Robert St. John, NBC commentator, had an early introduction to adventure — as early as sixteen, to be exact, when he went to France during the first World War. And ever since ing greetings will be extended to the that day — even when he was living in the bucolic quiet of New Hamp-shire, dividing his hours between writing and raising chickens - he's had a nose for news and a sympa-thetic vibration for trouble. In the summer of 1939, having a hunch that war was imminent, he left his farm and went abroad as foreign correspondent for Associated Press. He arrived in Paris on that fateful September 1st when Poland was in-

Between that day and September 1941, when he returned from London for a much-needed rest, St. John saw the Polish campaign, the partition of Rumania, the abdication of Carol, the two Iron Guard Revolutions, the entrance of Nazi troops into Bucharest and Bulgaria, the fall of Yugoslavia, the bombing of Belgrade, the fall of Greece and Crete, the "blitz" of

In England, where he was NBC's London commentator, he was also many other things — following a schedule that would have exhausted schedule that would have exhausted a less determined, less selfish man. But so great is his admiration for "the little people of Britain" (a descriptive phrase he is credited with inventing) that he had to work side by side with them during those crucial, cataclysmic months when night was a horror of fire and screaming hombs, and day was a tragic security.

in a munitions plant and watched with growing admiration, the uncon-querable spirit of "the little people." Mr. St. John's preparation for contact with war and for graphic reporting of history-making events was of the best: Before joining the Associated Press in New York in 1931 as city editor, he had been with the Hartford Courant, Chicago Daily News, Philadelphia Record and the Putlend (Vt.) delphia Record and the Rutland (Vt.) News, and since he landed in Paris in 1939 his fame has mounted with

With great Allied armies moving in from many directions, with cities and the remaining war facilities being blasted relentlessly from the air, Germany is learning at last what total war is

The Allied high command repeatedly has stated its position. Nothing short of unconditional surrender will initiate peace negotiations. No Allied capital is interested in proposals which come from an unofficial source. There are accounts to be settled with Nazi war criminals before the conflict can be considered ended.

If one hearkens to the social engineers, however, he will be convinced that no one ever did any planning before they made it a fetish; being now discovered, the procedure will meet all problems. Their literature lays very little emphasis upon the quality of planning and heavily over-emphasize quantity. Yet human experience shows that even in engineering there are good plans and bad. Many elaborately planned structures have proved wasteful, ineff. cient, inconvenient and undesirable.

In this recent social planning frenzy, moreover the defficiency of plans adopted earlier in our history We are glad to report that all failed is ignored. The planners wholly ovto pass, though with regard to one erlooked, for example, the fact that New York City was laid out with great care by men who were sure, on people and friends of temperance good contemporary evidence, that the rivers would be the main arteries of traffic. NATIONAL FAMILY WEEK

The American home may become the nation's greatest war casualty, it was warned in a statement released today by the Rev. Harry C. Munro, director of adult work of the Inucational and secretary of an interfaith committee planning the united observance of National Family Week May 6 to 13, throughout rural and urban communities of the United States and Canada.

Declaring that half the war time marriages are threatening to end in divorce and that juvenile delinquency due to parental neglect has reached an all-time high, the statement asserts that "war inflicts its first wound in the heart of the family."

"Yet with adequate spiritual foundations the family can take it," the committee's statement avers. "Family life must be conserved and sustained especially in war time, for within its keeping are all those values for the sake of which alone can the suffering of war be endured and

Calling attention to the resources for family living to be found in the Bible, each faith will urge its families during National Family Week to "follow more faithfully the teachings and practices through which these 'pages of power' may sustain and guide family life," it was an-

She said James, who worked on the 40-acre family farm while going to high school, was "the baby of the family," and when his father died in 1932 "we babied him more. "I guess it was that babying that made him so determined to make

Hot Box While You Wait MOSCOW, USSR. - Locomotive Engineer D. A. Dolgikh of Tula was acclaimed throughout the Russian press recently as a sort of Soviet Casey Jones. The story, which promises to turn into a saga of the Soviet railroads, began at Tula, a town just down the line from Moscow.

Dolgikh's engine was pulling a lot of important cars and was scheduled for a quick run into the Donbas area. Just before departure time, however, engine trouble developed. The engineer quickly discovered a broken part in the firebox.

The fireman observed that to fix it meant the entire firebox would have to be cleaned, a process which would take hours.

Dolgikh, with an eye on his watch and the schedule, shook his head and said there was not time.

The engineer picked up shovels of coal dust and covered the fire. He then drenched himself with ice cold water and hopped into the firebox, press accounts of the incident related. He ripped out the broken part, did a quick repair job and hopped

"Give her the steam and let her roll," he said, apparently none the worse for his experience.

The train got to its destination and Dolgikh received a special award.

A thorough cleaning at least every week with vacuum cleaner or broom is recommended for rugs or carpets in steady use. Long gentle strokes do as good a job as short dragging jabs with the broom-and they stir up less dust and are easier on the rug. Easy, slow strokes give the vacuum time to do its best work, too. Scatter rugs may be cleaned like large ones. If they are swept, they may be placed flat on a big rug, or outdoors on clean, dry grass. Avoid shaking and beating. Shaking pulls out hems and breaks yarns. Beating cracks yarns and loosens

Aids Cotton Picking

One of the handicaps from which the mechanical cotton picker suffered was the inclusion of shattered dry leaves in its gathered crop, making the cotton "dirty." A way to overcome this handicap has been discovered. It calls for treating the plants with a spray of calcium cyanamide, which causes the leaves to fall from the plant. This also results in a quicker development of the bolls on the lower part of the

DIG FOR IT - Buy More WAR BONOS!

FOR our men in France and on Pacific islands, it's dig or die. It's dig and dig deep, now, for all of us if our sons and our neighbors' sons are to stand forth and win at this critical hour. Truly, they're all we have—and we're all they have.

Their simple willingness to endure hardships for our sake demands great sacrifice in return. The least we can do is to back them in their faith in us with every cent that can be spared beyond what is needed to keep body and soul together. The more you invest now the sooner they'll return to take up their lives where they left off. So, we say—shorten it with War Bonds! Keep faith with the men on the fighting fronts!

And remember—your son and your neighbors' sons are fighting for a way of life that must be preserved for them here on the home front. Your investments in War Bonds will pay for the new farm machinery you and the boy will need when peace comes. He'll be counting on your for this, just as he's counting on your support now. Don't let him down.

For America's Future, for your Future, for your children's Future

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

- 1. The tempo of this war is hitting its highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. MORE MONEY IS NEEDED . . .
- 2. In proportion to WHO HAS THE MOST MONEY, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must correct this situation.
- 3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial reserve he must have to survive the ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.
- 4. Money will be needed urgently at a future date to replace and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it.
- 5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, return a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy . . . from bank, post office, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association.

"FORD V-8 TANK ENGINE" THE ANSWER TO THE GERMAN TIGER TANK

An improved model of the Ford described by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson as "the answer to the German Tiger tank."

The new model Ford engine is even more compact than its predecessors, nearly 20,000 of which have been built for the armed forces. The 8-cylinder liquid-cooled engine develops 500 horse power. Outstanding features of the Ford tank engine—designated as standard equipment on the General Sherman tank by Army Ordnance—is its de-pendability, ease of maintenance and ruggedness under all kinds of conditions. They have performed with distinction on all fighting fronts.

Undersecretary Patterson terms the General Pershing as "the most powerful tank ever built." It weighs 43 tons and mounts a 90-mm. cannon.

Yanks Use Cellar; Enemy Is Upstairs

American Soldiers Hide Out While Foe Rakes House.

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS IN BELGIUM. - Eleven American soldiers, caught in a town when German armor swept through it, hid for 10 hours in the cellar of a house occupied by enemy troops.

The men were in the house and were sitting down to breakfast when the Germans broke into town. As machine gun fire began spraying the house they dived into the cellar. Black uniformed crews of two German tanks broke in, searched hastily and then sat down and ate the Americans' breakfast. "There was no way out so we just sat tight in the cellar," said Tech.

Sgt. Jack McClure of Sherman, Texas. "We were divebombed by our own planes and raked by our own artillery but it was music to our ears.' During the day, as many as 18

Germans wandered about upstairs, ate American rations and smoked the Americans' cigarets.

One German raked the stairs and cellar door with a pistol. Another looked in the basement window and passing tanks peppered the building. When a German officer and an enemy enlisted man walked into the cellar "Tuffy," the Americans' pet dog, kept quiet, and the crouching soldiers were not seen in the dark. Shortly thereafter the pint-sized pup began to bark playfully. Afraid to risk their lives by repeatedly trying to keep him quiet, one soldier reached out in the dark and strangled "Tuffy."

Splitting into two groups, the Yanks made a break for their own lines after dark. As they left they said the Nazis started to burn down the town and blow up captured ammunition. The men hiked miles through the mud, slush and water. Finally, they saw a patrol ahead

Charges Hail of Machine Gun Fire To Stop Germans

Private Gives Life So That His Company May Keep Up Its Advance.

WASHINGTON. - Award of the medal of honor, posthumously, to Pfc. Patrick J. Kessler, youthful infantryman and former Ohio dairy worker, who was ready to die that his company might fight on, was announced by the war department.

Near disaster faced his company, Company K, of the battle-tested 30th infantry regiment, at the time when the fighting in Italy was centered at Ponte Rotto just after the initial breakthrough from the Anzio beachhead. In the furious trend of battle the company had progressed more than 800 yards in front of its division, the 3rd infantry division, and enemy machine gunners and riflemen to the flanks and rear, supported by concentrated mortar and artillery fire, were doing their utmost to destroy the partly isolated

It was a bitter, rising anger that drove the 23-year-old infantryman to his deeds of valor. For before and while he charged and eliminated the various enemy positions he saw 21 of his comrades killed and 54 wounded by close-range fire. When an enemy machine gun nest suddenly opened fire on his company, five men were killed. Pvt. Alan C. Smith, whose home is 34 Chandler street, Highland Park, Mich., recounts the action that followed:

"While three of us crouched there in a ditch, wondering how we could get that machine gun, I saw a man rise out of a hole 50 yards to our rear. It was Private First Class Kessler and as the machine gun opened up on him he ran forward.

He hit the dirt in our ditch safely. "He told us he was going to get that machine gun and suggested we distract the gunners with fire. He climbed over the edge while we fired. Their first burst of fire struck the earth beside him, coming so close he was partially covered with a cloud of dust.

"I have never seen a machine gun pour out so much lead as that one did. Tracer bullets barely missed him as he ran. Several times I saw him side-step like a football player to throw off the gunner's aim. For 50 yards he charged ahead. When he reached a place two or three yards from the enemy emplacement he shot and killed both the gunner and the assistant gunner with his rifle, and then captured another with his bare hands.

Private Kessler's heroic exploits are recorded in the following citation accompanying the award:

"For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at risk of life, above and beyond the call of duty on May 23, 1944, near Ponte Rotto, Italy. Private First Class Kessler, acting without orders, raced 50 yards through a hail of machine gun fire, which had killed five of his comrades and halted the advance of his company, in order to form an assault group to destroy the machine gun. Ordering three men to act as a base of fire, he left the cover of a ditch and snaked his way to a point within 50 yards of the enemy machine gun before he was discovered, whereupon he plunged headlong into the furious chain of automatic fire. "Reaching a spot within six feet of the emplacement he stood over it and killed both the gunner and his assistant, jumped into the gun position, overpowered and captured a third German after a short struggle. The remaining member of the crew escaped; but Private First Class Kessler wounded him as he ran. While taking his prisoner to the rear, this soldier saw two of his comrades killed as they assaulted an enemy strong point.

"Turning his prisoner over to another man Private First Class Kessler crawled 35 yards to the side of one of the casualties, relieved him of his bar and ammunition and continued on towards the strong point, 125 yards distant. Although two machine guns concentrated their fire directly on him and shells exploded within 10 yards, bowling him over, Private First Class Kessler crawled 75 yards, passing through an anti-personnel mine field to a point within 50 yards of the enemy and engaged the machine guns in a duel. When an artillery shell burst within a few feet of him, he left the cover of a ditch and advanced upon the position in a slow walk, firing his BAR from the hip. Although the enemy poured heavy machine gun and small arms fire at him, Private First Class Kessler succeeded in reaching the edge of their position, killed the gunners and captured 13 Germans.

"Then, despite continuous shelling, he started to the rear. After going 25 yards, Private First Class Kessler was fired upon by two snipers only 100 yards away. Several of his prisoners took advantage of this opportunity and attempted to escape; however, Private First Class Kessler hit the ground, fired on either flank of his prisoners, forcing them to cover, and then engaged the two snipers in a fire fight, and captured them. With this last threat removed, company K continued its advance, capturing its objective without further opposition. Private First Class Kessler was killed in a subsequent action."

Falling Iron

To limit the chances for an iron to fall, always set it on a stand or on its own heel resting on a firm, level place. Do not stretch the cord across a space where a hasty foot may trip on it and pull the iron to the floor.

Whether your iron is new or old, it deserves the best in care, cleaning and operation. When the iron is not in use, it should be kept in a dry place, and under no circumstances should it be put into water.

Ship Refuses to Give Up Despite Heavy Bomb Blast

Green Men Sail New Vessel In Strange Waters; Luck, Skill Help.

NEW YORK. — A ship that refused to die, despite a terrific buzz bomb blast that wrecked her superstructure and caved in her starboard side, has come back home. She is the LST 384, the second landing ship tank to be commis-

Anzio, and Normandy. LST 384 came home the hard way. The navy rescue tug ATR 13 towed her from Milford Haven, Wales, to New York in a back-breaking voyage that fluctuated from 3 to 7 knots in speed and consumed 25 days in an Atlantic ocean that still has Ger-sioned by the navy and a veteran of the invasions of Sicily, Salerno, man U-boats lurking in it. The story of LST 384 is one of green men sailing new ships in strange waters, of luck mixed with rapidly acquired skill and of the peculiar effect of blast from buzz bombs.

The 384, launched at Newport News in 1942, went to the Mediterranean and her first battle was off Scoglitti, Sicily. Salerno and Anzio followed.

Then, after a spell of hauling men and cargo around the Mediterranean, she was assigned to work in Normandy on one of the three beaches used by British forces. She didn't get ashore until D plus 10 and then only becaue her skipper tired of waiting in the jam off the beach. When he started in, other ships followed and their cargoes were unloaded without official order.

No. 384 crossed the channel 13 more times despite a layup for repairs to a damaged shaft. Then she was ordered to Deptford in the Thames estuary near London and was there for a "rest."

On July 8 the officers and men on watch heard the sound of an approaching buzz bomb. Then they saw the flaming monster and heard its stuttering motor shut off.

The entire superstructure toppled in the blast. Steel girders bent and twisted as quickly as a woman can twist a hairpin. A huge hole was blown in the starboard side of the hull and the blast or concussion stove in the side of the LST 312. anchored nearby, and killed 9 men three more than were killed on

The luckiest man in the crew was Lieut. (j.g.) Floyd L. Maxham, 30, of Temple City, Calif., then the communications officer and now executive officer. Maxham formerly played full back for St. Mary's (Calif.) and coached football at Porterville (Calif.) high school. That night was the only night he ever was absent from the ship. He returned to find his room completely wrecked.

The sorely hurt 384 stayed in the Thames until August 2 when she was moved to Chatham, where the British removed the rest of her superstructure and shored up sagging bulkheads. She then was towed to Milford Haven in Wales and on August 29 in company with two other LSTs and a tanker, all under tow, she began the long, hard trek homeward.

Country's Armed Forces

Increase to 11,900,000 WASHINGTON. — This country's armed forces have increased to 11,-900,000 since 1940. Of that number 8,100,000 are in the army; the rest in the navy, marines and coast guard. The figures, compiled as of November 1, were presented recently to a senate committee and given in the report of James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director. Mr. Byrnes cited them in emphasizing "the remarkable job done in mobilization" since 1940. At that time the military strength was 700,-

The 11,900,000 was a net estimate after deducting 1,500,000 for those discharged or killed.

Marred Monuments

The most pathetic piece of statuary I ever saw was a 92-foot image of Rameses II, flat in a jungle, shy an arm and a leg and all but lost. It weighs countless tons. Uprighting it baffled Egyptian engineers for centuries. I am no art critic but I was impressed most of all by the skill and devoted craftsmanship still showing on the weathered stone. Its helplessness was depressing.

Monuments resemble reputations. They can be damaged beyond repair by commonplace things, soon forgotten. Storms too trivial to have a name can, in a few short hours, undermine huge foundations and leave stalwart landmarks buried in dirt. There are only two factors involved, whether you view it literally or figuratively: How sturdy is the structure? How fierce is the storm? Noble Intentions

Looking with a sort of pity at the supine figure, a relic of Moses' day, my thoughts raced back to a welllearned chapter of American history. As a youth I almost wept over Andrew Johnson, a truly great man. Before he was many years dead. the things he advocated were proved, in the light of actual events, to be sound and right. But Tennessee school children were forgetting his

By birth a Southerner and by allegiance a Democrat, Johnson was an independent thinker who wanted the United States to stay all in one piece. He wanted to carry out most of the policies that Abraham Lincoln had established, but he couldn't.
Maybe Lincoln could have succeeded with the 1856 postwar problem; maybe nobody could. History shows only this: A great man's reputation scaled down; all but lost. People the Same

In my high school years I had imagined that President Johnson's misfortune was primitive, too crude for my enlightened time-but not so. In a few years it became our unhappy lot to watch Woodrow Wilson, one of the grandest characters America ever produced, racked on the same bed of torture; postwar prejudices, a divided party, a Congress he could not manage, and some personal traits wide open to ridicule.

President Johnson had amazing foresight and a will that would not be walked on. We know that now. He opposed the people's representatives and his place in history was carved for an unsympathetic crank. President Wilson had vision unclouded by prejudice, vision that overreached his century. But Wilson's contemporaries called him a dreamer and painted out a name that should have brightened the pages of history.

Might Have Been

President Wilson's 1920 postwar plans for revamping Europe (called so visionary), if they might have been backed by other men of his day and political station, could have made World War II unnecessary. More than a trillion of dollars and millions of lives might have been But avaricious rulers spared. couldn't see the vision any better in Wilson's day than in Johnson's day,

Through lenses fashioned from the past, we can watch history repeating itself with alarming fidelity. Storms lower again over postwar problems. National figures with international ambitions are liable to forget their responsibility to the representatives of the people. We face another unpredictable struggle, and we may as well be ready to watch some high images fall, never to rise from the silt of oblivion.

CATAMOUNT TAVERN

The Second Continental Congress met at Philadelphia on May 10, 1775. That day Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain boys demanded the sur-render of Fort Ticonderoga, N. Y. They were not going to let any over-seas dictators tax or rule them, and neither are Americans today. That is one reason why we buy War Bonds. The preparations for that drive against the Lake Champlain stronghold were made secretly at a night meeting at little old Catamount Tavern at Bennington, Vt. The cata-mount monument shown above now stands on the site mount mondainest stands on the site.

A Double Life

By ELEANOR WALSH McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

WHEN Corinna Hastings, libra-rian of Postville, looked up from the desk one morning and saw Mrs. Angela Murdock sailing toward her angrily, she was reasonably certain something was amiss. She mustered a feeble smile and said an unconvincing "Good Morning."

"For me, Miss Hastings," snapped Mrs. Murdock, "this has been a very unpleasant morning." She tapped her finger on the desk. "I," she said, "have just read 'The Flaming Soul."

"Oh!" Into that syllable Corinna tried to put good cheer, friendship, everything that was amiable. But Mrs. Murdock's expression did not

"And what I should be interested to hear," the lady went on, "is just why that particular book was put in this library. This is," she declaimed, "an institution she declaimed, "an which endeavors to provide suitable reading matter for the young. I can only regard 'The Flaming Soul' as a work that will definitely be harm-

"I am terribly sorry," Corinna apologized. "I'm afraid I haven't read the book." This was perfectly true. She had only glanced with some interest at the description of its contents on the paper jacket. heard from several people that it was quite good," she offered weakly. "And on the strength of that I ordered it."

"You're quite right, Miss Hastings." There was no mistaking the menace in Mrs. Murdock's tone. "It was brought to my attention by Miss Keller, and I believe Mrs. Spellman mentioned it to her. Both were shocked. Miss Keller brought it to me this morning and I considered it my duty to read the whole thing. I wanted to see what was being placed in the hands of our young

"I don't know what to say," said Corinna.

"I've called a meeting of the Library Board at my house this evening at eight. I suggest you attend. Meanwhile, I'll leave this copy here, and you can make yourself familiar with its contents. You'll be asked for an explanation of your conduct."

Corinna groaned when the lady left. It was bad enough to face any member of the board singly, but together-horrors! For a few minutes she thought of cutting loose, resigning her position, going to New York. But this incident hardly seemed to warrant any such action. Not yet, anyway. And her family would hate to see her go. There was another reason for staying, too, and his name was Jack. No, there was nothing to do but face the music and hope it wouldn't be too unpleasant. She smiled. She could picture the three women reading with gasps of pleasurable horror, and then preventing others from enjoying the same privilege. The book itself she placed behind the desk until she learned what its fate was to be

The board meeting was as she had expected, only worse. Mrs. Murdock still acted like a volcano undecided whether to erupt or hold its fire. Mrs. Spellman maintained a dignified silence, preferring to signify disapproval by a series of indignant snorts. Miss Keller flushed when the title was mentioned and let it be understood that she had martyred herself by reading it. "It was an experience," she said, "that I should have preferred to miss."

"Certainly," Mrs. Murdock said. "I, for one, felt I wanted to fumigate my mind after I had finished Corinna waited till she was spoken to.

"The point is," Mrs. Spellman said finally, "what are we going to do with the volume? It was your duty, Miss Hastings, to know something of it before sending an order." Corinna spoke so contritely, thanking the ladies for discovering the nature of the book before it had a chance to harm young readers, that the three women were softened. 'But of course it must be removed from the library at once," Mrs. Murdock said more pleasantly. "I think we must insist upon that." The others murmured, "Of course." And Corinna agreed. "That brings up another ques-tion," said Miss Keller. "It was bought with public funds allowed for the library. Have we the right to confiscate it without paying? I think not. I am willing to give what it cost simply to keep it off the shelves." She told Corinna that she would call for it in the morning, and pay at that time. "I think we need say no more," Mrs. Murdock told Corinna. This suited Corinna. She thanked them and left.

In her room, after the rest of the family had retired, she opened a drawer and pulled a letter from its hiding place. With a smile she reread it.

"Dear Miss Hastings:" (it began) "You will be pleased to know that it seems as if your novel, 'The Flaming Soul,' will sell like a house afire. Already we are justified in another printing. What name do you wish us to use on your first check? We will issue it with a financial statement as soon as possible, and meanwhile we trust you are hard at work on your next-" Corinna smiled more brightly.

New Suit Figures in Boy's Death Tragedy

NEW YORK, N. Y. - Joseph Chindemi, 13, one of nine brothers and sisters, proudly showed to friends a new suit.

He planned to wear it for the first time on a movie date. However, his parents forbade him. Several hours later, Joseph's body was found hanging by a belt from a bathroom water pipe.

Merchant Leaps to Death: Fears Ruin

Worker's Spending Spree Is Given as Cause.

NEW YORK. - Oscar Gropper, 57, Fifth avenue leather goods merchant, leaped to his death recently. He left a note which said the "Lady Robin Hood" bookkeeper who gave away $40,000 of his money had cant truculently. "I lost it here, ruined him financially.

The police found the pajama-clad body of the president of Groppers' Inc., on the sidewalk nine stories below his three-room suite in the Hotel Blackstone.

Gropper's wife, Estelle, and his daughter, June, were asleep in the apartment when Gropper plunged. Mrs. Madline Dunnigan, 22-yearold wife of a navy yard worker, confessed December 8 financing her personal philanthropies with Gropper's money while a $40-a-week bookkeeper.

It was disclosed that she had kept some $2,000 of nearly $40,000 for herself and spent the rest in raises to other employees and gifts of cash and luggage to 50 soldiers overseas, some of whom she didn't know.

She was alleged to have raised an errand boy from $15 to $25 a week and decided that a $3-a-day handy man should get $15. She was providing a weekly pension to a woman who was down on her luck and had never been employed by the firm.

The condition of her accounts, the police said, indicated that she had diverted approximately $100 a day since the first part of 1944. She is awaiting trial on a theft charge.

Ol' 99 Goes Down Line; G.I. Casey at Throttle

PARIS. - While boxcar loads of ammunition exploded around him, Corp. Ralph L. Cooper of Rutland, Ohio, leaped into a locomotive for the first time in his life and hauled 100 cars out of a blazing railway yard, Stars and Stripes reported.

Cooper was guarding a supply depot in northern France, when shell fragments set off by a fire began falling near his post. He raced to the railway yards, a half mile distant, got a French civilian to help fire the engine, and began experimenting with the throttle.

He found he could handle it, so from midnight to 6 a.m. he hauled undamaged cars out of the fire, even though occasional fragments pierced the cab.

"My dad used to run a locomotive, so I figured I could, too," he said.

When fire swept the city of New Orleans in 1788, Don Andrea Almonaster, a truly great philanthropist, saw to it that some of the city's finest buildings arose from the ashes of their historic predecessors—the Cabildo, the Presbytere and the St. Louis Cathedral. Liberty creates and encourages such men. It's the spirit that inspires Americans to buy War Bonds to equip their service men who fight all enemies of individual freedom. America will always have Almonasters to give their fellowmen a lift in dark hours if enough War Bonds are purchased and held to keep those service men in munitions.

Work All Night to Hack

Out Body in Train Wreck TRENTON, MICH. - Working all night in ankle-deep snow and nearzero temperature, rescue crews recently removed the body of Ray Harmon, 36, of Toledo, Ohio, from the wreckage of a Toledo-Detroit New York Central passenger train. The train was derailed when it. struck an abandoned automobile.

Harmon was the locomotive fireman. His engineer, O. F. Hayward, 58, Toledo, was killed when the seven-car train plowed into an automobile belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Lee Ridenour of Dundee.

Crews, using torches and picks, worked inch-by-inch through the twisted steel of the overturned locomotive and tender in hopes they could reach Harmon alive.

The crewmen were hurtled from the locomotive that tore up a blocklong section of track before coming to an abrupt halt upside down in a ditch. The coaches careened wildly in zigzag fashon across the main line. Passengers were jolted severely but otherwise uninjured.

THE BOOK AND THE FAITH

LESSON TEXT-Psalm 145:10-17. GOLDEN TEXT—The word of the Lord ndureth forever.—I Peter 1:25.

Christians are the people of one book-the Bible. They read and use other books, but the book is God's Word, and everything else must be in accord with its teaching.

In this blessed Book they find the only revelation of God's saving grace. Other attributes of God may be found in the book of nature. There we find that God is powerful, orderly, wise, etc., but nowhere in nature is it written that God can save a man from his sin. We find that only in the Bible, God's written Word as it reveals Jesus Christ the Saviour who is the Living Word.

I. The Eternal Glory of God's Kingdom (vv. 10-13).

The kingdom of God refers to His reign over all things and beings, but with special reference to those who are willingly subject to Him and eager to live for His glory.

Everything in God's creation is to be lifted up in praise of that kingdom. All His works shall praise Him. They reveal Him in part, but even that limited revelation is glorious. The man who cannot see God in nature is indeed a dull clod. The heavens declare His glory and the earth shows forth His handiwork (Ps. 19:1).

Greater and more precious in God's sight is the praise of His saints. Dumb adoration is acceptable only from a dumb creation. We, His saints, are to speak His praise, to "bless" Him (v. 10). We are to spread abroad among all men (v. 12) the news of God's greatness and

"His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom," and thus it at once takes its place as so superior to what men call kingdoms as hardly to be mentioned in the same breath. There is no limit to God's kingdom either in its extent or its duration.

How stupid then that some, yes many, foolish men and women set themselves up in rebellion against God. That is the height of all folly and leads only to disaster. How wise are those who yield their lives to His control that their little span of life may find rich meaning in the One who endures forever.

II. The Abundant Provision of God's Mercy (vv. 14-16).

We are all completely dependent on the mercies of God for everything that we need for life-physical, mental, and spiritual.

Consider the food for the body. God opens His bountiful hand and every living creature is provided with the food necessary for its sustenance. How this is accomplished marvel to us, but God is able to do it.

Centuries ago men were fearful that the earth could not produce enough food to keep the increasing population of mankind alive, but God sees to that even when He has to do it in spite of man's waste and destruction.

However, life is not just material. There must be a satisfying of man's spiritual nature. He needs someone to save him from his own sinful weakness, to deliver him from his sorrow and affliction. Who can do this but God? And He does it (see

How does He do it? Through the ministry of His Holy Word. Therein man finds salvation and satisfaction. The Bible is the light that shines upon his way. It is his comfort in sorrow and his strength in temptation. It exhorts and encourages, convicts and cures.

How endless and how overflowing is the mercy of our God. Let us "wait upon" Him, knowing that He is not only mindful of our need, but eager to do for us more than we can ask or think.

III. The Saving Power of God's

Grace (vv. 17-19). The Lord, who "is nigh unto all them that call upon him" (v. 18), is able to save because He is "righteous in all his ways and holy in all his works" (v. 17). Only a just and holy God can deal with sin, and yet only a merciful God would provide redemption; but in our God mercy and truth meet (Ps. 115: 1; Ps. 103). He is both "just and the justifier of him that believeth in Jesus" (Rom. 3:26).

He it is who is near to all that "call upon him in truth" (v. 18), and surely it is such a calling on the Lord which is in mind in Romans 10:13, where we read that "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved."

Notice that God's nearness, His salvation, and His fulfillment of the desires of man are for those who call on Him and who "fear Him" (v. 19). This is not a matter of magical use of a name, or an out-ward profession of faith. It must come from the heart, and when it does, God responds.

So we find God's word to be the source of our instruction concerning those things which can make us wise unto salvation (II Tim. 3:15). It is the Book of our faith!

-Your 1945 Garden-

Pest and Disease Control Require Daily Supervision

W HO'S going to eat your garden, you or the bugs? Of course, the answer is obvious, but you must do something about it if you are to do the eating.

Having in mind the importance of food production in Victory gardens as essential in the war effort, Mr. Victory Gardener must regard insect pests and plant diseases in the same category as the Nazis and the Japs - unconditional surrender must be the terms.

But regardless of the care and skill shown in selecting the garden site, in the cultivation and fertilization of the soil and in the selection and planting, all such efforts-involving the use of critical and scarce supplies of seeds, fertilizers and tools - may be nullified, or partly so, by the depredations of insects and diseases unless steps are taken to control

Information regarding the purchase of insecticides and fungicide materials may be obtained through experienced local gardeners, local dealers in agricultural supplies, local seedsmen, general or drug stores or through the county agents, the state department of agriculture extension service, or your local state agricultural college. Or you may write the United States department of agriculture.

Care in Applying Dust Essential

Particular care should be taken in applying poisonous insecticides and fungicides in excessive quantities. Also care should be taken that all poison spray or dust is thoroughly and carefully removed from the foliage of any vegetable before it is prepared for food.

Every gardener should have available, even before he starts his planting, a duster or sprayer for applying insecticides and fungicides. For small gardens, a duster is probably preferable because use of dust is easier than the preparation and handling of Important, is to be ready for the bugs when they arrive. Of course, we cannot set down here the proper preventive or cure for all disease and insect pests. But start fighting at the first sign of damage to the

especially after fruit has begun to form, for Mexican bean beetle, spotted cucumber beetle, flea beetles, on beets and other plants; cabbage caterpillars, striped cucumber beetles, melon and pickle worms, lettuce loopers, pea weevils, Jap-anese beetles and European corn

Another necessary insecticide to have on hand is cryolite, which may be used for essentially the same insects before the fruit has formed on the plants.

Bordeaux mixture is also often effective against all eating insects and some fungus growths. Nicotine dust or nicotine sulphate as a spray is generally used for aphids, or plant

Insects and Pests Among Vegetables

There are the general feeders on plant life such as ants, cutworms, grasshoppers, Japanese beetles, millipedes, mole crickets, slugs and snails, sowbugs, vegetable weevils, white grubs and wireworms. Most of these can be controlled with poison bait composed of a mixture of sodium fluosilicate or paris green (1/4 pound), dry, flaky wheat bran, five pounds, and three or four quarts of water. Prepare in the morning and apply late in the day.

Vegetable troubles are due to numerous causes, including unfavorable soil conditions-too wet or too dry, too rich or too poor, lack of humus or lime, weather unsuited to some crops, careless use of fertilizers, or attacks of fungi or other parasites The control of diseases caused by fungi, bacteria, and other enemies requires special additional treatment, as does the damage caused by insects. The use of disease-free seed and plants is fundamental to all disease control. They can be purchased

We Owe Us

President Harding College Searcy, Arkansas

There is a five-year-old epigram that runs like this: "Who cares anything about the national debt? We only owe it to ourselves." It implies that we are sure to be very easy with ourselves on collection day, but a lot depends on whether we can afford to be lenient. We owe ourselves a lot of money and we never will be able to collect even the interest on it unless we work hard and pay our taxes.

The debts we owe ourselves are genuine debts, and bigger than most of us realize. I know some people who owe themselves new cars, or new tires for their old cars. Since they can't buy these items, they are spending their money for other things . . . things to enjoy now. Have you heard about the errand boy who needed shoes but had no are modern and in A-1 condition. stamp, so he spent $6 for theatre tickets?

Tinkling Cymbals Easy money that rattles in our pockets because there is nothing to buy is not prosperity. Actually it is bogus money. We must never forget that prosperity is born of work. If higher income can't help me live better, my improved income is phony. America is bleeding in war and suffering in want this very day. Our needs are no less real because certain items have been taken off the market. National income figures for the United States illustrate the point perfectly. On paper, national income was 135 billion dollars in 1943, breaking all records, but much of the money our people received was "stage money." It wouldn't spend. Actually we Americans received 20 billion dollars less take-home money in 1943 than we did in 1929, call it 150 million dollars a day less. Add nine 0's to each of the figures in the following table, making them bil-

Figures in billions 1929 1943 Short National Income $81 $135 Government Deficit none Federal Taxes

Net$78 $58 $20 The average 1944 wage is more cents per hour; the average salary is more dollars per month; our national income is more billions per year than in any previous boom, but we are in debt. It is plain from the figures that when the debt is subtracted from what we call our national income it is by no means large. The debt must be paid in money that represents constructive work, doing and making useful things for better living.

A Homely Story On the morning of November 12, 1918, so the story goes, a dusky soldier in a U.S. labor battalion overslept two or three bugle calls and was waked at last by his sergeant gruffly ordering him to rise.

"Y'all kan't boss me roun' no mo," he said, half asleep. "Dis wah am ovah. I jes sign up fer de

"How right you is, boy!" the sergeant replied. sho 'nuff, but de duration . . . it have jes begin."

More Responsibility Official accounts of military gains, one after another, can't help but build hopes for peaceful years to come. The foregoing anecdote is offered to suggest this:

When the fighting stops, it will not be a signal for everybody to commence sleeping late and trying to subsist on income from wartime earnings. Unless we are ready to tighten our belts and do our part to meet our national obligation, the ducation will have just begun.

OUR DEMOCRACY-

GOOD FENCES ARE USUALLY BUILT WHEN THERE'S NOT TOO MUCH EXTRA WORK ON THE FARM. DURING THE BUSY SEASON IT'S HARD TO FIND TIME TO DO MORE THAN KEEP THEM IN GOOD REPAIR-

UNBROKEN FENCES

BUT IN OUR PERSONAL LIVING, THE TIME TO BUILD OUR FENCES IS WHEN WE ARE BUSIEST AND OUR EARNINGS ARE HIGH. NOW, DURING THESE ACTIVE DAYS, LET'S STRING STRONG WIRE - WAR BONDS, LIFE INSURANCE, SAVINGS ACCOUNTS-MAKE SURE THERE ARE NO BREAKS CAUSED BY THOUGHTLESS BUYING, NEEDLESS SPENDING -
