"A world glimpse of the Salvation Army" was the theme of the organi-Army" was the theme of the organization's annual meeting celebrating the completion of 70 years of service in Maryland, Lt. Col. V. J. Huffman, Divisional Commander, announced Feb. 7. Members of the advisory board and friends throughout the state met in Baltimore, Wednesday, Feb. 13th., at a noon luncheon at Hotel Emerson.

Special participants included Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin, representatives of the City of Baltimore, Comsioner Albert Chesham, Salvation Army leader for the Southern United States, and the National Commander, Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire.

Joining in marking this occasion were representatives of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, in recognition of the Salvation Army's service to the Armed Forces from the famous "Doughnut Girls" of World War I to the U. S. O., Red Shield Clubs, and Canteens of World War II. Special guests of honor were 10 Veterans from Korea, scheduled to arrive in America just 3 days before the luncheon meeting. Delegations from service clubs such as Kirwanis, Rotary, Optomists, Lions, Civitan and others helping sponsor various Salvation Army projects also attended.

The principal address was delivered by the Salvation Army National Com-mander, Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, an officer over 40 years, having directed his organization's work in Canada, China, Japan, and serving as National Commander, U.S.A., since

SENATOR HOFF'S ANNAPOLIS LETTER

General Assembly Opened Feb. 4 with Gov.'s Budget Message

The current thirty-day session of the General Assembly of Maryland was begun on Wednesday, February 4, at the State House, Annapolis, Md.
The formal opening of the session was marked by the delivery of the Budget Message by Governor Theodore R.
McKeldin. This is the second thirty-day session of our State's history, the first being in 1950, following approval by the voters of a Constitutional Amendment providing for these sessions in each even numbered year. These even-year thirty day sessions are limited to consideration of (1) budgetary matters, (2) matters of general public welfare and (3) matters of an active emergency. No local legislation can be considered unless it can qualify as an "acute emergency."

Before these thirty-day sessions were authorized by the Constitutional Amendment the Legislature of Maryland met only in three month sessions biennially (in odd numbered years) except when special sessions were called by the Governor. These three month sessions will be held as before and without limit as to the type of legislation that can be considered.

This session also marks the first time that the Legislature has had the opportunity to pass on the Governor's vetoes of Acts passed in the preceding session. A Constitutional Amendment approved by the voters in the 1950 General Election (146,394 votes for and 81,404 votes against) provides that "Any bill which is vetoed by the Governor following the adjournment of the General Assembly  shall be returned to the House in which it originated, immediately after said House shall have organized at the next regular or special of the General Assem-

Until the adoption of this Amendment the General Assembly rarely had the opportunity to pass on the Governor's vetoes. In the past the Governors had carefully refrained from vetoing any bill until the General Assembly had adjourned, thus de-eral Assembly had adjourned, thus de-priving that body of the power of passing the measure over their vetoes. Following the three month 1951 session Governor McKeldin vetoed sixty-five bills. During the past week these were presented to the Legisla-ture as the first order of business. As of this writing the Governor's veto of this writing the Governor's veto was sustained on 57 of the 65 bills.

Three of the bills passed over his veto (by a three-fifths or greater vote in each house) pertained to retired teachers and increase their retirement benefits.

by a 16 to 13 vote, failed to pass the Senate, being two votes short of the required three-fifths of the ship of the Senate.

The Legislative Council has prepared and introduced a number of bills that will be discussed in this letter during the following weeks.

CROSS REPORTS BLOOD COLLECTIONS FOR MILITARY USE AT 1,225,000 PINTS

In the 18 months since the start of military forces, E. Roland Harriman, Red Cross president, announced last week. Approximately 160,000 pints were shipped to the Far East in the form of whole blood. The balance was processed into plasma.

"While national interest is now focused on the dramatic blood needs of our wounded in Korea," Mr. Har-riman stated, "long term requirements must not be forgotten no matter what the outcome in Korea the defense department will continue to need vast quantities of blood. Many of the wounded will be undergoing surgery and treatment requiring the use of blood for a long time to come. In addition, urgently needed plasma reserves must be built up. Current de-fense department blood requirements are set at 300,000 pints per month.

Since July 1950 when the Red Cross was designated by the Secretary of Defense as the official blood procurement agency for the armed forces, its operating organization has been increased to 44 regional blood centers which are drawing blood for civilian and military use, 15 defense blood centers where collections are made exclusively for the military, and more than one hundred mobile units. These facilities double those of World War II.

Locally citizens of our county have donated 484 pints of blood to the armed services. It is hoped that the February 11 visit of the bloodmobile at St. Paul's Reformed church parish house, Westminster, will produce at least 150 pints more. Included in the latter will be Albert Scattergood's 54th pint of donated blood. He lives on Longwell Avenue, Westminster.

The bloodmobile visits Finksburg on March 10. If you cannot give blood next week, plan on doing so at Finks-burg. Call Westminster 212 now and make an appointment.

The increase in blood collecting facilities and personnel account, in part, for the 1952 fund quota being Mrs. John W. Bankert, Westminster, chairman for Carroll County is already planning activity for the County Red Cross Chapter's 1952 fund

THIS 'N' THAT (Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.

I wish you health—life's greatest wealth! I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer Each future day and in some wayhelp to bring you happiness!

This one paragraph is not for you and you and you but for the family who are very wealthy (that is in money and I think you know just what I mean) and here's why—Your Observer was talking to a man lately who is a land scape artist. I noticed he empered and very tired he appeared worried and very tired and then he told me this, "I have to run around to collect my money for work which I have completed and that means time, gas, oil and the up-keep of my truck. It is not the individual who is in medium einum vidual who is in medium circum-stances but the 'rich bug' who do not pay the laborer when the job is completed simply because we know they are good for the bill facing them! They have never been in want, no doubt and it is quite difficult to make them understand and it keeps us on the run and sending bill after bill! So, Mr. Well-to-do, please think over this man's statement and pay that bill promptly. Regardless of the type of work every man should be paid upon completion!

Here's to those who are contemplating buying that Mighty Car—"THE OLDSMOBILE" It is so powerful and just like that T. V. advertisement of "Rocket Ahead with Oldsmobile"! It appears as though it is going just about 40 per when you are actually doing 70! So keep your eye on that Speedometer!

Those with Arthritis can feel much relieved of the pain if they wrap the aching parts with real woolen cloths! It was nice to meet that real little lady from around the town down in the big city this past week—the one who is just "Shower - - ed" with all those nice womanly attributes!

The "Poodle Cut", Ladies is surely on the wane although I have seen a number which were most fetching!

"JAMES IS COMING" signs like that all over the May Company store in the big city and yet when Your Observer made inquiries about that story even those in all the departments did not know what it all meant and stated they were quite curious, too!

Now, here's an original one for the ladies of your church. One of the ladies presents the apron to the group and the one in charge. It can be any kind of an apron but of rather strong material. Each one then is asked at the monthly meeting to sew on a patch—any place on the apron enclosing a dime sewn in.. Each month more patches are sewn upon the apron until it is filled by all members of the church (The stitches are just bast-The vetoed bill receiving the greatest publicity was House Bill 610 that provided for a $300.00 per year increase in teachers' salaries by the imposition of an additional one per cent tax on corporate income. The made Queen in the death of His Royal Highness, her father, she rightfully has the say about the marriage of her gay and vivacious young sister, Margaret. Betcha, that Princess will not like that at all. Eh?

Recently, a gentleman put this question to Your Observer. "Do you sanction divorce?" "I most certainly do and that is when and if it is positively necessary. There are many couples living together today who are the war in Korea the American peo-ple have donated 1,225,000 pints of blood through the Red Cross for our leading just an existence and who are making their "offspring" nervous blood through the Red Cross for our ering. I know of cases where the wife has been beaten unmercifully by the husband yet she continues on sharing the same household, another with a husband who is a drinker and spends his earnings by as he calls it 'treating the boys' by opening his envelope until the money is gone. Then the poor young wife hustles herself into a job of some kind or other just to keep the wolf from the door and the taxes paid on their small property which she is trying so hard to hold together. Yes, Sir there are many couples who have been divorced and their second marriage has proven much happier. It just all depends upon circumstances if it is one of those hatred affairs. When God gave those Commandments to man, and that one of the Ten, "Thou Shalt Not Kill", that did not necessarily mean not to take a human life with a weapon but just this-not to kill love, hope, faith and ambition for when you do, you kill something far more precious than life itself! When you hear of a wife leaving home—there must be a real reason as there isn't any woman or wife who would leave home if the fire place had been kept burning! I hope, Sir I have answered your question!

More about that one in a later column, Folks as that individual who asked the question may have thought that I was siding in with my own sex—perhaps it is because I under-stand them much more so and not that alibi which the male Gender so often use and so many times I have heard perfect strangers say to anoth-er male, "I can't understand women, I just can't figure them out." And the answer to that one is that there is nothing to figure out and the more I get around and see, I understand that all women want kindness, love, respect companionship and sharing and if you have that kind of a wife, get down on your knees this venight, Sir and thank God for it all!

So long, Folks. Have a grand week-end. Be careful and be good. Until next week D.V. I am, Faithfully,

YOU AND YOUR CONGRESS

Battle lines are forming in Confoot in the state unemployment compensation door.

It promises to be a multi-million dollar battle-tax dollars, that is.

Foremost among the proposals is a bill (S. 2504) by Senator Moody, Democrat of Michigan, under which the the noise from low-flying planes are federal government could match 50 per cent of state unemployment compensation payments.

Michigan is experiencing unemployment caused by diversion of scarce materials from the automotive and certain other industries to defense production. Prior to introduction of the bill by Moody, who is running for project has apparently been speeded re-election, a similar though broader program by federal aid was being advocated by the United Automobile Workers, CIO, whose heaviest membership concentration is in Michigan.

Unemployment compensation is now paid exclusively by the states, which finance it entirely from special taxes on employers.

Supporters of the federal aid program argue:

1. Defense production is causing serious unemployment in some areas.

2. Much of that unemployment is among workers with skills essential to the defense program and, therefore, alleviation of their unemployment difficulties is part of defense program costs.

3. State compensation payments are inadequate and to pay too little to employees idled in the national interest is to impose on them, as the Moody puts it, "an inequitable share the burden of the defense program.' Supporters of this federal aid program estimate it would cost about $200 million a year. Opponents point out the unemployment compensation by all states cost nearly 1.4 billion in 1950. Thus, they say, if defense program unemployment is to increase this year as is claimed, the federal bill, on a 50 per cent matching basis, would be closer to $1 billion than to $200 million.

Opponents of the program also ar-

1. The Moody bill provides for federal payments to a state where the governor and the U.S. Labor Department agree there are areas of unemployment caused by defense program conversion. But the federal payments would go to all unemployed persons in the state, not just those in the distress areas. So, obviously the bill is not intended to aid only workers made jobless by the defense program.

2. An increasing complaint from the so-called distress areas is that growing numbers of workers displaced by the defense program are exhausting their benefits periods (which average 23 weeks for all states). Yet the Moody bill makes no provision or recommendation for extending benefits periods. So it overlooks a major part of the problem it is supposed to solve

3. The Moody program would obstruct the accepted practice of holding unemployment compensation to levels where it will not encourage idleness, especially important today. Under the Moody bill a single man who earned $60 for a 40-hour week in Michigan, for example, would be entitled to tax-free weekly benefits of $40. While working, his take-home pay would not exceed $46, after withholding taxes of $9.60, social security of 90 cents and a minimum of $3.50 for transportation, lunches, etc. So the difference between work and idleness would be only $6 a week or 15 cents an hour. 4. Defense program unemployment is being used as an excuse to put across a federalization plan that has been attempted unsuccessfully in the past by Labor Department and union supporters. Once begun, it would not be stopped. Once increased, benefits would not be lowered. States, with THE SPIRIT OF VALENTINE'S this new federal aid, would be inclined to liberalize benefits. That, in turn, would make them more dependent on Washington, which, eventually, would

Those are some of the arguments that will be heard on both sides.

AIRPORT NEIGHBORS

Air crashes usually center attention on new safety measures for planes. The recent crash at Elizabeth, New Jersey, has done that. But it has also put fresh impetus into too tardy efforts to lessen the hazards and annoyances experienced by people living near airports.

The Convair crash which killed former War Secretary Patterson and 28 others at first appeared to be the result of some failure in bad weather landing arrangements. But additional information soon disclosed that the plane had been responding properly to the usual guidance from landing systems before it suddenly dived.

The fact that it did not miss a runway by some narrow margin but fell three miles from the airport seems to indicate a technical or personnel failure in the plane. So does the fact that thousands' of landings have been made under worse conditions.

But the crash at Elizabeth killed six innocent bystanders on the ground and destroyed several homes. Only a few weeks ago another plane fell nearby with only less tragic regress on proposals to get a federal sults for folk underneath. No wonder that cries for the removal of the Newark Airport arose in volume. From many another area close to airports came sympathy. For to all people living in close proximity to airports the danger from crashes and very serious matters.

Probably it was a good thing to have these complaints spotlighted as at Elizabeth. A new runway had already been started at Newark to take at least a third of the traffic away from adjacent inhabited areas and route it over the marshes. But this by public projects. So, too, has the plan for having planes approach from the sea in bad weather.

This is a much more reasonable answer than the removal of the airport or the suggested requirement that airfields should have four miles of uninhabited space on all sides. Such proposals if followed through would rob most large cities of their airports and destroy half the air transport in the nation. Even so, the advent of jet transport is going to aggravate problems already keenly felt by airport neighbors, and both public and private groups interested in aviation should be taking more active steps to deal with them.-The Christian Science Monitor.

Where there is no sentimentality there can be no true Valentine day. Valentine Day plays a significant part in the lives of youth, also in the lives of older men and women whose fountains of love and affection have not dried up. There seems to be a feeling on the part of many who are growing old chronologically that they also must grow old sentimentally or else they will act like children.

There are three factors needed to make Valentine Day meaningful. These are a sweetheart, a dart, and Valentine is the sweetheart to whom one pays his respects on Saint Valentine's Day. Cupid is the god of love, son of Venus, according to Roman Mythology. The cupid of whom we are most familiar is a representation of cupid, as winged child with bow and arrow. Cupid hurls his dart and pierces the heart of his valentine. Valuting is likewise the name of the entine is likewise the name of the greeting card sent.

The sweetheart may be a lover, a finance, a finacee, a wife, a husband, or a friend. In this modern age when women are on an equality with men, and are as skillful in the handling of weapons, why can't there be a cupidess as well as a cupid to cast the years, have not remembered their wives with a valentine, that they could not think at their age of breaking the incrusted fountain of love and affection by sending a valentine or a box of candy or flowers, for such would appear sentimental, and people would think that they were in their dotage or else fit subjects for the in-sane asylum. An occasional valentine would tend to sweeten the bitter waters of family life, and bring back memories of earlier and happier days. A valentine may help to tenderize the heart of both the sender and the receiver. It is possible in the rush of life to forget even those nearest to us. Life grows drab, even colorless, when there are no refreshing springs to animate the spirit and to enliven the soul. Add a little sugar to living by sending your wife or husband a valentine, and you will find that sugar is as cheap as vinegar, and that the results are sweeter. It may start a verjuice disposition to change into ne of sunshine and gladness. What expressions of happiness! and what smiles! and what joy! issue forth from the faces of school children, spending hours making and distributing valentines to make other people happy and glad. St. Valentine's Day can be, and frequently is, observed as a day for remembrance, a time for general as well as for specific expressions of thoughtfulness, appreciation, esteem, affection, and love. When, on the other hand, one immediately begins to count cost, one then and there puts a fly in the ointment.

There are husbands who,

The heart is barren which is bereft of sentiment. Are not the words of Bob Taylor, in his address on Ken-tucky Red Men's Day, August 12, 1897, during the centennial celebration of the Commonwealth of Tennessee, appropriate here!

"I doubt not that every 'John Smith' in your noble order who has not already been captured and conquered by some fair "Pocahontas' is now prowling around the premises of some old 'Powhatan', eager to be pierced through the heart by an arrow from Cupid's bow.

AIR CORPS HEROISM SPARKS WAR DRAMA

The conflict between two U.S. Marines officers over the handling of their airplane squadrons, motivates the gripping story of "Flying Leather-necks," Howard Hughes' powerful picture of aerial combat in the South Pacific in the last war.

John Wayne and Robert Ryan are starred in the thrill-packed offering, Wayne as a major commanding a group of fighter pilots and Ryan as his right-hand man. Exciting and authentic scenes of war in the air from Guadalcanal to Okinawa lend unusual realism to the absorbing plot, and background the personal drama of the Wayne-Ryan rivalry in the RKO Radio picture at the Earle Theatre, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 15 and 16.

We note with various emotions that Governor McKeldin will appoint a special commission to study the entire public school system and the question of State and local responsitions. bilities for school financing. I doubt very much if this step will fool even the most gullible citizen, for by now the appointment of a commission or investigating committee means just one thing and that is the issue involved is not to be faced, but side step-The question of an increase in pay for teachers and the necessity of building new schools have been in vestigated for the past several years and it has long since been decided that teachers are entitled to a pay increas and that new schools were needed to cope with the increased population. The real issue is how to finance this decision, and this is what the Gov-ernor does not want to face. When he was seeking election in 1950 he told the voters that the sale stax was iniquitous an doppressive. Since the tax made up about 20 per cent of the States revenue, questions arose as t what would happen were it repealed. This was answered in general term and not specific figures. After Mr. Mc-Keldin won the election, we heard no more about reducing the sales tax. In fact, I can imagine that the Governo now wishes Mr. Lane had not hurried ly cut that 7 million out of the sales tax. In all fairness one cannot er tirely blame the Governor. The vot-ers themselves must bear part of the blame for falling over and over again for the same old campaign stories. As for the school teachers, who see their chance for a pay increase fading with the diminishing State revenue, they too must bear their share of the re-sponsibility. If they voted against the sales tax they directly voted against a raise. They should know by this time when the State budget is cut the first to feel it are the schools and

Town's Population Zero

CLARA BELLE, Canada -Clara Belle must be considered a "railroad town" because it has a station and is well known to mining equipment manufacturers in the United States and Canada, but it has no inhabitants.

There are conflicting stories that the town was named for a woman or a cow. Although the town is known to railroad men and shippers in this country and in Britain, few persons in the near-by town of Sudbury, northern Ontario, have heard of

The five-man station that comprises the town is tucked behind the International Nickel Company's smelter at Copper Cliff

Railroad lines funnel into Clara Belle from seven directions, and because the cars from the smelter often carry such high-priced items as platinum, Clara Belle does a business valued at millions of dollars a

Town Builds Parking Lots Aimed to Lure Back Local Trade

RYE, N.Y. - Like many communities across the country, Rye has had a serious parking and traffic problem. The town has just completed a major operation on some of the back yards of the city's blighted business district that is aimed at increasing the local trade by $4,000,000 a year.

The program is the establishment of "car parks", the first two of which were dedicated recently. They are located behind stores on the main shopping thoroughfare. Two more such parks will be constructed next year. To accomplish the transformation the town condemned and demolished 20 residential properties and two small commercial establishments at a cost in excess of $200,000. Then it spent $55,000 to construct the car parks. Trees will shade each of the 270 stalls and decorative shrubbery and flowers will be set in the stone curbs that divide the parking fields into small sections for easier access to particular stores. That part of the program was developed with the help of the Garden Club of Rye which is contributing much of the greenery. The decision to rehabilitate the business sector stemmed from growing complaints of lack of parking facilities. The main shopping thoroughfare is a narrow traffic trap. There were only a few isolated lots near the stores and local residents were going to other communities for many items obtainable at home. Some housewives were even doing their day-to-day food shopping in other communities. With the new car parks the mer-chants hope lost trade will return, and they are doing their part by rebuilding the rears of their shops to form an attractive back-drop for the parking lots. To insure the continuing attractiveness of the free municipal parking areas the town adopted an ordinance that not only bars commercial advertising signs but requires merchants wishing to identify their locations to submit the designs to an architectural board of review for approval.

Taxi Driver Wins Award For Boosting Home Town

BURLINGTON, Towa - Pride in his home town and a zeal for telling people about it, earned a Burlington taxi driver a special award from the Chamber of Commerce in that community. Paul Brown was the honored individual and he received an engraved fountain pen at luncheon with the chamber board.

Brown had as his customers recently two gentlemen who were stopping overnight in Burlington while on industrial site inspection trip through the middle west. Burlington itself was not actually on the list.

After overhearing his passengers conversation about new industry, Brown got in a pitch for his own town and did it so effectively that he induced the men to visit the local chamber and give Burlington consideration.

It is possible now that Burlington will get the new industry.

County Board Asks Notes Of Local Newspapermen

WAMPSVILLE, N.Y.—The Madison county supervisors have established a public relations committee and have asked newsmen covering meetings of the group to show their notes taken at meetings to the committee.

The committee chairman said the request was "not a formal demand" and was designed to see that the reporters all have the story.

Newsmen who attended the meeting in the community of approximately 300 said they would cooperate "to a certain extent."

One of the supervisors hastened to explain that the committee was not a censorship board of the local press. He added that it was appointed to "sift and assimilate the news and to enlighten the general public on phases of the board's

Battleground For Two Ideas,

WASHINGTON, D. C. - Out on a 100-mile limb in Soviet-occupied Germany, Berlin today is a city of split personality, each side trying to talk the other down.

By loudspeaker, electric sign, radio, placard and parade, free West Berlin and the Communist Eastern Sector clash in a continual war of

The National Geographic Magazine, in an illustrated profile of "Berlin, Island in a Soviet Sea," describes what it is like to live with the Communist world just across the street.

If Washington . . .

"Imagine Washington-God forbid!-apportioned like a pie among four victorious powers, one of them a Communist dictatorship," Frederick G. Vosburgh, as assistant editor of the Magazine, writes.

"The dictator's minions hold the biggest section about 45 per cent, including most of the government buildings-or what is left of them.

"Ranging the countryside roundabout, the dictator's armies encircle the city. No train, truck; car, or barge can move in or out without permission. The only road link with free territory is the autobahn from Helmestedt in the British Zone-as far from Berlin as Harrisburg, Pa., is from Washington, D. C."

In Berlin's Soviet Sector, beneath banners urging the people to "Protest the remilitarization of Germany," dark military columns march — rifle-toting men in black jackboots, midnight blue uniforms, and black raincoats that recall the old Nazi SS troops.

Yet on May Day morning, Vosburgh and National Geographic photographer Volkmar Wentzel saw half a million Berliners gathered in a mighty phalanx on the free side of the Brandenburger Tor, war-scarred gate at the boundary between the city's two worlds. Thousands from the Soviet Sector poured across the line to stand with their friends in defiance of their Communist over-

Berlin Reborn

Despite the knowledge that they live on a battleground of psychological warfare, West Berliners do not act like people under siege. They are cheerful and alert, extremely proud of the progress they have

Although 85 per cent of Berlin's production facilities were dispersed reparations at the end of the war, industry has made a surprising comeback in the Western sections despite the Soviet stranglehold.

Much of the rubble left by wartime bombing has been cleared. Salvaged bricks and stones go into new construction backed by the Marshall Plan. Music, art and higher education have had a rebirth.

Moonshine Making Reported Moving into Big Cities

. CINCINNATI—It's the city slickers, and not the country folk, who are adding to the woes of govern-ment men charged with stamping out the output of illicit moonshine.

Revenue agents, who once stalked operators of illegal stills mainly in remote rural areas, now are also tracking down moonshiners in the big cities. The newcomers have added substantially to the bootleg traffic, according to John W. Woelfle, special assistant to the general counsel of Schenley Industries, Inc., who said that seizures of stills during the latest 12-month period totaled 19,644 — close to the rate reached during the peak of the Prohibition era.

"The mushroom-like growth of the trade in raw, unaged and untaxed bootleg whiskey has created a new era marked by crime and racketeering," Woelfle said.

SHORT STORY

Narrow Escape

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

LAURA knew her first feeling of fear when Jud took the whip from its socket and flicked it across the backs of the plodding horses.

She had been watching the 9 - Minute clouds pile out of Fiction the northwest with amazing speed for the past 15 minutes. But this was April, and there was no wind at all. Also, the day was mild, almost sultry. It was hard to imagine a blizzard even in Nebraska.

Beauty and Prince broke into a lumbering trot. The rhythm of the crunching wheels of the heavy farm wagon increased in tempo. Beneath them, at the foot of the long slope, Laura could see the buildings of

The cloud bank came toward them with astonishing speed, hanging an impenetrable gray curtain from sky to earth as it swept across the prairie. Jud stood up and lashed out with the whip.

Little Lucy began to cry, and a moment later Jud, junior, joined in with lusty bawls. Laura huddled one under each arm and said: "Sh! Sh, now!" But when she lifted her anxious eyes, she felt again the terror.

The farm buildings were not more than a quarter of a mile away. Now they could hear the roar of the wind. It drowned out the crunch of wheels; it plucked Jud's cries from his lips and sent them screaming back over his shoulder. The blizzard struck them like a blast from the Arctic.

Laura drew the heavy bear rugs about the children, and bound her own scarf about her face. She could no longer hear the crying of the youngsters, nor the clopping of the horses' hoofs, nor Jud's shouts.

There was no point in looking up. She tried it once. It was like being suspended in a great vacuum with moving, screaming walls. Even the outlines of the horses were blotted

The progress of the team slowed. Jud was no longer using the whip. He sat humped forward, barely visible behind a veil of snow.

AFTER a while Laura had the feeling that the team was swinging in a great arc. A new terror seized her. The road was straight. There was not a curve for miles.

She screamed at Jud, tugged at his sheepskin coat. He bent down and she tried to make him understand. He shook his head and pointed down. She bent forward, could barely make out the right front wheel. It was running even with the whippletree, had not turned at all.

She settled down once more, hugging the children close. Cold crept in under the blankets. Snow piled up in her lap and on her shoulders. The world had gone mad.

Again she had that feeling of swinging around. She fought it until the horror of it threatened her sanity. Then she poked her head from beneath the blankets. Jud was crouched forward, tense, pulling on the nigh rein. She beat against his shoulder.

"We've missed the house! I'm turning back!" She could barely catch the words. A cold chill, hideous fear congealed the blood of her veins. Missed the house! It would be hours-possibly days before the storm ended. They had no provisions aboard the wagon. They would freeze.

She clutched the children against her. They never should have started out. They wouldn't have if it had been a month

The storm attacked with a new fury, an uncombatable violence. It lashed and screamed and laughed in hideous triumph at their helplessness. Time once more stood still.

Laura was roused by someone rubbing snow against her cheeks. She sat up, trying to cry out, remembering the children, "They're all right," Jud said, "I gave the horses their heads. They took us home. Wouldn't have made it oth-

Stiff-legged, carrying a child in either arm, she went through the shed and into the kitchen. The heat beat against her face. She set the children on the table and went to the stove. The kettle was still steaming. In another five minutes they would have caught.

How "big" should government be?

Lincoln was President at a time when the federal government had to take away from its citizens more rights and responsibilities than

But he didn't like it. He believed, with the writers of the Constitution and the Declaration, that our government should protect people's independence, not push people around.

"In all that the people can individually do as well for themselves, government ought not to interfere," Lincoln once said.

Lincoln never let Americans forget that. He kept reminding the nation that the government's vast wartime powers must be only

He made powerful enemies. For there are always those who want to see government run things - and run people - permanently.

We have them today. They think up all kinds of reasons why the federal government should take over this or that business, industry or service. They never say they want socialism. Maybe they don't even realize it. But that's actually what they propose.

Most Americans don't want socialism any more than you do. The job is to recognize it - and halt it - no matter what disguise it

The people who plan and work for a socialistic U.S.A. know that permanent control of a few key industries and services will give government the power to take over just about everything. One of the key industries that they're trying to take over is electric light and power. That's why we bring this warning to you.

Homes for Christ

Lesson for February 17, 1952

WHAT is a Christian home? It is no solemn place, for "solemn" is not another word for "Christian." It is not an "American" home, because while Christians can be Americans, a n d vice versa, the two words do not mean the same thing. Sending off the little ones to Sunday school every Sunday morning, or Dr. Foreman even piling the whole family into the car and going to church 52 times a year, will not quite do it. For church-going is only one part, and the easiest part, of being Christian. What about the rest of the week?

Does Jesus Get Beyond the Front Door?

THE home of Mary, Martha and Lazarus, where Jesus often visited, we can think of as in many ways a Christian home. Jesus was welcome there; he dropped in any time, he felt at home.

Now Christ is most at home (as any one is) where people are congenial, where the attitude to the things men live bywork, play, love, worship-is the same as his attitude.

Also in the Bethany home they listened to Jesus. It is well to have a Bible in the house; but that alone will not make it Christian. Is it read? Do the children when growing up hear the words of Jesus from the Gospels? Do they hear his voice as often as they hear the voice of Mr. Cassidy or the Lone Reger?

How the Home Can Serve

THERE are three ways in which the home of today can serve Christ. One is in connection with the church. Except in rarest cases, every Christian home should be an actual part of some Christian church. A church which has no cooperation from the homes in its community will be a dying church.

The livest churches, on the other hand, are those where homes and church do the best team-work. To take only one example: Does your home work together with your church in the recruiting of ministers?

Ministers have to come from somewhere, and the best ministers don't all come from preachers' homes by any means. How about the boys in your home? If one of them felt an urge to be a minister or a missionary, would the rest of you laugh him out of it?

Another way for the home to serve Christ is in treatment of strangers. When strangers move into your community, or live there for a short time as school teachers sometimes do, is your home open to them? Is your house a "home away from home" for lonely people?

When you have a party, do you invite always only those who can invite you back, or do you (as Jesus suggested) include people who will probably never be able to repay you? A home that prides itself on being "exclusive" has forgotten Jesus' words—"I was a stranger, and ye took me not in."

Serving the Children

A Christian home, moreover, will serve its own children in Christ's name. In it children will hear about Christ, not as a past figure in history but as a Living One. Parents will teach them Christian patterns of living.

This will not be merely something they hear about in Sunday school, it will be the pattern of life in which they are trained from day to day, beginning even before they can remember. This home, if it serves its children as it should, will show them how to help Christ. The children will know about the church ("His body," said Paul) and what it is doing in his name around the world. From their earliest years they will be helpers in this work. They will not grow up thinking of "missions" in some vague way, but they will know and be thrilled by the great story which that single word carries

And the children in a Christian home will be helped by Jesus far more than they help him. Even at the beginning of childhood they will learn to say "Dear Jesus, help me," when the mean word or the angry act are just almost exploding. Even as children they will learn something of what in older years will mean much more, the "practice of His pres-

But no one can learn from the ignorant. And children will never learn these things at home without help. A home does not begin to be Christian with the children, but with the parents. Whatever good the children learn, father and mother must learn it first.

Trailer Life Inexpensive, Happy Existence

NEW YORK—"I wouldn't live in a house again if you paid me." That's how one New England trailer housewife summed up her feelings about life in a mobile home

Her reasons coincided with those cited by many of her sister homemakers in a recently completed survey of typical East Coast trailer park dwellers. Somewhat surprisingly, nearly 50% of the women interviewed went on record with statements expressing a firm intention to live in mobile homes permanent-

The women were pretty much in agreement concerning the things they liked about their houses on

Less Expensive

"Trailer life is much less expensive, especially after your coach is paid for," said one housewife. "It's an easier life, with very little housework and extremely little upkeep," said another ("and no storm windows to bother about," added her husband.)

"Trailer people are more friendly and sociable," a third woman pointed out, while a fourth contended that "A mobile home gives you freedom to move if it becomes necessary or desirable—if you want, you can spend your winters in the south and your summers in the north."

Many of the women polled simply summed up their mobile home likes in the phrase: "We just like trailer

Housework in a house on wheels, say trailer wives, ceases to be a chore-because it can be done so quickly. In one national survey, for example, more than 40% of the mobile home-makers reported that their daily clean-up and pick-up routine took only 25% as much time as was required to keep the average apartment or house in spic and span

Similar findings were gleaned in the East Coast survey, in which the ladies claimed they could do their housework in one to two hours, as compared with two to four in a flat or apartment with the same number of rooms.

Compact Virtues

The difference, according to trailer designers, is in the compactness and space-conserving virtues with which the modern home on wheels is built. Thus 79% of trailer wives interviewed in the national poll reported that their kitchens were more efficiently laid out than are those in a typical house or apartment. The designers have referred to this ingenious trailer space trick as 'making feet out of inches,"
. "Dimensions," they say, "do not determine livability, it's how the

In a trailer home, every inch of space is used to the best possible advantage. Unlike most houses and apartments, the space in a wheeled home is not wasted. Ordinarily unused wall areas, for instance, become built-in cabinets or closets. A dressing table bench does doubleduty as a clothes hamper. One chair may convert into a table capable of seating six people; another may open up into a spare bed.

space is used that counts."

Trailer wives' fondness for their rolling homes is not born of necessity, from any inability to afford standard housing. According to the surveys, annual income for a typical mobile home owner is over $4,-000. That's well above the national average of $3313.

How big is a trailer home? Well, the average East Coast trailerite polled owns a three-room, 30-foot coach. Approximately 43% of those interviewed own television sets. Many have phones, and virtually all have radios.

Typical family size is three or less; children tend to be of preschool age; and the average family food bill runs to about $25 a week.

Lawyer Learns Flying at 72; Says He doesn't Feel 'Old'

ST. LOUIS-At 72, Dr. Norman Bartless, a lawyer, doesn't feel old, and he proves it.

He recently completed 20 hours of instruction in flying and then took off on his first solo. He performed so well that instructor Ray Branson reported that the nimble lawyer "flies better than a lot of people half his age."

In explaining why he wouldn't let the age factor keep him down, Dr. Bartless said: "I wanted something to get me away from my work. I don't feel old, so I can't see why I shouldn't learn to fly."

Too Many 'In-Laws' Turn Up In Accident Incident

LANCASTER, Pa.—It's a small world. In fact, sometimes it is much too small, as in the case of Albert Eberly, who recently had a full of unexpected "in-law" trouble.

Eberly, 46, from nearby Stevens lost control of his automobile and it smashed against a parked car. Investigation proved the car was owned by his father-in-law.

Eberly complained that the lights of another parked car had blinded him temporarily. That car, you guessed it, belonged to his brotherin-law.

Marines Are Busy Seeking Candidates For 1953 Olympics

WASHINGTON—Special Services officers at Marine Corps installations across the country will soon initiate programs on their respec tive stations to select Leatherneck candidates for the United States' 1952 Olympics team, it was announced by Marine Corps head-

The program, in keeping with the Marine Corps' standing emphasis on athletics, will begin when Olympic team hopefuls within the Marine Corps are screened first in station competition and then in All-Marine contests. Winners of the latter contest will then be entered in an Armed Forces Inter-Service Track and Field Meet to be held probably in California in June. The winner of each event will qualify directly for the final Olympic try-outs to be held at the Los Angeles Coliseum later that month. The Armed Forces athletes will be competing for Olympic billets with N.C.A.A. and A.A.U. winners, to whom qualifying positions have been limited in past years.

One person likely to retain his position on the United States team is Marine Reserve Corporal Bob Mathias, Stanford University's great athlete who won the World decathlon championship in the 1948 Olym-Although still a student at Stanford, Corporal Mathias recently completed his first summer of training in the Marine Corps Platoon Leaders' Class at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Cali-He is working toward a Marine Corps commission to be received when he finishes college in 1953. He is a member of the Marine Corps Inactive Reserve.

Three Breaks in Five Months Too Much; Wants New Jail

WARREN, Ohio-"If they want out, they get out. It's that sim-

These were the words of embarrassed Police Chief Manley English as he described the poor condition of the city jail. Three jailbreaks in five months caused

"The jail is so deteriorated that it's impossible to keep prisoners in it," the chief declared Latest escapees were two teenagers who earned freedom by removing three layers of brick with a shower drain cover. Jailed in connection with a jeep theft, they were later recaptured.

Researchers Offer Hints On Proper Male Hair Care

NEW YORK-Here's some advice to the wife who wants her husband's hair to remain as attractive and plentiful as her own.

First, don't let him wet his hair every day in the shower or douse water on it every time he combs it. Too frequent moistening of the hair removes healthful natural oils, dries the scalp and causes the hair to become lanky and lack luster.

Research scientists of Tintair recommend a thorough shampoo once or twice a week for the average man to keep it free from scales, plus vigorous massage to loosen the scalp and promote better blood cir-

The usual husband will not pay much attention to the brushing routine that promotes hair hygiene, the scientists point out But the vigilant little woman can remind her mate that he can stimulate his hair by repeated combing which should be gentle enough not to bruise the Close attention should be paid to falling hair. The average rate is from 40 to 50 hairs per day for a healthy person. When hairs begin to come out in greater amounts-particularly longer hairs from the top of the scalp—a physician should be consulted to determine whether one of several simple diseases of the scalp is present, or whether some more serious organic disorder of the body is affecting the hair and

Cave Carved from Rock Houses 2 Million Champagne Bottles

ST. LOUIS—A fortress-like cave, carved out of rock and earth 50 feet below the center of this city, serves as the storehouse for 2,000,000 bottles of American champagne.

The subterranean winery, which was constructed nearly a century ago by Isaac Cook, is the shelter for champagne, still bearing his name, aging to maturity. Tempera-ture in the block-long cavern is controlled at an even 58 to 62 degrees by an underground spring, and 12foot walls shut out the noise and vibration of street traffic that rumbles overhead.

New Plastic Claimed Tough Enough To Withstand .45 Slug

NEW YORK-A new plastic, tough enough to stop a .45 caliber revolver bullet at 10 yards, has been announced by Libby-Owens-Ford Co.

Known as plaskon reinforced alkyd molding compound, the material is being studied for possible military uses, such as armorproofing and civilian uses that include service in refrigerators, washing machines and electronic devices.
