SOMETHING SPECIAL ABOUT ABE LINCOLN

As this is the time of year we celebrate Lincoln's birthday, we will be hearing a lot about him. Let's skip the usual things, the things we've heard too often, the things that would set him apart. For the moment, let's forget the speech at Gettysburg, forget the official things, and look at the really important thing about Abraham Lincoln. He came out of nowhere special. His folks were nobody special. Abe was a smart boy, but not too smart. He told funny stories. He was kind. He'd never try to hurt you, or cheat you, or fool you. Young Abe worked at odd jobs and read law books at night. Eventually he found his way into local politics. And it was then that people began to know there was something special about Abe Lincoln.

Abe had a way of growing without changing. So it seemed perfectly natural to find him padding around the White House in his slippers, putting his feet on a chair when he had a deep one to think about. Abe Lincoln always did what most people would have done, said what they wanted said, thought what they would have thought when they stopped to think about it. He was everybody, grown a little taller. To me, that is the important thing about Lincoln.—J. Glenn Beall U. S. Senator from Md.

CONGRESS SHOULD CUT—NOT ADD

In a preliminary statement to his press conference just before hopping off to shoot quail in Georgia, President Eisenhower expressed some chagrin over the Democratic drive for greatly increased housing expenditures, noting that "right off in the very first bill the budget is to be unbalanced".

The President went on to suggest that when Congress chooses to crash through the budget barrier, each bill should "include a measure for increasing taxes". This is a good idea, but hardly original. Millions of Americans who applaud this viewpoint have been wondering for years how the Government can survive a system under which Congress may pass spending bills to its political heart's content with no concern whatever over where the money is coming from.

We think all those citizens who voted for General Eisenhower in 1952—plus a great many more—support his belated efforts at economy and suppressing inflation. But they can hardly be blamed for wondering why he didn't start in 1953 when he might have had his way; and why, instead, public spending was allowed to creep up until the national debt ceiling had to be raised twice during the same session of Congress.

There can be no doubt that the nation at large supports the President in his determination to veto "reckless spending"; but large segments of the voters would include in the reckless category many of the expenditures the President has urged in the past and continues to press for notably foreign aid.

Yet in outlining his "Crusade for 1959" Virginia's Senator Harry F. Byrd points out that major increases in expenditures since 1954 have been for domestic civilian programs. While defense, foreign aid and atomic energy, have been decreased by $700 million the civilian programs (largely subsidies) have increased from $19.1 billion a year to $22.7 billion, or 71 per cent!

Raising more taxes to support more spending—as the Secretary of the Treasury has indicated he can do—is hardly the way to protect the integrity of our money and preserve our form of government and the free enterprise system. Rather than adding to the President's program, the Congress should subtract from it. And they might start removing from the taxpayers' backs the great majority of the nearly 49 million people who will be receiving hand-outs or pay checks from the Treasury this year.—U. S. Press Association.

THE PRICE OF A STRIKE

Robert U. Brown writes in Editor & Publisher:

"I has been estimated that the deliverers' strike against New York newspapers cost about $50,000,000—about $25,000,000 in lost newspaper advertising and circulation revenue, $5,000,000 in lost wages to newspaper employees, $10,000,000 in lost retail sales, and another $10,000,000 in lost revenue to other businesses which depend upon newspapers and newspaper advertising".

Despite all this, Mr. Brown goes on, the strikers didn't gain anything. They finally accepted wage increases and fringe benefits which were virtually the same as those they had been offered and had refused weeks earlier.—Industrial News Review.

FACTS AND OPINIONS

Labor columnist Victor Riesel writes: "I have no secrets. But I have the word of Russian specialists who are constantly talking to those from behind the Bolshoi border that Comrade Prime Minister Khrushchev has run the Soviets into desperate trouble. There are eyewitness accounts of terrific disruption, new forced labor battalions and the simple breakdown of vast quantities of intricate electronic equipment without which no modern state can compete with us."

Forty-five of the 49 states now impose special sales tax on cigarettes, California, Colorado, North Carolina and Oregon being the exceptions. Rates run from two to eight cents a pack.

During the last fiscal year says the Public Health Service, injuries and illness cost the country 3.4 billion working days. Colds, flu and other respiratory infections led the list of disabilities.

Writing in The Wall Street Journal, William Henry Chamberlin observes: "A few conclusions may be drawn from the experience of the ups and downs of democracy. This system must grow from within; it cannot be artificially implanted by a few young enthusiasts drawing up an admirable paper constitution and shouting a few slogans. Democracy has no reality without widespread education and a diffused ownership of private property. The United States will be well advised to frame its foreign policy not by abstract considerations of whether a foreign country is a 'democracy' or a 'dictatorship', but by positive evidence that the country is going our way politically and recognizes bonds of common interest".

A panel of 15 nationally-known economists taking part in an economic forum under the auspices of the National Industrial Conference Board, forecasts that the gross national product (the value of all goods and services produced in this country) will be at the annual rate of between $470-480 billion by the end of this year, compared with a rate of about $450 billion as 1958 ended.

The nation's railroads in 1958 extended their perfect safety record in Pullman car operations to seven consecutive years, the Association of American Railroads reports. Last year, more than 6 million passengers traveled 4,250,000,000 miles in Pullman cars without a single fatality.

According to a House Committee, Americans are being bilked of something like $100 million a year for preparation advertised as weight reducers. They include wafers, machines appetite satiating and other devices. Their advertising, the report says: "Is an area fraught with deception and outright fraud".

Editor Campbell of Iron Age anticipates that more than 110 million tons of steel ingots will be poured this year and that the figure could reach 145 million. If so, 1959 will be the third best year in the industry's history, following 1955 and 1956. Last year's output was down to 85 million tons.

Preferred Colors For U. S. Roofs Are Green, White

Green and white were the favorite roofing colors for homes in the U. S. during 1957, a recently-completed survey shows.

The survey, conducted by the Asphalt Roofing Industry Bureau, revealed that of all asphalt shingles shipped in the first nine months of 1957, 31 percent were green or blended green. White was in second place with 26 percent of asphalt shingles shipped.

The study shows a slight decline in popularity for green, which led the color field in 1956 with 33 percent of shipments. White, on the other hand, gained from 18 percent in 1956 to 1957's 26 percent.

Regional color preferences in asphalt shingles, the survey shows, were:

Northeast—White was the favorite with 29 percent of shipments. Black was second, and green third.

Southeast—White in first place with 33 percent, followed by green, red, blue, and gray, in that order.

Southwest—White led in 1957 shipments with 37 percent. Green was second in popularity, and gray was third.

Pacific Coast—Green and gray were equally popular as the preferred asphalt shingle roofing color for 1957, but the survey showed white making substantial gains.

Home color stylists agree that the roof color is usually the most important color on the exterior of a home, since the roof generally is the largest expanse visible.

Which Industry Now Betters the Living of 3 Out of 4 Maryland Families?

... Here Are Some Surprising Facts About The Trading Stamp Industry

So far, whenever our nation's economy has needed expansion, a new industry has sprung up to help the country go ahead.

The automobile industry, employing millions, was followed closely by the development of radio and radio broadcasting to make more millions of jobs. Then came the airplane industry, air conditioning, plastics, television, frozen foods, to change our lives some more.

The trading stamp industry, while not new, belongs to this expansion group and has been one of the fastest growing of all. Today it betters the living of more than 3 out of 4 Maryland families who save trading stamps.

Obviously, an industry affecting such a large proportion of Maryland's population must bring far-reaching benefits for Maryland's economy. And it does. In 1957 the trading stamp industry bought $5,416,000 worth of products from Maryland's manufacturers. In one way or another, it provided employment for 517 Maryland people in many different industries. The people in the trading stamp industry, its merchandise and redemption stores, its warehouses and transportation and all the activity that goes on within it are integrated economically everywhere within our state. Thus it seems plain that the trading stamp industry along with the 136,500 Maryland women it serves has become, like other expansion industries, a living, vital segment of Maryland's economy. This message is published as public information by THE SPERRY AND HUTCHINSON COMPANY, originator 63 years ago of S&H Green Stamps.

Arthritis Patients Gain Relief
Through Medicines and Therapy

(Editor's Note: This is the second of three articles on the nature, causes and prevention of arthritis by Dr. William S. Clark, director of medical care of the National Foundation.)

By WILLIAM S. CLARK, M.D.
Director of Medical Care,
The National Foundation

There is no specific cure for arthritis. This is true both for osteoarthritis, a localized "wear and tear" disease, and for rheumatoid arthritis, which is accompanied by fever, weakness and inflammation of the joints.

Having said this, I must add at once that arthritis patients can be helped by a judicious combination of medical treatment and physical therapy. Even the severely disabled can be salvaged. In hundreds of cases they have been made self-sufficient in daily life, often returned to their jobs.

Dr. Clark

In the first article of this series I explained what arthritis is and described its symptoms. In this second article I will tell what can and cannot be done about it. In my third column I will discuss hopes and prospects for the future.

The first thing to remember is that disability and crippling can be prevented by prompt rehabilitative treatment. Pending discovery of a cure, it is important to encourage arthritis patients to pursue, as much as possible, the normal routine of their lives. Beyond that, pain and discomfort can be relieved, and the patient can be maintained in a physical condition favorable to the natural abeyance of his symptoms.

Though rheumatoid arthritis may last a lifetime, there are, in most cases, periods of "remission" when acute symptoms subside. In fact, one of the characteristics of this disease is that it comes and goes, gets better and worse, and nobody can predict its course. About 15 per cent of its sufferers get well after one or more initial attacks. Another 20 per cent get worse and become disabled. The rest suffer varying degrees of discomfort with periodic attacks followed by quiet intervals (called "remissions"). Children under five with juvenile arthritis may be very sick indeed. Even their internal organs may be affected. Some severe cases are fatal. But at puberty, for reasons unknown, many arthritis children get well again.

The basic treatment preferred by modern physicians is a sustained one consisting of rest, exercise and medication. All three are equally important.

Rest is particularly necessary for patients with active rheumatoid arthritis. Since the whole body is ill, the whole body needs to be rested. Absolute bed rest, however, is rarely necessary; when used, precautions should be taken for correct posture in bed. Temporary splints may be used to rest the affected joint itself, sparing it pain from the pull of movement.

When Patient Improves

Once the acute stage of the disease has passed, rest ceases to be urgent. As soon as the patient shows improvement—when fever and inflammation subside and appetite returns—he may be encouraged to go back to school or to full or part-time work.

Physical therapy and exercise are to the arthritis patient what insulin is to the diabetic. Exercises are not a cure, but they assure normal function of the afflicted parts. Even in the severest cases mild "muscle-setting" exercises are prescribed while the patient is still in bed. In general, the object of daily exercise is to maintain or increase the strength of the muscles, to keep the affected joints as flexible as possible for the widest range of motion and to prevent deformity.

Simple Exercises

Exercises should be taught and supervised by a doctor or a physical therapist. The best exercises are simple ones that the patient can do himself. As in polio, exercises and rehabilitation methods must be worked out individually to suit the particular needs of each patient. The mental attitude of both the patient and his family are key factors in recovery at this stage. Particularly important for the patient is a strong motive to make himself active and useful again.

Among drugs, aspirin is the least harmful, the most economical. Given in fairly large doses regularly each day, it relieves pain without damaging the heart. As for other medications, it cannot be said too often that there are no wonder drugs, no miracle cures. Sometimes acute symptoms simply cease for a time, even in the severest cases. Again, the mildest case may suddenly erupt with increased intensity. There is no scientific evidence that any known drug eradicates arthritis or alters its natural course.

This holds true for ACTH, cortisone and other related drugs known as the "steroids." They suppress inflammation and swelling, on occasion even to a dramatic degree. On the other hand, they are often accompanied by harmful side-effects, such as high blood pressure, diabetes, gastric ulcers, bone fracture, "moon-shaped" face and psychological disturbance.

Gold Therapy

Injections of gold compounds, like the steroids, may produce remissions of acute symptoms and enable the patient to move with greater freedom. But gold therapy, too, has its disadvantages. When not properly used, its side-effects are dangerous. Moreover, its long-term benefits are debatable.

Heat treatments are useful for relieving pain. Recommended are hot tub baths, hot moist towel packs, or the use of an electric blanket. These simple and economical measures may accomplish as much as more elaborate and costly therapy such as whirlpool baths, short wave treatment and other forms of diathermy.

Corrective Surgery

Severe cases of deformity may need corrective surgery. But other remedies, often widely advertised, are mostly ineffective. Moving to a hot, dry climate may make you "feel better" for a time, but it has no permanent merit. Vitamins, patented medicines, bee and snake venom, vaccinations, sulfur injections, liniments and diet fads are nearly always useless. Despite the claims of popular literature, you can't "eat your way in or out of arthritis."

Besides arthritis, other areas of March of Dimes activity are polio, birth defects and virus diseases.

(In his final article Dr. Clark will discuss the direction modern medical science is taking in its search for an arthritis cure.)

TARTER

Discussing problems concerning teenagers one woman asked her neighbor, "Is your son hard to get of bed in the morning?"
 "No," replied the other, "I just open the door and throw the cat out on his bed."
 The neighbor was puzzled. "How," she asked, "does that waken him?"
 Replied the other, "He sleeps with the dog."

God and Neighbor

Lesson for February 15, 1959

SUPPOSE the world had grown so wicked that you could not find any one who could be guaranteed to keep more than one of the Ten Commandments? And suppose you wanted to be married? Which commandment would you feel your future wife or husband simply must keep, regardless? If you can answer that question, you have answered another question: What, for you, is the most important commandment in the law of God? It is a very old question. Dr. Foreman, Teachers of the Law used to debate it at length. Jesus himself was once asked the question directly: "Which commandment is the first of all?"

Dr. Foreman

My God, My Neighbor, Myself

Jesus did not answer the question by quoting a single one of the "Ten Commandments." He quoted two verses from parts of the Old Testament which to us are less familiar. First from Deuteronomy 6:4-5; and second from Leviticus 19:18. (The reader might well look these up and mark them in his Bible; for if Jesus could be said to have boiled down the whole Old Testament into two sentences, these are the two.) One command unites the two: LOVE. Jesus did not, of course, mean to say anything so absurd as that a simple command can produce love. The sergeant can say, One, two, three, March! The music teacher can say, One, two, three, Play! The Hon. Mayor can say, One, two, three, Jump! But not even God says, One, two, three, Love! Human beings are not made that way, and no one knows it better than the God who made us.

What Jesus did mean is that this is what God requires of us, nothing less. We cannot fulfill his other commands till we have made an honest effort at this one first.

Jesus' selection of these two commandments shows also the mistake of taking either of them separately. There are those who do not understand what loving God means, and so try to make up for it by loving people. But how is it possible to love people, who are God's children, and at the same time ignore their heavenly Father? Also there are those who are so much impressed by the greatness of God and the littleness of man, the holiness of God and the sinful follies of man, that they give up their affection on God above. These need Saint John's reminder: How can a man love God, whom he has not seen, if he does not love human beings, whom he has seen? Then there are the numerous people who love only themselves, period; and by contrast the people who believe we should never love ourselves. (This overlooks the point—love thy neighbor AS thyself. If love of oneself is sinful, so is love of neighbor!) The true ideal is not any one of these with the others left out; but all these three—love (which is to say, concern for the good and the welfare) of God, our neighbors, ourselves.

How This Works

From the numberless applications of this central law of God, let us select one which is appropriate to Temperance Sunday. Here is a problem: What should be a Christian's attitude to alcoholic liquors? Suppose a man tries to answer that question on the basis of love to himself alone? Then his question will be simply: Is this going to do ME any harm? If the answer is No (if—) then he may proceed to drink like a fish. But suppose he tries to solve his problem on the basis of love to God alone; then he may ask, Is the alcoholic content of my blood, high or low, going to hurt GOD? Well, he thinks, of course not (though he is mistaken); so he again may proceed to drink like a fish. But suppose he opens his eyes wide enough to take in his neighbor;—his children, his family, others who have weaker will-power than himself, those who look to him as an example, those who will be affected by the clearness or fuzziness of his mind as he makes decisions . . . then he will look at his drinking habits in quite a different light. No man lives on an island alone; and Christian love keeps that fact always bright in the mind.

Professional Drivers List Safety Rules

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

SOUND ADVICE for safety groups, motorists and police officials came out of a recent discussion by a select group of men who pilot buses, trucks, taxicabs and other commercial vehicles.

These professional drivers were asked by the American Trucking Association to analyze the current traffic situation and then suggest ways to cut the accident rate. Here are their proposals:

1. Promote uniformity of traffic laws and traffic signs throughout the country.
2. Stress the importance of other traffic violations besides speeding (such as following too closely behind other vehicles, passing on hills or curves and disregarding stop signs).
3. Provide better markings for the shoulder, middle strip and passing zone on secondary roads.
4. Institute driver clinics for habitual traffic violators.
5. Increase the number of roadside parks, and encourage drivers to take a rest every so often.
6. Stress to parents the importance of setting a good example for younger drivers.
7. Post signs reminding drivers to check their speed, such as "How Fast Are You Going Now?" and "Are You Within the Speed Limit?"

MARYLAND MOTORISTS

Soon we will be ordering our new auto tags, and again must remember the extra fee of $1.00 and $8.00 to conform to the new Unsatisfied Claim and Judgment Fund Law which will become operative on June 1, 1959. How does this new law effect me if I have in force auto liability insurance? How does it effect me if I do not have in force liability insurance? How does it effect me, and what are my obligations, if I have in force auto liability insurance when ordering my new tags but during the year let my insurance lapse? These are important questions to understand under the new law and no motorist will be excused from not fully understanding the law. For information, on this and low-cost liability insurance call—

A COMMUNITY MAUSOLEUM FOR TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND THE MAUSOLEUM

Final arrangements have just been completed for the construction of a Community Mausoleum, adjacent to Trinity Lutheran Cemetery, in this city. The building will be as fine as money, art and science can build. The exterior walls will be of time defying Bedford Stone; the inner walls of hardest reinforced concrete and the interior will be finished in stone and marble. All metal work will be of copper and bronze. Since the first mausoleum was built in 353 B. C., which still exists, for King Mausolus (from whence we get the word mausoleum) such improvement in building materials has been made, that a double wall structure such as this is almost indestructible. It is of such strength that after a few hundred years when present cemeteries are obscure and present grave markers are lost, leaning or fallen, this building will stand out little if any the worse for the time it has stood, as stone becomes harder with time.

PROGRESSIVENESS

A growing demand for the Community Mausoleum is shown by the fact that so many such structures have been and are being built. While this particular section of the country have a few at the present time, in many sections of the United States they are predominant. In the past the excessive cost has made this type of burial out of reach of the average man but now it is actually cheaper than the average ground burial.

OUR DUTY TO THE LIVING

Since the beginning of time it has been man's custom to reverence his dead and it becomes a comforting thought in any age to know that one has done all possible and has given his loved one the most suitable resting place which the present time has to offer. This building provides a place where families may lie side by side in snow white compartments, high and dry, above the ground where neither water, dampness nor cold can enter. Embalming has reached such a high state of perfection that if a body is kept dry it will retain its present condition for centuries to come. This was true in Egyptian burials because they buried where water and dampness was non-existent, however water or moisture quickly nullifies all of this.

To make provisions for a final resting place, which will be secure, ready, and one which cannot be molested, is not only a duty owed to our dead but is evidence to the living of our desire for their well being both now and for always. To put off arrangements until the time arrives is no better business than omitting other business transactions until the last moment. In the case of death the grief is so great and decisions so numerous that many regrettable and unchangeable mistakes are made.

THERE IS A BETTER WAY

From time immemorial it has been customary in Europe for families to select a final resting place for their members in advance of actual needs. This sensible practice has now become the custom in America among thinking men and women.

Death is no respecter of person or persons, and sooner or later every family must face bereavement. The average death follows a period of heavy expenses, often accompanied by loss of income. The insurance that was intended for the care of the loved ones or the education of the children is depleted and the family left in debt.

A final resting place must be selected within a limited time, regardless of finances, weather, mental anguish or personal inconvenience. Frequently the choice has necessarily been left to a disinterested outsider and too often have such hasty arrangements been the cause of everlasting regrets. It is often true that these sad but absolutely necessary arrangements are hampered by lack of adequate funds or lack of time and mental poise for the exercise of one's best judgement. We consign the mortal remains to a shallow earthly grave over which we have scant control at present and probably none in the future. A drive through a cemetery which is no longer in use will show how quickly earthly burial is blotted out, the grave and stone obliterated.

Only when the mind is undisturbed by grief or financial uncertainty, can this important duty be disposed of calmly and intelligently. Every family deserves the protection which the ownership of Mausoleum space offers.

REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD SECURE SPACE

Because: The same business judgment demands it, that prompts you to save money, to carry life insurance and to make your will. Now in the calm of health you can consider and choose that which you think is best, an almost impossibility when a death occurs and the family's mind and judgment is racked with despair.

Because: Mausoleum entombment is a scientific and civilized, as well as a sentimental mode of caring for the dead. The only way to keep a body perfectly preserved after it has been embalmed is by keeping moisture and dampness away from it.

Because: At present the cost is no more and in most cases not as much as ground burial when a lot, monument, steel vault and other cemetery expenses are considered. The Building is the monument, far surpassing in size and beauty any other form of monument or memorial. Owners have free use of the interior of the chapel for funeral services, thereby avoiding rain, cold and snow.

Because: This mode of entombment is both reasonable and scriptural. Our Lord was laid in a rock hewn crypt and early Christians followed this custom. The wealthier class of people have used this type of burial almost exclusively for many centuries and most of our national heroes have been buried in stone tombs or mausoleums. Some of which include Grant, Lincoln, Garfield, Washington and McKinley. Modern mausoleums now make this type of burial in reach of almost everyone.

Because: When you place the familiar form of any of your loved ones in this memorial, it will be a great comfort to know that they are at rest in a clean, dry, place free from the disagreeable features of ground burial.

Because: Preparation is wisdom's cure for worry—the only cure. Insuring the house does not prepare it to burn, but prepares us to live without worry as to the ever present possibility of it burning. Providing for mausoleum protection is not preparing to die, it is preparation to live without worry as to the ever present possibility of loved ones dying and being placed in damp cold graves.

Because: It is an investment. It cannot be damaged or destroyed and will be worth more in later years than it is now. Due to the fact that when a Community Mausoleum is built in a town this size, all space is contracted for before it is built; therefore space is limited to those who have bought, and cannot be used except by those, unless some of the owners desires to sell his or her interests.

THE INEVITABLE—FOR WHICH WE SHOULD PREPARE

If you desire to be prepared and assure yourself and family a permanent and clean resting place, you should inquire for particulars about the mausoleum to be erected in your city. The cost now is in most cases not as much as ground burial when all expenses are considered. Reservations should be made early because the amount of space is limited. In the event of death between the time of securing space and the completion of the Mausoleum, the expense of renting a receiving vault will be borne by the company. In the event anyone has relatives already buried in the ground and desires them space, arrangements can be made for the transfer.

WHERE WILL YOU PLACE YOUR LOVED ONES

You have the choice of only three modes of burial. Ground burial which means a cold, black, damp grave. Cremation in which fire blots out name, form and memory. Burial in a mausoleum with its dry snow white compartments of stone and marble. Which shall it be? Eventually you must decide.

This project is being financed and supervised by Kermitt C. Fair. Anyone desiring information, photographs, etc., please contact Mr. Fair or Doty Robb, 26 W. Baltimore St., of Taneytown, Maryland, who is the local representative for the community.
