TRIP TO MEXICO

Fine Description Given by Taneytown Citizens

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Ohler and Mr. and Mrs. Carel Frock arrived home from their trip to Mexico on Thursday. We left home on February 9 and took the Southern route through Mississippi, Alabama and Louisana. We saw hundreds of poor cattle standing in swamp lands with nothing to eat on account of the freezing weather. In these states we saw the most dilapidated homes of negro people living in homes without heat and no doors or windows for protection from the weather. In Eunice, Alabama we saw large rice elevators and driers. The fields were being banked for the planting of rice. We went to Baton Rouge, Louisana where we got into the first snow they had in seven years. We didn't think it bad, as it melted when it hit the ground, but there the traffic was practically at a standstill. We crossed the Mississi-pi River Bridge and talked on the phone to Mrs. Wm. Ibach. We did not go to see her on account of traffic conditions.

From Baton Rouge we went to Laredo, Texas as the port of entry into Mexico. On entering Mexico a U.S. citizen will need Proof of citizenship, tourist card and small pox vaccination certificates. If you are taking went you need a corn pertaking your car you need a car permit. Baggage is examined by Mexican customs officers and seals affixed to avoid further examination. Any U. S. currency and travelers checks can be taken into Mexico, but it is wise always to use Mexican currency in Mexico. It takes the tourist a few days to familiarize himself with the pesos and centavos, but if he learns to think in pesos he'll encounter few-er confusing situations.

A knowledge of Spanish is helpful, but not essential to a tour of Mexico, English is widely spoken. Even in small villages along the highways you encounter some one who will understand you. In all the hotels and better restaurants menus are written in Spanish on one page and on the opposite page the same in English, so it isn't to hard to make your wants known.

The tourist who doesn't choose his hotel and dining place wisely stands a chance of getting an upset stom-ach, and limits his activities while becoming acclimated to the higher All drinking water is bottled for purification.

If you stay in Mexico less than twelve full days ,you can bring back, duty free, articles not exceeding $200.00 in value. In the markets and shops are found various arts and craft articles among them colorful craft articles, among them colorful sarapes, shawls, baskets, pottery, jewelry, tooled leather, wood carvings, hand wrought gold, silver, copper and onyx.

Tips are expected for all services, but they are not judged in relation to American money. A fifteen per cent tip on meals is advisable. If you don't have the right change you do not get any money returned. All hotels have all expenseseeing tours for their guests. Our hotel had fourteen different tours to select from. These tours include car, accident insurance, gondola ride, bullfight and dinner tickets and an English speaking guide. Our guide was a graduate of the Mexican University and spoke six languages.

Mexico, the southern most country of North America, is a land of sharp contrast. High mountains with broad plateaus, unexplored jungle land and desert land lies in both the temperate and torrid zone. Because of varying altitude it is tropical and cold. There are, literally, three Mexicans-the Indian, who wants to retain his ancient way of living, the Spanish who wants to retain the life, culture of the Moore or Spanish regime: the very modern Mexican who is disgusted with both the Indian and the Spanish and is very proud of their modern and beautiful buildings and Universities. Nowadays Mexico City it considered as being the most foremost city in the world in the buildings both architecture and design.

After leaving Laredo, Texas we ossed the International Bridge over the Rio Grande River into Nuevo, Laredo, Mexico. From Nuevo Laredo Monterrey the country is farmed, but in a very primitive way. Oxen were pulling wooden plows and corn was being planted. From Monterry to Mexico City the land is barren and desert wasteland. Here we saw the Mexican Indian living in adobe huts with no roofs, chickens, pigs, goats, burros live in the same huts with the Indian. Dirt and soiled clothing was the existence of the people. The men

To the C&P Telephone Company,
Westminster, Md.
The undersigned subscribers of the Fieldstone 6 exchange hereby petition for the privilege of calling Taneytown, Md., and Union Bridge, Md.,
free of toll charges.
When there was a rate increase in 1954 we received the additional right to call Westminster free of charge. Now however, we are faced with another rate increase with no additional privileges. All of the other Carroll County local central offices have received 2 additional toll free services with the recent rate increase except Fieldstone 6, and we do not think this

Radio Station WTTR is carrying spot announcements telling of this petition as a Public Service.

Copies of the petition are in the following stores to facilitate people getting to it: Bemiller's Grocery, Silver Run; Bowman's Grocery, Union ver Run; Bowman's Grocery, Union Mills; Kindig's Grocery, Union Mills; (Ralph Eyler carries a copy on his milk route); Luther Foglesong car-ries his on his feed route.)

House-to-house calling and telephoning also is being done in creating interest and support to the objection to this inequity.

Newspapers are publishing the above explanation in regards to the petitioning.

In an average of the new rates, Westminster will pay 46c more than Taneytown but will get five new calling areas against two new ones for many town. An example: The Carling area and approved, followed with prayer by Mrs. Charles Held.

When I was suddenly left a Million

I was making pies in the Parsonage kitchen when suddenly the bell rang. The day was a November bleak and rainy one and I was not expecting any caller but, of course anything can happen in a Parsonage. I quickly washed my hands and walked hurriedly to the front door. Through the window, I could see a gentleman standing there on the porch and when I opened the door, I was startled to gaze upon a face which greatly resembled another on a certain Television program.

"Mrs. Love?" the voice asked interrogatively.
"Yes, Sir!" my voice replied weak-

"May I come in?" Stepping into the hall this stranger continued, "My name is Michael Anthony. I would like to talk to you".

No adjective could describe my feelings as I led this gentleman into the living room of the charming old Parsonage. I kept looking in the eyes of this gentleman for fear it would be all a 'faded out' picture. I realized I was staring and suddenly found my voice, "You really are the same Mr.

"WHERE THERE'S A WILL THERES A WAY".

Because of the "rather unique state of mutual confidence and even liking and respect" that exists between the Chief Executive and his Vice President, said President Eisenhower to his press conference, "... I think Mr. Nixon knows exactly what he should do in the event of a Presidential disability of the kind we are talking about".

The clear inference that this understanding-"the will", it is being called in Washington-is nobody's business outside of trusted cabinet circles, raised Congressional hackles on both ides of the aisle. As a result, the President was to be asked to share his secret with the people who, in 1952 and again in 1956, voted him into the job that now appears to be too much for him.

Oddly enough, the President revealed the existence of this private understanding just at the time legis- | ticle points out that sales of foreignlators were considering a delegation made cars, most of which are small to tell the Chief Executive that voluntary withdrawal would assure his along in this country. Before assignment to the White House, agents must attend a specialized school where they analyze scores of assassinations, domestic and foreign, recent and ancient. They observe mental patients, become expert marksmen, learn judo, gun-wrestling techniques and defense against all types of attack.

The Service has the world's largest file on paranoics. Every threatening or abusive letter to the President is analyzed, classified and cross-indexed. In the first three and a quarter years of the Eisenhower administration Secret Service agents investigated 4804 cases involving threats. Within recent months 147 persons have been arrested as dangerous to the President.

Every move of a Presidential trip is planned minutely in advance. Weeks before Eisenhower went to Geneva last summer, Secret Service men prepared a survey complete with maps, diagrams, blueprints, floor plans. They picked the villa where Eisenhower would stay, investigated every servant, selected couriers and telephone technicians, even arranged a safe garbage pickup.

A President's personal habits create unique protection problems. When Eisenhower plays golf, armed Secret Service men are close by dressed as golfers. One man's golf bag conceals a short-wave radio so that he can talk with headquarters or with agents cruising in a car patrol. During the 55 years of the Secret Service's spotless record, assassins in other lands have killed nine kings, queens and crown princes, 11 presidents, 16 prime ministers and many other leaders, including Mahatma

There is an eminous tendency in American education to teach more and more students less and less of the great disciplines which form an educated man."

> Generally speaking, capital investment by industry is substantially down from the very high levels of last year. A major exception to this rule is the electric utility industry. Gene Smith writes in the New York Times that the utilities will spend $5,300,000,000 this year for expansion -a new record. They will add 16,-400,000 kilowatts to their capacity, also a new record.

> A Ford Motor Co. executive reports that wages and salaries paid by U. S. corporations have increased 75 per cent in the last 10 years, while profits as a per cent of sales have declined 35 per cent. This, he says, demonstrates that wages and not profits are a major inflationary influence.

Reports from Washington indicate that if business doesn't show an upturn by mid-year there is a distinct possibility of the Administration and Congress approving a reduction in the individual income tax. Opinions differ as to how this should be done. Some want a straight percentage cut; others favor increasing exemptions.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

A reader of THE ALEXANDER CITY (La.) OUTLOOK has written a letter to Editor J. C. Henderson which we would like to quote. The writer, a Mr. Hoyt Carlisle, was inspired to take pen in hand by a recent piece from this typewriter entitled "Time to Start Selling", quoting President Eisenhower's prediction of "a pickup in job opportunities" and commenting on our own on the need of business people "to take the strain off the seat of their pants (and) put it on shoe leather". Writes Mr. Carlisle:

"I think you hit the right note when you advise everybody to quit trying to talk a recession into a depression. Experiments have proven that a perfectly well man feeling his oats or bourbon can be told he is looking bad, then told he is looking sick by two or three friends, and he will go to bed and call both the doctor and the preacher. "The same thing can happen to our economy. You hear or read someone who says that business is getting bad or that unemployment is rising, and you will decide to postpone buying that new car or wait until later about building a new house. You plan to lay off some of your help until things pick-up—cancel order for that new suit because you have erased plans for a vacation trip. Your friends will note your action and follow suit. When this is repeated ad infinitum you will find yourself in a depression you have talked yourself into.

"News is something different, something unusual. Prosperity, rising prices and full employment have been with us for years, so now is not news. But falling prices and unemployment is new, therefor news. The news agencies exaggerate this out of all proportion". proportion"

Mr. Carlisle goes on to mention various factors such as a population that expands at the rate of three million a year, accelerated defense spending, the national highway program that may be expected to give the economy a shot in the arm and con-

"The horse runs his race, then rests before the next trial. The good earth in the spring is plowed, seeded and fertilized. Then comes the fall harvest, followed by winter, when the earth lies dormant and rests, gathering its strength for the next fruited sea-

"Our economy has made tremendous strides in the last few years. It now pauses to consolidate its position, and will, with out a doubt in due time, continue its broad advance"

It will, (if we may be permitted to add a line to the gentleman's summation) provided the inspiration and the perspiration which put this great advance in motion get back on the job.

> Sincerely, BOB TAYLOR.

Steps That Could Save A Dependency Exemption

This is one of a series of four articles on federal income taxes. The articles are based on information provided by the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Maryland Association of Certified Public Accountants:

As you check over the list of people you intend to claim as dependents on your 1957 tax return, keep this phrase in mind: more than one-half support.

This is the test of dependency. Unless the money you have contributed during the year is enough to make up more than one-half of a dependent's living costs, you might as well cross that person off your list. He or she will not qualify as a dependent for tax purposes—and you will lose a valuable $600 This is the test of dependency

Taxpayers with children who work part-time or during the summer should watch this angle closely It's not how much your child earns because each one reduces your taxable income by $600 Remember that to qualify for an exemption a dependent must. It's not how much your child earns during the year—it's how much he contributes to his own support. The law specifically states that a parent may claim an exemption for a child. stepchild or adopted child under 19 years of age no matter how much years of age, no matter how much the earned, provided the child depended on the parent for more than one-half of his support.

Why guess? Have your soil sampled and tested free by A.A.C. Soil Service.

How much fertilizer will your crop need?

You can't expect to get a high yield on next year's crop unless there is enough plant food available in your soil. But guessing how much fertilizer your soil needs to grow that big crop is risky business. You can eliminate this risk by taking advantage of the free A.A.C. Soil Service.

Guided by the size and topography of your field, an A.A.C. fieldman will take an adequate number of borings for a good soil sample. He'll record a complete and accurate crop history of the field, too. Then the carefully marked sample will be mailed to the nearest A.A.C. laboratory where trained chemists will analyze it to find out how much available plant food it contains. Tests will also be run to determine soil pH. Results and field history will then be studied carefully by A.A.C. agronomists familiar with farm practices in your area.

In a few weeks you'll receive a complete report of the fertility level of the field, with sound, practical advice on how and when to fertilize and lime to grow a better crop. Recommendations will be made for your particular crop and soil. This report can take the guess out of buying fertilizer.

Mr. Anthony as this could never happen to me!" The check was in my hands and there it was just like on Television—a check for a Million Dollars made out in my full name Irene deLeon Love. That check with no strings attached to it whatsoever!

"Oh, Mr. Anthony, I just cannot believe it is true— that this should happen to me. How the Donor ever thought of me. I know you immediately walk away on T. V. when you present the check, but I do so want you to remain a few minutes so as you can tell the Donor—first of all to thank him from the very bottom of my heart and then to tell him the few things that I desire to do with some of the money immediately!" Although Mr. Anthony had risen, he now was seated again. I said, "A few years ago there was a Movie called, "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town" and in the Baltimore News Post there was a contest asking the Readers what they would do if suddenly they were left with a MILLION DOLLARS and I won first prize. I still have that write up in one of my Scrap books!" Mr. An-thony smiled and I still kept my gaze fastened upon his face.

and women alike wear shawls. The houses in the desert were built of four walls with no roof. We could see no furnishings and assumed that they sleep on the ground. Our one thought was how they existed on such barren land. The land was covered with the barrel, Spanish bayonet, migger head mescal, sotol, pin cushion, fish hook, ocotillo and prickly per cacti. These are singed of their thorns and fed to cattle. The Indians find some use for all the cacti. As we rode by the highway we passed the Indians on their way to the next village with his little burro, that are used as beast of burden, piled high and wide with the efforts of his labor usually craft in company usually cacti in some form, wool, wood and bark, till we thought surely his legs must double under him. The burro seems a most willing beast, some times we would see two grown people riding on one tiny burro with their feet almost touching the ground. Whole families waited along the road for the dilapidated busses that would take them to the next village or city. They would have with them, papayas, pumpkins, a turkey, chickens with their feet tied together. These were place on top of the bus and sold in the cities for a few pesos, which was used to buy tequila, the Mexican drink made from cacti that makes a Mexican bull roar we were

As we neared San Luis Potosi the land was more fertile and we saw large herds of milk goat numbering from 100 to 150. The city of San Lusi Potosi seemed to us to be the oldest and dirtiest city we visited. The houses were of adobe, facing narrow streets with no doors or windows, dirt and dust was everywhere. The people looked as though they never had a bath or clean cloths. It resembled our worst slums in American cities. Here we saw the burro milkman with two and three gallon cans with a dipper fastened on the side of his burro delivering milk in the streets.

From Laredo to Mexico City we traveled highway 15 through the cities of Monterrey, Saltillo, Matehuala, San Luis Potosi, Queretaro and Morelia into Mexico city. From Queretaro into Mexico City we saw people by the dozen washing their clothes in the canal or any stream of water and hammering them with stones, then they were put on nearby bushes to dry, it was sort of a washbushes to dry, it was sort of a wash-

day picnic..

The people walked along the road

The people walked along the road with large baskets, buckets or container with produce, greens, peppers or tomatoes in them. These were carried on the top of their heads and their hands were placed in front of them as they walked.

As you enter Mexico City the highway becomes higher and higher. The city is located in the Valley of Mexico or as it is known an island. It is surrounded by mountains on all sides except the north. The elevation ranges from 3000 to 8000 feet. Some of the mountains are volcanic. To the south can be seen the peaks of Popacatepetl (17,888 feet high) and Ixtaccihuatl (17,343 feet high). On Sunday morning we took our first tour of the sits With the south can be seen the peaks of the south can be seen the peaks of Popacatepetl (17,343 feet high).

On Sunday morning we took our first tour of the city. We went to the Palace of Fine Arts with its Tifthe Palace of Fine Arts with its Tiffany curtain, the famous colored glass curtain depicting the two volcanoes named above. It was made by Tiffany in U. S. at a cost of $47,000.00 in U. S. money. The Palace of Fine Arts contains the national theatre, auditorium and art galleries. From here we went to Xachimilco, the Floating Flower Gardens, the Venice of Mexico, the place where flowers grow, fourteen miles south of the city, is an area cut by numerous waterways, all that remains of a waterways, all that remains of a once extensive lake. The famous 'floating island' originally were rafts woven of twigs and reeds and anchored in the lake by the Aztecs who then covered them with earth and vegetation. Eventually these took root and now seen as natural island where the flowers are grown. The flower deck-now seen as natural island where the flowers are grown. The flower decked boats carry visitors around the waterways. Hundreds of boats are in the canal. The flower venders (girls who make bouquets and corsages) selling to the tourist in the gondolas as they glide along in their narrow hallowed out wood canoes make it all very festive.

Sunday is the festive day in Mexico. After going to church, the Mexican sports are all held on Sunday. Every day is fiesta day somewhere in Mexico, for every village and town celebrates its saints day with religious ceremonies and such gay entertainment as dancing, bull fights, fairs, parades and fire works. All national holidays are celebrated throughout the Republic. We were told that when the earthquake destroyed part of the city a fiesta was held because no one was killed.

On Sunday afternoon everyone goes to the bullfight, if he has no girl friend he takes grandma along as it is the national sport as baseball is to the U.S. citizen.

Mexico City's bull ring or Plaza Monumental is the world's largest Mexico City's bull ring or Plaza Monumental is the world's largest bull ring, it will accommodate 50.000 persons. The bull fight is said to be the only event in Mexico that begins on time. The Mexican say that bull-fighting is not a sport, that it is an art, having its roots back in history. It is part of the breath of life for the Latins and it is hard for people who do not understand the Latin temperament, what it is that can get an entire nation passionately aroused as they do over a bull fight.

can get an entire nation passionately aroused as they do over a bull fight. On Monday we took our second tour. This included the buildings of the city. The first was the Cathedral, the largest church in Mexico, it was begun in 1573 and finished in 1667. The exterior is richly ornamented, it contains marble altars, statuary wood carvings, silver railing, priceless tapestry and painting. There are two large murals, one in the choir and one in the chapel. The sacrarium, adjoining the Cathedral contains two naves that cross, with a dome in the center. Here we saw all manner of hu-center. Here we saw all manner of hu-manity worshiping.

Next we went to the National Palace covering an entire city block, called the Zocalo, this occupies the site of Moctezumas Palace and houses the offi of the President and other government officers. In the Zocalo are the National School of Fine Arts,

At the end of this drive we entered Chapultepec Park, a forest of cypress trees several centuries old. Maximillians castle is in this park and later was used by Mexican presidents, it is was used by Mexican presidents, it is now a national museum of history. The National Palace covers an area of four city blocks. There are 14 patios and the garden. This was the palace of Moctezuma and the empress Carlota. The building contained the offices of the president, the treasury, the customs, the post office and librate the control of the president of their lives. We passed fields of cacti known as maguey. This is a very productive cacti as quite a number of things are made of the fibers as well as food and the president of their lives. the customs, the post office and library. High above the entrance hangs the famous bell of Mexican Independence, Sept. 16, 1910. They were started in 1929; when Diego Rivera was call-ed to paint the murals in Rockefellow Center in N. Y. They were not finish-ed until 1951. These murals depicts the life and history of the country of present time. We drove through the residential part of the city with its beautiful modern homes and boulevards. Then our guide took us into an alley in the city to the oldest glass factory in Mexico. The poor children of the city gather old bottles or any kind of glass and bring it here where it is broken, smelted and handblown in solid blue, green, amber and amethyst glasses and ornaments. The same kilms are in use that were there during the early history of Mexico.

Next we went to a hand-tooled leather factory where the pocket-books, luggage, belts and other beautiful products were made by hand.

Then our guide took us on a shopping tour as visitors are most interested in the native industries which produce wrought silver, hand-hammered silver, its hand-blown glass, tile and not traverse should week. tile and pottery, sarapes, hand wov-en blankets, baskets, needlework and jewelry.

You can build your house with sticks. (But the winds of adversity might blow it down.)

The best way to build your house is with a solid foundation of bricks. (And U. S. Savings Bonds are the best savings bricks you can buy.)

Bonds are solid as a rock-guaranteed by your Government. They're loss-proof, fire-proof, theft-proof-the Treasury will replace them without charge in case of mishap. And the principal invested in Bonds is safenot subject to market fluctuations.

Best of all, Savings Bonds now pay you higher interest — faster! Every Series E Bond purchased since February 1, 1957, pays you a safe and sure 31/4% interest when held to maturity. It pays higher interest, too, in the earlier years, and matures in only 8 years and 11 months.

Church's Voice

Lesson for March 9, 1958

DOES society have a conscience? We all know what we mean by a "conscienceless" individual. He is a man who does whatever occurs to him, whatever he feels like doing. He can murder his own mother and regret only that he was caught. A man without a conscience does not see things as right and wrong, only as practical and impractical, what he can get by with and what he can't. Nobody loves a conscienceless man.

Nobody wants to Dr. Foreman live with him, because he is dangerous, a human rattlesnake.

If society has no conscience, then society,—social groups such as whole communities or even nations,-can become one vast rattlesnake. But where can society get a conscience? More important: Where can society get a conscience that is right? A faulty compass can lose a man. A faulty conscience can ruin him; and so it is with society.

How God's Voice Is Heard

"The voice of conscience is the voice of God." it is sometimes said. This is true only in so far as conscience is in line with the Word of God. So if society is to have a conscience, it can only come from God's Word. But who will speak the Word to society? The mere existence of the Bible will not do it. The Bible no more teaches itself than books of mathematics do. The Church of God is expected to bring the Word of God to society; to insist that it be heard, to explain it, interpret it, to confront men with God's ideals and God's demands.

Conscience is sharpest,—that is to say, it hurts most, when there is resistance to it. In fact, the more violent the resistance, the more the stabs of conscience are hurting.

What Stifles the Voice?

As with individuals, so with the community. The voice of conscience can be stifled and smothered and finally silenced. One way to do it is the simple way: just refuse to listen. Another way is to borrow a trick from children who don't want to hear their mother asking for help in the kitchen: turn the radio higher, make such a racket nobody can be heard through it. The world around us, the ordinary ungodly world, is like an immense radio shouting to us in tones quite unlike the Word of God. If a person, or a community, listens to the world's voices more than to the "still small voice" of God, they will presently be unable to hear God at all. Put it as a plain question: Who is to tell us what is right and what is wrong? If we listen to what "everybody" says, if we count noses and see what the majority says, if we take our ideas from the world, we shall end by being no different from the world. Like the church of Sardis, we may have the name of being alive, but we shall be dead.

Words and Deeds

The church itself, let it be repeated, ought to be the world's conscience; not the other way around. Every congregation ought to be a conscience in that community. It should never surrender that right and duty. But the church must be more than a voice. Its deeds must match its words. The church calls for unity among man; but how can it do this with a straight face if itself is all torn with factions and fights? The church calls for "economic justice"; but how can it be taken seriously if it does not pay its own employees a decent wage? The church speaks for Christian education; but not convincingly when it will not support its own church colleges. The church speaks for temperance; but with what a feeble voice, when its own officers set an example of drinking, and its members mostly vote wet? What church people do speaks even louder than what "the church" preaches.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

The first National Library Week will be March 16-22, 1958. The theme will be "Wake Up and Read". Reading will be promoted on nation-wide scale to expand reading in America to all age levels and income groups. Your County librarian at Westminster could get some good material if your 4-H or Homemakers or church groups want to plan a week of read-ing. Perhaps a series of book reports in Christian Endeavor meetings could in Christian Endeavor meetings could be the reason for everyone reading a book between 16-22 of March. She could give you book lists to make choices. Of course you would do a good service if you had some group visits to the library. Many people never go to one. Your book mobile could come to Keysville or Detour that week if there is one.

LET'S STOP MALIGNING AMERICAN YOUTH

Lurid publicity about a tiny minority of teenage delinquents has blinded us to the solid achievements and ideals of the typical youngsters which constitute 95 per cent of American youth today.

Writing in their defense, in the August Reader's Digest, Margaret Culkin Banning says this vast majority of teen-agers "have never been before the police over for such a minimum to the police over the police before the police, even for such a min-or offense as breaking a window". Surveys have shown that teen-agers place a high value on education. Their willingness to work at parttime and summer jobs refutes any accusation of decadence; indeed their earnings and allowances give them an annual purchasing power of four billion dollars.

More adolescents than ever before participate in church activities. Millions of them join the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, the Boys' Club and similar youth organizations.

Boy Scouts, the Boys' Club and similar youth organizations. Everywhere they are taking prominent parts in community betterment.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture lists over two million farm boys and girls who are bringing credit and profit to themselves as members of the 4-H Clubs. In the cities some 40,000 belong to Junior Achievement, which trains teen-age groups in business methods and problems by teaching them to organize and operate small companies of their own. small companies of their own.

Alarming statistics about delinquency are often misleading. Police Commissioner Kennedy of New York City points out that boys are more closely watched by the police than formerly; hence minor offenses and oven warnings get on the record The even warnings get on the record. The even warnings get on the record. The object is to nip in the bud any tendency to delinquency. But the statistics tend to exaggerate the facts.

A small minority of teen-agers has smeared the reputation of youth. The activities of the 95-per cent majority "provide heartening evidence of character and capacity", Mrs. Banning concludes. ning concludes.
