idea of an appeal being turned down idea of an appeal being turned down before the evidence can be presented is repulsive to American ideals and will destroy this country unless it is stopped by the Con-

In the Dawson, Minn., Sentinel, April 7th issue, the Farmers Co-operative Creamery announced in a three-column advertisement:

more milk to our creamery under present price conditions. This creamery has been paying the ceiling price, permitted under OPA rulings, to the local producers, and the present situation is beyond our control. Feed and production costs have risen to such an extent that pro-ducers claim there is no longer suf-ficient profit in selling raw milk to make it worth while continuing, and they are therefore discontinuing sale until the OPA makes necessary adjustments in the price ceilings."

Tractors Are Scarce

As an example of how hard pressed farmers are for farm machinery in producing the food-forvictory quotas the government has established for 1944, Senator Wherry of Nebraska cited in Congress that at a recent farm auction near Beatrice 170 farmers posted $136,000 in earnest money as a required OPA preliminary to bidding on one tractor. Each bidder was required to post $800 before bidding for the tractor. Referring to UNRRA plans to send 30,000 tractors to enemy occupied countries Senator Wherry declared "we should see to it that our farmers get the equipment we need before we plan to send such equipment to foreign nations." pressed farmers are for farm ma-

A Program For Agriculture

Constructive suggestions for a post-war program for agriculture were presented by the official representatives of five major farm organizations who responded to the invitation to confer on April 3 and 4 in Chicago with members of the Committee on Agriculture of the Republican Postwar Advisory Council consisting of five governors and four congressmen. As a result of this conference with farm leaders recommendations will be submitted to the committee charged with drafting the Republican party's 1944 platform, to be adopted at the national convention to be held in Chicago in June. in Chicago in June.

in Chicago in June.

Governor Bourke B. Hickenlooper, chairman of the Republican Postwar Advisory Council's Committee on Agriculture, and Harrison E. Spangler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, assured the farm leaders—"We want to end political exploitation of farmers. We seek a constructive agricultural program that will assure a permanently prosperous agriculture as part of a permanently prosperous nation."

In attaining this objective Republican party leaders have indicated their earnest desire to be guided by the recommendations and counsel of the official spokesmen for the millions of farmers who are enrolled in the major farm organizations.

Secrets

By FAYE McGOVERN McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"PLEASE," Chu Teh begged her old neighbor, "do not take the children away."

He looked at her imploring face in consternation. "But they might reveal to the enemy where their elder brother, San, is hidden. We had no time to burn his wrecked plane. Hardly was there time to secrete him here. Only after dark will it be safe to move him."

No. They will not speak. And I have heard the enemy will not harm us so long as we remain peace-

Her neighbor sighed deeply. "Very well. I will go lest my presence make them suspicious."

Chu Teh turned quickly back to her baking. With her husband dead her children were her whole world. She could not bear to have them away from her-especially with the foe so near. She went to the rear door of her small cottage and called, "Chan! Lotus!"

A boy of eleven, and a small girl appeared from behind a ramshackle stable. Both were incredibly dirty. The boy carried a length of hollow bamboo, and Chu Teh knew he had been playing his favorite guerrilla warfare game again with small Lotus. But there was no time for rep-

"Guests are coming," she said with feigned brightness, "and we are going to play 'secrets.' Remember—evasions, yes, but no lies. And the one who fails gets not one sweet cake. Now do all of you understand, my little ones?'

Covetously the children eyed the delicacies cooling on the table. Seldom were they allowed even a taste, for their mother sold them for a living. At the sound of approaching steps Chu Teh said quickly, "The question is, 'Where is San?'"

Young Chan's eyes sought hers so swiftly she realized he appreciated the significance of the question, and felt a pang of fear. In his intense desire to prove how clever he could be in outwitting the enemy he might easily blunder into revealing San's hiding place. She looked at him pointedly. "Even when we are asked, 'Where is San?' we will not tell, will we?"

"Noooo," said small Lotus. Young Chan reached toward the table, then turned abruptly toward the rear of the house the house.

Chu Teh stiffened as five Japanese soldiers entered without knocking, their glances darting everywhere. "Where is the one called San?" demanded the leader, with typical Jap curtness.

But there was only a deathly si-

"You-his mother," he shot at Chu Teh. "Where have you hidden him?"
"My son is with his ancestors," she said with gentle dignity, and put refreshments before them.

"Then where is the body?" the spokesman sneered. "You there, small girl. Tell us lest I cut off your ears."

He took hold of Lotus roughly. The child's frightened eyes sought hers, and quickly Chu Teh held up the largest cake. "Yes, small Lotus," she said brightly. "Where is San?" The little girl vaguely flung out a small hand. "They took him away." Suddenly Chu Teh realized Chan was not there. If he had run to the ancient graveyard over the hill to warn San he would surely be seen, he thought. "Enough! We will search the place!" Pitchfork tines prodded deep into the rice-straw rick. Seeing soon that the tiny house afforded no hiding place the soldiers headed for the rickety stable. Behind the barn, thatch missing from its roof, a shallow pit told his mother that Chan had practiced breathing through the hollow bamboo while buried beneath straw and dirt.

The soldiers held a hasty consultation. Then Chy Teh was told they were satisfied and would leave. With horrorashe saw that they took the path toward the ancient cemetery. First they would make certain that she had told the truth. Why had she mentioned that San was with his ancestors! With only caved-in graves to hide in they would undoubtedly discover him, she thought in horror She waited for an agonizingly long time, then crept after them, and almost fainted at the sight of a freshly covered grave. They had found him and-Chu Teh moved nearer. But wasn't it odd for the enemy to make food offerings? There was one of her own sweets. "So this is where you lead us!" It was the sneering voice of the soldier behind her, and she realized they had deliberately left her alone in order to follow her. She burst into tears and rocked back and forth. "Aye, and here my son is buried. You can see I did not lie." The man looked at her huddled figure, then spat contemptuously. rasped an order, and the unwelcome visitors stamped off toward the town.

Chu Teh sat motionless for a while. Then very carefully she leaned over and whispered, "San, my son, are you all right?"

"Yes, Mother, thanks to my clever little brother," answered a muffled voice from a barely perceptible protruding stick of hollow bamboo.

'Chin-Up' Mother

Happy smiles wreath the faces of mother and son as Corp. George McDaniel of Memphis, Tenn., greeted his mother, Mrs. George McDaniel, after her selection in Atlantic City as the "1944 Chin-Up Mother." Corporal Mc-Daniel's written description of his mother, who has five sons in the service, was judged the best among 2,500 such descriptions written by George's buddies in the army hospital. She spent a week with him as the city's guest while George was awarded war bonds as his prize.

Pulling Together

One of the first political discussions I ever heard that rose above the level of gossip had to do with something called "the tariff wall," a high, protective, import tax. I listened only, as becomes small boys, while two mature neighbors talked it over. Their genuine interest was contagious and I still remember | ily. much of what they said. The impression I got might not have been accurate but it was fairly typical of views at that time.

Manufacturers in the North, I gathered, were all in favor of a high protective tariff. They didn't want foreign-made things to enter the United States and be sold in competition with things they were making. will be victorious. Those northern manufacturers, I was informed, were Republicans. My neighbors, like most farmers in that climate, were Democrats and opposed a high tariff. If Europe had better and less costly merchandise to offer, they were in the market

Farmers Produce

Those two respected neighbors have passed on, along with most It's new! men of their generation. The tariff wall, as a political issue, is dead too. I have told this homely story, however, to spotlight an issue that is very much alive. Suspicion. All Americans need each other. Mutual distrust among men of different industries is a bigger hazard to this country than prejudices based on race or religion. Business progress requires confidence; credit is only part of it. Besides being a great country, the United States is big. In its three million square miles dwell 135 million people. They can't all be acquainted but they need to be friends in spite of personal interests and tastes that differ. We have to look out for one another now or we are sunk. Patriotic groups do not have completely opposing interests in the United States. Farmers are not merely consumers; they are the real producers. Manufacturers and their employees, no matter what they produce or how much, are still the country's big consumers. Workers Consume Of all the people in America who toil, 18 per cent work on the farm and 82 per cent do something else. It was not that way 100 years ago when nearly two-thirds of our workers plowed the soil, but things have changed. Now two farm hands working in a field produce for nine factory workers whose families must eat. In statistics: Ten million farm hands stock the pantries of 43 million other laborers, not counting the white-collar workers. The factory town is America's big market for farm products and practically everything else. Those 43 million workers last year received 100 billion dollars in their pay envelopes; two-thirds of America's national income. Dreamers who careen their necks toward Europe looking for post-war farm prosperity need waking up. America's exports in recent pre-war years have been running less than 5 per cent of national income. Every little bit helps but it's still 5 per cent.

We Help Ourselves Devastated Europe can't do much for America soon after the war. Post-war favors will be from us to them, exclusively. One of our greatest possible post-war services to Europeans would be to lower our tariff bars and buy what they can spare so they, in turn, may buy more of our manufactured goods. We can't serve the rest of the world well unless our own people are prosperous. But if ingenuity and enterprise may remain free, our factories will hum and our farms thrive as never be-

Homespun Philosophy

FORTITUUE

The other day I read a few lines that went something like this. "We have all of us sufficient fortitude to bear the burdens of others. Now, I have heard many people, say, "Gosh, I am so all fired tired, I can't stand it any more. But here is a fellow that says that no matter how tired we are we can stand it; and what's more we carry somebody else's load at the same time.
I suppose, if he were to meet me on the street somewhere, and begin telling me all that, I'd have an argu-ment ready for him. And so would you. But let's look into the thing a little deeper.

I have pretty well come to the con-clusion that a fellow does what he wants to do real bad no matter how tired he is. Take these young sprouts for instance. Right in the middle of harvest when things are tough they will work all day in the field, rush home, take a bite of sup-per, and then away to take their girl roller skating. But the oldsters are no better, they'll haul manure all day and when night comes they'll go to the store to argue politics until mid-night. And if that doesn't take some effort you sit in on one of their fests some night. You can say the same about the women. They will put out a big wash, clean the attic, milk the cows and then sit all night trying to make a table talk.

Now my contention is that if you want to help the other fellow bad enough you are not too tired to do it. enough you are not too tired to do it.

If you could see the results of such help in tangible things I know you could do it. But you can't. Instead you just feel good inside. A sort of warm glow permeates throughout the region of your heart.

You see if all our troubles, say all that come to us in a year were to be that come to us in a year, were to be heaped upon us in a single day, they would break us. We could not muster sufficient strength and fortitude to carry them. They come one at a time. That way we can bear them. And as we take care of each one we grow a little stronger so that the the next one will be borne more eas-Soon we are able to carry our own load with ease and eventually we can take care of our brother's load

Life is a battle no matter how you take it. And our success of living is measured by the way we fight. If we fight alone we shall surely fall. If we fight side by side with our brother sometimes leaning on him and sometimes he leaning on me we will be victorious.

GEORGIA FARMER QUITS IN DISGUST

Overcome by what he termed the red tape of government bureaucracy, James H. Wylie, Rome, Georgia, merchant and farmer, is abandoning his fertile 1,500 acre farm near Vincent, Alabama.

near Vincent, Alabama.

"I think it's a hell of a note," he said, "when I have to pay taxes to be put out of business and stop producing at a time when food is needed perhaps as never before and when the agricultural department is pleading with the farmers to produce on the largest possible scale.

"Bureaucracy has got the agricultural population so hopelessly entangled in red tape that unless drastic reforms are put thru promptly the food problem will become more serious than it is, and it's bad enough now."

wylie said he is getting rid of his herd of 250 beef cattle, for which he will be unable to grow feed. Instead of the 10 to 20 men he once hired to work on his farm, he said he had only two employees left and told them they "can go fishing."

His decision to abandon the farm resulted from trouble he encountered in trying to get a truck to replace the worn out vehicle in which he had been transporting German war prisoner workers from Fort McClellan, Ala., to agricultural work on his land. Some 400 abandoned army trucks stand idle at Fort McClellan. These trucks are in the custody of the treasury department, but efforts to get one have proved unavailing.

PAUL IN THESSALONICA

LESSON TEXT: Acts 17:1-4; I Thessalonians 2:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: Rejoice always; pray without ceasing; in everything give thanks.

—I Thessalonians 5:16-18.

Strong, active, missionary-minded churches do not just "happen." They are the result of the preaching of a true and powerful message by a faithful and sacrificial messenger. Other factors enter in, but these are the fundamentals. Paul's ministry at Thessalonica, which is described in Acts 17 and explained in I Thessalonians 2, reveals what should be preached and what kind of a preacher is needed. Perhaps some dead or unsuccessful church may learn the secret today and come to new life for Christ.

1. The Message—Christ the Saviour (Acts 17:1-4). Paul had already met the varying lot of both persecution and acceptance, and had now come to Thessalonica, a large and important city in Macedonia, where he had a lengthy ministry and established a strong church.

What was the message which so signally succeeded in this great strategic center? Well, it was not (as some modern preachers in large cities would seem to think) a series of social, political, or literary discourses. Paul preached Christ. He reasoned with them and presented the Saviour (v. 3) as One who was-

1. Dead for our sin. These people were like us in that they needed a solution for their sin problem. There were doubtless other questions which Paul might have discussed, but he wisely went to the root of their difficulty and showed them "that Christ must needs have suffered."

Without the death of Christ there is no salvation for any man. Only through the shedding of blood can there be remission of sin (Heb. 9: 22). Paul had no part in the folly of a "bloodless gospel"—as though there were any such gospel.

2. Raised for our justification. It was not enough that Jesus died, marvelous as that is in our sight. For many a man has died for his convictions, but none has risen from the dead. Christ could not be holden of the grave. He arose the victorious Redeemer.

3. Declared to be the Christ. He is more than a man, more than a great leader and an earnest teacher. He is God's anointed One, Himself divine-and our Lord.

Thus Paul presented to the Jews their Messiah, "the Man of Sorrows" (Isa. 53), whose resurrection declared Him to be the Son of God with power (Rom. 1:4), their Redeemer and Lord. Blessed results followed such preaching (v. 4).

II. The Messenger-Approved of God (I. Thess. 2:1-12). Sometimes a man with a true message largely nullifies its value by the manner in which he presents it, or by his manner of life in the community.

.1. He was faithful (vv. 1-6). One of the great temptations facing the one who is a preacher or teacher of God's Word is to let his fear of men cause him to adjust his message, to use a bit of flattery, to please men. Paul was "bold in our God" (v. 2), not trying to deceive or mislead anyone (v. 3), seeking only

God's approval (v. 4), not trying to make money for himself or gain standing with men by smooth words (v. 5), and not claiming a high position or authority over men (v. 6). 2. He was affectionate (vv. 7-9). How often those who are faithful and bold in preaching the truth ruin the effect of their work by being harsh and unkind. Here is a lesson many of us need to learn. To be gentle (v. 7) a man must be strong. The cardinal quality of a strong Christian should be that he is a gentleman, or she a gentlewoman. If not, there is not real strength in the life.

Paul gave not only a message, he gave himself—his very soul (v. 8). The people to whom he ministered were "dear" to him. The pastor who looks down at his congregation with hardness, and perhaps hatred for some individual, needs to read this passage and find Paul's secret of success.

He labored with his hands to support himself (v. 9), lest anyone think he was a burden to them. Let no one think that this means that a preacher is not worthy of support. Christ Himself declares that the laborer is worthy of his hire (Luke 10:7). But it does show Paul's fine spirit of devotion and sacrifice. 3. He was unblamable (vv. 10-12). Holy in his life before God, Paul was ready to live righteously before men, and thus to stand unblamable before them and before his Lord. This indeed is a life worthy in the sight of God (v. 12).

In other words, the preacher was able to, say to his listeners, "My life shows you what I mean by my preaching." The true preacher of the gospel will never be satisfied to be a signpost, pointing a way it, which he does not walk.

CRUMBLING MASONRY

Question: What can we do about our basement walls? The mortar between the bricks, above the ground line, crumbles; also, some of the bricks. The stone below the ground line is very crumbly also.

Answer: For repointing the mortar joints, begin by raking out the old cement in the joints to a depth of a half inch or more, then brush out all loose particles of cement. Wet the surfaces with clear water and repoint with a fairly stiff mortar mixture of one part Portland cement and three parts of clean, coarse building sand. Another mortar mixture widely used for repointing consists of one part Portland cement, one part hydrated lime and five parts sand. Use only enough water to make a workable mixture. It would help to give the inside walls, brick and stone a coat of cement base paint. This is a powder to be mixed with water, and it can be obtained from a dealer in mason materials. It also would help to coat the outside of the foundation walls down to the footings with liquid tar or asphalt.

FILLING DEPRESSIONS

Question: After removing decorative panels from plastered walls, what is the best method of filling in and leveling the depressions made by the removal of the panels?

Answer: Small depressions and slight indentations can be filled with a packing compound. Larger areas should be filled in with patching plaster. You can get both these products at your paint store. Follow printed directions on the containers.

Painting Wall Cloth

Question: The upper part of our kitchen walls is covered with a good variety of wall cloth. This, how-ever, has become old-looking because of the many times it has been washed. I should like to redecorate it, but do not know if it is advisable to put new material over the old, or to have it painted and with what kind of paint. Please inform me how to proceed.

Answer: First, clean the cloth thoroughly; and, when absolutely dry, give it a coat of enamel undercoater, possibly two coats, followed by a coat of top quality enamel. Follow printed directions on the can. The wall cloth will take the paint very well.

Scratched Maple Furniture Question: Maple furniture looks tacky, and is scratched. How can I make it look better without changing the color?

Answer: For small scratches rub with the meat of a pecan nut. Rub varnish into larger scratches, using a fine camel's hair brush. For dents and gouges use stick shellac, which resembles sealing wax. It comes in a variety of colors and shades. Soften the shellac stick with a heated knife or a cheap screwdriver and work it into the gouge. Then rub down with a very fine sandpaper (0000). Polish with a thin coat of paste wax, well rubbed, or a milky liquid furniture polish.

Boat Paint Question: What is the best priming coat to put on a new boat, built of cypress, before painting?

Answer: No special priming is needed for cypress. Use a good quality paint intended for marine work, following the directions on the can. See that the wood is thoroughly clean and dry before paint-* * *

Weeds in Driveways

Question: I have seen your advice on the use of salt and calcium chloride to kill weeds and grass in driveways and stone walks. Would this harm vegetation on either side of the walk?

Answer: Yes, it may, if large quantities of the solution are spilled carelessly on the roots. What is used between the stones will not injure nearby plants.

Bathroom Walls

Question: The upper part of our bathroom walls is covered with wallpaper; the lower part is plaster, which soon after each painting shows cracks. Could you suggest some wall covering, except tile, to put on the Answer: A linoleum wall covering would be serviceable, easily cleaned and not expensive. The better stocked linoleum dealers can show you samples. An oil cloth wall covering also could be used. Either material would prevent cracking.

Mother's Day

• On Mother's day American soldiers all over the world are reminded of the many services they once took for granted at home. K. P. duty has taught them that mother's task was no easy one. These "housekeeping" pictures, were taken in the Aleutians and might well inspire the following sentiments.

"Isn't this a fancy mop-wringer? But I still don't like it-it weighs about five times as much as yours. And our mess hall is about as big as our whole house. To think I used to gripe when you asked me to wash off the back porch with the garden

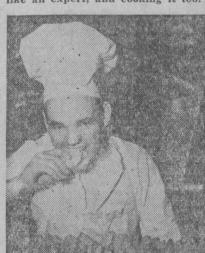

"Sometimes, Mom, I think the army ought to make it a rule that potatoes should always be bakedwith the jackets ON!"

"After a year in the army I've finally gotten so I can sew a button on a shirt, but this mending tears in pants stuff gets me. Honest, I thought all you had to do to mend a rip is sew it up. But it's a complicated affair. Probably the wrong kind of thread."

"Seems funny, my being a cook, doesn't it? I couldn't even cut a pie straight and now I'm carving meat like an expert, and cooking it too.'

"I baked these cookies all by myself. It gets a bit cold nights in the Aleutians and the boys like hot cocoa or coffee with cookies to warm 'em up. The boys say they taste pretty good-but they're just kind-

Jews of All Ages Are Murdered by Mass Suffocation

Never in History Has There Been Such Barbarism As Poles Suffer.

CHICAGO.—How Jews of all ages and both sexes have been asphyxiated en masse by hot steam in a deathhouse at Treblinka, Poland, was reported in detail to the Polish government in London by a former Polish policeman, an eye witness, Jacob Apenszlak, editor of "The Black Book of Polish Jewry," declared here.

Both Apenszlak and Dr. Moses Polakiewicz, one of his co-editors, were here as guests of the Chicago district of the American Federation for Polish Jews, of which J. H. Trauss is the district president.

They told how the book was written from "blood and tears — our own tears," and from what sources they had compiled it, in a conference with representatives of the press and of various Polish-American groups.

"There never was such ruthless barbarism in history as has been going on in Poland," commented Dr. James M. Yard, executive director of the Round Table of Christians and Jews.

Ruthless Nazis.

"It is hardly believable that the things occurred that have occurred in Poland," said Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes. "When I read of the Japanese horrors I am wondering if the Japs didn't learn a lesson or two from the Nazis in Poland, and if their friends the Nazis did not lay out the pattern.'

Apenszlak pointed out that some of the materials used in the "Black Book" were drawn from German Nazi documents, for "the Nazis made no secret of their intention to exterminate the Jews of Europe, using Poland as a death chamber.'

The story of the mass suffocations at Treblinka, he said, was taken from an official report submitted to the Polish government. It concludes with a warning that perhaps a similar fate is being prepared by the Nazis at Treblinka for non-Jews, since already some non-Jews have been destroyed there. Method of Execution.

"The new deathhouse provides," this passage reads, "for the liquidation of 8,000 to 10,000 victims. If we consider that right now 2,000,000 murdered Jews, or the greater part of Polish Jewry, are already buried in the area of Treblinka, the disturbing question arises: for whom do the S. S. men intend that new house of death; who are to utter their last breath in that slaughterhouse."

The method of execution was described as follows: The Jewish prisoners, arriving at Treblinka, are confronted by an ironical sign: "Have confidence in your future." They are told to strip for a bath, are driven into the deathhouse with whips, till the deathhouse is crowded; children are tossed in over their heads. The execution chambers are closed; the steam issues into the death chambers through numerous vents of pipes.

"At the beginning, stifled cries penetrate to the outside; 15 minutes later the execution is complete.

"Due to the steam, all the bodies have become a mass, stuck together. To make it possible for the gravediggers to get out single bodies, cold water is poured over the mass. After the ditch is filled, the gravediggers quickly cover the bodies with earth and the digging machine nearby prepares the next

Air Hero Killed Saving

Civilians From, Crash A UNITED STATES FIGHTER BASE, ENGLAND.—Lieut. Charles F. Gumm Jr., a fighter ace who was the first Mustang pilot to shoot down an enemy plane over Europe, died a hero's death eight days ago to save civilians from his crashing plane, it was disclosed.

The story of his heroism in refusing to parachute from a plane which would have fallen in the English town of Nayland was told by Canon W. L. Wright of Nayland, who came to this base to tell the pilot's buddies that the townspeople were deeply touched by his sacrifice.

He said many persons saw Gumm's plane falling toward the village, when an engine of his fighter failed during a test flight. There was no doubt in their minds, he said, that Gumm could have bailed out safely, but the plane would have crashed into houses.

Instead, Gumm stayed with the ship, fighting it clear of the town. It neared an open field, but was so low a wing caught a tree, flipping the plane over and throwing Gumin from the cockpit to his death.

Cashier Planned Fake Bank Holdup

Confesses He Made Up Story Of 'Armed Robbers.'

CLEVELAND. - Robbery of the Killbuck (O.) Savings Bank company by "two armed men," in June, of 1942, was a fake, federal bureau of investigation agents report.

Bernard Click, 37, cashier and secretary of the bank, has confessed that he fabricated the report of the "two armed robbers" and in order to give credence to his story he knocked himself out by striking his head on a marble counter, FBI agents say.

Click was found, after the supposed robbery, by a customer. He was alone and unconscious. The two fictitious robbers, whom he described in detail, never were found, of course, nor had anyone else seen

The Federal agents say they suspected from the beginning that the cashier had taken the money himself and faked the robbery to cover up. The amount missing after the alleged hoax was $8,235.

A complete examination of the bank affairs was made to solve the case, and late in 1943 accountants uncovered a shortage of $5,500. On December 18 Click was arrested by the FBI on charges of violating the Federal Reserve Act, and held for the grand jury. It was not until weeks after his arrest, however, that he abandoned his original invention of armed robbery and confessed that it was all a grand hoax. The $8,235 never left the bank, agents say. Click con-fessed, they said, that he placed the money in a safe deposit box and used it to cover fictitious notes he had drawn up to conceal his alleged embezzlements.

Japs Can't Kill Yanks, So They Kill Selves

LOS NEGROS.—They were the Mikado's front-line troops on Los Negros, big marines, well-trained, well-nourished, well-armed, proud wearers of their dragon belts.

They were Japan's proud warriors. So that when they failed to crack the line held by American First Cavalry division troops, the Japanese took their own lives rather than admit failure.

"One Jap officer jumped up on a bunker directly in front of us," a bunker directly in front of us," said Pfc. Wilbur Resler, "waving a Jap battle flag in one hand and a sword in the other.

" 'Kill all the American dogs,' the officer shouted. Then he plunged his sword into his own stomach.

They had waited until night, then charged American lines singly, in twos, threes, even in waves, always with a desperate reckless daring. And when they failed—

"I saw one group of a dozen or so Nips gather in a circle inta clearing after we had thrown them back," said Pvt. Dan Burnett, Franklin, N. C. "Then each pulled the pin on a grenade and held it against his chest. All were blasted

Drifting Fliers Rescued

In Sight of Foe on Truk AN ADVANCED PACIFIC BASE. -Three navy airmen in a rubber boat drifted for three hours within sight of Truk, and were drawing closer and closer to that big Japanese fortress when a rescue ship boldly picked them up just in time. Their torpedo plane was from a navy carrier force that hit Truk. Anti-aircraft fire severed the oil lines and they splashed into the sea eight miles offshore. Ensign John J. O'Sullivan, the pilot, of St. Louis, said he tried to convince his fellow-fliers, Mechanic Raymond E. Lord of South Berwick, Maine, and Radioman Gene S. Berg of 89-20 161st street, Jamaica. Queens, that they were not drifting ashore, "but pretty soon those palm trees got so big I couldn't make it sound sensible any more."

They were less than three miles from Truk when the rescue vessel picked them up.

It's Time for Fish Tales

And Here Is a Good One CLEWISTON, FLA.-From now

until June 15 is the best fishing time at this Florida Everglades resort, and it is now so good that the fish go after the fishermen!

During a vacation at the Clewiston Inn, P. H. Nichols of Atlanta was fishing in Lake Okeechobee and a large black bass struck so hard that the jolt upset Nichols who was casting. When he came to the surface, the bass was making off with the rod and reel.

Nichols recovered his tackle, caught three bass just to keep them in their place, and came back to the inn wet but victorious.
