THE COUNTRY'S LOSS IN SENATOR TAFT

There is little doubt that Senator Taft will live in history as one of the Safety Council's statistical yearbook, great American statesmen. His tragic the 1953 edition shows that 34,500 death was followed by official honors workers suffered accidental death off which are generally reserved for the most respected and believed to the pob, while 15,000 were killed by most respected and beloved Presidents. It is one measure of Robert Taft that some of the most unstinted tributes to his ability and character the job in 1952 lost a total of 65,000,and integrity came from men, John L. Lewis among them, who had often what government should and should while on-job injuries were about 2,not do.

The loss of Senator Taft was a national loss in the fullest sense-to a he symbolized the hopes and faiths and philosophies of millions of American citizens. And, of immediate concern, the extent of this loss to the Eisenhower Administration is difficult to exaggerate. The Senator knew this—he said to a friend, after his doc-hope it won't go too far."

put too many stamps on it.

"Good heavens," she worried, "I hope it won't go too far."

tors had told him how serious his condition was, that he prayed to be given a few months more of life "Because Ike needs me so."

What Senator Taft gave the Administration was a leadership that for various reasons, one undoubtedly being inexperience, the President and other top men have not been able to provide so far. He threw himself wholeheartedly into the task of trying to make this Administration a success, and in the process he often subjugated his own ideas. Without his work, the Eisenhower legislative program would have received many more reverses than has actually been the case.

This is why practically all the commentators have said no one in the Senate can possibly replace Taft as leader. That view is not a criticism of the abilities of the new leader, Senator se the privilege of declining all offers for the postoffice at Taneytown, Md., under the act of March 3, 1879.

THE RAINBOWS THAT COME IN CANS

Remember the last time you took a can of paint and stirred it up with a little imagination and some brushwork?

We'll bet it gave you a different slant on life, whether it brightened a part of your house or gave a child's toy a colorful look.

To help make your life brighter—and easier-today's paints come in every tint and hue of the rainbow. Best of all, the modern miracle paints come to you ready to use.

America's paint industry and the American Can Company virtually grew up together.

The paint companies worked out formulas for ready-mixed paints that do just about any special job you have in mind. Meanwhile, Canco developed practical leak-proof containers, with their now familiar "double-clinch" covers, to keep paint fresh during shipping and storage, until you are ready to use it.

New plants and whole new industries were able to get started when Canco developed the right container for readymixed paints. This meant new and better jobs, and a higher level of prosperity for us all.

Yes, by making better cans-not only for paints but for just about everything you can think of-Canco has been able to help all Americans eat better, live better and work better.

We can be proud of such teamwork between our people and our business enterprises. That's what makes America such a satisfying country to live and work in. And it promises a future-"bright as paint"—for us all.

Eighty-seven percent of the farmers voted for marketing and produc-tion quotas last week. This was a log-ical thing for farmers depending upon the marketing of grain as their main source of income. But if the dairy and beef farmers voted for quotas, they were voting against cheaper feed for their stock, and a lower income for themselves. There is no use denying that Secretary Benson has a pro blem on his hands in trying to find the solution of farm surpluses. With so many hungry people in the world, there must surely be some way to solve our abundance of foods besides political expediency and man-made droughts. There are three things in this world that should be in easy reach of every human being. They are air, water and food. At least no one as yet has been able to monopolize the air consumption. But I am sure if there is a profit in trying to do so, there is some man right now figuring on how he can get the air rights. Except in some remote areas of the world, water is still accessible to most people. But food has always been used as a weapon of war and peace. When one remembers that life cannot long endure without food, it is small wonder that one country in exploiting another does endeaver to starve it's people into submission. And it is not surprising that when a person gets hungry he rebels—that is, if he hasn't starved too long and becomes too weak. It may be good politics to starve our enemies but it isn't good sense to see our allies and friends want for food while we have so much we can't get rid of it Where is that American "know how" that we brag so much about? The farmers know how to produce, but some where the economists, and the

In three weeks time the public schools will open again and with their opening will come the awakening that the public school system is in a bad way and that only with Federal aid will it ever recover from it's decaying process. During the past ten years 350,000 teachers have quit their jobs This September the schools will be short of 200,000 qualified teachers. The average teacher's pay is $3310 before income tax as compared with "occupational workers." will take 14 billion dollars to provide all the new school buildings that are now needed, for the expected 35 million pupils that will enroll in September. It will be up to those parents and teachers who are vitally concerned with our educational system to continuously wage a campaign for better facilities. Already the newly elected congress has shown that it will spend billions to kill our children, but not a million to educate them This is not entirely madness on the part of some leaders. For it is a proven fact that the more education an individual has, the more he is apt to think for himself—and the less likely he is to be swaved emotionally some popularism or prejudice. There are men in high places today that would like to scuttle the public school system. And it will be only by the constant vigilance of parents and teachers that it will be saved.

August so far, has proven to be most delightful month. Enough rain to meet the growing crops needs and enough sunshine to keep one's spirits up. The sky today was a June sky—blue as a new born baby's eyes and just as beautiful. The air seemed paper thin and it held an ingredient that made one's step seem lighter. There may be just a hint of October in the wind, but no matter, today (Tuseday) was a day for a walk in the meadow even though a bushel of peaches turned riper as they waited

A well meaning city visitor wanted to know what farmers wives did with their spare time. At first I was in-clined to ask: "What spare time?" But then I realized she really meant what did we do for recreation. When one thought about it that way, I was at a loss what to answer. Our days are so filled with farm and family that there are few farmers wive that have a regular time to call their indulge in some hobby or sport. DRIVING MADE EASY FOR HANDICAPPED

Meet a star sales engineer with Chrysler Corporation's "New Worlds in Motion" styling and engineering show. He is R. F. Fournier of Omaha, Nebraska, who was struck down by polio in 1952. A year later he took a daily four-hour turn as a demonstrator explaining to large audiences how Plymouth's simplified driving controls for handicapped people actually operate. The Plymouth device is available at all Chrysler, Dodge, De Soto and Plymouth dealerships. It is easily installed and enables handicapped persons to drive safely with manual controls. Fournier joined the show when it played Omaha recently. The temporary job marked a big step forward in his rehabilitation, while the driving kit he demonstrated holds hope for many handicapped persons.

Prayer Life

Lesson for August 23, 1953

CAN it be true that some Christians have no prayer life? It is true that some church members have none; but what about Christians? Well, can an airplane be without an engine of any kind, or without any motive power? Can a deep-water diver keep on at his work if his lifeline to the top is broken in two? Of course not.

An airplane that cannot move may look like a plane, but it is no more use than so much junk. A diver whose lifeline has broken will be brought to the surface a drowned man. His friends may look at the corpse and say, Dr. Foreman "How natural Kelly looks!" but it isn't Kelly any more. An airplane with no motive power is a dead plane; a diver with no lifeline is a dead diver. And a Christian without prayer is a dead Christian. For prayer is the motive power, prayer is the lifeline, of the Chris-

Prayer Habits

It is not true that prayer means less when it is a habit. On the contrary, a Christian is much more likely to pray when he has made a habit of it. All Christians, and many who are not Christians, are aware of the great importance of prayer. Most Christians, if interviewed, would say something like "I know I ought to pray more than I do." We do not need to be convinced that praying is important. What most of us need is help on how to pray. We pray only when we are in the mood, and the praying mood dries up on us, so to speak. This is where habit helps us. Breathing is essential to life, and if it were not a habit we would often forget to breathe.- Prayer can never be as automatic as that, but it can be so much a habit that we never need to be reminded of it. The first thing to do, if you want to develop your prayer life, is to set aside a definite time every day for it. Make it a "must," not something you do if you have time for it. When prayer is something done only "if" there is time, then there never is time, and there seldom is prayer.

In Season, Out of Season
The mature Christian will pray at regular times; but he also cultivates the habit of praying at irregular times. Do you have a regular time for looking at your watch? Perhaps so; you look at it when you wake up in the morning, you look at it at breakfast time, and so on. But no one who wears a watch looks at it only at regular hours as if it were a medicine. You look at it off and on all through the day, for any number of reasons. So the Christian acquires the habit of looking to God off and on all through the day, also for a number of reasons. When a happy thing happens, the Christian breathes a prayer of thankfulness. It does not have to be long to be real. When something seems too much to stand, the Christian just asks God, then and there, to help him. When he hears about some one in trouble, he does not content himself with saying "Too bad." If there is anything he can do about it, he will do it. But the Christian does not stop there. In the very midst of helping another, he will offer a prayer to God for him. This is most important perhaps when the other person is clear out of reach, when nothing we ourselves can say or do will help him at all.

Praying Like A Christian

A person might pray every day and often and yet not pray like a Christian. For a Christian's prayers are not the "gimme" kind. It is not that we should never pray for ourselves. A study of the Lord's Prayer will show that some of the petitions are for ourselves. But for what? For purity of life, for forgiveness, for daily breadthat is, for necessities, not for luxuries. It is a good thing once in a while to ask one's self: How many other persons could join me in this prayer? Am I praying for something that is going to make trouble for other people? Am I praying for something which if I get it will have to be taken away from others who need it just as much as I do? Unselfish praying and unselfish living go together. Christ lived and died "for their sakes" as he said. Prayer in his name is prayer in his spir-

Tomato Soup for Lunch! M-m-m Good!

A PIPING HOT BOWL OF TOMATO SOUP for lunch is sure to. rate as Grade A inspiration for young scholars, whether they spend the morning wrestling with the three R's at first grade level or handle a tough accelerated schedule in senior high.

Whether the civil cook is Junior or Mom, the soup's made in just four minutes from soup shelf to table. Sandwiches, fruit, and cookies complete this nourishing menu that will rate tops in appetite appeal, whether lunch is served at home or prepared for the school lunch box. Designs inspired by the famous Campbell Kids decorate the plate and paper napkins.

• Cream of mushroom soup, or, for that matter, any of the other popular condensed soups with garnishes are quite practical to use for school lunch box menus, as well as for home-served meals, if you have one of the new wide-mouthed vacuum bottles.

Plan on variety in sandwiches, too, to add appetite appeal to the daily school lunch menu. Boston brown bread and cream cheese, for example, is a nourishing combination that's sure to provide a popular change of pace. If you are preparing lunch for two or more children, it's winning strategy to make three different kinds of sandwiches and divide them among the group, so maximum variety is achieved with minimum effort. Q. Can I worm my birds individually at 15 weeks of age?

Yes, of course. And I A. recommend Dr. Salsbury's Wormal Tablets, the new form of Wormal that removes large roundworms, cecal worms, tapeworms, * and intestinal capillary worms. THE FIREMAN'S WIDOW

The "Fireman's Widow" is not a widow at all, She's the wife of a Fireman who's out on a call, Someone in distress has called him away, It may be an hour, or even all day. Minutes and hours go flitting by, The Fireman's widow begins to sigh; Dinner's all ready, the corn bread is hot, She just took the ham out of the pot; The cabbage the tatees and corn on the job Won't be fitt'n to eat when he's finished this job. Won't be fitt'n to eat when he's finished this job. She wanted the car to go see Aunt Mary, But that Fireman of hers is ne'er in a hurry. He comes back from the fire all sweaty and wet, He's still at the fire house, he isn't home yet. She gets on the phone and dials the number, The boys at the Fire House begin to wonder It that's the Old Lady or somebody else; She was mad as the devil when he left the house, Over the phone comes a voice loud and clear, One that's indignant and not filled with fear; One that's indignant and not filled with fear;
Come home this minute and I don't mean tomorrow
If you're not here in five, it'll be to your sorrow.
But sweet-heart, darling, we're loading the hose,
The truck must be finished before everyone goes.
Johnny and I are the only ones here,
I'll be home shortly, don't worry, dear.
She hangs up the phone in complete disgust,
When in comes Mrs. Jones, a gossipy cuss,
Her tongue starts to wiggle, the words start to flow
And all the town's gossio the widow will soon know. And all the town's gossin the widow will soon know.

I just passed the fire house a minute ago
And there was your husband, all a-glow.

Jack's not a member, and I'm mighty glad of it,
For the Beer and the Cards is the reason they love it.

THAT'S NOT THE REASON, the Widow snaps back, It's love of their neighbor that keeps them intact. If Jack had the guts to get on the ball, He'd join the Department and give them his all. Our Firemen are human and may make mistakes, But they're banded together for humanity's sake.

Older Couple Can Retain Comfort and Dignity In New Retirement Home
