Editor The Carroll Record Taneytown, Maryland.

a total permanent nature.

Dear Sir: The Mayor and City Council of Taneytown has requested that we prepare a description of the proposed sewerage project for Taneytown to be published in your paper.

Taneytown is on high ground which slopes partly to Piney Creek on the north and the remainder to a much smaller stream on the south. The sew-erage system designed is relatively simple except that one sewage pumping station will be required on Frederick Street to discharge the sewage from the southern portion of the Town toward the sewage treatment plant to be located to the north and west of Taneytown. The treatment plant will be a considerable distance downstream from the water plant and will not affect the water supply in any manner.

The sewers have been designed to carry away domestic sewage from bathrooms, lavatories and kitchen sinks in the typical home and the trade wastes from the few commercial establishments in Taneytown. The sewerage system is definitely not designed to receive rain water from down spouts, discharge of cellar pumps or any other storm water or ground water. If such were done, the cost of the system would be several times of that designed.

A sewerage system which excludes all storm water and rain water is used in all modern cities and is a type existing in Frederick, Hagerstown, Baltimore and other cities. In large cities, a separate system of storm drains are installed which are only in use during rainfall. In fact, Taneytown has a few storm drains now intended to carry only rain water which will not be connected to the proposed sewerage system. The sewerage system has been designed to provide for reasonable extensions of the City limits and, generally speaking, are ample to serve a community several times the size of Taneytown. This is due to the fact that the minimum sewer used is 8-inches in size which has a capacity to serve

The sewage pumping station is automatic in operation and is of the type which has been used extensively in Baltimore County for many years.

The unusual features in Taneytown are the excellent streets, especially East and West Baltimore, Frederick, York and Middle Streets. On these streets it is more economical to install a sewer under the sidewalks on each side of the street rather than install a sewer in the middle of the street with a house connection from the middle of the street to each house. This latter method is being used for the other streets in Town where the paving is not of

It has been economically feasible to provide a sewer for 99% of the houses in the Town. Plans have been made to sewer the few houses in the County at the eastern end of Baltimore Street. However, the Mayor and City Council may or may not install these County sewers depending upon the available funds.

County charges for sewerage facilities would be more than those for similar

Alternate studies were made for routing the outfall sewers and the most economical arrangements have been adopted. For instance, the possibility of installing a sewer along the Pennsylvania Railroad was considered but the exceptionally deep sewer required, additional rock excavation and the inability to curtail railroad service made this route prohibitive in cost.

Taneytown is similar to Frederick and Hagerstown, Maryland, and Martinsburg, West Virginia, in that there is an extraordinary amount of rock very

YOU AND YOUR CONGRESS

It seems safe to predict at this point that foreign aid will experience its roughest sledding even in Congress

Most people around Capitol Hill believe Congress will reduce the nearly $8 billion which the President is requesting for foreign assistance in the coming fiscal year.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which must pass on foreign aid, says he believes the amount can be cut. But he is not sure by how

That is the big question—how much can and should the amount requested for foreign aid be reduced? It will produce one of the fiercest fights of this Congressional session.

Connally seems to find some comfort in the fact that the President's foreign aid request this year is below the $8.5 billion of last year. Congress chopped last year's request to $7.3 billion.

Meanwhile, where foreign aid is concerned, this year is not like 1951-or any other year since this country DON'T LIKE FISH? TRY THESE NEW RECIPES got into postwar foreign assistance on a large scale with the Marshall Plan

Today federal spending is at a record peacetime peak. Tax rates are at all-time high levels for peacetime. tail in March 30th issue of Voters are increasingly linking spendfeeling the effects of higher taxes, are calling for federal economy. Members of Congress are acutely aware of the situation in this national election Order from Your Local Newsdealer

To be sure, 1948 also was a national election year. But it brought a tax cut, rather than increases such as Congress has voted during the last 18 months. Spending for the fiscal year that began in mid-1948 was $40 billion, compared to the $85.4 billion Mr. Truman asks for the coming fiscal year. And the Marshall Plan was proposed and accepted as a temporary program to get Europe on its economic feet.

Today, four years later, President Truman says: "This (the latest program) is a program for getting the other free nations on their feet ... " other free nations on their feet..."
He also says he cannot state how long the U. S. will have to continue this er 100 years old; 9 rockers, mostly antype of program.

Thus it can be seen that the situation as regards foreign aid is hardly similar to what it was in 1948.

Last year when it handled this type of legislation Congress made the biggest cut in economic aid for Europe. Anticipating similar action this year, Mr. Truman did not request economic aid for Europe. What he fense support" aid.

It appears doubtful that the switch in terminology will deter Congress in its efforts to whittle down strictly nonmilitary assistance. It will still be economic aid so far as most members of Congress are concerned. And, as belt and pulleys, garden tools, and such, it will be a favored target for many other articles too numerous to budget cutting.

There is strong determination in Congress to cut the $85.4 billion budget-for appearance's sake, among other reasons—this year. Charles D. Roop, Auct.
The demands for economy are too J. Alfred Heltebridle, Clerk. among other reasons—this year. strong to be resisted by an electionyear Congress.

supporter as Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) has given his blessing, indirectly at least, to the idea of a $10 billion cut.

The biggest item in the budget is over $51 billion for U.S. military services. The average member of Congress is not enough of a military expert to feel he can appraise so large a defense appropriation competently. And he shies from the possibility of being accused later of endangering national defense by supporting big military budget cuts.

Next largest budget item is foreign aid, a conspicuous target.

Chairman Richards (D-S.C.) the House Foreign Affairs Committee says the Administration will be lucky if Congress cuts no more than $1 billion from the $7.9 billion figure.

URGES FARMERS TO

Despite the recent decline in egg prices it is still good business for farmers to start baby chicks this spring, E. B. Powell, director of research for Purina, stated this week.

"This drop in prices may cause some farmers to give up on baby chicks this year." Powell stated, "and we may wind up with an egg shortage next winter.'

Powell pointed out the population growth since the last "baby chick season" will swell the normal demand upwards of a billion eggs next fall. The present market seems to be having the tendency to decrease production too

"The logical result of a heavy decline in replacement chicks," he continued, "will be fewer eggs next fall when the chicks put down now will be laying

He reminded farmers of a similar market condition a couple of years ago, when the egg market broke sharply in the spring, but bounced back to new peaks the following fall. "Good weather, better breeding and better feeding have combined to make temporary supply larger than usual,"he explained. Obviously, this has forced the egg prices down. But the situation offers an unusual opportunity for egg profits next fall, according to most market experts. And here is their reason—some poultry keepers will not raise chicks this spring. So, there should be fewer pullets and fewer eggs next fall and winter. In the past, this has made extra high egg prices during that time of the year.

"Don't be misled into cutting down on chicks this spring," he cautioned, "let the other fellows quit."

Some poultry flock owners were panicked into getting out of the egg business in 1950 when egg prices dropped to 30.7c that spring. Yet in the fall and winter of '50, prices hit 57.7c per dozen, Powell stated.

"The farmer who has chickens in production next fall should have some mighty good property," he concluded, and he stands a good chance to show a satisfactory poultry profit."

A plea to raise subscribers' rates was denied the telephone company.

The first local thunder storm of 1952 rushed down upon our rural community Tuesday morning preceded by gusts of wind up to 56 miles per hour accompanied by hail. After the storm, the skies cleared, temperatures rose and one could smell spring in the air. This Wednesday morning the blackbirds, English mocking-birds and sparrows are holding a spring reunion in the Chinese elms. The head of the house has a paint brush in his hand and the postman just brought a batch of farm implement magazines so we may as well face the fact that spring is officially here with all its complications. From now on it will be job after the other competing against time, to be done.

To some people, spring means "moving day" or "sale day". Either one is ing day" or "sale day". Either one is a mixture of work, sadness and adventure. Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Smith and son are moving Saturday 15th from the C. R. Nicodemus farm to Mrs. Smith's parents' home in New Windsor. Mr. and Mrs. William Main expect to move into their new home sometime this spring. The local papers list plenty of sales but none of the farms in our area are changing ownership this spring.

It isn't that we mind changes-we just wish things would change more slowly, so that we could catch our breath once in a while.

The electrical refrigerator did away with the ice house on the farm and now the deep freeze is making a root cellar as outmoded as the horse drawn plow. The root cellar was built partly above, partly beneath the ground and it was in this place that the farmer stored his vegetables such as potatoes, turnips, carrots, cabbage and apples. The latter being fruit and and not a vegetable. There were shelves also in the root cellar to hold canned fruits and vegetables and plenty of jelly and jams. By building the root cellar in a special way an even temperature of about 40 to 50 degrees was maintained even in freezing weather and the contents of the cellar kept perfectly until spring. Today through modern transportation and deep freeze units, the root cellar is no longer needed. The farmer's wife would rather prepare the foods for next winter's use by freezing them right from the garden and storing them ready for the table n a freezing storage unit close to the kitchen.

The Russell Bohns held open house for their children this past week end. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Myers and two children of Baltimore and Mr. and Mrs. Alton Dudderar of Frederick were week end visitors.

Reading in the newspapers of the nine day grueling of Owen Lattimore by the McCarran Subcommittee one had the uneasy feeling that this was not an American Subcommittee, but one sitting behind the Iron Curtain using every method of the Communists short of drugs and the rubber hose to obtain an admission of guilt from the victim being questioned. It seems to me that the public is showing too much apathy toward the sort of thing that has been going on in these committee hearings. If more voices aren't soon heard, protesting against the kind of treatment witnesnes have had to suffer through these committee hearings, we might wake up some day and find ourselves in the same spot as Owen Lattimore. Denied counsel, bullied and tormented as though already guilty, Mr. Lattimore is almost the first victim this committee has had on the stand to answer back in a red blooded American manner. Less than twenty five years ago a man would kill another for casting dishonor on his name. While I do not suggest going that far, it is time men stood up and acted like there was still some pioneer blood flowing in their veins, and not like a bunch of sheep meekly following the goat to the

Walking through a farm machinery sales room on Monday I came across an interesting piece of equipment made by a local inventor. It was a modern hog and cattle oiler, patented by C. W. ## FARM BUREAU PLAN MEMBER-SHIP DRIVE

Extensive plans have been made to ecure new members for the County Farm Bureau. Edward Derr, Membership Director, for the County has working with him the following District Captains: Edgar Sellars, Man-chester; Carroll Little, Westminster; Crawford, Mt. Airy; Randall Spoer-lein, New Windsor; Hubert Null, Tan-eytown. These persons recently attended a Regional Membership Conference, and have met with their district committees to make plans for the drive which started March 12. Every farmer in the county will be given a personal invitation to become a member. Farmers realize the importance of a strong organization which gives them a voice in forming the policies of our country.

Thou wilt shew me the path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy; at thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

Dr. Hawes had been a psychiatrist until one of his cases caused him to see the application of psychology to criminal detection.

"Lieutenant, don't tell me only the commissioner. How about the business men whose properties are endangered by this firebug? The Lieutenant's voice crackled,

'The business men too!" Doc suppressed a laugh. "The case interests me. But first, your department lets the story out to the papers that Doc Hawes has been called in." The howl was just what Hawes expected. "Listen, Lieutenant, I like publicity, as you may have heard, but that doesn't matter here. I know these arsonists. Play

"Okay, Doc. I hope you know what you're doing." Stevenson had the tape recorder ready; the front-page story in the culprit?" To keep the man talking, Doc Hawes asked who was calling and waved for Sadie to notify the Lieutenant to trace the call, and for Stevenson to start the recorder.

"My name is Harris," said the stranger. "Just an admirer, you "Thanks for your interest, Mr. Harris. No, I don't have much of

New Discovery Should Provide More Titanium

NEW YORK-A young Ph.D. candidate at the Columbia University School of Engineering has developed what may prove to be the answer to one of America's urgent defense problems in metallurgy—the prob-lem of extracting titanium economically in large quantities.

Government authorities have stated that U.S. armed forces need at least 10 times as much titanium as this country now produces.

Titanium, ninth in abundance among minerals in the earth's crust, is useful because of its light weight, high melting point, and extreme resistance to corrosion.

Graduate Student The graduate student is Arthur J. Kerbecek, Jr., who conducted the research for his doctoral dissertation at the suggestion of Dr. Colin G. Fink, professor emeritus of chemical engineering and inventor of the commercial method of chromium plating, the ductile tungsten lamp filament, and other proc-

Herbert H. Kellogg, associate pro-fessor of metallurgy at Columbia's Engineering School, who is a member of the government's Subcommittee on Basic Research in Extractive Metallurgy of Titanium, said that he plans to bring Mr. Kerbecek's process to the attention of that group at its next meeting. The Subcommittee is part of the Metallurgical Advisory Board of the National Research Council.

"The results of Mr. Kerbecek's research so far offer hope that we may be able, in the not-too-distant future, to use titanium on a large scale," Professor Kellogg said.

"The obstacle to increased production to meet this urgent problem is the difficulty of obtaining titanium from the compound in which it is commonly found in nature. Present methods of production are very costly.

"There is reason to believe that Mr. Kerbecek's method may be less expensive.'

Details Unrevealed

Although details of the process have not been revealed, Mr. Kerbecek said that an electrolytic method is used to reduce the chloride, which is prepared from the original oxide.

Professor Fink, who has used the principle of electrolysis in solving many other problems, suggested this approach to him. Mr. Kerbecek spent nearly three years on the re-

It was pointed out that all three branches of the armed forces are eager to obtain titanium in large quantities, and industry, too, sees many uses for it, especially replacing aluminum and stainless steels for certain purposes.

The Navy would use titanium in ship-building, to protect parts of a vessel which are exposed to sea water. Because of titanium's extreme resistance to corrosion, salt water has little or no effect on it.

The Army, too, has many uses for titanium. The weight of certain weapons and some mobile equipment, designed to be carried by infantrymen, could be cut by as much as 50 per cent if titanium were used. Perhaps the most immediate and vital need for titanium exists in the Air Force, in the contruction of very high speed jet and rocket

The U.S.A.F. believes that a supersonic airplane now being developed could be made lighter by half a ton if titanium were substituted for stainless steels.

Highway Race Necessary To Return Lost Youngster

MERIDIAN, Miss. - A 15 mile race down a lonely highway at a speed near 80 miles per hour was concluded happily when a 54 year old woman caught up with a station wagon to return to its parents a child who had fallen to the road from the moving vehicle.

Mrs. G. D. Middleton, Meridian, said that she was driving along the Richton-Laurel highway when she saw something fall from the back of a station wagon ahead of her.

"When I reached the spot I saw this little blond haired boy, sitting in the middle of the highway,' she said. By the time she could get the squalling boy into her car, the station wagon was out of sight. She managed to catch them 15 miles up the road.

The grateful parents, identified as Mr. and Mrs. Morgan of Utah, said they had probably failed to fasten the back door of the station wagon after a stop on the highway.

Professors Claim Method To Make Synthetic Gravel

ITHICA, N.Y. - Two Cornell university professors say they have developed a process for producing synthetic gravel from mud.

Benjamin K. Hough and Julian C. Smith of the university engineering department said they make it from mud, inexpensive chemicals and sulfite liquor, a waste product of the paper industry.

HERE AND THERE By George

The caption for this column popped into the writer's head one night recently, between 2 and 3 o'clock, after sleep had popped out. The purpose of the author of this column is to present items of interest gathered from everywhere. On Friday evening, February 29 Caswell County, North Carolina, held its first Leap Year Polio Dance in the high school auditorium at Yanceyville. Girls bought candy and flowers to present to their beaus. This being Leap Year, it will not seem too unusual to witness bachelors running for their lives and old maids proposing.

Many interesting and unusual facts may be learned from reading the article "What You Don't Know About Our Presidents", by George Stimpson, in the March 8 issue of Collier's. And if you want entertainment by the hour, read any of his five books.

After spending 64 years in the United States, Jens Martinue Soerensen, 84, a resident of Grand Ronde, Oregon, left for Denmark last fall to visit his native city. After visiting his sister for a day he decided he wanted to return to Oregon. Mr. Soerensen was informed that he was still a Danish subject and that it would be nec-essary for him to obtain a visa through the American embassy in Copenhagen. He waited four months for the visa, and then died in the village where he was born. Doctors proounced his death due to heart trouble, induced by homesickness.

Time to Paint Radiators

Just as it's important to have your furnace cleaned and ready for the first fall fires, it's important to have your radiators ready for their winter job. You can make sure that they will give off the maximum degree of heat by having them painted with a flat or semigloss paint. Painting radiators to match the wall behind them serves to camouflage their outlines and to make them less visually obtrusive in the room's decorative scheme.

A "holdup" like this on your telephone party line can rob you and your neighbors of important calls. A telephone off the cradle or hook will cause your line to register "busy" to anyone calling you. And that applies to other telephones on your line, too. Care about this small but important detail will help both you and your neighbors enjoy better telephone service.

Underground story

You've probably seen telephone crews around the countryside laying underground cable. It's a fascinating job, with an interesting history. Telephone cable was placed underground for the first time in 1882. A plow, hitched to a freight locomotive, was used to bury the cable. The cable of that day would not last long underground, but telephone engineers developed cable that would. Today, fast-working, labor-saving ditching plows open the ground, place special armored cable in the ditch and cover it - all in one operation!

Youth Today

Lesson for March 16, 1952

YOUTH today has a hard time of it. With bad examples in high places, prevalence of gambling, liquor ads on every billboard and liquor on too many "smart" tables; with divorce almost as easy as marriage and both as easy as whims; educated in elementary schools where it is considered wrong for the teacher to "fail" or punish any one, in high schools that emphasize the body more than the mind, and in colleges where coaches make more than professorsand where (as two leading universities recently learned) almost half the student body, it seems, admits to cheating; living in a country where success is measured in dollars and where the Christian abureh is still where the Christian church is still in a minority: what chance has a boy or girl to grow up straight and strong instead of weak and crooked?

It Has Been Worse

THE best answer to this question is that youth has always had a hard time of it, yet always there have been some who have grown straight and strong.

If this 20th century is a bad one, what about the first? At that time there was certainly bad example in high places, considering that Nero was the emperor and that many persons actually worshipped that cruel scoundrel as a god.

Gambling was done by the "best" people all over the Empire; liquor was even more a part of "high" society than it is today; as for divorce and marriage, the Roman record was worse than ours; as for education, most young people didn't get it, and most of those that did found themselves fitted for only one occupation: politics. The Christian Church was in a far smaller minority than today.

The Right Friends

YET it was in that bad century that some of the most famous Christian saints and heroes lived. Timothy, Paul's young understudy, was such a man. He had everything against him, but Paul thought well of him, and Paul's standards were extraordinarily high. His life (or ture references to him) had many qualities worth studying.

Let us look at two of the causes for this young man's high character. One was the quality of his friends. He seems to have been the sort of boy who might have gone down fast if he had taken up with the wrong crowd; but a list of his friends as we know them is a list of strong, original, true-blue Christians. He literally knew the best people, not "best" by standards of Roman society but best in the scale of true manhood.

We have a hint, too, that his mother had something to do with this. She "steered" the boy to the right crowd, one suspects —and that was enough.

One of the best things parents can do for their children is to see to it that they run into the right kind of people. This does not necessarily mean the richest or the best educated, but the people with the best kind of character. Youth will grow to be like the older people it most admires; and admiration grows with acquaintance. Tell me who a boy's friends are and I can forecast his

Self Control

THE other reason for Timothy's character came from inside: self-discipline, self-control.

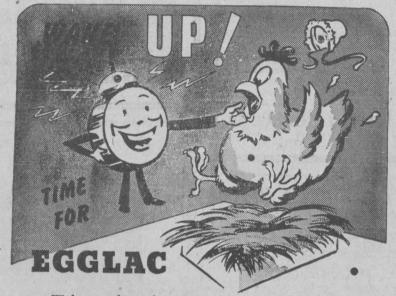

Followers of these lessons may wonder why "temperance" has to be dragged in every once in so often. It's not dragged in; we just dare not dodge it. Temperance just means self-control, in general. In particular, one of the drugs—by all odds the most popular drug—that tends to make the users lose self-control, is alcohol. As the proverb has it: First the man takes a drink, then the drink takes a drink, and then the drink takes the man.

Young people get more than enough urging to become alcoholics. One of the best things one can do for younger friends is to awaken them to the real facts and dangers of all alcoholic beverages.

There is a book, "Fruit of the Vine," by Grace H. Turnbull, (printed by the Lord Baltimore Press and published in 1950 at 223 Chancery Road, Baltimore 18, Md.) which is a mine of facts about liquor—the kind of information you will not get in the advertisements. Young people who learn these things the easy way (by reading such a book) may be saved the heartbreak of learning the hard way.

THIS 'N THAT

My dear child, there are many brides who know only how to boil water not even how to boil an egg as to timing it for the usual softness or poaching it. There are so many good and reliable good things in cans these days in all the stores and a grand meal can be completed in no time and especially would be convenient for you as you, too will be the bread winner. First of all tell that nice young man that you cannot cook. Whatever you do don't start having any secrets as this means any marriage will go on the rocks. Be frank with him and tell him you are willing to learn and any one can learn to cook with experience daily. Now, here's a meal already for you and one which will delight the palate of the most fastidious. Buy one of those cut up frozen chickens and open up the package and place in the dish the morning you go to your office so as it will be thawed and ready to dip into the flour with seasoning to fry. Purchase frozen spinach and follow the directions exactly on the package. Now, the starch can those canned potatoes (tiny ones) which are grand. Place lettuce on individual dishes with your favorite canned fruit and decorate nicely with mayonnaise. Have your favorite des-ert even if it is a small bought cake and a pint of ice cream. The half of chicken and half of the cake you can have for the next night's supper by that way economizing and less work If you like, I will be glad to send you meals for a week's planning so don't worry, little Bride-to-be for it is "Love that makes the world go round" and if it is deep and sincere and full of good horse sense on both your parts, you won't have to worry about a thing.

Someone Found Christmas Spirit in Past Season

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Maybe it was the Christmas spirit. An 'honest borrower' returned $15 'borrowed' last summer from a Columbus contractor who knew nothing of the loan. It came with an unsigned Christmas card.

The note read: "One night in a grill you had a pocket full of money. I needed some bad to pay some bills. I took the money out of your billfold. Lots of people would keep it. You probably never missed the money, but I send it back to you."
