RESTRICTIONS ON THE BURNING OF BRUSH

Extreme Care Should Be Taken to Avoid a Conflagration

Effective September 15, 1948, restrictions on controlled burning of brush and debris are again enforceable according to William H. Johnson, District Forester.

He cautioned with the advent of the fall season, vegetaion dries out rapidly and the forest fire danger will be constantly on the increase until the first heavy growfall (Nine cut til the first heavy snowfall. SEAFOOD DWINDLING

Baltimore 18, Md.

Dear Editor: You have doubtless seen in the daily papers that Governon Lane is interested in the crab situation in the Chesapeake Bay. I am still of the opinion that if crabbers in the upper Shesapeake Bay would separate the male and the female crabs as they catch them and market the males and turn loose the females down the bay that it would require but a few years until the bay would be filled with large blue-claw crabs. The Chesapeake Bay, acre for acre, is the most valuable of our territory, but it seems to have been sadly neglected during the past quarter or half century. Once its shores were teeming with diamond back terrapin, so much so that the slaves rebelled at being fed on them more than two or three times a week, now they are so scarce that only the very wealthy can afford the luxury of a terrapin dinner.

The oyster situation is getting to be nearly as bad, while shad and rock fish, once so plentiful in the bay are going the way of the dodo. The Cono-wingo Dam may be the cause of this drive to the right side of the road, an for both specie of fish went up the Susquehannah into fresh water spawn. Such is one of the penalties of progress. Once herring were so abundant that "Arab" peddlers sold them at 10 to 12c per dozen, while shad at that time fetched 35c each for roe shad. Now we never see a

I still think that if the large piles of oyster shells at Crisfield, and Cambridge and Easton were scattered over the bay bottom from the Potomac up as far as Easton we could in 5 or 6 years again have the abundance of oysters that we once had. Don't that make your mouth water? Somebody, some day, will wake up and do these things, but to date

Oh well, perhaps as I get older I get more grouchy. Who knows!

And don't forget that Governor Lane favors building now that Chesapeake bay bridge. For that desire he deserves another term as Governor. Some boost, eh, for a hide bound Republican. W. J. H.

BASEBALL AND MILKING MACHINES

In your editorial on the changes in baseball rules proposed by Mr. B. A. Craig, you state that a Carroll Co. inventor, the late Wm. M. Mehring of Keymar, Md., produced a revolu-tion in the dairy business. He was the sole inventor of the first Milking Machine in the world. The first machines were sold in 1891, they were sold in many foreign countries, many sold to New Zealand and Cana-da. Have letters from twenty-one foreign countries. After the death of Mr. Mehring I carried on the business, until the second world war, when I was unable to have the rubber parts made. Since that time I have sold some machines and repairs.

Inquiries have been received from the following Foreign countries regarding Mehring's milking machines: Canada, New Zealand, Costa Rica, Switzerland, British Guinea, Sweden, Belgium, France, Central America, Ireland, Scotland, England, South Africa, Japan, Germany, South America, Spain, Argentina, Portugal, Austra-lia, Russia, Africa and The Nether-

Most of your Editorial is about changes in baseball proposed by Mr. Craig. I do not know much about baseball; but I do know that the game should be changed in some way to make it more interesting to most women.

Some time ago when I was in Philadelphia a friend invited me to go with her to a game of baseball. The game lasted over two hours, and in all that time, one team made only two runs, while the other team did wo runs, while the other team did not make any. I do not think the exciting plays all put together took up ten minutes. I think we were charged about $1.60 or $1.65 each for our seats. That is too much money to pay and two hours is too much time to waste for the sake of ten minutes of excitement. My friend

CHRISTMAS GIFTS TO OVERSEA CHILDREN

Service Center at New Windsor Continues Splendid Work

Christmas kits for teen-age boys and girls in refugee and displaced persons camps in Europe and Asia are arriving by the ton at this overseas relief goods collection and shipping center operated by the Church of the Brethren for Church World

The first shipment of 1948 Christmas kits, a small one, was made to Japan in July. The plan is to fold a bath towel end-to-end, sew the sides shut, thue making a bag, and fill it with clothing (new or good as new) and all sorts of personal items—washcloth, toothbrush, soap, etc—such as a teen-ager might well use, and which are nearly impossible to obtain overseas. Marked as to sex and age of the child for whom it is prepared, the kits is then mailed to the Church

We wish known it would be so long, she would have brought her knitting along with again and we will pray for you to our Lord. God will put His hand on you and with his power will heal you.

We are happy to hear that you have plenty of room, food and clothing. America is from God a richly blessed land. Do you know how lucky you are? God bless America and beware Europe from Communism. Over our personal way of life we have to tell you that through the war we have lost everything. Our country, our apartment, clothing, bank account and all other things were captured by the Poles. To save our lives we had to flee and during the escape they took from many of us our hand luggage. Words cannot describe it. Here in our new country we belong to the poorest. Very often we have to suffer much hunger. Our food rations are very small and certainly will starve and many die from undernourishment. We happy that you have so much love If you can make it possible again, kindly do not forget us in the future. The burdens which are resting on our people are pretty big. Food, soap and clothing are actually an emergency.

Hoping that you are well we greet you and all those dear givers. Yours, BAUMGART EMIL.

"Life Begins with an R!" Nice little advertisement in a folder from our Pharmacist " Around The Town." More than sorry that I did not get around to "Grove Dale" as I had promised to do in the near future. However, am glad that I acknowledged the lovely letter when it was written to me.

Heard a Sgt. (Police) state the other day that if he was head of the Public Schools in America that he would see to it as part of the education that all children would be educated to have the education that all children would be educated to have been educated. be educated to have knowledge of be educated to have knowledge of right and wrong by taking them to the jails and learning what's what! Sounds like a good idea to Your Observer. He continued to tell me that growing children who do not respect and obey their parents will never make good citizens and will consequently never obey zens and will consequently never obey the law.

I do recall when I was a very tiny child as all other children that if and when we did anything that was not just the proper thing, that we were always punished but today it is so different. When a child does anything immediately the parent or the stranger will say, "That won't hurt anything! That's all right!" What say you, Folks? That will spoil a child quicker than anything.

Last week, heard just about the funniest thing—ever and here it is A couple had been married since 1942 and have two children. The wife tearfully and very upset consulted advise stating she did not know what to do as she does not think she is legally married as she just found out that her husband had given her his brother's naame and age and she never knowing the difference was married that way! My—oh—my—people are funny so beware, girls!

people are funny so beware, girls!
Now this will please the ladies.
Was talking to a wonderful husband the other day very nicely fixed young couple) who stated he is so very happy that every day of his life; in py that every day of his life is a va-cation! The only reason that he is going out to California for a trip is because "Ruth wants to go".

Now this is for husbands only. Do you compliment your wife only when she purchases a real bargain or do you tell her she appears lovely at all times in your eyes? I was talking to a little wife who was very much hurt as she stated her husband never says as she stated her husband never says one nice thing to her but takes everything for granted. How awful! She added, bringing forth to show me a very lovely chapeau which looked, as they say, 'like a million dollars'. "guess how much that hat was?" I replied "Oh, it looks very company just like a $25 hat "Well some time ago it was $8 and I hestated about buying it and walked out of the store without it. Then there was a dollar day and every hat in that store was one dollar each. So I went in and broused around and there was that very hat and without trying it on again, I went out of the store with my bargain. Upon reaching home, I showed my prize to my husband and to my surprise he com-plimented me stating it was the best looking hat he ever saw. I wonder why men do not say nice things to their wives daily without waiting for a bargain". I told her it was just thoughtlessness and encouraged her when I continued, "Wait until you are all dressed up with that hat on, he will surely say something

Upon coming to Carroll County, in fact just before I 'moved in' I made the acquaintance of the loveliest lady at the Square who told me she had had the best husband in the world. Your Observer ate some ice cream and we talked and talked and knew right then that I was going to love it "around the town" as I felt that all people in the vicinity must be like this little widow, and I have never been disappointed.

Just previous to school days, Your Observer purchased just a common school case or bag as you may call it and was so surprised that there was a big luxury tax on such a nec-

That nice 'Movie Man' killed a chicken the other day of course by chopping off it's head for unexpected company (city folks) at "Loves' Retreat" as he happened to be driving past which was most fortunate, more than that 'Movie Man' realized. He surely did 'save the day' as city folks always expect 'chicken for dinner' in the country.

Lady Evadne is getting to be very wise as one of her tricks that I think especially cute is when she knows I am going out, she runs up stairs and brings one shoe down and places both paws firmly and crossed over the shoe. Cute? Dogs really are almost human. If you keep looking at your dog while you are talking to him, watch his expression and you will immediately recognize that it is like conversation. The more often you talk to him the smarter he will be.

Called on a little lady a long long time ago who is pleasingly plump out the 71 highway and whom I liked immediately as she remarked to me that when she was my age she looked very much like me. I expect to go back there in the very near future.

Talked to the nice little priest 'around the town' on Saturday evening over the phone direct to his room where he is at the Mercy Hospital in Baltimore. He seemed most

PRIZE CATTLE

Current issue of Country Gentleman Magazine contains an interesting article on Hereford cattle that should linterest every farmer who raises cattle for market.

Three bulls sold recently for $35000 then $50,000, and finally the champion fetched $100,000. That is some "Kale", believe me. Many prize bulls are raised from calves given the farmers sons to keep them interested.

No surer way to keep the boy on the farm can be found then by giving him somethings to do out of which he can make a profit by labor.

A half acre of good land planted in potatoes, and given the boy to cultivate and the profits from such labor has made a good farmer of that lad. Of course he should be required to clothe himself and get his spending money from such work. Then too he should be encouraged to bank his surplus.

Future generations will be, largely, what we make of the present generation of boys.

Home Dressmakers Urged To Avoid Homemade Touch

Any homemaker who sews wants her garments to have a professiona. look. Yet, many garments made at home have the homemade touch, a term that clothing manufacturers use to describe incorrectly-made clothing.

A few simple tricks used in making a garment at home will result in a professional looking dress or suit, according to Miss Mabel McDowell, extension clothing specialist of the Pennsylvania State college.

She points out that one of the common errors in dressmaking is cutting the cloth so that the grain does not fall perpendicular to the floor. This usually happens when a homemaker has cut the material on round or narrow surfaces where the fabric will not lie flat. Moving the pattern off the grain in order to save material is another cause for this.

Stretching the fabric while making a garment can make the difference between the professional and the homemade touch, too. Professional clothing makers use machine-stitched staylines. Staylines are reinforced lines around all necklines, armseyes, shoulders, waistlines, and plackets. Staylines, sewed before putting the garment together, are placed just inside the seam line, between the seam line and edge of material, and are always stitched with the grain of the

When the telephone rings

Pop hopes the call is from Luther, saying the hunting trip is on for tomorrow. Mom's expecting a Long Distance call from her mother. Sis will go into a tailspin if it isn't Harry, who hasn't yet asked her for a date Saturday night. Buddy hopes it's Joe, whom he was about to call to practice tying knots.

Whenever and wherever a telephone rings, in the home or office, there's a feeling of expectation. For the telephone serves so many different purposes in our daily lives. It helps make appointments, run errands, take orders, meet emergencies. Nothing gives so much for so little. And through the constant improvement of equipment and expansion of facilities, it's becoming a greater value every day.

Each old landmark enshrines memories sacred to someone. It has a story for those who will pause to listen. As a person grows older, per-haps, old landmarks convey richer messages, thoughts of the Eternal, as deep calleth unto deep. The abandoned road gives us a picture of the lads and lassies who sauntered along its course, and of the horse and buggy carrying members of the family to church, and to market. This is National Dog Week when man is supposed to be extra kind to his faithful friend. It is hard to understand why in the Old and New Testaments the dog is spoken of almost with abhorrence and is ranked among the unclean beasts. Part of the explanation may be due to the fact that the Egyptians, who were bitter enemies of the Jewish race, held dogs in high esteem and there-fore the Jewish people felt it a form of idolatry to think well of a dog. In every Mahommedan and Hindu country the most insulting term bestowed on a European or a Christian is "a dog" and that accounts for the fact that in the whole of the Jewish history there is not a single allusion to hunting with dogs. It is not improbable that all dogs sprang from one common source, but climate, food and cross-breeding caused variation of form and later lead to different species, and breeds. Many canine experts believe that the dog descended from the wolf although Zoologists are not so sure. Wherever he came from, he has proved an invaluable friend to man. As a household pet he is forever faithful, as a watchman, he is unsurpassed and for courage he has no equal. Man has spent time and money to teach the dog manners and a few tricks, but the dog too can teach his master some worthwhile traits. Foremost among these is loyalty. No matter how ill-treated or uncared for, a dog is always willing to forget and wag his tail happily at his owner. Could man boast of such loyalty?

A customer in a Boston animal store was contemplating the purchase of a parrot, which, so far, had evidenced no sign of life other than to cock a malevolent eye at her. Finally, she asked, "Does he talk?"

The salesman looked embarrassed. "Yes, ma'am, he talks. but he doesn't wish to be quot

USDA Offers Suggestion On Flying Farm Freight

Farm areas that have been cut of from the fluid milk market because of transportation delays will be in terested in a British proposal to us "flying milk vans," says the U. S department of agriculture.

Western growers of irrigated a! falfa might find it practical and eco nomical to put wings on the aeris equivalent of the tank truck.

The office of foreign agricultura relations says that the cost of proposed air transportation of milk ove certain routes in Britain has beer estimated by aviation company experts at about four cents a quart.

It is proposed to use a Bristo freighter modified to pick up a specially constructed cylindrical metal tank lined with glass and holding about 1,100 gallons. The tank would be mounted on a wheeled chassis for quick and easy loading and unloading.

Another example of an innovation in air freighting of farm produce is reported from Brazil. The Impameri district is a center of the Brazilian "xarque" or dried meat industry. The fillets of beef are too tender for marit is proving possible to ship the about two and a half hours.

This form of marketing has proved so satisfactory that OFAR reports Nation's Favorite Magazine with The shipments may increase when the air terminal is improved to accomodate larger planes and heavier loads.

ARDETH HAINES listened as the band played at the Fair. The tune was gay but not for her Frank, her husband, was listening too, at the other end of the field They had quarreled. They should have been together, holding hands. not apart nursing anger. Was it her fault if she was thrifty? Why did Frank have to blow up when she hinted at his extravagance? She was only thinking of their future and of the house they dreamed of owning.

That morning she had found him in the garage. "Isn't it a honey now?" Frank had asked pointing to the portable radio on his work bench. "It works like a top since I put in the four new tubes."

"Four new tubes?" gasped. "How could you when you know how much I wanted new dishes?" There were angry tears in her eyes.

Frank grabbed the radio and threw it into the corner. She stalked out, hurt and defiant.

ing alone." And the way she said it made Frank dash out of the house and slam the door.

Suddenly there was a fanfare and Mr. Getty, master of ceremonies, announced loudly: "This is the moment you have been waiting for. For weeks we were fine-combing the community for the happiest married couple. Folks, here they are, Mr. and Mrs. James Pratt. Married twenty-five years and happily!" Mr. Pratt was holding his wife's hands and looking down into her face. Mrs. Pratt was beaming. Ardeth looked over at Frank but he was staring straight ahead.

Mr. Getty talked into the mike. "We can all pattern our lives after this happy couple." He showered them with gifts; furniture, groceries and a bond. As Ardeth watched them walk off, she wondered about their recipe for happiness. Twentyfive years! Surely, Mrs. Pratt would be glad to help out a broken-hearted

Later on, when Ardeth had been invited in, Mrs. Pratt said: "So you came to me for advice?" She patted Ardeth's shoulder and said: "Perhaps I can give you some at that." She offered Ardeth some home-made cookies. "We're happy. Quarrels don't matter, every normal couple has them. But you can't change a husband. You've got to accept his shortcomings as he must accept yours . . . There isn't any recipe for happiness. But you can overlook many things in life."

When Ardeth got home Frank was still in the garage. She went straight to him. "I'm sorry about the tubes, Frank. I'm an awful the Hima tribe are fattened until they tightwad."

Frank's eyes brightened up like sparklers. He reached to a shelf. "I got you this at the Fair," he said, handing her a huge bow-be-decked box of candy. It looked awfully expensive, but Ardeth remembered about the overlooking part Mrs. Pratt had mentioned, so all she did was to look into Frank's eyes.

Tractor Death Causes

Main causes of deaths from tractor accidents are: (1) overturning; (2) falling from tractor; (3) leaving power take-off parts unguarded; (4) catching loose clothing in moving parts; (5) oiling or adjusting tractor while in operation, and (6) failing to keep children off of tractors.

Electricity on Farms According to the last official estimate, three and one-half million farms, or 61 per cent, had electric power available on June 30, 1947. Two and a quarter million farms, or 39 per cent, did not have electric service on that date.

Water for Batteries

Frost on the freezing compartment of electric refrigerators is a good source of pure water for automobile batteries. It has no chemical impurities because it is condensed from moisture in the air.

Fattened for Marriage Before their marriage, brides of cyclopaedia Eritannic. The Hima live in Uganda protectorate, British East Africa.

Washington Tip

To save wear on buttons and garments, and avoid cutting wringer rolls with broken buttons, button each garment and turn it wrong side out before putting it into the washing machine.

Heat of Light Bulb Heat of the wire inside an incan-descent light bulb is between 4,000 and 5,600 degrees F., so intense that it would make brick flow.

Faith: A Family Tradition Lesson for September 26, 1948

HERE IS a brief Bible quiz: What Christian man did Paul recommend to the Philippians as the one completely unselfish person he knew? When Paul

When Paul wanted reliable information about a church, on whose report did he depend? Whom did Paul call "son" more often than any one else? The answer to all these ques-whom did he send?

tions is the same: Timothy. Certainly a man whom the great Saint Paul found so congenial, so reliable, so unselfish and effective a Christian, is a man worth our careful attention. We ask this question about him: What made him what he was?

Faith at Home

SOME MEN have to leave home to find faith. But perhaps the happiest Christians, certainly the most fortunate, are those who cannot remember what it was not to have faith. It was the atmosphere they breathed as children. The first people they knew were Christians, prayer and faith were taken for granted, the name of Christ was heard only in reverence and love, never in jest or anger.

Timothy grew up in such a home. When he became a mature, working Christian he had no wasted years to regret, no wild oats to pull up. The faith of his adult mind was not scarred by the acid remains of earlier doubt. Timothy's life was all of one piece. He was born to faith, he grew up in it.

Homes can do a great deal for the children who live in them. But nothing else - physical health, poise, culture, friends, ambition-nothing else is quite so valuable a gift or quite so lasting, as faith.

In later years faith may have to be pounded into a person or shocked into him; but in childhood faith is woven in, welded in, and that is as it should be. Happy the Christian who does not have to turn his back on his childhood when he turns his face to Christ!

Book of Wisdom

"R ELIGION cannot be taught, it can only be caught," is an old saying. It is partly true, for you cannot set any dozen people at random down on a bench and teach them into faith. If teaching religion were as simple as that, then every Sunday school could guarantee that every one of its graduates would become a saint. Nevertheless, religion can partly be taught, for in a book there may be crystallized the faith of many a generation. A book may concentrate and preserve the insight, the inspiration, the assurance of men and women who though dead yet speak.

Living with books of faith is like living with many families of faith at the same time. Such a book is the Bible. And it was the Bible, or so much of it as had been written, the Old Testament, which was the one Book in Timothy's boyhood home. Through the Scriptures, the boy's mother taught her son not merely her own faith but that of many a generation before her time.

In our own day, parents may feel that they come too far short of being saints, so they hesitate about urging their perhaps dimly-felt religion on their children. Yet in our Bible there is open to all fathers and mothers a means of placing their children in an atmosphere of intense faith.

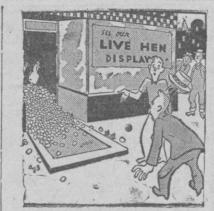

Personal religious genius is rare; but even though you may be anything but a genius, you still can bring to your child the treasures of the Bible, product of the highest inspiration and insight the world has known.

Women of the Family

TIMOTHY'S FATHER was Greek, probably not a Christian. He and Timothy may never have understood each other. It was the women of the family who molded the boy's mind and heart, his mother, Eunice, and his grandmother, Lois.

It is always so. It is the women of a family who have most influence for faith or against it. The boy knows his mother before he knows any one else. She teaches him to talk, he absorbs her attitudes and ideas even before he understands them. If father and mother differ in religion, it is likely that children will follow mother rather than father.
