unanimously approved the merger of its denomination with the churches of the Congregational-Christian faith last Monday morning. This merger has been described by some as "the most significant union of Protestant churches ever attempt-ed." The plan of union of the two churches was approved by the Con-gregational Christian Churches meet-ing in Omaba Neb in June. Next ing in Omaha, Neb. in June. Next summer the two groups will meet in Cleveland, O., to draw up a constitu-tion for the new denomination which wil be called the United Church of Christ. The Congregational Christian Churches have a membership of 1,342,-045 and the Evangelical and Reformed Church has 785,000 members. When the two unite ,the resulting United Church of Christ will be the seventh largest Protestant Church in Amer-

But of great importance than the size of the new denomination is the fact that this is the first time in American Protestantism that two churches with such widely divergent backgrounds have attempted to unite. The Evangelical and Reformed Church has its origin primarily in Germany and Switzerland, while the Congregational Christian Churches have their foundation in England. The Congregationalists in this coun-try being the spiritual descendants of the Pilgrims and Puritans who came to America in search of religious free-

Even more significant is the fact that the two denominations are gov-erned by different types of church government. The E & R Church as a presbyterial type of church govern-ment with 34 regional synods and the General Synod which have certain defined relationships to the local church-es. In the C-C Churches, each local church is independent and self-governing. Dr. Wagner, the president of the E & R Church said, "If we mean all the fine things we say about our oneness in Christ, then so far as it can be done we must try to realize, symbolize, act ualize that oneness in the institutional life of the followers of Christ."

The Automobile Club of Maryland's annual appeal to area motorists to take special precautions when driving near schools began recently.

"When school doors reopen on Sept. 4th", Robert L. Leese said "thousands of boys and girls will be making the journey from home to school for the first time. They need every protection first time. They need every protection motorists can give them." The theme of the campaign will again be "School's Open—Drive Care-fully." Colorful posters supplied by the Automobile Club will be placed in conspicuous spots near all schools throughout the state. The Baltimore City and Baltimore County police de-partments are handling the posting in their areas. Elsewhere in the State the posting will be accomplished the posting will be accomplished through the cooperation of the State Police, other City and County Police and individual schools.

Bumper strips bearing the "School's Open" message are being distributed to local car owners and commercial fleet drivers. Additional strips and posters are available from the Auto-mobile Club of Maryland.

The poster design was adapted from a prize-winning poster in the National Traffic Safety Poster Contest sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland and the American Automo-bile Association. The original was drawn by Janice Buckmaster, a 17-year-old high school student in San Jose, California. Henry A. Barnes, Traffic Engineer, Baltimore, was a judge of this contest. "We particularly want to get the 'word' to drivers who have no chil-dren of their own", Leese stated. "They are the ones who are most apt to forget that special speed zones and school crossings must again be ob-served now that summer vacation is

During the summer, the Automo-bile Club has filled the requisitions of more than 300 Maryland schools for safety patrol material, including Sam Browne belts, badges, arm bands, membership cards, rule books and similar items. With these materials and others supplied in previous years, more than 12,000 safety patrolmen in some 250 communities throughout some 250 communities throughout Maryland will be on duty the first day of school through the last safeguarding their classmates. The specific things that motorists are being asked to do in connection

- Scrupulously obey speed limits particularly near schools.
 Be extra alert for children
- crossing streets at unexpected places, such as from between parked cars or in mid-block.

TWO TRIPS DESCRIBED CORNER STONE LAYING Participants Tell of Some of Things Seen A THREE-DAY VACATION TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weaver from

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weaver from Manchester, spent the Labor Day week-en dat John W. Smith's, Mrs. Weaver's parents home. While the Weavers kept house there, Mr. and Mrs. Smith took a three day vacation driving trip through the beautiful mountains of western Pennsylvania. The drive ended at Johnstown, scene of the famous flood of 1889. After spending the night in Johnstown, they spending the night in Johnstown, they set out the next morning to drive 8 miles above the city to see the broken dam which was the cause of the flood.

The road ran steeply up the mountain and this morning was almost hidden in fog. There were no signs, directions, or markers of any kind you picked out your way by inquiry along the way from odd looking moun-tain people. Finally after holding your breath for an hour or more, there it was, just as the water left it 67 years ago. Nothing has been done to it, and brush and scrub trees have grown over the broken ends of the dam at each side. You can walk out on the top and look down the dizzy depth to the bot-tom of the gorge, then you can picture the immensity of the wall of water that broke through, and within an hour took the lives of 2400 people and millions of dollars worth of prop-orty. Back in Johnstown or top of and millions of dollars worth of prop-erty. Back in Johnstown, on top of the mountain in majestic Grandview Cemetery, these victims lie buried. There is a great monument, "To the Unidentified Dead of the Flood of May 31, 1889." Radiating out in ar-tistic lines from the monument are rows and rows of smaller, marble stones, quite plain, not a mark on them, each one representing a victim. them, each one representing a victim. It is an overwhelming sight. It may be that the Johnstown people do not put up signs and markers for tourists because they want it forgotten, and who would blame them for that.

An elderly gentleman having the time of his life also vacationing alone going in and out of the water, having three changes of shoes on the big blacket spread on the beach and many blanket spread on the beach and many towels and three changes of robes. He would come in from the ocean bathing and change each time, take a walk, lay in the sun and go back to the ocean again. He did not talk to a single individual.

Then, there was the young couple with a two year old daughter who just came in from the ocean and siting close to my chair smiled at me and the husband said, "Gee, I'm glad I'm back in the East as I had been liv-ing in California where I was sent on a business mission and I hated every minute of it. She brightened up quickfrom him! She brightened up quick-ly and with a big smile and a twinkle in her eyes said, "I'll keep on look-ing until I find some one for I do so want to get married!" And this from the girl on the other side of me—"Are these sweet little children yours?"I asked admiring a clever little boy and girl. "Oh, no. These are my sister's children and I brought them down for the day. I am not married. I was engaged to a fine young man who was killed overseas trying to save his Buddy who was trying to save his Buddy who was married and the father of two children. THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1956 PUTS YEARNING INTO LEARN-junior high-schoolers all over America who are taking science courses are going to have new help in integrating their studies with their futures. New visual aids for both teaching and learning booklets and leaflets designed to dramatize the need and purpose of science studies and to open to the student practical vistas of life and achievement as an engineer or scientist will give his lessons new reality.

This augmented junior high school program will be instituted in over 3,600 such schools during the year as a result of last year's successful pilot tests in 50 school systems. It is to be phase one of the million dollar, five year educational program just announced by the Manufacturing Chemists' Association.

At the same time, a similar pilot program will be tested at the senior high school level to be made available, probably early in 1957, to the 11,700 US high schools now teaching chemistry-and the estimated 400,000 young people studying the subject.

Durin gthe next school year, 1957-1958, first contact will be made with sixth grade students in elementary schools-the point at which the Association believes youthful ambitions begin to sprout and aptitudes are revealed. Simultaneously with their Kids' Day will be observed in Tan eytown in the afternoon of Sept. 22 in Taneytown Memorial Park under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club of Taneytown. Howeil Royer is general chairman of the event.

If your Johnny has trouble reading, it may not be the fault of the school. He may be one of the estimated 8,000,000 American school children who have defective vision. Children with eye troubles often confuse similarly shaped letters in them reading—o's and a's, e's and c's, n's and m's, h's and n's and r's. Vision defects can present serious obstacles to the learning processes of the one out of every four school-aged youngsters known to need some form of eye care. Most children can't be aware of their own vision difficulties. Lacking a basis of comparison, they believe whatever they see to be correct.

Periodic school vision screening programs are helping to discover those Periodic school vision screening programs are helping to discover those school-age children who appear to need a professional diagnostic eye exami-nation. The earlier eye defects receive proper treatment, however, the more promising the results. Failure to correct vision defects can unnecessarily handicap a youngster for life and edversely effect personality development. The Maryland Society for Prevention of Blindness therefore alerts parents to the signals to be heeded if sight is to be saved: Frequent frowning, squinting, blinking, rubbing of eyes. Unusual postural seeing positions—tilting head, etc. Stumbling ,tripping over small objects. Reluctance or inability to play outdoor games Oversensitivity to light

Planning for a community-level program in cities and towns where chemical companies have plants is getting under way in the form of a manual of suggested activities in which industry executives and educators may join hands to add fresh realism and a practical background to schoolroom studies and laboratory work. The nationwide potential of this phase is suggested by the fact that Association members represent over 90 percent of the productive capacity of the vast chemical industry.

The new science education program is the Association's answer to its own study published in June which revealed that there will be a shortage of nearly half a million scientists and engineers by 1965-93,000 of them in the chemical industry alone-unless immediate steps are taken to stimu late youth's interest in scientific studies and to help these young people prepare for what are admittedly tough. courses. "We are undertaking our science education program," says General John E. Hull (USA ret.) MCA president, "with the fervent hope that it will help to alleviate the shortage."

This realistic plan, based on the conviction that inspiration and encouragement are needed below the college level, with provision for such aid on a national scale, should also inspire every other scientific, engineering and industry association to pitch in and help. The job of helping our youngsters and their teachers to cope with-and master-our expanding technology is big enough for everybody .-- U. S. Press Association.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

MARION, IOWA, SENTINEL: "This writer used to work a 48 hour week on the section for $18. Now a section man gets this much in little over a day. The union can get much of the credit for this. But all of us need to study the problems involved to see that everyone gets his fair share, but to avoid killing the goose that lays the golden eggs."

The Taneytown and Piney Creek Presbyterian congregations held a very enjoyable and well attended picnic, in the Piney Creek grove, last Saturday. There were quite a num-ber of visitors present, and everything passed off as ideally as the day itself.

We are a wee bit tired of reading about the ugly side of man. The other day we counted twenty-five articles on the first and second pages of our daily newspaper dealing with violence in one form or another. We know of course that life is not all sweetness and fair-play but neither is it all evil. Editors claim that only sensational stories sell papers. This I can't be-lieve. Certainly the majority of readers don't have a warped mind, dwelling on murder, robbery and mayhem. The popularity of a weekly newspaper doesn't depend upon violence in print. Instead of so many editors catering to the morons why not try editing for the egg-heads as an ex-periment? It may come as a shock but people still admire a hero, still believe in beauty and goodness, still read poetry and philosophy, still believe in the ten commandments and still seek kindness and loyalty. There is more to write about than the sensa-tional and we believe that people are more than ever looking and hoping for the commonplace in their lives. News should in some manner reflect this yearning in the type of stories it prints .

Did you ever wonder why a woman will not throw out an old dish or pan. but stacks them away? There must be the same sentimental attachment for these articles as a man has for an old hat, hammer or over-shoes.

Can you remember that not so long ago when two people broke their en-gagement the first things that were demanded returned were the love-let-ters each had written the other? Today the worry over what had been written with love and passion has all but vanished. For the telephone has taken the place of the love-letter. The words that use to almost burn up the paper now almost burn up the ear-drums. There seems to be a trend among the younger set to do more entertaining themselves in their own back yards . . . so to speak. Recently the Queesenberry children entertained a large group of their friends at a lawn party at their parents home near Lin-wood. Last Friday evening the Misses Mary Schue, Frances Bohn and Geraldine Graham gave a party for Miss Judy Williar at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Schue. About 25 of Judy's classmates attended to wish her the best of luck at the Junior College she will attend this fall near Lancaster, Pa.

Another accident happened on this road last night two cars sideswiped on the hill in front of the home now occupied by the Heiner family, causing slight damage to both cars. No one can realize the traffic we have on this road unless you live on it. We do appreciate a hard road to the dirt roads we had years ago, but, our County Commissioners should get out and check over some of these little roads and see the need of reconstructing these roads for the safety of their sup-norters. Also to make a check of hor these roads for the safety of their sup-porters. Also to make a check of how much traffic is on a little road like this compared to the main highway. I venture to say we have as much if not more traffic. An officer of the law said this road is too narrow. I believe if each one would get together if each one would get-together we could make this a better road by giving a little of our land, or trees to make a safe highway. We are thankful to the telephone Company who has done its part by moving one of the dangers from our road—a pole which was too close to the road.

FEESERSBURG 1.721-9901 (A Voice from Carroll)

All over Carroll County this Tuesday morning there are hundreds of quiet and calm homesteads as the children return once again to the classrooms. The majority of children are always eager to return to school after the summer vacation and if parents are truthful they are equally happy too for the same reason. But we can't help but wonder how the teachers feel as they face the energetic, noisy and often unruly girls and In the latest issue of the ovs. Ladies Home Journal there are three articles on the current school problems that every American citizen should read and study, for it is something that for many years to come will plague everyone. It is the deterioation of our educational system. Yes, we know that there have been too many words written on the subject already and very little action taken to meet the situation, but first the public must be educated to the situation. There are many problems bedeviling the public school system but the fore most one in my opinion is the idea that one can obtain knowledge the easy way. Some how it must be impressed upon the children that gaining workable knowlege of subjects is the goal of education and it can not be easy, for filling the mind requires study and practice. There was a period in our history when education prized above anything else and parents did without to send their children to college because it meant something dear to them. Today education is looked upon as something to make a fast buck with, and intellectual superiority is scoffed at and labeled "egghead. But it may be that our rival, Russia will force us to change our minds and instead of wasting the brains of our girls and boys we will come to realize before its too late that real education will be the key that opens the onrushing horizons of tomorrow

Not only is the entire race of man in a turmoil of resentment about everything but this state of affairs has reached the bird-kingdom. seems that the storks who usually make their homes in Europe are now in South Africa and refuse to return to their homeland much to the confusion of the birdwatchers. Maybe the storks are distressed because they no longer get the limelight as the delivery bird for human infants. No longer does the small-fry expect a stork to land on the house-top with a baby bothor or cicture second d baby brother or sister suspended by a diaper in his beak. No, the birds and bees have taken over and put Mrs. Stork on the back shelf and we imagine it has done something to her hopes the day will come when driving will be almost one hundred percent safe. Maybe we should learn to accept the hazards of driving the same way as we accept other risks, in the risky business of modern living. There is no fool like an old fool, but who wants to be an old one . . . we would much prefer to be young fool.—Ruth Roelke.

day morning at nuptial mass in St. Joseph's Church, Taneytown. The mass celebrant Rev. Step han Melycher, the bride's pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in an imported Swiss embroidered organy gown with an embroidered collar over an illusion neckline. It featured a fitted bodice, full hoop skirt with a scalloped border over a ruffled satin underskirt and a tierred train of white organdy ruffles. Her short illusion veil was attached to a fitted cap of seed pearls. Her bouquet was a colonial cascade of white carnations and gladioli florets.

Mrs. Julia Rosenwald, Frederick, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Helen Gorman, Taneytown, sister of the bride, Mrs. Hanora Cobb, of Pawtucket, R. I. sister of the groom. They wore pale lilac organdy over net dresses accented with dark lilac velvet belts. and matching headbands of dark velwith short veils.

Bernard Nichols was the ring bearer. His sister Susan was the flower girl. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nichols, of Washington Grove, Md.

Mrs. Joseph Carroll was the soloist. Edward McCrory, was bestman. Ushers were James Gilroy, University of Maryland, College Park; and Geo. B. Arnold, Taneytown.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at Taney Inn. A miniature reproduction of the wedding party was featured on the wedding cake. After September 10 they will be at home in Washington.

The bride is a graduate of Provi-dence Hospital and Catholic Universi-ty School of Nursing, Washington. She is a staff nurse at Medical Unit URAMC, Fort Detrick.

The groom is a graduate of Provi-dence College with a masters from Boston College. He is presently at-tending Georgetown University School of Dentistry, Washington.

Mathias, who was unable, due to other engagements, to attend. The message of Mayor Mathias read as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen:

From what can be seen here, and from studying the building plan, it is apparent that this County Adminis-tration Building will be a handsome and functional home for the County's offices. The proceeding for the offices. The necessity for this construction is pleasing to those of us in-terested in Carroll County because it gives evidence of the growth and progress of the County. The Commissioners are to be commended and congratulated for planning and con-structing the building, and I know it will prove helpful in the administra-tion of the County's affairs. It is a pleasure for me to participate in today's ceremonies

And, lastly, I have placed a gavel which tradition leads me to believe is the original gavel of the Judges of the Carroll County Court. I now hand the copper box to Messrs. John D. Young, James E. Shilling and Edmund L. Carr, the County Commissioners of Carroll County, for placement in the corner stone and they will some the corner stone, and they will now proceed to lay the stone.

At this point Mr. Young placed the sealed box in the corner stone and each of the Commissioners placed some cement with a trowel on the stone, and it was then shoved by them into position.

Judge Boylan then continued: The stone has now been placed and above it will rise the Carroll County Administration Building. Such a buildneeded for many years. The Court House is not large enough to accommodate all the administrative bodies connected with the county government, so that it be-came necessary for the county to lease office space for the School Board, for the Trial Magistrates and for the County Agent and perhaps other agencies. As a consequence there was no central place where one could go to attend to the business which brought him to the County Seat. THE YORK FAIR

The population of this County, according to the 1950 census, was 44,-907, which represented an increase of fifteen percent over the 1940 census. In fact, in recent issues of the County press, it was stated that 9750 children are now in the public schools of our county. To meet the needs of the Superintendent and his staff requires larger quarters. The same may be said about the County Agent, and, in a lesser degree the offices of the Trial Magistrates.

The growing population, the large expansion of industries, the many housing developments and other improvements made it imperative for the County to erect a suitable building to take care of the pressing needs. The offices now presently in the Court House are burdened with records which must be properly preserved and there is no space to be allocated for vaults either in the Clerk of the Court or the Register of Wills offices.

To further expand or enlarge the Court House was considered inadvisable for two reasons. The first of these would tend to destroy the beauty of the Court House and the second was that it would be less expensive to erect a modern administrative build Mith this in mind, a previous board acquired this land and the present board has undertaken the task of construction. The action of the Board was deliberate and before they authorized its construction they, following the admonition of St. Luke, sat "down first and counteth t cost." St. Luke, Chap. 14, verse 28. the In the second part of Henry IV Shakespeare wrote: "When we mean to build,

We first survey the plot, then draw the model: And when we see the figure of the house, Then must we rate the cost of the erection. (II Henry IV, Act 1, Scene 3, line 41)

The building to be erected above this corner stone is simple in design for the Board believed with Ruskin that "no architecture is so haughty as that which is simple" (Stones of Venice, vol. 2, Ch. 6, sec. 73). They also had in mind, again quoting from Ruskin, that "when we build, let us think that we build forever." (Seven Lamps of Architecture; The Lamp of Memory).

It may be said of the present Board that they deserve much credit for the task they have undertaken, and the gratitude of the citizens of the county should be due them for the erection of a building of which we can justly be proud.

In closing this ceremony, let hope and pray that those who will be housed herein will perform their respective duties with ability, honesty and integrity.

as director for the Carroll County Civil Defense has announced that a state-wide Civil Defense Alert will occur during National Civil Defense Week, September 9 to 15.

The date of Thursday, September 13 has been chosen by an over-whelm-ing percentage of the county directors, and this date has been made definite in Carroll County. The schedule for Thursday, Sept. 13 will be as follows: 1:45 p. m., alert signal, mobilization of all county workers in their respective stations; 2 p. m., "Take Cover"—all traffic will stop and persons will take refuge in the closest covering. The "All Clear" will be five minutes after the sirens have sounded for the "Take cover" There will be no "all clear" signal, but is automaticaly five minutes after the 'take cover" signal. It is imperative that all auxiliary police function on this "alert", as much depends on their actions during that time. Director Babylon urges that all Civil Defense Groups function simultaneous in their areas, bringing about an active "alert" for the much needed experience.

It is hoped that all posts of the ground observers corps be manned on this day in particular, and of great assistance if manned during the entire week of September 9 to 15.

DIED

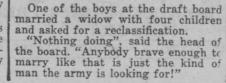

MRS. ALICE M. PATTERSON

Mrs. Alice Marie Patterson, 62 wife of Arthur H. Patterson, died at her home in New Windsor on Saturday at 8:40 a. m., after an extended illness. Born February 11, 1894 in Baltimore, she was a daughter of Mrs. Cora Dorsey Jones and the late Robert Jones.

Surviving besides her mother and husband are three children: Mrs Lena Brown, Mrs. Mary Brown, both of New York City, and Charles Pat terson, Baltimore. Three sisters sur viving are: Mrs. Lydia Patterson, o' New Windsor; Mrs. Arnita Cooper Westminster, and Mrs. Emma Bibler New York City.

She was a life long member of Mt Olive Methodist church, and a mem ber of the WSCS of that church. and also a member of the Queen Elizabeth Court No. 15, United Order of Nazerites.

Funeral services were held in the Mount Olive Methodist church Tuesday at 2 o'clock. Rev. Clarence Go vans officiated. Burial was in Mt Olive cemetery.

the top spot in the league in batting. Ted still has plenty of power, having hit 17 home runs through games of August 27.

Williams, along with Jim Piersall and Jackie Jensen, helps make up one of the finest outfields in baseball. The trio has been largely responsible for Boston's position in the pennant race.

The Orioles boast some fine hitters of their own. Bob Nieman has already cracked the old Oriole home run mark of 12 and threatens to annex the runs batted in standard of 65 set by Gus Triandos last year. Triandos himself has already broken his RBI mark. Nieman has surpassed the old club record for bases on balls in a single season. The former mark was 72, set by Cal Abrams in 1954.

George Zuverink, Manager Paul Richards' ace reliever, is running abreast of the record setting pace of Ellis Kinder in 1953, when he set the all-time American League record for relief appearances. Kinder appeared in 69 games for the Red Sox that year and Zuverink has been in 54 games through August 26.

Friday night will be Navy night at Memorial Stadium as U. S. Navy officers swear in a group of 64 recruits who will form Oriole Company No. 2. A similar ceremony took place last year when Oriole Company No. 1 was formed. On hand will be a crack Navy drill team as well as a Navy Band from the School of Music in Washington, D. C.

Prior to the start of the doubleheader there will be an exhibition of archery skill and marksmanship by some of Maryland's finest bowmen who are celebrating Maryland Field Archery Week.

The Orioles depart for their final western trip of the season following the four-game series with the Red Sox. The Friday night double-header will be the final twin bill of the season at Memorial Stadium and thousands of good seats are available for the games of Friday night as well as n Saturday and Sunday.

Since man is a potential Son of God He should follow the path the Saints have trod; He comes here to build for himself a home, A perfect body in which to roam.

- The "Real you" creates the body we see-(That is true of both you and me);
- God has sent him here to show us the way Our bodies must be in the endless day.
- The "man of the earth" does not seem to know, In his search for riches, just where to go; God has sent him here to study His plan;
- But, instead, he strives to emulate man.
- About all he knows is the day of his birth,
- And all he seeks is pleasure on earth; Like the "deaf adder" he stoppeth his ear Lest words of wisdom he may hear.
- Earth holds many treasures in her vaults below After which he is prone to go; But the thing which baffles every clan Is God, and the brotherhood of man.

- At the very beginning of our 6000 year day,
- Cain asked (and we still hear men say; "Am I my brother's keeper forever to be, And, from his presence, shall I never flee"?
- God answered him in part, for His great plan Includes earth, and the brother-hood of man;
- His brother's keeper man must be If he hopes to live through eternity.
- All through the ages this one great plan Has been a stumbling block to man; For the life of him, he cannot see, Why his brother's keeper he must be!
- Just imagine how wonderful it would be
- we all knew the meaning of charity!
- Charity means more than giving silver and gold; The things which it does are manifold.

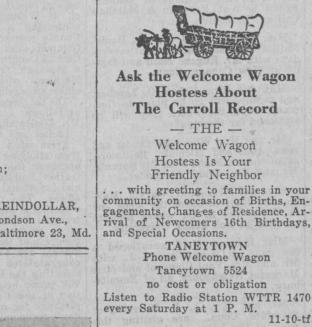

- If your neighbor needs help, give him a lift! He will appreciate such a gift— Or, if financially, he is in a hole, Slip him a few bills from your roll.
- There are times when all of us need a friend,
- For, of need and misfortune, there is no end; So the fellow, who gives a helping hand, Is the fellow who shall "inherit the land".
- In a foregoing poem, I have told of the plan Which shall bring to friction God's home for man;
- But, for want of comparison, we can not see What a Paradise this earth shall be.

This month thousands of our friends and neighbors are assuming the obligations and being granted the privileges of citizenship in the United States of America.

We welcome these new citizens into our great American family. Like most families, we often disagree among ourselves. But when important matters are at stake, Americans have long been noted for their great spirit of cooperation.

The United States Savings Bond is a case in point. Savings Bond ownership is an opportunity open to every citizen. And more than 40,000,000 of them have already taken advantage of it by investing more than $40,000,000,000 in Bonds. Do you own your share? It's the one investment that pays off where it counts the most-in peace of mind and security for yourself, your family and your country.
