Additional Information from City Council on Proposed Sewer for Taneytown

In order to correct a few misunderstandings in regard to the Town Sewer, there will be no town charge to connect an individual property to the city sewer in the event the bond issue is approved by the voters this Monday. Further, the sewer will be brought to the property line which is the back of the sidewalk. It is cheaper for both the city and the property owner, to do this rather than to bring the sewer in the alleys. Another misunderstanding is about the sidewalks. All sidewalks damaged will be replaced in their entirety.

The citizens of Taneytown will be given a chance to vote for a deep or shallow sewer if the bond issue passes. It is planned to have the contractors bid both on the deep and shallow sewer. Then, when the cost is known the facts will be made public and another special election will be held to determine your wishes in the matter. According to the law passed by the Maryland Legislature for this question, both items, the depth of the sewer and the bond issue could not be placed on the same ballot. The Council has decided, nevertheless, to leave the depth of the sewer to the citizens and not to assume this responsibility themselves.

In passing, one should note that both of our major industries have advised the Council that they are in favor of the proposed sewer system. These two companies would pay appreciable portion of the total cost.

YOU AND YOUR CONGRESS

Television will play its biggest role ever in politics this year.

The television industry estimates that by the time July and the national Presidential nominating conventions arrive, there will be 18,000,-000 sets in operation in the country.

An industry trade journal estimates that, with that number of sets in operation, there will be an estimated audience of 60,000,000 viewers. That is a conservative estimate, it says, because the figure does not take into account the multi-viewed sets in taverns and other public places.

More than a slight hint of the political importance of television in this national election year is to be noted in the furor which followed House Speaker Sam Rayburn's (D-Tex.) recent ban on televising House Committee hearings.

Critics of the ban immediately branded it a political action. Their reason was that it was invoked just as a House Un-American Activities subcommittee was about to open hearings in Detroit on communist influence in labor unions there.

One subcommittee member is Rep. Charles E. Potter, popular Michigan Republican who is a likely candidate for his party's nomination to oppose Democratic Senator Blair Moody in the November elections.

It had been planned to televise the subcommittee hearings. That, as it has turned out, would have given Potter a large audience because the hearings have attracted nation-wide attention. As a result of them, for example, the United Auto Workers-CIO | simply because they don't undertook over the direction of the huge Ford Local 600-a momentus event in

Not overlooked ple who do not own and like cats, in this connection are the political dividends collected by Senator Estes Kefauver (D.-Tenn.) from the so-called Kefauver Committee's televised crime hearings last year.

Moody himself says that as soon as he learned of the Speaker's ruling, he asked Rayburn to rescind it.

Rayburn, a man not easily swayed, contends that there is nothing in the Young cited these points: House rules to permit the televising or radio broadcasting of House committee proceedings and until the rules are changed to permit it, his order will stand. There is a quiet movement afoot to get such a rules change but there is no real steam behind it. The reason is that at the moment there are no ap- | ment. When a cat snarls and otherproaching House investigations of the type likely to quicken the pulses of TV producers.

Rayburn's order, meanwhile, has raised certain other questions.

Most Congressional business transacted in committees; first in open sessions, then in private ones. The press covers the open hearings. But that is not quite the same to the member of Congress as having his every word, in the case of radio, or his every word, action and facial expression, in the cast of TV. carried into millions of homes.

Would enforced admission of TV to hearings wherever it pleased result in more transaction of Congressional business in private sessions-and, therefore, less open, democratic proceedings?

One school of thought on Capitol

Hill fears it would.

Another, favoring more TV coverage, argues that TV would bring Congress closer to the people, making its members feel more responsible for their actions in commitee.

That side further argues that with our two-party system, no matter what goes on in closed committee sessions.

the conflicts of interest will force into the open those issues on which the public should be informed.

Does television of committee proceedings deprive witnesses of certain rights in testifying, interfere with effective presentation of their case or with its effective reception by the committee?

Supporters of TV coverage say the Senate—not affected by House rules -appears to be developing a precedent that the testifying witness shall not be televised against his will. That was the Kefauver Committee's rule.

The other side argues that if that provision is fair, then it should be written into the House and Senate rules, rather than being left to the whim of a committee or its chairman.

Voice Disorder May Point To Grave Physical Ailment

An apparently slight speech or voice disorder, unless correctly diagnosed, may have the gravest physical implications, including cancer and bulbar palsy, the National Hospital for Speech Disorders, New York, reports.

In cancer of the larnyx, for instance, hoarseness is the first symptom noted in the vast majority of cases. But because hoarseness is a common ailment, and causes no pain, the true meaning of this early symptom is often over-Correct diagnosis and looked. prompt attention to this voice change may literally save a patient's life, the National Hospital

Occasionally a speech or voice defect is among the first signs of some serious neurological disturbance, as in the case of a man of 65 who complained of difficulty in controlling the flow of saliva and also a "thickening" of his speech. Since at first the speech disturbance was slight, little attention was paid to the patient's complaints until speech became worse and he began to experience difficulty in eating and swallowing because of progressive weakness of the muscles of the mouth and throat. When seen at the National hospital, his condition was diagnosed as progressive bulbar palsy, the disease from which Lou Gerhig died.

Enameling New Woodwork

If new interior woodwork is to be enameled, the first step is to apply a liquid filler. After that should come one or two coats of enamel undercoater, tinted to approximate the finishing color desired. These should be followed by one or two coats of gloss or semi-gloss enamel. At least twenty-four hours drying time should be allowed between coats and any surface irregularities should be removed with sandpaper after each coating-except the last -has dried thoroughly.

Cass Pneumonia

Clean quarters free of drafts and a plentiful supply of dry bedding are essential to the control of calf pneumonia. It is also important that no healthy calf be placed in a pen vacated by a sick calf until the old bedding has been removed and the pen thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. Another worth while precaution is to raise calves in small groups, rather than to put them all

FEESERSBURG

Last Friday evening the public was given an opportunity to hear the Carroll County public school band and orchestra made up of musical talent from each of the schools in the county. The concert was given at the Westminster High school and was under the able direction of Robert Kersey and Kenneth Sampson. The orchestra played the following program: Star Spangled Banner; March, The Bombardier; Themes from Piano Concerto No. 2; God of our Fathers; Waltz of the Flowers from the "Nutcracker Suite"; Finale from Fifth Symphony. The selections played by the Band were: March, The Thunderer; Overture, the Crusaders, The Little Rhapsody in Blue; March, Steel King; Jim Dandies Trumpet Trio, Entrance and March of the Peers from "IoLanthe"; March, Washington Post .There was an intermission between the orchestra and band concert during which time Samuel Jenness gave a short talk on the musical talent of Carroll Couny's chil-dren and the ability of the teachers of music to co-ordinate the talent into a fine orchestra and band in such a short time. It is indeed unfortunate that Carroll County has lost Mr. Sampson to Pennsylvania, but it can console itself that Mr. Kersey will still be with the music department in the county and the orchestra and band will continue on, under his direction. The people of Carroll county have always responded warmly to the musical programs in the schools and the program in the schools and the program Friday evening was deeply appreciated by the audience, not only because it was home talent, but because the music was played with sympathy and spirit. It was a fine performance.

The executive committee of the Elmer Wolfe PTA met Monday evening at the school with Earline Alexander presiding. Among the items of business discussed were new curtains for the auditorium, and the street lights, which is a yearly problem and never seems any nearer a solution than when they were first installed, which was some few years ago. The net profit from the recent banquet furnished by members of the PTA was reported as being over a hundred dollars. A committee was appointed to nominate officers for the coming year. It was also noted that there is a lack of interest in the PTA meetings this year, due in part to the type of program offered and the fact that Mrs. Arintha Marsh has retired from the teaching profession. This last remark is entirely the thought of this reporter and does in no way reflect the opinion of the executive committee, nor is it intended to reflect upon the PTA program committee. It takes more time than an average person has to give to make up the kind of program that Mrs. Marsh was so capable of doing. The PTA members became use to good entertainment, with their children taking the predominant roles and refuse to become interested in any other type of program, though some recent ones have been quite educational. President Truman will move back into the White House when he returns from his Florida vacation. The First Family has lived away from the White House for over three years. Production of U.S. Mint Tallied for 157 Years

From 1792 until the end of December, 1949, Uncle Sam minted more than seven billion in gold, silver and minor coinage, with a total of 319,502,294 pounds.

The first coins in the United States mint were struck on October 9, 1792, in the presence of George and Martha Washington, the Alexander Hamiltons and Thomas Jefferson.

The first coins were less than a half-inch in diameter and each was known as a "half a disme." One side showed a woman, symbolic of Liberty and probably a likeness of Martha Washington. On the other side was an eagle on wing with the legend "Uni. States of Amer-

The presses and steel dies had arrived from France shortly before. At first there was a considerable silver shortage which necessitated General Washington's contribution of $100 worth of silver plate from Mount Vernon. The plate was then melted into bars, rolled out into thin strips and cut into blank discs.

More than four and one-half billion in gold coinage of 8,342 tons was struck off until May, 1933, when the last gold coin was minted. However, over two billion dollars in silver coinage and about 399 million dollars in nickels and copper cents have left United States mints at the end of 1949.

All told, 31,141,346,843 pieces with a total value of $7,131,813,414.41 in U.S. coinage has been struck off in the past 157 years.

SHORT STORY Jane

By Richard Hill Wilkinson

TANE was a member of a large I family. There were four boys and three girls besides Jane. The mother was dead. The eight children lived with their father on a farm 3 -Minute Fiction on the edge of Gransberry. Jane was the eldest of all the children. When their mother died Jane assumed the responsibilities of the household. She was a large girl, very plain and rather dull looking.

I met her and the rest of the family last summer when vacationing in Gransberry. She fascinated me because she was so sturdy and strong and uncomplaining. The longer I knew the family the more I came to realize how easy it was for the others to lean on Jane. She did two-thirds of the work.

It was interesting (and a little annoying) to watch. I soon came to understand that Jane was the goat. When one of them wanted a holiday he or she would pretend to be sick. Jane kept things going.

It seemed unfair to me. They thought Jane was dull. They took advantage of her.

The more I talked to Jane the more I began to wonder if she were really dull. Yet sometimes I became discouraged. She seemed absolutely stupid.

'Last year," I said to her one day, "I met a family named Burdon, down south. There were six children

I came to realize how easy it was for the others to lean on in the family, and poor Mrs. Burdon had her hands full. She assumed all the responsibility and did all the work. Her children had never been used to anything else, so it never occurred to them to pitch in and help. The more she gave, the more they asked. It really wasn't the children's fault. They never knew anything different. Eventually the inevitable happened. Mrs. Burdon wore herself out. One day she was taken sick and died. She was only 51 years old. I shook m "It was certainly a pity. After she had gone the children discovered that they could get along very nicely by themselves. They found out that they could do the things they had heretofore always believed themselves incapable of doing.'

I stopped talking and looked steadily at Jane. But she only returned my look dully. "Wasn't it a shame!" she said.

I didn't see Jane again that summer. Three days after my talk with her I went home.

This summer I came to Gransberry again. One day I drove past the Whitefield farm and, acting on impulse, drew up at the front gate. Amelia, Jane's oldest sister, was sitting on the front porch. "Is Jane in?" I asked.

Amelia looked at me with wide eyes. "Yes, but she's not feeling well. She's lying down this after-

"Lying down? Jane? May I see her?"

Amelia went into the house. A moment later she came to the door and beckoned to me. I went into the front room. The shades were drawn. It was quiet and cool. Jane was lying on a couch. She smiled up at me. She looked much prettier than the last time I saw her.

"She's been having attacks," Amelia explained. "She can't go on for very long without lying down. We've been doing everything to make her well. We don't let her do much of the work."

"I'm sure I'll be all right very soon," Jane said. Amelia's eyes lighted. "Oh, I hope

I didn't say much. I merely listened. Presently I understood that Jane was spending a good deal of time on the couch these days. Occasionally she was able to go out driving in the evening with a young man from town who had developed an interest in her. After a while I rose to go. "Take care of yourself," I told Jane. "Don't try to rush things. If you started in too soon you might have a setback." "I know," she said. "How are the Burdon children?"

"Who?--Oh! They're fine! Getting along nicely." She sighed. "I'm glad. My sisters and brothers won't let me work much. When I get strong again they want to be sure I'll stay strong.' And Jane's right eyelid fluttered downward as she looked at me.

Niagara Falls Before the land surrounding Niagara Falls was made a state park in 1883, every possible view of the spectacle was controlled by private interests. Side shows-featuring tatoo artists, animals, freaks, fortune tellers, fat ladies and other 'come-on' attractions - lined the sides of the river. The prohibition era produced another strange chapter, with the entire Niagara river a hot spot for rum-running and hijacking activity. Violence was not infrequent, and the innocent sightseer found it safer not to stroll in the vicinity of the fall after night-

1951 Reported Healthiest On Record for Americans

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The year 1951 promises to be one of the healthiest on record for Americans, according to the experience among the industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company during the first nine months. The death rate was 6.58 per 1,000, only slightly higher than the all-time record low of 6.40 for the like period

The small rise from the 1950 figure reflects the epidemic of respiratory disease earlier in the year and the losses in Korea, the company's statisticians report. In three months-January, June, and September-new minimum death rates were established this year.

The death rate from enemy action in the first nine months of the current year was 5.9 per 100,000 policy holders, compared with 4.1 per 100, 000 in the comparable period of 1942, the first year of our participation in World War II.

BERKLEY, Calif. - John H. Kilbuck was recently called into the armed service, but it turned out that the call meant little more than a change of clothes:

Kilbuck was a civilian doing important research on dehydrated foods at the University of California experiment station. Although much dehydrated foods are sent overseas, Kilbuck was called into active service with the navy.

After checking his qualifications, what did the navy do with him? He's back at the same old job at the University, doing the same thing.

Illinois and lowa Kiwanians Planning $75,000 Program

CHICAGO-A unique $75,000, five year research program on the "for-gotten child," the victim of spastic paralysis, has been undertaken by the implement is located in Webthe Illinois and Eastern Iowa district of Kiwanis International.

The program, as announced by Harry S. Himmel of Chicago, chair-man of the district's spastic child located there. Later a plant was started in Perry, Iowa, and still later the plant at Webster City was committee, was approved at a recent meeting of the trustees of the district in the Edgewater Beach Hotel and presented to a leader trainhead of the company manufacturing conference of presidents and secretaries of local Kiwanis Clubs.

The money will be raised at the rate of $15,000 a year by voluntary contributions from the more than 10,000 members in 171 clubs in Illinois and eastern Iowa, Himmel said.

No action will be taken, either to seek the physician or to make a contract with the medical school and hospitals involved, until the entire sum is pledged, Himmel said.

> The program is the culmination of a ten-year interest on the part of the Illinois-Iowa district of Kiwanis in spastic paralysis. It was develweg of Edwardsville, Bryant E. Hadley of Springfield, Dr. H. I. Conn of Newman, Ill., Dr. C. Paul White of Kewanee, president of the Illinois State Medical Society; Dr. Harry R. Keiser and Dr. Frank P. Hammond of Chicago. Many specialists in the spastic field were consulted.

When the funds are pledged, Himmel said, the district will set up a Foundation for Research for Spastic Paralysis to carry out the program.

It is estimated that 300 to 500 spastic children are born in Illinois and eastern Iowa each year. About half of them recover spontaneously, while another group improves with care, but there is a substantial number which remains seriously handicapped.

Doctor's Hobby

Lesson for March 30, 1952

DOCTOR Luke is a man to whom we are all indebted. Without him, we in the church would have lost some of our finest hymns, the "Magnificat" and the "Nunc Dimittis;" without him we might never have heard of the story of that first Christmas night when the shepherds watched and the angels sang. He was only Gospel writer who remembered to tell us those matchless parables, the Lost Sheep and the Prodigal Son, and many another. It is only from him that we know of Jesus' prayer at Calvary,-"Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." Furthermore, it is only Luke who conceived and wrote the book of Acts.

Some Hobbies Are Famous

THE interesting thing is that Dr. Luke was not a professional writer. He was a professional physician. All the writing he did was what we today might even call a hobby; that is, he got no money for it so far as we know, he just wrote because he loved to write.

Very likely he was a good doctor; he is called the "beloved physician," and we hope that enough people who loved him also paid their bills promptly so that he could make his living. But it was not the doctoring that endeared him to the church of

It was what he did in his spare time, it was his missionary work and his writing, it is the Gospel of Luke and the book of Acts that are his main claim to fame.

Luke is not the first man nor the last to accomplish more by a "side-line" than by his main job. We remember David in the Old Testa-ment, whose rise to power began not with his sheep-herding, which no doubt he did to perfection, but with his music, which his father may well have thought a waste of time. We remember Marcus Aurelius the emperor not for his military campaigns, which were masterly, but for the "meditations" he wrote in snatches of spare time on those campaigns. We remember the Apostle Paul not for the churches he founded (most of which folded) but for the dozen or so letters he managed to squeeze into his busy evenings.

Other Doctors

LUKE was not the last Christian doctor who has found in what, for some, might be a "side-line" his finest means of service and best source of happiness. Dr. Howard Kelly of Baltimore was a cancer specialist of no small fame; but he was even better known as a scientist who not only saw no conflict between science and religion, but who brought his skill and his science to the service of Christ.

There was another doctor, a surgeon in a midwestern city, not many years ago, who was ready to retire. He had enough to live on in comfort, and the life of a successful surgeon in a great city is a wearing one. But instead of retiring, he went out to China, and in a remote province he spent his "retiring" years at his own expense, hardly knowing a word of Chinese, but having the time of his life and ren-dering himself if possible more nearly indispensable out there than he had ever been back in the states.

Again there was the surgeon Alexis Carrel, who with another scientist first succeeded in keeping living tissue (a chicken's heart) alive for years beyond the time when it "should have" died,-a surgeon who also believed in the power of prayer and whose book "Man the Unknown" is valuable as combining the scientific and the Christian view of man.

Or there was Dr. I. J. Archer of Chicago and North Carolina, who operated two sanitariums more easily than some doctors can run one office, and yet who found his life's deepest satisfactions in the Sunday school class he taught for years.

Life Is More Than

Making a Living MANY others besides doctors have made the same discovery. What is a "hobby," after all? It can be only an elaborate twiddling of the thumbs, something to "kill time"— horrible thought! It can be something done merely to relieve nervous pressure. It can be something not really worth doing. But what Dr. Luke found, countless others, including some readers of these lines, have also found: that even when we have to spend most of our time making a living, we can dedicate our "spare" time, under God, to making life. Pilgrims Brought Parsnips

The parsnip is another one of the European or Asiatic root vegetables which have been developed in the Mediterranean area. It was known and liked by the ancient Greeks and Romans and introduced into America with the first settlers. In fact, John Smith's gentlemen at Jamestown, Virginia in 1609, and the Pilgrims at Plymouth, brought parsnip seed along. Parsnips are fairly easy to grow and very easy to store, in fact, parsnips may be left out all winter long, provided they are covered with a fairly heavy mulch or if the snew comes early and stays all winter long.

"Home of Sports Fans" Situated in the Yellowstone River valley and protected by its pictureesque rimrocks, Billings, Mont., is probably populated by more dyed-in-the-wool sportsmen and sports fans per capita than any city of similar size in the nation. Rapidly outgrowing its reputation as a 'good little sports town' (Billings has doubled its population every 10 years since its incorporation), the city has kept the original enthusiasm of its founding pioneers for anything athletic. Most typical-ly western sport to hold the fancy of "dudes" and natives alike is the rodeo, held here annually.
