CHILDREN'S AID DRIVE FOR FUNDS

This is the first week of the drive for funds to carry on the work of the Children's Aid Society of Carroll County. For sixteen years the underprivileged children of the county have been mothered by this organization.

Those who are well acquainted with its methods and accomplishments are more than satisfied with results. Children who have gone beyond the care of foster parents have taken their places in society and are giving a good account of themselves. At this time when there is so much at stake in national and family relations it is necessary to keep the standards high and the goal of the Children's Aid Society is to give its awards the best possible attention so that they may be equipped to take their part in the post-war conditions.

The foster homes that house these children are carefully selected and they must meet the State standards. The Children's Aid has a fine staff of foster parents who are making splendid citizens of their charges.

NATIONAL WAR FUND CAMPAIGN

Will Begin upon Termination of Children's Aid Drive

The National War Fund 1944 campaign, now in progress throughout the entire country, will be conducted in Carroll county this year. Carroll county did not participate in the 1943 campaign, being the only county in the United States which did not support the agencies which provide so much entertainment and recreation for our service men and women. Many counties in the State have already inaugurated their campaigns, but Carroll county has deferred its drive until the termination of the Children's Aid Society's solicitation. Accordingly Carroll county's campaign will begin on October 30th and will close on Nov. 15th.

The agencies deriving benefit from this national drive are: the USO, which operates 3,035 service units for our armed forces and 87 USO-Camp Shows troupes which give performances in combat zones overseas and in hospitals and camps in this country; the United Seamen's Service, which follows the invasion forces, and operates 82 rest centers and service clubs throughout the world for our Merchant Marine; the War Prisoners Aid, which provides tons of recreational and educational supplies which are shipped to our American prisoners of war who are imprisoned by the Germans and the Japanese; Allied Relief Societies, which provide shelter, food and medical supplies to the homeless and famine-stricken people of our Allies.

Lawrence B. Fink, County Campaign Chairman, and the Executive Committee, Scott S. Bair, Campaign Director; John R. Eckard, Executive Secretary; Guy F. Fowler, Treasurer, and Dr. Fred G. Holloway, Chairman of the Campaign Steering Committee have been engaged in organizing the county during the past two weeks. An office has been established at 17 East Main Street, Westminster, which will be open daily during the financial drive. This location has been provided without charge through the kindness of Mr. Louis S. Sharkey, proprietor of the American restaurant. The District Chairmen are appointing capable and efficient solicitors to fully canvass their Districts. The list of solicitors will be published in next week's paper.

The following District Chairman have been appointed by the Executive Committee: Taneytown District No. 1, Mrs. Elwood E. Baumgardner; Uniontown District No. 2, Mrs. Wilbur C. Halter; Myers District No. 3, Roy D. Knouse; Woolery District No. 4, Mrs. Mabel A. C. Necker; Freedom District No. 5, DeVries R. Hering; Manchester District No. 6, Miss Emma Trump; Westminster District No. 7, Miss Lillian Shipley, Mrs. David H. Taylor, Mrs. Richard M. Lundberg, Mrs. Charles E. Shipley and George M. Crawford; Hampstead District No. 8, Mrs. Ralph O. Leister; Franklin District No. 9, Guernie L. Stuller; Middleburg District No. 10, Mrs. Frank P. Alexander; New Windsor District No. 11, Byron D. Hartzler; Union Bridge District No. 12, Mrs. J. Wilmer Baker; Mt. Airy District No. 13, Mrs. J. Albert Nice; Berrett District No. 14, Roy F. Grimm.

The Rev. Lowell S. Ensor, pastor of Westminster Methodist Church is chairman of the church committee. Mrs. Gladys M. Wimer is Chairman of the Women's Division. The Industrial Committee will be headed by Thomas C. Waldron.

There will be a meeting of the county organization at the Westminster High School on Friday evening, October 20 at 8 P. M. Mr. V. A. Rule, the State Representative of the National War Fund, will be present and will address the meeting. All Chairman and committee members are asked to attend in order that the county campaign may get under way with all workers well informed as to National War Fund activities.

THERE'S MORE SUGAR COMING

Housewives who have found their sugar stamps temporarily worthless because their grocer's sugar shelf was bare may take hope, now that the War Food Administration promises stepped-up production from the nation's sugar-beet factories in the West and Midwest. On September 1 the nation's sugar inventory was lower than on any date since 1935. During the first eight months of this year, 483,000 tons more of sugar were distributed in the U. S. than in the same period of 1943. Most of the increase went to civilian usage for preserving and canning. In one form or another, civilians got most of the increase—in preserving and canning of fruits and vegetables, in larger than normal production of condensed milk and in supplemental allotments for other purposes.

LESS NITROGEN AND PHOSPHATE

U. S. farmers probably will have less nitrogen and phosphate fertilizers to use on 1945 crops because of increased military use of these materials. WFA reports. The supply of potash, WFA says, will be materially larger than last year. If farmers lay in their fertilizer stocks soon this will clear the way for manufacture of more mixed fertilizers in case the supply situation improves in time.

SERVICE MEN LETTERS

Many and Varied are their Experiences

New Guinea, Sunday, Oct 1, '44

Dear Mr. Stonesifer:

Just a few lines from a new station in New Guinea. I arrived here a short time ago. I have seen a lot of this world in the States, and over here, but still like good old Taneytown. Now for a little about New Guinea. I know you have heard a lot about this island. The part of New Guinea I am in, the fighting is all over, we are not far from where one of the battles were fought. I haven't got a chance to see the battlefield yet, but I expect to go there soon on a visit.

We are living in tents, there are six of us in a tent. We are about 300 yards from the jungle on both sides of us so there isn't much we can see besides trees and bushes.

There is a creek nearby, and we go swimming and take baths in it. There are all kinds of snakes in it, but we don't see many of them, also you can find some very nice stones and pearls in it.

About every day some of the boys and I go into the jungle, looking around. We see quite a bit of tropical fruit, but most of it is green now. We have some bananas and limes, also some coconuts. We have some fruit I don't know what they call it, but it is very good to eat when it is ripe.

Also see some Jap equipment and gather parts of it to make different things such as rings, bracelets, watch bands and a lot of other things.

As for me, I am all right, I still stand to that old saying I am taking care of Bill first.

We are living as good as can be expected, over here, plenty to eat, and lot of time to sleep.

They call us at 5:45 in the morning, that is about dawn, and it gets dark about 5 o'clock, and we have no electric lights so we got to bed about 8 o'clock.

There is plenty of recreation here though, there are shows every night, both stage and movie picture shows. Also the Red Cross gives us the up-to-date news, and they have hobby shops and all kinds of entertainment, also drinks and something to eat every evening. There are a few Chapels here, which every night have services.

We may not have a shower in the basement, but we keep clean, and also no wash machines over here. That would make you a good present to send me, as I have to wash my own clothes and what a sight that is. I always did say there is nothing I can't do, if I have to do it.

Oh I forgot to tell you about the bull session we have in the tent every night, we argue about any and every thing, till we fall asleep every night. Some good election arguments and baseball arguments.

I guess I better get ready to sign off now as it is 4 o'clock and that is chow time here.

Thanking you a million for the good old paper, although I haven't received it for two months, but I am looking forward to getting it very soon.

I am always willing to hear from you all, and will try and answer, whenever you write, I also will answer all the questions, I am able to answer.

I am a Taneytown lover and hoping to hear from you all soon. As ever,

"A" GASOLINE BOOKS TO BE ISSUED

Blanks Can Be Obtained at Filling Stations and Garages

Arrangements for the issuance of the new "A" gasoline ration books, which will go into use November 9, have been completed, OPA announced. Application forms will be available for residents of Baltimore City within the next week or so, it was stated.

Residents of the remainder of the State, with the single exception of Harford County, are requested to obtain application forms immediately from their gasoline stations—fill them out properly and mail with the back cover of their old "A" books to the War Price and Rationing Boards nearest their homes.

Residents of Harford County may obtain application forms, but are not to mail them to their Boards. The schools will be used in this county for issuance on October 20th.

Applications from non-residents, such as vacationists or commuters will not be accepted by local boards or schools. People in this category should apply in their home states. This issuance of basic gasoline ration will require the assistance of many additional volunteer workers in the counties outside of Baltimore City. Volunteers are therefore urged to report to their local boards to help with this heavy work-load during the rest of the month.

"D" ration books for motorcycles may be obtained at the local War Price and Rationing Boards only.

BENEFITS TO WIDOWS

According to Dwight Billings manager of the Hagerstown office of the Social Security Board, some people still think that a woman has to be 65 years old before she can claim social security benefits. "That is not so," he stated, "as a matter of fact, there are about 110,000 widows, with young children, and nearly 300,000 children in the United States who are receiving payments of Survivors Insurance, every month."

In case an insured worker dies, whatever his age, if he has the necessary wage credits on his social security account, his widow receives monthly insurance payments until the youngest child is 18 years old; and his children receive monthly benefits until they are 16 years old, (18 if in school and unmarried). If there are no children, the widow, regardless of age, receives a lump-sum payment at the time of the husband's death and then later on, when she reaches age 65 her monthly payment begins—that is, if she has not married again.

An insured worker's widow who has reached age 65, whether or not she has a child in her care may claim monthly benefits, provided her husband died, since this provision went into effect (January 1, 1940).

"Sometimes a person who is not quite sure about his right or social security benefits is apt to talk with a neighbor or relative about his claim, instead of going, direct, to the field office where the matter can be discussed with someone who can give him authentic information," said Billings. "Often, the person who is asked for advice is only partially informed on the subject. Although his intentions are good, he may give the claimant the wrong impression or the wrong advice. Anyone who has reason to believe that he is entitled to old-age or survivors insurance benefits should inquire at the Social Security Board office located 74 W. Washington St., Hagerstown, Md."

All services to claimants are given free of charge. The field office takes the claim, advises the claimant, helps him or her fill out papers and assemble the required evidence. Shortly thereafter, the claim is adjudicated, the amount of the payment calculated and, if the claim is established, it is then certified for payments to the U. S. Treasurer. The Treasury Department mails the checks to the claimant.

AUTO CLUB BOARD MEETS

The regular meeting of the Westminster Advisory Board of the Automobile Club of Maryland was held on Monday, October 16, at 7 o'clock, at the Chubb Carroll Hotel. The President, Paul R. Garrett presided. Various projects in connection with the post-war highway plan program were discussed as well as numerous civic and safety activities being conducted under auspices of the Westminster office. Branch Manager's report showed a steady increase with a total paid-up membership as of Sept. 30th, 1944 of, 848.

Election of officers and members of the Westminster Advisory Board to serve for the ensuing year was held, which resulted in the re-election of the entire roster, namely: President, Paul R. ## KIWANIS MEETS

Mr. Janness of the Board of Education Spoke

The Taneytown Kiwanis Club held its regular weekly meeting on Wednesday evening at Clear Ridge Inn, near Uniontown, President Clyde L. Hesson, presiding. Twenty-three members were present. The period of Club singing was in charge of Wallace Reindollar, with Mrs. Wallace Yingling as accompanist.

The program was in charge of the House and Reception Committee, Geo. L. Harner, Chairman. Mr. Harner introduced Mr. Samuel Janness, Assistant County Superintendent of Schools and County High School Supervisor, as the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Janness chose as his topic "Global Geography." He distributed copies of a new text book on the subject which was used as the basis of a short course on Geography from this new point of view in the schools of Carroll County last year and will be used again during this present school year in courses offered to Freshmen and Seniors in the High Schools. Mr. Janness explained the objectives of the Course as outlined in the text-book, which takes into account the new opportunities for travel from place to place on the earth, especially those places which are separated by the great distances, in view of the fact that the new implement of travel, the airplane, is able to travel in straight lines, without being limited by the usual obstructions of land and sea. For instance, it is possible to travel now from New York to points in Asia by flying the North Pole Route, instead of the much longer usual route by way of San Francisco and Hawaii across the Pacific Ocean. Reference to Global Maps show many other short routes which will be used in the future, and indeed are being used to a great extent at present.

The address was very interesting and much enjoyed by the Kiwanians present as demonstrating the effects of research and experiment in the search for new means of adding not only to enjoyment but also to the efficiency of the intelligent use of modern machines and modern invention in living.

The meeting next week will be held at Big Pipe Creek Park and will be the annual Halloween party. Refreshments will be furnished by the ladies of the Club and the program will be in charge of the House and Reception Committee.

THEY DESERVE PROTECTION

"All children should be protected against diphtheria at an early age," according to a statement just made by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health. "Toxoid, which can be administered easily and without danger, can safeguard them against this serious disease of childhood."

"Parents are urged to have their children immunized now. A dose of toxoid can save a child from serious illness or even from death. Those who have not been safeguarded against this danger should be taken to the clinic or to their physician for immediate inoculation."

"Babies eight or nine months old who have not yet been protected should be given toxoid now," Dr. Riley continued. "A first dose of toxoid is recommended by authorities on the care of infants at the age of eight or nine months, or even as early as six months. A second dose is usually given later. Of course, protection is even more strongly urged for children who have passed the ages mentioned without the protection of toxoid."

"To keep immunity at a high level a reinforcing dose of toxoid is advised before children enter school. Those who went to school or kindergarten this year without this additional safeguard, or without ever having been protected, should also be taken to the doctor or to the nearest clinic for immunization."

"Although it is much better to give children toxoid late than never, it is decidedly better to give it to them at the early ages," Dr. Riley concluded. "This disease usually attacks the very young children, and affects them more seriously than their older brothers and sisters. It is, therefore, unwise to postpone immunization, because diphtheria is a constant threat to the health of unprotected babies and children."

THE "HIRED MAN"

If anyone deserves consideration at the hands of employers and Government authorities, it is the farm hand, whose case is now before the War Labor Board. No war worker, with all his overtime turns in so long a day as this essential toiler. No artisan of the assembly line has a more important job than the producer of food.

There are compensations, doubtless, for the nature lover and poet—but he who rises with the lark to milk the gentle kine on a lovely summer morn must also stumble over the frozen clods, lantern in hands, to feed and tend the pesky critters. There's joy in springtime plowing, when catbirds and cardinals chatter and whistle in the fence rows and blackbirds follow in the furrow, but a fellow who has to hustle to turn under the south forty before dark has no time to compose lines to a field mouse or make daisy chains. Seedtime, haying, harvest and threshing often find him at his job long after the moon is up with chores still to follow!

Farm hands' wages have been increased; any farmer can tell you that. Whether they have kept pace with the cost of living is another thing. We hope that the WLB will reconsider its refusal to permit the employing farmers to present their side of the case. But if the Little Steel Formula is to be broken—on V-E Day or any other day—for the unionized industrial workers, the farm hands should be remembered as well.

TIME FOR A CHANGE

One of the important factors bearing on the outcome of the presidential election will be the feeling that "it is time for a change." Twelve years is a longer period than any president has ever been in office. Sixteen years would be much too long.

For 144 years prior to 1940 the tradition was firmly established that no president should serve more than two terms. If the people this year were to give President Roosevelt a fourth term, they would be well on the way toward the establishment of a new tradition, that a president might serve for life, or at least as long as he could manage to get re-elected. We have already gone too far in that direction.

It is time for a change because of the bickering that has gone on in Washington. Everyone recalls the public name calling indulged in by Vice-President Henry Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones, the dispute between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Undersecretary Summer Welles, which resulted in the latter's resignation, and the undercover sniping in the War Production Board, which resulted in the two top men, Donald Nelson and Charles E. Wilson, being forced out.

Last year feuding on the Potomac became so prevalent and bitter that the president had to issue an order threatening members of his administration with dismissal if they quarreled in public.

It is time for a change because the president has shown that he is either unwilling or unable to fire incompetents and to organize his administration along efficient lines. The Departments of Labor and Agriculture are outstanding examples. The War Food Administration was established to do the job the Department of Agriculture was supposed to have done and numerous other agencies, including the War Labor Board, have been established to perform functions which belong in the Department of Labor.

It is time for a change because confidence in the federal courts has been largely destroyed by the appointment of judges who are more intent on devising means to uphold the New Deal revolution than on fairly interpreting the laws passed by Congress and safeguarding the rights of citizens and states that are guaranteed by the Constitution.

It is time for a change because of the favoritism shown by the Roosevelt administration to organized labor and because of the administration's persecution of business.

It is time for a change because of the growth of a strangling bureaucracy which seeks to perpetrate itself and resists all efforts toward economy and reorganization.

It is time for a change because Communists and other left-wingers who want to revolutionize the American form of government by establishing some form of state socialism are becoming more and more entrenched in the government at Washington and their power will increase if they succeed in electing Roosevelt to a fourth term.

Drastic steps must be taken if the government is to be reorganized on an orderly basis, if court packing is to be stopped, if favoritism to one group of citizens is to be discontinued, if a start is ever to be made toward keeping the cost of government within its income and if the trend toward state socialism is to be halted.

Such steps can never be taken by the administration now in power. There must be a change and the time for it has come.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FREEDOM TO GOSSIP

"There is no such thing as 'Freedom of the Press' for the publisher of a country newspaper. He cannot conduct one and remain in business. His readers do not want a free press. They want a tactful press."

With that challenging statement as the basis for an article in Coronet magazine, Robert E. Harlow, who claims to be a weekly publisher but who does not reveal the name or location of his newspaper, points out that the weekly, to be successful, must leave out all scandal news and other facts which might offend readers.

Not knowing Mr. Harlow, we cannot say whether he is a country editor or long-standing or a refuge from a city scandal sheet, but his cleverly worded article, written to amuse a sophisticated audience, would indicate that his conception of freedom of the press is far different from that of our forefathers who wrote the Bill of Rights. They were concerned only with the prohibition of government control of the press whereas Mr. Harlow feels his freedom is impaired because he cannot publish a picture of a local woman running into a tree while intoxicated or tell the story of the elopement of the daughter of a prominent family with the gardener.

"I acknowledge without shame," says Mr. Harlow, "that in the past few weeks my newspaper has considered it wise to omit at least a half dozen top local news stories, although the facts were common gossip. To have printed these items would have cost me friends and money. To print stories which would cost me friends and money would in a short time put me out of business."

"My weekly," Mr. Harlow continues, "is published in a resort community, where the wealthy members of the cottage colony expect protection from the local press. If in New York one of their sons were guilty of some spectacular misbehavior, the New York News could play the story under headlines because the News does not give a 'hang' whether or not the boy's family subscribe to the News. But if the boy cuts some didoes here I ignore it in my paper. I need the family's subscription. If I stepped out of line in giving bad publicity to one of their number the whole cottage colony would be down on me."

Any country editor will readily agree that Mr. Harlow must omit harmful gossip if he hopes to continue a successful newspaper in a small town. But we see little relationship between the necessity for good taste in avoiding scandal stories and what is known as freedom of the press. Certainly when the German, French and Italian people were denied the freedom of the press, no one (unless it was possibly Mr. Harlow) thought of this loss in terms of a ban on scandal news. The publishing of personal gossip, and of scandal columns, is a comparatively recent development in journalism and was not considered as one of the functions of a newspaper in the past. In rural America it is not yet considered a function of the free press.—The American Press.

PIRATE TREASURES FROM NEW ENGLAND'S SANDS

Many years ago a pirate's galleon loaded with stolen treasure was wrecked off the coast of New England. How some Cape Codders are able to live comfortably without working by digging treasures from the sand is revealed in a fascinating article in the October 29th issue of The American Weekly favorite Magazine with The Baltimore Sunday American. Order from your news-dealer.

ROMMEL

The fox of the desert will not again run away to fight another day. Berlin now admits the death of Marshal Rommel. He was a relatively fortunate man. He belonged to a dirty gang, was a Nazi among Nazis. But he did not have the Nazi dirty work to do. His assignments permitted him to fight clean. As much of glory as is left in war, and more than accrues to most leaders whose side is foredoomed to defeat, colored his spectacular career.

Not so much a strategist as a wily tactician, and not so much an innovator as a daring gambler with a ready-made set of tricks, Marshal Rommel repeated himself once too often in Africa. He did not show himself capable of defending Fortress Europe.

We wrote a striking page of military history. It is a pity he could not have done so serving a decent cause.—Christian Science Monitor.

SAVE THOSE BONDS

The Treasury has made a new ruling to the effect that war bonds in the hands of individuals are cashable directly by banks. Thus bonds are more readily converted into cash than was possible heretofore.

The move was made solely as a convenience for those who of sheer necessity must cash bonds. But Treasury officials are concerned lest the people get the impression that the war is so near an end that they can let up on bond buying. The truth is that bond buying is as essential now as it ever was. The war effort needs, urgently, every last cent the American people can spare, and it is hoped that the more liberal restrictions on the cashing of bonds will enable bond holders to hold them longer because the money will be available at once upon the actual occurrence of any necessity.

Some have been cashing in advance of necessity in order to have their cash in time. They won't have to do that now, for bonds henceforth will be as negotiable as a government check. The plan is, indeed, another reason for holding one's bonds to the last minute, and for putting all of one's savings into bonds.—(Towson) County Record.

Industrial Alcohol

It takes approximately 12½ pounds of corn or wheat to make a barrel of industrial alcohol which in turn will make enough smokeless powder to fire a 12-inch shell.

Vitamin A

Americans obtain one-half of their vitamin A and nearly two-thirds of their vitamin C from vegetables and fruits, says the War Food Administration.

Fires Spread

Brush and grass fires sometimes reach and set fire to buildings. Keep hedge rows and fields near buildings clean and free of combustible material.

Official Flowers

Hawaii chose the lehua; Alaska, the forget-me-not and the District of Columbia, the American Beauty Rose as official flowers.

Chemotherapy

Chemotherapy is defined as the treatment of infectious diseases by specific chemical compounds.

Remove Spots

Clothes with grease spots should be washed if the construction makes it at all possible because grease is to a moth what steak is to a hungry man. Children's coats, dresses, leggings, snow-suits and other outdoor-wearing apparel need careful inspection before being put away. In washing wool or part-wool clothes of this type, always use lukewarm water and just enough soap to make a three-inch suds—no more. Wash each piece separately to avoid having colors run into each other. Buttons, buckles, and trimmings should be removed before laundering.

Face Challenge

Prospects are that competition among fibers will be on an intensified scale in the postwar period. Relentless research and aggressive merchandising by the synthetic producers will press the old established textile industries to make adjustments in keeping with the times. While the market for the natural fibers may not be seriously threatened in the immediate future, the rapid scientific developments that may take place are a challenge that must be faced.

No Two Pants Suits

With 1,900,000,000 pounds of surplus wool piled up in this country, 600,000,000 pounds of it imported from Australia, it remains utterly impossible for thrifty Americans to follow the economical policy of buying two pairs of trousers with a suit of clothes.

In Idaho, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, after conferences with leading sheepmen of the western area, found that this uneconomic condition is bound to react to the damage if not the utter ruin of American sheepraisers who have been urged by the New Deal administration to increase their flocks.

Save Hot Water and Soap

When washing neckwear or other small items, save on hot water and soap by using a quart-sized mason jar. Fill the jar with sudsy water, immerse the neckwear, screw on the top, and agitate by shaking the jar. If these little things are laundered in a tub or bowl, the tendency is to squander both hot water and soap, two necessities which represent fuel and valuable materials used for war purposes.

And since you buy electricity by the kilowatt hour, you should know what you pay for. Even though you can't see a kilowatt hour, there's no mystery about it. You buy enough pounds of meat for a meal—you buy enough kilowatt hours to run your electric appliances. It's that simple. But with cost the similarity ends. Unlike other things the cost of electricity has been steadily coming down. And here's proof! Each pile of pennies below represents the AVERAGE cost of a kilowatt hour in the year shown under the pile. You see for yourself just how much the cost of electricity has been cut.

BE GLAD no Gestapo agent burst open the door to your home, demanding your money, your clothing, your furniture—yes, even your children... to be sent into slavery for the Reich.

Be glad no Nazi Storm Trooper burned your crops to keep them out of the hands of his pursuers, killed your livestock to feed German war lords, burned down your home to show you his might.

It could have happened here, you know!

Why not put our thankfulness into concrete form? Why not buy the War Bonds we ought to be buying? We haven't bought enough, yet, you know... not nearly enough. And there are men across the sea fighting our fight who are asking what we are doing at home. Have we an answer for them?

You will need your War Bonds as urgently after the war as Uncle Sam needs your money today. You will need new machinery and equipment, new fences, new buildings. So BUY NOW! Don't spend a dollar unless you first ask yourself: "Does my country need it more?"

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

1. The tempo of this war is hitting its highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. MORE MONEY IS NEEDED... NOW!
2. In proportion to WHO HAS THE MOST MONEY, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must correct this situation.
3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial reserve he must have to survive the ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.
4. Money will be needed urgently at a future date to replace and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it.
5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, return a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy... from bank, post office, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association.

FEESERSBURG

Good morning, Jack Frost! We've been expecting you and there's no doubt about your appearing last night; the fields look very white this bright Monday morning. We prepared for your coming, and left little for your touch—but are sorry for others who were taken by surprise. Now we feel that winter is on its way—only we must have an Indian Summer yet.

Mrs. Ella Cash Devilbiss with her niece, Miss Carmen Delaplane, spent last Tuesday evening with their cousins, the Birely Sisters. Mrs. Devilbiss resides with the F. Delaplane's in the family home near Detour, and all would be well if arthritis wasn't so persistent with several of them.

Mrs. Addie Crumbacker, Mrs. Lulu Shirk, Misses Grace Sullivan, Sue Birely and Catherine Crumbacker at the wheel visited an Optician in Gettysburg last Thursday; galloped around elsewhere, then stopped at the Bachman sale in Taneytown, and were disappointed that the stores were closed.

Mrs. Lulu Grindler was pleased to hear from her son Tech. Sgt. Cleatus Grindler, somewhere in India—after a long silence. He sent fine souvenirs to his mother and wife. Once we asked a young girl whether she enjoyed a certain play at the Theatre, she had been anxious to see, and she replied "Oh yes," indeed, I cried all the time, and we are reminded often of that. Now when these precious letters come from the boys in service, and tears flow freely.

Another beautiful life ended at midnight last Wednesday, when Mrs. Edith Lynn Repp passed away before a Doctor could reach her side, and the blow was very shocking to her family and many friends—but for her it was only going home. She was a devoted wife and mother, very industrious, a model home maker and cook; a shining light in the Methodist Church at Middleburg; where she will be greatly missed—as she held position of responsibility and honor. Very many persons attended the funeral service held in the home as the church was under repair on Saturday afternoon, and interment in Middleburg cemetery. Rev. Colwell of the Methodist Church and Elder F. Fox of the Brethren Church officiated. Life's crown well won, now comes rest.

Just as unexpected as Mrs. Repp's death came the news of Jesse W. Eyler being found dead at his garage in Union Bridge on Friday noon. For many years they were next door neighbors in Middleburg and always good friends. The county medical examiner attributed his death to coronary occlusion. He was a barber of long standing, first in Middleburg, and later in Union Bridge; also an active agent for iron and wire fencing. Good neighbor and always ready to do kindness for a friend. He leaves his wife (nee Viola Williams) three sisters and one brother. Rev. O. Osteen of the Methodist Church conducted the funeral service in the home on Monday afternoon, with burial in the Church of God cemetery in Uniontown.

There was only S. S. at Mt. Union on Sunday morning with a good lesson on "Jesus Understanding of Man." Announcement was made of two boxes sent to soldiers; and for S. S. next Sunday afternoon, Oct. 22—followed with preaching service by Rev. Chas. Bix, of Baltimore. "Come thou with us."

The first time Rev. Bowersox preached at Mt. Union Feb. 18, 1940—he and his sweet-heart then took supper with Mr. and Mrs. David Miller, and every one was pleased with the young couple, two weeks later 41 voted for him there, and on April 11 he preached his first sermon as pastor—on "The Power of Prayer." He was installed as pastor of the Uniontown charge on April 21 at Bausts; where he held his last Communion service on Sunday, but returned to D. Miller's at Mt. Union for their fare-well supper himself and wife now, and their bright eyed smiling year old son—George Edward III—may their future be bright.

Oct. 29 will be the date of the annual ingathering at Mt. Union Church when fruits and vegetables are donated to the Deaconess Home in Baltimore, returning the empty jars sent in the Spring—now filled with good things. Rev. E. Colwell of Keymar, has kindly consented to be the guest speaker at 7:30 p. m. May it prove a profitable meeting.

On Saturday afternoon a number of our citizens attended the Earl Bowman sale of household goods at his home in Maidensville. They report a big crowd of people, nice goods, and big prices, and returned home before dark.

About this time of year our sympathies are aroused for the small animals trying to escape the hunters; so we were greatly relieved to learn that ammunition will be limited this season—some kinds impossible to secure. 'Tis an ill wind blows no good.

Are we busy! The tractor with the harrow going until midnight, then the drill and fertilizer and sowing grain; the farmer's life.

"Government in its tax policy must be as eager to promote a constructive peace as it was a destructive war."—Rep. Frank Carlson of Kansas.

LITTLISTOWN

Keith M. Bible, Littlestown R. D. 2, aged 29 years, of Medford, Md., was killed instantly Wednesday evening when he climbed an electric light pole to throw a switch. He was shocked from touching a live wire. When he touched the live wire he was thrown to the ground striking his head on some rocks. Dr. C. G. Death followed an illness of only a day. He observed his 99th birthday on September 6. Despite his advanced age he had enjoyed good health. He had been engaged in pump making for a period of 70 years, and a few weeks ago he had assisted in repairing a pump. He was a life-long member of Christ Reformed Church. His wife died 12 years ago. Surviving are five children. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon in Christ Church, his pastor, the Rev. John C. Brumbach, officiating. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, one daughter and two sons. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at the J. W. Little and Son Funeral Home. The Rev. A. E. Shenberger, Silver Run, former pastor of St. Luke Church officiated. Interment was made in Mt. Carmel cemetery.

The 26th anniversary of the founding of the Brotherhood of the United Lutheran Church was celebrated Sunday at St. John Lutheran church with appropriate services. There was a large attendance at the morning and evening services. The Brotherhood of the church attended both services. Rev. James delivered a sermon on Christian Brotherhood at the evening service. Walter Yingling, president of the organization presided. The Scripture lesson was read by Edgar Wolfe and prayer offered by Fred King. Alan Bowers a member delivered the message on "Live and let Live." On Tuesday evening the Brotherhood entertained the members of the Taneytown Lutheran Church. The Rev. Sutcliffe delivered the address. A male chorus of the Taneytown Church sang and a male quartet from St. John's sang several numbers.

Miss Rita McSherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McSherry, left for Washington, D. C., where she has enrolled as a student at the Catholic University and also as a student nurse at the Providence School of Nursing.

Calvin Crouse who is a patient in the Amie M. Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, is the same.

The Alpha Fire Company is soliciting funds this week. The Starr Bible Class of St. Paul Church, is sponsoring a drive for used clothing for the needy of Europe. Mrs. Mary Ellen Collins, S. Queen St., on Wednesday celebrated her 88th birthday. A number of her children gave her a surprise party. Mrs. Collins despite her advanced age, is enjoying good health. She prepared the dinner on her birthday.

Properties are changing hands so fast that I am unable to keep track of all the sales and the same way with those moving.

HAPPY THE MAN!

Happy the man who can feel in his bones
The joys that comes when all sin he atones;
Happy the man who blithely and gay
Can curb his own passion—his own anger stay.

It has wisely been said by Sages of old
That happiness comes to those who are bold.
Man's time upon earth is three score and ten
From that high pinnacle he sees where he's been.

And knows full well the things he has done
The victories achieved, the battles he's won.

It is not the easiest thing in the world
To sum up a life as a scroll that is furled.
What business have I in this proud world of strife
To arrogate to myself all knowledge of life?

I am but a man. Ambition may drive
No matter what comes I always must strive
To do my best always the task to be done;
Tis not so easy lives long race to run;

I may stumble and fall 'er I have begun
As I come to the end on the sunset I gaze
And I thank the Lord always His name I do praise.

Life has been a great pleasure—
Heaped up every day in bounteous measure,
I have no complaint as I come to the end
Of a road that has long with many a bend.

The hills have been steep and at times twould appear
That try as I may, the end seemed not near.
As I stand on the summit, with sunset in view
I look back o'er the way, see errors 'tis true.

But I would not, if I could trace, the steps I have trod
I prefer to resign all to the Great Living God. W. J. H.

HOW TO GET YOUR NEW "A" BOOK

When you get your application, obtainable at gasoline stations, fill it out and return it to your ration board, together with the back cover of your present ration sheet, which is headed "Certification of Bookholder." Do not detach the front cover, which is headed "Basic Mileage Ration," or the A-12 coupons.

It is well to remember that the A-12 coupons in your present book will never be valid. The next coupons used after the expiration of the A-11's on November 8 will be the A-13's first of the serially numbered coupons in the new book. Only three A-13 coupons will be in the book, but each will be worth four gallons and will be valid through December 21st.

With the issuing of the new books in the East, the rationing program will be uniform throughout the country.

RECLASSIFY MEN 38 AND OVER

Men over 38 who have been anxiously watching the mail-box to learn of their final disposition under National Selective Service can now relax and continue their civilian work with the assurance that they are in an age group not acceptable for induction into military service. Local boards have been instructed to place registrants of 38 and over in IV-A, to remain in I-C all men honorably discharged and to discontinue the I-A (L) classification. Men in Class I-C may not be removed from this classification without action by the Director of Selective Service. Local boards will put in other deferred classifications men found physically acceptable for limited military service only, who have heretofore been placed in Class I-A (L).

A lunch box containing sandwiches that are made with whole wheat or enriched bread and are filled with a vegetable or animal protein such as cheese with green peppers, baked beans with chili sauce, peanut butter, chopped egg, chopped ham and pickle or variety meats will go a long way toward keeping the worker healthy.

Fresh fruit or a crisp raw vegetable should be put in the lunch box ahead of that chocolate layer cake or those two doughnuts.

This is the season of the year when markets normally have higher percentages of utility grade beef. In addition, more cattle are coming to market directly from the range so that there is a bigger supply of utility and commercial grade beef than ever before. To avoid food waste this utility beef has been made ration-free so that housewives can make full use of it.

The tropical hurricane in the Atlantic seaboard blew three to four million bushels of apples to the ground. Because these windfalls are bruised and will not store well, it's up to the housewife now to make full use of them. After using as many fresh apples as possible, the rest can be used for apple sauce, apple butter and jelly.

For many people, and particularly for children, it's sound planning to have one-fourth to one-third of the day's food at breakfast. But there's no hard-and-fast rule. A desk worker who eats a substantial lunch early may get along very well on a light breakfast. It's the food eaten in the entire day totaled up, that tells whether one has eaten enough.

Homespun Philosophy

By Ezra

NOT ENOUGH REST

George is a banker in our town. He is wide awake and alert when it comes to solving the problems of our day. But you can't always be at your best. The other day I caught him off guard. I met him in front of the Post Office. He was positively drooping, and he had circles under his eyes.

"Hi'ya George!"

"Hi'ya Ezra!"

"How are you today?"

"Not so hot, Ezra. I was up too late last night."

"Well, we are all in that same boat some time. What kept you?"

"The same old trouble,—my wife."

"Make too much racket?"

"Gosh no, I can stand racket. I can go sleep in a boiler factory. This was worse than that. We came home at eleven o'clock, just one hour from midnight. I was about to say something about how tired I was and that I was thinking, maybe, I'd hit the hay, when out she pops with, 'Honey Chile, I don't know whether you know it or not, but you are going to help me clean those two rooms on the second floor. You could have knocked me over with a feather. Well, my wife has a one track mind. She had put on a dust cap, commandeered a bucket and broom (which she shoved into my hands) and was on the way. I followed meekly behind. For two hours we scrubbed, dusted and arranged furniture. It was two o'clock before I crawled into bed, too tired to take a bath."

"You have my sympathies, George, a wife can play havoc with a man's regular routine."

They (our wives) are the sweetest things on earth. God bless 'em. But some time sooner or later they will do something to get under our hide. They get the darndest notions. Just when we have decided on a course of action, such as, sliding into our easy chair, turning on the radio, and dreaming away one, two or three hours of blissful recreation,—just then, they come around with the most exasperating demands.

How, they catch us off guard! They begin, as in the case of George, "Honey Chile, do this, and Lambie Pie, do that." You'd think butter wouldn't melt in their mouth. Under such conditions we can't refuse them. We are like a lamb led to the slaughter—dumb, bleatless and resigned to any fate.

Some day there will come out of the loins of posterity a brave, fearless, intrepid husband, who, when he is accosted with such flattery on the part of his wife, will draw himself up to his full stature, look her straight in the eye and say, "Madame, I am a man of a few words, the answer is—No!"

If he lives to review his laurels he will find himself in the Hallowed Hall of Fame and millions of poor down-trodden males will pay him homage.

Until such a one appears on the horizon we go on washing dishes, scouring pans, dusting furniture, and sweeping floors, awaiting the hour of our liberation.

The person who misses breakfast frequently loses out on certain vitamins and nutrients such as vitamin C, vitamin B1 and calcium, and may seriously reduce his total daily intake of all foods.

With a little cooking skill, utility beef can be made appetizing and nourishing. Because it is lean, it should be kept moist and cooked at a moderate temperature for a long time. If the meat is browned in fat—pork drippings or suet—before steaming or stewing, the roast will have a better flavor.

Breakfast is the best time to make sure of some vitamin-C-rich food, such as orange or grapefruit.

WAR BONDS in Action

THOMAS E. DEWEY Says:

"Let's have no more of this pretense about indispensable men. There are no indispensable men. If our Republic after 150 years of self-government is dependent upon the endless continuance of one man in office, then the hopes which animated the men who fought for the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution have indeed come to nothing.

"I say the time has come to put a stop to everything that is summed up in that phrase, 'the indispensable man.' The peace and prosperity of America and the world can never depend on one man."

Bonnet-Mitten Gift Saves for War Bonds

Economy is important in your Christmas gifts this year, for every penny saved can be turned into more War Bonds. Your gifts will be as welcome as ever, if you make them yourself with an eye to originality, usefulness and charm. For the teen-ager, nothing is more heart-warming, nor hand-and-head-warming, than a gay bonnet and mitten set. Make them from wool remnants—for added saving—and sprinkle with felt flower appliques. Patterns for these accessories are available at local stores.

Forest Protection

The major portion of industrial timberland in the U. S. is partially protected by the owners, who spent more than $4,000,000 in 1942 for this purpose. This supplements the organized protection afforded by 42 states, through the programs of the state forestry departments, for some 282,000,000 acres of privately owned and state owned timber. Unfortunately, the forest protection program is not complete and about 144,000,000 acres are without organized protection.

TELEPHONE NETWORK LINKS U.S. AIR BASES IN BRITAIN

Enough Telephone Wire Strung to Reach From England to Berchtesgaden

These 8th Air Force Service Command signal construction men in Britain make the job of setting poles look easy. The upright pole is being replaced by the new one being hoisted into position.

The fine record of communications in this war is attributable, in a large measure, to the long years of experience in telephone construction many of the service men had with the Bell System before the war. Of all Bell System men in the Army, about 40 per cent are in the Signal Corps. More than two years before Pearl Harbor, the Signal Corps had worked out in cooperation with the Bell System a plan known as the "Affiliated Plan" through which men with several years experience were formed into cadres for special assignments. A substantial number of these units were assigned to the Air Forces, in view of the great importance of their communications problems.

These men lack the glamor and the breathtaking heroics of the fighter pilots and the bomber crews, or even the drama associated with the ground crewmen who "sweat out" each mission, but when the full story of the U. S. Army Air Force is told, the Signal troops of the 8th Air Force Service Command will merit a full share of the glory. They are the men behind the telephone lines which dispatch the bombers and fighter planes over Nazi Europe from air bases in the United Kingdom.

Without fanfare, they move swiftly and surely about their job of connecting the 8th Air Force stations with heavy telephone construction. Usually they arrive at a new airfield before the concrete has dried. They build new lines and remove and replace existing facilities. In fact, they have covered parts of the British Isles almost as completely as one of the country's fogs, wrapping the earth in a maze of communications lines.

Their work includes pole line construction, using both open wire and aerial cable, laying underground cable, splicing cable, and performing all the other jobs connected with building outdoor telephone plant. Their speedy pole line construction record has been helped immeasurably by use of special earth-boring machines to drill the holes.

One construction outfit, using over 200,000 manhours, has strung nearly enough open wire to reach to Hitler's doorstep in Berchtesgaden. It has set antenna poles for radio transmitting stations, placed aerial and underground cable running into hundreds of thousands of yards and dug enough telephone pole holes to make all the gophers in England turn green with envy.

Republican Victory Will Speed Defeat of Axis, Dewey Declares

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, in two major speeches last week continued to describe the bright future for America which he pledges the people of the nation.

In a nationwide radio address at a Republican rally in the Municipal Auditorium, Charleston, West Virginia, on October 7th, Governor Dewey charged that the New Deal Administration was setting up a corporate state, "a system where government would tell each of us where we could work, at what and for how much." This New Deal aim, the Republican candidate said, is one reason for Communist support of the Fourth Term Drive.

Earlier in the week, Governor Dewey, speaking to the nation by radio from the Executive Mansion in Albany, called for immediate postwar reduction in taxes and revision of the entire taxation system. Highlights from the address, at Charleston, follow:

"If every American who believes in freedom for his country will register and vote, free America will win an overwhelming victory here at home on November 7th. . . . This victory at the polls will also serve to speed the defeat of Germany and Japan because it will bring an end to bungling, fumbling and incompetence in Washington. . . .

"My opponent softly denies that he welcomes 'the support of any person or group committed to communism, or fascism'. . . . But doesn't this soft disclaimer come a trifle late? . . . Earl Browder, the head of the Communist Party in America, proclaimed. . . . that the election of my opponent was essential to his aims. This is the same Earl Browder who was convicted as a draft dodger in the last war, convicted again as a perjurer and pardoned by Franklin Roosevelt in time to organize the campaign for his fourth term. . . .

"The aims of the New Dealers were stated. . . by Adolph Berle. . . . He said: 'Over a period of years, the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants in the United States'. . . .

"That means, of course, a system where government would tell each of us where we could work, at what and for how much. . . . I do not know whether my opponent calls that system Communism or National Socialism or Fascism. I do know it is not an American system and it's not a free system. . . . The New Deal is developing its own form of corporate state. . . .

"It becomes clear why the twice convicted Comrade Browder and his friends are so eager for the reelection of my opponent. . . . Their aims can best be served by unemployment and discontent. . . . They remember that the New Deal in all its seven peacetime years never cured unemployment. . . . They remember that in the spring of 1940 we still had ten million unemployed. They remember that under the New Deal we had to have a war to get jobs. That's why they want a fourth term. . . .

"Let's look at the way this tired administration bungled its way into conversion for war production. . . . In August, 1939, more than six years after Hitler came to power, Mr.

Roosevelt finally created a War Resources Board. . . . It worked for three months and brought in a report. But the report was buried and the board quietly died. . . . In response to public pressure on May 25th, 1940, Mr. Roosevelt. . . . created the Office for Emergency Management under Executive Order No. 8,248. . . . But just four days later he piled on top of this one a seven man advisory commission. . . .

"Next we were handed the prize monstrosity of all, the Office of Production Management, under two different heads, William Knudsen and Sidney Hillman. . . . that agency was a failure. . . . So Mr. Roosevelt piled on still another one, the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board. . . . And of course that failed too. It was not until five weeks after Pearl Harbor that. . . . at last we got a War Production Board with a single responsible administrator at the head. . . .

"By way of coordinating all this confusion. . . . my opponent created a sixth agency, the Office of War Mobilization. . . . Eighteen months after Pearl Harbor. . . . The inevitable happened again. A little over a month ago, the War Production Board, itself, fell apart. . . .

"During all these months that the war effort was being hampered by open warfare in Washington, the responsible head of our Government was doing nothing about it. . . . Mr. Roosevelt's only comment was that he had of course been aware of dis-sension but he had 'hoped it would disappear'. . . .

"His administration is too tired even to do the job at hand. It is obviously too tired for the job ahead. . . . That's why it's time for a change. . . .

"What has been the answer of the New Deal to the specific proposals of our platform and the detailed statements of policy I have made on the radio in these recent weeks? We have heard nothing but glittering generalities, ghosts of the dead past and wise-cracks. . . . The New Deal. . . . wants a Government-owned America. . . .

"I say there is a better way. . . . Ten million returning heroes will demand that better way under the freedom they have fought to win. Under divine guidance they will have here a land of security with freedom and opportunity for all."

The six point tax program as proposed by Governor Dewey at Albany, October 3rd, follows:

1) Revise the personal exemptions so that the man who makes as little as $11 a week no longer has an income tax taken out of his pay envelope.

2) Reduce personal income tax rates.

3) Change and lower the income tax on incorporated business companies until it no longer acts as a drag upon production and a barrier to jobs.

4) Eliminate as soon as possible all excise taxes except those on alcoholic beverages, tobacco and gasoline.

5) Completely overhaul our existing, confused and complicated tax laws. We must create a basic tax law which can be expected to remain simple and generally stable.

6) Establish and proclaim a consistent, national tax policy—one directed toward achieving full employment and a rising national income—one that will assure us of a solvent nation and the ultimate reduction of our national debt.

Chocolate Cake

By FRANK BENNETT
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

THE Rev. John Bivens, young, tall, thin and studiously bespectacled, eyed his neat handwritten notes anxiously and at the same time drew through thin nostrils the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked cake. It had been creeping into his study the entire morning, distracting him considerably from concentration on sermon No. 1. With great determination he applied himself to the work in hand. It was to be his introduction to Goinsville and John, although young in years, was wise enough to know the value of the first impression.

Without warning the door behind him opened and Elsie, his wife of two weeks and four days, burst into his study. "John!" she cried, her voice that of one who knows sudden and unexpected success, "Oh, John, it's perfect! After two failures — I've — oh, John, you must come and look at it!"

John turned and smiled fondly at this pretty young lady with blond hair and sky-blue eyes whose face was flushed with wifely triumph. Remembering his sermon he sighed, but dutifully followed her into the kitchen to gaze with admiration at the beautiful cake. A great husbandly pride filled his heart, causing him to forget completely the two misshapen attempts which had preceded this masterpiece. And to ignore the ration points they had consumed. "Wonderful!" he said fervently.

"Thank you, my sweet," Elsie gave him a hand a little pat. "I've done it all for you, just to produce the proper effect on the ladies. Now I must rush. There's a meeting of Circle No. 2, and I don't want to be late."

"Wonderful!" he said fervently.

"Quite right," John agreed, convinced that no man was ever more fortunate in the selection of a wife than he. "I'll back the car out for you."

With the cake safely cradled in a large green basket, Elsie drove happily toward the church and the meeting of Circle No. 2. John returned hopefully to sermon No. 1.

Not many minutes passed before he heard a hearty knock. Frowning slightly at this second interruption, he opened the front door to find Mr. Boil, the local garage man, standing on the porch. On the driveway was Mr. Boil's wrecked; hitched to it was the front end of the old brown car. One glance told John that his ancient vehicle had been driven with considerable force into some more or less solid object.

Mr. Boil was without tact or imagination. "Your wife phoned me she run the ol' car into a bridge banister and that I was to come and pick up what was left. What do you want done with it?"

John Bivens struggled to speak coherently; there was a lump of fear in his throat. "My wife — was she injured?"

"Couldn't say. What about the junk pile?"

"Unhitch it, please." And the Rev. John Bivens, without hat, coat, or further thought of sermon No. 1, climbed aboard Mr. Boil's wrecked. "To the church, please," he directed. But his arrival at Circle No. 2 went unnoticed. The ladies were intent upon diminutive Mrs. Bivens who was beaming with delight. Her cheeks were pink with well-earned pride. Everyone seemed to be talking at once.

"What a beautiful cake!" "The best I ever tasted." "Your husband is a lucky man." "My dear, you are a simply marvelous cook!"

Judging from appearances, Elsie was unharmed. Quietly, and still unseen, John returned to his study and his unfinished task.

On her return home Elsie found her husband of two weeks and four days with sermon No. 1 spread out before him, his face creased in deep thought. "Excuse me for bothering your, dear," she said. "I ran the car into a bridge banister. But I did it for you, my sweet. You see, I put the cake on the back seat. When it started to slide off, I had to choose between letting it fall and be ruined, or letting the car go its own way and saving the cake. I remembered the importance of first impressions — so I rescued the cake. Did I do right, John dear?"

"My dear," he said, "you did the right and only sensible thing."

MISSOURI'S CITY MACHINES

ALLIES OF HILLMAN'S PAC

This is the first of a series of articles appearing in PATHFINDER Magazine, Washington, D. C. It is reprinted by special arrangement with the editors.—Editor.

Remember Tom Pendergast of Kansas City who turned in 60,000 votes a year for the Democratic ticket . . . from city graveyards? Who ordered a $300,000 "cut" for himself before "legalizing" statewide insurance rates? Who "fixed" the massacre of police officers in the Kansas City Station? Who made Henry Truman, his County Judge, a United States Senator for "services rendered"? Who built up a fat fortune as state boss of the liquor and ready-mixed cement racket? Remember Bob Hannegan, the Democratic Chairman in St. Louis, who tried the graveyard vote trick in 1935 but lost out after, allegedly, libeling the votes of honest citizens in 1940 and trying to stuff ballot boxes to overcome the lead held by Governor-elect Donnell?

If you do, read the rest of this story.

Pathfinder Editors.
OLD TOM PENDERGAST, home from the Federal Penitentiary, sits alone in his $125,000 mansion in Kansas City. Afternoons, these days, his nephew Jim wanders up to listen to the baseball broadcasts. Sometimes, Nephew Jim brings friends . . . from city hall, from the county court-house, from the local unit of the Political Action Committee. Between innings, the story goes, Uncle Tom lets slip words of wisdom apropos of the pattern to be followed in building a new CIO-Pendergast "machine" that will uphold glories of the Pendergast tradition and deliver a whopping city majority this fall for Franklin D. Roosevelt and Uncle Tom's old henchman, Harry Truman.

Two hundred eighty-five miles east, the wardheels of "Bob" Hannegan and Bernard Dickmann's 1940 machine scurry up the waterfront alleys again, trailed by the canvassing crews, precinct captains, factory "stewards" they are training for the St. Louis PAC in the art of vote-getting.

BIG CITY MACHINES

It's two months to Election Day. Missouri's two big-city machines are out to "make good" for ex-Boss Hannegan, now chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and ex-henchman Truman, FDR's running mate for the Fourth Term. Kansas City and St. Louis, like Chicago, New York, Seattle, Los Angeles and other cities are incorporated in a promising new brotherhood of city-machinedom . . . a national chain of machines that is CIO's contribution to better city pluralities in the postwar world.

The life cord of this corporation of city machines runs out from the New York City offices of Sidney Hillman, the Lithuanian "Comrade" (Title by Pravda, Moscow, USSR, 1922), who heads the Political Action Committee and its manifold affiliates. While Messrs. Pendergast, Dickmann, Donnelly and Hannegan supply the local knowhow, Mr. Hillman's organization supplies the copious gobs of long green needed to oil any good campaign machine, the reams of publicity material, the official promises of pie-in-the-sky, the house-to-house canvas kits, the four-color posters showing Franklin D. Roosevelt as "Our Friend" plus endless CIO organizers and officials to set up city clubs and ward-societies of PAC.

So goes organized Labor's first nose dive into professional politicking. It is a "left-wing" effort conceived, political observers say, to gain power in Labor circles for its leaders, to streamline machine politics.

ACTIVE IN FOUR STATES

W. A. Holloway, regional director for PAC in Kansas City, is in charge of the new organization's activities in four states. . . Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. . . passes along the orders out of Hillman's headquarters in New York, confers with the state committees made up of delegates from every CIO union local. His job, he told a PATHFINDER editor, is a sweetly simple one: (a) get out the vote for Roosevelt and Truman, and (b) get in the money for national headquarters. Every union local in the four states is under direct orders "from Sidney" to set up its own PAC. All locals then are obligated to collect a fee of $1, or more, per member. The local keeps half of the dues; the rest goes to New York.

THE PENDERGAST MACHINE

Joe Welsh, full-time secretary of the CIO Council in Kansas City and acting chief-of-staff of the local PAC, makes no bones about the tie-in with the re-flowering Pendergast machine.

Both Holloway and Welsh like to crow over the trouncing young Jim Pendergast's machine gave the "reform" Democrats at the primaries this August. Pendergast's supporters, working closely with the CIO, not only brushed aside some of the men who had pushed Uncle Tom into the Penitentiary but turned out a vote that almost tripled the showing made by Kansas City Republicans. That showing, "conceded to put the Pendergasts back on the road to state power again, is giving rise to the cry of "Truman and Pendergast" among Republican forces. It is no secret along the Missouri river that Truman was a "creature" of old Tom Pendergast, given a whirl at the U. S. Senate nomination only after he had asked for, and been refused, a $20,000 a year job as County Collector. Truman, faithful to his benefactor, stood by Pendergast during the trial for income tax violations and defended him before the U. S. Senate.

ELECTION OF TRUMAN

Now, critics say, election of Truman as vice-president will put Pendergast fists wrist deep in the Federal "boodle-bag." At the same time, election of the Democratic nominee for governor, Phil Donnelly (backed by both Pendergast and PAC) could mean the appointment of a new election board in Kansas City which would return absolute control of election machinery . . . physical handling of ballot boxes, selection of election officials in each precinct . . . to the new Pendergast-PAC machine.

PAC organized in St. Louis last spring. It has headquarters in a downtown office building handy to CIO local and regional offices. Following the national CIO line, the St. Louis office avows its interest is solely in getting out the vote. It began to command some attention when it threw its weight behind McKittrick in his race for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

DEFEAT OF CLARK

In the election, McKittrick slaughtered Clark in St. Louis. PAC and the remnants of the old Democratic Hannegan-Dickmann machine had bunched together on this job. In spite of his obvious handicaps, Senator Clark ran McKittrick an even race in the rest of the state. St. Louis unhorsed him.

The fact that McKittrick, as Attorney General, sanctioned as "legal" the notorious attempt to steal the governorship from Forrest Donnell after the 1940 election didn't weigh heavily enough to stop his nomination.

In a special registration held before the primaries, largely at the insistence of the PAC, captains and their canvassers added 60,000 names to the voting lists in St. Louis.

UNEASINESS IN CITIES

Today beneath St. Louis and Kansas City buzzings of war industry is an uneasiness. Both cities have known Republican boss rule and Democratic boss rule—to their shame and disgust. Now they are faced with the threat of a new type of city machine with all that it implies: political and even economic control, backed by dues-logged union treasuries; complete capture of a major political party; and the sharpening of antagonism between city and country. It is an ugly thought because bossism in Missouri has always meant vice, "boodle," and crooked public officials.

Regardless of what unbosomed voters in Missouri cities and towns and RFDs want, they cannot whistle away this disturbing presence. As in other big cities around the nation, PAC has moved in and is getting up on the driver's seat beside the old bosses.

Workers Won't "Clear With Sidney"

UNION SHIPBUILDERS DEFY PAC—Although all are members of the C.I.O., these workers at the Todd Eric Basin Drydock in Brooklyn have no use for C.I.O.'s political action committee and resent pressure to put them into the Roosevelt camp. Holding the sign which states their position here are (L. to R.) Stanley Jensen, leader; Joe Romano and Jack Connors. Jensen said that a majority of the 20,000 Todd workers are in favor of Dewey but fear a purge if they defy P.A.C.

See Better Dogs In Artificial Breeding

Substantial improvement in the quality of America's—and the world's—dogs in the post-war period as the result of advances in the science of artificial breeding, is predicted by the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City.

transfer of the life-element of the desired great sire from its airmail tube to the selected female without risk of injury or death to either animal in shipment.

The Center is planning an exchange of the sperm of the most desirable studs in the United States with those of Great Britain, Russia and perhaps other countries.

The war interrupted a number of artificial breeding experiments in progress both here and abroad but these are expected to be resumed with the cessation of hostilities.

RELIGION IN EDUCATION

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 7:7-12; Luke 6:39-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free.—John 8:32.

Education without religion will make America a pagan nation in a generation or two. Even worldly-minded educators are concerned about the neglect of and opposition to Christianity in many branches of our country's educational system.

Christians will want to be informed and to act as they have opportunity to bring Christian influence to bear on the education of children. They will want to give their hearty support to real Christian education.

I. Seek Wisdom from God (Matt. 7:7-11).

We have made great progress in the improvement of educational equipment, in the construction of fine school buildings, and in the provision of trained teachers. There have been earnest efforts to develop the most effective courses of study adapted to the needs of our day.

All this is commendable—except for one thing, and that is really a foundational error. We have given little, if any, attention to the development of character, without which the skills of hand and of head may be actually dangerous. Theodore Roosevelt is said to have observed that "to educate a man's mind without educating his conscience is to make him not a social asset, but a social liability" (Douglass).

The teaching in our schools of the evolutionary theory as though it were fact when it has never been proved has provided a foundation for all manner of denial of God and of the truth of His Word.

What shall we do? Surrender? Not at all. Let us look to God for His wisdom and grace. The promise is that the one who asks, receives, when he asks in faith and for God's glory (cf. James 1:5-8 and 4:3). Prayer is vital in real education.

II. Use Wisdom with Men (Matt. 7:12).

Education has as one of its important goals the ability to get along with our fellow men. As the Lord enables us to grow in wisdom and knowledge, it should show in our treatment of those who look to us for guidance and help.

This so-called Golden Rule is a high standard of conduct which many profess, but which only the grace of God can accomplish in a man's life. To always be positively doing for and to others what we would have them do for us is far more than the negative thing which most people assume it to be. They reverse it and are trying to avoid doing things to others that they would not have done to themselves.

Note again that this is on the positive and the active side. We are to go about doing good, such as we would desire for ourselves.

III. Follow Wisdom in Humility (Luke 6:39-42).

If the teacher is spiritually blind he will lead his equally blind pupil into the ditch. That is exactly what is happening in many schools and colleges. No pupil will rise higher than his teacher (v. 40).

Real education makes a man humble. He is not ready to destroy his brother's eye because it has a speck in it, for he recognizes his own weakness and sin. He needs the grace of God in his own life first; then he is ready to give help to others.

There is something fine about the genuine sweet humility of a man who is really educated. He is not pompous and proud, parading his learning so that the populace may be impressed. He is humble and teachable. Real scholarship calls for genuine faith in God.

IV. Find Wisdom in Godliness (Luke 6:43-45).

Every tree brings forth its own kind of fruit. Christian character is a fruit which grows only on the tree of Christian doctrine. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom (Prov. 9:10). That means that to be truly educated a man must be a Christian.

That which is good and noble and upright can be brought forth only from a mind and heart of which the same things are true (v. 45). An evil man will teach others evil, a good man will teach them that which is good. Hence, the folly of thinking that if a teacher only has a brilliant mind, and is versed in the technical learning of his profession, it makes no difference what his morals are nor how he lives.

That theory has brought ruin to thousands of young lives, and it is high time that all who have to do with educational work demanded godly character as the first requisite of the teacher and made it the leading subject in the curriculum. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

Heating Stoves Developed Long Ago by Ancients

Although the modern American heating stove can trace its direct descent only to the first cast-iron units brought to this country by the early German settlers of Pennsylvania in 1682-83, it goes back to about 400 B. C.

The word stove originally meant "a heated room," or "a room for a warm bath." In fact, the most primitive of all stoves was the entire house—the floor serving as the fireplace and a hole in the roof as the chimney.

That primitive stove developed into the brazier, one of the oldest and simplest methods of heating a room which still is used in southern Europe and the Near East. Originating among the ancient peoples around the Mediterranean, the brazier was an ornamental shallow dish of bronze, supported by three or four short legs. Filled with live coals, it was brought into a room as needed.

The Romans, finding that the colder climate of Italy required something better than the brazier, made real progress in the art of warming their houses. Archeologists have unearthed stoves from the ruins of Pompeii, superior to many coal-burning units in use today, that date back to the fifth century B. C.

Brucella Suis Spreads Fast in Swine Herd

Brucella suis very frequently infects boars and readily spreads to sows at time of breeding. Never use a boar that shows enlargement of one or both sex glands or has chronic lameness. Never add sows to a herd of home-grown gilts and sows unless you know their history. To be safe, any new additions, either boars or sows, should be bought subject to a negative blood test.

Some infected sows will cast their pigs and breed back with a normal litter the next season, but quite a percentage remain carriers, quickly infecting bred gilts or the herd boar.

Have a veterinarian take a blood test of the aborting sows. Then blood test the entire herd and separate any negative sows. If the report on the blood samples is negative, have the veterinarian submit one of the aborted pigs to a laboratory to confirm or exclude any other form of germ life as the cause of trouble.

Be sure the sows have a bit of iodine in the ration or drinking water. Supply plenty of green hay for vitamin A, and practice the best sanitation possible.

Courts Martial

The Constitution specifically is to "make rules" for the government of the land and naval forces and otherwise sanction military and naval courts and their special procedure.

Provision is made by Article of War 104 for disciplinary punishments of minor but summary character administered by commanding officers. Punishments which courts martial may adjudge include, within limitations prescribed for particular offenses by the punitive Articles of War and the Manual for Courts-Martial, (1) death; (2) dismissal of officers; (3) dishonorable discharge of enlisted men; (4) loss or suspension from rank, promotion or command in the case of officers; (5) reduction of enlisted men in grade; (6) confinement at hard labor; (7) hard labor without confinement; (8) forfeiture or detention of pay; (9) fine; (10) reprimand or admonition; and (11) restriction of privileges.

Succeeding Self

The idea of not permitting a man to succeed himself in public office has some funny twists. In some parts of Wisconsin, where they have such a law, the county sheriff and the district attorney run for each other's office every second year. Thus they never legally succeed themselves in office but neither are they ever out of a job. Away back in 1751, a man with some such idea, left a sum of money to be spent in hiring some one each year to give a series of eight lectures at Oxford university. According to the benefactor's will, no lecturer could be chosen twice, the unexpected result being that since the man could speak his mind freely, almost all of them have, thus causing some rousing controversies.

Map Making

Under the new war-science of photogrammetry, features of terrain where men have never set foot are now being photographed from the air, and details shown in the photos are recorded in the big St. Louis plant on transparent plastic sheets sometimes 50 feet square.

In addition to being transparent, the sheets are so tough they can stand up to all the wear and tear which accompanies the actual map-making, when topographical details are transferred from the sheets to charts which navigators and pilots use.

Painting Doors

The parts of a door, says "Practical Builder," should be painted in this order: 1. panels; 2. center rails; 3. top and bottom rails; 4. vertical stiles; 5. edges. It is emphasized that the panels always should be coated in first, then the horizontal members, to eliminate streaks, runs and overlapping in the finished job. Be sure to paint the top and bottom edges of doors to seal out moisture.

'Inoculated' Legumes Capture More Nitrogen

Bacteria Living in Soil Often Impotent

Greatest need of farmers in meeting their wartime crop production goals is nitrogen—and their ablest allies in meeting this need are the legume bacteria, capable of taking nitrogen from the air. Inoculation of alfalfa, clovers, soybeans, peas and beans with selected strains of nitrogen-fixing bacteria often enables their legumes to harvest from one to two hundred pounds of nitrogen per acre.

Legume bacteria vary in their ability to aid legumes in taking nitrogen from the air. According to a report by Wayne Umbreit in Wisconsin's latest edition of "What's New in Farm Science"—"on the average, only about one-fourth of the root-nodule bacteria found in the soil are good nitrogen-fixers, one-half are fair and the remaining one-fourth poor. This means that if farmers depend on bacteria in the soil to inoculate their legume seed, under most conditions they are likely to get only from one-fourth to one-half as much nitrogen as they might with good, fresh cultures."

The roots of this red clover plant are full of nodules, showing excellent bacterial action. The clover seed was inoculated before planting.

Since there is no way of determining before seeding whether the soil contains sufficient numbers of the right kind of bacteria—and the average cost of inoculation is no more than ten cents an acre—farmers can well afford to invest in this low-cost form of crop insurance. Either the humus or agar type of inoculant gives satisfactory results. Umbreit points out that root-nodules bacteria are not "at home" in the soil—they are "refugees" there during the periods between legume crops. They may find survival most difficult in acid soils, which makes inoculation almost essential under those conditions. Even then the soil should be limed to assure successful stands of legumes.

Coating of Soft Grease Prevents Rust Damage

"Authorities agree that weather often takes more out of farm machinery than use, and rust has a way of creeping in even under good storage conditions," says W. C. Krueger of Rutgers university.

Tests have shown that crank case and transmission oil will prevent rusting from 7 to 30 days outdoors, Krueger reports. Axle grease and pressure gun grease gave protection from 60 to 90 days; five samples of rust preventive compounds for 276 days and nine samples for 365 days or more.

On the basis of these tests, the best type of rust preventive is the soft grease type which may be brushed on metal surfaces to give protection for 10 months to a year.

High-Bred Eggs Sell For a Dollar a Piece

Joseph H. Jones, a newspaper man, started a chicken farm near Springfield, Ill., three years ago, and now he is getting $1 apiece—not a dozen—for his eggs. They are for breeding stock.

He paid $60 for a rooster and two hens from Oregon. The rooster was the grandson of Orange Blossom, a hen which laid over 1,000 eggs during her career, and one of the hens was granddaughter of a hen that laid 320 eggs in one year.

Feed Cows on Record

"In one herd of 72 milking cows, there was a saving of more than four tons of feed a month—or 117 pounds of grain a month per cow—when the entire herd was fed grain according to milk production," Dr. George Taylor, Rutgers U. animal husbandry expert, reports. The total pounds of milk produced per month remained about the same and the total fat production was increased slightly, compared with previous months.

New Deal Has Destroyed Democratic Party, Gov. John Bricker Declares

Governor John W. Bricker, Republican vice-presidential nominee, delivered vigorous indictment of the New Deal Administration as he carried his speech-a-day campaign tour west of the Mississippi.

Speaking in St. Louis, on October 4th, over a nationwide network, Governor Bricker accused the New Deal of dividing the people of the nation in order to hold its power.

"It has set class against class," he said. "It has played minority groups for their political support. It has attacked not only the actions, but the motives of all who dared to oppose it. Never before have we had the bitterness, engendered by selfish political interests, that we have experienced in this administration."

Governor Bricker condemned the New Deal for "its vicious and persistent attacks upon business," and for using its extraordinary wartime power "to suppress the rights of the American People and to subordinate them to constant bureaucratic domination."

"I do not condemn the Administration for its legitimate efforts on behalf of the workers of this country," Governor Bricker continued. "But I do condemn the New Deal for its favoritism among labor groups, for playing one against another for political purposes, for bad administration of labor laws and for political adjudication of disputes between labor and management. Such tactics have resulted in strife and strikes, they have actually lessened war production."

Charging that the New Deal "is leading this nation away from American principles of government," Governor Bricker said that the Roosevelt Administration had destroyed the traditional Democratic party.

"Instead the reins of power have been turned over to such White House agents as Hopkins, Frankfurter, Rosenman, Pepper, Ickes, Kelly, Hague and the temporarily inactive Pendergast," he said. "They know little of the real life of America and they care less. They want power and jobs. Patronage is their meat and drink. Power is their passion. The American people are their victims."

"But there is now a more dangerous influence than these. As the New Deal took over the Democratic party—so now the Communists and the radicals have taken over the New Deal. The New Deal Convention in Chicago raised to the pedestal of power a man whose ideas of government are alien to the Constitution and free representative government. His name is Sidney Hillman."

"The millions of dollars collected by Hillman and his PAC, often from unwilling and intimidated hard working people of America, were too much for the New Deal leaders to pass by. They saw the opportunity to evade the Hatch Act—to defy the corrupt practices act—indeed to buy this election. A supine and political-minded attorney general helped pave the way by a purely political opinion."

Governor Bricker added that the Communists under Earl Browder had joined forces with Hillman in control of the New Deal Party.

"They are seeking to tie the noose of Communism not only around the New Deal but around the whole American people," he concluded.

Governor Bricker also scored the New Deal in speeches at Bowling Green, Kentucky; Nashville, Tenn.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Centralia, Ill.; Ottumwa, Iowa; a Tri-City Meeting (Rock Island, Ill. and Davenport, Iowa); and Milwaukee.

A fricassee of beef with dumplings is a delicious way of making full use of the good supply of utility beef available this fall. Cut the meat into small cubes, cover with flour, season, brown in fat with an onion, cover with water and allow to cook slowly. When meat is tender, remove it, make gravy by adding a little flour and cold water, then drop dumplings in the broth.

Fruit butter spreads will help to stretch the supply of dairy butter during the winter months. "Hurricane" apples make delicious apple butter for morning toast.
