VACCINATION OF SCHOOL CHILDRENHealth Department's Battle
Against Polio

Plans for possible vaccination of large numbers of school children this spring were outlined today by Dr. George Schochet, County Health Officer, at a conference of school authorities and representatives of the Carroll County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Present at the conference were Samuel M. Jenness, Superintendent of Carroll County Schools, and Rev. Charles J. Walker, representing St. Joseph's Parochial School. Representing the Carroll County Chapter of the National Foundation of Infantile Paralysis were Mrs. Gladys Wimer, Chairman, and Mrs. Harry Reese. Dr. George Schochet, County Health Officer, and Miss Maud E. Manahan, Supervisor of Public Health Nursing, represented the County Health Department. Rev. John J. Murphy of St. John's Parochial School, was unable to attend.

Full cooperation with health officials in planning the possible polio vaccination of 2045 children in the first and second grades of the public and parochial schools in Carroll county was pledged by Mr. Jenness and Father Walker.

The vaccine will be furnished to the Health Department by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis without cost for the product. It will be part of a $9,000,000 supply purchased with the March of Dimes fund.

"Until April when we will learn the results of the evaluation study now being conducted we cannot know if the vaccine is effective," Dr. Schochet explained, "but we cannot wait until then for planning for the protection of as many of our children as possible, before this year's polio season."

Vaccinating large numbers of children is a big and important job requiring much advance preparation. To wait until after the report to organize would not give sufficient time to make necessary arrangements.

Plans were made to hold meetings for parents in elementary schools to explain the program. Radio and local papers will also serve as sources of information. Watch your local paper for news releases and tune in to Station WTRR for further information on this important project.

LETTER FROM
SENATOR HOFFReports Activities of General
AssemblyTo the Editor:
Dear Sir:

SCHOOL FINANCING

One of the most critical problems facing the Carroll County authorities is that of raising funds to meet the urgent needs for both new schools and additions to existing schools.

The school officials have advised us that within the next 5 years Carroll Co. will be required to spend approximately one and one-half millions of dollars on schools to meet the need caused by the rapid expansion of our school population.

Approximately one-half million of the required amount has been earmarked for the construction of the North Carroll High School, at Greenmount and which is now being erected. The County Commissioners, by past and current appropriations, have provided for this aim.

The raising of the additional one-million dollars, within the next five years, is planned by the imposition of two new taxes in Carroll namely:

1. A tax on cigarettes and tobacco products, and
2. A tax on utility services.

CIGARETTE TAX

S.B. 309 was introduced on February 23. This Bill provides that from and after January 1, 1956, a tax will be imposed on cigarettes at the rate of 2c per pack, on cigars at a rate of from 1c to 4c, depending upon retail price, and a tax of 2c each package of smoking and chewing tobacco.

The Comptroller's office has estimated that this tax will raise approximately $150,000 yearly.

UTILITY TAX

The Bill that will impose a 2c tax on utility services (gas, electricity, etc.) is still in the process of preparation. It will probably be introduced during the current week.

The Comptroller's office estimates that this tax will raise approximately $50,000 yearly.

As a safety measure, to protect against the possibility of obtaining a yield less than $200,000 per year from the tobacco and utility taxes, and against the possibility of increased construction costs, the County Commissioners have been authorized to borrow $500,000 upon the county's credit. (S.B. 184).

SCHOOL COSTS

It must be remembered that these added taxes will take care of school building costs only. In addition there must be provided the cost of over $200 for each pupil in our public schools. In 1954 this cost amounted to over $1,700,000, and it will continue to rise in proportion to the many hundreds of additional pupils who will populate our schools each year.

The County bears approximately 50% of the $200 per pupil cost of education. The State paying for the other 50%. The county's share of this cost must be raised by taxes upon real estate. In 1955 about $1.14 of each $1.56 levied will go into our schools.

WOMEN'S JURY SERVICE

S.B. 210. This Bill provides for a referendum to be submitted to the voters of Carroll county at the General Election in 1956 to determine whether women should serve on juries in this county.

Carroll County is one of the five counties in the State that has no provision for women's jury service.

This Bill has already passed the Senate and is now in the House of Delegates. Until next week, I am,

Sincerely,
STANFORD HOFF.

KIWANIS NEWS

County Agent L. C. Burns, Westminster and Max Beall from the Economics Department of the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., were the highlights of the program presented to the Kiwanis Club at its regular meeting Wednesday evening.

Leonard Reifsnider had charge of the program and presented the speakers. Their talks were centered around "Farming". A film strip entitled "The Road Ahead" was shown.

The meeting was conducted by President Harman Albaugh.

Guests present were Lamar Hiltner and Jack Meunier of the T.H.S. Key Club and Herbert Anders of the Westminster Kiwanis Club.

4-H NEWS

The last meeting was held at Jeanne Howarth's house at 7:30 on Thursday, February 24, 1955. Twelve members were present.

Our Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Langsdale was there. She gave us two booklets to read and look over at home. We then discussed them. Refreshments were then served. The next meeting will be held at Nancy Holter's home on March 17, 1955.

"Economy-minded members of Congress recall the government has operated in the red during 21 of the last 24 years. The exceptions were in 1947 and 1948, when the Republicans controlled Congress, and in 1951, when the post-Korean tax increases boosted revenue faster than it could be spent."—Walter Chamblin Jr., Washington Vice President, NAM.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

(Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's greatest wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

SALES! SALES! SALES!

Who says it does not pay to advertise? To convince you of the fact, you and you should have been "DOWN TOWN" for "The Washington Birthday" sales! No doubt, there were many who did go shopping on one of the days as it lasted three days.

Your Observer drove down all the way into the shopping district and it was as though I was driving in a parade as there were a stream of cars for two city blocks long and all those in the rear! The Pedestrian was hurrying along excitedly with just bundles and arms full of the big purchases.

As I browsed around in the stores just for this Column, I stood at many of the counters gazing in amazement of the wonderful dollar saving idea.

I saw a coat which was marked $20.00—a lovely pastel canary with a zipper winter lining and when the lining was removed there was still another beautiful lining for the coat to be worn in the Spring!

Many of the articles were marked down less than half.

In that grand leather goods store "Tuerkes" beautiful $3.95 gloves marked down to $1.00 a pair.

In a fur store called "Allen and Allen on north Howard Street, there was a huge sign which read, "We cannot tell a lie, the values are here and every garment drastically reduced!"

There was the most fabulous, original and stylish costume jewelry also marked for less than half.

No one was disappointed on those three days of last week!

It appeared like Christmas time with all the shoppers, the only difference the "George Washington" Sale customers seemed to be so serious.

I heard one lady say, "Oh, all I need is the money to buy more!"

Mr. Business Man, regardless where you live and where you conduct your business there is positively nothing quite as successful as advertising whether it is advertised in a City or County paper, you will see your business increase rapidly in a very short time.

Hope they will have "Dollar" days (three of them to be exact) as they do each year in Havre de Grace. They were terrific in that lovely little town those three days of last week—too.

I had difficulty finding a parking place—so early were the shoppers right there. The advertising is done the week previous to the sales and that means the public awaits for the big event.

"Man on the Street" was accosted by W.A.S.A. Radio and each one given a certificate for a prize at one of the stores. (Plus two Movie tickets).

Your Observer was presented with a lovely Chrome Corn Popper with a glass lid from that grand store of Hecht's.

At noon time, I went into a crowded lunch room serving Italian Food and on the Menu was "POSTAVALL-ZUL" soup! "I'll try that kind of soup!" sez I to the Waitress. (I did not dare pronounce it) And then I asked her if it was good and she replied, "Very!" I glanced around and I saw many eating the same dish. When it arrived at my table there was a large bowl of elbow Macaroni mixed with just about everything and as to seasoning—it was so hot that it really burned! No more of that "Postavall-zul" for this Columnist! Perhaps one must acquire a taste for it as you do for Olives or the Opera! Eh?

Last Saturday night, attended a big sale at New Market, Pa.

Such a crowd and mainly all country people!

All types of food can be bought and all from Pennsylvania and that good sharp Cheese that is so delicious with those "KEEBLER CRACKERS". Mrs. Housewife when you buy those crackers by Keebler called, "CLUB!" Nothing as tasty! Many of the women bring along folding chairs and listen to "LOUIE FROMLEBANON" Pa. He brings along a huge trailer of all kinds of food plus everything for the household and remains there until every article is gone.

He sells with the understanding that if you do not think you got your money's worth—bring it back! I did not see any one returning anything. Louie surely does know how to talk to the customers to gain their confidence and he is likeable fellow, too!

In the corner of this big Market, there is a "Specialty" of all kinds of used household goods and all types of furniture which goes to the highest bidder. The Auctioneer is a very aged man and before the night is over, the entire platform is cleared of all he auctioned. Many are interesting articles and very useful. Then, there is the "Church Group" of women selling clothing from the Parish who kindly contribute. I saw a man get a lovely suit for the price of $10.—vest 'n' everything!

So long, folks until next week D.V. Have a grand week-end and think along "Spring" lines for then there will be "Spring in Your Soul"! I am,

Faithfully,

THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1955

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

RED HOOK, N.Y., ADVERTISER: "A Rhinebeck woman has been arrested on a charge of refusing to yield a telephone party line in a fire emergency. It is good to know that there is a law protecting the status of the telephone as an emergency weapon."

PINE BLUFF, ARK., COMMERCIAL: "It is a spiritually broadening and soul-strengthening habit to go occasionally to the church of another faith than yours. Were this practiced more widely a greater understanding of our fellow men would be engendered."

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, MINN., DAILY JOURNAL: "The pay-your-own-way spirit which still dominates a sizeable portion of our agricultural population was dramatically demonstrated — when Minnesota's dairy farmers repaid an 18-year-old debt of $20,000 to the state treasury . . . thereby demonstrating a respect for public funds that is all too rare in our times."

BROWNSVILLE, PA., TELEGRAPH: "Life is rapidly becoming more and more predictable. Economists are forever charting curves on the unemployment level for next August; insurance companies foretell life expectancy with astonishing accuracy; . . . widget manufacturers predict, with a small margin of error, how many widgets the public will buy in 1963. All this makes life more secure but less interesting, since the unexpected adds zest to the stew."

MUTUAL AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE CO.

REDUCED AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE RATES

The National Bureau and Mutual Bureau of Automobile Underwriters have reduced their yearly rates from 9% to 32%, and have revealed their classifications. They are not reducing one class and increasing some other classes, all rates either stay the same or are reduced.

EXAMPLE

Class 1A was—All drivers over 25, Auto not driven to work but used for pleasure.

Class 1B was—All drivers over 25, Auto driven to work less than 10 miles one-way.

This class 1B has been discontinued at a saving to this group of $3.40 per year on their liability coverage.

Men over 25 no longer have to pay the higher rate if their wife is under 25.

Any driver under 25 who has successfully passed a course in driver education, receives a 10% rate credit.

There are numerous other changes, none higher. You know what you are going to pay for a full year. You may pay for it 40% when you take out the policy, 30% three months later, then the remaining 30% three months later.

You receive the policy, identification card, everything you need for care-free driving the day you take the policy out. You have a policy issued by an independent agent, who knows he must give service and must get claims settled fair and fast or he is out of business.

INCOME TAX FACTS No. 2 Invest a Little Time In Saving Tax $$$$

(This is one of a series of articles on income tax changes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Accountants and the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants.)

"Why should I bother with that old tax form?" asked a young lady who started on her first job in December. "I don't need to because I got less than $600." "You don't need to," her father explained, "but it will cost you money if you don't. How do you expect to get back the tax that was withheld from your pay?"

Do You Have To File?

Here are the rules to help you decide whether to file a federal income tax return:

1. If your gross income was $600 or more in 1954, you must file, unless you are 65 or older and had less than $1,200 income.

2. If you had $400 or more income from self-employment, you must file a return to report these earnings for social security purposes.

3. If you had any salary or wages from which withholding tax was deducted by your employer, you must file a return to get credit for the tax withheld.

Married Couples

Generally it's best for married couples to file joint returns instead of separate individual returns, because the joint return gives them the advantage of income-splitting. That is, they are taxed at the rate which applies to half their total taxable income.

There are a few exceptional cases in which separate returns might result in a saving. When capital losses are involved, for example, it's best to figure both jointly and separately to see which results in less tax.

Head of Household

If you are supporting a dependent, although you are single, widowed, divorced or legally separated, you may be able to qualify as a "head of household" and figure your tax on a special table that gives you part of the advantage enjoyed by married couples filing joint returns.

This year you can qualify for "head-of-household" status if you provide more than half the support of a parent and more than half the cost of maintaining the parent's household even if the parent does not live with you.

Incidentally, if your husband or wife died in 1952 or 1953 and you have as a member of your household a dependent child or stepchild, you are now entitled as a "surviving spouse" to the same income-splitting benefits this year as you would have had on a joint return—unless you remarried before the end of 1954. Your privilege to file as a surviving spouse applies to the first two years following the year in which your husband or wife died.

Choosing the Right Form

The simplest tax return is a small card, Form 1040A, on which you furnish a minimum of information and leave it to the government to figure your tax. This is all right if you are sure you can't save by itemizing your deductions and if you are not a "head of household."

You are allowed to use Form 1040A if your total income was less than $5,000, consisting only of wages, dividends and interest, and if all but $100 or less is listed on your W-2 withholding slips.

On Form 1040 you figure your own tax. It may be used as a "short form" on which you find the amount of your tax from a table which allows you approximately 10% of your income as a standard deduction for contributions, taxes, interest paid, medical and dental expenses, etc. If your income in 1954 was $5,000 or more you must use Form 1040 as a "long form." The long form permits you to itemize your deductions, whether your income was more or less than $5,000. If you think your actual deductions may be more than the 10% standard deduction it's wise to list them and see whether itemizing saves on your tax.

Additional Information
Be sure to read the official instructions. You can also get help from the Internal Revenue Service, which urges you to consult only qualified advisers.

Well, not if you kick the ball in with your foot. It's about as "sure thing" as using Ren-O-Sal in the poultry drinking water. Then you can't miss getting extra growth benefits that Ren-O-Sal provides. Ren-O-Sal, used in the water from the start, helps chicks grow faster, reach maturity sooner. This means earlier production and a saving on feed and labor. Birds actually look better with better coloring, finer feathers. You can't miss with Ren-O-Sal.

Through these parties, the children are learning to play together and that is one of the first objectives of the educational program being planned for them.

"LOOK BOTH WAYS BEFORE CROSSING"

A whimsical, eye-catching poster urging children to "Look Both Ways Before Crossing" is being distributed by the Automobile Club of Maryland to schools in the Maryland area. The poster slogan is the theme of the February traffic safety lesson that will be stressed in elementary classrooms this month, reported Mr. Robert L. Leese, Westminster Branch manager of the AAA.

Mr. Leese urged parents to discuss the same message with their children so that the slogan will have a double impact. He pointed out that "Look Both Ways Before Crossing" is a cardinal rule of pedestrian traffic safety, and no matter whether a child is crossing under the guidance of a School Safety Patrol member, a policeman, or with the green light, it is still of the utmost importance to check traffic conditions.

The poster that bears the slogan was drawn by Mary Ann McConnell, a student at Pottstown Junior High School, Pottstown, Pa. Her poster won first prize in its division in the 10th Annual Traffic Safety Poster Contest sponsored by the American Automobile Association.

Mr. Leese said that he wished very much that more adults would also heed the safety slogan "Look Both Ways Before Crossing." "You are never completely safe when you are walking in the same area that must also be shared by automobiles. Your best protection is to cross where you are supposed to," he said, "but even if you have the right of way, you should always Look Both Ways."

HISTORICAL SOCIETY WILL MEET

The Historical Society of Carroll County will meet in the home of the Society at 8 o'clock on the evening of March 17. The program will feature the presentation of a portrait of the late Governor Brown, to be given by the Carroll County Society of Baltimore to the local Historical Society. Mrs. Harry Read, of Baltimore, will present a biographical sketch of Carroll County's only State Governor. Mr. Frank M. Hymiller of the Carroll County Society of Baltimore will unveil the portrait. Other members of the organization will be present as guests. The public is invited.

JUST FOR FUN

A city family had taken a lake-side cabin for the summer. The lady of the house asked a neighbor "What do you do with your garbage?"

The neighbor answered "Well, most of us buy a hog, keep it during the summer, then sell him when we go back to town, in the fall."

The lady bought the hog and in the fall advertised him for sale. A man came to see the hog and asked, "How much are you asking for it?"

"Well," the lady was thoughtful for a moment, "about seven dollars I guess. We paid fourteen for him, but we've used him all summer."

Mrs. Ursula War, 1708 E. Court St., Iowa City, Io.

It was lunch hour at the plant, and Pat's two pals decided to pay a little joke on him during his absence. They drew a picture of a donkey's head on the back of his coat. In due time Pat returned, bearing the decorated coat.

"What's the trouble?" one of them asked him.

"Nothing much," Pat replied casually, "only I'd like to know which one of you yelped your face on my coat."

The policeman was admiring the new '54 Cadillac parked in front of a dingy little candy store on his beat. "Nice customers you're getting, these days," said the cop, "Who belongs to this?"

"It's mine," said the proprietor. "How do you get off to have a car like that?" demanded the officer.

"Well," said the man with a shrug, "I don't have a telephone, so I get all my calls at the Cadillac agency down the street, and you know how it is—how many times can you go in a store without buying something?"

Here's another tale from the Soviet zone of Germany:

Three cellmates in a Red prison were talking things over. The first factory hand said he was accused of "absenteeism" for being late to work.

The second told how he was five minutes early for work and was charged with spying. The third one said, "I came to work on time, and they accused me of buying a Western watch!"

SHORT STORY

Patrick's Word

By F. L. Rowley

PATRICK BURKE had two loves. The first was a deep and understandable affection for his dark-haired daughter Polly; the second, an inordinate fondness for strong liquor.

These two loves had long vied with one another for first place in the old man's heart, and he looked much the worse for the struggle. This morning as he sat on the edge of his bed rubbing bloodshot eyes Patrick made a sudden decision: he would drink no more. May the devil take him if he did. Polly would be proud of her father yet—just wait!

Polly bounded into the room now as Patrick was picking his shiny serge coat from the floor.

"Oh daddy," she cried breathlessly, "I've been invited to the outdoor premiere of Johnny's play! Isn't that wonderful?"

"It'll probably be a flop!"

"Great Scott!" cried Patrick frantically, "I'm in! I'm in!"

"Flop?" snapped Polly indignantly. "Well—I like that! A critic who saw the dress-rehearsal says it'll be a smash hit. Johnny got his ideas for the play from Dante's Divine Comedy."

"Didn't think he had any ideas of his own," observed Patrick. "Very well then—don't go!" cried Polly angrily.

Then, as Patrick sat back to bask in the warmth of his own righteousness, temptation struck!

It came through the kitchen doorway in the person of Dennis Mooney, Dennis got to the point at once:

"I hear from the lips of Officer Reagan," said Dennis, "that his son Johnny plans to ask your Polly to marry him—tonight!"

Patrick jumped up with his mouth open and his lips twitching—like a fish in warm water. "This is a bitter blow, Dennis old friend—a bitter blow!"

"It's rank ingratitude, Pat, that's what it is!" snorted Dennis. "You've given that girl not only a father's protection, but a mother's tender care these many years. You look bad, chum. How about a quick one down at Kelly's Place?"

And so it was that Patrick's good intentions fell by the way.

It was dark when Patrick started for home. The street lights swung like glowing pendulums on willow poles. The very sidewalk was soft and billowy. The world was warm and kind.

Out in the park an orchestra was marking time to Johnny's new play. The lights had been dimmed. A bluish glow bathed the tree-sheltered stage. Suddenly bright tongues of red and orange light danced to the accompaniment of agonized howls by unseen demons.

Patrick Burke threw his arm around a tree and blinked.

"Great Scott!" cried Patrick frantically, "I'm in! I'm in!"

Huge billows of sulphur-laden smoke rolled in from all sides. Lights played on the swaying figures, etching their hideous features on Patrick's mind.

"No! No!" he screamed. "It can't be!"

In a raucous finale the entire troop made for the wings—and Patrick!

This was too much. Patrick staggered through the trees and out upon the dimly lighted street. He was all but exhausted when he collided with Officer Reagan some three blocks from the park.

"And what's this we're playing, me bucko? Red light?" asked the smiling policeman.

"You can be my witness, Reagan!" cried Patrick raising his right hand: "I'll never take another drop as long as I live! Never! Never!"

"Well, if it isn't Patrick Burke—and delirious too!"

"I'm cold sober!" shouted Patrick. "And to prove it I'll tell you that Polly and your Johnny can get married any time they want—with my blessing!"

"I'll not ask you to drink on that, Pat, because I'd like to see you keep your pledge. But here's my hand on it."

And Patrick Burke hadn't had a drink since; not even on that happy day when Polly became Mrs. Johnny Reagan.

MARYLAND WILDLIFE

Prepared by the MARYLAND GAME & INLAND FISH COMMISSION

BLACK-BELLIED PLOVER
(Squatarola squatarola)

Sometimes called Bull-head, Beetle-head and Black-breast

RANGE: Widely distributed in both hemispheres; breeds on the Arctic Coast from Point Barrow to W. Baffinland. Migrates to Brazil, Peru and Chile; found in most every state during migrations; more plentiful in Maryland in early fall and spring; accidental in Hawaii. Found in winter on Mediterranean, and N. Africa.

DESCRIPTION: Length about 12 inches; sexes colored alike, mostly black and white, tail and rump white, throat, sides of head and breast and belly are black in spring plumage—a very handsome and interesting shore bird. Can easily be distinguished from the golden plover by the presence of a small fourth toe, totally lacking in the golden, which incidentally is very slightly smaller; the black-bellied is largest of the American plovers. On beach they will run fast for few yards, stop, and look around.

BREEDING: Nests in a hollow on the ground in grasses; does not nest in Maryland; lays 3 to 4 light olive-brown pear-shaped eggs, with spots on larger end. Incubation by both sexes.

HABITS: Replies readily to call, decoys without fear, and was easily killed for sport and food before the season was closed by Federal law. Food consists of mollusks, worms, insects gleaned along shores; a large part of food is obtained on sand flats left by receding tides. Fly in formation.

MANAGEMENT: Strictly speaking there is no management of the Black-bellied plover, or other so called shore birds that migrate to South America, on which there now is a total closed season against hunting—excepting on the woodcock and jacksnipe, on which there is a short annual hunting period.

VALUE: The shore birds are interesting to bird lovers, and afford much pleasure to many persons on our beaches and ponds, mostly along Maryland's 30 miles of Atlantic Coast line—a wonderful place, incidentally, to study water bird life, especially during the spring and fall migrations. What would a beach be to the naturalist if it were not for the presence of flocks of "beach birds"?

how Advertising helps you
 BY CHARLES B. ROTH

Customer Is King

THERE'S a slogan in American business to the effect that the customer is king, should be treated as one. For some years, during the war and afterward, the customer didn't always feel he was being given the consideration a king deserves, but the fact does remain that in America the customer is still king.

Take you, for instance. Millions of other Americans work to bring you the things you want? Gigantic corporations spend millions preparing what you want to eat, to wear, to look at in the theater, to drive on the highways. Isn't that being treated like a king?

The only reason why you receive such kingly attention is that we live in a highly competitive economy and business men know that if they do not please the customer, they will lose him to a competitor.

The means by which they tell you of their efforts to provide you with exactly what you want is known as advertising. It would be easy, for insensate type does not have scruples or morals, for a business man to lie to you about his products; present them as something which they are not. But he can only do that once. If you catch him in a lie, you stop buying his product.

Do you see exactly what advertising does to protect you and to make your life pleasanter? The advertiser has to back up his story or go out of business.

But advertising has another important effect on your purchases besides protecting their quality: it also lowers their price and keeps it lower.

In the face of the highest prices in history you may wonder that I make a statement like this. It is true that a mild inflation has hit all of us. But mild is the word to describe it. In other parts of the world, which do not have the sharp check of advertising, inflation has outrun all bounds—and millions of people suffer privation and want.

In America, so great is the controlling power of advertising in history you may wonder that I make a statement like this. It is true that a mild inflation has hit all of us. But mild is the word to describe it. In other parts of the world, which do not have the sharp check of advertising, inflation has outrun all bounds—and millions of people suffer privation and want.

Be grateful to advertising—be glad to be a king.

drive safely on the highways

It's never the same after that fatal accident. From then on the person you killed shares every moment of your life. Some call it conscience. Insurance may cover the costs, but nothing can compensate for the life you've taken through careless driving. Life is something we take for granted. Death is something we never forget. And when the death is caused by you, behind the wheel of your car, it is one horrible day after another. We urge you: drive thoughtfully. New Life in Christ

Lesson for March 6, 1955

THE human race is a strange mixture of friendship, and quarrels. People can't get along without one another, or with one another either. People flock together in all sorts of clubs and organizations and yet many of these gatherings of people either spend their time fighting some other groups, or even fighting among themselves. The trouble is that most bonds uniting men are neither deep nor strong enough to stand the strains of life places on them. Business partnerships break up at the breath of failure; political combinations are as fragile as old china; while as for international alliances, most people have now forgotten that ten years ago Russia was counted one of our best friends and Germany our worst enemy.

The True Center

There is one fellowship, and just one, which is world-wide, which has cemented persons and peoples of the most diverse kinds, which has endured past the dying of innumerable other bonds and unions. This closest of all the bonds known on earth is the fellowship of Christian love. If some romantic person rises to ask if the bond of love between man and his wife is not the strongest tie between human beings, it must be pointed out that the records of the divorce courts show that the marriage bond is much less likely to break down where husband and wife are both practicing Christians—that is to say, it is Christian fellowship that keeps marriage-fellowship from breakdown. Now what makes the fellowship of true Christian love so strong? It isn't that Christians are so much more lovable than other persons. The secret is not in the Christians. It is in Christ. Why do iron filings gather so closely together around a magnet? Take the magnet away and they scatter easily. Take Christ out of the church and it soon falls apart in indifference and even bitter quarrels. "We love, because he first loved us," is the secret of right Christian fellowship.

Breaking Barriers

We have many barriers in modern life which divide us into tight groups, misunderstanding and often undermining one another. There are management and labor, urban and rural, adults and adolescents, white and Negro, high and low salary-bracket, and so on. The fact is that none of these barriers is anywhere nearly so strong as was the line, in early Christian times, between Jew and Gentile, or between master and slave. These were simply uncrossable barriers. Master and slave, Jew and Gentile, were not class distinctions, they were iron-clad castes. The most astounding thing about the Christian church, in its fresh early years,—astounding even to leaders like Paul—was that these caste-lines had been erased in the Christian fellowship. Jew and Gentile remembered only that they both loved the same Christ who had died for all. Master and slave met as brothers when they became Christians. The sharpest human divisions faded in the light of the cross. So it is today. People who live in segregated churches, whether the segregation-line is economic of Christian fellowships that cross these human lines by the divine force of Christian love.

Questions for Church Members

The final test of a church, whether it is a true church,—whether a particular congregation has a right to call itself a part of Christ's true church,—the final test is that of fellowship. It would be a good idea for church members to give themselves a stiff examination on this line. Do the members of this church treat one another in a more brotherly way than outsiders do? Are social, racial, economic class-lines drawn between this and other churches, even inside the church itself, or is this one place where all meet on one common ground? Do the members share with one another, and if so, what do they share? Is there for example a sharing in prayer? If one member has had a high experience, do others hear about it? If one needs the other's prayers, is he free to say so, and why? Would a stranger to this church get the impression that this is a group gathered for convenience only, or a genuine fellowship of love?

A PSALM OF THE LAW

Psalms 19: 7-14

As printed in our English Bible, Psalm 19 is probably a combination of two original psalms. One composed of verses 1-6; the other of verses 7-14. The first is a song of the heavens. The second is a song of the Law.

There are seven things said about the Law. The seven characteristics of the Law are:

The law of the Lord is perfect

It is sure

It is right

It is pure

It is clean

It is true

It is righteous

The Divine instruction which the Psalmist knows is called the Torah in Jewish literature. The purpose of the Jewish Law:

To warn the servant of the Lord

To enable him to discern his errors

and secret faults

To restrain him from presumptuous sins

Presumptuous sin is committed when one presumes upon the goodness and graciousness of God. If Jesus had yielded to the devil's temptation in the wilderness, He would have committed presumptuous sin.

How interesting and instructive to compare the place given to Jewish Law in the life of the author of Psalm 19 (verses 11-13):

Moreover by them is thy servant warned;

In keeping them there is great reward.

But who can discern his errors?

Clear thou me from hidden faults.

Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins;

Let them not have dominion over me!

Then I shall be blameless,

And innocent of great transgression.

And: in the life of the author of Psalm One (v.2):

But his delight is in the law of the law,

And on his law he meditates day and night.

This latter Psalmist delights in the law of the Lord that he meditates therein day and night. He turns the Law over in his mind as the cow turns her cud. He extracts therefrom sustenance for his moral and spiritual life.

According to Psalm 19, the Law influences the soul, mind, and heart, or the whole personality.

The Psalm concludes with a prayer:

Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart

Be acceptable in thy sight,

O Lord, my rock and my redeemer.

"Babies give industry two or three new customers for every one lost by death, with a net gain of over two million a year."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Unless we live by the Bible, we cannot hope to die by the Bible. We do not become saints over night.

SHORT STORY

Crazy Fools

By D. L. Alexander

SHE boarded a bus at the corner of Main and Tiffin streets, and as she sat down the seat in the rear became occupied by a tall, well-dressed man. She only glanced at him, but the dark, moody eyes remained in her thoughts for several minutes.

At Main and Center streets she left the bus to take another to Cliftondale, a suburb. She noticed he did the same and again occupied the seat behind her.

During the ride to Cliftondale she caught his reflection in a window opposite and discovered he was watching her intently.

She glanced at the window frequently but at no time could she tell he had changed his position. Nor had his steady regard of her lessened.

A feeling of anger stoke over her but was replaced moments later by a sense of uneasiness. She began to wish she was at her destination and well rid of his attention, which had become unwelcome.

"Here, you, what're you following the young lady for?" he asked.

At Cliftondale she left the bus and started walking up a dark side street. Her momentary relief on leaving the bus changed to alarm when she saw the strange man had also alighted and was walking directly behind her.

An apartment house midway of the block showed lights and without hesitation she mounted the steps of the veranda swiftly and knocked on the door.

The veranda was divided at the center by a railing and as she waited the other mounted the steps at the other end and knocked on a door there.

The bulk of a big man appeared in the doorway in answer to her summons. "Well?" he growled.

"Please, Mister," she began, "that man over there has followed me all the way from the city. I am frightened. Could you help me to send him about his business?"

The big man stepped from the doorway and peered through the darkness at the other one. "Here you, what're you following the young lady for?" he asked.

"I'm sorry," the other replied. "I wasn't following her, and had no thoughts of doing so."

"Well, then, get along about your business and leave her alone."

The other stepped nearer the railing and answered with some heat. "Now see here. I don't take orders from anyone unless I'm working for them. It so happens my business right now is with the man who I think lives in the building."

"Oh, yeah? Then tell me his name."

"His name is Ralph Woods."

"A man by that name lives here but he ain't home."

"Can you tell me where to find him?"

"At the fire company's house on the corner."

"Thank you. I'll go there."

"Will you tell me what your business with my brother is?"

There was more than just a question in the girl's tone.

"The business transactions of our firm are very confidential—uh—you say your brother?"

"Yes, my brother. My name is Marjorie Wood."

"Why—uh—something seems screwy here. Our firm has been employed by a Marjorie Wood to locate her brother, Ralph, who disappeared a year ago."

"Then you must be—"

"Richard Layne, private investigator."

"And I am Marjorie Wood who employed you. Isn't it funny?"

"That you and I should find him at the same time."

He was thoughtful for a moment, then: "Will you tell me why you hired me when you already knew where he was?"

"Oh, but I didn't know. I found out today and telephoned you but you were out."

"I see," he mused. "Well, I must finish the case. I'm going to the fire company house."

"I am too."

They left the veranda, laughing.

"I rather like this case," he commented as he joined her.

"Crazy fools," the apartment dweller growled as he closed his door.

India Seeks Oil To Fuel Growing Nation's Industry

WASHINGTON—The young republic of India, where nearly a seventh of the world's population lives, is reaching for more oil to fuel its industries and drive the engines of an increasingly mechanized society.

In Bombay on the west coast, an American oil company is going into production with a $35,000,000 refinery. A still larger plant is being built by a British concern in the same city. Another American refinery is going up on the east coast at Vizagapatam. Together the three operations are expected to meet most of the country's needs.

India has little crude oil of its own. The only working fields of importance are in Assam province in the northeast, which produce less than a tenth of the demand.

India's oil imports have come largely from the Middle East. Iran was the chief source until troubles over the industry's nationalization there cut off the supply.

Now, the Indian government is preparing not only to process imported petroleum but also seeking domestic wells. Intensive prospecting is going on in Assam and near West Bengal Province.

More and cheaper oil will aid India's ambitious program of industrialization, one of the major features of the nation's first Five Year Plan inaugurated in 1951. The government has already built or is planning new iron and steel works, airplanes and locomotive plants, and factories making penicillin, telephones, machine tools, radio equipment and fertilizer.

Tiny Clutch Aids Planetarium Use

CHICAGO—The "jack of all trades" in the field of industrial mechanization, the electric clutch, has been drafted into a new role—that of bringing the heavens a little closer.

A tiny electric clutch has been designed to control the inner workings of planetariums, those complicated devices which make it possible for persons to watch the movements of the stars and planets as if they were only a short distance away.

The latest model planetarium weighs only one-fifth of the ordinary type and was made exclusively to provide astronomical research facilities for those institutions which could not afford the usual expensive installation.

The new small electric clutch controls the movement of the planetarium in all directions. It enables the planetarium to demonstrate the positions of certain constellations, such as the Big Dipper, either 100,000 years in the past or the same distance in the future.

This is the first time a device has been able to span this many years and the 1,100 pound planetarium is expected to more than double the use of planetariums throughout the world.

Oldest Pill-Rolling Equipment on Exhibit

WASHINGTON—The oldest pill-rolling equipment in the United States has been presented to the Smithsonian Institution to become part of an exhibit of early American pharmaceutical manufacturing equipment.

The copper pill-rolling pan was used in the middle of the last century by William R. Warner, Philadelphia druggist, the first to manufacture and mass-produce sugar-coated pills.

The French had begun sugar coating bitter pills in the 1830's and Warner introduced the process of mass production to the United States in 1856. His coated pills became so popular with long-suffering patients that he branched into wholesale manufacturing.

The antique copper pan, when still in use, was suspended from the ceiling of Mr. Warner's shops.

Netherlands Seeking POW Railway Builders

HOLLAND, Mich. — Netherlands military personnel who, as Japanese prisoners of war, were forced to build the Burma-Thailand railroad, are eligible for special compensation, says the Netherlands Government, which is endeavoring to locate eligible personnel so that they or their heirs may be compensated.

The railroad connecting Burma and Thailand was built by the Japanese who used thousands of prisoners of war in its construction. Following the armistice the railroad was demolished and sold.

Real Fisherman

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I.—Arthur B. Rose, a fisherman, believes in doing the best you can with the equipment on hand.

Rose sighted a 160 pound swordfish while he was hauling lobster pots. He tied the end of his striking line to a stack of pots, had his partner tie him to the mast for safety's sake, and proceeded to harpoon the swordfish.

SAVE BY BUYING

By LOUIS LUDWIG

COOKING is a regular, three-meal-a-day job and every home-maker will do well to select her pots and pans with as much care as any craftsman gives to the choice of his working tools.

Certainly if a new pot or pan will help you do your job better, by preparing a favorite dish easier or more temptingly, if it will help you do your job faster, thus giving you more leisure time, then it is poor economy not to get that pan.

For good service, a pan should be sturdy enough to take the wear that it will receive. It must also be convenient to use and care for and suitable for the kind of cooking to be done in it.

It is generally better to buy utensils that can serve several purposes rather than specialty pans, both from the standpoint of money invested and storage space. If you are equipping a kitchen for the first time, it would be well to start with a few good-quality pans and later add others as the need for them becomes apparent.

And many an experienced housekeeper might well sort out her pots and pans and retire the ones that are no longer of any use to make way for others that could give valuable service.

When selecting cooking utensils, here are some of the things to consider:

Sheet Aluminum—Pans made of medium or heavy gauge are very durable. Lightweight pans are inexpensive but do not last long.

Cast Aluminum—This is heavier than sheet aluminum and much more durable. Brightly polished aluminum pans reflect heat so food browns very lightly; unpollished aluminum absorbs heat and produces a browner crust.

Stainless Steel—This is more expensive, but absorbs heat readily, is light and very easy to clean.

Enamelware—Quality here depends on the number of coats of enamel. Dark blue or gray utensils are generally made with only one coat; utensils of other colors, or white, generally have two or three coats, all fired separately.

Other Things to Consider—Pots and pans must be sturdy enough to stay flat on the bottom and not be easily bent out of shape. A rolled-top edge gives added strength. Handles should be well attached and made of a heat-resistant material.

S. E. Breth, local manager of the Potomac Edison Company was elected to membership to the board of directors of the Annie Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, at a meeting of the board last Friday. Mr. Breth will serve out the unexpired term of Howard Muselman, of Orrtanna, Pa., who resigned.

William Crapster of 11CG and also a member of the agriculture class placed 8th in a swine judging contest which was held at the Frederick Fair grounds on Tuesday, Feb. 22. This was in connection with a public sale in which approximately 200 FFA members of Maryland participated. Out of the nine boys of Taneytown who entered the contest, three boys received recognition: William Crapster who received eight dollars; Albert Angell, 10th place, who received 100 lbs of feed and five dollars; and Glen Copenhaver, 24th place, who received a 100 lb. bag of feed.

Friday, Feb. 25, the American history classes, under the supervision of Mr. Norman and Mr. Feaser, presented a program to the school in honor of Abraham Lincoln and George Washington. The program opened with Scripture reading, Lord's Prayer and the Flag Salute lead by Richard Dougherty. Then a skit, "The Legends and Washington", written by Larry Feaser, Glen Copenhaver, Frank Henshaw, Janet Overholtzer, Arlene Naylor, and Helen Humbert was presented. The question of whether Lincoln or Washington was greater as president was debated by the class, led by Arlene Naylor and Mary Alice Rue. It was decided that they were both great in their own ways. A film, "Mr. Lincoln Goes to Gettysburg" was shown followed by a short talk on Brotherhood Week by Joan Stiehl. In conclusion, two films on brotherhood were shown.

The "Aristocrats of Song", a mixed quartet with an accompanist presented the third Antrim program of the year to the student body on Tuesday morning, March 1. They gave a thrilling performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's great operetta "The Mikado" which was well received by the audience.

Taneytown won its first game over New Windsor by a score of 32-29 in the County Basketball Tournament held in Gill Gymnasium, Friday night, February 25th.
