SOMETHING NEW FOR TANEYTOWN

Final arrangements have been completed for the building of a community mausoleum in the Reformed cemetery, Taneytown. Mausoleums are imposing structures built for burial after death. They are constructed in such a manner as to enable burial away from dirt and water, protected by stone, steel and concrete. This has long been the method of burial among nobility, families of wealth and for national heroes.

Garfield, McKinley and many others in our country. This method of entombment has been in use for thousands of years, since the construction of the Pyramids of Egypt, which are mausoleums for burial of kings.

Until recently the cost of this type of entombment has been of such expense that it was far beyond the reach of the average man or woman. Now, however, when built on a community basis, where many desire space therein, it gives the protection of a private mausoleum at the cost of less than the average cost of ground burial.

Spaces for two in a mausoleum such as this is not, in most cases, as high as the cost of an average sized tombstone along with other burial costs.

Mausoleums are being built in ever increasing numbers in other parts of the United States and Canada.

The project is being financed by Charles W. McGeehan of Baltimore. It will lend beauty to the cemetery as well as giving protection to those who are placed therein.

CARROLL COUNTY'S COMMUNITY CHEST

Campaign for Funds Will Be from Sept. 27 to Nov. 11

Carroll County's first Community Chest Campaign, using as its symbol the red feather, will be conducted from September 27 to November 11. The need for combining several fund-raising campaigns into one has long been apparent in Carroll county and the forthcoming drive for funds is the result of much background planning by many Carroll county citizens. ## "SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

(Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's great wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Now, Ladies that your Kiddies are back to school, you can take time for your morning exercise immediately after the kitchen is in order. It surely will pay you to roll for there is no need to go on a strict diet. Always refuse two helpings at any time and omit big portions. Go very lightly on bread, sweets and potatoes. You can omit those entirely if you are a very healthy individual.

If you desire to read "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" (in my opinion) just read what Dorothy Kilgallen has written in "Good Housekeeping" of the September issue.

Believe it or not, Ladies those grand "Tom O' Shanters" are back again and always becoming to the most homely individual and in all colors. The "Middy Blouse" also will be a big feature this winter for school just as a few years back. Your Observer still possesses one!

When next you purchase a toaster be sure and demand the one that toasts four slices of toast at one time! What a sweet letter arrived from her Highness Princess Margaret of England to add to my collection!

Every time, I drive on Route 1 just above Bel Air—there is a donkey with his neck and head stretched over the wood fence eating the wild grass along the Highway. He surely must think as some Humans that "all is better on the other side of the fence instead of right in his own back yard!" Eh? That little elderly gentleman who owns the donkey, I have observed closely. He bought a good size piece of ground and built himself a little shack (as I have seen in the mountains of West Virginia). It is a rough and crude affair. He planted all kinds of vegetables and this past summer and the summer previous, he placed a table near the fence and many stop to purchase. He lives alone and appears happy with his life. Now and then he adds a board or two to the dwelling! So you see you need not be bored with your own company!

Don't miss one of the best pictures of the year which Your Observer saw last Saturday, "SEVEN BRIDES FOR SEVEN BROTHERS." It is supposed to be the year of 1850 in the State of Oregon and upon a farm where seven brothers live alone until they go to the town and pick up a wife! Jane Powell and Howard Keel have the leading roles. The latter is just about the most Manly Man I have ever seen in any Movie! He even appeared more striking in the picture when he had a beard. The entire show is delightful with the most catchy music and—how those brothers could dance. You will love it from start to finish—there won't be a dull moment!

Another Movie which is just out in New York and will be coming this way soon is "Brigadoon" with the all time favorite Gene Kelly. It also is in Cinemascope and in full color. It is going over with a Bang in Philadelphia and New York! More about that one in a later column.

Seeing nice people within a day—the Taxi Driver who spoke so beautifully of his wife and he admired her hair arrangement! The sweet lad of about twelve who immediately offered a lady his seat on the Bus! The saleswoman in the May Company in Baltimore who offered another saleswoman her sale because there were so few sales on the book of the latter! The wonderful Christian young girl who desires to be a Doctor and attending college for that one big purpose in her life and in the meantime trying to save and win Souls for Christ! The very young Father taking entire charge of his two tiny babies—ages one year and the other one month while his young wife desired a change for a few days! The young man of 17 arising in a meeting and stating what it meant to him to lead and live a Christian life! So you see, Folks you can, too see much good around if you just look for it!

Here's a big laff! Women really smoking pipes! New York started that crazy idea and now it has come to Baltimore. Interviewing a buyer in a Department store, she stated they sell from 30 upwards a day! They are tiny and all studded with brilliant stones! A manufacturer is responsible for that one and he is a man! Just as that man Doir in France creates his "originals" for Milady as to costumes! The ending is that all men blame it on the women! Eh?

That's enough, Folks! See you next week. Drive carefully and slowly and always leave in plenty of time. That way there will be no accident! So long, I am,

Faithfully,
YOUR OBSERVER.

SERVICE COSTS MONEY

There has been considerable criticism of the nation's feed retailers, because declines in farm prices have not been fully reflected at the store level.

Senator Aiken has clearly explained why this is so. A main reason is the steady increase in marketing service demanded by the housewife. He said, "She now buys cut-up poultry, instead of live chickens. She buys frozen food, instead of canned food. She buys ready-to-bake biscuits, instead of flour. It should not surprise anyone that the providing of these extra services is a costly undertaking."

Retailing, in all its branches, is an extremely competitive enterprise, and profits are very moderate. The prices we pay for goods must reflect all the costs involved in bringing them to us. When we demand, as most of us do, expensive marketing and processing services, we must expect to pay for them.—Industrial News Service.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

CORNELIA, GEORGIA, GEORGIAN: "Kids used to get out about dark and throw up their hats and sing a song to the fluttering bats: 'Bat, bat, come under my hat, I'll give you a slice of bacon. And, if I bake, I'll give you a cake, if I'm not much mistaken'."

"Votes are fluttering around in the skies now and a lot of hats are being tossed up in the air. There's hollering and wild promising. The old song definitely offers a slice of bacon . . . Please note, however, as in the case of the children's song, there is a last line to wit: 'If I'm not much mistaken'. There's a loophole left there, but the poor bat was not supposed to be analytical, nor is the voter Let's not count on the cake. That 'if' is indefinite."

HIGH BRIDGE, N. J., GAZETTE: "When an electric company develops a hydroelectric site, it constructs the project without using government funds. It markets the electricity to its customers at rates regulated by a governmental commission or its equivalent. It pays taxes on the revenues it collects in the course of these operations—about 22 cents of every dollar goes to federal, state and local governments as taxes. Under this sound business arrangement, the public gets more electric energy; government gets added revenues; the river belonging to 'all the people' stays in the same place and everybody benefits."

LEWISTOWN, PA., SENTINEL: "... any government with strongly centralized power poses a threat to personal liberty. Each time we take another step toward socialism, government control and higher taxes in our own country, we should pause and think what life offers for the individual in countries where power is vested in the state and government bureaucracy has been over expanded."

Machines Plus Farmer Ingenuity

Spells Sure Success For Modern Farm

The modern farmer, through the use of machines and his own ingenuity, is gradually eliminating backaches, once commonly associated with farm work.

A good example may be found in Odgen, Utah, where Henry DeVries built a machine which takes the constant bending over of the task of thinning beets.

Mr. DeVries took four wire wheels and a transmission from an early model automobile, a three-horsepower gas motor and some two-inch steel pipe to construct a beet thinning machine on which the five DeVries brothers ride along a couple of inches above the ground, seated comfortably on salvaged mowing machine seats. With a normal crop, they can usually thin six acres a day with ease. Ordinarily, a man with a short handled hoe, working long hours, can thin an acre a day, but he's constantly bending over.

Guiding the machine is a simple operation performed by the man riding nearest the front, who steers with one foot. The engine transmits its own power via a belt to the car transmission, thus making possible several speeds. Which one is used depends upon the field and the operation. The machine is used on head lettuce as well as beets and will run all day on a gallon of gasoline.

This simply constructed machine takes the backache out of the business of thinning beets on Utah farm. Man at right steers with foot, leaving hands free.

At the end of each row, the five riders get off and, using a steel tongue, turn the machine around and head back down the field.

The DeVries have been using the machine for six years and consider it essential to the working of the 100-acre farm which supports all of the brothers and their families.

3-Way Castorbean Hybrid Ready Soon

Production of three-way castorbean hybrid seed for planting by farmers has become a commercial possibility of the near future as a result of new advances in the breeding of this crop by U.S. Department of Agriculture and co-operating State agricultural experiment station plant scientists.

Three-way hybrid seed production, say the scientists, would eliminate much of the hand work in seed fields that now comes with the production of single-cross hybrid castorbeans. The key to the process is in the development of plants that have only female flowers. This eliminates much of the removal by hand of the undesirable pollen bearing plants from the mother rows.

The basis for the three-way hybrids is the discovery by scientists of the Agricultural Research Service and the Oklahoma and California Agricultural Experiment Stations that crossing of the male-sterile variety Nebraska 1454 with certain other selected pollinator varieties will yield plants bearing 100 per cent female flowers. The seed from this cross is used to produce the mother plants in three-way hybrid seed fields.

One of the advantages in the castorbean hybrids that farmers now plant is their high yields as compared with the yields of open-pollinated varieties, but there is the disadvantage of the hand labor necessary in hybrid seed production. Use of the three-way hybrid technique would materially reduce this labor.

Multi-Purpose Latch

Simple latch attachment that will work on sliding doors, swinging doors, or a door that closes flush against a door jamb. Bar is 12" long and the flat loop 4" long. Washers between catch and surface on which it is mounted provide clearance for the bar to slip down behind catch.

THE OTHER NINETY AND NINE

We hear about the clever man,
The man who leads the line,
But seldom do we hear about
The other ninety nine;
The men who bravely battle in
A world of enterprise,
Who form the stepping stones upon
Which

Another man may rise.
Co-operation is the word.
That's worthy of a thought;
By that alone can all men gain
The brotherhood long sought;

Each man has got his part to play,
Each man can hope to shine,
For he who leads, most surely needs
The other ninety-nine.

LEST WE FORGET TO SMILE

The young Negro recruit was the victim of so many practical jokes that he doubted all men and their motives. One night while he was on guard duty, the figure of one of the officers loomed up in the darkness.

"Who goes there?" the Negro challenged.
"Major Moses," was the reply.
The young Negro scented a joke. "Glad to meet you, Moses," he said cheerfully; "advance and give the Ten Commandments"

Xenophobia (the fear of strangers) is one of the toughest obstacles a salesman encounters when he attempts to open new accounts. All too often the buyer's attitude is that of the English navy who was with a friend when someone approached. "Who is it, Alf?" the friend asked. "I don't know," said Alf. "Stringer. 'Eave a brick at 'im."

The wise wife is the one who says at the beginning: "I will be the one to volunteer to do most of the adapting. It is worth it." If I were newly married today, I could wish nothing better for myself than to understand that idea in so many words, rather than instinctively.
—Mamie Eisenhower, Today's Woman

One crying need of humanity is a reducing diet for fatheads.

What some of these precocious brats deserve is a good, sound, unequivocal answer, such as the one a middle-aged aunt of our acquaintance gave on a hot day to her 12-year-old niece, who had asked, "Auntie, if my father had married another woman and my mother had married another man, would I be a split personality?" The aunt's answer was "Yes."

Mechanic: "With a car like that my advice is to keep it moving." Owner: "Why?" Mechanic: "If you ever stop, the cops will think it's an accident."

One of the more recent stories from Army life tells about the sergeant working through a hot afternoon with a listless platoon. Finally he called a halt and said, "You guys think you're soldiers. I've seen better drilling by little cans of beer on my television!"

Harney—Last week the high waters of the Monocacy tore the Penstock out of Myers mill race but it was immediately replaced by a new one. Corn cutting is in full bloom and we are told that it is the heaviest crop that we have had for years. Quite a number of our people attended the Hanover Fair on Thursday. Last Sunday evening Rev. Thurlow Null preached to a large and attentive audience in the U. B. church of this place. We are pleased to note that the young man bids fair to make his mark in the ministerial world; we are informed that he will preach in the Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon.

New Windsor—The B. F. Shriver Canning Factory is running day and night this week with a set of hands for the day and for the night. They can from 40,000 to 60,000 cans in ten hours. Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Baile left on Wednesday for New York to attend a banker's convention. The College opened on Wednesday with a larger number of students than they have had for a number of years, and still more expected.

You may choose from three great transmissions: Fordomatic Drive, Overdrive, or Conventional Drive. For still greater driving ease and pleasure, you may make your Ford as automatic as you like with power assists . . . Power Steering, Power Brakes, Power Windows (both front and back), and a 4-Way Power Front Seat.

And with Ford's many, many other fine-car features such as suspended clutch and brake pedals, Center-Fill Fueling and the new Astra-Dial Control Panel, Ford is worth more when you sell. It's a proven fact that Ford returns more of its original cost, at resale, than any other car in the low-price field! Come in . . . Test Drive a Ford today, and see why.

FEESERSBURG

There isn't a week in the year empty of some appeal to the American public to give to some fund raising drive or charity. This year Americans will give four billion dollars to charity, making it among the country's top ten businesses. The old saying that charity should begin at home is more than true in one respect. When you give in your own community you have a way of knowing that the money you give is being used for the purpose you gave it. One can no longer over-look the fact that in many cases charity is a racket, especially in the large cities where it's impossible to check on every organization appealing for funds. Also one can no longer deny that the increasing drives for this and that is working a hardship on the average American family. The constant appeal to the generous nature of the American people is beginning to make some a little cynical and wondering if perhaps it isn't time to look this charity business in the eye and ask a few pertinent questions. When ever a disaster strikes a country outside the United States, the American people send money, food and help. When disaster strikes the U.S.A. all the American people are offered is moral support and not too much of that. But generosity seems to be one of the enduring traits of the American public and a trait that one hopes will continue for a long time to come. The attitude of America seems to be like that of the man who never passes a beggar on the street without giving something nor refuses a request to every drive and cause that comes along. His friends tell him he is a sucker for every hard luck story and handpander in the country. But his reply is that he gives with good intentions and because he likes to help. If what he gives is misused, that can not be blamed on his generosity, but to the perversity of human nature. There is an answer to his attitude but why disillusion him?

Bird houses are made for birds but once in a while strange tenants move in. Last week a queen bee and her staff of workers moved in the house recently vacated by the Wren family. The queen came with a queenly flourish and with a bee band doing a lot of buzzing in B flat. It took the colony a day to get settled but settled they are for the winter in a wren house, without food or fuel. Well queens aren't supposed to be practical so someone else will have to see that the bees are fed.

What do you do with a cow that kicks like a mule and a bucking bronco combined. She has already broke up a set of milkers and is determined to kick down the barn rather than have her milk taken away. It all can be traced to her unhappy childhood. No fooling. When she was six months old she caught her head in some way between the feeding trough. It happened during the night and when she was found the next morning, it was almost too late. However with patient care she recovered and grew up to be a beautiful heifer. Two weeks ago she had her first baby and then she developed this complex about milking machines—even hand milking 'too. Any good cow psychiatrists in the community? If so please call Merry Knoll.

Members of Union Bridge Little League and Babe Ruth ball teams accompanied by parents and friends attended the big league ball game last Saturday at the Municipal Stadium, Baltimore. They were the guests of the Orioles and everyone seemed thrilled with the trip. It was really a Frederick Day at the Stadium for the Babe Ruth team from Frederick was presented with a trophy as champions of the Frederick County League and also of the Tri-County League. Congratulations to the Frederick Team!

There seems to be all together too much talk about the weather, but last week it was more than an open topic for polite conversation. "Edna" was lashing out at the Eastern seaboard and every one along the coast held their breath for a week hoping the fickle storm would make up its mind where it was going. In Africa earthquakes leveled entire towns and killed thousands and in the Pacific, a typhoon was on the prowl. Most of the time Mother Nature is a gentle, calm, law abiding creature, but even so often, she seems to be determined to throw her weight around and make every one understand who is the boss.

School has been in session about a week and the only reaction we have heard so far are complaints from some that there isn't enough discipline. Maybe its time to get out the old hickory stick and build a woodshed some place on the school grounds. When the boys and girls themselves ask for more firmness from teachers and parents then its time to give them just that.

Thinking to give his two young sons a treat Dad decided to take them to the Museum of Natural History. After exploring the Museum for a day they returned home dead tired and a trifle disgusted evidently for when mother asked where they had been the younger son replied "To a dead circus".

Baltimore and Washington last week began a quiet and civilized transition to "mixed" schools. The younger children accepted the change quite naturally. For some of the high school students it was a little awkward, but there was no antagonism anywhere. If the adults can be as adjustable to the new situation as the children, the transition period will be gone without undue strain or friction.

A gentleman entered the church with an ear trumpet determined at last to hear a sermon by the new minister. Not too long after he seated himself an usher tapped him on the shoulder and whispered: "One toot and out you go".

The world could get along very well for the next million years without another gadget, but it will not endure another hundred without a good supply of common-sense.—Ruth Roelke.

MARRIED

HOPKINS — WACHTER

Before an altar decorated with white and yellow gladioli and lighted tapers, Miss Mary Marguerite Wachter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wachter, North Seton Avenue, Emmitsburg, became the bride of William Gene Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hopkins, Taneytown, in a double-ring ceremony performed in St. Joseph's Catholic church, Emmitsburg at 2 p. m. Saturday, September 11, 1954. The Rev. John Sullivan, pastor of the bride officiated. The Sacred Heart altar was decorated with red gladioli and the Blessed Mother's Altar was decorated with pink and blue gladioli. A 15-minute recital preceded the ceremony with Mrs. Euphemia Rotering, church organist, accompanying Prof. William Sterbinsky, violinist. Mrs. Rotering played the traditional wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, George Greco. The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a white embroidered nylon tulle gown, redingote train effect over bridal satin, with leg-omutton sleeves pointed over the fingers, peter pan collar with white satin buttons to the waistline in front, tight bodice and full skirt, accentuated by a hoop extending into a scalloped cathedral train. She wore a tiara crown of satin, lace and white sequins from which fell a three-quarter length nylon veil. She carried a bouquet of white mums centered with a white orchid. The bride's sister, Mrs. Sterngoulden was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of yellow iridescent chrysopeppin taffeta with matching hat and mitts and carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow and white mums. The bridesmaids were Miss Nancy Wachter, sister of the bride, Miss Rita Ann Topper, Emmitsburg, Miss Selby Bixler and Mrs. Ethel Hunt, both of Westminster. Miss Wachter and Miss Topper wore rose gowns and Miss Bixler and Mrs. Hunt wore blue gowns. Their gowns were all made identical to the matron of honor and they wore matching hats and mitts and carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink and white mums and blue and white mums respectively. The best man was the bridegroom's father, William B. Hopkins and the ushers were Sterling Goulden, Paul Harner, David Wilhide and Nevin Ohler, Taneytown. The ringbearers were George Sonon, Jr. and Glen Geeseman and the flower girls were Adona and Alona Geeseman, all cousins of the bride and all of Reading. The girls wore rose and blue gowns made of the same material and fashioned like the bridesmaids' gowns with matching hats and mitts and carried miniature bouquets like the bridesmaids.

Following the ceremony a reception for approximately 200 relatives and friends was held in the Rowe Annex of the VFW, after which the couple left on a wedding trip to New England. For traveling, the bride wore a navy blue suit with pink accessories and white orchid corsage. Upon their return they will reside on George Street, Taneytown. The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's High School, Emmitsburg, in 1950 and has been employed for several years at Crouse's Drug Store, Emmitsburg. The bridegroom was graduated from Taneytown High School and Bliss Electrical School, Washington. Out-of-town guests were from Taneytown, Reading, Waynesboro, Baltimore, Blue Ridge Summit, Gettysburg, Westminster and York.

LOCAL FARMERS FIGHT WHEAT PROGRAM

At a preliminary hearing held before United States District Judge Roszel Thompson, in Baltimore, on Thursday, Sept. 9, nine of the ten Carroll County farmers originally sued by the Government indicated their intention of fighting to the limit of their resources the current Wheat Program established under the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

Claiming that the provisions of the Act, and the Regulations established to enforce the Act, violate their personal and property rights and freedoms guaranteed under the Fourth and Fifth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States, the nine farmers have joined forces to defend the suits brought against them by the U. S. Government.

The local farmers are particularly disturbed about the provisions of the act that would authorize the agents of the Agriculture Department to "trespass" upon their properties without their permission - - - and to impose penalties upon them in the event more wheat is raised upon their farms than the quotas allowed them by the local AAA enforcement officials, presently called the Carroll County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The Fourth and Fifth Amendments to the Constitution are designed to protect citizens against "unreasonable searches and seizures" and against the deprivation of "life, liberty and property, without due process of law."

Another question proposed to be made an issue by the "nine farmers" is whether or not the Government can establish quotas for farmers raising less than 15 acres of wheat and yet deprive them of the right to vote on the question of whether or not price supports, and quotas, should be established in any particular year. This they complain, is a most "undemocratic" procedure.

The nine farmer-defendants to the Government suits are: H. Paul Morelock, the partnership consisting of Lindsay Shafer, Joseph Shafer and Lewis Shafer, Jr., Lewis Shafer, Sr., Lawrence Haines, Ray M. Haines, Lawrence Haines, Jr., Rodney Haines, Paul Sterner and Herbert Hull. Representing them in the United States District Court are John Wood, Stanford Hoff and D. Eugene Walsh, all Westminster Attorneys.

It is reported that considerable and growing sentiment in favor of the position taken by the "nine embattled farmers" of Carroll County has been developing in neighboring counties and states.

The case has been set for hearing on Thursday, Sept. 23, at 10 o'clock, in the U. S. District Court in Baltimore.

"Oh dear", said his wife, "I wish you wouldn't tinker with things you don't understand. Ever since you fixed the clock the cuckoo backs out and asks 'What time is it?'"

APPROVED SCENE OF SUMMER CAMP

One of the best weeks of the annual summer camp it has ever been our pleasure to enjoy was attended by twenty-one boys and leaders in charge of Scoutmaster Wilbur O. Thomas, Assistant Explorer Advisers Andrew D. Alexander, Jr. and Robert L. Bowers and Harold Slaybaugh as Senior patrol leader. Though delayed one day by the Bicentennial Parade and Pageant, where most of them were in the Indian scenes, they encamped on Sunday, August 1, in Arrowhead site of Broad Creek Memorial Camps, Whiteford, Md. It was the sixth visit, and this one in a different site, and this one of the best liked, situated in a deep oak woods on the Area II side of the reservation, which was under the program supervision of Albert G. Albrecht, Scoutmaster of 393, Westminster.

FALL MEETINGS SOON TO GET UNDER WAY

The troop for years has prided itself on weekly sessions the year round, and the summer was no exception. Scouts now meet Thursday and Explorers on Monday (the first and third of every month), although it is expected that Stanley Frock, Explorer Adviser, will shortly announce the prospect of weekly gatherings in preparation for the Exposition in the State Armory, Westminster, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, October 22-23rd. Their September 20 meeting will be devoted to Indian sign language under the Adviser, and assistants Bowers to direct an outdoor game and Thomas a period on astronomy.

Scouts will continue their 7 p. m. Thursday routine, with outdoor features, shifting to 7:30 on September 30th, which will be open house for the reception of lads newly come of age (eleven years) and a round-up of all to receive camp, scout, service, and Red Cross awards and to hear the final standings in the patrol contest.

SHORT STORY

Beautiful Thief

By F. L. Rowley

DONALD gazed dreamily across the wide field of sweet-smelling red clover.

Donald sighed. It was a deep, troubled sigh; more like a groan of resignation than a sigh. A boy of ten shouldn't have a care in the world—especially on such a beautiful day.

Bill Beardon, the hired man, put down the pail he was carrying, wiped his perspiring brow and strolled over to the gate upon which Donald was perched.

"What's up pardner?" said Bill. "Plenty," said Donald bitterly. "Granny lost her glasses early this morning and she thinks I took them. What would I want with her old glasses?"

"Well," Bill said quietly, "you do collect treasures, Donald."

"You think I'm a thief too, don't you Bill?"

"Gosh no, pardner. I think you're a budding scientist. Just to prove I'm on your side, tell you what. I'll help you catch this thief. How's that?"

"You mean it? Gee Bill, you're swell. We'll be real detectives. Then maybe I'll get my bike."

"Your what?"

"My bike," Donald repeated.

"Dad said he'd get me a bicycle

"You think I'm a thief too, Bill?"

for my birthday if I am a good boy while he's away. You know I'll never get that bike if everybody thinks I took Granny's glasses, and Mommy's watch last week, and that piece for your camera, and—"

"Whoa boy! Take it easy. You know I wouldn't tell your father even if I thought you took my filter. After supper you and I are going to get our heads together. We'll catch this crook."

Donald felt better. With gratitude in his heart he followed Bill into the barn to see if he could help the old man. Bill didn't need any help. Donald walked across the yard, then around the house. He decided to look for footprints under Granny's window. The thief, whoever he was, had taken Granny's glasses from the nightstand near her bed.

Not a single clue to be found. Donald sat on a pine stump to think. It was cool on this side of the house. A light breeze carried the sound that city people often mistake for the hoot of an owl—the plaintive cry of a mourning dove. Donald listened. He could see a frisky blue-jay bouncing about among some of the pines.

Then as Donald watched in genuine surprise the tricky little blue-jay darted straight at the house to disappear through an open window. Donald could have shouted for joy. Instead he sat very still and quiet on the pine stump. Sure enough a minute later the thief emerged from the open window with a gleaming object in its bill. Donald wisely remained where he was. His eyes followed the charming thief to its nest in the pine grove. A few minutes later Donald was climbing the tree, hoping—hoping.

And there it was! The whole treasure; his mother's watch, Granny's glasses, and Bill's filter. Donald wasn't sure just why, but getting his hands on that filter gave him more pleasure than anything else. Bill's faith in him was justified. The cache contained many other items. Most of these hadn't even been missed by the Campbells.

The following day Donald's father returned from his buying trip. Donald was trying to figure out just where in the wagon his bicycle might be when he saw Bill and his father entering the pine grove with guns on their arms. He knew at once what they were up to.

"No! No! No!" cried Donald racing after them. "Don't shoot my blue-jay! Don't shoot him—please!"

"He must be destroyed. He's a no good thief," said Donald's father, frowning.

"Please don't shoot him! I'll do extra chores. I'll be good for a month. Why—why, you don't even have to get me a bike."

Donald's mother heard his last remark. She put her arm about his shoulders. She looked sternly at the two would-be hunters. "You wouldn't shoot the poor little thing would you?" she said. "It's a beautiful thief."

Mr. Campbell looked sheepishly at Bill. Bill was scratching his head. "Shucks!" grumbled Mr. Campbell. "Your bike's in the wagon, Donald."

Thinking About Central Heating?

Forced Air Furnace Is Compact Unit

For any farmer planning to install a central heating system in his farmhouse for the coming winter, the forced warm air system bears investigation.

The modern forced warm air furnace is a compact unit and presents a minimum of problems for location and installation in an existing building. The lack of necessity for a centrally located furnace allows the unit to be installed in an out-of-the-way corner of the basement, in the attic, in a crawl space under the house, or even in a closet on the first floor. Forced circulation of heat insures even temperature levels throughout the house no matter where the furnace is located.

The forced warm air furnace makes possible the control of temperature, air movement, humidity, and cleanliness of the air, factors which affect winter comfort in the home. Fiberglass filters, usually placed near the return air duct in the furnace, do the job of cleaning the air. A humidifier in the forced air furnace adds to the needed moisture to the air as it is being circulated through the furnace.

One feature of the modern forced warm air system which has contributed greatly to its popularity in recent years is its adaptability to summer air conditioning. If there is a modern forced air system in the home, the way is prepared for the addition of a blower-equipped summer cooling unit at any time in the future. Adding a separate cooling unit that will use the same distribution system as the furnace represents the least expensive method of obtaining year 'round air conditioning in a home with an existing heating plant.

New Liquid Bandage For Animals Sprays On

A new liquid bandage reported by the American Veterinary Medical Association may solve the long perplexing problem of keeping a bandage in place on a large animal.

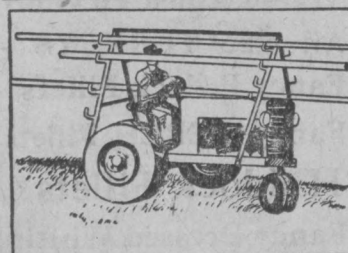

The AMVA says the bandage, when sprayed over a wound, quickly dries to a tough, adhesive, transparent film that stays in place for prolonged periods.

The film is applied in layers, both to afford extra protection and to make stripping off easier after healing is completed.

In experimental usage, veterinary clinicians at Washington State College used the new bandage to cover injuries and surgical wounds on steers, cows and horses. Slight infection was reported in only two of a dozen cases treated, and healing was complete in every instance.

Veterinarians say the bandage will be particularly useful in treating udder lesions in dairy cattle, since it is easy to apply and will permit milking, washing, and other processes without risk of contaminating the injury.

Pipe Carrier

One farmer who tired of lugging irrigation pipe around on a bulky wagon bolted an A-frame on each end of his tractor, with a spreader bar between. Curved iron brackets enabled him to carry 800' of pipe from one location to another with comparative ease.

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME &amp; INLAND FISH COMMISSION

GRAY FOX

(Urocyon cinereoargenteus. Derivation, "urocyon" from the Greek meaning tail-dog, and Latin "cinereoargenteus" meaning gray-silvered.)

RANGE: Found in all counties of Maryland; more common in wooded and farm areas and rapidly increasing.

BREEDING: Mates in January and February. Young born 50-60 days later, in clean den in hollow log, cave, or tunnel; 4-5 born blind and helpless; take solid food at 6 weeks of age. Average life span 14 years.

HABITS: When pursued by dogs, will either "hole" in a tree, or climb one; red fox never climbs trees, but if hard run will go to the earth. Does not store food as does the red fox, lacks its endurance, is more nocturnal and less intelligent. Individual range 1-2 square miles.

MANAGEMENT: Reputed to be destroyer of rabbits, grouse, quail and pheasants, as well as smaller species of birds and mammals. Studies indicate fox relies primarily upon rodents and rabbits for food; game species being taken more often by gray. Red fox probably world's greatest destroyer of mice. Many States have demonstrated high fox population has not been major factor in shortage of game, nor has predator control permanently increased game. Many States recommend control but have found benefits not equal to cost. No indications rabies in foxes reduce population nor has it become a serious problem—not to the degree found in dogs.

VALUE: Probably an enemy of game, but this is offset considerably by destruction of mice; certainly no worse than cats or some dogs. Not as desirable for sport as red by fox hunter; fur of little value.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

Growing in Love

Lesson for September 19, 1954

A great deal is said about "love" but not enough has been done about it. Jesus taught that Christians must love even their enemies. He and his great apostles Paul and John had much to say about love and forgiveness. Paul would hardly have given the warnings he gave against quarreling and strife if he had not thought that Christians need these warnings. Few words are used oftener in Christian sermons than "love"; few are more misunderstood. Few ideals are held up oftener by the church; few are violated more often by church members. Love is a clouded theme; some questions may help to clear it up.

Dr. Foreman

Christian Love

The first question is: What is the difference between Christian love and what usually goes by that name? It should be plain to any one who can read the Bible that when Paul and John and Jesus speak of "love" and urge it as a duty of all of us, they are not thinking of romantic love as between men and women. That is a good, important, happy and sweet kind of love. No life is fully complete without it; but Christian love is a wider thing. All kinds of love except Christian love have limits. You love your family, your country, your friends, people you know and like. Jesus asks us to love even our enemies. A circle of love that will take in enemies must be something extraordinary, and so it is. Ordinary love, then, has limits; small or wide; Christian love knows no limits. Again, ordinary love is possessive, it wants the loved one for itself. Christian love is self-giving. Ordinary love is strictly human and can be found in those who do not know God.

Christian love is divine; it is not only like God's love but it is found only in the lives of those who have been touched by God's Spirit. Ordinary love is given to the lovable; the divine kind of love, the Christian kind.

Love and Liking

Another question is: How can we love those we do not like? And can we like everybody? A clue to the answer is found in what we know of the love of God. Jesus very clearly suggests that we are to be Godlike in our love; indeed our highest Christian growth comes right here, because when we are most truly filled with this kind of love we are most like God. But it is plain that God does not like every one he loves. We read that God loved us "while we were yet sinners." If we could say "that God likes murderers, adulterers, traitors, thieves, foul-mouthed and cruel men, we should have to say that God shows very poor taste. But we are nowhere told that God likes sinners, that is to say that he enjoys their company, enjoys what they do and say. Far from it. If he liked them he would never change them. It is written, "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth" but it is just as true to say, "Whom the Lord loveth he changeth." Love, in the Christian, God-like meaning, is concern for the true welfare of the loved one. A father may love his son (and God does love his sons), even when he thoroughly disapproves what the son is doing. So we are not expected to like everybody, regardless; that would be rather silly. But as Christians we are expected to have concern for the true welfare of every one.

Can Love Be Perfect?

A third question is: Can our love ever be perfect? Here Christians differ in their understanding of what Jesus and Paul and John taught, and of what is possible for us. All Christians agree that only one life expressing perfect love, from beginning to end, has ever been seen—the life of our Lord. Some Christians believe that it is possible, sometimes, to act from a motive of unadulterated, unalloyed, unreserved, unqualified Christian love. Other Christians believe that this is never possible for a human being, even a Spirit-blessed Christian. Two things are certain at this point. One is that even if the motive is sometimes absolutely pure, human knowledge is never perfect. Our concern may be completely unselfish, but not completely wise. The other certainty is that even if the motive is never absolutely pure, nevertheless perfection is always the high goal.

Find New Hope For Stored Eggs

Thermostabilization May Hold Up Quality

One of the egg industry's greatest problems has been the matter of storing shell eggs and at the same time holding up quality. Thermostabilization of eggs may be the answer to the problem.

The process is relatively simple. Eggs are subjected to a hot liquid bath controlled as to temperature and time. Two of the liquids which can be used are light weight oil and water. There are a number of temperature and time variations which can be used. Object of the treatment is to bring the internal egg temperature up to 124-129 degrees F. Researchers point out that many temperatures and time ratios may be used. One process consists of giving eggs an oil bath for 16 minutes at 134 degrees F. Three lots of eggs were used in one research test. One lot received no treatment other than cleaning, grading and candling. A second group was oil treated by the standard oil dipping process and the third lot was thermostabilized. All eggs were U.S. Grade A at the beginning of the test.

New storage process involving hot liquid bath may solve one of egg industry's biggest problems—that of retaining quality of stored shell eggs.

The three lots were stored at 30 degrees F for 7½ months. The results were: natural eggs had only 2½ per cent A's; the oil processed eggs 38 per cent A's; and the thermo eggs has 85 per cent Grade A's remaining.

Thermostabilization stabilizes the white so the thick white does not break down to thin white as rapidly as in an untreated egg; it destroys the germ cell in fertile eggs; has the action of pasteurizing the shell; and cooks a very thin layer of the outer white which forms an additional barrier against the loss of moisture and carbon dioxide from the egg.

Chemical Extenders Keep Spray Deadly

Addition of chemical "extenders" to some insecticide sprays greatly increases the time they remain lethal against insects, says the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In comparative tests carried out by chemists and entomologists, DDT oil solution sprayed on the foliage of spruce and pine trees was effective against flies for less than 15 days. However, when methyl ethyl ketone was used instead of oil as solvent for DDT, spray residues on the foliage killed flies for 60 and more days.

Similarly, the lasting effectiveness of other insecticides, such as aldrin and lindane, was improved by addition of chlorinated terphenyls (a resin-like material) to the spray. When used as normal oil or emulsion sprays, aldrin and lindane retain their fly-killing ability less than 10 days under outdoor weather conditions. In combination with the chemical extender, they provided nearly perfect fly control for more than 102 days.

Applied as an oil-base spray, DDT does not form long-lasting residues on foliage because the oil—carrying the DDT—penetrates into the leaf. However, when a highly volatile solvent such as methyl ethyl ketone is substituted for the oil in DDT sprays, it quickly vaporizes when sprayed so that only a residue of DDT remains on the foliage surface.

Good Investment

Dr. Garth Volk, chairman of Ohio's State University's agronomy department says that every dollar a farmer invests in fertilizer returns him $3 in increased crop value from higher yields. He reports that Ohio farmers last year bought about $50 million worth of fertilizer and estimates that this outlay returned $150 million to Ohio farms.

CALLING ALL SCHOOLGIRLS! Have you entered the big beauty contest which is now under way? Six of you will win a wonderful trip to New York and a $1000 wardrobe; one will also receive $1000 in cash. Watch "The Comedy Hour" and "Strike It Rich" on television and listen to "Lorenzo Jones" for details—if you're among the six, you'll be appearing on a coast-to-coast TV show yourself. Get an entry blank from a local dealer, fill it out, paste it to the back of a photograph, mail it with two wrappers of the "Schoolgirl Complexion" soap to Palmolive Beauty Contest, P.O. Box 93, New York 46, N. Y.

Is this you?

Make it a part of your regular viewing schedule.

THE STORIES of some of English literature's most famous writers will be re-enacted in the popular entertainment setting of "The Railroad Hour" on the NBC network in May and June. Each Monday night during these two months, great tales by such literary giants as Rudyard Kipling, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Alfred Lord Tennyson, Jules Verne and Robert Louis Stevenson will be the basis of a series of original musical romances which the writing team of Lawrence and Lee has fashioned for Gordon MacRae, baritone star of the radio show, and his guest artists, including Nadine Conner and Lucille Norman.

Nadine Conner

"MARTIN KANE" KEEPS CLIMBING—Running counter to the usual trend in mystery dramas, "Martin Kane," (NBC-TV Thursday, 10:00 p.m.) keeps forging ahead in the standings, even though it is now in its fifth year, a length of time which usually sees mystery dramas begin to weaken. With Mark Stevens playing the starring role, this mystery has shown constant improvement and is now at its highest point, nestling snugly among the top ten network shows. It certainly deserves this honor, because it is one of the few mystery dramas which treat crime and the police in the proper light and give the viewer a really good, intelligent mystery to enjoy.

The rich fare of classic stories set to music and song is spiced also by a Lawrence and Lee version of San Francisco's picturesque waterfront. Entitled "Fisherman's Wharf," the show revolves around the Bay City's "Little Italy" and makes use of many well-loved Italian tunes. Also on the list is "The Cremona Violin," one of the "Tales Of Hoffman," set to the most familiar music of the composer Offenbach.

Making Decisions

WHO is there that is not at times confronted with the necessity of making a decision? Sometimes it is one that affects not only ourselves, and it may change the whole course of our earthly experience. With mere human reason or material deductions to guide him, one who has to make a decision is at the seeming mercy of opinion or the selfishness of personal desires.

In the third chapter of Proverbs there is a definite and inspired rule: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Would it not be well for us all, when endeavoring to reach a decision on some matter, to turn to this admonition, lay aside the torment of fear and the burden of personal responsibility, trust our Father to show us the way?

When we acknowledge God as our creator, our guide in all our affairs, we begin at that moment to turn away from anxious human outlining and to rest in the assurance that He does direct our path. Nothing is too small or too difficult for God, infinite Mind, to govern. On page 591 of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, defines Mind as, "The only I, or Us; the only Spirit, Soul, divine Principle, substance, Life, Truth, Love; the one God; not that which is in man, but the divine Principle, or God, of whom man is the full and perfect expression; Deity, which outlines but is not outlined." From this it is seen that man's only intelligence or wisdom comes from God. How practical, then, when we need to know the answer to some problem, to heed the counsel of James, who said (James 1:5), "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him."

Man, being the perfect expression of God, knows by reflection all that he needs to know. Maintaining this absolute truth concerning God and man unfolds the needed wisdom to make right decisions in our human affairs. A man was once faced with the necessity of making a decision between two business opportunities. He had been expecting for some time to enter a new line of work in a distant city and had begun to make preparations for the change. While in the midst of negotiating the new connection, he quite unexpectedly was offered a second opportunity in the same kind of business, but in another city. Since the move involved all the members of the family, each one was asked to study the verses from the Bible and the definition of Mind quoted above, and to pray for willingness to abide by the revelation which would surely come as the result of trusting God to direct the way. At this point the following poem from a copy of the Christian Science Sentinel was handed to a member of the family by a friend and proved helpful:

Tis not for me to say where I shall serve, Nor outline, Lord, the way Thy work I'll do; But where the Cause of Truth has need of me, There is the place where I, dear God, would be.

Within a short time it became clear that the second place under consideration was the right one to accept. The move was made, a home was found, and the children in the family were enrolled in a school nearby. This truly was demonstration, the reward for letting God point the way. It is well to ask oneself if the course we are considering will further our demonstration of following in the footsteps of the Way-shower, Christ Jesus. Will it provide an atmosphere whereby our spiritual growth will continue to unfold so that we, too, may bring comfort to the sorrowing, healing to the sick, abundance to the needy, as he did?

Success in any right undertaking may be confidently expected when we cease human outlining and let God direct our way. . . . —The Christian Science Monitor.

REPORTS GIVEN OF SOUTHERN STATES COOPERATIVE

Approximately 72 members of Southern States Cooperative, their families and friends in the Harney area heard reports of their Cooperative's services for the 1953-54 fiscal year which ended June 30, at their local annual membership meeting held recently at Harney, Md.

In addition to the report given by District Manager J. A. Silver, members were elected to the Advisory Board and the Farm Home Advisory Committee.
