With all my heart, I wish you every morning A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's greatest wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help
to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Happy Mother's Day to all Mothers across the miles and that does not mean for the Mothers who have born children but for Step and Foster Mothers alike! Be sure, Folks to take that best Gal out for dinner in fact to spend the day. And please, please do not say, "Well, Mother rather have us at her house for the day so as we can all be together for we will do the cooking!" That won't be her day, dear Readers so plan something very special and whatever you do get her that special Corsage and Flowers, too for the vase so as when Mother's Day is over, she can gaze upon those flowers in front of her all day long as long as they live ! I know, she may suggest coming to the house—all Mothers are like that but you be persistent about the fact and you will see that certain light shine in her eyes! Well, there is truly a "WAR ON FAT!" A good one to follow is in Coronet—page 69 and it is the most Memorial Day parade fund.

They are going to move the meters from in front of Wantz's to the old post office.

The Mayor was instructed to try to secure ground for another location of a water tower in the fairground section.

The Clark and Mr. Freek were in the fairly parade 69 and it is the most simple way reducing that I have read. You will lose 4 pounds in five days and that by Princess Alexandra (Kropotkin. Of course, you may not like the taste of Yogurt but just like Olives—you can acquire a taste for it as Your Observer did. Did you notice. tice all the thin ones on the Academy Award show? Some too, too thin!
And thinking of T. V. Shows—hope you did not miss The Gene Kelly Show by Pontiac! S P E C T A CU L A R! is the word! Gene Kelly danced to the tune of "Old Folks at Home"
There were three European Ballet
Dancers—one from France, Germany and Sweden and it was really "Ballet and Sweden and it was really "Ballet (Modern" if you ask me"! So glad that the awful "Rock'n Roll" is gradually taking a back seat! Nuff Sed about that one, Eh? And thinking of dancing and "Life Begins at 80" that dear Pat Rooney is still going strong to the ever popular tene, "She's The Daughter of Rosey O' Grady!" No biz like "Show Biz"!

The Murray Shows on Monday night are still charming. Never miss!

Ladies, as for hand bags—they are B I G in every style, shape and material. Some almost like 'overnight'

If you and your family, Mrs. House wife like Crab Soup—don't attempt to buy all the ingredients to cook it— just ask for "Orosse & Black-well" Ummmmmmmm Good! And it was all through the little sample which the Demonstrator handed me last week. That will go over with the entire family.

A wonderful little book was sent to me from Fla.—the title, "Your Will Each woman is asked to Be Done on Earth!" Truly like Pearls!

The Gardenia plants are filled with Buds and the Pansy plants are thriving beautifully. Don't forget, young man when you pop the question just slip one of those handsome Zircons on her finger! Always remember that "Diamonds are not a Girl's best friend!" Just try to pawn one and you will see the little return you get

Have you noticed many pictures of the Duke of Windsor with a pipe in his mouth? That means he is truly contented-so with any man!

Hope and hope that the old time Vaudeville will be returning to Baltimore and they say it is just how Judy Garland goes over with her show in all the cities. Hope you did not miss the "Tulip" show at Hutzler's! Grand!
And as for "Age of Elegance" at the Baltimore Museum which has just opened don't miss that one for then you will realize the real reason Your Observer asks and suggests you to teach the Kiddies to take care of possessions for they all add to "Elegance" in the years to come. The chairs were spacious those days even to the dining room chairs. Comfort plus elegance was considered in those days. Today everything is almost STREAM-LINED and not near the rich atmosphere of yester year. There are a number of pieces of furniture from Philadelphia and New York Museums on exhibition. It will make you appreciate all the fine old treasures you may have in the attic with just a little repair will appear just as elegant. Just think, Folks all this beautous sight for free ! There are paintings, sculpture, drawings, furniture, silver, porcelain, tapestries and clocks plus fashion. This exhibition will continue until June 14. Calling all School Teachers! What a treat for the pupils to see and learn in so many ways! And as for the show called "Count Your Blessings"—a romantic Comedy with Deborah Kerr, Rossano Brazzi and Maurice Chevalier-Your Observer could not rave about that one course, as to the scenery all of England and Paris. That was interesting as much was seen of those countries. If you have a dog, Folks—don't forget the clean fresh water many times a day. Your dog will love you for that

And don't go to market when you are hungry for it will positively make you buy more than you would Seeing you next week. D.V. Have a grand week end and hope to be writing you about the trip to Harper's Ferry. Until then.

I am. Faithfully,

Your Observer.

Pitched Roof Saves Money On Construction of Home

Roofer applies asphalt shingles in a light color to home with a roof pitch of 2 inches per foot of width. Builder of this home in a California development says the construction costs saved with this low-pitched roof enabled him to offer a high quality home for as much as 20 cents less per square foot than the same house would cost with a flat roof.

FEESERSBURG (A Voice from Carroll)

Due to the critical condition of the Baltimore milk market, over one hundred dairy farmers of Carroll County and the officers of the Mary-Cooperative Milk Association met in New Windsor last week to see if together they might find an answer to some of the problems that are frustrating all people connected with the handling and producing of milk. In the question and answer period at the meeting which lasted over three hours two points were made clear to everyone. First, that the marketing of milk is a complicated business and must be left to the experts and second, that the best hope that dairy farmers have for a brighter future is a strong Cooperative Milk Association. Every farmer present at the meeting should have been impressed with the intelligent men who serve as officers of the Maryland Cooperative Milk Association and with their efforts to secure the best milk markets in a highly com-petitive industry. The farmers can help themselves best if they build up the association instead of becoming an "independent". As it was so clearly shown at the meeting, a strong Association means a better milk price for every farmer. One of the farm leaders summed the present situation up bluntly but truthfully: "Dairy farmers must stick together in a strong Association and work together for a better market or go their separate ways into bankruptcy." Carroll County Historical Society will hold a "County Fair" at the Historical House in Westminster, June Visitors will be able to have lunch in the garden adjoining the Historical House. The food will be served by Mrs. Nusbaum. The fair will consist of a rummage, bake, jewelry and book sale. Mrs. E. Miller Richardson is chairman of the fair and will be assisted by Mrs. Eugene Walsh, Mrs. James Shriver, Mrs. Homer Twigg, Miss Eliabeth Deeble, Mrs. Edgar G. Barnes, Miss Lillian Shipley, Mrs. D. The fair will have an auctioneer who will sell any article of furniture, glassware or china for the owner at a commission. The fair promises to be an interesting event where Carroll Countians can become acquainted with the Historical Home and help contribute to its mainten-

Despite some of the antics some college students indulge in that gives the public the idea that they are a carefree bunch of kids, the facts do not bear this out. For one thing the students bring with them to college the same emotional problems that they had at home and in high school. In college these problems intensify due to the pressure of maintaining a good scholastic record and meeting the social acceptance standard imposed by fraternities and sororities. It is small wonder that panty raids and stuffing telephone booths with football players are indulged in on the campus. It is just a method of relieving tensions and frustration. The high schools must bear the blame for some of this tension. Many students come ill prepared for their first year in college. Many do not know how to read well and very few know how to study. Small high schools give the student such a poor background in science that it takes them six months in the freshman year at college to understand what the professor is lecturing about. English is another subject that the college student comes poorly equipped to maintain a good grade. There is no such thing as a carefree student. Ninety-nine percent of them try to do what parents and teachers expect of them. They have a very strong desire to do the right thing. We have no qualms about where the college student is going for he is headed in the right direction and we are sure that unless too much is asked of him, he will arrive at his destination.

Believe nothing, no matter where you read it, or who said it, no mat-ter if I have said it, unless it agrees with your own reason and your own common sense. Buddha Cooking hint: To keep rice white and fluffy add a few drops of lemon juice to the rice while it is cooking. We suspect that "Modern Music" is the kind that is played so fast it's almost impossible to detect what classical composer it was stolen from. And it's played so loud that it almost scrambles one's brain.

The Women's Missionary Society of Mt. Union Lutheran Church held it's annual covered dish supper Mon-day evening in the parish house. Twenty-five members and their families enjoyed the supper and fellow-ship together. A devotional hour followed the supper with the president, Mrs. Paul Crouse, in charge. The group was entertained by Dale Mill-er on the trumpet and Joan Crabbs on the trombone. Mrs. Scott Crabbs read a humorous poem and Mrs. Russell Bohn gave a dramatic reading. The meeting ended with a song fest

Sunday, May 10th, is Mothers Day. Thousands of words have been written in tribute to "Mother". Books have been dedicated to her poems have been dedicated to her, poems have been composed in her honor, and artists, such as Whistler, have immortalized her in paintings. The beloved Kate Douglas Wiggin wrote of mothers this way: "Most of all the other beautiful things in life come by twos and threes, by dozens and hundreds, plenty of roses, stars. sunsets, rainbows, brothers and friends—but only one mother in the whole world."

No matter how low he has fallen In the muck and mire of sin, How devious the path he has followed How base the heart within;

No matter how close he has come To the bottomless pit, and beyond; No matter how wicked and worthless He is some mother's son And she loves him!

SPRING AND FALL-MORE ABOUT THE TREE-

Spring and Fall are my favorite seasons of the year—
-(Blossoms first delight us; then, the fruit appears!)—
Summer was made for the birds, flowers and trees; So, in Winter they sleep, and, live at ease.

That "God is Love", this is proof, to both you and me"He shows it, by putting the fruits on the tree!);
Long before man learned to till the ground
Most of his food on the trees he found.

Such love has never been known to be As God expressed when He made the tree; Like an angel of mercy it always stands Holding a basket of fruit in its hands.

When God made the angels, it seems to me, Even then, He planned to give us the tree; They are often mentioned in God's great plan; For He made them to feed the birds and man.

So, if you would follow God's great plan To make of you a perfect woman or man,
Try to emulate a lovely fruit tree;
And, a generous mortal, you shall turn out to be.

Bible writers often refer to the tree—
(It is the nearest thing to perfection they see!),
It never refuses a blessing to give

To man and the birds so they may live. The trees always look, and, act the same, (It matters not, from where they came);
The color and taste of their fruit, people say,
Is always the same—(It never changes in any way).

Many wonderful lessons are taught by the tree-(It shows to all how God wants us to be); So, God sees to it, that they grow every where; And He feeds us, through them, out of the air.

The famous tree which in Eden once stood Was an emblem, they tell us, of evil and good; Even its leaves were a tonic, the Scriptures say, To cure the sick in that early day.

I would like to tell more about the trees which grow—
(In other poems I shall try to do so);
God has many wonders He wants us to see;
But, to me, no elegance can equal a tree.

The groves were God's temples in days of old; (There the truth about Him was told!) To call men to worship in ancient times

The birds did the calling instead of chimes The preacher told them the right way to live, While Nature taught them how to give; The moss-covered ground and gold-tinted tree

Told them all how Paradise shall be. In his sermons on how men ought to be The preacher seldom mentioned jewelry,
Except to tell of that precious gem Which is called the Royal Diadem.

If men knew God as in days of old Our churches would not begin to hold
The millions for whom He made the earth;
And, whose life He has been since the day of birth.

If only a mortal man could be made to see What a paradise our earth shall someday be, The voice of an angel could not change his mind; For, to serve God better, he would be inclined.

Facing My Sin

Lesson for May 10, 1959

AST WEEK something was said about David learning a hard lesson the hard way: namely that not even a king, an absolute monarch, is so highly placed that the law of God no longer concerns him. David lived in a time when in most kingdoms the king's will was law.

Even if what he did was wrong for most people, if he did it he couldn't be wrong, for he was king. The brave prophet Nathan brought David to his senses; he made him face his own sin. The Dr. Foreman whole story is there in II Samuel, and has often been told. We can learn much from it; for it shows one way in which we can do what we all hate to do and some people never can do: face our own sins and admit that they are sins and that we committed them.

To Know

"You can't carve rotten wood," says an old Chinese proverb. And no prophet or preacher is going to get far making any one face his sins if the person involved has no notion of any difference between right and wrong. A conscience can be educated; but who can educate what isn't there? Now David had a conscience; that is, he knew that some things are right and some are wrong. When Nathan told him that made-up story about the rich man and the poor man and the lamb, David was hot. The rich man was wrong, David saw; very wrong, wrong enough to be executed on the spot. If David had reacted calmly to Nathan's story-if his response had been something like, "Well, that's a rich man for you," or "After all, that poor man was relieved of an expensive luxury," Nathan would have got nowhere with him. The first thing I need in order to face my sin, when that time comes, is to know, down in my bones, that sin is real, that some things are right and others are wrong. If I think "right" and "wrong" are just emotional words, meaning no more than "I like it" and "I don't like it," then I shall never face my own sin, I shall never even know what is eating away my soul.

To Imagine

Another thing is needed before I can face my sin. I must be able to imagine what it is like to be sinned-against. When David got so angry about that story Nathan told him, he wasn't angry about what happened to the rich man, though that would be a tragedy too. He was angry about the incident, because in his mind's eye he could see exactly how the poor man felt. (Was this because David's own father had been a sheep-herder?) Now no one up to that time had ever stolen a wife from David. He had done some wife-stealing even before the time of Bathsheba, but he had never seen the wrong in it. Wife-stealing was a recognized privilege of kings in those days. By a brilliant, inspired single thrust when David's guard was down, that prophet made David see as it were in one flash what he had done to Uriah and to Bathsheba.

To Confess

There is a step beyond seeing that I have sinned. This is admitting that I see it. But there are two ways of admitting one's sin, whatever it may be. One is the "so what?" approach. "Yes, I did it, but it isn't very bad . . . Yes, I admit it, but I couldn't help it . . . I did it, but am I so much worse than a hundred other people? . . . Yes, I did it, but why not forget the whole thing, shall we?" This is not facing my sin at all. It is only admitting an act without seeing what a sin it is. The other way of admitting sin is to feel a deep sense of shame before God and man too. It is to stop excusing and defending myself, it is to take sides (so to speak) with the prosecution, it is to see myself no longer fit to be a companion for God or men. If what I can feel about my sin can be expressed in the language of the 51st Psalm, then there can be some hope for me. If I do not despise my sin, if I do not somehow share God's feeling about it, then I shall go on down and down. It is only when I see the pit into which I am falling, and see that it is a bottomless pit, that I am ready to be res-
