Ten boy scouts, their scoutmaster and the father of one of the boys, left Washington, D. C., travelling in two station wagons, for a week-end of camping at Camp Hermitage, near Waynesboro, Pa. On arriving they found about two inches of snow. When the snow got to be six inches they thought they should return to Washington. Their plan was to return by Emmitsburg and Frederick but because of the snow drifts they could not get through. Fortunately for them the scoutmaster knew Mrs. Everlyn Peterson, near Taneytown, so they set out for her place, arriving at 6 p. m. that evening, Saturday. They stayed there until 11 a. m. Tuesday, when they left for their homes. Peterson's son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Peterson, Hagerstown, were there Saturday and Sunday, also Mrs. James Staley whom she is nursing. ANNAPOLIS LETTER

Carroll County's Senator Flanagan Writes

I believe the Carroll County Delegation in the House will join me in saying that we are opposed in principles to the theory that government should depend upon gambling for support. Betting at our racing tracks has be-come an established sport in the State and it is one of our chief sources of revenue. Now someone comes up with the proposal that we finance our fast growing budget with a State lottery. Of course, we are opposed to Slot machines and pin ball machines are used to raise revenue in Southern Maryland counties. They have pointed with pride to the fact that they finance the construction and maintenance of their hospitals. We in Carroll County can be justifiably proud that we have recently proven that we can meet our civic obligation without the use of these devices.

The Republican administration has introduced a bill aimed at ending gambling on piers and vessels near the Virginia shore of the Potomac River. It has been offered to cor-rect what some refer to as the "shame of the State". Since Maryland owns the Potomac to the low-water mark on the Virginia side, one vessel and several piers have made gambling and liquor by the drink available to Virginians, whose government prohibits both. This bill would ban gambling on vessels and piers that could not be reached on foot from the Maryland

Another measure would outlaw a form of betting on the results of an indoor ball game known as "HiLi". This all began when Anne Arundel agreed to issue a county license for this purpose. The law would be

To return to racing, there is a controversy arising about a request from the Maryland Jockey Club to transfer its racing days and operation to the Laurel track. There is a claim by the opponents that this would put too many racing days at one point under the ownership of a small group that would amount to a monopoly. If this is the case and there is some weight to the argument, I am suggesting that this unique form of business become the property, of the State. New York has a similar plan. I am very much opposed to State ownership of business generally, but because of the very nature of this enterprise, it may be the long-term solution to a difficult problem. In view of the traffic congestion at Pimlico and the nuisance it creates for the residents in the area during the residents in the area during the racing season, I have come to believe there is no future for a track at this location. I doubt whether further improvement to this property can be justified. Another measure would limit bills strictly to those having to do with appropriations to run the State and any necessary revenue bills to ob-tain the needed budget funds. The whether a specific measure can constitutionally be introduced. This acts as a deterant but many useless ones still find their way into the hopper.

Of course, the chief concern of the members is to find methods of raising the revenue to balance the budget. One offered to charge 10 cents a bottle on all kinds of spirits. I am having a bill prepared to give the State access to certain "unclaimed property". Under this plan all funds, such as, dividends, bank accounts, insurance claims below: insurance claims belonging to persons who have moved away without a forwarding address or died without heirs would escheat to the State Treasury. Many States have follow-ed this policy for a long time. It is estimated that this revenue measure may produce nearly a million dollars the first year because of accumula-tions. After that it would be considerably less.

Reading will be promoted on nation-wide scale to expand reading in America to all age levels and income groups Your County librarian at Westmin-ster could get some good material if your 4-H or Homemakers or church groups want to plan a week of read-ing. Your book mobile could come to Keysville or Detour that week if there is one.

MEETING OF BOARD OF EDUCATION

Progress Report Given on New School Buildings

A regular meeting of the Board of Education of Carroll County was held on Tuesday, Feb. 11, at 9 a. m. with all members present.

The Board gave approval to the minutes of the January meeting and approved current bills for payment. A report of progress was considerin connection with the school buildings under construction in Westminster and the Francis Scott Key location. According to present information, the Board was assured that the Westminster Jr. High building, located near Carroll Street, would be ready for occupancy during the summer of 1958. It appeared that in all probability the building at Sykesville and the Francis Scott Key building would be completed late in 1958 or early in 1959. After considering the report on the school buildings the Board gave approval for the payment of architect's fee and regular construction bills due and payable at this time.

The Board was advised that supervisors from the State Department of Education had recently visited several of the high schools. Letters commending the school system in high terms were read to the Board for their information.

Copies of the report prepared by the auditor on income appropriations were considered by the Board. Members were also provided with a copy of the current status.

CURRENT EVENTS FIFTY YEARS, AGO

On last Saturday, the following were elected directors of the Farmers' Warehouse Company, to serve out the unexpired term of the old directors, Harry C. Valentine, H. E. Styer, Eugene Messerschmidt, T. M. Sloan, and John McLaughlin.

A surprise was recently received by Mrs. R. S. McKinney, Miss Jennie Galt, Mrs. Samuel H. Mehring and James B. Galt, in the shape of checks representing their share from the sale of turnpike stock owned by their grandfather, the late Mr. James Barr.

There has been nothing slow about the Record office for the past month, "as the wheels have been going round" almost continuously. The financial panic has not yet reached this burse.

Besieged by flood on a Bridge. Messrs. Scott M. Smith, Russell Hock-ensmith and Clarence Eckard, had an ensmith and Clarence Eckard, had an experience, last Saturday, that they will not soon forget. About noon they attempted to cross the bridge at Bridgeport, over the Monocacy coming from Frederick County side. Although the water was very high they drove on the bridge successfully, but on coming out on the Carroll County side found the road covered a considerable width with ice and water, too dangerous to attempt to cross siderable width with ice and water, too dangerous to attempt to cross. After waiting a short time thinking conditions would get better, they turned to go back, but found that in the short time, that way also had become impassable, the water having risen very quickly. They were compelled to stay on the bridge with the water rising all the time on both sides, until it looked as though the bridge itself would be unable to rebridge itself would be unable to resist the flood, but towards evening the water fell, and about 9 o'clock, after being prisoners for nine hours they crossed safely.

YEAR END TAX TIPS NUMBER 1

Act Now To Trim Your Federal Income Tax Bill

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants.

You still have time-but not much time-to do a little year-end tax planning and assure yourself of the best possible break when you file your tax return next April.

Millions of high, low and middle income taxpayers, realizing that careful planning of their financial affairs between now and the first of the year can pay off handsomely when the tax collector calls next the real planning income and deductions to

For example, if your two-year income estimate shows that your income for this year will be significantly higher than next year's, you should take immediate steps to throw as much income as possible from 1957 to 1958. At the same time you should speed-up the payment of all expenses that can be deducted on your 1957 return. By concentrating deductions in the higher year and switching income to the lower, you will keep your taxes for both years in the lowest possible tax bracket.

Cases in 1958.

If you are planning to be married in 1958, remember that the income-splitting privileges you gain will act like a rate cut for you. At $7,000 of income, your taxes will be $240 less than if you were single, assuming that you take the standard deduction and claim only exemptions for you and your wife. For this reason, young couples planning marriage might consider post-poning income from 1957 to 1958, while accelerating deductions from 1958 to 1957.

You can do this too, but you must act no later than December 31

To alert you to the tax-saving steps you may be able to take before the end of the year, this newspaper is printing a series of articles prepared with the help of the national and state organizations of certified public accountants. Evaluate Income Prospects

If you are like most individual taxpayers, your goal at this time should be to level out income for this year and next year. Needless or careless bunching of income in either year can be costly. The sharp bite of today's progressive tax rates—which you can assume will be as high or possibly only slightly less in 1958—makes it much better to have an income of $8,000 in each of two years, rather than $6.000 in one and $10,000 in the other.

Taxpayers who are in danger of being whiplashed from one tax bracket to another because of wide fluctuations in their 1957 and 1955 income should act before December 31 to try to average out their taxable earnings. This can be done by careful shifting of income and deductions from one year to the next.

How to Shift Income

Why guess? Have your soil sampled and tested free by A.A.C. Soil Service.

How much fertilizer will your crop need?

You can't expect to get a high yield on next year's crop unless there is enough plant food available in your soil. But guessing how much fertilizer your soil needs to grow that big crop is risky business. You can eliminate this risk by taking advantage of the free A.A.C. Soil Service.

Guided by the size and topography of your field, an A.A.C. fieldman will take an adequate number of borings for a good soil sample. He'll record a complete and accurate crop history of the field, too. Then the carefully marked sample will be mailed to the nearest A.A.C. laboratory where trained chemists will analyze it to find out how much available plant food it contains. Tests will also be run to determine soil pH. Results and field history will then be studied carefully by A.A.C. agronomists familiar with farm practices in your area.

In a few weeks you'll receive a complete report of the fertility level of the field, with sound, practical advice on how and when to fertilize and lime to grow a better crop. Recommendations will be made for your particular crop and soil. This report can take the guess out of buying fertilizer.

PRIDE OF THE NAVY CONTEST

National contests have awarded all sorts of prizes—from trips around the world to blocks of granite. Now comes the oddest one of all. Thousands of youngsters will be doing their best, reports Chief Personnel Man H. L. Smith of the Baltimore Navy Recruiting Station, to win a grand prize that's a mystery, and only the spon-sors know what it is. Called "Sealed Orders", the only unclassified information is that the winning youngster and his dad will be guests of the Navy "Buddy Program" of the Navy League on an exciting never-to-be forgotten trip, says

SHORT STORY

Money Man

By Venus Inglish

WELL, sir, I didn't use to mind loaning a guy a couple of bucks until payday. Not until a couple of years ago when a guy named Ted came to work at the garage. He borrowed five from me, and two paydays came and went, and he hadn't paid me back. None of 's knew him very well. He didn't talk much, but he was friendly enough at that. 9 - Minute Long about Fiction four-thirty one Saturday afternoon, and payday, too, he went up to the office. When he came back, he went into the washroom and came out in his street clothes with his hat on. After he had walked out, probably on an errand, I thought, Mr. Simpson came back to the shop.

"Well, boys, we'll be shorthanded for a day or so," he said. "Ted's quit. Just walked in and said since it was payday he guessed he'd leave. And he did." I'm not too much of a hand to swear, usually, but I blued up the air some right then. Sam, the welder, asked what was the matter, and I told him about Ted and my five bucks. Sam laughed.

"Guess the joke's on both of us," he said. "He owes me five, too. Say, this is Saturday night, and I've heard that he's been seen in

"Guess the joke's on both of us," he said. "He owes me five, too."

Max's beer joint out at the edge of town some Saturday nights. Let's run out there after work and maybe we can find him."

So we did, and when we walked into Max's about six o'clock, there was Ted sitting at the bar big as you please. He even bought us a drink. Then, so's not to embarrass him more than necessary, I gave Sam a wink and went into the washroom. When I came out, Sam was grinning. He gave me the nod, and I knew he'd collected. I waited a while, and pretty soon Sam got "Time to be shoving off," he said. "Finish your beer, Johnny, and I'll wait in the car." I knew was giving me my turn at collecting, so I turned back to Ted. "You ain't forgot you owe me five, have you?" I asked. Ted looked up. He didn't even turn red like most people would. "Do I?" he asked. "I'm getting absent-minded. Glad you reminded me." He fished a twenty dollar bill out of his billfold. "Got change?" he asked. Well, I probably wouldn't have had change on me any other day, but it was payday like I said, so I gave him a ten and a five for the twenty. Guess I was more embarrassed than he was. I almost stuttered my thanks, and then downing the last drops of my beer, I muttered "Good luck" and went out to join Sam in the car. He looked at me and I grinned and nodded, and we started off to town. As we turned onto the highway, we saw Ted come out, get into his car and go off in the other direction.

It wasn't until we were nearly home that Sam began to chuckle.

I asked him what was so funny. "Just thinkin'," he replied. "If it hadn't been payday, I probably wouldn't have had the three fives to give him in change for that twenty." "Yeh. Me neither," I said. "Only

I gave him a ten and a five." "You did? For a twenty?" Sam sounded surprised. "Well, he probably needed change for his trip. He's going to the coast to get work." It seemed pretty odd, but as long as we had our money we concluded it didn't matter.

Had our money? Both of those twenties were phony, and not only ours but about five other ones Ted had cashed before he left town that Saturday night. Nobody suspected it, though, so it wasn't until Monday morning that the counterfeit twenties began to show up where they'd be recognized, and by that time Ted could have been in Mexico or anywhere else in the world, fast as planes travel these days, and easy as it is to get rid of an unwanted car.

No, sir, I never minued loaning a guy a few bucks until payday, but I sort of got out of the habit after knowing Ted. I don't lend money to anybody now. Hope you won't hold it against me.

Healthy Chicks Get By on Own Antibiotics Are Not. Required, Tests Show

Growth stimulators and antibiotics have their place in the poultry industry, but healthy chicks can get along without them very well, according to a recent study at the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

Drs. J. O Alberts, E. F. Reber and C. E. Schoettle, all of the College of Veterinary Medicine; H. M. Scott, Department of Animal Science; and the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station cooperated in the study. It is another example of basic research designed to help Illinois farmers keep pace with developments in nutrition and disease control.

Dr. Reber, who reported results of the study, said that the researchers wanted to learn the organ weights and the composition of organs and bones of healthy chicks at various ages. The chicks were not fed any growth stimulants, and yet they weighed an average of 1½ pounds at six weeks and three pounds at 10 weeks of age. These are considered "good" gains, according to

Dr. Reber. He explained that research of this type provides data that serve as a valuable base line for nutritional and disease studies. Knowing the "standard" values aids researchers in defining "abnormal" values.

Don't Be Careless With Insecticides

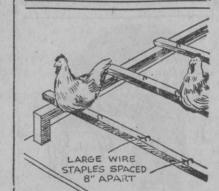

Dr. Richard Bradley of the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine points out that improper use of insecticides can be dangerous to both the farmer and his animals. There is little danger, however, when insecticides are used at recommended rates for their intended purposes. Dr. Bradley says that lindane, one of the most commonly used sprays for livestock, rates about halfway between "dangerous" and "safe" on the toxicity scale of the common insect sprays and pow-

If you should get lindane on your skin, wash the area immediately with soap and water. If lindane is accidentally swallowed, induce vomiting to empty the stomach, take two tablespoons of Epsom salts and call your physician.

Dr. Bradley offers these suggestions for handling insecticides: read all labels on packages and follow them exactly; wear protective clothing and change to clean clothing after a spraying job; store all insecticides in original packages, away from food and feed-stuffs and out of reach of children and animals: dispose of containers by burning or burying them; call a physician immediately if someone is known or suspected to be poisoned; administer proper antidote.

No Growding

Poultrymen say that crowding of hens on the roosts, especially when feathers are wet with rain or snow, is apt to cause colds or roup. To prevent crowding, one farmer used long wire staples, which were driven into the tops of the roost, about 8 in. apart. Hens settle down in the spacings between the staples.

Merwyn C. Fuss, President, Tan-eytown Chamber of Commerce has been invited by President Eisenhower to attend the President's 10th Anniversary Conference on Occupational Safety, to be held in Washington, D. C., March 25-27, 1958.

Around the theme—Safety Con-

The Milkers, Hudson Barn Steel, Davis Paint.—Roop & Sons, Linwood, Md. younger workers and women. To the well-known hazards will be added those resulting from wider uses of nuclear energy, new chemicals, and space flight both in research and in production. Commemorating its 10th anniversary, this Conference will assess past progress and problems as guides to the safety challenge of the future.

Great progress has been made in safety over the past generation but there were still 14,,300 deaths and nearly 2 million injuries caused by on-the-job accidents in 1956.

The President will greet the expected 3,000 to 4,000 delegates and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell will address them as will other leading figures of industry and labor. Speakers and workshops will deal with several very important aspects of the safety problem.

EMPLOYERS OF HOUSEHOLD WORKERS MUST FILE A RETURN

Employers of household workers must file a return for the October through December 1957 quarter on or before January 31, 1958, W. M. Metcalf, Collection Officer of Internal Revenue Service for Carroll County, reminded them recently.

At the same time, Mr. L. J. Gillespie, Field Representative of the Baltimore (North) social security office, pointed out that this obligation to file a return applies to every household employer who paid $50 or more on cash wages to a cook, maid, laundress, or any other household em-ployee during the calendar quarter. Returns must be filed after the close Returns must be filed after the close of each calendar quarter and are due April 30, July 31, October 31, and January 31 of every year.

Most household employers will make their reports on Form 942. This is a special simplified form printed is a special simplified form printed the back of a return envelope. If on the back of a return envelope. If you are a household employer who is already on the mailing list of the Dis-trict Director of Internal Revenue, one of these forms was mailed to you before the end of December. If social security taxes are due from a house-hold employer who is not now on the mailing list, the employer should ask the District Director for the form and give him her name and address to be added to the mailing list before the next quarterly return is due.

The amount of the social security tax is 4½% of the total cash wages paid to a household worker in a calendar quarter. The employee is expected to share this tax with the employer, however, it is the obligation of the employer to report and remit the total tax of 4½% to the District Director of Internal Revenue. While the $50 cash wage test applies separately to each household worker in your employ, no report or social se-curity tax is due on any household worker to whom you pay less than $50 in cash during the calender quar-ter, Mr. Metcalf pointed out.

FAMILY OF FOUR INJURED

A family of four was seriously injured when their automobile struck side of a Pennsylvania railroad freight train at the Lehigh Portland Cement Company railroad crossing on Md. 75 in Carroll County, one-tenth mile north of the Frederick County line, Friday night at 7:15 o'clock.

The injured were: Joseph Leister, 52, of Taneytown, who received left wrist injuries, lacerations of the up-per lip, lacerations of the right knee and head injuries. His condition was reported to be good at Frederick Me-morial Hospital last Friday night. Mrs. Edna Leister, 49, his wife, suffered a compound fracture of her right leg, above the ankle, and abraons and contusions over the rest of her body. She was admitted to surgery at Frederick Memorial Hospital last Friday night.

Robert Leister, 15, suffered a fractured skull and a fractured nose in the accident and was reported to be in serious condition at the hospital.
Richard Leister, 17, received 17 stitches in lacerations in the right knee and was unconscious for a time from a cerebral concussion. His condition was reported to be fair.

The Leister family, all of Taneytown, were returning to their home Friday night when they ran into the freight train. The father was driving the car with his son, Richard, in the front seat with him. His wife and Robert were in the back seat of the auto. Robert was thrown from the back into the front seat during the accident. Their car, a 1949 Ford sedan, was completely demolished.

According to State Trooper George C. Wachter of the Randallstown Barracks Leisten told him bear acks.

racks, Leister told him he was driving his auto at only 35 miles per hour but did not see the freight train until it was too late to stop. It is reported that there is railroad cross sign but no blinker lights at the intersection.

The train hit by the auto was reported to be a small shuttle. It was gone from the scene when State Police arrived and may have proceeded without knowing it had been hit, since the car struck the side mid-section of the train, hitting a freight

The ambulance crew of the Union Bridge Fire Department removed the injured persons from their wrecked auto and rushed them to the hospital within one half hour after the accident. All four were admitted at the hospital hospital.

The father is an employe of a shoe factory in Gettysburg. The mother is a housewife in Taneytown. Richard is a farm worker in the Taneytown area and Robert is a student at the Taneytown High School.

Two sisters of the boys, one a twin, remained home last Friday

Heart-Shaped Valentine Tarts Work Magic At A Party

Whether your guests for Valentine's day are old or young perhaps just the family at dinner—they'll relish these lovely little heart-shaped tarts for dessert.

You'll find them easy to make. No cooking is needed; the crusts are made of crumbs, the filling is the magic kind calling for sweetened condensed milk.

If you're having a party for children, hamburgers and milk would make an acceptable first course. The teen-agers, too, would settle for hamburgers or franks, perhaps with pop and potato chips and assorted relishes, topped off with the tarts.

Magic Lemon Pie Filling

1 15-oz. can sweetened condensed milk 1/2 cup lemon juice

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind or ¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Put sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, lemon rind or lemon extract in mixing bowl. Stir until mixture thickens. Pour filling into chilled crumb crust or cooled pastry shell. If meringue topping is used, make it of the two egg whites, 4 tablespoons sugar and 14 teaspoon cream of tartar, if desired.

RAINBOW PARTY CAKE

This is a Washington's Birthday cake to bring a gleeful gleam to the eye . . . it stands so high, and rainbow-beautiful.

It's an angel food, sliced into layers, each with a different color filling . . . lemon yellow, berry red, mint green . . . giving rainbow-bright bands against the white of the cake. And adding, too, their own tang and lively flavor to the cloud light angel food.

Now, see how easy all this is: The angel food can be a mix. The fillings—raspberry jam for the sweet red filling and for the yellow and green fillings, canned apple sauce fixed with tart lemon rind and cool mint flavoring.

For Washington's Birthday, decorate the frosting with red sugar hatchets and red cherries. For any guest occasion or simply as a family treat, you can always swirl the cake with whipped cream instead of frosting.

RAINBOW PARTY CAKE

Baked angel food cake 2 cups canned apple sauce 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind Few drops mint extract

Few drops green food coloring ½ cup raspberry jam *Boiled frosting Red sugar Stemmed maraschino cherries

Girl By Kathryn Brummond

"WHY can't Sis come back to the farm and live with us, daddy?" Mike Robidoux had explained the thousand and one reasons to ten year old Joey many times before. But tonight, lying there in the other bed, he went through it again, trying to convince himself as well as Joey. "Girls can't batch along the way we do, Joe. Girls like to have

"But Sis likes it out here," Joey protested sleepily.

Mike stayed awake far into the night. It had seemed so right for his sister Jane to take the girl twin, after Angelina died, two years ago. Jane lived in town and she could give Sis everything. Jane's sixteen year old daughter Peggy regarded Sis as a member of the family and, if she did not welcome her ardently, she at least accepted her.

Yes, it had seemed the only thing to do-at first. Lately Mike had begun to have doubts. Sis had been out that afternoon, playing with Joey, and even a man could see that she was overdressed. She had been up late the night before, too, having gone somewhere with Peggy as a curious sort of chaperon.

Mike had heard vaguely disturbing rumors about the way Peggy was beginning to run wild. And it wouldn't be long before Sis might become unruly too.

But Mike had spent ten hours in the fields that day and even these weighty problems could not keep him awake forever.

He was aroused, just at dayby the telephone, ringing insistently downstairs. It was Jane. "Mike, is Sis out there?" she asked.

'What do you mean—is Sis here!" he returned sharply.

"Oh Mike, she's gone!" Jane's voice was weak and tremulous. Then, pulling herself together, she explained, "I went into the city with the Masons and we stopped at the Melody Club on the way back. I just got home."

"And you left the girls!" "But I thought-I-I had no idea Peggy would go out too."

But Jane was still explaining. "Sis was asleep when Peggy left and Peg wasn't gone long. A bunch of kids came by and they all went out to the drive-in, she said. And when Peggy came back she didn't look in on Sis again but went right to bed."

"I'll be there in twenty minutes," Mike said tensely.

He bounded upstairs and dressed hastily. Joey was still sleeping soundly. I'll telephone him from Jane's, Mike thought.

The cattle were beginning to gather in the yard lot, waiting to be fed. Well, Joey would have to tend to that.

Then he remembered the black heifer, the one with the stillborn calf. He'd have to milk her first. He didn't even go into the milkhouse for a pail, merely took a feed bucket and drew off a part of her load.

Then, grasping a pitchfork, he climbed up to the loft to throw down some hay.

And there, her face aglow with the early dawn streaming in through the big east window, lay Sis! Snuggled down into the hay. Fast asleep.

Mike wanted to seize her in his arms and hug her and shake her and kiss her. He wanted to shout his thanks to the whole world, right through the open window.

But he did none of these things. He only shook her gently and said, "Come Sis, wake up. It's nearly time for breakfast.

Soon they were all eating breakfast, all incredibly gay. "But why did you run away?" Joey asked his sister. "I didn't run away," Sis answered in a surprised tone, "I just came home!"

Weather Damage Reduced by Penta Wood Preservative

Well Worth Cost A new "raincoat" that protects houses against weather damage, such as blistered paint and rotting wood, is now available as a waterrepellent wood preservative, according to Charles Ross, Oregon State college forestry specialist.

The preservative is pentachlorophenol, often referred to simply as "penta." It is sold under various trade names, already mixed in a water repellent solution, or as a concentrate to be mixed according to directions on the label.

Wood siding, especially when it has not been recently painted, soaks up moisture rapidly when subjected to a driving rain or water running down over it. Telltale signs are paint blisters or streaky stains from wood, building paper or rusty nails.

Before repainting a house, Ross suggests scraping and sanding blistered areas. Then, before applying new paint, brush a penta water-repellent preservative into overlap joints, butt ends, and all joints on door and window trims and house corners. Penta treatment is specially important where old paint has loosened. Excess penta that runs down over the paint should be wiped off with a cloth dampened with paint thinner. Allow the penta to dry thoroughly before the house is re-

In replacing rotted siding, Ross advises first soaking or dipping the new wood in a penta solution.

Farmers Working to Solve Own Problems

Farmers are doing much to solve their own problems, believes Mrs. Elvera Horrell, extension agricultural economist at Oregon State College.

They are applying know-how gained through research and are shifting crops and emphasizing livestock in their effort to balance production against the needs being expressed by city people in the markets of the nation, she points

The city stake in the farm problem is larger than many people realize. Farmers are heavy users of industrial products to produce the food and fiber used by the nation, and much of this food and fiber is used as raw materials by

Farm products create many jobs for city people other than in industry, the economist explains. Figures point up that there are more people working at marketing farm products than there are people growing them. Oregon people are especially close to the land, Mrs. Horrell says. Farming is the second greatest source of Oregon's primary income, even though only about one person out of every seven in the state lives on a farm.

The annoyance of having to pull the rope back and forth to make a cistern pail sink and fill can be eliminated by using a horseshoe magnet as shown. Tie the magnet to the rope and it will hold the pail in an inverted position. A sharp tug of the rope will release the magnet and the pail will drop.

Q-We need a new roof and understand it can be applied in winter. But if it rains or snows while the job is being done, wouldn't water get inside and cause damage?

A—Not necessarily, if you reroof with asphalt shingles. In most cases, these can be applied directly over the old roofing material. Even if a blizzard interrupts the job, the area that hasn't yet been reroofed still has the same protection it had before the work was started. Another advantage of this method is that there's little mess during the work or afterward, since the the work or afterward, since the old roofing remains.

Q-What causes dry rot? Is it heat, dampness, or both?

A—Dry rot is caused by a fungus that grows best in conditions of alternate drying and excess moisture. It is frequently found in improperly ventilated

Q—How can inlaid linoleum be removed from a floor?

Q-The plasterboard ceilings in my house have been painted over many times and now have hairline cracks all over them. Even when repainted, the cracks show. What can I do?

A—Try painting the ceiling with a special "texture" paint. It goes on thickly, and is especially designed to hide blemishes. Most paint and building material dealers can supply it.

Q-What can I do about pop-ping nails in plasterboard?

A—Obtain a supply of new nails especially made for plaster-board. Drive the nails into new spots, deep enough to dent the plasterboard slightly. Remove the old nails, and fill the holes and new nail heads with spackle. Smooth and repaint. Smooth and repaint.

Modern Roofing Result Of 30-Year Research

The asphalt roofing industry recently began its 31st year of research work at the National Bureau of Standards of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

To the home-owner, this means that asphalt shingles produced today are the result of long and continuing scientific research to make them give dependable protection as well as an attractive appearance. Research over the years has given modern roofing materials color, resistance to sun, wind, and damage from ice and snow, and more reliable application methods.

The basement seems the likely place for such a cupboard, except in areas of flood danger. The survival center could be built in the often unused area under a stair-

The center should have enough shelf-space for a seven-day supply of such foods as powdered and evaporated milk; dehydrated and canned juices, fruits, vegetables, soups and meats; jars of cheese and peanut butter; readyto-eat cereals and crackers; instant tea, coffee or cocoa, and bottled or canned beverages.

You may also wish to include storage space for blankets, clothing, tents, flashlights, first aid and other emergency equipment.

Selling Your Home?

Look Out for 'Sale Killers'.

If you plan to sell your home, don't miss a chance for a quick, profitable turnover because of "sale killers," says Andrew C. Lang, author of the new book, "Home Repairs."

"Sale killers," says Lang, are things about a house and lot which can discourage an otherwise enthusiastic prospect.

Here are some common "sale killers" and hints on how to get rid of them:

1. Unkempt grounds. You don't have to re-landscape the place, but be sure lawns are neat and shrubbery is trimmed.

2. Broken and cracked concrete work in sidewalks, drives, foundation, garage, or patio. An afternoon spent with a sack of ready-mixed patching cement may save your sale.

3. Peeling or cracked paint on siding and trim. An investment in a complete paint job may pay for itself in a faster, more profitable sale. If the complete job isn't needed, a bit of touching up here and there can accomplish wonders.

4. Shabby, weathered roof. Public Worship

Lesson for February 23, 1958

W HY DOES the church worship in public? Didn't Jesus condemn, or make fun of the Pharisees for doing just that? Didn't Jesus say, "When you pray, go into your room and shut the door"? A second thought will show that what Jesus condemned is individuals praying or otherwise worshipping by themselves in public places. This is making a show of religion. Jesus on the other hand never condemned, but encouraged, and took part in, Dr. Foreman group worship. He promised to be wherever two cr three are gathered together in his name.

Worship in the Spirit

Of the many things Jesus said about worship, either directly or indirectly, we may well select one single sentence, or two phrases from it, for special notice. It is the well-known statement, spoken not to a learned man but to a simpleminded woman, that God is a Spirit and those who worship Him must worship in Spirit and in truth. Worshipping in the Spirit is not to be contrasted with worshipping (say) with words and music. We know that Jesus attended synagogue services regularly. We know he visited the elaborate worship services of the great Temple. We know he was familiar with that ancient hymn-book of his people which we know as the Psalter. If a man offers one prayer silently, and another prayer aloud, perhaps in unison with others, and sets still another prayer to music and sings it, we have no right to call the unspoken prayer "spiritual" and the others not. Perhaps they are all three spiritual; perhaps none is. But the spirituality of a prayer is not to be measured by how loud or soft it sounds.

In Tune With God

A better contrast is to say that "in the Spirit" or "in Spirit" (both expressions are used in the New Testament) is in harmony with the God who is Spirit. If it is out of tune with God, if it is not in harmony with the nature of God, it is not acceptable worship, or service, or doctrine. God's Spirit is always a giving, not a selfish one. Selfish prayer is not prayer in Spirit. Worship that is centered in the worshippers' own desires and needs is hardly worship in Spirit. Furthermore, prayer that places most emphasis on physical, material welfare, prayer that is mostly for more pay or more comfort or more promotion in this world, is both selfish and material. (Any reader who knows the Lord's Prayer will remember that Jesus did not mean to shut out prayer for material blessings entirely; but that is not the main line of the Lord's Prayer.)

Worship in Truth More could be said about worship in the Spirit. We might raise the question whether there is not such a thing as collective selfishness in some churches. But let us glance at another point: the God of truth must be worshipped in truth. For one thing, this means that other things being equal, worship is better as it comes closer to a genuine knowledge of God. You would not try to persuade your mother to go with you in the same way in which you would try to persuade a criminal to go with you in a patrol wagon. The way you talk with your mother, or with a burglar, is different because they are different. Talking with God, or about God in a service of worship, or singing to his praise, is far better when the worshipper remembers it is GOD upstairs. But Why, at Eleven O'clock?

to whom he is speaking. Talking to Him as if he were only a "Man

An objection must have come to many, many minds in the course of the centuries. Granted that worship must be all that is suggested in the majestic words "Spirit and Truth," how can we have any assurance that we shall be in the right frame of mind when Sunday comes and the clock strikes eleven? Well, of course there is not any such assurance. The church knows this very well. What the church does is to open her doors at certain times every week, and invite worshippers to enter and take part. It is often true that though we have gone to church just as a matter of routine, we come away from the worship renewed and blessed. Suppose the church had not given us this opportunity?

Untreated Water Is Farm Problem

Treatment Units Are Good Investment

Most serious hidden health hazard of millions of rural and suburban families is the possible pollution of raw, untreated water drawn from private well systems.

This problem is assuming greater proportions than have before with the growing exodus of more than 2,000,000 persons a year from dense urban population centers to newly developed suburban areas.

Invisible pollution of raw water is a daily threat, even to deep wells that have escaped contamination for years. And water-borne diseases are not detected by sight, taste or smell.

Another water problem in many areas of the country is mineral damage which causes lime scale, corrosion, and red water.

To solve both problems of pollution and mineral damage, modern industrial chemistry and technology have combined to produce simple household water treatment units effective and economical enough for the private well owner. A typical unit will purify 75,000 gallons of water a day, an ample supply of water for a whole family, even enough for today's modern farm uses of water, and sufficient

It isn't true that we have less water today than we used to have. We just use more in our daily

Only two decades ago, the average person used about 128 gallons of water a day. Now he uses an average of 145 gallons daily.

When you consider the industrial and farm uses of water, we need 1,200 gallons of water daily for each man, woman and child.

We must set a goal for making better use of the perpetual supply of water falling from our skies. Only 27% of the rain that falls in the 17 Western States is put to use. The rest runs unused toward the Only 8% of the water available in Eastern States is used. A tremendous total of 825 billion gallons a day runs off into the sea.

In the meantime, research is continuing on the desalting of water from oceans and converting brackish water to a usable form.

Wire solder holds better, lasts longer than twine when used as fastener on sacks of poultry or stock foods. Stitched through the sacks as shown, solder stays always in place.

Western Standoff

By Allen Wishert

THE sharp mountain-peak slashed a pie-shaped cut from the sun as it slid downward on its way to China.

Dan Sherwood who was riding toward the ball of fire, surveyed the surrounding territory. His objective; the foot of that mountain peak fifteen miles ahead, would have to wait another day.

The recent rains had freshened Minute the atmosphere, Fiction and the everpresent western breeze was almost cool. Beside a clump of mesquites Dan drew his pony to a halt. A small depression in the grassy land was filled with water, a thirst-quenching oasis.

The sun had dropped from sight and a dusky haze was crawling over the plains. As Dan dismounted, a prairie-dog sat on the edge of its under-ground abode and yipped; "Good night" to Dan and his pony as it flicked its stubby

He paused. "Have you told your tail and disappeared below the sur-

Dan spread his blanket and cautioned Kiowa, his pony, not to stray too far as they would again take up the trail at daybreak.

No disturbance occurred during the night, only the distant howl of a coyote trying to outrun a jack-

Daylight on the prairie breaks suddenly. Kiowa neighed, Dan rolled his blanket. Coffee was steaming over a small camp-fire, and before the sun had completed its journey half around the Universe, man and beast were on their way.

"I wish," thought Dan. "I knew how Sue-Dee's father, Jed Tarver, viewed the matter. I don't know whether I'll be greeted with a Winchester or a hand-clasp. Well, I believe it's said we live only

Three hours later they were within the boundary of the Tarver spread. On they traveled, the ranch house loomed into view. When within three hundred yards Dan could see someone sitting on the front porch. Within one hundred yards, he recognized the form: Sue-Dee Tarver was waiting for him. Old man Tarver and his Winchester wasn't in sight.

Dan staked Kiowa in the shade of a cottonwood. Awkwardly, from riding and high-heeled boots, he walked to the porch, up the steps and into the arms of Sue-Dee.

"Oh, Dan," Sue-Dee smiled through her tears. "The past three weeks have been three years."

"That's over, honey," said Dan. 'From now on every week, every year will be ours." He paused. "Have you told your father?"

"No, Dan, I haven't. You know his temper. It's best that we be together when he learns the

"Reckon you're right," replied Dan. When he first began courting Sue-Dee, her father let him know, pointedly, that no western waddie was "Fittin'" for her, he had other ideas for his daughter, and if any wrangler got too familiar, his Winchester would finish the

Mr. Tarver had to be told, even if a fellow does live only once. Dan took Sue-Dee into his arms, he hoped not for the last time. A foot-step, both turned quickly, rancher Tarver with Winchester to his shoulder had it aimed directly at Dan.

"I warned you, Dan Sherwood, that my Winchester would finish the argument."

Sue-Dee, from somewhere within the folds of her dress, produced a pistol. She placed the muzzle against her temple.

"Fire one shot, daddy, and I'll pull the trigger."

Old man Tarver lowered the gun. His daughter had won the argument. He nodded his head approvingly and left them togeth-

"Gosh, honey," exclaimed Dan, Would you have pulled the trigger, sure enough?'

"Of course," smiled Sue-Dee. 'It wasn't loaded." "Suppose he had fired?"

'He couldn't," Sue-Dee tossed the pistol aside. "His Winchester wasn't loaded, either."

WHERE HEAVEN SHALL BE-

Man used to tell us where Heaven shall be-At the end of Time; and, through all Eternity; But, the things they dreamed of do not seem to agree With the way God intends Heaven shall be.

Heaven is not a place high up in the air—According to how I read, it is everywhere; For, wherever God is, there heaven must be, Not only in Time, but in Eternity.

Such talk does not check with God's great plan; For, He lives in you, in me, in every man— In the billion bodies He is said to be;; So, He rules all the earth, through you and me.

The Scriptures tell us God lives in you and me; So, where God is, heaven must be; He plants Himself, in us all, at birth; So, He is our personal God, here on earth.

God is a Spirit Being just like real man; So, the thing to do is to follow His plan; He differs from physical man in every way; So, do not listen to what men say.

God sends you here to learn of His plan; And to make, of yourself, a perfect man; So, He gave you "free will", to train you to be A god among gods in Eternity.

God knew exactly how mortal man would do Long before He created either me or you; But, He sent him here to try his plan To make himself a perfect man.

In these physical bodies in which we all dwell We learn the secret of heaven and hell; The ones who make them are you and me So, the devil, the 5 senses, is said to be.

But, after many incarnations, the records say; Man learns to know God, and goes His way; So, reincarnation, they tell us, is the way God raises the dead, and makes us perfect, they say.

So, that eliminates Satan, the Saints all say; For, to train His sons, that is God's way; Here you learn to know both Him and His plan, And here you become a perfect man.

There are coutless things we do not know— Not only about God, but how to go; So, here God trains us from day to day Till we finally learn to do things His way.

Here is a truth all peoples must learn to know; God is with us, every place we go; He now lives in you, and He lives in me; And, just so in Eternity, things shall be.

Remember this—God is the Seed in everything you see;
We see Him in the apple, the pear, the peach on the tree;
I am telling you this, because I want you to know
That God is all in all down here below.

So, always watch your step, whoever you may be; God lives not only in you and me; He puts Himself in each cherry on the tree That the fruit we all love forever shall be.

Without the seed there would not even be a tree,

And the same is true of you and me; That is how God works in all the regions of space Every place men go they can see His face. The chemist can make a grain of wheat

Which resembles the ones we daily eat; But, if you plant it, it will not grow; For, God is not in it, to make it do so. I have mentioned that truth several times before;

And, I shall mention it many times more; For I want all peoples on earth to know That God is the Life of all things which grow.

I am telling you this because the Scriptures say Our God, Jehovah, never changes His way; He saw at the beginning how things shall be When Time shall end in Eternity.

There are many secrets in God's great plan

To make a perfect Earth and a perfect man;
So, as things are now, in the future they shall be Till we all are made fit for Eternity.

God is not a will-o-the whisp floating on air; His physical body is seen everywhere; So, some day, the peoples on earth shall know More about Him and the right way to go.

God and man shall always together be, Not only in Time, but in Eternity; For man, the Scriptures tell us, is God's hands; Through him, He carries out all His plan.

More about me, and the right way to go; So, it is all a part of His great plan To make a perfect earth and a perfect man. God figured that all out before He made man,

God said Himself, some day, mortal man shall know

So, some day, man shall know of His plan;
And, when he dies, the "New Earth", his home shall be Through all the long years of Eternity. If I were a prophet I would tell more About the countless things God has in store For all who love Him; and do things right, Till the Time comes to enter the day without night. God never changes, the Scriptures say;

So, follow Jesus, and do things His way; And try to learn of God's wonderful plan, To make the whole earth a heaven for man. Jesus always called God Father so shall mortal men When he learns who is is, and about God's great plan; Such love and devotion never has been known

As, to God, by His children, shall be shown. Men shall tell of God's goodness every place they go; For, our while Life's history, we then shall know; In our sub-conscious mind a record is kept
Of things we did each time before we slept.

As from a ledger whose pages are blurred
The accounts, to another book are transferred,
So it is with man; a record of the things done
Is stored in the body of everyone.

Your sub-conscious mind is the real you; It is he who tells mortal man how to do; Men call him their conscience—they don't understand That, to him, God has given full command.

But, God also gave to mortal man "free will";
That is why the sub-conscious has a hard job to fill;
The Scripture I is for wiser in both you and me; That is why men, with each other, fail to agree.

Through you the sub-conscious is building a home,
A perfect body in which to roam;
For, it must be perfect in every way
To weather the storms of a "Thousand year day".

As I have said, the real you, is wiser in both you and me; It is he who shall live through Eternity; From the very beginning, you have been God's Son— That statement is true of everyone.

But, you must have a body in which to dwell; (That is one thing we know quite well!)
God not only lives in man, man is His hands;
So, he must have a body, to carry out God's plan.

These are things we all must learn to know Before to Paradise God permits us to go; So, back to Earth we must all return; For, Eternal Life, we all must earn. God has made great preparations for mortal man;

So, the thing to do, is to learn of His plan
To make this old earth a heaven to be
Where, in us, we shall reign through Eternity. But, alone, is proof of God's love for man;

At the very beginning, it was His plan To make, our home, the planet earth— Where He would teach and train us birth after birth.

Only God could have seen how man, some day, shall be When he is made fit to live in Eternity; So, because He is omniscient, it was His plan To make the whole earth a heaven for man.

Shabby Roof Spoils Effect Of New Paint

Cast a critical eye at the appearance of your roof before you paint your house.

This is the advice of New York color stylist Beatrice West, who says: "Putting a new coat of paint on a house with a shabby, worn-out roof is like wearing a fur coat and diamonds with dungarees. They just don't go to-

Miss West, who color-styles thousands of new and remodeled homes every year, says she al-ways examines the roof of a house first before deciding on a color scheme because:

"Nothing spoils the appearance of an attractive home more ance of an attractive home more than a weather-beaten roof. This is especially true when a house has been freshly painted. The new paint actually accentuates the shabbiness of the roof."

If the roof of a house shows signs of wearing out, Miss West says, she usually recommends a new roof of asphalt shingles in a color which will provide a basic shade for other colors on siding, trim, and accent spots.

"As for the added cost," Miss West says, "I explain that when a roof begins to look worn, chances are it will no longer be serviceable in a year or two. The family will have to reroof then, anyway, and they might as well do it now and enjoy a completely color-styled house inpletely color-styled house in-stead of doing the job only half-

The many colors available in asphalt shingles are a big help to color stylists, Miss West says. "For example, by choosing a roof of blended green with a fleck of yellow in it, I can pick up the yellow for an accent color on doors, window boxes and shutters, while the trim and windows can be painted in a harmonizing

Another trick with roof color. Miss West adds, "makes houses look taller or longer and lower. You simply reroof a tall, awkward-looking house with a deep, dark color and it appears lower. The opposite is true of a small house that seems to be built too close to the ground. Light-color roofing gives it a lift, making it seem taller and larger."

Oil Brings Out Beauty of Pine

If you like the beauty of natural pine woodwork, finish it with an oil and wax treatment used by many furniture craftsmen.

The method, using only refined linseed oil and lemon oil, gives the wood a satiny finish and brings out the clear pine grain without darkening it excessively. As time passes, the finish mellows into a soft, golden brown. This technique also adds natural preservations to adds natural preservations to the wood.

Here are 3 easy-to-follow steps: 1. Sand wood smooth. This may not be necessary on woodwork such as panel or louver doors, windows, and kitchen eabinets of ponderosa pine. These units are smooth sanded and ready for installation when purchased from a building material dealer.

Saturate a piece of cheese-2. Saturate a piece of cheese-cloth with linseed oil and apply liberally to the wood, covering it completely. Let the oil soak in until dry. If a deeper color is desired, apply several coats, allowing each to dry.

3. When the linseed oil is dry to the touch, apply lemon oil liberally, rubbing it in. When this is dry, rub vigorously with

Magic Party Cup Cakes Made in a Jiffy

GOOD DESSERT gives a big lift to a meager meal, and with pantry shelf supplies you can usually manage something outstanding. With a package of cake mix and sweetened condensed milk, for instance, you can turn out a batch of luscious chocolate-frosted cup cakes in little time and with little trouble.

Decorate them with blanched almonds placed like flower petals.

The chocolate frosting is made in a double boiler, by cooking the sweetened condensed milk and chocolate together until they are rich and creamy. There's no beating and it takes just ten
