JUDGE BOYLAN ADDRESSES KIWANIS

presiding. The period of group singing was in charge of Wallace Reindollar, with Mrs. Wallace Yingling as accompanist.

The program was in charge of the Committee on Kiwanis Education. Assoc. Judge James E. Boylan, West-minster was introduced as the speaker of the evening. Judge Boylan, in view of the 177th anniversary of the adoption of the Federal Constitution, chose as his subject some phases of the Constitution, related especially to the historical events which led to the preparation and adoption of our Constitution, following with a brief analysis of the instrument itself.

The main part of Judge Boylan's address had to do with the development of our judicial system under the Constitution and as practiced at present in our Federal and State Courts. Judge Boylan described in detail the methods of drawing jurors, the proceedings of court trials, civil and criminal, emphasizing especially the rights of the individual in the defense of his rights and liberty. He said that people frequently forget their rights under the Constitution or that the rights may be taken away by his own ignorance or indifference. The most frequent way by which individual rights may be lost is through the failure of citizens to vote intelli-

Under a new OPA ruling, tire dealers will be required to sell new tires in stock to any consumer who presents a valid tire rationing certificate and the purchase price of the

The reason for this new ruling, it was stated, is because some dealers, as stocks get low, are telling ration certificate holders that they have no tires for sale, when in fact, tires are available. Dealers are also required to post daily inventories of their tire stocks, with a cross section size of 8.25 or larger. This action by OPA is designed to help consumers who have been issued tire certificates but have been unable to use them.

DETROIT LETTER

Writes on Marriages and Rats

My letter this week will not contain much news, for various reasons, but I hope that it will please some of my readers, anyway. It will consist in part, of a story about one of Detroit's most respected citizens and able jurists. I refer to Judge Christopher Stein, whose name I am sure you have not heard mentioned many times, but of whom you may learn more than I will be able to tell you in more than I will be able to tell you in a short letter, by referring to the "Saturday Evening Post" of the issue of August 26th. This Judge has served on the Recorder's Bench, the Criminal Court of the city, ever since it was organized in 1923, and before that served on smaller judicial hodical that served on smaller judicial bodies for many years, from Justice of the Peace up, to his present position, and has rather a remarkable record, both in the matter of hearing criminal cases and in performing marriage cere-

He has presided at over 500,000 trials, and if he were inclined to put his experieuces into the form of a book, I have no doubt that it would be rated among the best sellers, es-pecially in this city of ours where he is so well known. His methods are just not like any other judge we ever heard of, one of which will illustrate what I mean. You know there have what I mean. You know there have been told many stories about Christmas ties, and the reluctance that men have had to wearing them, claiming that no woman had the ability to pick out a tie suitable for a man. Well, this Judge gathered together all the ties he had accumulated, as Christmas gifts, for the past twenty years, and one morning, after a rather hiland one morning, after a rather hilarious Easter Eve, his court room was crowded wth a huge bunch of law violators. Calling them all before his to be a second of the court of fore him, he gave each the choice of going to jail for ten days, or wear-ing one of his ties, who maintained that the Judge was inflicting inhuman punishment on him, and this tickled Judge Stein so much that he gave him a handful of Christmas cigars instead. He has married over 3000 couples, and boasts that all knots tied by him staid that way but two—a much better record than has many a parson. He has no children, but has raised a niece, and when it came to the time that she wanted him to marry her, he declared an armistice on marrying, until that ceremony was over, which armistice lasted a couple of weeks. He always gives the newly weds a lot of good advice, which he says is (Continued on Fourth Page)

GASOLINE SITUATION IS TIGHT

The average civilian motorist should expect no increase in his gasoline ration for the next several months, at least not before the end of the war with Germany, the Office of Price Administration says. Civilian stocks of gasoline built up last winter have been greatly reduced despite increased imports and record domestic production. Civilian grade stocks have decreased approximately two million barrels in 30 days.

PRE-FLIGHT STUDY MANUAL FOR CAP

Taneytown Cadets Interested in this Book

All members of the Civil Air Patrol Cadets in 48 States have recently received a 224 page preflight manual specially developed for their use by the Army Air Forces, it was announced Sept. 1, by National Headquarters of Civil Air Patrol and by 1st. Lt. Robert Smith, Taneytown CAP Commander.

This loose-leaf book, big as a city telephone directory, is a streamlined text with color illustrations covering more than 30 preflight, military, and other related subjects. It was produced by the AAF Office of Flying Safety by direction of Maj. Gen. R. W. Harper, Assistant Chief of Air

Staff, Training.

The Office of Flying Safety is experienced in developing more advanced manuals for pilots and navigators of the AAF. The CAP Cadet manual closely resembles the AAF Pilot's Information file, used by Army pilots the world over, except that the cadet text is written for beginners rather. text is written for beginners rather than for experts.

Some twelve officers of the Army Air Forces worked for several months in consultation with CAP officers and specialists on the various subjects to assemble the material. Similar manuals used by cadets in Canada and other countries, as well as existing texts of the Army, Navy, and private publishers, were studied to take advantage of the best available information and techniques.

"The purpose of the book," according to Col. Earle L. Johnson, National Commander of CAP," is to teach basic principles so that the CAP cadets who advance into Army or civilian flying will find it easier to round out their knowledgeand become round out their knowledge and become competent airmen. This preparation, it is believed, will reduce the percentage of failures in Army aircrew train-ing. Since it costs about $30,000 to train an Army pilot, the very small cost of the CAP cadet program can be repaid many times over by the super-ior performance of CAP cadets who enter the air corps enlisted reserve at enter the air corps enlisted reserve at 17 and are called to active duty at 18"

The manual begins with orientation courses as to the purpose of the program and then proceeds to "Some Facts about Army Life" to inculcate the discipline necessary for safety not only in military aviation but in all flying. "Recognizing Aircraft at a Glance" is another important phase of training in split-second identification of planes commonly in use.
Physical fitness is stressed in the chapters on "Getting shape to Fly" and "Your Body in Flight." Exercises first aid, and through knowledge as to the physiological effects of factors such as altitude are taught throughout the program. Radio communica-tions and Morse code are among the uxiliary subjects required.

At an early stage, the cadets are instructed in flight theory under the heading of "What Makes an Airplane They learn "Weather in the Making" and then proceed to "How to Find your way in the Sky." Ground work such as the duties of service men, crash procedure, the layout and operation of airports, and subjects are taught to make it clear that there is a great deal more to aviation than merely sitting at the controls of a plane. The manual ends with a bibliography of additional texts.

Instruction is given by qualified adult members of CAP who donate their time to teach courses to the local cadet squadrons. There are now more than 50,000 CAP cadets, boys There are now and some girls of 15 to 18. This summer 9,000 of the young men, specially selected on a merit basis, are being given intensive training for one or two weeks at AAF installations The CAPC program is being expanded to a goal of 250,000 cadets before the end of the year.

LET US BE FAIR

Very much of the confusion and discord in our domestic economy is caused by groups or individuals seeking privileges and benefits that the great majority may not hope to obtain.

Why can we not be willing to apply the golden rule? Why can we not be satisfied to obtain only that which all people by diligence may hope to obtain? This would be a vastly different world if that spirit of fairness would motivate the actions of all groups, large and small, and of individuals as well.

Just now we are moved to this plea by a movement among railroad brotherhoods. It is said that at the moment the railroad brotherhoods are pressing for enactment of a measure which would compel their employers to provide for them life, accident and unemployment benefits, in addition to pensions, on a far broader scale than is provided for others. The traveling public, of course, would pay the cost in the long run.

The Association of American Railroads sizes the proposal up this way:

"Railroad labor organizations say the bill would make sweeping changes which would give railroad labor a new to other workers.

"But it is precisely these other workers included in the general social and security system, and the shippers, farmers and other railroad users who would have to support this "superior" system.

OUR ENORMOUS DEBT

If New York State in 1943, under the leadership of Governor Thomas E. Dewey reduced its debt by 160 million dollars, is it not also likely that if and when elected President of these United States he will cut down and reduce as far as possible the enormous debt saddled upon the people by the Roosevelt New Deal?

Coming events generally cast their shadows before them. Franklin Delano Roosevelt found New York State "experienced" man on foreign affairs | "That from these honored dead we with but small debt when he became Governor, and left the governors tells us that the National debt now jobs for every man and woman who the earth."-Rhoderick Papers.

all this indebtedness has been incurred during the 12 years of the Roosevelt administration. Do we want four more years of this boondoggling and squanderamania? If you do, I don't, so I shall vote accordingly. What will you do?

FREEDOM OF PRESS IN SMALL TOWN

Few stories have caused so much discussion among the craft as the one by weekly newspaper publisher Robert E. Harlow, "A Free Press Doesn't pay in our Town."

It would be distressing indeed to believe that, as Mr. Harlow declares, there is no such thing as freedom of the press for small-town publishers; that country editors are a weak, wishy-washy and compromising lot; that every item going into the local paper is written with one eye on the day by the national government. cash book.

Yet every editor of small-town experience knows that he must temper editorial justice with mercy. There are many items, in what might be termed the gossip, picayune class, which carry a lot of color and local interest, but which a wise editor deems advisable to pass over. Not that the press has any desire to shield or uphold the parties involved in wrong-doing but because publication of the item might do more harm than good, might hurt or embarrass other and innocent people.

But where important issues and basic principles are concerned, we be- John Joseph Pershing, to his old sollieve the rural press is and will ever diers Black Jack of J. J. The 22-year-old Kentuckian from Louisville, who had to leave his bride of six weeks to come overseas, was the first tanker to drive across the Cisterna-Rome railroad and crack the German beachhead line.

While machine-gun bullets spattered against "Double Trouble's" rugged frame, Gunner Corp. Arthur Boenze of Route 9, St. Louis, "fired at everything-Krauts going down in dugouts and Krauts climbing trees."

When the platoon leader, Lieut. Walter Russell of "somewhere on Long Island," lost his own tank on a mine, he hailed "Double Trouble," climbed in and the sortie continued up the rolling hills.

About 1,000 yards beyond the railway embankment "Double Trouble" shuddered and stopped. A German 88-shell had squashed in the face of

"But Lieutenant Russell got out and decided our howitzer wasn't fit for shooting and told us he didn't need us as a machine gun pillbox. Then he hunted up his third tank of the day and resumed the attack. What a guy!"

Be glad it didn't happen here!

BE GLAD no Gestapo agent burst open the door to your home, demanding your money, your clothing, your furniture—yes, even your children . . . to be sent into slavery for the Reich.

Be glad no Nazi Storm Trooper burned your crops to keep them out of the hands of his pursuers, killed your livestock to feed German war lords, burned down your home to show you his might.

Why not put our thankfulness into concrete form? Why not buy the War Bonds we ought to be buying? We haven't bought enough, yet, you know . . . not nearly enough. And there are men across the sea fighting our fight who are asking what we are doing at home. Have we an answer for them?

You will need your War Bonds as urgently after the war as Uncle Sam needs your money today. You will need new machinery and equipment, new fences, new buildings. So BUY NOW! Don't spend a dollar unless you first ask yourself: "Does my country need it more?"

For America's Future, for your Future, for your children's Future

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

- 1. The tempo of this war is hitting its highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. MORE MONEY IS NEEDED . . . NOW!
- 2. In proportion to WHO HAS THE MOST MONEY, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must correct this situation.
- 3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial reserve he must have to survive the ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.
- 4. Money will be needed urgently at a future date to replace and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it
- 5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, return a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy . . . from bank, post office, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association.

SLEEP, GENTLY SLEEP

Sleep, gently sleep, the morning breeze is blowing The rain in drizzle falling, green have we to gain?

Sleep gently sleep, 'tis tired you must be, You've worked real hard the live long

Preparing food that is to stay the hunger that we see And as day light is coming fast, we must, we must be free.

Sleep, gently sleep, night hours are gliding by Dream pleasant dreams, Hope smilingly stands by Soft be the pillow that bowers thy head. Softly and sweetly let love words be said.

Fair is the morning dew, sparkling and gleaming, While golden sunshine around all is streaming, Rested, refreshed, after nights repose Happily, gladly to his work he goes.

Happy the waking, as daylight is breaking Joyous the sound of the larks morn-

Smiling all day at the work that's back-breaking Hours seem short and the day not so

Harvest time here and the grain we are reaping Pay for the toil and the sweat of the year, Why should we worry, tho winter's approaching, With food warmth and comfort, we've nothing to fear.

bomber from the Sioux City, Iowa, army air base flew over sections of two states for four hours with no one aboard before crashing on the side of a ravine two miles northwest of here.

The plane crashed more than 100 miles from where the 10 crew members and a bombardier instructor bailed out when fire broke out on

LEITER FROM DETROIT

(Continued from First Page.) founded on his own happy married life, and then returns the marriage fee as a wedding gift. His clerk says that he has returned more than $13,000 in fees.

I could tell you much more about this much loved jurist, but space will not permit. So just try and get hold of a "Post" of the date noted at the beginning of this article, and read what two old friends have about him, and I am sure that you will spend an enjoyable quarter hour.

The talk on getting rid of the rats is still going on, and all those who are to take part in it, are waiting for the report of the committee that was appointed to devise plans for the proposed slaughter of these pests. In the meantime, a black female cat on the West side, has taken matters into her own hands, or paws, rather, and is running up a remarkable record. She has a four-block route, and every morning, when the milkman delivers the milk to the house where she makes her home, he finds from two to eight dead rats. Eight is the highest number that she has reached, so far, but that number can be considered somewhat remarkable, when we think of the thousands of cats throughout the city that never catch one rat. During the past two years she has killed over 2000 rats, depositing them on the doorstep, after usually making a meal of either a rat or mouse, the latter of which she usually kills in sort of pasttime, while attending to the more important part of her business. And her activities do not stop at rat-killing, for she has produced 24 kittens in the past 18 months, none of which met the fate of most kittens, but which are now described as "rat annoyers," and which are carrying on in far distant places, some of them having been sent as far away as Iowa.

And in direct contrast to the account of the usefulness of the above mentioned animal, we read of how a certain society lady of the city is so fond of dogs and cats that she has her house literally filled with them. The dogs are mostly of the St. Bernard breed, and she is frequently seen, giving a number of them an outing in her car. Her neighbors are up in arms about the situation, and have taken legal action, to get rid of what they call a nuisance, charging that so many animals are the cause of the swarms of flies, which infest the neighborhood. So it seems that in the animal kingdom here are nuisances, as well as in that of mankind. I had about wound up this letter, when the mail was delivered, and to our great joy, there was a letter from our boy, Cyril, who is now stationed on the island of New Guinea, having been moved from Guadacanal where he has been stationed for some time. Those of our friends in there who have his address, or who may want to write to him, will please note that his A. P. O. address has been changed from 709 to 159. We had not heard from him for six weeks, and it certainly was a relief to receive this letter. He is well and is looking forward to a return to this country, which he says is the best in the world and he has seen some of it, especially that part of it which is cursed with the Japs.

Indian Skeletons May Reveal Weird Tale of the Past

Bones of 8,000 Aborigines Gathered From Valley of Tennessee River.

KNOXVILLE, TENN. - Eight thousand Indian skeletons collected from the Tennessee river valley in eight years of research some day may tell a weird story to Americans as well as to anthropology students all over the world.

Part of a collection estimated to be the largest documented one of its kind in the country, the skeletons are stored in an old brick building in Knoxville, Tenn., while the scientists who could make the dead men talk are busy with other things.

Only two workers, T. M. N. Lewis, associate professor of anthropology at the University of Tennessee who headed the collection work and Miss Madeline Kneberg, also a member of the anthropology department, devote part time to classification of the skeletons and relics, some of which date back to 300 A. D.

The value of the collection-perhaps the best existing archeological record of the American Indian-lies in its documentation, says Dr. Lewis, a tall, gray-haired Princeton graduate whose explorations have taken him to many parts of the United States as well as overseas.

"Some day when it is possible for us to have a museum to house the collection we will be able to reconstruct Indian villages almost as they were originally, so our material will have an interest and an educational value beyond that of relics displayed in cases," he says.

Even Costume Jewelry. The collection contains countless pieces of costume jewelry, weapons, cooking utensils, pottery and images; including the finest piece of stone sculpture, unearthed near Lebanon, Tenn., ever found in North

The latter, a kneeling warrior with a female companion piece, belonged to a 15th century people, and may have represented the founder of the tribe, Dr. Lewis believes.

"We have complete data on every piece of the collection as well as on every site excavated, including photographs, maps and plats, and thus everything has meaning," said Dr. Lewis. "Since the area explored was a strategic one from the standpoint of American history, we hope to supply some very important missing links. Up until 1935 almost nothing was known of the prehistoric peoples in the Southeast, but now we have the key to the secret if we ever have time to unlock it." Opening chapters of the story indicate that the early Indians of the Southwest, although they lived in scattered, isolated tribes, represented an amalgamation of races.

"Even in prehistoric times," Dr. Lewis said, "America was the melt-ing pot of the world."

Many Historic Groups. Evidence shows a mongoloid strain predominant among the three major prehistoric groups of the re-gion, the archaic, the woodland and the Mississippi peoples. Caucasoid and negroid strains also were pres-

Homespun Philosophy

RECREATION

The following is what I remember of a conversation I had with a prominent citizen of Taneytown.
"Hello, Alfred!"

"Why hello, Ezra! Where are you going?"
"Not anywhere that I know of.

This place seems to lack constructive places of amusement."

"Not for long, I hope. A few of the citizens of Taneytown got together the other day and made plans for on out stonding programs of the control of the citizens. for an out-standing program of rec-reation for young and old."

"What do you mean—program of recreation?"

"Well, we want to get this town to play together. We feel that if they know how to play together they will learn how to live together in a wholesome sort of a way."

"That sounds logical."

"That sounds logical." "If we can learn to play together we can make that play constructive and do some worthwhile things at the same time. See what I mean.

the same time. See what I mean."
"You bet I see. I think you are doing a real job. I am going to be your booster. If there is anything else I can do, let me know."

I don't know who the group is that Alfred is working with, but I think that it is commendable that any group would have vision enough to take hold of such a task. Things are not normal in Taneytown. In fact, they are not normal anywhere in the they are not normal anywhere in the whole world. This war has jolted society from its status quo. Some one once asked a darky preacher what he meant by the words "status quo" which he had used so often in his sermon that morning. The preacher replied: "Dat is de mess we is in." Well, we are in a mess alright. Bad movies, bad publications, too much money, working mothers, and many other causes have all contributed to a terrible mess. Something must be done to relieve the situation. What Alfred talked to me about will not entirely solve the problem, but it will go a long way.

I mean it will not entirely solve the problem because the cure must go deeper. It must begin at the roots. And the roots of this whole matter lie in the home. If parents fail to see the necessity of establishing a wholesome family life whatever else is tried will surely fail. You can't say to a child, "Go to Sunday say to a child, "Go to Sunday School," and lie in bed yourself; you can't say to his brother "Go to the Boy's Club and associate with decent companions," and then sneak off to a poker game yourself; you can't say to his sister, "Go to the dance" that is sponsored by the Youth Fellowship and slink away into some dive. Chil dren and parents must have a common ground upon which to meet, and that ground is the home. Begin there and then let the Recreation Group come in with its supervised play. Then the community will be going places.

Keep it up, Alfred. The citizens of Taneytown will not let you down. In this day of helter skelter living the people are beginning to look around for a solid rock to put their feet on. Perhaps you and your group will be able to furnish that rock.

Future Farmers Put Food Profits in Bonds

Throughout the nation the FFA boys are making a substantial contribution to the war effort through the production of the all-important food supply and purchase of War Bonds with their profits. Shown here are some instances. No. 1 shows Robert Hill of the Welcome Chapter FFA, North Carolina, with three of his eight registered dairy calves. North Carolina FFA boys owned 9,299 dairy cows and invested profits in War Bonds totalling $308,650. No. 2 shows two Wilson County, Tennessee, boys of the Green Gale Chapter at Lebanon repairing farm equipment. At an auction of this farm equipment a total of $85,000

Edward made a net profit of $548.12 from his flock last year and is putting his profits in War Bonds. No. 4 shows Colin English, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Herbert Shuman, president Palmetto Chapter FFA, and Harrison E. ### Retirement to the Front

By KEN DAVIS McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Features.

NUTS, Mr. War Correspondent! I don't want to talk about the fight we had out there today. The general does all our talking. Wasn't much to it, anyway. You gotta have something to write? Well, how about the time I yanked a general out of retirement? O. K.

I am the personal driver, see, for a general back in the States and a better boss never lived. Wotta job!

"You stay in the office today, Rye. I may need you," the general barks this particular day when I pick him up. He omits his usual good morning so I figure something is eating him. You see, this is the day he is to retire. He hasn't been having much luck with his health for quite a while. Sorta been going downhill ever since his son left for overseas. Who is the son? Oh, everyone knows the captain. A fighter pilot. Quite a boy, too. Anyway. . . . I sneak the morning paper and park in the corner of the old man's office, prepared for a dull day. But I don't even get it unfolded. The air in that office gives you the willies. "Good morning, General," booms a voice suddenly, and I jump a foot. But it's only the colonel, not Gabriel's silver trumpet.

"What's good about it?" asks the general. "Last day in the army at sixty-one. And right in the middle of the biggest war this country's ever had. A pretty kettle of fish!"

Right away the colonel grabs the old oil can. "Now, now," he meows.
"Sir, you shouldn't feel like that,"
the colonel mouths. "After all,

The sting is gone, now, from his hard, tough growl.

you've had a long career. You've done your share." The old man is a ramrod sort of guy-long, lean and as straight as the soldiers Hollywood casts as doormen. His hair is snow-white, but his eyebrows and military mustache are iron-grav. "Colonel Stark," he says, deadly low. "Look at these blasted baubles. Victory medal from World War I. Mexican border service. American defense. A bloody desk general!" His voice rises a note. "My father was a fighting soldier in the Civil War. An uncle was cited at San Juan Hill in the Spanish business. And here I am, an old man, washed up-a failure.'

The colonel stands still as a statue. "Stark," the general goes on wearily, "sit down. I've got to talk to someone. You see, I quarreled with my son. I sent him over to fly against those Germans, with anger in my heart and on my lips. No doubt he hates me. I've never heard from him. He's all I have, Stark, since his mother died three years ago. None of these army doctors read minds. That's why they're sending me to the boneyard. My body's all right."

The sting is gone, now, from his hard, tough growl. So is his sudden anger. His unhidden tears make me want to crawl under something. I look at the morning paper and there it is, right smack in my face. I let out a yelp which I can't hold in although I know I am taking my life in my hands. The old man has forgotten I am in the room. "It's all right, General," I cry, waving the sheet like mad. "It's all right."

I don't wait for them to bust me down to a guardhouse veteran. I just commence reading loud.

"Capt. Ted Homer, identified today as the pilot who two days ago shot down six of seven German bombers while flying cover for Fortresses, has been recommended for the Congressional Medal of Honor. 'I never could have done it except for Father,' the intrepid flier confessed with a boyish grin. 'Two or three times I thought I was gone, but I just reminded myself of what the old man would do to me if I let those Germans get away with it. That did the trick."

Quicker than a buck private grabs his pay, the general jumps up and snatches the paper from my hands. His face looks like he has a light bulb inside his head, so brilliant is his color. That's about all, I guess. Word about his kid fixed the old boy up, all right, and he came out of retirement like one of those bazooka shells the boys used up there today.
Who was the general? Didn't I tell you, Mr. Correspondent? Why, Major General Joshua M. Homer, of course, the guy who is running the show on this island.

BUY WAR BONDS NOW!

TOOKING ahead to the future and planning wisely L is more important today than ever. With the longer hours and harder work the war has brought, your equipment is wearing out pretty fast. Few replacements are available. But the day is coming when full lines of everything will be on the market again-and then you're going to need a lot! Nobody else will save the money to meet those future needs. It's up to you to do it yourself.

On farms and ranches all over the country, owners and tenants are salting down their dollars in the War Bonds which will mean so much to their post-war prosperity. It's the safest and easiest way to save. Uncle Sam stands behind them. You can buy them in large or small denominations, to suit yourself, and you can get them at bank or post office or Production Credit Association. Between trips to town you can buy by mail, or ask your rural mail carrier to get them for you. The wise, farsighted plan is to keep right on buying them.

Save your money for your boy, too. His great dream, wherever he's fighting, is to get home as quickly as possible. The least you can do, now, is to buy the War Bonds that help provide his fighting equipment. But when the war is over, then the money you've lent to the Government will come back to you . . . and you and the boy can use it together. The farm will mean more to him than it ever has, and he'll be proud of you for the way you've stood behind him, and provided ahead for future needs. ### RELIGION IN THE LIFE

LESSON TEXT—II Samuel 7:17-29.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord shall be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy glory. Isaiah 60:19.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation" (Prov. 14:34). True religion is vital to the life of a nation and is the only foundation for national stability and growth. David, the man after God's own heart, knew this, and was not content that the ark of God, the center of the nation's worship, should be without a suitable house. He was not one to be content with a fine palace for his own comfort while the ark of God had a temporary abiding place within curtained walls (v. 2).

Although the prophet Nathan encouraged him in his plan (v. 3), the Lord revealed to the prophet that David was not to build His house (see I Chron. 22:8, 9), but to prepare the materials so that his son Solomon could do it. David's response to that message reveals the true religious attitude of a king and a people who fear and worship God. They were ready to-

I. Receive God's Grace (vv. 18-

The great Davidic covenant, which is yet to have its final fulfillment in David's greater son, our Lord Jesus, was made with him at this time. He was promised that the throne of his kingdom was to be established forever (vv. 13-15), a prophecy to be fulfilled in Christ.

But there was also the great promise of blessing upon David's son Solomon, and the reminder of God's grace upon David, the one brought up from the sheepcote to be king (v. 8).

In humility of heart David received this grace and thanked God for it. Note such expressions as "Who am I?" "What is my house?" "What can David say more?" and "For thy word's sake thou hast done these great things." David knew and admitted his unworthiness; he realized that this was indeed unmerited favor from God, but he accepted it as God's gift.

II. Recognize God's Power (vv. 23, 24).

Israel had seen the mighty hand of God at work on their behalf repeatedly, since the day God had brought them forth out of Egypt. God had literally redeemed them for Himself, a purchased possession, protected by His limitless power.

That redemption was not only national but spiritual-they were set free from the gods of Egypt (v. 23) and confirmed to the Lord (v. 24).

It is a great and noble thing when a nation recalls its past and thanks God for His powerful hand upon its destiny. It has been said that a nation which does not remember its past will not have a future worth remembering; and when it remembers, let it recognize God in its history. He is the God of the nations as well as of individuals.

III. Rest in God's Promise (vv. 25-27).

"Do as thou hast said." That is a perfect prayer for any nation. Let the will of God be done, and all will be well-now and in the future.

There is nothing commendable about doubting God's promise or limiting Him in fulfilling it. It glorifies God and magnifies His name to take Him at His word and to confidently expect Him to fully meet His promise. To do anything else is to reflect on His power and His integrity.

It was the prayer of David that the Lord's name might be magnified forever in the keeping of the covenant which He had made with him. That squarely put all of the authority and dependability of God behind the keeping of the promise.

David found peace of heart there. May not we do likewise, resting on the promises of God?

IV. Rejoice in God's Blessing

(vv. 28, 29). David praised God for the assurance that His words were true, and claimed the promise of a blessing upon his house, "That it may continue forever before thee.'

He evidently saw beyond the immediate fulfillment of the promise in Solomon to the coming of Christ (cf. vv. 18, 19; Rom. 4:5-8). And his heart leaped for joy at the unspeakable honor which had thus come to him.

This is substantiated by the translatiz of verse 19 by the Hebrew scholar Adam Clarke: "O Lord God, thou hast spoken of thy servant's house for a great while to come, and hast regarded me in the arrangement about the MAN that is to be from above, O God Jehovah."

Little wonder, then, that David raised his voice and heart in praise and worship. His "adoration and thanksgiving at the revelation of this great truth is beautiful. Its humility, faith, and gratitude reach a sublimity unequalled since Moses" (James M. Gray).

Tungsten an Essentia.

Element for Industry

Unlike most other metals, tungsten is a very hard substance and has the highest melting point of any of the metals. These are some of the reasons which make it so valuable to war and industrial developments. It is nearly twice as heavy as lead and its tensile strength is twice that of heat-treated alloy steel.

The value of tungsten in the industry was first discovered by Robert Mushet in 1868 while working in the steel works at Sheffield, England. By 1905 "high speed cutting tools" containing 18 per cent tungsten were on the market.

Without tungsten there would be no low-cost production of the many articles necessary for war and peace. The tungsten is the element that gives hardness to the steels from which are made the cutting tools used in the lathes, drill presses, milling machines, planers, shapers and automatic screw machines.

The ore is ground to dust and treated chemically until the yellow tungsten oxide is formed. This oxide is placed in metal troughs and passed through heated tube furnaces where hydrogen gas removes the oxygen from the tungsten oxide, leaving pure tungsten metal in the form of a grayish powder. This is molded in a hydraulic press, then set between electrodes and given a 3,000-ampere wallop of electricity, fusing it immediately into a piece of solid metal.

Dispute Over Boiling

Eggs Cause of Slaying DETROIT.—In a fight that resulted from an argument over the boiling of two eggs, Doris Neal, 15, shot and killed her father, Jacob, 48, in their home, police reported.

Charles W. Jones, assistant prosecutor, said Doris told him that she had returned from a store, where she works afternoons, about 7:15

"I went to the kitchen to get something to eat," she explained. "After boiling the eggs for about five minutes pa remarked that they were done. I said I didn't think so.

"He accused me of sassing him." An argument ensued and he struck her several times, she said. She then said he followed her into the dining room, knocked her down, sat on her, and proceeded to hit her in the face until she apologized.

Enraged over the beating, Doris went to a bedroom, took an old army revolver from the wall, returned to the dining room, and shot her father three times, once in the forehead and twice in the chest, she told Jones.

Pasteurization of Eggs Improves Keeping Quality

A new method for preserving eggs has been announced by specialists at the Missouri Agricultural Experiment station. They have developed the pasteurization of shell eggs, not only to destroy bacteria but to retain their desirable physical properties much longer than if the eggs were untreated. The method has been checked and endorsed by the United States army.

Inited States army.

The eggs are passed through hot J. Bricker 141 95 109 345 oil or water, less than ten minutes being required for the operation. The process eliminates losses from chick development by converting fertile eggs capable of chick development into an infertile state, so that they can be kept in storage as well as the infertile eggs.

The pasteurizing destroys the bacteria though they may have penetrated the shell and shell membranes of the eggs. The process cuts down the rate at which the solid white is converted into thin or water egg white. The process also tends to improve the keeping quality of infertile eggs and has no harmful effect on the taste or cooking quality of eggs. The process can be utilized by poultrymen as well as commercial handlers of eggs. One of its commercial uses will be to reduce the bacteria content of frozen and dried eggs if they are processed from pasteurized or thermostabilized eggs. The bacteria count of such processed eggs was reduced 95 per cent. Some method must be worked out by the individual to control time and temperature during the process of pasteurizing.

For best results, maintain the oil and water at 140 degrees for 10 to 14

Record Slaughter

The number of hogs slaughtered during 1943 was the largest on record, rising to 111,827,000 head from the previous high record of 91,200,-000 in 1942 and from the depression's low of 52,235,000 in 1935.

Grazing Herbage

Where increased herbage for early grazing is desired, topdress by mid-April with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda or 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate. One acre of permanent pasture for every three cows.

Indians' Vote

In 1924, a law was passed providing that all non-citizen Indians born within the territorial limits of H. Royer the United States were thereby de- T. Putman clared citizens of the United States.
