SUNDAY SCHOOL WEEK

What do public school officials think of Sunday Schools? Dr. John J. Theobald is Superintendent of Schools in New York City, controlling the teaching and preparation for life of one million boys and girls. Here is what he says about Sunday Schools:

"Man's two greatest adventures are exploring the world around him and the worth within him. Whether he probes with a missile or a prayer, he's on the high road to adventure, and his preparation must begin early in life. Sunday Schools of all faiths stress principles that start young people in the right direction."

To help focus attention on the importance of our nation's Sunday Schools, the Laymen's National Committee, Inc., a non-sectarian, nonprofit organization, has been sponsoring National Sunday School Week in April for the past fifteen years. The observance this year will be from April 13 to 19. The slogan is "MAKE EVERY WEEK SUNDAY SCHOOL WEEK."

Let's start our children in the right direction by giving them a chance to learn the Word of God in our Sunday Schools.

MORE PROOF...it pays to feed PURINA

Alvis Fleming and Purina Salesman Travis Westbrook

Purina's dairy program has helped this North Carolina herd produce

1,477 lbs. more milk per cow

Shortly after Alvis Fleming began his dairy operation with 50 cows on 600 acres outside Littleton, N. C., he took two steps forward which have helped him build both his herd size and production per cow in short order.

He started testing his cows for production on DHIA: Soon after, he began managing and feeding his herd the research-backed Purina Way.

In one year his herd average increased by 1,477 lbs. milk per cow. At the same time, he began to see definite improvement in the form of faster-growing, thriftier calves; bigger, healthier heifers; and well-conditioned dry cows joining the milking string with ample long, productive lactations. See us for details about Purina's research-backed Program for Dairy Cattle, followed by Alvis Fleming and other fast-growing dairymen wherever cows are important.

so it adds interest to your life. Buttons, stamps, coins, arrow heads. tools, glassware are some of the things that have brought interest and happiness to hundreds of people. In some cases they have also brought new friendships and a new way of life. Retired persons finding time dragging by on tired feet should begin a colection and stick with it. Do some research on the objects you collect and pefore too long you will be able to talk intelligently on the subject. Maybe eventually you just might become an expert. We know a small boy who at the age af three started to pick up unusual stones and carry them home. His mother did not discourage him but took an interest in the stones also, and when he was able to read bought him books on the subject of minerals. Now at the age of twelve he has one of the finest collection of stones we have ever seen. He is able to name them and recognize any stone that one brings to him. On the basis of his knowledge on the subject he has already been assured a scholarship from a leading University when he finishes high school. Collecting can lead to many exciting experiences, but

Sales Won't Pay For Advertising

If Wrigley had worried about chewing gum sales paying for his first na-tional advertisement, or if Coca-Cola had worried about selling so many nickel drinks in each town immediately after each advertisement, they probably would never have become two of the nation's most successful advertisers. One advertisement doesn't make a campaign. Advertising is not a one time pitch. It is the cumulative effect on the mind of the custom-er that makes advertising pay.

HE CAUGHT $25,000-Still in his fishing clothes, 30-yearold Bill Simmons, (center) unemployed Baltimore longshoreman, proudly holds "Diamond Jim III," the nine-pound rockfish that brought him the top prize of $25,000 in the American Brewery's 1958 Fishing Derby. At the right is R. Leiter FitzSimons, president of the brewery, examining the diamond-studded gold identification tag that was clipped to "Diamond Jim's" lower jaw when he was put into the Chesapeake Bay June 19. Simmons landed the prize fish near the Eastern Shore end of the Bay Bridge, about 12 miles from where it was tossed overboard. At left is Nick Campofreda, public relations director for the brewery, holding a microphone for a radio interview with the lucky fisherman. Simmons said he'll use the $25,000 to pay his bills and buy a

Budget Room For College

F YOU ARE STARTING TO SHOP for school or college equipyour son or daughter, or for your own home needs, consider the advantages of this colorful plaid spread and draperies. Since most schools request students to bring their own curtains and bed coverings, you'll find that this ensemble, 'Salutations," wins instant approval.

Its most important feature is that it can go to the college laundry. According to Ruth Leigh, Director of The Cannon Homemaking Institute, it will not shrink, and needs no ironing. From a decorative viewpoint, your youngster will be delighted with this striking plaid in bold colors, accented by metallic highlights. No matter how much it is sat upon, wrinkled and given usual "dorm" treatment, it retains its crisp texture and gay appearance. The ensemble comes in five different plaid color combinations: predominantly curry brown, nugget brown, apple green, evergreen or verdant blue.

When you figure the cost of college education, you'll be even more delighted to hear that "Salutations" bedspread and matching draperies are under eight dollars for each. Also, that they are strong and sturdy enough to last for the period of your son's or daughter's schooling, adding a gay, cheerful note to an otherwise drab "dorm" room.

Officer Material

Lesson for April 12, 1959

THE NAVY HAS a word for a school where men from the ranks are studying to be commissioned officers: the "Officers' Material School." Not every enlisted man can be admitted; only those who seem to have what it is going to take to be an officer, and that is a good deal. The Bible tells a story of a man from the ranks who was good "officer material" but who (like some Navy candidates) flunked out. He did not fail, however, for lack of the stuff Dr. Foreman of which success can be made. Next week's study concerns his failure; this week's thought is given to what could have been his success. He held a good hand, we may say, but he played it badly.

Head and Shoulders

Look over the cards he held. First, he had what everyone noticed the first moment they looked at him: he stood out in any crowd. head and shoulders above the rest. He would have sat tall in the saddle (only no one around there rode horseback); he stood tall on the ground. He was strong enough to butcher and cut up a yoke of oxen by himself, and in a fight he had proved himself a lion. Men have been successes in life without extraordinary strength; but for a leader of men, a store of extra power and energy is important. Some investigator found that executives in business are on an average, taller and heavier than the men lower down the ladder. The executive needs the extra power for the extra drive. But of course a giant can be a fool. You cannot predict how much of a leader a man will be merely by measuring the distance from his erew-cut to his heels.

"When they molded him, the molder broke the mold," it is said or some people. It could have been said of Saul. He was not only head and shoulders taller than most, he was a head smarter than most. Good brains, originality - always high cards in the game of life. Some people with original minds are quiet, mousy-and un-noticed. If to originality there are added force of character, a quick habit of decision, a forthright approach to all problems - then you have the makings of a great leader. Now Saul started out as such a man. We read of him that a foreign army was besieging the city of Jabesh, and threatened to make a "treaty" by putting out the right eye of every man in the town. All Israel heard about it, and there was loud wailing in the land. But when the news came to Saul he did not weep a tear. He took a yoke of oxen, cut them up with his own hands, sent pieces around to every tribe, with the message: Be at Jabesh, ready to fight, or have your oxen made into soup-meat like this!" It may have been rough, but it got results.

A Modest Patriot

Above all, the Isralites were looking for a man who loved his country, the whole land and people of Israel. Saul by his action at Gilead had proved himself such a person. He not only would make a sacrifice for his country's sake, he had the ability to inspire others also. He had shown there too that he placed the interests of the tribes as a whole above the interests of any one tribe or city; and that conversely the fate of any one city was the concern of all. Our country could use more patriots of this stripe today, men who like George Washington can see beyond the limits of their own state and live as citizens of the American Union. We need men who will not be indifferent to the troubles of other parts of our land, who realize that the tragedy or the glory of one city is the tragedy or the glory of all.

We don't need men who shout and brag about how much they love their country. Senators Snort and Phogbound are always with us; but politics with them is a way of making money without too much work. Patriotism is nothing to be shouted about; it is a quality that shines best in a modest life. Saul at the beginning was almost too self-effacing. The office had to seek him, and that was good. He was king only because the people demanded him and God through the prophet destined him.

Betcha, due to the "Revival" of Harpers Ferry—there will be thousands of visitors this summer to that former "GHOST" town. Just three years ago when we visited there, I said, "Some day, this place will be in it's GLORY again!"

Now, Folks here is the "Aries"

sign of those born from March 20 to April the 20th. Many in this sign are called, "The Green Eyed Monstors" because they are so very jealous—they are of course the unenlightened sign which means those who have not complete control of this big fault. They are most romantic and affectionate and when educated are tops in just about anything they undertake. They are beautiful dressers having wonderful taste in fact the public many times think and express the opinion that they are very well to do. They must be determined at an early age to stick to one position when they decide for their future plans for if they do not, they are liable to keep changing constantly going from one position to the other.

They are gay and always shine in a crowd as they have'a way' with drawing attention by their conversation. When they once master the "Green Eyed" jealousy they will be sitting on top of the world! Usually these people suffer from head colds and should never neglect them. Will be seeing you next week D.V Have a grand week end.
