TRUMAN ELECTED IN SURPRISING UPSET

Governor Dewey Carries Maryland

Harry Truman captured the Presidential election Wednesday in one of the biggest upsets in America's political history with 304 electoral votes in 28 States. His opponent led in 16 States with 189.

And in the hour of his greatest triumph, the Democratic party gave him a solid, comfortable majority in both Senate and House.

It was a triumph which the little man from Missouri, standing almost alone against the flood-tide of pre-election forecasts, had predicted with unswerving confidence.

Down to defeat went Thomas E. Dewey, trying for a comeback along the road to the White House which invincible Franklin D. Roosevelt blocked four years ago.

Down with him went Republican candidates in key Congressional races and gubernatorial contests.

They went down fighting, in the toughest Presidential battle since Woodrow Wilson squeezed out Charles Evan Hughes in 1916. Dewey conceded the defeat at 11:15 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, Wednesday.

And at the moment of decision by tens of millions of American voters, victor and vanquished alike cried out their hopes for peace in a troubled world.

The nation went to Mr. Truman but Maryland's eight electoral votes were captured by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York on the strength of a county majority that absorbed a Baltimore City Democratic advantage.

The Republican candidate's victory here put a blemish on Maryland's record of backing Presidential winners. Now since 1888 had Marylanders given a majority to a loser.

Three Democratic and two Republican incumbents were re-elected to Congress and the delegation remained at 4-2 with the victory of a Democratic newcomer, State Senator William P. Bolton, of Baltimore County who was elected in the Second District.

Complete unofficial returns from the State's 1,347 precincts gave Governor Dewey 293,929 votes to Mr. Truman's 285,834.

LIONS CLUB MEETS

Rev. Hoopert Addresses the Men Present

An inspired little talk by the Rev. Grantas Hoopert, minister of the Centenary Methodist Church, Littlestown featured the meeting Tuesday of Taneytown Lions, presided over by Robert Feeser, second vice-president.

The Rev. Mr. Hoopert began his subject with a familiar story from boyhood days—of children throwing their voices across the valley to a distant hillside in order to catch the echoes. Sometimes the echoes were clear and easily recognizable, but often they were fuzzy and indistinct.

In a similar fashion various voices have been sounded throughout the history of America, and sometimes their echoes have resounded clearly, but often they have been heard with a tantalizing, indefinable quality which succeeding generations have been eager to recapture, but with a varying success.

The new world originally beckoned to the old with the call of freedom, the promise of a new home, easily made fortunes, or merely the novelty which brought them "for to seek strange strondes." Here they were to seek "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." They had to hang together or hang separately. Indeed many voices were heard. Their very existence and preservation as a nation required motives; they listened and answered to the calls of work, fight, or worship.

In a later time, we ask, "What are the true voices today, what echoes from the past should be picked out most carefully amid the babel about us?" Some of them: American houses must become homes; the churches must become houses of God; schools seats of learning expounding the truth; the country a democracy based on justice, truth, and right.

We now need to send forth our own voices again in a new challenge to the world. Cannot an airplane fly just as well with a cargo of mercy as with a load of bombs? Cannot we spare some of our sovereignty in favor of a new sovereignty of the world? United Nations—that is a name we must shout so that it reverberates with arresting clarity on a confused but grateful mankind.

No longer need a ball player say "My homer won that game," or another "My three bagger brought us victory." Each has a significant part, but there are many players on a team. Among the nations today, the clearest echo is the truth, the highest precept is "United We Stand," the greatest law is love. Let us discipline ourselves to catch those true echoes and send them on and on.

SCOUT NEWS

Boys' Organization Will Parade in Brunswick

All Scouts of Troop 348 are asked to meet at 12 o'clock noon on Sunday, November 7, in front of the new American Legion Home, where transportation will be provided by Post 120, sponsors of the Troop, to the parade in Brunswick that afternoon in celebration of Armistice Day.

Among more recent activities of the Troop were the following: handling parking at the Taneytown Air Show as well as at the Legion-sponsored Buddy Wagner's Champion Hell Drivers exhibition on the Fair grounds attendance by 35 Scouts and drivers at the council-wide round-up and inspection in Baltimore, including attendance at the Navy-Cornell football game; and a Halloween party to which were invited the Girl Scouts of Troop 1 and 2. Approximately seventy persons were present on this occasion.

At the October 18th meeting, Andrew Alexander and Robert Harner were chosen for election to the honorary camping fraternity, the Order of the Arrow, and the following week-end Robert Harner, Stanley Frock, and their scoutmaster enjoyed an overnight trip down the Skyline Drive of Virginia as far as Rock Spring Shelter, opposite Luray in Shenandoah National Park. There they spent the night in this Appalachian Mountain Club Lodge as a part of Order of the Arrow program. Others from the Carroll County chapter included Neighborhood Commissioner Hazard Clarke and Cubmaster Stephen A. Lerda, who both provided transportation, Scoutmaster Albert G. Albrecht and Assistant Scoutmaster, Calvin Phillips, as well as three Scouts from Mr. Albrecht's Troop 393.

Following summer camp in August, attended by twelve members of the Troop (it was unfortunately in the corn-picking season), the Pine Tree patrol of Troop 348 was awarded their prize camping trip to the Appalachian Mountain Trail section around Tumbling Run Hearts near Waynesboro, Pa., a most worthwhile and pleasant trip. Stanley Frock, patrol leader, and Robert Harner, assistant, were accompanied by the following members of their patrol over the Labor Day week-end: James Crebs, Lawrence Eckard, Robert Oler, Robert Scetz and Thomas Sell, Fern Bachman, Guy Gross, Edgar Knepper, and James Waddell were unable to make the trip, although it was later learned that Knepper arrived from New Oxford just too late to go.

Prizes owing to the other patrols will be presented at Scout meeting Monday evening, Nov. 8 the Foxes for placing second, and the Flying Eagles third. Incidentally, the attention of all Scouts is drawn to the time of scout meeting, which is now 6:30 P. M., each Monday night. Further plans for fall outings and early winter program are to be made at a leader's session during the coming week.

For the parade Sunday, it is urged that everyone be on hand, even if it should have been without a uniform. Commander Powell of the sponsoring organization will be looking for a full turnout, and the Troop will want the Legion to be pleased with its showing.

AROUND THE TOWN

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's greatest wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Believe, it or not "Loves' Retreat" was missing last Saturday morning and it took our policeman "Around The Town" to restore it to its original hanging. Thought those Halloween pranks were only done by the city children. Friday night that sign was removed and placed way out on Baltimore Street with two of those flares on each side. Our policeman came along and picked up the sign, placing it in his car, although he was not aware that there was a "Loves' Retreat". On Saturday morning, Your Observer phoned to him about the lost sign and he came out immediately with the sign in hand.

Calling all cars! Down Randallstown way! Those nice policemen sure do know their stuff, too, and then some. Your Observer has always had great respect for all Maryland Policemen who are superior to all policemen in every other state. Why? Here's the answer—they are always so kind, courteous and gentlemanly which truthfully, I could not write about other states as many times in other places they try to show authority by their "bully" attitude. Now, here's a tip for all the policemen, especially in every county, barring none. Officers, have you noticed those big signs in private driveways which read, "You—Keep Out And

APPLE BUTTER BOILING

Do you have apple butter boiling parties in your community. When I was a boy each fall saw such a party and the young swain and bashful damsels would gather to stir the pot and lose their bashfulness as their hands touched in stirring.

Many a happy home (and some not so happy has been developed from such meetings.

To the children the important thing was the tough whit leather that gather around the upper rim of the great copper kettle.

Apples, and apple butter have to me always been real luxuries, because I know the great amount of work needed to produce the final filled crocks. Usually the best apple butter was made when a barrel of cider was first boiled down in the kettle and then the apples gradually added as the boiling continued.

I guess country folks who own orchards still have the same kind of doings, so I need say no more on the subject.

UNCLE SAM'S POST OFFICE IN THE RED

There are a half million paid employees in the Post Office Department—some of them right in your home town. They do a mighty business but for the fiscal ending in June 30, 1948 this same Department was $550,000,000 in the red. This deficit is double what it was for the previous year. Naturally, the Federal Government will consider whether it is practical to raise the postal rate to provide enough revenue to meet expenses. And in this connection a strong movement for increased salaries for Post Office employees is already on the way.

The first victims being checked up are publishers of newspapers. Already Washington is hearing the old whisper that newspaper publishers are "subsidies."

On the other side of the fence it is pointed out that 2,000,000 pieces of mail are being handled free of any charge. On the top of that 18,000,000 pieces of registered mail are being handled free of any charge for the various Government departments. What everybody knows is that the various departments of the Government have no moral right in sticking Uncle Sam for $100,000,000 of free mail. The story may be enlarged to show that free air mail and free postage for the sale of savings bonds, civil service examinations, migratory bird stamps, and other purposes are a good deal more to blame for postal deficits than newspapers publishers.

As a matter of fact the writer of this item believes that the newspaper publishers are not getting any so-called "subsidies." Perhaps it would be a good idea for a thousand editors who receive this Letter from Washington, to stand up on their hind legs and defend themselves from the unjust charge of being responsible in any way for the loss of billions of dollars of revenue in the Postal Department.—J. E. Jones.

Judge Condemns Robbery; He's Disgrace to His Profession

Pittsburgh.—Marshall Johnson, 30, hung his head as Judge Henry X. O'Brien scolded him for being a disgrace to his profession—robbery.

Johnson was convicted of stealing a dozen bottles of Scotch from a cafe. He left behind his fingerprints on a bottle of creme de menthe; his wife's picture and his social security number.

Judge O'Brien gave Johnson 18 months to three years in the work-house and told him, "you are undoubtedly the most careless robber ever brought before me."

Mailman Wears Out 100 Pairs of Shoes

After 42 Years He Covers 159,000 Miles

ATLANTA.—Wylie T. Mann believes he has walked more than any person in the United States.

For 42 years a postman, he has been on Route 104 here for all but two of them.

On that route he has worn out 100 pairs of shoes, and estimates he has walked more than 159,000 miles—more than five times around the earth.

Besides carrying mail, he also takes long walks on his days off. Mann will be 67 his next birthday. He never had foot troubles.

His clerk in charge, Walter A. Curry, says "Ol Pop" gets out and back before the young fellows do, and climbs steps as fast as any young mail carrier in the city.

"My motto is—make friends with the dogs, and then the people—because people won't bite you," Mann says. "It works out pretty well. One dog followed me from house to house for eight years.

"Outside of occasional pants-leg tuggings, I have only had one dog try to bite me, and that was when I started to hand a letter to a blind lady who owned the dog."

Although Mann isn't scheduled to retire until 1951, the Atlanta postal division has had a sample of what Route 104 residents will have to say. About a year ago, the department lopped off a couple of blocks of his route. The people raised such a howl they had to put the blocks back on his route.

War Pilots Dust Farm Crops In Converted Military Planes

CALEXICO, CALIF.—Some 25 former war pilots are operating converted army and navy training planes in what is probably the largest crop dusting campaign in the world.

The 25 planes can dust 25,000 acres a day and the 500,000 acres in Imperial valley are dusted at least once each year.

Some sections are dusted twice and even three times a year.

The work is dangerous because the pilots fly only two to four feet above the ground, but only three planes have cracked up in the last year and no pilot has been injured.

Poison used in the spraying is the wartime-developed DDT powder, which is used in 5 and 10 per cent strengths.

About 500 acres can be handled in a morning, with a cost to the farmer of about $2.50 an acre.

Wildcat Leads Policeman On Merry Chase, Gets Away

OCEANSIDE, CALIF.—Police Officer Tony Telebar answered a telephone call from an excited woman who reported that her dog had treed a cat near her home.

As he arrived on the scene, the dog left the treed cat and chased the officer. The cat then jumped from the tree and bounded down a canyon. The dog switched to the cat and again treed the feline. This time the officer turned a flashlight on the tree and saw not a housecat but a full grown wildcat.

He fired his service revolver and the animal fell into a clump of bushes. There were many snarls and growls from the area but Officer Telebar declined to approach it.

In the morning there was no sign of either a dead or wounded wildcat.

Steamboat Whistle Sounds Still Linger Along River

MEMPHIS, TENN.—Most of the famous old Mississippi River boats have been scrapped, but to old-timers their memories linger on.

Each boat was a personality to the men who followed the river or just loafed along its shore.

Probably the most distinguishing thing about each craft was its whistle.

In the golden years of steamboating, no owner would think of sending a new packet to ply the Ohio or the Big Muddy without a beautifully toned blaster.

Now, like the steamboats they once graced, the whistles and bells are gone from the scene, though many still are close to the river.

They can be heard at cotton gins, lumber mills and steam powered plants, or calling hands to work on the big plantations.

An American Dictatorship

Just the idea of dictatorship in America shocks us. Yet a learned European professor from the University of Zurich, Dr. Emil Brunner, told a group of scholars in Amsterdam that "all the Western nations" are headed directly toward totalitarianism. This may have come as a surprise to American citizens, who are part of this great Republic and cherish its democratic institutions.

That was what the professor said. He was thinking of our democratic ways, yet that is what he said. The professor knows that Western nations have their legal constitutions. He knows of their long standing convictions about freedoms. Nevertheless, he said these countries "are on the way toward totalitarianism, not because they like dictatorship, but because wherever a social evil is to be cured they appeal to the state for help."

Power Over the People

If the people keep calling on the state for help, the interference of government in the daily lives of people will certainly increase. This way of solving problems through the state is dangerous, as Dr. Brunner warned. Thinking perhaps of the dangers today confronting Great Britain, he spoke out: "Once the economy is nationalized, a totalitarian state is there whether one wants it or not."

Our British friends may not be able to admit that their nation has gone totalitarian, but many earmarks of the dictator state are there. The government holds power over the people that cruel kings strove for and could not gain. Yet these powers were handed over to the government in legal, parliamentary fashion. The government can tell individuals in England where they must work and what they may do for a living. Despots of the Dark Ages held powers no more despotic.

An Honest Laymaker

The Congressman for our district, Representative Mills, came home recently. Not up for election this year, our Congressman did not have to buckle down to a barrage of questions and give political answers. Instead of promises he gave our people some straight-in-the-face, factual talks. He told us that if we want lower taxes, we'll just have to stop asking for more and more government.

You can't keep on begging the government for this and that, and not expect to pay the bills, our Congressman told us. If we can't learn any better than to go to the federal government with every little problem that confronts us, then we will see government grow until we are engulfed by it. We must get away from the common idea that if we get something from Washington, we therefore got it "for nothing."

It Depends on Us

Those beliefs among us are exactly the kind of thinking that could spawn a dictatorship. World history is full of examples of both big and little Caesars who handed out promises for power. The professor is right. The state way of doing things—the planned economy method—is dangerous. It encourages helplessness. It dulls initiative. It thrives on waste. It taxes the people and cares nothing for debt. It could ruin our nation.

The only way to avoid this ruin is to get our minds clear about it. We can determine that the American way of work, thrift, self-control, and enterprise will carry us through. When each individual is free to work out daily problems that confront us, we have millions of people doing things right. The other way, we would have only a handful of men directing a dictatorship, in a planned economy that would make us slaves of the State and take our freedoms, one by one.

Impressing the Women Folks

Display of manly strength has always impressed the womenfolk. A female gorilla will find the sight of her mate, with flexed biceps and fists thumping his chest, irresistible. The elephant seal will pose for hours with head thrown back and chest extended if there are admiring females nearby. In sea lions and sea elephants the bulls, who are enormously bigger and stronger than the cows, come ashore during the breeding season and stake out mating territories. As the females land, the males fight for them and establish harems. In some species they may seize the cows by the neck and pitch them over their shoulders into the harem.

Risky to Sit with Driver

Safest position in a car is in the driver's seat behind the protection of the steering wheel, and the most dangerous seat is the one next to the driver, according to Dr. Claire L. Straith, chief of plastic surgery at Harper hospital, Detroit. He stated in a report in the American Medical Association journal that in a study of 50 patients who suffered facial injuries in automobile accidents 70 per cent of the patients were young women who had been sitting next to the driver. More than half of those front seat patients suffered head and face injuries.

LEARNING TO WORK TOGETHER

OUR REPUBLIC WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1789, UNDER THE CONSTITUTION. BUT IT TOOK FAITH AND COURAGE AND PATIENCE AND TIME TO MAKE IT WORK. OUR INDIVIDUAL STATES HAD TO LEARN HOW TO WORK TOGETHER. AND IN THAT PROCESS THE CONSTITUTION ITSELF WAS STRENGTHENED BY A SERIES OF AMENDMENTS KNOWN AS THE BILL OF RIGHTS.

THREE YEARS AGO, THE UNITED NATIONS, EMBODYING THE ASPIRATIONS OF THE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD, CAME INTO BEING... BECAUSE MEMBER COUNTRIES MUST LEARN TO WORK TOGETHER, BECAUSE THE ORGANIZATION MUST NECESSARILY UNDERGO A PERIOD OF TRIAL AND ERROR, WE MUST RECOGNIZE THAT FAITH AND COURAGE AND PATIENCE AND TIME WILL BE NEEDED FOR THE UNITED NATIONS TO ACHIEVE ITS HIGH AIM OF FUNDAMENTAL FREEDOM FOR ALL PEOPLES—AND LASTING PEACE. ### SPECIAL OCCASIONS AFFORD TEACHING OPPORTUNITIES

During the school year opportunities occur for programs in which the entire school can share with much profit educationally. Most of the suggestions of this article are taken from the Teacher's Handbook issued by the office of the County Superintendent of Alamance County, Graham, North Carolina.

Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter afford occasions for either class or school programs in history, drama, and literature. Even the community may participate in these programs. In addition to such seasonal programs there are special occasions in which instruction might be given to present facts which should be also of interest to the community. For instance, October 3-9, was Fire Prevention Week. And since a significant function of the school is to promote conservation and intelligent use of all our resources—natural, human, and institutional, the proper observance of such a week in the school can contribute to more profitable community living. Fire prevention week is an opportune time for making children fire-safety conscious, and for emphasizing the need for school children to participate in community fire-safety programs. Thursday, October 7, was designated by law as Fire Prevention Day. And the governor of the State issued a proclamation urging a proper observance of the day by all.

November 7-13 is American Education Week. Such a week offers unusual opportunities for parents to visit and observe their school in action, to become better acquainted with the provision that is made for child growth and development, and to discover the urgent needs in the school program and the conditions which sorely retard the school's expansion program. More active community interest in the school is essential if the emergency in education which has developed through the years of depression and war is to be met adequately. The theme for 1948, "Strengthening the Foundations of Freedom," should contribute to a better understanding of the needs and problems of school and community life.

The programs as sponsored jointly by the National Education Association, the American Legion, the United States Office of Education, and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers are as follows:

General Theme: Strengthening the Foundations of Freedom. Nov. 7, Sunday, Learning to Live Together; Nov. 8, Monday, Improving the Educational Program; Nov. 9, Tuesday, Securing Qualified Teachers; Nov. 10, Wednesday, Providing Adequate Finance; Nov. 11, Thursday, Safeguard Our America; Nov. 12, Friday, Promoting Health and Safety; Nov. 13, Saturday, Developing Worthy Family Life.

Helpful program materials can be secured from the National Education Association, 1201 Sixteenth St. N.W., Washington, D. C.; United States Office of Education, Washington 25, D. C.; The American Legion, Indianapolis, Ind.; and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, 600 S. Michigan Boulevard, Chicago 5, Illinois.

"THE NATIONAL GUARD DEFENDS AMERICA"

THE TRADITION OF VOLUNTARY CITIZEN SERVICE IN THE PROTECTION OF OUR COUNTRY IS OLDER THAN OUR NATION... IN 1636 A GROUP OF NEW ENGLANDERS FORMED THE NORTH REGIMENT—NOW THE 183RD INFANTRY, MASSACHUSETTS NATIONAL GUARD—FOR THE PURPOSE OF DEFENDING THE COLONIES, IF NEED SHOULD ARISE.

SINCE THAT DAY, THE NATIONAL GUARD HAS GROWN IN STRENGTH, BROADENED IN RESPONSIBILITIES. IT DESERVES CONTINUED SUPPORT. TODAY, ITS TRAINED AND EQUIPPED UNITS STAND READY IN EACH STATE, TO DEFEND AGAINST ATTACK OR CIVIL STRIFE — TO GUARD THE PEOPLE'S RIGHTS AND PROPERTIES IN TIME OF EMERGENCY.

Because it rains when we wish it wouldn't because men do what they often shouldn't, because crops fail and plans go wrong, some of us grumble the whole day long. But somehow in spite of the care and doubt, it seems at last that things work out.

Because we lost where we hope to gain, because we suffer a little pain because we must work when we'd like to play, some of us whimper along life's way. But, somehow, as day will follow night most of our troubles work out right.

Because we cannot forever smile because we must trudge in the dust awhile, because we think that the way is long, some complain that life's all wrong. But, yet we live, and our sky grows bright, and everything works out all right.

So bend to your troubles and meet your care, for the clouds must break and the sky grow fair. Let the rain come down as it must and will, but keep on working and hoping still, for in spite of the grumblers who stand about some how, it seems, all things work out.

Another election day is over but as I write this (Wednesday) neither Mr. Truman nor Mr. Dewey have a majority of electoral votes. The American people have again fooled all the experts for according to all the polls Mr. Dewey should have won in a walk. Which just goes to prove that old adage "Don't count your chickens before they are hatched." Anyway, it was a very dull election. Maybe the average voter has grown up. He doesn't need political speeches and soothing syrup to sway his vote. He is capable of doing his own thinking and voting for the man rather than the party.

If you know how to use your spare time, you seldom have any to spare.

Many stories have arisen to explain the origin of the phrase "Mind your p's and q's." One legend even attempts to derive it from "pints" and "quarts" so freely quaffed in early taverns. Actually, the most logical explanation links the expression with court etiquette under Louis XIV. Nobles were required to follow a complicated system of bowing and bending as they approached the throne. Not only were they in danger of making a misstep, they were likely to derange or even knock off their huge, cumbersome wigs. Consequently, it became proverbial that courtiers and officials had to pay careful attention to their p's (feet) and q's (wigs). Adopted by the British and abbreviated, the phrase became the familiar "Mind your p's and q's."

There's a new word in medicine today. It's bibliotherapy meaning treatment with books. It really isn't new for I heard about it fifteen years ago when I was a student nurse. The brilliant new doctor who had just arrived at out hospital handed me a book and told me to take it to the young woman in the last room down the hall. He said to tell her this was a prescription. I looked at him and at the book but I did what I was told, although I did think it was a very peculiar way to treat a patient. The patient got well for she was suffering from stomach ulcers and an impending nervous breakdown, due to the fact that she couldn't relax. Reading keeps the mind busy, giving the muscles and nerves a chance to rest and lose their tension. To some persons, reading may be as bad as a dose of medicine but it can be a lot of fun, and if kept at regularly will make one intelligent.

THE CHANGING SEASONS

Smoke from the chimney upward flies, While lowering clouds o'erspread the skies,

The mist is thick and damp and chill The snow has melted on the hill.

The buds have all taken their flight Nor is a single one in sight, The streets with sleet are covered all So easy it would be to fall.

How dismal gloomy seems the day When clouds have hid the sun away Yet their's a sun behind the cloud Tho clouds do still that sun enshroud

But when the sun peeps forth today Twill drive the snow and clouds away And when it does it will be found That spring is lingering close around.

Bright happy days, eternal spring Will grass upshoot and flowers bring Oh joyous day, oh happy hour When first we see Spring's opening flower!

We welcome back the springtime hours That bring a warmth and thunder showers

We welcome back the sweet song bird With sweetest music ever heard.

Who does not love returning Spring? Who is so grumpy not to sing? Not I, dear friend, for I rejoice And gladly say, Spring is my choice.

All seasons have their parts 'tis true And Summer may the best suit you While Autumn may your friend sus. tain

And winter others entertain.

But for myself, surveying all Spring, Summer, Winter, also Fall The finest season of the year Is Spring, when bursting flowers appear. W. J. H. 6-22-40

Once again the people of Carroll County have gone over the top. We, of the Children's Aid Organization want to thank each loyal supporter from the bottom of our hearts for your continued and growing interest in the work we are doing and your generous response to our campaign, which we consider a note of confidence. We appreciate your living up to the reputation of that Carroll County has among the counties of our State and we are proud to be a part of such a people.

We also want to thank those tireless workers who have given so generously of themselves and their time to make our success such an outstanding one—the district chairmen, the solicitors, and workers who helped us not once, but many times. May we add our gratitude to your pride in a big job—well done.

The happiness and well being of little children who will receive needed care and food and love, only because you have given to them will be your richest rewards.

WAR CLOUDS

The clouds are flying high today, The wind is in the South by East, All nature is in bold array, Abundant crops and luscious feasts.

Tis a pleasant world to live in When all things are as free We wonder what is given, Things that are so must be.

Peace thru United Nations Is promised us today But Stalin in his station, Stands boldly in the way.

What will the end of this be, Is asked by every one? War doubtless will come to be Before the thing is done.

We all do hope for peace today The war clouds high have flown. How can we stop this mad array? The answer is not known.

W. J. H. 1948.

SHORT STORY

Nancy, Don't Fret

By
ELLIS K. BALDWIN

I HAD just put little Caroline to bed, hoping she'd sleep through until morning when shuffling down the sidewalk came Gus Olsen. I saw him before my young doctor-husband did. Gus was the first half of a patent medicine testimonial before the great transformation. His face resembled a cathedral gargoyle. His stomach ailment was known all over town, still he swore he would never go to a doctor. "Not one of them would be able to help me," he boasted.

When Gus retired from the railroad he took up his post on his porch, hailing every passerby to discuss his symptoms.

Panicky, I realized if Charlie should prescribe something that didn't cure, Gus with his porch lectures would spoil the doctor's chances for building a practice.

"Charlie," I said breathlessly, "I'll tell him you have an emergency.
Go out and hitch up Dinah." I'd stopped counting the times Charlie harnessed the horse to roll out of the yard like he was headed for a fire. "It's exciting for the neighborhood kids," Charlie would chuckle.

It didn't mean a thing. The doctor was just putting on an act. Half an hour later you'd hear the crunch of the wheels on the driveway.

Charlie was saying, "I'm fed up with whirlwind buggy rides. Besides, the neighbors are starting to wonder where I go."

GUS was walking slowly, hunched over, hand on his stomach. I found myself clinging to Charlie's hand like a drowning woman.

"Let go of me, darling," the doctor said almost angrily. "I must greet our new patient."

I whispered desperately, "Darling, you just can't face this old gossip."

Suddenly the doctor was calling out, "Good evening, Mr. Olsen.
Won't you come in?"

It took Gus a long time to tell his story. I heard the doctor clear his throat a number of times while he let Gus recite his history. Then Charlie began using those long technical terms he'd been boning up on these nights when he held office hours and no one came in. "All of a sudden, I heard Gus shout angrily,
"Listen here, Doc, you can't tell me that." Goose pimples popped out on my arms. Charlie couldn't afford to get Gus down on him.

Then Charlie's voice droned on seemingly unperturbed by Gus' shouting. From where I sat I couldn't make out what he was saying. It seemed hours before the office door swung open.

"You're kind of young," Gus was

"You've got me flabbergasted," Gus said.

telling the doctor. "Nothing seems to have helped me. Figured you couldn't put me through any more agony but what you've just said has got me flabbergasted."

Gus moved off into the night.
The doctor didn't say anything. I stood it as long as I could. "Charlie, what did you give him?"

"It's a tough case," the doctor grunted, employing the deep bass notes he was learning to use.

"Absolutely nothing. If you must know, I told him he was a hypochondriac. Told him there was absolutely nothing wrong with him but if he didn't stop glutting himself with all these patent medicines he shortly would turn into a medicine bottle."

BUT all that was years ago. Now the impatient honking of a motor horn brought me tobogganing back down the years. Out at the curb was Caroline, a grown woman now, ready to drive her father down to his office in the medical building. The office would be jammed because Gus Olsen, rocking steadily on his porch during the years, repeated proudly again and again to his passing friends, "I'm a hypochondriac, yes sir, a hypochondriac."

Invariably he'd add, "If you got any bad symptoms and you want to know quickly what they are, there's a young doctor down the street..."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

By DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: The Book of Job.
DEVOTIONAL READING: Job 23:3-10.

Drama in the Bible

Lesson for November 7, 1948

THOMAS CARLYLE, a crusty dyspeptic but a literary artist of no small skill, was visiting a Christian friend. In the morning at family prayers (so the story goes) his host put into his hands a copy of the Bible and asked him to read a chapter. Carlyle opened at the first chapter of Job; read it—read on to the next and the next—and refused to stop reading till he had finished all 42 chapters.

Dr. Foreman

Job is like that. It is a book you hate to put down. In all the Bible it is the outstanding example of the drama; a drama of conflict in which the opposing forces are not people as much as ideas.

The Characters

THE characters at first are three: God, Satan and a man named Job. Job is a good man, in fact God calls him perfect. He is also prosperous, and thereby hangs the tale. For one fateful day God and Satan have a conversation about this man. The Lord inquires if Satan has seen him, and how good he is. Oh yes, Satan says airily, he has seen him, but he does not think highly of his "goodness." He is too well paid for it. He has a large and happy family, and has immense wealth; why shouldn't he be good? Take away his prosperity and he will curse you to your face, Satan sneers.

So God lets Satan work his malice on the man. In a terrible series of disasters, one rushing on another's heels everything Job has owned vanishes. His children are killed by storm and fire, and Job is left a childless, penniless man. But Job does not complain; his faith in God still does not waver.

So when next Satan reports to God, the Almighty asks again: Did you see my servant Job? He holds fast to his integrity. Ah, yes, sneers the unbelieving fiend. Yes, but he still has his health. He can have another family, another fortune. Make life itself so miserable that he will long to die, and then you will see his goodness vanish, then he surely will curse you to your face.

So God let Satan do his worst—Do all you can to him, God says, only leave him alive. And then Job is made horribly and painfully ill, he cannot sleep for the torture of boils covering him from head to foot. Three of his friends come to visit him. For seven days they sit in silence, and then begins a great debate with Job on one side and his friends on the other: Why must such things be? Why must good people suffer?

Was Job Real?

DON'T ask: Was Job a real character, or a made-up one like Hamlet and Macbeth? It is very likely there was once upon a time some man by that name who suffered in that way, and that he had friends, not too sympathetic, who talked it over with him.

As Hamlet and Macbeth were historical characters, whom Shakespeare used with high art to express profound ideas, so the author of Job may well have used the trials of some man he knew, or knew of, to express truths about a problem as profound and widespread as the human race.

For Job most surely is real: his local name may be Smith or Jones, and he may be living just around the corner from you. Indeed, sooner or later every man's name is Job. Sooner or later, every thoughtful person has to face the tragedy of human suffering: Why must such things be?

Suffering Is Test

THERE is, however, one solution which comes out in the course of the drama. It is not a theoretical solution; that is, it does not altogether answer the question, WHY must men suffer? It does tell us WHAT we can do about it.

Suffering is a test: A test of man's faith and real goodness. "When he hath tried me, I shall come forth as gold," Job says. (23:10.) The test of a ship is not the quiet waters of the harbor but the roaring open sea; the test of a man is not comfort but stress and pain.

To have faith in God only when we are well-fed and softly cushioned is not faith at its best. Faith and goodness prove their reality only when they hold together even when torn by the nails of a cross.

Do Not Minimize on When Planning a Bathroom

When planning a bathroom, don't short-cut on space needs. For safety and convenience, every bathroom needs space for the door to open full width, space enough between fixtures for a person to move around and clean them easily, and adequate space for storage cabinets and towel rods.

The minimum spaces around fixtures are given here, with the added comment that more space is desirable, if it can be arranged.

Two feet between the front of any fixture and the wall across from it; one-and-a-half feet between the front of the lavatory and the front of the water closet; a floor area of 30 inches along the side of the bathtub by 20 inches, for a person to clean the tub.

At sides of fixtures, for cleaning there should be at least: two inches between closet tank and lavatory, three inches between closet tank and tub; four inches between closet tank and wall at side of it; six inches between lavatory and wall.

Make cut-outs of brown paper or newspaper exactly the size of the size of the fixtures selected. Then arrange the cut-outs on the floor of the room to be used for a bathroom, or on a floor space of the same size, until the best arrangement is found.

New Use for Isotopes

Radioactive isotopes of sodium and phosphorus have been used to treat leukemia, a disease in which the bone marrow, spleen and lymph make too many white corpuscles.

Milk for Throat Irritation

Workers in coal and iron works in North Derbyshire, England, drink milk to soothe the throat irritation caused by the dusty atmosphere. More and better work also results.

Isotopes in Industry

Industry is using isotopes in many ways—to find new sources of oil, to check leaks in high pressure pipes carrying dangerous gases, to detect flaws in heavy castings for chemical analysis.

Color-Blind Men

Six million males in the U. S. are partially or completely color-blind; those engaged in transportation are responsible for an increased number of accidents.

Carpet Beetles and Moths Routed by DDT Oil Spray

Toxic qualities of DDT may make its use in many places questionable, but there are still many places where the insecticide can be used to advantage.

Jack Lomax, extension entomologist, University of Nebraska, suggests that cleaning of clothes closets can be followed up with a DDT spray on the walls, woodwork, baseboards, and shelves. Such a spray gives protection against clothes moths and carpet beetles.

An oil spray is best because it does not leave the white deposit the water spray does. It should be a residual spray rather than aerosol bombs or space sprays if it is to be effective over many months. Aerosol spray kills flying insects or those which happen to be exposed at the time, but has no lasting effect.

DDT can be sprayed lightly on wool clothing without injuring the fabric. Too much solution may show up as whitish traces on dark clothing, but this can be removed by brushing or dry cleaning.

DDT protects clothing hanging in closets, but moth flakes or crystals are advised for clothing stored in bags, trunks or other containers where fumigating effects are desired. Added protection is given stored clothing by spraying them and their container with DDT.

Good Care in Laundering Linen Handkerchiefs Urged

With linen and other fine fabrics costing so much these days, homemakers find linen handkerchiefs are a prized possession. Good care in buying and laundering will extend the life of handkerchiefs considerably, says Miss Helen Rocke, extension clothing specialist.

Buy the handkerchief with the even and compact weave and weight for longer life, she suggests. Embroidered initials, open work and hand-hemmed stitching make a prettier and more costly handkerchief, but these things also make a more fragile item. The first break often comes at the hem-stitching where fabric is thinner, or around the initials where the embroidery is heavier than surrounding linen. Hand-rolled edges are less sturdy than stitched hems.

When handkerchiefs are laundered in the machine with other clothing it is a good idea to tie them in a loose cheesecloth bag. This saves wear and tear in washing and getting caught in wringer rollers. In pinning handkerchiefs up to dry, pin them on top of a towel, leaving them only until dry. Flapping in the wind makes for much wear and tear on handkerchiefs.

Eliminating Moles

To kill moles quickly, a rubber hose should be attached to the exhaust pipe of an automobile. The joint should be made tight by strapping with electrical tape. The other end of the hose should be inserted in the mole hole, and the motor allowed to run for five minutes. To concentrate the fumes, a damp cloth should be placed tightly around the hose where it enters the ground.

"I've called for a parcel addressed to Mr. Smith," the man announced in the village post office.

"Oh, 'ave 'ee," replied the postmaster. "But 'ow do Oi know 'ee are Mr. Smith?"

"Why, have a look at this," the man answered, taking out a photograph of himself. "That looks like me, doesn't it?"

"Ah, so it do," answered the postmaster, and handed over the parcel.

But Always Be a Good Sport

This year hunters should exercise more courtesy in the field than ever before and experienced hunters should go out of their way to teach the fundamentals of hunting etiquette and hunting safety to the expected record number of nimrods who will go shooting for the first time.

That's the advice of Herb Parsons, reputed to be one of the nation's fastest gun handlers and exhibition shooters, who suggests 10 specific ways hunters can win the friendship of farmers. Every sensible man will want to do everything he can to educate the newcomers to America's No. 1 fall sport, says Parsons.

Most hunters know that most of the game taken in America is shot on the private property of farmers.

The pleasant relationship between farmer and hunter is one of the unique traditions which has helped make the United States the only country on earth today where hunting is still a sport of the masses. Elsewhere, where there is game, hunting is the sport of the wealthy

An Allegory

In the midst of a forest there was a shrewd mouse-trap manufacturer who turned out a dependable item. His was a home industry. Son Joe worked hard for long hours making steel springs by hand. Mother kept the books and wrote the letters. Dad did the assembly work and finishing. There were no sales problems. Customers already had beaten a path to his door—and formed a waiting line.

But there was beefing in the line. Deliveries were slow and service was bad. Finally one day, in a stack of third-class mail, Mom found an advertisement for spring-winding machines. It was very timely because Joe's work-bench was the bottle-neck. Nobody else could make springs and he was always rushed to keep up with Dad. So Dad bought Joe a spring-winding machine.

Industrial Unrest

Turning out a better trap than ever, and a lot more per day, business was fine. Prosperity came. Dad was flush, declared Saturday afternoons off, and raised pay all the way around. About the time the general good feeling was at its height, Joe married a cute little communistic viewpoint. Then it was that the rodent extermination industry started to undergo complete reorganization.

The little c.v. convinced Joe that he ought to have a half interest in the business, and there wasn't much Dad could do about it. After the 50-50 partnership was formed, the c.v. started telling Mom off right regularly, making quips about faked accounts, and gifts from buyers, to shock the F.T.C. Mom had to keep books with the c.v. looking over her shoulder, eating an apple.

Industrial Strife

At length the junior partner made bold to demand a spot on the payroll for the c.v., at Mom's pay, with authority to watch Mom and keep her honest. That was the day the spring-winding machine broke down. Repairing it seemed quite useless to Dad, what with a shop full of headaches, padded payrolls, no profits, and all departments working at cross purposes. He'd just quit!

Retiring from active duty (but retaining an interest) Dad pulled out and took Mom on a fishing trip. New people had to be hired at top scale to operate the finishing department and run the office. Joe missed a few payments on the new spring-winding machine he'd bought on credit after junking the old one. Now nobody but little c.v. could think up a way out of the dilemma.

Such a Brilliance

Here was the solution c.v. worked out: Raise wages again, all along the line, and boost the price of traps. Even Joe favored it, and he was general manager now. It was done. The very next buyer showed an unpleasant reaction. Word drifted back along the line of buyers which melted down to a third of its average length. Joe ran after the customers but didn't catch many.

That was Friday. Early Monday morning a man of few words came in a truck with some unpaid installment notes. He took the spring-winding machine away, leaving the whole crew wondering where to go to look for a job. Some say the machine was offered to Dad, cheap, but he was not interested. By this time, old crafty Dad was busy with research on an odorless electronic, destined, in due time, to put mouse-traps off the market entirely.

sons says that sportsmen should paste the following 10 tips in their hats and remember them when they get "Betsey" out of storage and take to the hunting field:

1. Ask permission of the farmer before hunting.
2. Share your bag with him.
3. Follow the rules of hunting safety and be sure stray shots won't strike the farmer's livestock, dwelling or outbuildings.
4. Use the farmer's gates, close them after you and don't climb over wire fences as they may be damaged. Pay for damages.
5. Don't shoot at barns or signs.
6. Don't walk over seeded fields or tramp down crops.
7. Don't help yourself to the farmer's fruit or vegetables. Buy them.

1947 Railroad Employment

Railroad employment in 1947 averaged 1,352,000, or about 7,000 fewer persons than were employed by the industry in 1946. The railroad payroll in 1947 aggregated 4,350, million dollars, the greatest in history, and an increase of 180 million dollars over 1946. The average straight time hourly rate of pay crossed the one dollar mark for the first time in 1946, when it stood at 111.7 cents per hour. The average for the year 1947 as a whole was 117.5 cents per hour, while the rate at the end of 1947—reflecting increases made effective during the latter part of the year—averaged about 129.7 cents per hour. The straight time rate of pay of railroad employees averaged 74.0 cents per hour in 1939. The average at the end of 1947 was thus nearly one-and-three-quarters times that of 1939.

Benjamin Franklin on Freedom

Benjamin Franklin's whole life was an expression of the philosophy that man's mind ought to be allowed to range at liberty and that there should be no persecution of sincere ideas and beliefs, whether expressed in speech, in printing, or in the pulpit. He first put this into words on the occasion when his brother James was thrown into jail for writing mocking articles against the Boston authorities. Left in charge of his brother's newspaper, the young Benjamin, then 16 years old, wrote the eighth of the papers which he signed with the name of "Dogood". He expressed his sentiments by quoting the following abstract from the London Journal: "Without freedom of thought there can be no such thing as wisdom; and no such things as public liberty without freedom of speech."

The day seems dark and dreary,
And the people they are weary
All messed up is the plan
They are just where they began.
On their journey thru the world
Atomic Bombs are being hurled
At the people-peaceful minded.
What means this? Are they blind
Who the world would rashly rule?
Such are once is but a fool,
Who thinks that he can claim
Everything in his own name.
The world is large and will produce
Ample supplies for all use
If the use rightly applied
To the needs of swelling tide,
Let the people all remember
There is May also December,
Let them have as they may—
Month by month, and day by day
All they need to sustain life
In our battle and our strife
That and that alone is life.
