MEETING OF BOARD OF EDUCATION

Joint Conference With County Commissioners Held

A regular meeting of the Board of Education of Carroll County was held on Friday, March 9, with all members in attendance. The minutes of the last meeting and the bills submitted for this period were approved.

Part of the meeting was devoted to a joint conference with the County Commissioners and the attorneys representing both boards. At this time the Commissioners presented the recommendations of a recently constituted Citizens' Committee regarding the location of additional garding the location of additional school facilities in Westminster. Earlier announcement of this proposed head been made in the al had been made in the newspapers at the end of the week of March 9 The Board of County Commissioners requested the Board of Education to requested the Board of Education to consider the proposal and advise the Commissioners regarding their attitude toward the revised plan. Following the conference with the Commissioners, the board acted unanimously to approve the changes and to approve the suggested location adjacent to Carroll Street. It was directed that the County Commissioners rected that the County Commissioners be advised of this action and that their approval be requested for the their approval be requested for the immediate planning of a new school on this site to accommodate from 1,000 to 1,200 pupils. Preliminary plans include providing in this building for 36 classrooms, science facilities show and home economics facilities, shop and home economics facilities, auditorium, gymnasium facili-ties, cafeteria facilities, office, library and health rooms. It was directed that the superintendent request from the Commissioners authority to begin to plan and to proceed as rapidly as possible with the necessary detail connected with the work. As planned, the building would accommodate, perhaps not earlier than the school year 1958-59, grades 5, 6, 7, and 8, which at that time would enroll about

Dear Observer: You, no doubt will be surprised to get this letter from me from across the ocean. However, the following will explain itself. My daughter, who married an American soldier and who now is living in the U. S. A., sends me your weekly columns which I thoroughly enjoy and look forward to them eagerly. I am sitting writing this before the fireplace as that is our way of heating homes and my back freezing. My homes and my back freezing. My husband died in 1951 and I have no ties here with the exception of a 92 year old invalid uncle and go to live will pull up stakes and go to live with my daughter in America. I have a very fine position which I have had for 14 years. If you were in my shoes what would you do? I will be most grateful for your advice. Mrs. IMKS.

Answer—Well, Mrs. IMKS, you surely flattered me by writing to a little dot like myself when you could have made inquiries to many Columnists over there in England and I do appreciate it more than you will know. I cannot print your entire lengthy let-cannot print your entire lengthy letcannot print your entire lengthy letter which was most interesting. Strange to say or write that I gave the following advise to a gentleman a few weeks ago. He was going to England to live and I told him just as I am telling you that you should take a land to live and I told him just as I am telling you that you should take a trip here first just call it a vacation to see if you would like this country and if you would like us. Your grand position of which you explained in detail would only be available in California not in the East where your daughter lives. I know it must be very lonely for you but there is so much to occupy your time these days and it is nice to know that you do a great deal of activity in your days and it is nice to know that you do a great deal of activity in your church. You know that saying, "There always will be England!" which came out during the War and last year my sister's daughter went abroad through a contest and lived like millionaires for three weeks being taken around to every interesting country, Italy, Spain, France, England and which country do you think she loved in fact said she would like to live there! ENGLAND! I do hope you will consider a visit over here first before pulling up stakes entirely. It is a different country to the said she would like to live there!

pulling up stakes entirely. It is a dif-ferent thing if you were compelled to make the move as an urgent affair but if I were in your shoes, I would think and think about it. I do hope that I will have the pleasure of meeting you when you arrive. One thing I must add which I know that all England loves and that is our grand heating loves and that is our grand heating system even to the small and inexpensive homes.

And from a Maryland city comes

Dear Observer: Eighteen years ago, I married a man who was 14 years younger than I, and I am just beginning to regret the step as I see how ridiculous it all was. Perhaps this would be a good example to set before your Pendars who have a thought in your Readers who have a thought in mind as to marrying a man so many years younger. It is a hard pull and of course as I get older that "Green Byed Monster steps in" I am 61 and my husband is 47. Is there any consolution or advice you can give to me solation or advice you can give to me to overcome that awful jealousy?

The thing that worries me is that I have shown my age in the past two years I will say, "Thank you many times!" Jealousy.

Answer—Well, Jealousy, I am not, going to write, 'it all is too bad and should have not been done in the first place' as many replies would be to place' as many replies would be to such a letter. I am not going to write that I am sorry either but will try to help you if you send me your exact address with a self stamped addressed envelope to me. When people think they are in love at the frightful differences of ages, they just plunge into the marriage without stopping to think, "How will that be when I have a few years on me, will the man a few years on me, will the man I marry care for me then when he is still much younger?" No man or woman should ever marry with such frightful differences of ages between them. Many times young women marry men much older, to only to live to regret it. A prominent case was the one of Gloria Stoukouski who recently secured a divorce and there are two small children. Try to make the best of it and what ever you do the best of it and what ever you do don't show any signs of being jealous for that in itself alone can cause so much unhappiness. I'll write you as soon as I hear from you. Dear Observer—I am a young man of 25 and in love with a girl of 16. She is a wonderful girl plus being a very good girl. Her parents will not even allow me to take her to a movie or go out in my car to make any call. Don't you think this is going too far? I have an excellent position and can support a wife nicely as I am a steady fellow. Her parents subscribe to the Carroll Record and they will read what advice you give us. Thank you M.E.D.

Answer-Having three sons just Answer—Having three sons just like you, I will answer to the best of my ability. First of all the girl is entirely too young for you. A girl of 20 to 25 would and should be the answer. There are lots of good girls in this grand world. It think her parents are showing good tasts and common are showing good taste and common sense. Have you ever spent an evening in this girl's home? The thing that parents resent today is that young couples do not want to remain at home for a nice evening but ride around in cars. Mingle with girls and all young folks who are around your own age.

Faithfully,

YOUR OBSERVER.

Prefer a SIX?

Ford is the only manufacturer who gives you a Short Stroke Six in the light-duty field. It's the most modern, most efficient Six because it gives you more horsepower per cubic inch than any other Six. You get integral valve guides, free-turn valves and a deep-skirt crankcase for longer, smoother engine operation.

Shown above is the biggest Pickup box in the ½-ton field—a new 8-ft. box, available on the Ford Pickup at low extra cost.

53% more power with no increase in engine size Just one kind of engine can give you all the mileage built into today's gas. And that's a modern Short Stroke engine—the new kind of truck power pioneered by Ford.

Short Stroke engines develop power that used to be possible only with much bigger engines. And Short Stroke engines do it on less gas! The shorter stroke means less piston travel, which means less friction to waste power and gas, and less wear, too. You also get more usable power to work for you at the rear wheels!

FEESERSBURG (A Voice from Carroll)

Dr. Jack E. Clare thinks that a clue to a person's character can be found in the profanity he or she uses. While churches disapprove in the use of any kind of swearing, there are only a few persons who refrain from indulging in a few fancy phrases to save their blood presure now and then. But the person who constantly uses swear words in his conversation is in some sort of trouble with himself. An individual may be trying to hide fear or a feeling of insecurity or just plain showing off in using unlimited profanity. Sometimes a man swears and doesn't know it as it is just part of his job—men working on the waterfront fall into this classification. The rough talking cynic who uses a cuss word when a more refined one would do just as well is usually putting on a pose to cover up some emotional conflict. Perhaps somebody didn't love him as a child. Do women swear? They certainly do, much more than they use to and the reason may be is that they are trying to prove their equality with men which is a poor way to prove anything. Anytime someone needs to flaunt something, they're not sure of themselves. blow off a little pressure when you hit your thumb instead of the nail by using a mild "damm" doesn't hurt any one, but constant swearing at every thing or everybody is a sign that something is wrong, and it isn't the world or the people in it but its you thats out of tune. Oddly, the first Americans, the Indians, have no profanity in their language. They won't allow their spirit to be poisoned by hate. We know they did scalp their enemies, but this was more or less for self preservation, not hatred. Maybe that is the reason so many people swear—for self-preservation. If they did not release their pressures some way they might die of high bloodpressure or heart failure.

I believe it has been several weeks since I wrote about the ever present farm problem and I am sure the readers of this column have enjoyed my silence. But this week I am agair prepared to write a few lines. No, I haven't found the answer to the farmers problems. I doubt very much if anyone else has either, but Walter Lighmann writing in the Washington Post has this to say: "What we are trying to do is to provide the farm pepulation with incomes which keep pace with the incomes of the indus-trial population. It is now an accepted rule which no public man disputes that the income of farmers must not stand still, much less may it fall, in relation to industrial income. That is the meaning of what is called parity Now the fact is that during this cen tury at least since the first World War, farmer's incomes, if left to themselves have tended to fall away from parity. To prevent this is the object of all farm plans. There are two plans afoot at the moment. One is to restore parity directly, the other is to restore it indirectly. The direct way restore it indirectly. The direct way would be to vote the farmers a Federal subsidy to cover the deficit between the income they earn and the income which under the principle of parity they ought to earn. The direct subsidy is without a doubt the easiest to administer, although many farmers do not like the idea, for it reveals quite baldy the fact that the operation is at bottom a subsidy by the Nation is at bottom a subsidy by the Nation to a part of the Nation. However a subsidy is nothing to be ashamed of.
The maintenance of a contented agricuttural population is a national interest of the first order. That agriculture requires protection and help is a fact which cannot be doubted and therefore it is being most unrealistic both by Congress and the farmer to try and hide the truth—which is that agriculture must be a protected and subsidized occupation." End of quote.

As of today we now have two weddings to read about in April. Miss Margaret Truman announced her engagement today and told the press she would marry in April, the same month that Grace Kelly chose to marry her prince. It looks like the women all over the world will have plenty to think about. Of course men aren't interested in weddings—not even their terested in weddings-not even their

Our teen-ager received her driving license last Friday. She was quite happy but I seem to have mixed feelings about the event. All parents want their children to grow up but some aspects of this growing up bussome aspects of this growing up business certainly add gray hairs and worry lines to parents. Giving a teenager the right to drive a car is a grave responsibility. It is putting in their hands a powerful machine, which can and often does create death, destruction and heart break. But to deprive them of the right to drive a car just because an accident might hapjust because an accident might happen is not being fair. The only thing parents can do is to impress upon them the necessity of obeying the speed laws; the importance of being as courteous behind a wheel as one is at any social function and of the enormous power the modern car car-ries under its bright colored hood We have to allow our children to try their wings, even though we may have many restless hours. In what other way can we make responsible citizens out of our boys and girls?

Several weeks ago an interested and responsible citizen called on me to ask my support of a project which should be the concern of every citizen of our county. This citizen thinks that the County Commissioners should buy a section of land in each district to be used as a place for people to dump their garbage. He pointed out that groups of houses are being built far from any town corporation with garbage facilities and these families have no place to discard their rubbage.

He believes that if each district had a garbage dump people would use it and stop dumping trash along the highways. I am inclined to agree. This plan has been submitted to the County Commissioners and they agree that something will have to be done about the disposal of trash in the rural areas, but knowing the Commissioners, I know that until public pressure is brought to bear on them they will put the plan aside with a "wait and see" attitude. So if you are interested in keeping our county looking its best or want a place to dump your trash write a letter to the Commissioners telling them so. If the Garden Clubs of Carroll want something to do this spring, they might undertake this project. The D.A.R. might also like to join in the work. In fact it is a plan that would benefit everyone so why not pitch in and help.

Mrs. Roger Roop is serving as Red Cross solicitor for the Mt. Union area. March is Red Cross month and with all its work among the flood victims in the New England and Western States this past year, funds are needed. We know that people get tired of being asked to contribute to some drive each month but the Red Cross is one of the oldest service organizations in our country and with all of its fine work year in and year out it deserves our support. Give if you can.

Two pair of Red Birds were having a game of tag today in the rain and snow and seemed to enjoy it. But several robins seemed to be asking each other if they hadn't left the south too early. Surely this wasn't spring weather. Something or somebody was certainly confused.

Granted, by all means, that there should be nothing which a husband couldn't tell his wife, or a wife tell her husband, there ought still to be a great many things which neither should tell, and real confidence constants sists in not wanting to know-J. A.

If sympathy and laughter are your daily companions, rest assured that you will never become cranky.—Ruth

Lord's Supper

Lesson for March 18, 1956

CHRISTIANS are divided about, many things; but they are all one in the Lord's Supper. "What?" some one will ask. "Don't some churches refuse to let members of any churches but their own partake of the Communion with them? Don't different churches have different explanations of what this sacrament means? Don't various denominations observe it in various ways? How various ways? How can you say all Dr. Foreman Christians are united in the Lord's Supper?"

We Think of Him

It is true, there are seemingly endless variations in the way the Lord's Supper is observed. Even the name is not always the same, some preferring to call it the Eucharist, others Holy Communion. There are also theologians' debates about it. But plain Christians do unite here even when they may not be quite aware of it. For there are three facts that are always true of this sacred observance, however or wherever it is held. First of all, in the Lord's Supper we think of Christ. It is possible to go even to a Christian church and not hear very much about Jesus Christ on that particular day. (Jesus' own teaching was not always about himself.) But it is not possible to go into a church where the Lord's Supper is being taken by the people, without being reminded directly of Christ. Every Christian has heard the words many times—"my body," "my blood," "in remembrance of me." Here are bread and wine, but every worshipper knows that these are not simple ordinary refreshment. They are symbols and signs of Christ, his actual suffering and death on the cross. Whatever the church may be, its members always think of Christ when they take Communion. We Find Him

There is something more than thinking about Jesus and his sacrifice, when we take Communion. In this sacrament we find Him. It is quite true, different churches have different official explanations about how we find Christ here. But from "High Church" to "Low," in 'Liberal" and "Conservative," in Catholic and Protestant congregations alike, if you could ask the people as they come out of doors again, "What did that service mean to you?" It might be that some would hardly know what to say, for it is always possible to go through the motions without really thinking what one is doing. But those who had entered whole-heartedly into the service, who had come "in love and charity" and in faith, would all tell you about the same thing: "Christ came very near to me." If Christ seems just as far away after the Lord's Supper as before, then there has been something wrong about us. That is why the Roman Catholic church will not admit any one to communion if he has not been to Confession first. That is why in many Protestant churches the people are warned to abstain from Communion if they harbor malice or ugly feeling toward their neighbors.

We Share Him

If it is true that in the Lord's Supper we find the Lord himself, it should be true—and happily it is so-that afterwards life should go on at a higher level than before. The Lord's Supper is less like a doorway leading from one room to another just like it, than it is like a gateway across a boundary from one country to another. Christ comes to us in the Sacrament, but not as a fleeting guest. If we are serious as we take the bread and wine and think about all this in the quiet of prayer, we will so enter into the spirit of Christ himself that we shall re-dedicate ourselves in his service. It is a kind of parody on Christian ideas to think of Christ's sacrifice as alone and by itself. His cross must be followed by other crosses. His outpoured life must be shared by others who are willing to pour their lives out in turn. And it is this, again, which unites all the Christians who in their many varied fashions have taken this Lord's Supper with devoted hearts. For there is a family resemblance among all real Christians, whatever their church-label may be. And the resemblance goes back to the same Christ, who has shared himself with every Christian e.e.ywhere and always who has taken this Bread and Cup.
