TRIP TO WEST COAST

Many Beautiful Places Described by Tourists

Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Kiser and Mr. and Mrs. Claude W. DeBerry and son Stephen returned home recently from a three-week tour of the West, covering 9,560 miles. Visiting twenty States namely, Pa., Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Arizona, Nevada, California, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, and W. Virginia. Traveled the turnpike through Pa., Ohio and Indiana describing a few of the places of interest and scenery as we passed along. The vast farms of Illinois and Iowa of corn and soy beans and hay lowa of corn and soy beans and hay were lovely and plus their many man-ufacturing centers. The grazing lands of Minnesota were huge with rich and spacious farms; with clusters of trees around the farm buildings, protecting them against the severe winter snow storms, this was an un-usual sight with the farm buildings as far apart, surely they don't know their neighbors. Miles of hay stacks of baled hay, for the cattle next winter. Here we also visited the Black Hills and Bad Lands and Mt. Rushmore. All beyond description, you have to see them to appreciate the grandeur.
Mt. Rushmore is the Monumental sculpture which honors the men who laid the foundation of our country; (Continued on page 6)

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS OF THE COUNTY TO VISIT RODNEY HAINES' FARM

On Monday evening, August the 19, all Holstein Breeders of the County are invited to visit the Rodney Haines' farm, located at Frizellburg, Md., on the road leading from Westminster Taneytown about five miles from Westminster.

This twilight meeting at 7:30 p. m. s sponsored by the Carroll County Holstein Breeders Club. The invitation is given by Mr. Rodney Haines and son who own and operate the farm.

The program has been well planned and will include many features which should be of interest to all dairymen. The first event will be to look over the fine herd of Holstein cattle on the farm. A judging contest for all to participate in will be of interest. A hoof trimming demonstra-tion will be given by an expert who will explain how the operation is done and the advantages derived from keeping the dairy cow walking on good feet and legs.

This evening will be well spent and no breeder should miss the fellowship and the opportunity to visit with the Haines family and your fellow dairymen from various sections of the coun-

Refreshments will be served to add a final touch to the events which will be both pleasurable and profitable. Don't miss this opportunity!

SALE OF BULBS FOR UNIFORMS A SUCCESS

Approximately 99% of Homes Visited Helped in Drive

It was a most gratifying experience we had last week as we parents with the students in the band went from house to house selling light bulbs to raise funds for suits for the children in the THS Band. If we would have kept an accurate account of the families who bought bulbs we are certain it would have averaged 99% of the homes in and around Taneytown. Very meager words, but we thank you from the bottom of our hearts for lands of Minnesota were huge with many beef cattle, numerous beautiful lakes, with plenty of fishing available South Dakato and Montana with their with and species for the sale of bulbs amounts to $812.88. A few more districts will be covered this week and bulbs will be sold at our festival next week.

It is a great pleasure to announce that we have $2000.00 toward our goal of $2700.00. We would like to again remind the parents of the children in the band that if you have not dren in the band that if you have not already made your contribution, we know that you will want to do so in the very near future.

The Band Concert and Festival will be held on Saturday, August 24 in the Memorial Park. Supper will be served from 4 to 9. Refreshments and home baked goods, big party, pony rides, fish pond, and games will be featured from 4 to 11. Your evening of pleasure with us will benefit a good cause. CIVIL DEFENSE COUNCIL HONORS A. E. HOLGATE

Director A. E. Holgate of the Washoe County - Reno - Sparks Civil Defensen Council was honored at a meeting held in the Mess Hall of the Nevada Air National Guard Armory on Wednesday. Mr. Holgate is relin-quishing his post following his recent appointment as a member of the Nevada Public Service Commission by Gov. Russell. Mrs. Mary Manker, council vice chairwoman, presented the outgoing chairman with a testimonial from the group. Mayor Harris of Reno presented him with a handsome fire below and added his praise to the work accomplished during the years of his directorship as did Mayor E. Richards of Sparks.

ed Division in Europe during World War II. Following this he had charge of the refugee program in central Europe for five years and subsquently had two years service in Korea,

In this capacity he was in contact with the Russian forces occupying the countries. In the course of his remarks General Wood said: "I detect a certain latent fear of the Russians in our dealings with them on the diplomatic front over the last decade. They do not fear us in a military sense for they know we will not start a shooting war even though they ob ject to the circle of air and military bases we surround them with.

"As long as we keep prepared on through civil defense we will be doing all we can to circumvent them in the cold war they are waging. This type of war is designed to weaken America, and her allies economically and sometimes I fear they are approach-ing this goal by reason of our vast international committments and the billions of dollars we are forced to spend on this program."

In his closing remarks, in the nature of farewell, Director Holgate again dwelt upon the dangers of fall-out in this area. "Even though we are not a primary target area," Holgate said, "we are in a direct fall-out area from the coast." Important in preparation for such an emergency is shelter, stocks of food and water supplies, proper clothing to remove contamination and proper ventilation control so that fall-out material will not be brought into the house. In closing Holgate said: "By all means stay put' and do not panic.' Commissioner Holgate is a son-in-law of Mrs. Cora Weant Duttera, of

THE CARROLL COUNTY HOSPITAL

Recently the appointment of leaders for the Advance Gifts Committee was announced by Mr. Scott S. Bair, General Chairman of the Carroll County General Hospital Building

Mayor Joseph L. Mathias, Sr., was appointed as Advance Gifts Committee Chairman. In making this key appointment Mr. Bair stated, "Our respected Mayor of Westminster will give the quality of leadership needed to make our long dreamed of hospital become a reality. Mayor Mathias' Advance Gift Committee will be one of the most important of the entire campaign. It will be responsible for soliciting gifts from the major corporations throughout Carroll County and adjacent areas, as well as requesting individual Advance gifts from those residents who are in po-sition to give substantial gifts". Mr. Scott S. Bair noted that Mayor

Mathias brings to this important civic task a national reputation based on his efficient administration resulting in a reduction of the City of West-minster tax rate. He has served as Mayor of Westminster for six consecutive terms for a period of twelve years. He is also a past president of the Westminster Rotary Club. For over 50 years, Mr. Mathias has been in business in Westminster.

A WASTING ASSET CHARACTER

This country has a wasting assetand, while it is a non-material asset, it is the most precious we possess. Its name is character, and in its decline we face the rapid deterioration of America. That sombre theme is powerfully argued by William Henry Chamberlin, writing in the July 13th issue of National Review.

Mr. Chamberlin points out that material wealth, in which we abound. may be deceptive. Great and rich empires of the past—such as the Roman and the Byzantine-"proved far gone in decay when put to the test of unexpected crisis." Their resources seemed all but limitless, yet they were overcome and destroyed by barbarian tribes. We can and do point to all manner of achievements in wages, production and consumption, and so on. But there are other records which point in a very different and ominous direction. One of them is crime. Mr. Chamberlin quotes J. Edgar Hoover as saying that over 2,500,000 major crimes were committed in the United States last year-an all time high figure. And an appalling percentage is committed by juveniles.

He then makes an interesting and significant commentary on the crime problem. It has long been argued that the seeds of crime lie in poverty and want. But no country in history, probably, has suffered as little poverty and want as we do now. Employment is at or near peak levels and wages are very high. Vast sums of money have been spent on slum clearance and on housing. Poverty, as it is known abroad, has all but disappeared here. Yet the crime rates soar—which, in Mr. Chamberlin's view, means that "the whole comforting environmentalist theory that crime is a result not of bad people but of bad conditions has been disapproved." danger signs. LETTER TO THE EDITOR

June 7, 1957

Dear Editor: Under the heading of "HIGH ON THE HOG", the NAM NEWS recently asked what we consider to be pertinent questions:

"How much personal income tax did you pay for 1956 and how long did it take the Government to spend what you paid?" the NEWS wants to

"It has been determined," says the statistically-minded author of this piece, "that if the $71.8 billion budget is approved, the Government would $2,283.00 each second of the year $136,981.00 per minute; and $8,218,864.0 per hour.

"Going a little farther, at the above rates, Uncle would blow $197,252,-748.00 per day and $1,380,769, 230.00 per week.

"How much did you pay in income

"How about doing something to help in the drive to curb Government spending?"

With respect to the last question, the editor of the NAM NEWS should know as we are sure he does-that over the length and breath of America no ont has done more to whip up resistance to and written protests against the present "squanderlust" budget than the grass-roots editor. Further, if we are any judge, he, like Oliver Hazard Perry has just begun

The unprecedented attention that the Congress has paid this session to the "voice of the people" is, in a large sense, a tribute to the devoted needling of the country editor. And if, when the shooting is over and the smoke clears away, the budget shall have been adequently perforated, the small town editor can take a bow.

But he won't. And besides, he'll be too busy with the next edition. Sincerely,

BOB TAYLOR.

Water Worming

Worming poultry and hogs through the drinking water certainly cuts down on labor . . . and if large roundworms are your major problem, does a real good job, safely, economically and quickly. You can treat 3 birds for about a penny.

My Recommendation:

When you want a water wormer, ask for Dr. Salsbury's Wazine. Wazine contains piperazine and does the job quickly, easily and efficiently.

FEESERSBURG (A Voice from Carroll)

The way a person gets up in the morning is a pretty good indicator of the kind of personality he has. It takes will-power and fortitude to slide from between clean, warm covers at 6 A. M. and face the world at its dreariest. It takes a strong man to fight the limpulse to remain in bed just a little short of the rest of his life in the realm of happy dreams. When the alarm clock is sounding its call to face the day and dig into the tiresome and family seem unimportant at the moment. Just ten minutes more of blessed sleep is the goal. Psycholog-ists send along the information that the proper way to be awakened in the morning is by a gradual return to consciousness. The sudden clanging Mr. and Mrs. George Dohm and son Mike, spent a recent week-end at the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Claa prescribed time and then to take about twenty minutes to get out of bed. The trouble with most people is that they can't trust themselves either to wake up or to get up. A bucket of cold water splashed on the sleeper, is not recommended procedure. For one reason the sleeper gets up in a terrible temper and another reason it. Mrs. Russell Wantz, Jr., and Mr. Wilis too messy and causes extra work. It would be better to just let the sleeper sleep until doomsday. Some wives are so exhausted after getting husband and children out of bed hat they have to go back themselves or an extra forty winks. Of course there are some wives, who never bother to get up and see that their husbands' have their breakfast or that he even gets off to his job. We have never understood why the female needs more sleep than the male or so she says. We know of one woman who sleeps right through the buzzing f an alarm clock that is perched beide her bed. She says she has trained herself not to hear it. Well, as we said in the beginning the way a person gets up in the morning indicates whether one is a drone or a go-getter,

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. A. Shildt, or something, ersonally we think the in the morning full of zip, zip and go is a show-off and will wind up with ulcers. On the other hand the person that can't get up without constant urging by a second party is selfish and will end his days as a salesman for a mattress firm. Horrible thought! There will come a time, soon we hope when, writers will no longer dedicate their books to someone without letting the reader know who the someone is. But if the reader doesn't know about Mary and the cow he may allow his mind to wonder and dream that Mary is a lovely blonde with whom the writer strange man is curious about her. FAIRVIEW

I was given quite a surprise last week one day when two ladies walked up to my door asking if I knew them. I did not recognize either one of the, then I was told, there was another lady in the car. They said this is Mrs. Isabel Fiscel, Miss Edna Downs and Miss Naomi Downs, of Washington, D. C. Mrs. Fiscel had lived in this vicinity for a number of years until the death of her husband, Daniel Fiscel who passed away in the year of nineteen twenty-sight, and we had not seen Mrs. Fiscel since that date until last week. We were glad to see her and that she is enjoying good health. She said she could hardly beieve she was coming back to the same little community so many changes has been made. She and the Downs sisters also visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Levine Carbaugh and Mrs. Mary Carbaugh. I am sure they had lots to talk over as they went back over the years. They lived and neighbored together here, the Mrs. Carbaugh bored together here, the Mrs. Carbaugh home is now owned by Levi Frock and wife while the Fiscel home only a short distance away is owned.

Mrs. I. W. Rodkey and friend, Mrs. W. H. Clegan of Edmond, Okla., visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bowers on Theorem 1988. only a short distance away is owned by the Leptic family.

SHORT STORY

Last Chance By Vesta M. Kelly

NEEDED this job. I wanted it more than I'd ever wanted anything in my life before.

The ad said one o'clock. I'd come early hoping to be the first. Two men were there before me-a middle-aged, jovial man, and a younger, super-salesman type. They both looked pretty sharp. I crossed my fingers and thought, there probably goes the old ball game.

2 -Minute The office was Fiction hot. The clock's hands crept toward one. The receptionist came in and tilted the blinds against the sun's glare. There were several more applicants now.

The girl smiled at us and said, "Mr. Bryant has been delayed. He should be here soon. In the meantime, just make yourselves comfortable, gentlemen.

The sun touched the west windows. The heat increased. Men mopped their faces. Coats came off. By twos and threes they struck up conversations. I staved apart. Tense. My hands shaking a little. This job was important to me. My last chance, so to speak.

I was glad that I'd splurged a little when I bought this tropic weight suit for our wedding and honeymoon three years ago. It was the kind that didn't wrinkle and wilt. I'd never worn it much up north. It looked good. My last white shirt was frayed on the collar and cuffs. It didn't show much. Jeanne had trimmed it with the comfortably cld and well cared for. When we'd married three years ago, Jeanne and I had come to Miami for a honeymoon. To a small town boy and girl, Miami had seemed such a fabulous place that we'd promised ourselves to save a nest egg and come back to

Miami one day to live. We'd worked hard for two years and saved every penny. The first winter in Miami, I'd found a seasonal job. In the spring it had disappeared with the tourists. We'd gone on, every day believing that

I'd surely find a job. I hadn't. It was almost two, when a small, cool-looking man in a neat, gray tropic suit came into the office. With one keen glance, he took in every detail of the outer office. He spoke to the girl at the desk and went into the office marked pres-

Several men began to struggle into their coats. The girl said, "Mr. Bryant will see you now. Who's first?'

The stout, jovial man got to his feet. Too late to put on his coat, he hung it over his arm. He came out soon, an enigmatic smile on his face. The super-salesman went in. He came back immediately. looking irritated.

The interview was crisp and businesslike. I liked Mr. Bryant. He knew his business. I relaxed a little. I knew my line. He was friendly, but no nonsense. He wanted a salesman and I knew I could sell. After a little, he sat back in his chair and smiled. "I think you'll do very nicely," he said, "if you can start right away.' I wanted to shout. To throw something into the air. To tell Jeanne. I said the right things, I hope. We shook hands, and he said. "There'll be details to arrange. I'll just tell the others they needn't wait." When he came back, he said, "I knew, when I came through the outer office, that if you could sell, you were the one I was going to hire, because you were the only one with respect enough for the job to keep your coat on."

As soon as the details were arranged, I headed for a phone to call Jeanne.

I touched the two crisp five dollar bills in my pocket. Courage money, I'd called them this morning when I'd taken them out of our last forty dollars. Now, as soon as I'd called Jeanne, I was going to buy myself two new white shirts. There was no reason for Mr. Bryant to know that I couldn't have taken off my coat if I'd wanted to, because my last white shirt was split down the back.

Outline Keys to Corn Production

What's Needed for 100-Bushel Yield Here's what it takes to produce

100 bushels of corn per acre, according to Ohio State University extension agronomists: 1-About 420,000 gallons of wa-

"To supply a corn crop with 16 inches of water in Ohio, a soil must be able to hold at least 4 inches of available water at the start of the growing season," says Samuel W. Bone, of the Ohio agronomy staff.

The soil must also be able to re-falls during the average growing season. "You can increase the soil's fertility level much easier than the

Iu Montana we crosse the Big Horn Montana we crossed the Big Horn River. Visited the Custer National Monument and National cemetery. The Yellowstone River at Billings, Mon., was beautiful. Here there were fields of sugar, beets and other produce. At Butte the large copper mines, where the houses look like they are built on shelves around the mountain saw the Lewis & Clark State Park Iranium and coal mines near Missoula Mount, In Idaho crossed the Coeur-d-Alene River and Lake and Mountain Pass. Beautiful indeed. Silver mines here too. Potatoes and potato caves, by the mile all irrigated, water actually running between each row, crossed the Spokane River into Spokane, Washington with its large fields of wheat and beautiful hills or mountains with fir, hemlock, pine and cedar, etc. Crossed the Snake pine and cedar, etc. Crossed the Snake River into Oregon, saw the McNary Dam and Reservoir that supplies Portland's water. Then on to Portland Ore. by the Sea. Here we attended the "44th International Christian Endeavor Convention", Saturday, July 13. The Communion Service Saturday morning was very impressive the wit morning was very impressive, the witness parade in the afternoon and closing session in the evening conducted by Dr. Daniel A. The White Bird Hills, with their 12 Switch-Backs or Harpin curves the treacherous (but we made it), not even a guard rail on any of these mountains. Towns below these mountains have only 4 hours sunshine per day. In the valleys many acres of Ladino, Alsike, and White Dutch Clover grow, as this is the seed center of the world. Saw many more potatoes, then on to the prairies and desert and Lava Beds. These look like many miles of clinkers. Entered Yellowstone National Park, from the West Gate. Saw about 50 hears.

When they came down we had a snowball battle.

On to Idaho Springs. We saw gold panning near here, on the highest mountain range of the Rockies. Colorado and Kansas had been having heavy rains, too. The wheat could not be cut in Kansas, too wet. It was also very wet crossing Kansas. Saw many oil wells and hundreds of huge grain storage bins, as many as 40 in one group. At Fort Riley, a helicopter manufacturing center. Saw the great cancer hospital, the Ford and Mercury and International Harvester Company assembly plants. Crossed the Mississippi River, back into Illinois. Here we saw acres of corn and soybeans. like many miles of clinkers. Entered Yellowstone National Park, from the West Gate. Saw Old Faithful erupt at 3:55 p. m., July 19. Erupts every 55 minutes. There are many hundreds of persons there each hour all summer long. Saw the Continental Divide at this point, too.

In Utah we saw the beautiful blue Bear Lake. Here a wonderful garden produce spot, picking strawberries and melons. Around Garden City, along Logan Canyon to the Capital at Salt Lake City, which we toured before going to Saltaire Recreational Park to see the bathers in Great Salt Lake. Attended an organ recital in Park to see the bathers in Great Salt Lake. Attended an organ recital in Mormon Tabernacle, also saw the Mormon Temple, but no one enters the Temple unless he is a member. Also the White Oalite Stone Temple at St. George, Utah. This was really the first Mormon Temple.

Traveling on, saw many fields of enions, cabbage and thousands of turkeys. We were never without hills and mountains in sight, west of the Mississippi. All colors of rock formation from deep red, salmon, purple, gray, white, blue, etc. Along these mountains were water lines bringing fresh water to the cities from fresh water streams and springs. A message of importance to everyone about to buy a new car: You can buy a for less than many medium-priced cars without it!"

Depend upon Ford, the car that introduced the V-8 engine and other quality features to the low-price field, to bring air conditioning within reach of the average car buyer.

A 1957 Ford (even a luxurious Fairlane 500) equipped with all the comforts of Ford Air Conditioning now costs less with air conditioning than many medium-priced cars without it. This means that if you can afford a medium-priced car you can afford an air-conditioned Ford!

And this new "fine-car" Ford offers the careful buyer far more than a low price. It offers you the kind of power . the kind of ride . . . the kind of luxury . . . that you once expected to find only in the most expensive cars. To really appreciate this car you must drive it yourself. The fun begins when you turn your first corner. You turn it flat. No swing. No sway. Ford made this sports-car-type handling possible with its one-piece ride stabilizer, lower center of gravity, outboardmounted rear springs and swept-back ball-joint front suspension.

All of these working together give you a big-car ride . . . at the low Ford price.

Before you consider any other car at any price, why not stop in and Cool Test one of our air-conditioned Fords? See if it doesn't change your ideas of just how comfortable and luxurious summer motoring can be. You'll love the life you lead in an air-conditioned Ford!

Friend for Life

Lesson for August 18, 1957

WHEN Jonathan died, his friend David sang a song about him which has come down to us in the Bible (II Sam. 1:17-27) as a sample not only of David's genius as a man's poet, but as a gem in the literature of friendship. The curious feature of it is that at the time of Jonathan's death David was technically and actually a rebel against the government in which Jonathan was an officer. The army, in the defeat of which Jonathan was killed, would have been sent Dr. Foreman against David except that the Philistines were at the moment Public Enemy Number One. And in fact David was officially an ally of those same Philistines whose troops crushed Jonathan's. Strange background for friendship! No friendship has stood the final test unless it is a friendship "in spite of" what tries to break it up; easy-going friendship may not be very strong when the test comes.

In Spite of Rivalry

One thing that breaks up friendships in a hurry is a situation in which both friends are rivalsfor a job, for a promotion, for a girl, for money. Now Jonathan was David's rival for the most important (and glamorous, too) job in their country: nothing less than being King. Jonathan was the Crown Prince, David only a commoner; but David had the backing of the prophet Samuel. This meant that David had the approval of God, for that high place, as Jonathan did not. It was harder for Jonathan not to be jealous of David than for David not to be jealous of Jonathan. But Jonathan was David's good friend in spite of that.' Sometimes a friendship, well started, will keep right on when a rivalry opens up. But is not so often that men already rivals will become friends. Jonathan knew from the start that David had his eye on the throne, for when first Jonathan heard of him, he was trying out for his sister's hand in marriage. Eastern courts being what they were, and still are, that ordinarily spelled trouble for the future; but not for Jonathan. Win or lose, he was still a friend.

In Spite of the Feud

Another thing has spoiled many a budding friendship: family interference. For years, all Jonathan could have heard at home about David was nothing good. Saul hated the very sight of David, and in fact tried over and over again to kill him or get him killed. It reached the point where once at dinner when David's name was mentioned, and Jonathan offered a perfectly sensible excuse for his not being there, King Saul broke out in a red rage, insulting Jonathan and his mother besides, all because Jonathan was acting decently about David.

What your family says about people—the preacher, the school teacher, the mayor, the President, or the next door neighbor,-is hard to get away from. It's hard to see good in people when those closest to you see nothing but meanness. It takes a real friend to be able to listen to slander by the earfull, and not believe a word of it. It takes a pretty strong backbone to run the risk of breaking with your family in order to stand by somebody they don't like but who you know is worth two of you.

In spite of Inferiority

Jonathan was, as the stories about him show, a popular man, and an able one. He would have made a better king than Saul . but not better than David. He knew this. For all his popularity, he was less popular than David. The people loved Jonathan, but most of them could see that David would make a better leader of the nation. If Jonathan found this hard to take, he said not a word about it that any one remembered. He did not get himself all choked up in an "inferiority complex." It is easier to be a good friend to people less able than yourself, less good-looking, less popular, less anything good, than it is to be a good friend to some one who, on most counts, outrates you. All friends wish their friends well. But the acid test of friendship is this: Can you wish your friend well when you know that his success means your eclipse? American Bread Among World's Best

ST LOUIS, MO. — Enriched white bread from the United States placed in the highest group of the world's breads recently analyzed for their nutritive value. This was the report which Dr. Robert S. Harris, head of the department of Food Technology of Massachusetts Institute of Technology gave to women of the press recently in St. Louis at a dinner given at the Missouri Athletic Club by the Consumer Service Department of the American Institute of Baking, Chicago. The meeting was held in connection with the annual convention of the American Home Economics Association.

Breads, like people have their national characteristics. They also have their special nutritive values. It was of "The Nutritional Value of Modern Breads throughout the World" that Dr. Harris talked. He told the sixty some food writers, editors, broadcasters, and telecasters of his ausome food writers, editors, broadcasters, and telecasters of his audience that 37 samples of bread were collected in 13 countries.
They represented the popular breads of these countries. They came from Australia, Austria,
Cuba, Denmark, Finland, France,
Germany, Italy, Norway, Philippines, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.
Each sample was submitted to

Each sample was submitted to 17 analyses in order to determine the nutrient content, as follows: water, fat protein, carbohydrate, ash, calcium, phosphorus, iron, thiamine, riboflavin, niacin, pantothenate, folic acid, vitamin B₆, vitamin B12, lysine, methionine and trytophan.

These 37 sample were then ranked according to relative richness of each with respect to each rankings for the nutrients ple were then averaged to determine its over-all nutritive value with respect to the others. In these analyses, the

Robert S. Harris en riched bread of the United States ranked second. It was the Finnish semi-white bread (made with a low extraction flour, whole wheat, and milk solids) that was first. A semi-white bread from Switzerland ranked

Dr. Harris stated, "the enriched white bread with 3-4% milk solids is excellent nutritionally, and compares favorably with the world's breads."

According to type of bread, en-riched white bread ranked first, rye bread second, semi-white third, rye-wheat bread fourth and unenriched bread last.

As a feature of the dinner breads of thirteen countries of the world were baked for the occasion, and each bearing its national flag, made up the center piece of the speakers table.

GOD IS ALWAYS WITH US-THE CLOSING POEM

Before closing this book I must tell Of a few things many olsters know well; The few lived moments we spend down here Are not the end of our earthly career.

This is only the beginning, as you shall learn;
For, eternal Life, we all must earn;
And man, in a perfect body must be

To weather the storms of Eternity God sends us here many lessons to learn—
That is why the fires of hell still burn;
We must all be made perfect, the scriptures say;

So, try to master one lesson each day At present, men act as if this is the end— They look out for self, seldom make a friend; That, too, is something we all must learn

Before the fires of hell shall cease to burn When Jesus came, He said, "I am the way"; So, as He lived, we should all live to-day; God sent Him as a pattern for us to see

As we journey from Time to Eternity To tell of what Jesus did would take many books; We see it on earth, wherever one looks; But, He said, "Greater things you shall do"

If to God and man you are always true. Here is another thing we should remember to see; Jesus only used as a figure the fires of hell; Such fires may scorch the body you see;

But, there are no fires in Eternity. Even for light, the Sun shall not shine, they say, On the verdant hills of the endless day; In some other way God shall give us light; That is why it is called "the day without night".

God wants us to be like Him, the Scriptures say; That is why He made all His sons that way; He gave us "free will", so we all might see

What fools earth can make of humanity. That our God is Love we all know quite well; (Sinners only, accuse Him of building a hell); Such a horrible thought from mortals must flee;

For God Himself is a part of both you and me. Our Father is too Good, too Loving, too Great

To make for His sons such a horrible fate; So, here He trains us, on earth below, Before, to Paradise, He permits us to go. Just close your eyes; and, try to see How God has blest all humanity;
Think of the fruit trees all over the land!—
They are all gifts from His bountiful hand!

He made them to feed man and the bird; From the treetops, their songs of praise is heard; So they teach a lesson to you and to me When we fail to give thanks for each lovely tree.

Then, too, think of the flowers all over the land; They too are gifts from His bountiful hand; He sends them to fill our hearts with cheer, For they all seem to whisper; "God is here."

Think of the cool water down in the well! It too, on a hot day, has a story to tell;
It speaks of a love mortal man never knew;
A love that is lavished on me and you.

That this is true, every schoolboy knows;
For, God is the Life of everything which grows;
He puts things here for His children to see
Just how, in Eternity, conditions shall be.

The book not only tells of the future, but the past;
For God's creations are many and last; It also tells how His sons must be Before they go from Time to Eternity.

Our God is not like the ancients have said;
He is a God of the living, not a God of the dead;
He is with us to-day; and, He always shall be,
For, with Him we shall spend Eternity.
