A TRIP DESCRIBED

Aug. 9, 1954 Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wilhide, Keymar; Mrs. Ernest Shriv-er, Emmitsburg; Mrs. Ernest Ritter, Taneytown, and Miss Mary Ritter, of Littlestown, Pa., started on a two week motor trip. The first stop was visiting friends in Indiana, Pa. Motoring on to Akron, Ohio, saw the huge Air Craft Hanger now operated by Air Craft Corporation employing sev-eral thousand employees. In South Bend, Indiana, saw Notre Dame Col-lege and Stadium, the home of the Fighting Irish football team. Passing through lower Michigan we drove about 50 miles along Lake Shore drive of Lake Michigan, while relaxing on the beach some of the party enjoyed picture taking and wading in the Lake. The journey then continued on to Lincoln Park Zoo, Illinois. Entering Wisconsin, known as the dairy state, we saw many herds of Holstein dairy cows. Saw harvesting of wheat and crops in general very good. Also visited the cheese and butter factory,

After entering North Dakota we began to see some rocky landscapes. Visited the capitol at Bismark, took sightseeing tour of capitol and observed the city from dome. Drove to Teddy Roosevelt Museum.

We learned the chief industry in South Dakota is the mining of gold, now the largest gold mining state in the Union. Has replaced California, yet slowly and steadily growing. Million tons milled a year averaging .04 ozs. of gold per ton. At Homestake we were taken on a very interesting tour, lead by a lady who explained all steps from mining the ore, crushing the ore and washing it by using a chemical colution the seld in collected. chemical solution, the gold is collected leaving all refuse being returned through large pipes to bottom of Visited Mt. Rushmore and saw the heads of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt, very realistic and beautifully carved stone.

On to Deadwood, S. D., to see Wild Bill's grave; he was the man that directed the white men around the Indians; he was a friend of the Indians. His right name was Mr. Hickok. There had been a beautiful stone fence built around his grave, the stone fence was made of red, yellow, green, black and white stone and a dull red statue stood on his grave, but the tourist chipped the statue to pieces and perhaps the fence, too, because they have taken the fancy fence away and now are putting up just a plain stone one. There are men working on this job now. I visited this grave 15 years ago and I remem-ber what it looked like then.

When we got into Missouri we saw where they had a terrific hail storm, some of the fields of corn do not have the corn stalks and putting it in the silo, others were feeding it to the cattle. I believe we traveled 50 miles where the corn was damaged.

We next entered Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and

NEW PARISH EDUCATION BUILDING TO BE DEDICATED

Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Taneytown, Md., will dedicate its new Parish Education Building with special services on Sunday, September 5, at 10 o'clock, A. D., President of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Maryland, will be the speaker for the service of dedication. Additional special services will include a Community Night Service on Tuesday, September 7, at eight o'clock. The Rev. W. V. Garrett, D.D. of Sea Isle City, N. On Thursday evening, September 9, at 8:00 o'clock, the series will be concluded with a congregational fellowship social.

The new addition to Trinity's facilities is a two-story, brick and cast stone building, 43 feet by 87 feet, designed for parish education purposes. This is the fifth building program undertaken by Trinity Congregation during its long history. From the early beginning until 1811 the congregation worshiped with the Reformed group in a union church. The first building to be used exclusively by the Lutheran Congregation was a brick building 35 feet by 45 feet built on the present site and dedicated on September 12, 1813. Major additions were subsequently dedicated on May 29, 1841; October 29, 1871 and May 9, 1897. Work on the present structure was begun in the summer of 1953

The congregation of 550 Communing members has contributed more than $82,000.00 in cash toward the building program to date, most of which has been given since 1950 when definite building plans were begun. Arrangements have been made to amortize the remaining indebtedness over the next

MORRISON, ILL., WHITESIDE COUNTY NEWS: "We believe in our big little city, cities, counties, states and nation. It is with regret we find it necessary to continually stress in our columns the need, the sorry need, for more Americanism-less politicians and more statesmen."

ALMA, ARK., NEWS: " . . . corporations and business men who squawk loudest about our government meddling in private business . . . buy .. envelopes from the postoffice with their names printed on them, paid for with taxpayers' money. If that isn't government in competition with private business, we'll never see such a thing."

NORWALK, CONN., HOUR: "Railroad service is irreplaceable in times of emergency. When automobiles are short and gasoline rationed in wartime, the nation's main reliance for transportation is its railroad system."

ABILENE, KAN., DAILY RE-FLECTOR-CHRONICLE: "In a large measure our tax system works because it has the confidence and the co-operation of most citizens. The fact that a man responsible for collecting taxes proved a tax dodger himself should not shake that confidence. He was caught, and he will be punished."

HELP YOUR CHILD MEET THE TEST OF THE FIRST GRADE

Is your small child ready to start

Chances are you'll say, "Yes, he had his last vaccination last week, and he has been looking forward to going to school for weeks."

Your young Junior may be a healthy child, says Mrs. Jeanne Moehn, family life specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, But what about his emotions? Can he be happy in school without always being the favored one? Up until now the youngsters who goes to school for the first time this September has lived only with his family. In school he will be learning to live and work with many children near his own age. These children may be from different types of homes. Some of the boys and girls will de pend upon the teacher to help them with every little thing—for instance, help in getting into wraps and rain boots. Can your child get into these by himself?

Or maybe most of the children can go ahead with their small duties in the school room. Can your child work along without constant supervision? If he has been given responsibilities during his short lifetime which he could master, he is ready to assume little responsibilities in his school But if you as his parents have pro-tected him to much in all things, he is still going to want and expect pro-tection at school. Gradually encourage him to help himself. Give him some help with the big things, but don't do

Mrs. Moehn adds that happy is the child who has been reared to assume responsibility and to do things for himself in his little child world.

FARM FILLERS

According to the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics there were 2,860,000 laying hens on Maryland farms during July, 1954, compared to a total of 2,760,000 during July, 1953. Total eggs produced in the State in July of this year was 44 million, compared to 41 million in July, 1953.

Farmers Home Administration lending operations reached an all-time high in 1954, according to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson. Loans made and insured by the agency totaled $292,452,800, an increase of about 28 per cent over the $228,701,-000 advanced in 1953.

Chicks hatched by commercial hatcheries in Maryland totaled 6,274,000 during July. This was eight percent more than in June, but one percent less than in July a year ago.

U S. farmers are raising a record number of turkeys this year. The 61,-045,000 turkeys are a 9 per cent increase above last year. Large varieties increased in number in 6 per cent. The previous record crop was 60,868,000 in 1952.

Farm Population Decline Challenge So 4-H Clubbers Told at Chicago

Members of 4-H Clubs from all over the nation gathered in Chicago recently for the 32nd National 4-H Club Congress. The meeting was a time of tribute to the 16 million other farm boys and girls who have participated in the 4-H Club program since it began 40 years ago. It was also the moment of recognition for state and district winners in 4-H programs throughout the nation.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson was among those who outlined the great challenges facing rural youth and the 4-H Club organization, which draws more than two million young Americans into its membership each year.

Mr. Benson told the 4-H Congress that the farmer to today, and of Big cake, 4-H Club members and ten fingers mark 10th Anniversary of soil-saving club project. About 21/2 million acres of farm soil were saved by 4-H Club members in last decade through good conservation practices.

temorrow, faces a rapidly expanding domestic demand for food and fiber, a demand that will be met only if our agricultural program keeps step with our growing national population.

This is an important point, since our national population has grown from 132 million in 1940 to 160 million today, with the possibility of 200 million or more by 1975.

In contrast, the number of persons actually engaged in farming is steadily declining. In a short time, fewer farmers will be called upon to fulfill the agricultural needs of nearly twice as many people as there were in the nation in 1900, when we were much more an agricultural nation than we are today.

Tomorrow's farmer, 4-H Clubbers were told, will have to obtain greatly expanded production from approximately the same number of acres now in use.

Care of Galvanized Roofs Will Pay Well

Galvanized roofs will look better, last longer, if they are painted and kept weather-tight.

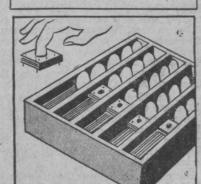

If your metal roof is in need of repair, or will need repairs soon, make some fair weather plans now to recondition correctly and you'll save money in the long run.

Galvanized surfaces, of course, should not be painted until they have weathered several months to one year. Metallic zinc is the best of various paints used to check rust and two coats will renew the zinc coating carried by ordinary galvanized sheets. A single coat over rust will last several years.

In reconditioning an old roof, renail the sheets with 134 to 2-inch screw type nails, spaced about eight inches apart on the side laps and five inches apart on the ends. Before painting, remove loose rust with a stiff broom or wire brush, if rust coat is heavy. Surfaces to be painted should also be free of dust, dirt, grease and oil. Turpentine or mineral spirits are both excellent for removing grease or oil.

Spray painting will save both

EGG PROTECTORS

There is little danger of damage to eggs in incubator trays when the trays are filled, but if eggs are removed for any reason, perhaps after fertility tests, vacant spaces might cause eggs to roll and break. Wads of paper are often used to keep eggs close together, but the wooden follower blocks shown above are much neater and may be used indefinitely. Blocks have finger holes as shown and small nails in each corner which engage the wire bottoms of the tray.

We understand that there is a sentiment developing among the town Commissioners in favor of sinking artesian wells, sufficient to supply the town with water, the creek to be used only in an emergency. We hope this plan will prevail. There should be no doubt in the minds of the officials that the present water is most unsatisfactory to all.

THE DAY OF THE DEVIL WAGON
The Baltimore News heads an editorial in Tuesday's edition, as above. It is a startling expression, but it is becoming evident that the automobile is a machine entirely too dangerous to be given the free use of our streets and public roads, and the subject is one worthy the attention of municipal and other authorities. The News

"Isn't it time for the authorities to investigate the subject a little more thoroughly than they have done yet to determine whether the fun of reckless automobiling is really worth the cost? Yesterday's record of disaster due to this cause was nothing less than appalling. It included accidents ranging in consequence from nervous shock to most violent death, and involved individuals of varying importance, from a negro watchman to the daughter of the President of the United States. Details of some of the casualties were too horrible to read or to be printed

What's the good of it all? When the sport first became popular and there was an outcry against reckless drivers, we were told that accidents were due to the inexperience of chauffeurs and the carelessness of the public. Passing horses would become used to the machine in time, it was said, and pedestrians would learn to keep out of their way. Trolley cars were as fatal, it was declared, but they have become innocuous. Cold-blooded argument this but erronous, even such as it is

The trail of death left by these Juggernauts is wider and bloodier to-day then ever before. It is a sad state of affairs when any community finds reason to boast of its lack of improvements, and yet, if this time of horror continues, Baltimoreans may take some comfort in the fact that their ancient pavements and bad roads have hindered the growth of automobiling in this vicinity. For that only makes this city less a sufferer than others."

Winter Is Time To Test Machinery Repairing Your Own Saves You Money

On the farm of today it's horse power, not the horses that count. A successful, up-to-date farming operation is greatly dependent on the mechanical condition of the tractor, truck, and other equipment. It must be in tip-top shape, ready to deliver its maximum power when needed—and ready to deliver it economically as well as efficiently.

The mechanically-minded farmer can prepare his equipment for the coming season in his own barn or garage. In fact it is practical and money-saving.

In case of doubt, however, it is always best for the farmer to visit an authorized garage where original factory parts and factorytrained service is available tion circuits of tractors and trucks are vital to any operational check-up.

Also, unless the battery in a vehicle has been kept in a charged condition by operation or by use of a trickle charger, it will undoubtedly need charging, since a storage battery will not retain its charge over a long period of inactive storage.

It is important also to check other parts of your machinery for worn or broken parts. Replacement now may mean a great saving in time in the rush season.

Benson Reorganization Plan Ordered in Force

Secretary of Agriculture Benson ordered his controversial reorganization plan for the Agriculture Department put into effect last month.

The plan abolishes seven regional offices of the Soil Conservation Service and places greater responsibility on state conservation offices.

The plan also includes:

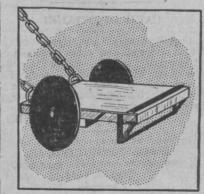

1. Regrouping the various research bureaus in the Agricultural Research Administration into an integrated Agricultural Research

2. Establishing an Agricultural Marketing Service which will absorb a major part of the marketing, research and service functions of the Production and Marketing Administration and many of the functions of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

3. Establishing a Commodity Stabilization Service which will carry on adjustment and other functions formerly handled by the Production - and Marketing Administration and carry on price support operations of the Commodity Credit Corporation.

4. Retaining the present community, county and state farmer committees to carry out the programs of the Commodity Stabilization Service and the agricultural conservation program in the field.

Sod Cutter

This sod cutter is a handy piece of machinery that farmers might build this winter and have handy for next summer. Hooked to a tractor and loaded down with rock it cuts a length of sod 16 inches wide. There is always a good use for sod on a farm: terracing outlets and spillways, farm yards and banks. Any farmer who is mechanically minded could build one with old coulters and oddsand-ends of lumber around the farm.

NOTICE

A number of years ago, a committee was formed to collect funds for and decide upon a suitable memorial for World War Veterans from Taneytown District.

A sum of money was collected and paid to me as Treasurer of this Committee from citizens of Taneytown. However, before a suitable memorial was decided upon in keeping with the amount collected the committee was dissolved through resignation from the committee and death of a member.

Taneytown District has been fortunate to have a group of citizens of civic pride to launch the project of a suitable park for recreation and community activities. This park has become a reality and has been taken over by the Mayor and City Council of Taneytown and has been designated "Taneytown Memorial Park."

Since the idea is in keeping with the ideas of the former committee, I will turn this money over to the Park Board to assist in furthering the expansions and improvements of this park, unless I receive objections by Oct. 1, 1954 from the original Contributors.

CLYDE L. HESSON, Treasurer.

FEESERSBURG

Today (Tuesday) is the last day of August. Here in Carroll County it has turned out to be quite an unusual August We received more rainfall this month than we received in the previous three months combined. For this reason Carroll County is basking in a late summer glory surpassing even it's spectacular June beauty. The corn fields under the intoxicating in-fluence of sufficient Adam's Ale and abundance of humid warm sunshine have leaped upward toward the sky and stand right now as high as the elephant's eye. The pasture meadows have returned to a green life after lying brown and dormant all summer The flowers, after sulking in their beds all summer have leaped out to bloom in all colors of the rainbow .It may be that nature has become confused, even as mortals do and has June confused with August. This wouldn't be sur-prising for back in the pre-Julian Roman era August was actually the sixth month of June. It wasn't until the Emporer Augustus allowed his victories to go to his head and his jealousy of Julius Caesar to blur his common sense that he had the month called Sextilis changed to August in honor to himself. And since the month of July which was named after Caesar contained thirty-one days, August too had to contain thirty-one days, in order that the month named for Augustus might not be in any respect inferior to the month named for Julius. It seems that even the strong men of that per-iod had their childish moments. But while men may scheme and quibble over the names of the months and the number of days each contain, Mother Nature holds the whip hand and it is she that determines the rain-fall and the sunshine and the temperatures. And as long as she can send us such a lovely month as we have just experienced and made our county so beau-tiful that it hurts to look at it some times, then we should be glad that man can only quarrel with the weather and can do nothing about it.

Last Saturday the members of the Babe Ruth baseball team of Union Bridge played against their fathers and won by a score of nine to six. and won by a score of lime to six.

The fans expected it to be a onesided affair but the fathers proved to be good ball players in spite of the handicap of a few extra years and some chair bound muscles. Both teams at times were wild and some of the plays were crazy but everyone had a good time which was the main purpose of the event.

According to the guys that figure such things up, in about seventy years the world population will be doubled. A lot of farmers will not be around to collect a bet but some of them will bet their farm that there won't be any farm surpluses then. And while we are on the subject, at the recent Church conference in Evanston, it was pointed out in a resolution that greed and ignorance are the keystones to all the worlds problems. This goes a long way in answering the question of why American farmers are urged to curtail production while two-thirds of the world population goes hungry. And why our government is spending one-half million dollars per day to stock-pile surpluses when children are going hungry Why? Why? Greed, ignorance and political expediency is the answer. When one stops and thinks that nature provided enough of everything on this planet so that no person need do without food and shelter if it was distributed right, we wonder how the human race so mismanaged it's affairs that one nation or one race of people must continually wage war for exist-The conference at Evanston summed it up realistically and cor-rectly when they said greed and ignorance has brought mankind all it's present problems. But since these two traits are a part of our heritage, both will be with us for a long time to come and so will most of our problems

I have never brought this up with our kind editor but I think he could triple the subscriptions to this paper we were permitted to write umn like Dorothy Kilgallen or Walter Wenchell. You know the kind of column that pretends to know all the choice bits of gossip about people's heartaches, mistakes and double Broadway isn't the only place where human interest stories happen. Every community, no matter how small can furnish a snooping report-er with all kinds of news not print-able. But why deal in human shortcomings when there are so many human accomplishments to write about?

Not until someone else brought the subject up did we realize that a child comes into your home for about 18 years, tears things to pieces, makes so much noise and confusion you think you will go crazy, then goes off to college or a job or marriage, leaving the house so calm and quiet that you think you will go crazy all over

One week from today the school bell will ring again and once more the class rooms will be filled while the home and streets will be empty. This summer has raced by and while we know children must be educated we hate to see school open. It means all together a different routine, but after the first week things fall into place and all are adjusted to the new sche Most city schools have had to adopt a half day period for each pupil due to overcrowding. Here in our county things haven't reached that state yet, but it may. Some people think a whole day of school is too much any way for first and second graders. At times its even too much i

Corner Cop

By F. L. Rowley

ALL was well with Officer Quin-lan's world. What if Captain Kelly had upbraided him for being too kind-for not giving out enough tickets? That was over now and the sun was shining again at the intersection over which Officer Quinlan presided. He knew in his heart that he was doing a good job. Captain Kelly must have thought so too-otherwise he'd have been transferred long ago.

Officer Quinlan's attention focused on a skinny little chap whose face was all but touching the win-2 - Minute dow of John's Novelty Shop. He judged the boy to Fiction be about ten. He was neatly dressed, although his long black hair shot out in every direction. "He'd do better if he stood out in front of a barber shop" thought Officer Quinlan.

Quinlan turned his gaze away for a moment, studying the halfbusy street with genuine interest. His eyes came to rest on an car sitting peacefully beside the curb, nudging a parking meter that had turned a bright red. He walked over. Sometimes folks put an extra coin in the meter without turning the handle. He turned, nothing happened. Looking cautiously up and down the street, he slipped a coir from his pocket.

The boy remained glued to his spot in front of the store window-

"No thanks," said Dick Noonan, proudly. "I've still got money."

all manner of goodies and wonderful toys lay before him. Officer Quinlan watched the little chap with sympathetic eyes; finally with a sigh he reached deep down into his coat pocket and brought up a handful of change. Sometimes it was mighty inconvenient having a big heart-it kept a man poor, that's what it did. But before Officer Quinlan could make a move in the direction of John's Novelty Shop old Dick Noonan shuffled around the corner.

Officer Quinlan had always respected Dick Noonan in spite of what some of the town busybodies were saying about the old chap. What if he did take a glass of beer once in awhile-or even at shorter intervals? He minded his own business and had a perfect right to spend his pension check as he saw fit. He liked Noonan even more when he saw the old man hand a dollar bill to the wideeyed boy in front of the novelty shop. Without waiting for thanks Noonan shuffled off in the direction of Jerry's Place.

"Aye, and look at the big-hearted pauper" said Quinlan as Dick came within hearing distance, "Fact is, you just beat me to it. I was about to give the lad a few coppers myself when you showed up. How about a glass of beer on me?"

"No thanks," said Dick Noonan proudly, "I've still got money." Then the old man, turning his back on Officer Quinlan, started up the steps to Jerry's Place. Quinlan, stuffing the spurned dollar back into his wallet, saw old Dick falter at the top step. He could tell by Noonan's gestures that the old man's pockets were empty. Officer Quinlan made a quick movement with his right hand. Then he said:

"Ye'd better be saving your money for glasses, Dick. If ye'd been any closer to that dollar it would have nipped yer foot."

And Dick Noonan stared in genuine surprise at the dollar bill that lay at his feet. Then for a fleeting moment he looked suspiciously at Officer Quinlan's stony face. Reassured, he picked up the bill and opened the door of Jerry's place.

"Do you always throw your money around like that?" Officer Quinlan turned to look into Captain Kelly's steely eyes. He was sure no one had seen him toss the dollar on the stairs-but Kelly had; it would be Kelly! Then Captain Kelly held out his big hand as a smile crossed his usually stern face: "You're a good cop Quinlan-a good cop. Wish we had more like you.'

And as Captain Kelly walked away a big smile broke out on Officer Quinlan's face. He strode proudly to the middle of the street to direct the thickening traffic. The sun was shining again; all was well with the world.

MODERN "SNOW WHITE" STORY

THE SUCCESS of washing white nylons held the spotlight this month in the home laundering research laboratories of the new General Foods home in White

According to Miss Helen Thackeray, manager of their Home Laundry Center, an easy as 1-2-3 procedure has been developed to keep white nylons snowy white and fresh-as-new. Simply soak white nylons about 5 minutes in very hot water and LaFrance bead-bluing. Then suds them gently, and rinse two times. Tests show that white nylons consistently washed this way eliminated the tell-tale gray and dingy yellow cast which heretofore was inevitable. Among test garments were identical blouses and slips. One in each set was washed a dozen or so times with bead-bluing, and like items were laundered the same number of times without Result! The La-France washed garments stayed snowy white and sparkling. Laundry experts find, too, that white nylon washes particularly well in a washer when bead-bluing is used with the regular soap or detergent. "Always wash white ny lons separately or with other white clothes only," they say "This fabric attracts stray dye in the water even from clothes which seem color-fast. Light colors may be washed together in warm, not hot, water."(ANS)

Reporter Says...

FOREIGN INVESTMENT MYTH: The willingness of American private capital to invest abroad is myth rather than fact, according to Harlan Cleveland, Executive Editor of THE REPORTER. He says, "In the years since the Second World War, U. S. private investment abroad can only be described as piddling, averaging under $600 million a year in the whole world, developed and under-developed — less than American tourists spent abroad in 1953. During the same period we have been investing up to $50 billion a year in our own growth."—Har-lan Cleveland.

TV AND THE DRAMATIST: "I had been wondering, as I watched play after play on television, what it is that makes their best moments—the high points-different from theater or motion pictures. And I had come to the conclusion that it is intimacy; intimacy with faces, with emotions, with words. There they are, these treas-ures, held in a very small world of space, with nothing between them and you but an electrical impulse. It is, in fact, the closest form of communi-cation next to actual presence. . . . This communication—sc direct and so limitless—is open to the thinkers and dreamers and creators of this country if they want it. . . . If they relinquish it, the wreckers will take over."— Marya Mannes. THE NEW MILITARY LOOK: "The professional advice of the Army has been turned down flat by Secretary (of Defense) Wilson. . . . The cutback in military spending proposed in the new budget is based on the premise that tactical atomic weapons will be adequate to any future military needs. . . . So here we end up with a thumping fine paradox. Europe, the area to which the tactical atomic weapons are best adapted, is not an area in which limited war will break out. The United States simply has too much at stake there. . . . In the Far East limited war is still possible in a way it is not in Europe. And more firepower is certainly needed in the Far East. But A-weapons are poorly suited to conditions in this area."—Edward L. Katzenbach, Jr.

Tell-Tale Marks

By Rosa Lee Stuesse

THE day I found out Bob's se-cret started like any other morning in a busy household. I got breakfast for the twins,

Ricky and Sue, sent them to the playground, looked over the morning paper, made beds, dusted, 9 - Minute stacked the dish-• Fiction es, and hurried to the basement to do the washing.

I began sorting the laundry, white clothes here, Sue's colored dresses on another pile, Ricky's jeans over there.

Why did Bob have so many shirts in the wash? I wondered idly, pulling the sixth one out of the hamper. He usually doesn't change every day. Hmmm! The seventh one. Really, I'd have to talk to him about that.

His white shirt with French cuffs, too! I couldn't remember him wearing that all week! It didn't look soiled either. Bob wasn't thoughtless. He must have had a reason for wanting it I looked closer. (Lipstick! Fiery red smears around the collar,) and one beautiful lip imprint stared mockingly at me! I looked over the other shirts, inspected each one. Three more with those tell-tale traces!

Not my Bob! I thought back over the last weeks. Casual remarks that 1 paid no attention to at the time came back to me. "Should I send my shirts out, at least for the summer?" he had asked one day. "Then you won't have to stand at the ironing board so long during the hot weather." "I appreciate your being so considerate," I'd said, "but I don't mind, really." Frankly, though, I was thinking of the laundry bills. Considerate! Now I knew why he was so considerate! "Bowling tonight," was one excuse, or "going over to Don's this evening. I promised to help him paint his recreation room.

I must find out tonight I decided. We lived in a small town, and when I did my shopping that afternoon, I thought everyone I met must know about my Bob, and the girl-everyone but me.

Should I say a neighbor told me, or the girl called at the house? I'd read stories where that happened, and it did sound dramatic, only this wasn't quite the same.

Bob came in, happy-go-lucky. as usual. He tussled with the twins, and they shrieked with delight. Then, oddly enough, for the first time I thought: "How are Ricky and Sue going to re-act? They worshipped Bob.

Then he came into the kitchen. "Hi, what's for dinner?" he asked, grinning happily.

"Your favorite," I "pork chops, mashed potatoes, peas, lemon pie-"

"Sounds wonderful," he said, "my best girl surely is a good cook!'

Best girl! "Using the car tonight, Bob?" I asked casually.

He hesitated. "Well," he said, "yes, but I'll be home early. I think I'll get dressed and shaved now, while you're getting dinner." Tonight again! I had to know now! No waiting till after dinner. Forgotten was my carefully rehearsed speech. Sharply I called to Bob above the hum of his electric razor. "Who is she? I saw the lipstick on your shirts!"

No answer. Then Bob came to the bathroom doorway, half his face covered with dark fuzz, the other side. smooth and clean-shaven. He looked like a little boy caught snitching plums.

"Gee, I wanted to tell you, before you found out from someone else, honest," he said. "Her name is Jeanne. She's wonderful! I met her four weeks ago at Tom's wedding reception. I'll bring her home to dinner Sunday, OK mom? I was worried what you and dad would say-you know, having a 'steady' girl before I'm twenty-

There! His secret was out, and he was relieved. I had to face it-Bob, my son, had grown up!

Growing by Working

Lesson for September 5, 1954

OW I get me up to work, I pray thee, Lord, I may not shirk.

When I lay me down at night, I pray thee, Lord, my work be right.

These lines by an unknown author hung in the bedroom of a man who during his 85 years showed that his prayer was sincere. He was a Christian; and a Christian will think of his work as done always in the sight of God. A janitor of a church was asked why he kept a certain place behind the pulpit so clean. 'Nobody can see it," he was told. "But God sees it," the janitor said.

There Is No Free Lunch

The little church at Thessalonica was troubled with "moochers." The people there had got the idea that the end of the world was right around the corner. Jesus would come again soon, in their own lifetime. They did not see the use in working any more; the house they were building (for instance) would not be finished before the end would come; the crop they were planting would, never be harvested before the Judgment Day. So these eager, expectant Christians just quit their jobs in droves . . . but of course they had to eat. So they became free-loaders, boarding with such members of the parish as did keep their jobs. When their traveling Bishop Paul heard about this, he wrote them a very plain letter; indeed he had said some plain words while he was there getting the church organized, only they seem to have forgotten it. "He that will not work, let him not eat," he said. Help the needy, yes by all means; but don't feed the lazy. There is only one basic rule of economics (as an economist has said) and it is one anybody can understand: There is no free lunch.

What Is Useful Work?

Now there is no special virtue in work, in itself. A man could work very hard shoveling sand from one pile on the beach to another pile, and back again, all day long. But it would do nobody any good. To be sure, he would be developing his muscles; but he could do that better some other way at some more useful job. The Bible's references to work always bring in the idea that the work is to be useful. Work that performs no service to any one is not for the serious Christian. This is a particularly important point for young Christians deciding on a life's work. We ought to work, of course, we don't want to be objects of charity, we don't want to be carried, we want to do something useful in the world. But what kind of work is useful? Paul told the Thessalonians that they should work with their hands, because they were all hand-workers; but some of the most useful work in the world is not done with the hands. Two points should be borne in mind: first that as a Christian I ought to seek the most useful work I can do, and second that I can be most useful in what I can do best.

Growing by Working Work makes the man. Or at least, work shapes the man. Look at any picture of a high school senior class; they look all about alike, and for that matter look like any other senior class in America. But take a picture (if you could get it) of that same class twenty-five years later, or more, when they have all been at work in various jobs for years. Some may be drifters, ne'er-do-wells, and they look it; misfits because they have never stuck to useful work. The others who have stayed on one job or another, will look different by now, partly because of the kinds of work they have been doing. The housewife, the school teacher, the farmer, the banker, the writer, the soldier, the artist—they do not look alike any more. We grow by working. But there is another question too: Does my work help me to grow as a Christian? No doubt the slave - drivers of ancient Egypt grew by their work-grew more devilish; Moses was growing, out in the wilderness of Midian tending sheep. But he was growing more God-like. It is not simply what we do that counts; it is the spirit in which we do it.

FISHING is an art, boy," Bennie had heard Uncle Bill say that at least a million times, he guessed. But he still hadn't learned the art. At any rate, he still hadn't caught his first fish.

Bennie had been up at daybreak that first day. He was going to catch a fish for breakfast. It was 9 - Minute four hours later, Fiction long after breakfast, that his small figure, looking even smaller came into the house dragging one foot after the other with great effort. They didn't have to ask. It was written plainly on his dust streaked face.

"Well, shucks," Uncle Bill said. "It takes time, Bennie boy. You can't learn the first day.'

He bought dozens of magazines on the art of angling, the proper type of equipment, and all the finer points of becoming a successful fisherman. He had boasted to the boys at school that he would send them pictures of his strings of fish.

"Strings!" Bennie kicked at a rock by the river. "Heck, I'd give anything for just one fish." Uncle Bill had been busy, but he had taken time out to show Bennie just how to approach a pool, how to bait the hook, and how to drop the line into the water making only the smallest rip-

He had handed the pole to Bennie once, after he felt the first timid nibble. "You try your luck, Bennie," he had said. But Bennie knew. The jerking on the line had

"Take your old fish," Bennie had cried as he turned and ran from the river bank. Later he came into the house and apologized. Salty streams had washed the dust off-Bennie's cheeks and Uncle Bill and Aunt Peg knew that Bennie had been crying secretly, under some tree away from the house. A twelve-year-old boy doesn't cry, so they pretended not to notice.

"Here, Bennie, take this pole of mine and try your luck." Uncle Bill brought out his own special outfit. Bennie felt a lump crawl up into his throat. He knew how much Uncle Bill valued his pole.

"No thanks, Uncle Bill," Bennie said. "I guess I'll give up fishing for a while." He shoved his hands into the pockets of his blue jeans and dragged his feet over to look at the horses.

The next morning Bennie again shouldered the fishing pole and with but little spring to his step. he started out toward the river. "Bennie," Uncle Bill called. "You try that little pool by the old mill. The one under the willows where it's nice and quiet. That may be just the spot.'

It was nearly dinner time when Bennie came running up the lane to the white house. He was trying to be calm, but his face was shining and his eyes sparkled. He held up a good size fish and grinned

Aunt Peg took the fish and told Bennie she would fix it for his dinner. But not until after Uncle Bill had taken a picture of a proud boy and his first fish. While Bennie was washing up, Uncle Bill whispered to Aunt Peg. "Now don't you ever let on that you know I put some fish in that pond. It would break the boy's heart to know I kinda tricked him."

After dinner, the most delicious dinner Bennie could ever remember, he helped Aunt Peg clear up the kitchen. He came close to her and said in a loud whisper. "Aunt Peg, don't tell Uncle Bill, but I didn't fish in the pool he told me to. Heck, I've tried it a million times. There's no fish there. But I wouldn't want him to think I didn't take his advice. You know what a good fisherman he

Aunt Peg dried her hands on her apron, gave Bennie a warm hug, "I promise, honey," she said. "Everyone has secrets sometimes."

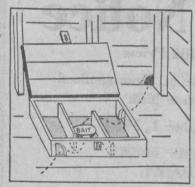

Select and Place Your Rat Baits

Rodents Like Dark Spots, Varied Menu

Building a better bait box or rat trap may be a waste of effort unless care is exercised in the selection and placing of baits.

Some farmers have been achieving excellent results by using rat killing poisons with several kinds of bait at the same time. Some of the better baits are sausage, fish, chopped lean meat, liver, bacon, egg, apple, tomato, melon and mashed sweet potato, and sweet corn. These baits are particularly effective when rats have all the grain they want around cribs or barns. A change of diet is wel-

If you are using fruits or vegetables as bait, a rat killing powder

Build your bait box with a stout top that may be secured to keep small farm animals and pets from reaching poison may be preferable, since it can be dusted over the diced or sliced pieces of bait.

Rats prefer darkness, so be sure that baits are placed in a sheltered place. No matter what poisons you are using, be careful that baits are placed were farm animals and pets can't get at them. If you don't have a safe spot, then it will pay to build a bait box with a cover that can be securely fastened.

For best results "hide" the bait box-in a dark corner of the barn, under a trash pile, or behind feed bags. This will also help protect the box from larger animals who might tramp it and expose the bait to pets or livestock.

Electric Power Cribs And Reloads Ear Corn

Several Ohio farmers are letting their electric power crib and reload ear corn automatically. The same arrangement is possible on the majority of the nation's farms, since latest available figures record that 88.1% of all farms now are connected to power lines. Here's how it works:

A power hoist raises the front end of the wagon or truck after it is backed into the granary. Corn then flows out the end gate and into a combination conveyor-elevator, which moves it along to a larger inclined plane elevator to be dumped into side bins. Both machines are equipped with regulation flights.

The rear wall and both sides of the side bins are slanted. Ears, therefore, are "hoppered" toward the slatted front of the crib to press against conveniently located, and securely held, hinged doors or gates. In loading operations, ear corn flows by gravity from the bottom of the bins onto the dual purpose conveyor-elevator to be carried from the crib, up and into the wagon. The same type of equipment can move ear corn from cribs to shellers or grinders.

Farm Telephones

One convenience which has had an unusual record of ups and downs on the farm since 1920 is the telephone. The percentage of farms having phones has increased steadily since 1940, but it declined during the previous 20 years, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

BACK SAVER

You can save time and energy in pulling pipe stakes with the method shown above. Stakes used to anchor various farm machinery firmly to the ground may be moved easily by getting proper leverage with a pick, in the manner above. Holes drilled in each stake to take the pointed end of the pick are helpful, too.

At this time artisans, painters, weavers, and craftsmen will display their handicraft and skills to the public. Carroll county, long famed for its rich heritage of days past, has for some time displayed its antiques and colonial homes. It is a credit to the craftsmen that their skill have been craftsmen that their skill have been continually practiced even though their wares have often had no intrintheir wares have often had no intrinsic or commercial value.

The show is being directed by Miss Jane Griffin, who for some time has considered the county and its handicrafts as being as valuable as the more publicized Carolina Mountain and Pennsylvania Dutch ones. The exhibitors will display their work along the side-walks and on the lawns of West Main Street in much the same fashion as the artists in the New Orleans and Washington Square area. There is no charge but much of the craft work will be for sale.

Miss Giller, also of Miller's Station, was academically trained in her profession. Her work is that of delicately handpainting china. "SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

Race!
Atlantic City did not have the crowd of last year regardless of the big Anniversary. Of course there was the grand "Ice Capades" of 1954 which I never miss. Nothing could be finer. The "Old Smoothies" who are grandparents are still doing their sweet and refined part in fact it is one of the highlights of the show with the of the highlights of the show with the lovely waltzing on skates. The show will be in Hershey, Pa., Feb. 14 to 26. Keep it in mind and plan for it. Remember always you are not too old to skate and that grand sport will keep skate and that grand sport will keep you young. Of course, there is always Hackney's—that famous garden of Sea Food which is open all year round and which is the world's most famous Seafood Restaurant. Ummmmm good!

Viewing the girls for the Beauty Parade for the Miss America contest—and if I were a Judge—Miss Utah would be the winner She has everything that it takes for that title. How-thing that it takes for that title. However, no one knows at this writing, "Who's Who"!

Expensive and studded "Dog Collars" were being shown in the shops and every style of jewelry for Mad-ame. The GLAMORIZED SWEAT-ER was being demonstrated in many of the windows by models and those sweaters will be "IT" for the coming winter especially if you happen to be winter especially if you happen to be of an artistic temperment. You can appear most glamorous in one for evening wear with a velvet skirt to match in color or contrast. There are numerous ways to change the style. Although, those Red Riding Hood bags will be back again for the winter in browns and blacks, don't carry one if you are over 25 as I stated in a previous column. (You give your age away)! Those "Back Scratchers" from China are in the five and dime again for 29 cents. Fur coats were in the exclusive shop windows on the the exclusive shop windows on the Boardwalk either in long or short styles. The mild winters in the East in latter years means less fur coats being sold and it is really foolish to invest unless you have plenty of what it takes to purchase the real thing. Of course, the poor pocket book won't get stung as in former years as the government demands the label to state exactly the fur material in the lining.
It appears that New Jersey is surely going strong in the egg business along the highways. The eggs? The price? Believe it or not, Mrs. Housewife—just twenty five cents a dozen. Alberta peaches and such whoppers were one dollar a half bushel basket. Your Observer is experimenting with the freezer and will let you know in a later column just how they turned out. Don't forget to add the lemon juice to prevent them from turning black.

Did you overeat, Ladies, this summer or partake in what you should not? Frankly, I did but will soon start the rolling exercise again. Just don't like to hear the English call us "Those Fat Americans!" Eh?

Watermelons on the highway selling three for one dollar plus the plugging!

General Motors had their exhibition as other years but the gorgeous added feature was that wonderful $3,400 kitchen of tomorrow. The grand "Starfire" convertible 98 of Oldsmobile tops any car but I still say as for the station wagon, "Mercury" has all the answers!

Stanley's Aquarium was again this year on the Boardwalk and open to the public with everything for the tropical fish hobbyist. It is most educational for all ages and would pay cational for all ages and would pay you to make the trip to see this grand exhibit (free of charge) 32 West Girard Ave., Phila., Pa., where it remains for the winter right after Labor
