FIRE PREVENTION WEEK IN TANEYTOWN

Sponsored by Junior Chamber of Commerce

Fire Prevention Week in Taneytown reached its climax on Tuesday when a town fire inspection was held for the benefit of the public and business properties. The project was sponsored by the Taneytown Junior Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the Volunteer Fire Department. Inspections were made by 30 Field Men of the State Fire Prevention Association, with the help of 6 local firemen, 3 Jaycees, and 12 Boy Scouts of Troop 348. The stores, restaurants, service stations, schools, churches, and municipal building were checked to discover any existing fire hazards. Defects were tagged, recommendations made to the proprietor or owner, and a reference booklet left on each call.

After the inspections were completed, a delicious steak dinner was served at Taneyst Inn. Reports of the inspection were given and awards made to the winners of the Poster contest. Mr. Paul Zacharski acted as Master of Ceremonies and Rev. Stanley B. Jennings offered the invocation. Mr. Zacharski introduced those at the speakers table which included Mayor Raymond Perry, Robert Waddell, Chairman of the project from the Junior C. of C., Wilbur Miller, Jr., Fire Chief of the Taneytown Fire Co., and William Griffin, Chairman of the Luncheon arrangements.

Mr. Ray Billingham, President of the Md.-Delaware, D. C. Field Club was introduced. He told of the work carried out by the Fire Prevention Association, a division of the Field Club. He explained that these men who gave of their time to make these inspections were Representatives of the Capitol Stock Fire Insurance Companies and members of the Field Club. He remarked about the splendid cooperation of everyone involved and complimented Taneytown on its fine clean properties and business places.

Mr. John Smigrodski, chairman of inspections, thanked everyone for their help and cooperation. The boy scouts, Jaycees, and firemen who helped were introduced. The boy scouts participating will all receive certificates acknowledging their assistance, a step toward their fire prevention merit badge. He reported that there were 57 risks inspected, with defects found on 53 of these properties, and a total of 208 recommendations made. He also remarked on the fine hospitality shown by the inspectors and the low percentage of actual fire hazards found.

Sherman Powers, chairman of the poster contest conducted in the Jr.-Sr. High School, introduced the winning contest entrants and awarded the prizes. Winning first prize of a $25 Government Bond were Elaine Welty and Louis Mische for their poster using the theme: "Is Fire Prevention WEAK in our Town?" Explorers Hunt in Maine

The dream of an automobile camping trip to New England has long been in the minds of oldtimers in the Taneytown Troop, but it has remained for Explorer Advisor Robert L. Bowers to bring it about, when he led a group of seven fellows to the Jackman region of Maine to take advantage of the opening deer season there November 4th by an Explorer sponsored hunting trip.

A night in a motel going up and one returning were the only exceptions to a full week of nocturnal hilarity under canvas, and the experience was that of a lifetime despite an initial four days of rain. Rain dampened the view of Harvard University in Cambridge, but saved the caravan left Boston behind and sped north for Freeport and L. L. Bean's Camp, in fact, was set up in a light rain just off route 15 running east from Jackman Station, on an old logging road, in a wall tent and an Explorer trail tent from the first Valley Forge jamboree. A fine 10-pound buck more than 200 pounds on the hoof brought down by "Rabbi" early on the first morning proved to be the only trophy, but you may be sure it was duly perpetuated in film, and the hunter repeatedly congratulated for his diligence and the sharpness of his eyes. Larry Barnhart, Bob Fitz, George Abrecht, and the rest helped haul him to camp, Larry practically shouldering him at one point after gutting. Larry Martin's gasoline stove solved the firewood problem even if at times it seemed unusually contrary, a nearby mountain stream provided water, and the deer liver was a delicacy fit for a king. Though all had compasses, no one became lost, but on the final day "Mize" and Peewee Silbaugh hunted till dark, so that Wilbur Thomas, having taken down the last wet tent, wondered if a search was going to be necessary after all. Rain again dogged the first leg of the homeward journey, but Saturday saw the sun come forth and encouraged the photographers to resume their art. "Rabbi" was so much the life of the party that a cold was unable to down him, and his wit and gusto so tremendous that the rains which were his trademark were generally accredited as the source of his energy.

Aside from the pleasure of hunting in new terrain which reigned, each person learned something at first hand in how to brave the elements, especially on those early frosty mornings when ice froze in the water buckets. The meeting room themes of gun safety, what to do if lost, compass, etc., were thus tested in the field.

The Board directed the superintendent to persist in his efforts to bring about adoption of the Carroll County library plan since it is evident that the inauguration of a county library will work to the advantage of the county schools.

Information was given to the Board regarding the enrollment in Carroll County and in the State of Maryland as a whole. Carroll County's enrollment at the end of October being 9,825 pupils and the total state enrollment in public school being 532,248. Carroll county stands ninth from the highest in the number of pupils enrolled in the public schools.

CHAMPION AND FAILURE

The vice president in charge of sales of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana has made an important statement about business. At times, he says, "... American business as a salesman has been a world-beating champion on the one hand and a dismal failure on the other."

The championship has been earned by sheer material performance. American business has provided more people with more of the good things of life than any counterpart in history.

The failure, on the other hand, has been in "the salesmanship of ideas." He cites public-opinion polls in support of this. "Those polls," he says, "show that the American people like many things about business, and especially about big business, in this country." These likings include the quality of products, service, and the prices that big business makes possible.

World population is now increasing at the rate of 47 million a year, and the rate may soon reach 75 million.

In September the government's cost of living index rose for the 13th consecutive month, and was 3.4 per cent above the level of a year earlier. There were declines in food prices, but these were more than offset by increases in the cost of housing, clothing and other commodities and services.

Vice-President Edward Maher of the National Association of Manufacturers writes in National Review: "... business leaders must come to grips with the fact of union monopoly power, and forego the 'peace-at-any-price' attitude that has led to the surrender of vital economic principles almost without a struggle."

In the latter part of October, the U. S. Public Health Service estimated that 2,500,000 Americans had contracted Asian flu. The situation was improved in the South, and worsening in the North.

Over the nine-year 1948-56 period, workers' wage rose an average of 61.4 percent. Average productivity per worker, on the other hand, rose only 26.1 per cent. The difference was in large part made up by increased prices.

It now looks as if the St. Lawrence Seaway will cost $473 million—as against an initial estimate of $305 million.

A study made in Minnesota shows that only about two per cent of the state's 55,000-plus automobile accidents last year could be attributed to cause beyond the control of drivers—which simply means that the human factor was responsible for 98 per cent.

Columnist Robert S. Allen writes that it is now feasible to produce a weapon capable of destroying missiles flying through outer space at speeds of 15,000 miles an hour and more. The cost of a missile-destroyer program would run into the billions.

Candy and gum add up to big business in this country. The food chains alone will sell something like $400 million worth of these savories this year.

The fact is that our very biggest businesses are among the most competitive in the country—as the oil industry, with its multitude of competitive, extensively-advertised and promoted brand names proves.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor: Until the world runs out of noble purposes—and even after that, perhaps—man (and woman) will doubtless continue to organize societies for the prevention of this, the protection of that and the promotion of what-ever.

Thus, on the theory that there will always be room for one more, we propose the Society for the Recognition of Cracker-Crumbling and the Honoring of Scientific Soup Coolers.

Further, we should like to nominate as First President of the SRCCHSSC Editor Earl Howard, of THE SAMPSON NEWS, of Clinton, N. C. We think Howard reveals both his crusading spirit and his competence to direct the reform above indicated in a recent column "About People and Stuff".

"Just why the practice of crumbling up crackers in soup is frowned upon," writes this modern day liberator, "is more than we can understand. In the first place, it tastes better if the crackers are all mixed and crumbled in the soup, and except for the use of a cube of ice", we can't think of a better way to cool it.

"And as for the matter of cooling soup so it can be eaten," continues Mr. Howard, "it invariably happens that it's piping hot if you're in a hurry. If it has any substance to it, then it's too thick to pour in a saucer like coffee. So you sip and sip and blister your tongue in the process."

"We're aware of the fact that pouring coffee into a saucer is not the universally accepted practice, but many is the time we've seen people grab the handle of a hot cup of coffee, gently test it for heat, half cook their lips, glance furtively around to see who might be watching; and then, if the coast is clear, slyly pour the steaming liquid into saucer, back into the cup, repeat the act a couple of times and then drink it..."

But let us stop here. Editor Howard is disgressing. The SRCCHSSC, as we envision it might provide a chapter for coffee-dunkers, since this is somewhat in the nature of crumbling crackers in soup. But we can hardly undertake, along with our primary responsibilities, that of returning to its one-time respectability the art of saucing hot beverages. However sympathetic we may be, and whatever the public injury and general suffering entailed, we must turn our backs resolutely on coffee-cooling until we have established irrevocably the right of free men everywhere to crumble crackers in their soup.

It will be time enough then to organize the Society for the placing of the saucer on an equal footing with the cup.

In the meantime, your membership in SRCCHSSC is solicited and your suggestions invited.

Yours for the coordination of crackers and soup. BOB TAYLOR.

*Never! This ruins soup. Unless Howard recants of this we shall organize a Society for the suppression of people who cool soup with ice.

Buy Christmas Seals

On November 15th, 13,000 Carroll Counties along with thousands of others throughout the United States received letters containing Christmas Seals. The sale of Christmas Seals to finance the work of tuberculosis associations, whose primary concern is the saving of lives through the prevention and control of TB, is an American tradition dating back to 1907 when the first Christmas Seal went on sale.

The principal task, stuffing envelopes and probably the most time consuming of all the many phases of seal preparations, was accomplished by students in the commercial classes of North Carroll, Robert Moton, Mt. Airy, Elmer Wolfe, New Windsor, Taneytown and Westminster High Schools, under the direction of teachers, Mrs. Evelyn E. Boose, Miss Ruth A. Kimmey, Mrs. Maitland I. Lippy, Miss Jewell C. Stanley, Mrs. Catherine Myers, Mrs. Martha Rupert and Miss Lois Silverburg. In addition, students Richard DeGroot, Donald Bullock, James Swartzbaugh, Jerry Sipes, Larry Harris, Wayne Owens, Roland England, Charles Carr, and Gene Miller from Mr. Albert G. Albrecht's classes assisted in transporting materials from the seal sale headquarters to and from the schools. Mr. Radcliffe M. Helm of Watkins Amusements supervised the transportation of the seals from TB headquarters to the post office. Mr. Robert Le Miller, chairman of the seal sale campaign committee, expressed appreciation for the work done by these volunteers.

The funds are used for tuberculosis control in case finding, medical research, education, patient services and rehabilitation.

Wise Home Improvement Often Pays Its Own Way

A good businessman rarely hesitates to make an investment in office equipment or plant machinery when he knows the investment will pay for itself in increased production.

The same applies to home-owners if they can be reasonably sure an investment in building materials or replacement of a vital piece of equipment will return in greater comfort and security, plus pay for itself quickly.

A good example is an aging or faulty furnace. If it is doing an inefficient job it is wasting fuel and failing to provide maximum comfort. Replacing it with a new unit pays off in greater family comfort and health, and the resultant fuel savings will pay back at least part of the expenditure in a few years.

One home improvement that always pays for itself is insulation. Thick mineral wool—at least 4 inches in ceilings and 3 inches in walls—returns a home-owner's investment by:

1. Keeping expensive heat inside in winter. The furnace runs less frequently and fuel bills are reduced by as much as 40 per cent.

2. Providing more cold weather comfort and better health. A house without proper insulation in walls can be a drafty house in winter. The uninsulated walls are cold and this causes heated air next to them to chill quickly. The heavier, chilled air drops to the floor and seeps across it in a cold draft. Young children playing on the floor are more susceptible to colds because of these drafts, and adults suffer constantly from cold feet. Mineral wool in the walls stops the drafts by keeping the walls at about the same temperature as the air in the room.

3. Providing more comfort in summer. The insulation works the opposite way in summer by helping to keep heat out of a house. In an air-conditioned house, thick mineral wool reduces the cost of both the original equipment and its day-to-day operation.

Mr. Michael Fringer sold his very desirable small farm of 27 acres, on the Emmitsburg road, last week, to Mrs. Samuel Bricker and son, for $6000. This is perhaps the highest priced piece of property of the kind ever sold in this district.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Little will be glad to hear that they have returned to Taneytown, and are occupying their new home on Fairview Ave. Mr. Little has accepted a position in Koons Bros. Store, where he will be glad to meet his friends.

Weimer-Althoff. — St. Joseph's Church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, on Thursday morning, the contracting parties being Miss Blanche May Althoff and Mr. Alfred Joseph Weimer. The ceremony was performed by Rev. B. J. Lennon with Nuptial High Mass. The bride was becomingly attired in white albatross; the groom wore the customary black. Edith Althoff, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and John Weimer brother of the groom was bestman. J. A. Hemler and C. D. Classon acted as ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Weimer will reside in their newly furnished home at Thorndale.

Two Husking Parties. An unusual event took place Nov. 14 on the premises of Jacob Starner, near Westminster. For weeks Mr. Starner and almost the entire family had been ill with typhoid fever. The Knights of Pythias of Frizzellburg and the P. O. S. of A. of Pleasant Valley and his neighbors kindly remembered him with a husking party.—47 were scattered over the field. Nearly one hundred barrels of corn were husked in three and a half hours, from about ten acres of ground.—Another event in which the hand of sympathy was most generously bestowed was the husking social given Lewis Wantz, near Frizzellburg, last Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Wantz has been the victim of a felon for several weeks which disabled him from doing any work. The party comprised members of the K. of P. and P. O. S. of A., and many of his neighbors.

Harney.—Quite a number of our people were in the butchering business, this week.—Revival services are being held at the U. B. Church this week; the attendance has been good. Frizzellburg.—The butchering season will open today, Saturday. Owing to the high feed prices, many porkers will be killed early.—Rev. Murray, successor to R. L. Crawford, will preach in the Church of God, here this Sunday night.

NEW HEADQUARTERS FOR OAS BUILDING

General Services Administration has awarded a contract to the construction firm of McCloskey & Co. of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, to build a new headquarters for the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance on a Government-owned site on the outskirts of Baltimore, Md.

The award, announced today, is based on the Philadelphia firm's bid of $20,933,000. It was the lowest of six construction bids opened and read by the GSA Public Buildings Service at a public bid opening in Washington, D. C., on October 17.

Contracts for installation of 12 elevators and two escalators in the project also have been awarded by GSA on the basis of bids opened at the same time. Otis Elevator Co., of Washington, D. C., won the elevator award with an offer of $732,299, lowest of four bids. The escalator contract has been awarded to the Peelee Co. of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose bid of $395,255 was the lowest of three.

The construction contract provides for work to start immediately with completion of the building scheduled in early 1960, 26½ months later.

The building will be erected on a 50-acre site in the Woodlawn area, 6½ miles west of downtown Baltimore.

The design is the work of a joint venture of the Baltimore architectural firms of Meyer and Ayres and of Fisher, Nes, Campbell and Associates. The firms carried out the planning under the direction of the Public Buildings Service and in consultation with the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance of the Social Security Administration of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

One of the outstanding features of the design is a ten-story structure paralleling the Social Security Building which will serve as the Administration Building. To the rear of the Administration Building connected by a link, the architects have picked a massive structure which will serve as the Bureau's Operations Building. Accommodated to the rising terrain from front to back, it will graduate from five stories in front to three at the rear with entrances on three levels. It will be of block type construction. A large part of the upper floors of the Operations Building have been designed with a cellular steel sub-floor over concrete slabs to provide flexibility of power sources for the Bureau's business machines and electronic equipment, the largest such installation in the world.

The connecting link will have a ground floor and four stories. The connected buildings will provide a gross floor area of 1,338,507 square feet for the Bureau's occupancy and use. The net floor area will amount to 926,518 square feet.

An approach road, to the right of the Administration Building, will lead to a circular bus terminal with a covered loading platform. From the terminal, employees will have the choice of entering on the ground, first, or second floors.

The buildings will be constructed of reinforced concrete faced in glazed brick. The design has a marked grid pattern achieved by the use of granite trim in vertical strips with horizontal brick panels between aluminum pivoted windows which are washable for the inside.

FEESERSBURG (A Feecor by Carroll)

For a change in reading this week we are turning this column over to the readers of this paper. We hope you find their letters as interesting and provocative as we did. Dear Mrs. Roelke:

Your attitude toward the Russian satellites completely disgusts and worries my husband and me. Frankly we are weary and concerned about the whole matter. We have been shown up by the Russians, but instead of admitting it and buckling down and trying to do something about it, responsible people are making asinine jokes about the Russians and the satellites. Not very humorous subjects from our point of view. Instead of being realistic about our dilemma, a lot of people are concerned mostly about the dog in one of the satellites. For as long as we can remember dogs have been used for experimental purposes in research in the medical and scientific fields. We wonder what the persons so concerned about dogs would use for experiments. Probably human beings whom they don't like. We were of the opinion America and Americans were the best. Nation and people on this earth. Do we wonder why? Why can't we congratulate the Russians for an important technical feat, a significant "first" and then organize all our scientists in an all out effort to launch our own rocket program. The talk of economy in Government sickens me because we who have been in the Air Force and Government service have seen firsthand the awful waste of money in the services. If the government would take over the missile program from the three bickering and jealous branches of the armed service billions of dollars could be saved. The American people cannot know the extent of this terrible waste; if they did some kind of drastic action would have been taken long ago. For everyone's sake we should all use our intelligence not to joke about our serious mistakes of the past but to work hard toward correcting them. Only an optimist or a fool will deny that we are in terrible trouble.

Mr. D. H. M., Virginia. Dear Mrs. Roelke: You often write about the birds that inhabit your part of the state, but you never mention the Mockingbird. About this time of year the male should be spending his time near the house. Only the male Mockingbird spends the winter in Maryland as the female goes south when the weather turns cold. You will recognize the male because he is noisy, imitating many birds and he is quite tame. Above all else he loves seedless raisins. Put them on a window sill where the cats can't reach, and he will return for them all winter. It may take several days for him to learn the source of food but afterwards he will return regularly. Never leave the window open unless it is screened. If the fruit is gone he will come right in. Once in, he will become frightened and it would be difficult to get him out without injury. Once you start feeding him, don't neglect him in the coldest weather, when he really needs food to survive. Fruit and insect eaters like the Mockingbird can get through periods of ice and snow by eating berries on ornamental trees but species that depend on weed seeds may have a very hard time when the ground is covered with snow. This comment applies especially to the beautiful cardinal who stays here all winter, as does his mate. Cardinals are monogamous, mating for life. For them, provide sunflower seeds. Audubon Society Member (Mrs. J. M. V.).

Dear Mrs. Roelke: Your satire on television advertising is priceless. The description of men shaving in your living room struck my funny-bone and I have had a good laugh every time I think about it. My pet peeve is not beard-ed men but men dressed up like doctors peddling Carter's Liver Pills when I am entertaining almost complete strangers in my home. One's intestinal tract should be one's own business and to have it discussed so intimately before acquaintances is very embarrassing. Another offensive sponsor is the "burr" ads. If one doesn't have indigestion he is bound to get it after looking at all unhappy people with "acid indigestion" going through torment on the television screen. There are some more sponsored products that should not be advertised on T.V. programs but as long as the public is willing to suffer and put up with them who am I to voice a dissenting vote. Mrs. T. M. W., Taneytown RFD.

Dear Mrs. Roelke: We read your column but wonder just why we do it. What reason do you have for writing anyway? We have never been able to figure it out. Sincerely, M. N. W. and T. A. S., Baltimore.

Dear Mrs. Roelke: We have noticed that you always give a prominent place in your column for community needs and events such as drives for the Fire Dept. Ambulance funds, church suppers, hospital drives and so forth. Do you honestly believe that a small community can support all these things and still have enough to live on? It seems to me that a man making an average salary and supporting a family just cannot give every time he is asked. Nearly every week there is a request for some worthy cause. With the cost of living spiraling upward there is a limit to what the average person can do. Have you ever thought of this when you urge people to support this and that cause? Mrs. D. M. B. M. Airy.

Dear Mrs. Roelke: Why is it that you have failed to bring up in your column the number two topic of the day? You write about everything else but you skip the subject of "integration." I know it isn't for lack of courage because you write often about unpopular and controversial matters. Our family has often talked about this and at last our curiosity forced us to write and ask you. We hope you will not be offended at our impropriety in asking you this question and that you will find it possible to answer it. With best wishes and kind regards. E. G. J.

We always appreciate receiving communications from the readers of this column. Praise is nice to receive and easy to take, but justified criticism is stimulating and like a tonic it is invigorating. It takes both praise and criticism to make one grow and do better work.—Ruth Roelke.

RED CROSS JUNIORS BEGIN ENROLLMENT

Students in public, private and parochial schools here will be given the opportunity Nov. 15 to Dec. 13 to enroll in the Junior Red Cross, which bands the nation's youth together to provide a variety of good citizenship building activities on the community, national and international levels.

The enrollment will be carried on in each of the county's schools under the chairmanship of Miss Ruth DeVore, Junior Red Cross Chairman of Carroll County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Announcing the annual enrollment, Miss DeVore said nearly 22,000,000 students were members last year in the U. S., its territories, and in the U. S. military dependent schools overseas. Through their Junior Red Cross work, they experience the satisfaction that comes from voluntary service to others.

No individual fee is required for membership in the Junior Red Cross. Instead, the fee is by group—one dollar for every elementary classroom and one dollar for each group of 30 pupils or less enrolled in secondary schools.

These fees finance the Junior Red Cross services locally and the Junior Red Cross Children's Fund, through which the Juniors carry on their national and international programs.

Among the Junior Red Cross services is that of making tray mats and nut cups for Military and Veteran Hospitals and packing gift boxes with useful articles to be sent to children in other lands. For these, many thank-you letters from foreign students are received by the pupils. Miss Dianne Haight of the Mt. Airy High School represented Carroll County Junior Red Cross at the leadership training center held at Hood College, Frederick, Md., last June.

YOUR SURVIVAL WHAT ABOUT EMERGENCY CLOTHING?

In evacuation planning clothing supplies are seldom at the top of the list; however, it could be a big problem.

Evacuees will have come out from a target city in a hurry, perhaps without warm clothing, or may have come directly from an office and won't be properly dressed for a rough life in the open. There will be those who have been injured and whose clothes have had to be cut or torn off at a First Aid Station. There could be others who have been exposed to radio-active fallout dust. Their clothes might have to be moved far away or buried.

Where will all this extra clothing come from? There are very few stores far out from the city, and those that do exist have only small surplus supplies.

The clothes problem is one for local organizations to give thought to now.

HOME OWNERS QUESTION BOX

Q—Water seeps through one wall of our basement. We've been advised to dig down on the outside of the wall and give it a coating of tar, but have delayed doing this since digging would disturb a grouping of well-established shrubbery. Is there another way to stop the leakage?

A—Waterproofing agents are available today which can be applied to the inside of leaky basement walls. These generally do a good job, and would be worth trying in your case.

Q—I plan to enclose an open porch and hope to add a bedroom above it at a later date. Will 2 x 6 joists be adequate for the ceiling of the porch?

A—No. These would be fine if they supported only the porch roof and ceiling, but are too light for the weight of an overhead room. Use 2 x 8 joists for safe construction.

Q—We've used a lot of unfinished furniture in our home, putting it together and painting or staining the pieces in colors we like. Now we'd like to install some "built-in" closets, cabinets, and other storage units, but department stores don't seem to have what we want. Are such units available? If so, where?

A—Building material dealers carry as stock items many styles and sizes in cabinets of ponderosa pine that are ideal for built-in storage. These come K.D. (knocked down) and can be assembled with standard tools. The ponderosa pine is a clear-grained wood which takes stain or paint well.

Q—We're installing a water softener. Is it necessary to bypass the outdoor hose faucets with the soft water system?

A—Yes, since sprinkling of lawns and flower beds with soft water would deposit sodium salts from softener in soil. In time, this could retard growth of plants.

Q—What's a good mortar mix for outdoor brickwork?

A—Use a type "B" mortar mix made from 1 part Portland cement, 1 part hydrated lime and not less than 5 or more than 6 1/2 parts sand. Type "B" masonry cement also is available. Mix this with 3 parts sand, 1 part cement.

Q—What kind of bit should I use with my electric drill to cut anchor holes in a concrete block wall?

A—Use carbide-tipped bits. A heavy-duty 1/4-inch drill will handle holes in masonry up to 1/2 inch. Larger holes require a 1/2-inch drill. Use as small a bit as is practical for the job to avoid overtaxing the drill.

GOD'S NAME IS CALLED WONDERFUL

In all the annals of Time, the records say
Not one, has equaled God, in any way;
But, a day is coming when we all shall know
More about Him, and the right day to go.

Jesus is the Pattern God gave to man;
So, for us to be like Him is a part of God's plan;
Jesus had lived before Time began;
So, He was the first to learn of God's plan.

There are many things about God I would like to tell;
But, of His goodness, you all know well;
So why not try to emulate Him in every way,
And always do as the Scriptures say?

God is not a jealous God as old writers say;
He only seemed to them, to be that way;
He wants us all to be like Him—don't you see?
For through us He shall reign in Eternity.

Such is the God of whom I love to tell,
The God who once came to earth to dwell;
He came to tell us how we all must be
At the end of Time and through all Eternity.

There was a Time when mortal man did not know
Why he came to earth, or how to go;
But, God sent Jesus to show the way
All His sons must be in the endless day.

So, if I had a thousand tongues, I would use them all,
To tell of God's love on this great round ball;
There is nothing He would not do for you and me
To make us fit to live in Eternity.

God's name shall be called "Wonderful", they say;
But, when you ask? Now, is the day,
When the things foretold are taking place,
And are seen through the eyes of every race.

Those streets of gold of which we are told,
Shall not be avenues paved with gold;
But, roads ten lanes wide, the papers say
Shall make travel safe some future day.

At the very beginning God saw how things shall be
When the Time arrives for Earth's great jubilee;
So, He gave the prophets a hint of His plan
To make the whole earth a heaven for man.

That God is wise we all must agree;
It took wisdom to make the things we now see;
So, He is sometimes called Wisdom, by those who know
About His greatness, and the right way to go.

Who but God could have made the earth and the Sun;
Both of which are now seen by everyone?
One is our home, the other gives us light;
So, the change it makes is called day and night.

Who but God gave us the mountain and the sea
Which to-day protect and bless humanity?
The oceans, they tell us, were up in the sky
Before the mountains made room for them to lie.

I love to hear tales about long ago—
These are things many of us do not know;
The anti-dilevians they say, had to drink the dew,
The only beverage of which primitive man knew.

That change caused the flood in Noah's day;
To get the water to earth there was no other way;
So, we say it was a blessing to all humanity
When God gave us the mountains and the sea.

Just so it has been in all ages, they say;
To keep us strong, God always finds a way;
So, why men do not praise Him puzzles me,
Since His only thought, it seems, is humanity.

God has many attributes not practiced here below—
(Love is the greatest of which I know);
Who but He would have done what He did for man
Just to let us all know of His great plan?

As I have said, mortal man once did not know
Why God sent him, to earth or how to go;
So, that is another secret in His great plan
To make of you what He calls a perfect man.

Cain said to God; "My brother's keeper, am I to be?"
God's answer is plain to both you and me;
For, until we act like brothers here below,
To Paradise, we are not permitted to go.

Last of all, who could have made the fruits we see?
Only God, they tell us, can make a tree;
So, that is another part in His great plan
To make the whole earth a heaven for man.

There are thousands of things we all must know
Before to Paradise God permits us to go;
So, He transfers and teaches us day after day
Till we finally learn to do things His way.

Just so, I ask myself questions, day after day;
For, we must follow Jesus, and learn the way;
Not only how to make this old earth new
But how to make a different fellow of you.

Lesson for November 24, 1957

PREACHERS talk too much about money, some people complain. It is very seldom that this complaint has good reason behind it. If you don't like a religion that talks about money a good deal, you'd better hunt up some other religion besides Christianity. Read the parables of Jesus and see for yourself what a large number of them have to do with money.

The Christian religion is a religion of love. Now love always involves giving. Selfish, tight-fisted "love" is a contradiction. Everybody would agree to that. The arguments or the misunderstandings begin at this point: What is giving?

Substitutes for Giving

There is really no substitute for giving, but people do try to run substitutes under that name. When time comes for a missionary offering, in almost any church you can hear some one sourly speaking: "Why should we give to people who never give to us? Why must it all go one way?" As a matter of fact, missionary gifts don't all go one way; but let that pass. The objection just quoted shows that the objector doesn't want to give, all he wants is exchange. But exchange is not giving. Here we are nearly at Christmas time, and all around us are people who talk about Christmas "gifts" when what they really mean is "what Christmas exchange."

Another substitute something like this is investment. People talk about dividends from the mission field, they like to feel that by upping their contribution ten dollars they will get a dividend in the shape of one more soul saved. But the work, the true work of the Christian church, is not like that of a business. A railway can cut off a train that is not making money; but a church has no right to cut down a missionary's salary because he can't show as many conversions as the next missionary down the river. An old cripple who can never be cured, is just as worthy an object of Christian giving as a crippled child who can be cured.

Prying It Loose

Parting with your money isn't giving it. If you are being held up and are relieved of your wallet, you don't take credit for being generous with bandits. If you sit down and write the government a large check about the middle of next April, nobody can be fooled into thinking you are giving the United States anything; you are merely paying your tax. And maybe you wouldn't even do that if you didn't know it was a case of pay—or else. . . . And yet people in the church will take credit for being generous when they are only parting with money they'd much rather not part with. This is not to say that the church ever robs any one. But sometimes a church will assess its members so much a member. It will be known who pays and who doesn't, so the man pays; but he's really being held up, he is paying only because he can't help it. What has to be prised out of a man is never a gift!

True Giving

"Let all that you do be done in love," Paul said. This holds for giving as for anything else. In I Corinthians 13 Paul had already said that if a man actually gave away every single thing he owned, even if he presented his own body as a sacrifice to be burned on a great altar, but did this without love, it would amount to nothing at all. The love of which Paul speaks is not a natural thing, that is to say, without the Spirit of God this love cannot exist. Ordinary love is so different from this that the New Testament uses a different word for it.

There is an ocean of difference between "love" that demands some kind of return, some reward, some dividend, and love that pours itself out without even asking for return. Such love is a rare sight, you say? To be sure it is; and that is why true Christian giving is so rare. This is not to say that a church should run, each of its contributors through a third-degree examination—"What was your motive?"—before it will accept a cent. But every church ought to be working to educate its people out of being exchangers, investors, prestige-grabbers, quota-fillers, Lady Bountifuls, into the joy of giving from pure Christ-like love.

Economy-Rich Pumpkin Pie

SPICY GOOD AND CREAMY RICH PUMPKIN PIE is the perfect treat to climax any holiday meal. And, here's a recipe we'll all want to try... it calls for only one egg. You'll notice the difference in savings, but certainly never in taste; two tablespoons of quick-cooking tapioca takes the place of more eggs.

PUMPKIN PIE

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca | 1-1/2 cups mashed cooked pumpkin |
| 2/3 cup sugar | 1 egg, well beaten |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt | 1-1/2 cups milk |
| 1 teaspoon cinnamon | Pastry for one crust 9-inch pie |
| 1 teaspoon ginger | 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg |

Combine quick-cooking tapioca, sugar, salt, spices, and pumpkin; mix well. Add egg and milk and blend well. Roll pastry 1/8 inch thick. Line a 9-inch pie pan. Trim pastry 1 inch larger than pan, fold edge to form a standing rim, and flute. Fill with pumpkin mixture. Bake in hot oven (425°F.) 1 hour, or until done. (Pie is done when a knife inserted near the edge of filling comes out clean. Then center will be soft but will continue cooking after pie is removed from oven.) Serve warm, or cool to room temperature. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

CARROLL GARDEN CLUB WINS AWARD

The Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland held their annual meeting at the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore on Tuesday, November 12, at which time Mrs. T. Rowe Price, Chairman of the State Awards Committee, presented the Certificate of Merit to the Carroll Garden Club with the following citation:

"To the Carroll Garden Club for its outstanding work in the restoration and maintenance of the garden at the Carroll County Historical House. The Club contributed $2298.96, a sum which did not include the gifts and memorials given by others."

has set the garden club members to jubilation. It has staged many successful projects, but this is the first time it has received a state award. The Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland consists of 102 clubs with over 4000 members.

In order to win this award, the supporting material, such as all publicity data, accompanied by "before and after" photographs, a financial statement, a list of civic activities at the garden, was compiled and sent in by the retiring president, Mrs. R. L. Sebastian, to be evaluated.

The restoration committee through whose efforts the award was won, was appointed by Mrs. G. Edwin Dowell in 1955. Mrs. E. Miller Richardson, served as chairman and was assisted by Mrs. G. Edwin Dowell, Mrs. Earle Buckley, Miss Pauline Fuss, Mrs. Charles A. Morrow, Mrs. Randall G. Spoerlein, Mrs. G. Edgar Barnes, Mrs. R. L. Sebastian, Mrs. A. Earl Shipley, and Mrs. K. Ray Hollinger. Funds were realized from plant sales, a card party at Bowling Brook, rummage sales, Christmas Greens sales, other garden affairs, and donations from many benefactors. At present the club sponsors the maintenance of their gift to the community.

Mr. John P. Donofrio, Westminster Landscape Designer, planned the garden with suitable plantings for the lovely Shellman House so that it would be attractive all twelve months of the year. The unparalleled beauty of the garden has been greatly admired by many visitors and garden lovers. The garden is open daily, and a visit to this house with its old Carroll County furnishings is recommended. Visiting hours are from 2 P. M. to 5 P. M. daily.
