SCHOOL TRIP

Third Grade Journeys to Washington

On Thursday, May 29, Mrs. Koutz's Class went to Mount Vernon and Washington. Six mothers went with us, they are as follows: Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Rinehart, Mrs. Laird, Mrs. Bollinger, Mrs. Fleagle and Mrs. Smith.

It was a thrill for many of us to see Washington, because we had never seen it before. We saw the Washington Monument. We also saw the Jefferson Memorial. It had a big statue of Jefferson inside it.

When we arrived at Mount Vernon the sun was shining brightly. First, we went to the flower garden and the greenhouse. The flowers in the garden were very pretty. Next, we followed the path to the mansion. On each side of the mansion there was a breezeway. We entered the living room first. It had a fireplace on one side, on the other side were some chairs and a cupboard. There was also a parlor. It was a small organ. Then we went upstairs. There were many bedrooms upstairs. In one room there was a baby cradle. I thought it was cute. We saw George Washington's bedroom. All the beds were four poster beds. We went downstairs and left the mansion. We then went to the coachhouse, where we saw a beautiful coach. We walked down the hill to the tomb. There a man told us about George and his wife Martha being buried there. There was a big vault in back of the tomb. In it other members of the Washington family were buried. Then we walked down some steps to the wharf. At the wharf we saw George's boat. Then we went to a souvenir store and bought souvenirs.

Then we boarded the bus and left. Before too long we arrived at Hains Park, where we ate our lunch, plus some cottonwood seeds, which the wind blew on our lunches. The park where we stopped was near an airport, and we saw some airplanes land and take off.

Then we headed for the Capitol. On the way we saw the Mayflower II. We were going to the Capitol to pay our respects to two dead servicemen who had served in World War II and the Korean War. These two men are unknown. They were lying in flag-draped caskets, guarded by five men. They represented the army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard. They were standing at attention. The two men are going to be buried on Memorial Day, in the Arlington National cemetery.

Then we left the Capitol, boarded the bus and headed for the Zoo. As we walked down the road we saw some big black buffaloes, some cute little monkeys, llamas, and some antelopes. We went in a building, there we saw some pygmy hippopotamuses. We also went in a snake house. There we saw a very large snake. Some of us enjoyed the snakes, but others wouldn't even look at them. We saw about Smoky and feel he is our friend. Some of us bought refreshments and souvenirs at a store at the Zoo. Then we got on the bus and started for home. On the way home we stopped at Martin's Dairy for more refreshments.

We enjoyed our trip very much. We arrived home at about 7:30, tired but well pleased with our trip.

SCHOLARSHIP FUND REPORTS PROGRESS

Qualified Students Will Be Given Assistance

Carroll County now has one teacher that it could have lost because of the trainee's lack of funds to complete the last six months of her training. This fact was reviewed at a meeting of the Carroll County Scholarship Fund, Inc., held at Westminster High School Thursday. The meeting included directors of the county-wide group and was in charge of Mrs. William B. Culwell, president.

Enthusiasm was great at the meeting when further reports indicated that two other potential teachers had been awarded scholarships last year and indications were that they would again be helped this year. At present the association funds will allow only two new scholarships to be awarded for the coming year. There have been however, nine applications for scholarships.

To date many organizations in the county have contributed over $3000 which has been used by the scholarship fund in its first year in an effort to aid qualified candidates attain otherwise impossible schooling. This automatically provides the school system of Carroll County with certificated teachers.

Each applicant for the maximum scholarship of $325 per year is carefully screened by a special committee appointed for this work. First and foremost must be an earnest desire to teach, backed by a good scholastic record and a definite need for aid. The need for aid in every case is verified, occasionally by ministers, and in most cases by vocational guidance teachers and school principals.

Faced with the need for additional funds without delay, the board members selected a slogan to be directed to the people of Carroll County. The statement chosen was "We can help four, can you help us to aid that many more?"

It was the unanimous opinion of the board that Carroll County would be the loser if additional funds are not obtained to send these well-qualified candidates to teacher training schools.

Elwood Baumgardner, association treasurer, Taneytown, stated that he will acknowledge receipt of all contributions sent to him for the Scholarship Fund from associations and individuals eager to help. Any contributor who sends $5 or more is accepted as an association member.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's greatest wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

What a thrill it was to see over 700 policemen at the early church service in the Mt. Vernon Methodist Church last Sunday morning! Sitting on one of the green benches in the park late one afternoon last week was surprised to have beside me a retired policeman who admired "Sugar" and then started to talk to Your Observer and I did learn much from her.

Thinking about nice people. Was walking along Lexington Street when I heard a loud whistle (and I knew it was not one of those wolf types) and suddenly as though she was dropped from the sky a little elderly lady about 4 feet tall was keeping step beside me with a flock of pigeons following and I knew what that whistle meant right then for she told me she always calls the pigeons with that whistle and then feeds them as she walks along! Nice? Of course everyone stopped and took a big look! And I learned much from her right there as she talked to me.

I always feel so safe, folks, walking around the big town regardless of the hour as there are so many policemen on duty and somehow, I find myself saying, "Thank God for the protection for me and you and you and you!" To be a policeman is one of the most honorable positions in life no matter if by foot or by car! Eh?

A boy about sixteen was wheeling one of those carts beside me from the Acme store and as we walked along in the wide alley where there are a few nice houses which astonished me, I said, "What nice houses to be here in this alley. I don't think I would want to live in one of them." His quick reply to me was, "Well, what does it matter as long as it is a roof over one's head?" And I learned much from him! See what

"GRASS ROOTS OPINIONS"

NORFOLK, VA., TIMES-ADVOCATE: "Using the recession as an excuse, the Big Spenders in Washington are proposing many deficit-creating programs which could mean ruinous inflation. Alarmed at the frightening prospect, Senator Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat, has warned his colleagues that: 'Those who would resort to tremendous deficit spending as a temporary expedient in recession, disregard the long-run evil they do in terms of the value of our money, cost of living, welfare of fixed income people, and our fiscal soundness which involves our democratic institutions and our form of government.'"

STAR CITY, ARK., LINCOLN LEDGER: "Over 40,000,000 Americans under 40 have received no polio vaccine. A good many more have received only one shot, or two, instead of three, the complete series. Unless millions of Americans shake off their apathy in regard to this matter and receive vaccine this spring, many will have polio this summer who do not need to. Why shouldn't we prevent this tragedy? Have you had your shots? Do it NOW, before the polio season starts."

CORVALLIS, ORE., GAZETTE-TIMES: "... The International Wood workers—voted to extend their present contract with lumber and plywood employers in the Northwest. The IWA membership in the Northwest is about 45,000 men and it would have been a calamity for these workers to have to go on strike while the business is so hard-pressed anyway. It shows that the leadership in this union—which was once regarded as one of the most radical wings of organized labor—has either grown up or recognized the futility of demanding more money at this particular time."

DORCHESTER, MASS., BOSTON COURIER: "A bill (H.R. 3) to protect the sovereignty and power of the states against encroachment by the Federal government has been introduced by Rep. Howard W. Smith, of Virginia."

"Noting the multitude of subjects with which Congress is now dealing, it is with reason and grave concern that Rep. Smith warns it is inevitably merely a question of time before the states will be deprived of practically all power and sovereignty in enactment and enforcement of laws for the protection of the health and welfare of their citizens."

EL DORADO, KANSAS, TIMES: "It's passing strange," remarked El Dorado's old home paper not long ago, 'how many goofs in every town can come up instantly with a proper plan to get the government out of its fix—but have no ideas whatever as to how to get their own country club on a paying basis.'"

BARRE, MASS., GAZETTE: "What to us appears to be the summit in the stature of man was achieved in Herbert Hoover's newest book, The Ordeal of Woodrow Wilson, just published by McGraw-Hill. It presents with almost complete objectivity the heart-breaking struggle of Woodrow Wilson to give the world a good and just peace. It goes much further and now gives the world the detailed history of that high-minded endeavor from the brilliant mind and facile pen of the man who worked directly with the World War I president during that tragic era."

"Herbert Hoover has lived long enough to have seen both ends of the rainbow, with dim and grim years in between. In his newest and what will probably be his greatest written work, one would be callous indeed not to detect a deep and abiding sympathy for another great president who failed to find the pot of gold in his idealistic battle through life". HOUSTON, TEXAS, THE NEGRO LABOR NEWS: "The record shows that the 'Right-To-Work' law does not impede unions in—legitimate operations. It does not prevent a worker from joining a union, but prevents the union from forcing membership against the will of the worker, against his conscience, or firing him... the 'Right-To-Work' law protects the union member in his necessary freedom."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

About the time the House was passing a bill to extend unemployment compensation, and the President was saying (again) that the recession is past its worst point, the National Sales Convention (also in Washington) was being told off by Charles Brower, president of BBDO and a dotted-line in man himself. He said he was "skeptical" about a depression in which prices keep going up, and in which people have money but just won't let loose of it. In fact, he questioned whether the present doldrums are economic at all:

"I think people are just bored with us—with you and me—with the things we sell, and the way we sell them."

"For this, in America, is the great era of the goof-off, the age of the half-done job. The land from coast to coast is populated with laundymen who won't iron shirts, with waiters who won't serve, with carpenters who will come around some day, with executives whose mind is on the golf course, with teachers who demand a single salary schedule so that achievement can not be rewarded, nor poor work punished, with students who take cinch courses because the hard ones make them think. And the salesman who won't sell is only a part of this overall mess."

"I think—and I hope to God it's true, that our people are becoming sick of this goofing off. Maybe we are gradually beginning to realize that history is repeating itself. The Russians are doing a wonderful job as the Barbarians in our modern historical drama. But we are outdoing them in our superlative imitation of Rome. We may lack a few of the refinements of Rome's final decadence, but we do have the 2-hour lunch, the three-day week and the all-day coffee break. And if you want to, you can buy for $275, a jeweled pill-box, with a built-in musical alarm that reminds you (but not too harshly) that it's time to take your tranquilizer."

In the advice department, Mr. Brower said:

"What you and I have to do—patiently, and day-by day is to teach those over whom we are given supervision, that work can be fun—that the only real reward that life offers is the thrill of achievement."

And just in case his words might be too soon forgotten: "We have got to work, or a stronger nation will put us to work."

BOB TAYLOR

The food chains plan to build 2,000 new supermarkets and to remodel 1,700 existing establishments this year. The bill will be about $635 million—over 100 million more than was spent for the same purpose in 1957.

Tide, the advertising magazine, offers three reasons why the American people aren't buying American cars at anything resembling past rates: "... they aren't ready to go into hock for an outdated status symbol; they have other things they want to spend their money on; and many of them just don't care for the product they're being offered."

The annual commencement of St. Joseph's Parochial School, Taneytown, took place on Tuesday, June 2 with the following program very creditably rendered. Entrance March; Piano, Misses Helen Gardner, Mary Shaum; Organ, Miss Josephine Elliot; Violin, Mrs. Joseph Elliot; Chorus; Flag Drill, Little Boys; Essay, Mary Shaum; May Pole Dance, Little Ones; Star Spangled Banner; Tambourine Drill, Senior Girls; Conferring of honors Rev. B. J. Lennon; Address; Class of 1908, Mary Agnes Shaum.

Surprise to a Teacher. The pupils of Room No. 1 of Taneytown High School gave their teacher, Miss Effie E. Hess a very pleasant surprise on Friday evening, May 29, 1908. When school was dismissed for the summer Miss Hess told her pupils she would have their reports ready for them by seven o'clock that evening. When the hour arrived but one came. A few minutes of eight Miss Hess said she would for the mail and with a friend stopped at Mr. Hess's store, when she saw quite a procession and said "Somebody is going to be surprised" not thinking she was the one who was to be surprised until we turned and marched to her home. She followed us and arrived almost at the same time and assured us that we were welcome. Those present were: Misses Bernice and Ethel Basehoar, Emma and Clara Bowersox, Irene Fringer, Marguerite Garner, Florence Goff, Anna Harman, Ruth Haines, Lola Slonaker, Margie Stouffer, Lillian Sell, Grace and Mary Witherow, Messrs. William Buffington, Walter Crapster, Robert Galt, Oliver Lambert, Percy and Harold Mehring, Andrew McKinney, Ellis Ohler, Marlin Reid, Verl Snider, Zeiber Stultz, Ralph Sell, Lester Witherow and Fern Weaver. Lawn Games were indulged in till 10 o'clock when we were invited to partake of refreshments.

Harney—Cards were received by the friends of Chas. W. Hess, announcing his marriage to Miss Blanche Louderbaugh, on Wednesday. She is the oldest daughter of Dr. F. B. Louderbaugh who was a former resident of this place, but is now residing at Addison, Pa.

Gracious Living

by Gloria Wright

Hand in hand with the trend toward elegant simplicity in modern table-top fashions has come a growing preference for uncluttered patterns in flatware.

Especially popular are the "stainless modern" designs that seem to provide the perfect compliment to the solid-toned china, unadorned glassware and soft colorings which keynote these pretty table settings of today. Stainless steel, being both lustrous and durable, has proved itself ideally suited to these clean-lined flatware designs, plus having the added virtue of never requiring polish.

Modern sets of quality American stainless steel flatware provide a lifetime of satisfactory service. But fine stainless today has its imitations — and to avoid disappointment, it might be well to bear these few points in mind.

There are many types of stainless steels, but American manufacturers have agreed that the higher alloy types are best for use in flatware. The U. S. customer can thus be assured the stainless pieces contain more than sufficient amounts of chromium or combinations of chromium and nickel. These assure that there will be the maximum resistance to rust, corrosion and pitting, and the flatware will have extra strength and resistance to even the harshest detergents.

Good stainless flatware should exhibit the work of fine craftsmanship even to the naked eye.

Check the narrow side edges of each piece: They should be perfectly even, and finished to a lustrous smoothness.

Another eye-test for good stainless flatware is to examine the niches between the tines of the forks. These should be smooth, well-defined and without any rough spots.

Look also at the top edge of the knife blade. It should taper out from maximum thickness at the base of the handle to a relatively thin and smooth tip.

The spoons provide another test. The bowl should show a gradual tapering to a smooth tip. Finest stainless flatware should be heaviest at the curvature toward the center. When your finger is placed somewhere under this area, the handle and bowl of the spoon should balance.

The sheen of stainless flatware should show good polishing techniques. The best American stainless is available from a very bright mirror polish to the matte-like satin finish, and in a wide variety of patterns and shapes. The choice is strictly up to the buyer.

Good stainless doesn't have to be pampered. No matter how beautiful, it will withstand the hardest home wear and tear. Cleaning and "polishing" is done all at once with soap and water, and with equal success by hand or by dishwasher method. But thorough drying afterwards is the recommended procedure, particularly in hard water areas.

MOTOR MAIDS

Stop On A Dime?
Can't Be Done!By Jeanne Smith,
Dodge Safety Consultant

NEXT TIME you hear someone brag that he can stop a car "on a dime," stop him with the facts, ma'am.

The reaction time of an alert, healthy motorist is three-fourths of a second. So a driver who is clipping along at 60 miles per hour will use up 66 feet before he even touches the brake pedal! To be more emphatic, if a car 55 feet ahead suddenly stops, he'll hit it before he hits the brakes!

The National Conference on Stopping Distances has some more interesting facts for you to pass on. After the driver traveling at 60 miles per hour does apply the brakes, it will take him 300 more feet before he can stop — providing, of course, there's nothing in his path!

And that figure is for dry pavement. On wet pavement, the stopping distance at 60 mph shoots up to 541 feet, and, on ice, it will take a monumental 1764 feet to stop the car . . . or more than one-quarter of a mile!

Stop on a dime? Even at a conservative 20 miles per hour, the average stopping distance on dry concrete is 47 feet, on gravel 70 feet, on wet pavement 78 feet, and on ice, 235 feet!

By using common sense about driving speed, and by following at a safe distance, most motorists can steer clear of accidents. They can stop in time when an emergency occurs. But they can't stop on a dime!

Police and safety officials have come up with the "one to ten" rule: on dry pavement, keep one full car length between you and the car ahead for every ten miles per hour of speed. If driving conditions are bad, better allow two, three or four car lengths.

'Do-It-Yourself' Project
Better Than 'Happy Pills'

Reach for a do-it-yourself project instead of a tranquilizing pill.

That's the advice more and more doctors are handing out today to ease the tensions of modern living. A simple home improvement project can be both relaxing and rewarding.

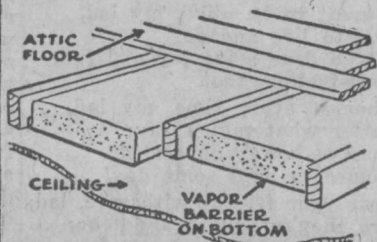

A popular do-it-yourself project is home insulation. Installing batts or blankets of mineral wool is light work which requires no special skills, uses ordinary tools, and the finished job will mean more year-around comfort plus heating and air conditioning economy.

The following diagrams show how mineral wool batts or blankets should be installed in areas accessible to the home handyman:

Walls. For greatest comfort.

wall insulation should be thick enough to fill the space between studs to its full depth. Fit blankets of insulation neatly in stud spaces (1), and cut batts to fit odd shapes. (2), Always leave flanges of vapor barrier at ends for stapling at top and bottom of wall. Keep the vapor barrier on the warm side of the wall and staple every six inches along stud. A staple gun makes this go faster. Work the batt or blanket behind small water pipes (3), leaving vapor barrier intact.

Ceilings. With vapor barrier down on warm side of ceiling, fit insulation tightly in place between joists. No stapling is necessary, but ends of insulation blankets should fit tightly together. For the most effective job, the mineral wool should be a minimum of three inches thick. Six-inch batts are recommended for air conditioned or electrically heated homes.

Be honest every time, my lad, No matter what rogues say; Dishonesty—however concealed, E'er comes to light some day!

Choose your friends with care, lad, Be sure they're square and true; What the world thinks of your friends, It also thinks of you!

FEESERSBURG
(A Voice from Carroll)

This week hundreds of seniors will be graduated from the high schools over Carroll County. This is the event for which they have worked for twelve years. It seems like a long time and it is. About one fourth of a lifetime. Yet, to the seniors it is only the beginning of their productive life. What they do from now on is what will count. We can no longer tell them that the world is waiting for them with open arms for it isn't. They must prove to the world they have something the world needs in terms of service. This year's crop of graduates should look toward the fields that are not overcrowded. Among these are nursing, teaching, engineering of all kinds, guidance counselling, and selling. Someone may point out that all these fields require more schooling. Indeed they do, and so does about everything one attempts to do these days. Even if one works at the most insignificant job someone has to teach you how to handle it. So long as a person lives there is need for new knowledge. This is perhaps the new hardest thing a new graduate must face. A high school diploma opens no magic doors. It helps, of course, but it assures the individual practically nothing unless he is able to use in practical terms what he has learned. One thing that the graduate has that so many others don't possess and that is youth and an open mind. If there is one bit of advice that I would give the graduates it would be to listen only to the optimist. It is true both pessimists and optimists have been right an equal number of times but the line of the optimist is more fun and enjoyable.

Every graduating class has been told that the world is changing and that these are serious times. Of course the world changes. Who wants it to stand still? Times are always serious for some people. But to youth it should be exciting and a challenge. There is so much to see and do that no one should feel left out. Of course, its most always left to the individual what he will do with his life. But the young graduate must avoid measuring everything in terms of dollars. Money is important but not all-important. The important thing is finding the position in life that will bring the most satisfaction to you and those associated with you. Make the world a little better for having been here.

The annual sermon to the graduating class was delivered by the Rev. Cyril J. Hoover in the Methodist church Sunday evening. The Rev. Joseph Callahan and the Rev. Robert K. Smyth assisted in the service. Mrs. Doris Albaugh played an organ, prelude and the high school chorus sang the anthem "A Song of Peace". The theme for the sermon was "Know Where You Are Going", a timely subject to the graduates as well as parents. As Mr. Hoover said, most of us started out in life not knowing in what direction we were going and if we did know, we got detoured by one thing or another. I guess most lives look like a winding country road, first in one direction and then another, one steep hill and a bit of clear, unobstructed right-of-way, and then a curve where we almost didn't make it, and finally our destination. But Mr. Hoover intimated that the graduates starting out should take the super-highways and stay on them, but not to go so fast that they miss the scenery. The address was very appropriate and delivered in a simple style that was quite effective.

Mr. Charles Halm, director of a recreational center in Baltimore was telling us last week about a young musician who organized an orchestra of students from the sixth grade and on up to the senior high school and presented them at his center. They performed so well that he was enthused about the director and couldn't stop talking about her. Finally we asked the name of this talented person. It was Miss Gretchen Reese of Union Bridge.

This is Recreation Week. Few people living in rural sections understand what recreation means in the cities. It is much more than providing a place to play games for the young or a place to dance for young boys and girls. It also provides means of contact for those in the golden years. The age of retirement poses a serious problem in the city, and the recreational center in the cities are doing something about it. They organize clubs called the Golden Age Club and all it takes to join is being 50 years or more. As Mr. Halm explained it to me it sounds like fun and it is a means of bringing people together to forget their loneliness, for that happens to be the biggest problem. Why are people lonely. Let me tell you about just one member I met at the center. She is somewhere about 70 years old. Like most women, she refuses to discuss her age. Why, its hard to say, for she looks 55. Once she led an active social life while her husband lived. Now she is all alone . . . no children or family. Financially, she has no worries. Her one problem is being alone. She solved that by joining the Golden Age Club. She is both interesting to listen to and interested in what others have to say. There are hundreds like her in Baltimore. They band together and by association with one another try to ignore that they are alone and lonely.

For a child, a legacy better than gold . . . Is to teach him early to do what he's told.

Fifty years ago Dr. Hoover warned parents not to allow their small tots to wear the new fashioned socks. He said stockings are best for the feet. Wonder what he would say now if he could see both parents and children without socks of any kind and also without too many clothes on a hot day. And they appear healthy, too. It just goes to show what appears to be a great truth in one generation is just so much humbug in the next one.

Mr. Halter of Uniontown has just opened his new barbershop. The one he used before has been turned into a workshop. One of the interesting features of the new shop is the floor. Mr. Halter made it from thousands of blocks of different wood, sanded and polished them down until it looks like a mosaic floor, only more beautiful. Another unique feature is an antique marble basin converted into a modern lavatory. The new shop is located beside the old one. That old saying about a better mouse trap and people beating a path to one's door certainly holds true in this instance, for people come from Baltimore to get their hair cut by Mr. Halter.

A man who retired recently was heard to complain, "I wake up in the morning with nothing to do and go to bed with it only half done."

John H. Hoch, Uniontown, Md. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Cronise H. Barr, pastor of the Carrollton Church of God, amid a lovely setting of multi-colored roses and white gladioli. The couple was unattended.

The bride wore a copen blue lace dress over taffeta with white accessories and a white orchid corsage, which was a gift of her daughter, Mrs. Ben C. Rowe, Augusta, Maine. Mrs. Hoch is an employee of the Cambridge Rubber Company, Taneytown, Md., and the Rev. Hoch is pastor of the Uniontown, Wakefield, Frizzellburg, and Mayberry Churches of God.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE"

I mean, folks, in talking to the other fellow?

Oh, and the church bells in the city, brought back my childhood as they ring each Sunday morning in the city and which I missed in all the years living in the country. Those bells do something to me!

Reading the Coronet on page 72, the new way to reduce "High-Energy Dried Fruit" Diet! It is the best I have ever read. I will start that one on the very first day of June and keep it up not for one "lost weight weekend" but for one month and I'll stick to it. One should not object to this one, ladies. It is inexpensive, too. Start it and stick!

How nice it is down at The Fred Astaire Dancing Studio. Passing, I walked in and talked to the assistant manager, Mr. Grant, about the studio. He invited me down to take a look for myself and be the judge of it all. That studio along with hundreds of others all over the country is owned by the one and only Fred Astaire - a chain of them, in other words, Never have I been in a more "homey" atmosphere and one can learn in such a short time. As I watched the dancers and observed closely, Mr. Grant came to me and led me to the floor and in no time there was the Tango, the Cha-cha with the great ease, You and you can do it, age by putting a song and dance in your heart! You will feel as though you have known all the dancers for many years. Mr. Valentine is the manager and a most engaging young man. There are all ages of adults, folks, so come on down and see for yourself!

What a nice little News boy comes to my apartment door each Sunday morning to bring me the paper. He stands at the corner drug store at a very early hour which is 6 o'clock and then when he sees the curtain raised and then the window he comes running over and the long walk up!

Word comes from Florida that it is so hot that so many people are heading north! There are many who do not purchase homes down there due to this fact as they cannot stand the terrific heat.

Do you ever look at the real 'show' on T. V. called, "The Verdict Is Yours" at 3:30 each afternoon? It is so interesting that I dislike missing one afternoon. And it is all real! If you are fond of clams on the half shell, you can eat them right at the stall in the Lexington Market as they are being shucked and they are only 35 cents a dozen. When you order them in any cafe or restaurant they are more than double that price.

It was nice to brouse around the town, folks, but sorry that I did not talk to many more last week. However, it was nice to talk to the few. The approach of that little town is really beautiful. Keep it up!

And this in the doctor's office, framed, hanging on the wall—"The Doctor of The Future will give no medicine . . . But will interest his patients in the care of the human frame in diet and cause prevention of disease."—Thomas A. Edison.

In that chiropractor's office which is so wonderfully equipped, he will be one of the leading men in that profession in years to come. His office is 6 West Madison Street, Dr. Calvin P. Hornstein. I have talked with many medical men about these treatments and one big surgeon told me that he has sent or suggested chiropractic to a sufferer who cannot be cured with medicine or operations. That is as it should be every time.

Visited the bank at the corner of Eutaw and Fayette Streets today to take in the delightful Rose Show right there which makes the 4th year of display for the rose grower of Maryland which is held for two days. The roses which immediately caught my eye was a lovely pink with the outer petals a much lighter shade of pink curled edges. That was called "Tallyho" and the delightful deep, deep red as an American Beauty rose was called, "Crimson Glory".

Many viewers were right there and it surely did give that bank a "Lifter-upper". Hope you did not miss that nice "Show of Roses". See you next week D. V. Have a grand week end and I will be writing about "The Arthur Murray" studio and their parties. I am,

Faithfully,

A BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Saturday afternoon, May 31st, a surprise birthday party was given by Mr. and Mrs. John S. Harner in honor of their son, Steven, who was celebrating his 6th birthday anniversary.

After playing several games, he opened his gifts which were very beautiful and useful.

Refreshments were served to the following: Shirley Ritter, Dean Trout, Bonnie Lee Bowers, Dennis and Debbie Bollinger, Gary and Donna Copenhaver, Beth Wilhide, Terrie Ann Hess, Sidney and Rhonda Naylor, Timothy and Paul Teeter, Linda Harner, Donna Yingling, Judy Clingan, Ronnonne and Kim Hall, Steven Avesay, Audrey Wilhide, Faye Hiltebrick, Steven and Brenda Harner, Mrs. Glenn Bollinger, Mrs. William Copenhaver, Mrs. Daniel Yingling, Mrs. Robert Hall, Mrs. George Naylor, Mrs. John H. If You Have An Accident

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

ACCIDENTS always seem to happen to "someone else", but the wise driver is prepared for the day when he may become that "someone".

Clear thinking in an emergency can prevent further accidents and injuries, perhaps even save lives. Remember, even the most careful driver can be involved in an accident.

Miss Smith, through no fault of her own. The following rules, suggested by the Illinois Bar Association, are good ones to know and follow:

1. Never leave the scene of an accident without stopping, no matter how slight the collision. Failure to stop can result in criminal prosecution. Pull off the road, and, if necessary, have someone warn oncoming traffic. At night, use flares, a flashlight or reflectors.

2. Give aid to the injured. Do what you can to make them comfortable. If necessary, move the injured to a safe place, but never move anyone seriously hurt. Have someone phone for a doctor or ambulance.

3. Call the police. Don't admit guilt — a later appraisal may prove the other driver equally or more to blame.

4. If another driver is involved, exchange name, address, license number and insurance information. Don't sign anything.

5. Write down names and addresses of all witnesses, accident details, weather and traffic conditions.

6. Report accident to your insurance company as soon as possible.

How to "Child-Proof" Your House

We fire-proof buildings, make vaults burglar-proof, and water-proof roofs and clothing. All that costs money, but should a fire occur, in spite of the precautions, we would still say, "Thank God, Sonny or Sis wasn't a victim." We would sooner be robbed of things which represent mere money than have a child maimed forever or lost. Isn't it time many of us used the same caution and foresight in "Child Proofing" our homes against accidents; especially since we know more accidents occur in the home than anywhere else—even the highways?

The word POISON on a bottle means nothing to children who can't read. All poisons should be stored VERY HIGH, where they are inaccessible to a child. The stairs to the basement should have the first and last steps painted white (or with luminous paint) and there should be ample light. Sharp knives and tools should be kept away from little hands. Table lighters, convenient to guests, are also handy to tots and can burn hands, touch off clothing, and burn the child and damage the home. Be sure insulation on electric wiring is not worn; a shock can kill a young child.

Making the home "accident-proof" is one way of protecting children, but there should also be other precautions. Many children like to sit or play on the floor. Beware of cold draughts from under doors.

Precaution against sickness is of primary importance, and a check-up by a doctor of chiropractic at regular intervals will result in stemming the illness before it occurs. The importance of regular postural examinations of children of school age cannot be overemphasized.

'Prefab' Kits Cut Building Costs

Families planning to build or remodel a home would be wise to investigate prefabricated building kits now on the market.

These components range from patio kits and packaged bathrooms to complete wood window and door units plus knocked-down closets and cabinets. Complete roof and wall assemblies also are available.

The value of these components to the homeowner and builder is two-fold:

1. The units come assembled or are pre-cut and can be put together quickly, saving hours of expensive labor.

2. Components such as the ponderosa pine pre-hung panel door units and ponderosa pine windows with frame and sash fitted together, are made of parts machined for each other with factory precision. They work better and fit tighter.

Most of these components can be obtained from building-material dealers.

SHORT STORY

Wrong Violets

By Linda Leigh

SHE was getting to be a nuisance, Tom Bradley told himself. He'd better be pulling out.

Violet Lovelace was attractive enough, he realized, in a plump, middle-aged way. She owned her own home and was receiving a widow's pension but that would stop as soon as she remarried.

He thought back six months to when it had first started. She visited the shop where he worked to purchase storm windows. He was sent out to install them. It was almost supper time when he finished; she insisted that he come in and eat.

She was a superb cook. Man-sized meals. Steak and baked potatoes and apple pie.

They had drifted into a courtship of sorts. Tom rarely took her anywhere. She didn't expect it. She seemed satisfied with his companionship, his appreciation of her cooking.

But lately, he had sensed that she was beginning to want more. Never coming out and saying anything about marriage but just dropping little hints. He was going to have to back out NOW while the going was good.

Later, it would be too late.

Tom was half-heartedly listening to Art Leadbetter's T.V. program while Violet fixed sandwiches and coffee in the kitchen. He heard him say that they were searching for a woman who had a hundred thousand dollar estate awaiting her.

Her face was serene, unmoved. She didn't suspect anything.

His ears perked up when he heard the words "Minter, West Virginia" for he knew Violet had once lived there. His heart pounded when he heard the name of the heiress—Violet Viers.

Violet was a rather unusual name. Surely there wouldn't be two Violets from a little town like Minter. The other details came: She would be around 45. The inheritance was from her Aunt Melissa Mann. They mentioned who she would get in touch with before the program signed off.

Violet came in with the sandwiches and coffee. Had she heard the program? Her face was serene, unmoved. She didn't suspect anything.

One hundred thousand dollars! What a difference that would make! If she were only the one. He'd have to ferret out the information slowly.

"What was your maiden name?" he asked, accepting a cup of steaming coffee. "I never did know."

"Viers," she told him.

Violet Viers. From Minter. That much he knew. There couldn't be any doubt. But her age? He didn't know that.

"How old are you, Violet?" he asked after a lengthy pause.

Her smile was coy, evasive. "A woman's age is her own secret."

"I'm fifty-two, myself," he said, adding on six years just to be safe.

"Violet's an unusual name," he mused aloud.

"Oh, I've known several Violets," she conceded. "I even have a cousin. . ."

He broke in and started giving her his spiel. Selling himself. Saying that his wages wasn't much but that they could manage. How he had come to depend on her, couldn't bear to think of a life without her. Did she think him silly for dispensing with formalities and wanting to marry tomorrow? Hadn't they wasted enough time without further shilly-shallying?

He could barely keep his mind on the wedding ceremony. Instead of Violet's plump little face, he saw dollar signs. One hundred thousand of them.

Later, they were on a weekend honeymoon and purchased a New York paper. Violet glanced at it a while, then let out a squeal.

"Violet?" he inquired lamely.

"My cousin I started to tell you about," she continued. "We were both named Violet Viers. But my family was poor as a church mouse. Her mother's side had money."

It soaked in slowly, then Tom began to sweat blood. He had the wrong Violet.

Engineer Finds Thermostat Holds Fuel Saving Key

A wintertime dilemma for many home-owners is: Shall we leave the thermostat alone at bedtime or set it back?

Set it back, says Canadian engineer Barney Kellam, of Toronto, if the house is well-insulated. Three years of tests in his own home showed Kellam that a regular night set-back of the thermostat, plus thick insulation, enabled him to heat his house for about 60 percent less than neighbors who live in similar homes with minimum or no insulation.

Kellam found that by moving the thermostat back from its normal daytime level of 72 degrees to 66 at bedtime, results were:

Fuel saving of about 33 percent when outside temperature was no lower than 30 degrees.

Saving of 15 percent with mercury outside at 10 to 20 degrees.

No saving at zero or colder.

Kellam's house is a 1½-story, brick veneer on frame with full basement. Ceilings and walls are insulated with thick blankets of mineral wool. The furnace is oil-fired, forced warm air.

His mineral wool insulation, Kellam says, accounts for about 50 percent of the fuel savings, since it helps maintain the daytime temperature longer after the thermostat is set back. The set-back itself, he reports, accounts for the balance of 10 percent in the 60 percent savings over his neighbors' fuel bills.

Make Macaroon Medleys!

Luscious desserts of gourmet origin are these crunchy flaked coconut macaroons nesting in a fruity mixture. Easy to make, too, using this recipe that is "cake and dessert" all in one, but with the added advantage of being divided. In other words, the flaky coconut macaroons are perfect as an accompaniment for ice cream... while the delicious fruit mixture may be used on cake or a hot cottage pudding. But why bother with other suggestions when the combination given here is so perfect in itself!

Macaroon Nests

3 cups Angel Flake Coconut
2/3 cup sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

2 cups (1-pound 1-ounce can) applesauce
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup sliced fresh strawberries
1 teaspoon almond extract

Combine coconut, condensed milk, and vanilla, mixing well. Drop by heaping tablespoonful on brown paper which has been placed on a baking sheet. Shape into 2-1/2-inch rings. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 17 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from paper at once.

Mix together applesauce, lemon juice, strawberries, and almond extract. Spoon about 1/4 cup filling into each serving dish, top each with a baked macaroon ring, and garnish with additional strawberries, if desired. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Devotional Reading: Joshua 23:1-4.

Into Tomorrow

Lesson for June 8, 1958

EVERY other preacher or public speaker finds it necessary to remind his audience here in America that this nation was founded in the fear of God. The religious foundations of this nation are too well known to need comment. (An interesting detailed historical survey can be found in "Foundation of American Freedom," by A. Mervyn Davies; Abingdon Press.) This can be greatly exaggerated. There is an often-quoted remark: "The pioneers of South America came over to find gold; the North American pioneers came to find God." But it is also true that great numbers of our own ancestors came over, by their own showing, to find their fortune. Still it is true that few nations have had religion inlaid with their history as our country has.

"The Hand of the Lord is Mighty"

There are some interesting parallels between the situation when Joshua was about to pass from the scene of his triumphs in Canaan, and the times in which we live. Three of them can be pointed up in phrases drawn from the Bible stories themselves. First is from Joshua 4:12: "The hand of the Lord is mighty." Neither Moses nor Joshua took personal credit for their achievements; they gave the glory to God. The rude monument of stones described in Joshua 4 was not a monument to Joshua, to Moses, nor to any of their captains; it was a commemoration of the mighty acts of God. Many books have been written on the theme of God in history. According to the prophet Amos, God is in all nations' histories; yet not all nations see this. And the trouble with Israel was, and continued to be, that they supposed that because God had once done mighty acts on their behalf, he never would cease to do so. God had started them on their way; therefore they were a religious nation, therefore he would never let them come to disaster. How wrong they were!

"If You Turn Back . . ."

Joshua's farewell address, as an aged man, to the nation whose beloved and successful leader he had been, held up some big IF's. Continued success, eventual greatness, was by no means to be theirs without question. God is not a puppet-master. He does not decide the fate of a nation and then no matter what the nation does or is, carry them right through by almighty power to the destiny of their heart's desire. God had chosen Israel; but the question Joshua puts before the people is: Will you choose God? One religious chapter in a nation's early history does not guarantee that the nation will be religious forever after. One chapter of obedience and loyalty to God does not make it certain that there will be no chapters of neglect of God, of disobedience, of darkness and defeat. One chapter of success does not make impossible any chapters of failure.

"Choose, This Day . . ."

Maybe every reader has thought about this before, but it is still more than a striking thought, it is appalling: In one generation it would be possible to undo and destroy the Christian church. That is the strategy of the various communist regimes. They do not now attack the church very often. What they do is to see that no children, no young people, if the Party can keep them from it, grow up knowing and loving the church. No generation can choose God for their children, even less for their children's children. Each generation must choose for God afresh. There is no riding to glory on our grandparents' faith. So when we ask ourselves: Is America a Christian nation? We can answer, The hand of God was mighty in times gone by. We can look around and see church spires on every horizon. Almost every family in America, the newly come, or the "Old Americans," has a legend or tradition of some ancestor or relative who was a praying saint, a pillar of the church. But that is never the point. Where are the praying saints today? When the present living pillars of the church die, are we bringing up our children to love the same God, serve the same Christ, to live by the same Spirit? If not, we are helping to de-Christianize America. (Based on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. How To Stop Accidents Before They Happen

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

WOMEN'S GROUPS can help check accidents this Spring through their support of the national Safety-Check program.

The voluntary program, conducted each May immediately preceding summer and vacation travel, gives motorists tangible proof that they need to keep their cars in safe driving condition.

Last year, one out of every five of the two-and-a-half million vehicles inspected in 1300 communities needed immediate attention. At least one of these major items was faulty: brakes, front and rear lights, steering, tires, exhaust system, glass, windshield wipers, rear view mirror and horn.

Miss Smith

The Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, which sponsors the program, hopes that in 1958 we will increase the number of free community Safety-Checks. Here are two important ways in which women's groups can support the program:

1. Find out if a community safety-check is being planned in your area. If not, contact public officials, key civic leaders, police and others to offer your help in getting one under way. Serve on community committees to get your neighbors interested in the project.

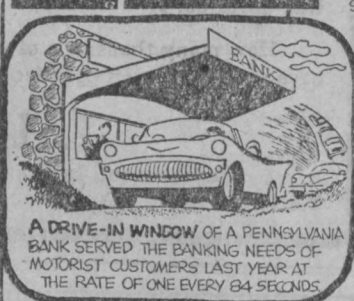

2. During the Safety-Check program, be sure that your family automobile is inspected and encourage your friends and neighbors to do likewise. More than 48 million, or two out of every three registered vehicles, are now being driven without any official inspection for safe operating condition. According to M. R. Darlington, Jr., managing director of the program, Safety-Checks can help stop accidents before they happen.

For additional information on how to participate in this important traffic action program, write: Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee, 1200 Eighteenth St., N.W., Washington 6, D. C.

Shutter Ideas Add Interest To Bedrooms

Interested in a novel, attractive, low-cost bed headboard? Here's an idea that has all those features and is in step with the current return of louver doors and shutters to smart modern interiors.

Use an ordinary stock shutter, slightly longer than the width of the bed (a double-bed mattress is 54 inches wide). Attach the shutter to the spring frame by metal braces, or by a wood framework. The shutter also can be screwed or bolted to the wall. Stock shutters generally are made of ponderosa pine, an almost-white wood that is an excellent base for any paint or stain-and-varnish finish that you need to go with the bedroom decor.

A variation of this idea is to use a shutter as a headboard for a youth bed, and a pair of shutters for the sides, to keep the youngster from falling out. Saw the side shutters in half and hinge the sections together and to the headboard so they swing back as shown in the sketch. At night, each side is moored to the bed with a hook-and-eye.

A Sweet Sandwich For Summer

An Ice Cream Macaroon Sandwich is just the dessert for summer entertaining—it's luscious, cooling and simple to make. And a refrigerator dessert is just the ticket for warm weather . . . you can make it ahead of time during the cool of the day.

Your family and friends will love this combination of sweetened whipped cream blended with chocolate or coconut macaroon crumbs. Macaroon mix, slightly toasted, forms the crust, too. Here's the recipe, as developed in the Betty Crocker kitchens:

Ice Cream Macaroon Sandwich

1 pkg. Betty Crocker Coconut or Chocolate Macaroon Mix
1/4 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup whipping cream
1/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
3 tsp. butter, melted
Combine 1/2 pkg. macaroon mix, water, and flavoring. Spread in bottom of refrigerator tray. Beat whipping cream until stiff; fold in confectioners' sugar. Top macaroon mixture with sweetened whipped cream. Place in freezer 1/2 hour.
Meanwhile, add melted butter to remaining 1/2 pkg. macaroon mix. Heat oven to 350° (moderate). Spread about 1/4" thick on baking sheet. Bake 10 minutes. When removed from oven crumble to make macaroon crumbs. Remove macaroon mixture and sweetened whipped cream from freezer tray and place in bowl; mix thoroughly. Line refrigerator tray with 1/2 of macaroon crumbs. Cover with macaroon-cream mixture. Sprinkle top with remaining crumbs. Cover with waxed paper. Freeze until firm. Serve in slices, squares, or triangles. Makes 1 quart.

Mixed Fruit Is Always In Season

Here's a Special Occasion dessert . . . a heavenly medley of colorful summery fruits served in scooped-out pineapple shells. The fruits—golden sliced peaches, ripe, red raspberries, plump boysenberries, tender white grapes and two kinds of cherries—are quick-frozen and packaged as a delightful combination called Mixed Fruit. Serve as a compote or fruit cup, as a sauce over ice cream, sherbet, puddings or, as pictured, in tropical guise, combined with fresh pineapple.

Mixed Fruit Tropical

- 1 ripe pineapple
- 1 package Birds Eye Mixed Fruit
- 1 to 2 tablespoons Cointreau

Cut pineapple in half lengthwise, leaving tuft of leaves attached to each half. Cut out the fruit with a curved grapefruit knife or other sharp knife. Cut fruit into cubes, discarding the core. Chill fruit and shells. Thaw mixed fruit as directed on package.

Just before serving, combine fruits and Cointreau, mixing gently. Spoon into the pineapple shells. Makes 6 to 8 servings, depending on size of pineapple.

I CAN'T BE BEAT ON FIRE INSURANCE BY ANYONE

Few (if any) Agents in Maryland can near compare

I have written over three million dollars worth of property without forcing anyone to buy from me. I sell to people who will actually look at facts and figures. I invite competition in fact would rather have my customers check with several agents, then I know I will get their business and they know what they are buying.

Did you ever have an Insurance selling Banker or Building & Loan Association man to tell you to check with others?

I recently checked a mans Fire Insurance, he now knows he is in a Lower Rated Company, being forced to take $50.00 Deductable on Windstorm and Hail and is Paying a Higher price for it. But he said the Banker almost rammed the policy down his throat, so what was he to do.

How many thousands of dollars a year does it cost the Taneytown area to permit such practices?
