TWO PERSONS KILLED

Shooting Affair Occurred Monday Night

Murder charges were filed in West-minster Tuesday against a Carroll County house painter accused of shooting his estranged wife and a farmer who tried to go to her rescue.
Ralph Phillips Bauerlien, 25, Poole Road, Westminster, R. D. 4, is charged with killing Mrs. Betty Elizabeth Bauerlien, 23, and Elmer Keefauver Stambaugh, 41, Taneytown R. D. 2, Monday night in the Stambaugh farmhouse on Stumptown Road, about a mile east of Taneytown.

The Bauerliens were married five years ago, but had been separated almost a year. They had no children. Mrs. Bauerlien had been boarding with Stambaugh, his wife and their two young children.

Reconstructing the double killing, state police said that Bauerlien went to the Stambaugh home while the family and his wife were away yes-terday. He went to her room and took several letters. He then left a note downstairs saying he would return and kill her.

The family found the note upon returning, but thought little of the threat, police said, until the estranged husband came back to the house. He was carrying a shotgun and had a rifle slung over his shoulder.

Police said the man first shot the farmer in the stomach with the shotgun. The gun jammed and he then grabbed his rifle and poured 15 bullets into his wife's body. Mrs. Stambaugh and two children in the meantime fled to safety

Then, police report, Bauerlien drove home and went to bed. He resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cas-per Bauerlien, Sr.

State police were summoned to the scene at 9:50 p.m. by a telephone call from a neighbor of the Stambaugh's. They immediately radioed instructions to Westminster policemen Gilbert Abbott and Harry Zook who surrounded the Bauerlein house to prevent his escape until state police arrived to make the arrest.

make the arrest.

Sgt. Frank C. Badger, Cpl. Samuel
R. Dorsey and Trooper P. M. Hahn took the man to the Carroll County Jail and then to police headquarters at Randallstown. He was returned to the Westminster jail by Hahn and Trooper L. L. Dunn and formal charges were filed. Police said he readily admitted the shooting.

A group of about 40 men, including volunteers from the Tangeytown

ing volunteers from the Taneytown Fire Co., combed the area near the Stambaugh home in search of Bauerlien after the killings were reported.

Mr. Stambaugh was born April 1, 1914 in Frederick County, the son of Anna Wilhide Stambaugh, Union Bridge, and the late Joseph H. Stambaugh. He was a member of Mt. Union Lutheran Church, near Union Pridge and Westershough

ADS WORK FOR YOU-AND HOW!

Weston Hill, advertising copy writer who is said to have talked to more consumers through advertising than any other living man, is now engaged in a project to explain advertising itself to this same vast audience. He thinks that the average consumer, though eagerly responsive to advertising, has little or no idea of just how this modern science benefits him -in guaranteed brand quality, lower prices, and rising employment that supports general prosperity.

Hill pegs down some old erroneous with the familiar and erroneous aphorism: "Let a man build a better mousetrap, and the world will beat a path to his door". Beautiful and sentimental, says Hill, but contrary to the hard facts. Whether the man is buried in the Maine Woods or the concrete jungle of New York, the world will not beat a path to his door —until it has reason to believe his mousetrap is better than any other.

Just how is this mousetrap inventor to tell the world? Can he count on his friends, or word-of-mouth publicity? It's not likely he would sell very many mousetraps by these meth-

Or is it better, asks Mr. Hill, for him to find a way to tell millionsthrough hundreds of newspaper's-all at the same time? Certainly, if the local paper tells everybody in town, then those with mouse trouble will be interested in seeing if this trap is Even so, the mouse-harried consumawfully expensive? Won't I be paying more for the advertising than for the trap?"

Definitely no, says Mr. Hill. Advertising reduces the price because it enables the inventor to make and sell thousands or millions of mousetraps rather than just a handful. Mr. Hill asks his readers to visualize a food manufacturer busily producing a (one) box of corn flakes by handand speculate on how much it would cost, with or without sound effects and a premium for the box-top!

But when the same manufacturer can excite millions, via advertising, to eat and listen to his corn flakes. the consumer can buy a package for what the manufacturer pays one of hundreds of workers for five minutes labor.

On the savings that mass production (sired by advertising) give all of us, we could even forego that "better" mousetrap"-and give our mouse some of the corner flakes.-U. S. Press As-

HEARTWARMING EXPERIENCE

Down in Staunton, Va., there's a a gleaming, brand-new $5,000,000 allon-one-floor industrial plant, which the city fathers are very happy to have. Even more significant however, are the 150 new families in town, who were brought down from "up North" to help run it.

That's a lot of people to descend on a town all at once, especially when living habits, ideas and viewpoints are somewhat different in Brooklyn, N.Y. than in Ole Virginny.

Today, about a hundred of the new families are renting homes in Staunton. Quite a few of the ex-Brooklynites already have bought homes. It is estimated that present renters will pay over a million dollars when they become home owners. But, most important in the eyes of Sidney Weil, president of the American Safety Razor Corporation, who has personally directed the huge relocation task, is the question: How are the newcomers and the natives getting along together?

"they have gone a long way indeed in integrating themselves into the life of the community. Families quickly joined the religious institutions of their faith, and I know, as a matter of fact, many who had neglected their religious duties over the years, rejoined the fold soon after their arrival, for it gave them spiritual uplift and companionship. Those who had previous

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Down in Mississippi the other day, the state Supreme Court, in a unan-imous decision, upheld the right of newspapers to publish the news—even when it may be embarrassing to pub lic officials

Specifically, the high court rebuked and reversed a Holmes County Cir-cuit Court which had awarded the local sheriff $10,000 damages in his libel suit against Editor Hazel Bran-non Smith, of The American Adver-tiser. Mrs. Smith had reported in her news and editorial columns that the sheriff had shot in the leg one of a group of negroes congregated on a highway on a Saturday midnight. The sheriff had accused the victim of "whooping", the man denied it and the altercation that followed resulted Clearly it was the sheriff's duty, if these men were "disturbing the , to disperse or arrest them. If any resisted, it was his further duty to take whatever steps seemed necessary to uphold the majesty of the The matter of exercising good judgment is a responsibility that every public servant accepts along with authority.

But it was equally Editor Smith's duty to report the incident to her readers and her right to comment on it editorially. Like any seasoned editor, she sought to get the sheriff's version of the fracas, but reported whe had been worth to receive her form she had been unable to reach him for statement

Subsequently, the sheriff filed a suit for $57,500 in damages against Mrs. Smith, which, as we said, resulted in a $10,000 verdict in County

Had the defendant let this verdict stand, and not appealed, it would have been a body blow to the prestige and influence of The Lexington Advertis-er. Such a precedent would in some measure have reduced the stature of every newspaper in America, and would have emboldened the gauleiter breed of public officials to throw their weight around elsewhere. The law is built on precedents, and had not the higher court slapped down the Circuit Court, the bench in other com-munities might well have followed the example of Holmes County in similar instances.

In its unanimous opinion, the Suppreme Court of the State of Mississippi affirmed the principle on which freedom of the press rests. "The right to publish the truth," said the Court, with good motives and for just ends, is inherent in the Constitution."
We salute the courage and patriotic spirit of Hazel Brannon Smith!

Festive Holiday Fruit Cake

Holidays and hospitality go hand in hand, and the clever hostess always has a special treat tucked away to surprise guests and family friends. What could be better than delicious, unbaked "Festive Holiday Fruit Cake," a new easy-to-make version of an oldtime favorite? It's simple to prepare, requires no baking and, wrapped in foil, stays fresh and delicious for the whole holiday season. The distinctive rich flavor is supplied by crushed sugar honey graham crackers combined with nutmeats and candied fruits. Served with coffee or other favorite beverage, it will add a special note to the joy of the season.

The President, Mrs. Leroy Strickhouser, in charge opened the meeting by all singing "Maryland, My Maryland" and "We Three Kings". Mrs. Richard Leister read the Christmas Story as found in St. Luke, followed with prayer by Mrs. Earl Welty, Jr. The chairman of the membership committee reported a membership of sixty persons. After following were appointed to serve for the next meeting on Wednesday. The Harney P.-T.A. held its reguafter which Mr. Harry Mohney led in prayer.

Dennis Baumgardner, accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. Muray Baumgardner, sang "O Holy Night" after which Nancy Wargny recited "The Light that Led the Wisemen". Miss Mary Alice Rue presented a piano solo, "Medley of Yuletide Melodies" which was followed by a meditation, "Why The Angels Sang", by Rev. Andreas.

The Men's Chorus directed by Mr. George Motter and accompanied by Mrs. Romaine Motter sang "Good Christian Men, Rejoice" and "There Dwelt in Old Judea". Mrs. Edna Smith Schwarber, Woodsboro gave several readings entitled, "A Kid", "When My Pa was a Boy", and "Why the Chimes Rang".

The offering was received as the offertory of Silent Night was played. Rev. Andreas dedicated and consecrated the offering. David and Kenneth Reifsnider, accompanied by their mother, Mrs. D. Leonard Reifsnider, inger and Mrs. Walter Clingan.

Purina's exclusive MICRO-MIXING PROCESS does this job

Accurate mixing of stilbestrol is extremely important. You want each animal to get just the right amount so he makes maximum gains every day he's on feed ... so you go to market with an even bunch of cattle. This kind of mixing is just routine for Purina's exclusive Micro-Mixing. You can depend on it that stilbestrol in Purina Steer Fatena is blended so that every bite is just right.

For best results, stilbestrol must be fed in a wellbalanced ration. It is no substitute for a poor ration. Steer Fatena is the result of years of research and testing with thousands of cattle at Purina's Research Parai.

Make your feed dollars count by feeding proved Purina Steer Fatena with stilbestrol. Ask for Micro-MICRO-MIXED Mixed Steer Fatena at our store.

Man of Prayer

Lesson for December 18, 1955

SOME people will try to tell you that we can learn nothing from the fact that Jesus was a man of prayer. He was so different from us, they say, that we must no more try to imitate him than to imitate Einstein. This is not the way the New Testament looks at it, not the way Christian theology looks at it. Jesus "had to be made like his brethren in ev-very respect," we are told in Hebrew 2:17. The church theologians call Christ "consubstantial with us according to his manhood," which is a way of saying that he is every bit as human as we are. With- Dr. Foreman out sin, to be sure. The only prayer for forgiveness which he ever uttered was on behalf of others, not himself. If even the sinless Son of God was a man of prayer, surely we who are so imperfect and sinful need prayer even more; and we can learn about prayer from him.

The Motive of Prayer

One thing stands out: Jesus' motive or motives for praying must have been far stronger than the motive of most of us. Jesus would go without sleep or rest in order to pray. He, a man who had many friends and loved to have people around him, would withdraw from all human companions, would go far into the hills, would climb a high mountain, just in order to find a place where he could pray without interrup-tion. In short, he took a great deal of trouble to pray. We take less trouble, becau- we don't feel the strong desire that he felt. But why? What was his motive? It is not so mysterious that we cannot give it a name, though it is too profound for us to fathom it to the depths. It ras his heart's desire for close end closer sharing of heart and life with the heart and life of the heavenly Father. Jesus shows no sign of needing to "get right" with God. He was in full harmony to his life's end. But his prayers were an expression of that harmony. The piano tuner makes the strings of the instrument ring true; but the musician then brings out the beauty that is there when all is in tune.

The Manner of Prayer

Dr. W. D. Chamberlain has written a book for plain Christians called "The Manner of Prayer," based on the Lord's Prayer. This is no place to borrow many pages from that fine book. Yet a word should be said about the manner of Jesus' prayer in general. We know that he used to attend the synagogue meetings, and we know that in those meetings formal (what we would call "printed'') prayers were used, in which no doubt Jesus would join. But we hear a great deal more about his private prayers, and we can be pretty sure that for these occasions he never took a prayerbook with him. His prayers were personal, individual, they were free, and many of them were fully private, strictly between himself and His Father. This much is clear for our own prayer-practice: whatever formal prayers we may use in church, or whoever may be praying there for us (and with us, if "leading" in prayer means anything), this can be no substitute for personal, private prayer. We must never be tied down to any formula, as if God were something like a bureaucrat who would not consider a communication not in proper form! God wants to know most of all not how we say it but how much we mean it. The Matter of Prayer

What things is it right to pray for? We can be sure of this much at least: It is always right to pray for the kind of thing which is in harmony with the "Lord's Prayer." (Incidentally, the fact that this prayer appears in more than one form in the gospels shows that it can hardly be right to insist on one set form of words.) Things not mentioned in that prayer, perhaps yes; but things out of line with it, no. Let the reader consider which of these objects of prayer are in line with the Lord's prayer: A promotion in one's job? Greater spiritual strength? The cure of an afflicted loved one? Foreign missions? An unborn child? The President of the United States? The elimination of a rival in love or business?

TANEYTOWN AND THE CHURCH-

When, in fond recollection, the past, I review, My thoughts all revert to things I once knew— Taneytown was only a burg, when I was a boy Yet, to me it resembled a hamlet of joy.

As I have just said, the town was small; It had four streets—(that was all)! From the square to where the town and country meet, One could throw a ball to the end of each street.

But the "Great Well", in the center of the square, It is said, had no equal anywhere; The only time it was ever known to go dry Was the day the "Army of the Potomac" went by.

The well is one hundred feet deep, they say; From it, the people carried water each day; On the bottom you could turn a 12-ft. rail, So, from it, went many a pitcher and pail.

The town was surrounded by four big farms, Four lovely churches were its chief charms; To me, it resembled a haven of rest, And all of its people seemed to be blest.

God seemed to be closer to earth in those days When people traveled in buggies and sleighs; But they did not know Him as we do today, For He is always with us, the scriptures say.

To whistle on the Sabbath day used to annoy Many oldsters, when I was a boy, And a Sunday newspaper nowhere could be found; It was a disgrace to see one around?

I see many faces, in ler hall of fame, Of men who gave to the town its name; But, for modesty's sake, I shall name only a few Of those who worked hard to make the town new.

Taneytown is destined a city to be— Once, she was called a ce-leb rity! At no place could a galaxy of men be found Like she had then, on a similar plot of ground

She had school-teachers, orators, lawyers, galore, Judges and foreign ministers, in day of you're; No similar spot on earth could be found Where so much erudition did abound.

Then, too, there were others who gave their all To keep the town and the churches on this ball; They were its luminaries, and respected by all! Without them, the town would still be small.

As the bright shines, at dawn's early light, Dispels all gloom, and the fears of the night, Just so, they encouraged, and showed the way To those who were timorous in their day.

When Tobias Eckenrode built the house on the square, The people all marveled everywhere; But, old Tobby had visions of what to do; It was he, who started, to make the town new.

Daniel Fair, a Builder of great renown, Built most of the buildings in the town; Architects tried to induce him to come away, But he liked the place, and decided to stay.

Though the town was small in that early day, They had experts in every trade, they say; There were many Solomons in the crowd; So what they did then makes us now feel proud.

Andrew McKinney was the Ben Franklin of the town; When in school, he always wore a gown; His pupils all came words of wisdom to hear, Before they would venture on a career.

He was a great educator in his day— I can still remember some words he would say— So his mill of knowledge ground day after day, And turned out many professors they say.

John McKellip, the Druggist, used to tell Which of the drugs would get people well; He was unobtrusive; but, let me now say, He was one the beacon lights of his day.

James Shildt, the "village blacksmith" of the town, Was jolly, never seen to wear a frown; He was the kindest step-father I have ever known, Even pampered his children after they had grown.

He had many friends in the country they say, So his anvil kept ringing night and day; I shall never forget how I brushed the flies While he measured "Mags" feet to get the size.

Charlie Fuss was an artificer, one of few When a boy, I would watch him polish and stain To make antiques look new again.

Charlie had, what I call ,a debonair mein, On his face the real Charlie could be seen; The physical like the spiritual body must be Before we can go from time to eternity.

"As face answers to face in a glass" Is the test our two bodies must pass; One must have a body which shall not decay To weather the storms of the endless day.

Nathan Angell was an expert tinner by trade, All kinds of things out of tin he made; He was very religious; so, part of his plan Was to worship God, and do good to man.

Ezra K. Reaver was a Tailor of the old school; To manipulate the needle, he had a fixed rule; He made suits of clothes for men everywhere, And for a perfect fit, none with Ezra could compare.

Edw. E. Reindollar was a shining light, in his day, Both in the town and the church, people say; He was not only wealthy, but a wonderful chap, So he did his best to put both on the map.

The Warehouses, also, had much to do In making transition from old to new; Strings of wagons could be seen each day Coming down the streets with wheat, corn and hay.

Two physicians, I see, in her hall of fame, Dr. Motter and Doctor Birnie by name; They would have given destinction to any town, For they were both men of great renown.

It mattered not how the tempest might rave, They faced the elements a life to save-Doctors of a hundred years ago
Made thousands of caus through wind, sleet and snow.

John Reindollar was guardian, people say, Of the old Lutheran church in his day; Like Enoch of old, he always walked with God, Whether in the church or out on the sod.

The Lutheran Necropolis, he and Sam'l gave, Is a spot about which many persons rave; They also gave to the town a site for a Pumping Station To serve its people with a daily rotation.

Were it not for "Piney Creek", a rivulet on their farm, Your beautiful lawns would lose their charm; Just imagine the cost of digging a well For every newcomer, who comes there to dwell. I should like to tell of others in the town

Among whom were also men of renown; But, for want of space, I shall name only three Who seemed to know God and humanity. Bergstresser, Luckenbaugh and Roth, let me say, Were outstanding ministers in their day;

They not only knew God, but their people as well, And little jokes about them would tell. Oliver C. Roth, of course, I thought was fine, Because his brother, Tom, was a buddy of mine, For that reason I knew him quite well,

And still remember the jokes he would tell. In those days the town was sometimes slow; So, up to the church, we used to go! For a better perspective of the sights to see, We all seemed to favor its huge gallery.

But in December the Christmas spirit was in the air, The jingle of bells could be heard everywhere; Skating and sledding, and parties—galore Were the winter enchantments in days of yore.

So, when the Christmas holidays drew near, Our nights were always full of cheer; But the picnics and festivals were also grand, And seemed to rejuvenate the land.

"Christmas Eve" was the gala night of the year; We all went to the church glad tidings to hear, To honor Him who came to earth to dwell, And to hear the old story we loved so well.

The old church, when decked with strings of pine, To my boyish eyes, was a heavenly shrine; Up in front stood two enormous trees Which were weighted down with del-i-ca-cies.

Yes, Christmas Eve was our night for fun, Delectable viands made glad everyone! And our praises ascended to Him on high Who still rules to-day, as in days gone by.

By the light of the moon, early on Christmas day, To the Catholic Church, we would wend our way, To hear similar praises by all who went; So, the whole day was full, of merriment!

The church of my boyhood, with its steeple so high, Still points to God, as in days gone by;
For enchantments which ravish a girl or a boy The fingers of Time can never destroy.

In my memory, old Trinity church shall stand Like one of God's pillars in Maryland; She could not boast of a golden dome; But, to all of the boys, she was a second home.

In my dreams of the future, I can see, All peoples living in peace and harmony; The brotherhood of man shall grow and expand, And a feeling of love compass the land.

So, I predict men shall some day be More like brothers, live in unity, For One God is our Father, and we all shall roam Over the fields of His Paradise home.

A gorgeous structure now stands where Trinity stood; And, from all accounts, is doing much good; She, too, shall be a beacon to light the way For all who seek the endless day.

And, as for the town, let me now say, If it keeps on improving as it does to-day, In its trecentenary men shall see The finest small city in America.

The azure mountains and emerald land Make it alluring on every hand— The topography of the country will make it great; For, that truth to others, men shall relate

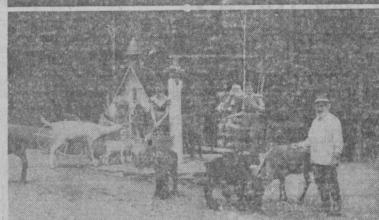

Many cheers for the spirited men of to-day Who are dong their best to make her that way! Even now, I know of no town anywhere, For grace and beauty, with her to compare.

With such an environment and fertile land, No town on earth could fail to expand, Especially, with such men as you have to-day, Who seem to be gifted in every way.
