MEETING OF THE MAYOR & CITY COUNCIL

Plans Continuing for the Erection of the Second Water Tower

The Mayor and City Council held their regular meeting Monday, August 3, 1959.

At the last meeting of the Mayor and City Council, Mr. Frank Wargny appeared before the Council in regard to the floridation of the water. He had with him the latest pamphlet of the Maryland Health Department.

Discussion was held on the possibility of having a person to handle the water books and collection. The council felt this idea has merit, but concluded it would not be financially able until the town becomes large enough to hire a full time Clerk-Treasurer.

A discussion was held on the location of our new water tower at the East end of town. A letter was written to the present owners of the Fairground acquainting them with the urgency of the situation and requesting their corporation in the deed of the plot, agreed upon for the erection of the tower, in which we cannot start until we have a deed.

Another site is available in the immediate vicinity.

After the Council looked at the colors it was decided to paint the water tank a light green.

The Council discussed the possibility of setting a date for people to hook to the sanitary sewer.

It is hoped that all concerned will make arrangements to hook up to the sewer, so it will not be necessary to set a dead line.

The Clerk-Treasurer transferred from the general fund to the sewer sinking fund $16,050.00 to pay the interest and pay off five $1,000.00 bond on the 4th of August.

Receipts for the month: $1,957.01
Expenditures $18,587.45
Balance general fund $8,657.37
Parking meter fund balance $4,676.41

Increase Use of Public Library

A dramatic increase in the use of its services was revealed this week by the Carroll County Public Library when some comparative statistics were examined by the Board of Trustees in their regular monthly meeting, July 21, at the Davis Library in Westminster.

During the first six months of 1959, more than three times as many books and magazines were borrowed as in the first six months of 1957 and 1958, figures made possible with the county-wide operation of the library service by means of the bookmobile.

In the comparable period of 1957, 15,698 books circulated. In 1958, which included January through April as Davis Library alone, and with only May and June of that period as a County operation, 16,103. But as a coordinated unit during the first six months of 1959, the County Library loaned 47,508 books.

With the addition of Federal and State aid to the County funds in May, 1958, when the county program was initiated, all library services were expanded as rapidly as possible. Hours when the Davis Library is open to the public were increased from 26 per week in April to 44 per week for the balance of the year. This has resulted in greater use of the reference materials available in the central unit as well as increased circulation.

The existing collection of books of the Davis Library was immediately augmented by the loan 3000 books from the State Library Extension Division so that six "stations", operated by community volunteers could have books available for the first time all over the County to allow children to participate in the 1958 Summer Reading Program. Communities which aided in this activity were Mt. Airy, Sykesville, Manchester, Hampstead, New Windsor, and Taneytown. Nearly a thousand children participated and 443 completed the requirements and were awarded certificates.

Approximately 2700 new books had been purchased and processed by the County Library by the end of 1958, with nearly 75% of the purchases made for juvenile books so that full scale operation could be achieved for children as soon as delivery of the bookmobile was effected.

Dogs Must Be Licensed

The County Commissioners of Carroll County on July 31, 1959, unanimously adopted the resolution that had been proposed by them on June 1, 1959 and thereafter advertised in the county newspapers, prescribing license fees for dogs, as well as regulations for the enforcement of the Dog Law as amended by Chapter 807 of the Acts of 1959.

The license fee for all dogs, regardless of sex, now is the sum of $3.00 per year, and on a calendar year basis, except that the fee of $3.00 that became due on July 1, 1959, will cover the period to December 31, 1960, and thereafter the said license fee of $3.00 will be due and payable on the first day of January of each year.

All persons owning dogs can now secure licenses for the current period from the Treasurer's Office, County Office Building, or from the following: Heagy's Sport Shop, Westminster; David Hiltnerbrick, Taneytown; John P. Strine, New Windsor; Robert E. Wagner, Manchester; Western Auto Assoc. Store, Mt. Airy; Conaway Bros. Store, Winfield; Big Boy Army & Navy Store, Eldersburg Shopping Center; Carroll County Humane Society, New Windsor Rd., Westminster; Stanley Taylor, County Wide Collector.

SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE

With all my heart, I wish you every morning
A smile that shall last until the next day's dawning.
I wish you health—life's greatest wealth!
I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer
Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

With the sky for a canopy for the big crowd of 14,000 to view the Estelle Dennis Ballet at the Stadium on last Tuesday evening was really something to talk about with such exclamations as "Ah's" and "Oh's".

The weatherman had predicted showers and even if the sky was starless, nevertheless, there were really stars on the stage and as I observed glancing around, stars in all eyes!

Miss Dennis was superb in the numbers in which she danced, "One Kiss", "The Blue Danube", the dance from the opera of "Samson and Delilah" and "Tragedy of Insanity", the latter proving that she not alone is a dancer but a dramatic artist, too.

Much applause brought Miss Dennis forward for bows at three different times "certain calls" for the lovely flowers handed to her.

The Municipal and Park Bands co-operated beautifully with each number.

While those in the cast were dressing for the next numbers, old fashioned songs were flashed on the screen in which the audience took part by singing, "Irish Eyes Are Smiling", "Take Me Out To The Ball Game", "Shine On Harvest Moon" and a few others. It was just one hour and a half and everyone was sorry when it all came to an end so soon.

Dr. Frank Marino, who is president of the Park Board, made a wonderful speech in the beginning which delighted the audience. I do not know of any man who is loved and held in such high esteem as Dr. Marino. He

KICK OR BE TAXED

What chance has the public for protection from constant tax increases? Apparently it has almost none. A proposed increase of 1½¢ a gallon in the Federal gas tax was voted down by Congress. Within days a new proposal came up to increase the tax ½¢ a gallon for one or two years, and transfer some receipts now received from present gas taxes from the general fund into the special highway trust fund, where they should have gone in the first place. Another proposal would raise the gas tax 1½¢ for a two-year period only.

Any way you look at it, the determination is to make the public pay additional gas taxes for a crash program of highway building instead of doing the construction work as money becomes available.

If anyone is gullible enough to believe that a one or two year "special" gas tax would be dropped at the end of such periods, he should have his head examined. All one has to do is to check over the "emergency" taxes that were passed for various purposes years ago to realize that no special tax for one or two years would be dropped at the end of that period.

The tax spenders will always be exceeding their income no matter how large the taxes are. The people will never get relief until they tell Congress in no uncertain terms, that tax reductions, not tax increases, are in order.

At the end of two years, roads will again be costing twice as much as estimated, "special" taxes will have to be retained and it is safe to say increases will be asked.

KEEPING UP WITH THE FARMER

The supervisor of the farm practice research division of one of the leading farm equipment companies tells of a big problem the industry faces. It lies in understanding what the farmer wants and then seeking ways to provide him with it at a price he can afford to pay.

Farm equipment isn't designed, engineered and produced in a vacuum, so to speak. The agricultural engineers must put themselves in the farmer's shoes and think not only as he thinks today but as he will think tomorrow. They must have an intimate knowledge of what is going on on all kinds and sizes of farms, and what new developments the future is likely to bring about. In sum, they have to get out where the work is done, which is on the farm, and learn from actual experience, not just theory.

The supervisor also said, according to an article by E. T. Leavitt in Tractor Farming, that "knowing exactly why farmers buy as they buy is difficult. Such factors as comfort, leisure, and the important endless desire for increased capacity have resulted in the commercial acceptance of bigger, more powerful tractors, wider tillage and planting machines, and self-propelled harvesting equipment when perhaps a formal economic analysis would not justify them." It's a case where the producing companies face a real job in keeping up with the ideas of the farmers whom they serve, and who determine whether any given product and innovation will fail or succeed.

ALWAYS IN FOCUS

William I. Nichols, editor and publisher of This Week, a magazine of huge circulation, has something to say about newspapers. Here are his words: "Newspapers are the most powerful force in public opinion today because:

"1. The newspaper is the only medium which talks directly to each reader in terms of himself, his family and his community.

"2. The newspaper is the only medium which remakes its product every day.

"Hence, newspapers are always in focus—always in direct, immediate and intimate touch both with people and with changing times, and this is what gives newspapers their tremendous influence and efficiency."

WALTHAM, MASS., THE NEWS-TRIBUNE. "Americans sort of like to think of efficiency as their own invention. We like to scoff at Europeans with their red tape, their delays, and their talk, talk, talk.

"But we'd better watch out. In a good many lines of endeavor, delay and red tape are getting pretty common in this country . . .

GRANDVILLE, MICH., STAR: "We don't miss water till the well runs dry," is a saying familiar to everyone and it certainly has a lot of truth in it, whether taken literally or figuratively . . .

"With our water supply, we have to worry before the well goes dry and make sure we have enough of it and the pumps to supply it for our daily needs . . . Likewise, with industry, we should appreciate its presence and make sure we don't lose it. When the well runs dry, it is too late. After an industry leaves a community it is also too late to do anything about it . . ."

NANTY-GLO, PA. JOURNAL: "It is appropriate now that the people, government officials, union leaders and workers themselves honestly consider the potentialities that another wage-price spiral may create in our country. LOS ANGELES, CALIF., REPORTER: "The 'American Way' apparently has many highways and byways. It has roads leading in all directions and many of them are at cross purposes.

Compared to other countries, the 'American Way' includes: killing ourselves off with automobiles on high speed highways; discrimination against other men because of race, color, creed; locked doors and huge police forces to safeguard against others; larger divorce courts and growing unhappy families; loss of religion and growing sacrilegious thoughts; immorality running loose in the nation; mounting crime records, growing traffic of narcotics, sale and use; increasing lawlessness; and much more . . ."

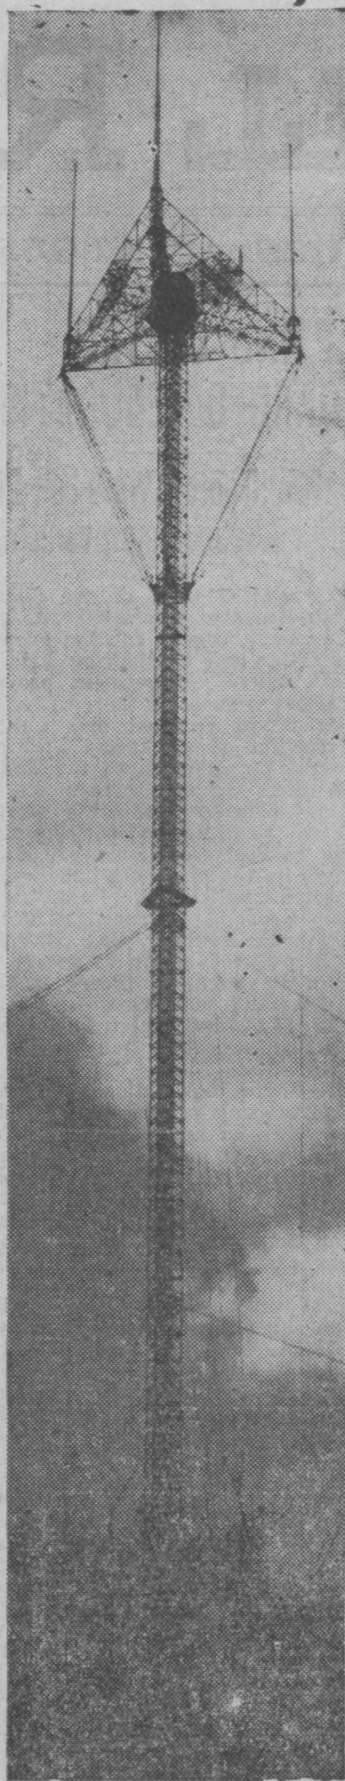

BENNETTSVILLE, S. C., MARLBORO HERALD-ADVOCATE: "We are proud of our past; the hunger, sacrifice and courage of men who espoused the cause of freedom. The demands upon us are no less exacting now if the future is to honor the dignity and rights of man. To these, let us be dedicated."

SOMERSET, KY., JOURNAL: "The weekly newspaper is uniquely an American institution. Nowhere else in the world will be found a system of journalism anywhere near the completeness of the American weekly newspaper. Nowhere else in the world will one find a newspaper primarily interested in Susie's birthday, nor a system that so thoroughly reflects the trivia of events that make up the life of all of us.

"Many have said over the years that the weekly newspaper would disappear because it is totally unnecessary. They have been proven wrong. The weekly has grown stronger and has become even more firmly entrenched into the American way of life . . ."

Television viewers in this area have a new experience in viewing in store for them at 11 p. m., Sunday (9 August) when Maryland's governor, J. Millard Tawes, throws a switch putting into service the big new candelabra tower which mounts the transmitting antennas of all three Baltimore television stations.

This tower, the culmination of five years work and planning by the three stations, gives the Baltimore stations such additional height as to increase the dependable coverage of all three stations by an estimated 5,000 square miles of land area in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and West Virginia.

In special ceremonies scheduled to start at 11 p. m. Sunday, Governor Tawes and Baltimore's new mayor, J. Harold Grady, will officiate. The big switch provided for the purpose will fade all three stations for the few seconds required to make the change to the new facilities, and the picture then re-appears via the antennas on the unique new "candelabra" tower.

The tower is unique in several ways. It is the second structure of its shape ever built, and is the only tower of its type mounting three antennas. Its effect for viewers will be to afford clear, strong pictures to many areas where viewing from Baltimore may have been less than perfect hitherto, particularly for viewers who watch from points far distant from the Chesapeake metropolis.

The antennas alone atop the tower weigh twenty-one tons, and it takes 500 tons of a new high-strength steel to hold them up, plus two miles of heavy bridge-type wire-cable guys to make sure the tower is rigid and safe. And speaking of safety, it is designed to withstand peak winds of 165 miles an hour, which seems safe enough in view of the fact that the strongest wind ever recorded by the Baltimore Weather Bureau reached a velocity of 80 miles an hour in the famous Hurricane Diane.

The triangular top is 105 feet across each face and is reached by an elevator equipped to communicate by radio with the ground. WBAL-TV (Channel 11) and WMAR-TV (Channel 2) built new transmitter buildings to house their transmitting equipment. WJZ-TV (Channel 13) which was already at the site, simply re-directed its lines from its old tower to the new one nearby. It took a ton-and-a-half of paint to give the tower its decor of white and international orange.

Completion of the electronic equipment of the new tower marked a new milestone of achievement by some of the foremost engineers of the nation. The tower was constructed under the supervision of the Radio Corporation of America, which also supplied most of the new electronic gear.

Primitive Heritage, BY NICK YINGER

The historical investigation to which this motivation is directed is intended as a systematic treatment of basic aboriginal principles over many years of research, and not criticism of contemporary ethnology. Its regulative aim to integrate progressive ideologies of transitional primitives — their variable modifications in fundamental concepts with clarity and congruity.

Archaic peoples. Speaking of archaic primitives, Dr. Matthew W. Stirling, former secretary of the Smithsonian, writes: Archeological work in recent years has demonstrated that Pale-Indians, attracted by an abundance of game, fish and wild vegetable foods, lived in this region from the Appalachian Mountains to Chesapeake Bay perhaps 20,000 years ago. These transitional people did not use the bow and arrow but used fluted spear point Javelins with an atlatl spear thrower. Recent excavations of the local Cactocin Mountain rock shelter have revealed one such projectile point, with flutes on blade sides. There was an Algonquin Indian Village near Westminster, Md.

Domestic concepts. The late fall season was the time of plenty, when the aborigines lived on the stored products of their village gardens; popcorn being one of them. Later, they made the small expeditions to the mountains to hunt deer, bear, turkey, wildcat, wolves and panther or mountain lion. At this time their endeavors were much more multitudinous, motivated of course by a winter meat supply regardless of danger. Bear teeth and stone hammers were also found in the cave which was not a permanent home but occupied only for a week or so after which they returned to their valley homes along the Potomac and Monocacy, and the North branch of the Patapsco, and Double Pipe Creek, Tuscarora's.

Naturally the peaceful Tuscarora were the last tribe to live in the cave according to pottery and the white triangular darts of the late Woodland culture of about 350 years ago. No white man trade artifacts were found in the shelter. Tuscarora artifacts are found today in plowed fields on both banks of the same stream along its 10 mile flow to the confluence with the Monocacy just above the Maryland 26 bridge near Ceresville to its headwater springs atop the obsolescent Tuscarora Watershed. Some rather large impounding water dams for wildlife have been constructed on this stream near the Hamburg Fire Tower, as well as planting of flora foods by the Maryland Inland Game and Fish Commission. I saw a big mountain grouse feeding in such a patch. Many artifacts have been found around New Windsor, Union Bridge and Sykesville, etc.

Different tribes. We know that the different algonquin tribes who lived, hunted and died in this section, apart from the Tuscarora, were the Catawba, formerly from the Carolinas, Shawnee of Georgia, Cherokee, from Northern Georgia and North Carolina, now living in Oklahoma, Susquehannock, of Pennsylvania, Siouan, called "little snakes," of the Dakota's, Iroquois, from the Hudson Valley, now on a government reservation near Brantford, Ontario, and the Delaware or Lenni-Lenape, from the Delaware River. Our excavations show, as Williams History of Frederick County also reveals, that the Catawba's and the Delaware tribes were hostile to one another.

Decoration. Both sexes usually decorated themselves by painting the entire body with bear grease mixed with various pigments derived from both mineral and vegetable sources. This went a long way in protecting the body from insects. The common practice of using red pigments, including crushed rock hematite, was the reason the early settlers called them "Redskins." Women practiced tattooing more than men. Men of distinction in battle, or heritage had the right to carve the symbol indicating totemic affiliation on the shoulder. Men shaved the sides of their head, unmarried women cut two hair ridges above the forehead. Married females wore bangs cut off behind at ear lobe level and, in general wore an inch wide band of mussel shell beads over the forehead. Bracelets, armlets and necklaces of bone, shell, native copper and pearls (oyster) were worn, sometimes hanging in large plaques on the chest. We excavated everything listed above except pearls.

Wikipups and fish. Fresh water streams were dammed, after which the Indians used poisons made from juices of certain plants to take fish. They also used bone and wood fishhooks, and weirs. Houses were rectangular in floor plan with framework made of slender poles bent over at the tops to form rounded roofs. Each end was flat. Frame was laced-on tree bark and other woven mats of grasses and other flora. Doors at each end of house about 25 to 40 feet long, ten feet wide, two rooms two smoke holes in roof center. When families were absent hunting in the mountains they propped a stick against the door. No one entered to steal. Each village had a charnel house where human bodies were smoked and dried before burial. We find many of these unarticulated burials. The bones were simply dumped in a hole about 2 feet deep and covered with earth. It has been estimated that in 1608 "Maryland had about 10,000 Indian population compared to about 20,000 for Virginia." This is our primitive heritage—a monument of aboriginal ingenuity.

SHADE INCREASES LIVESTOCK PROFITS

Government and private industry research experts have found that there is a direct relationship between livestock comfort during hot weather and their rate of gain.

The most important factors are plenty of water and good shade during the hottest part of the day, according to United States Department of Agriculture and agricultural college tests.

Research findings show that aluminum is considerably more efficient in protecting livestock from solar radiant heat, the "invisible enemy" of livestock comfort, than any other type of shading. These findings are confirmed in tests co-sponsored by the Reynolds Metals Company.

Protected by these aluminum shades from solar radiant heat, these cattle gained 9.37 pounds more per head in 42 days than did similar cattle under a galvanized roof.

"You can't measure solar radiant heat with an ordinary thermometer," says C. H. Jefferson, director of Reynolds Metals Company's Farm Institute, "because these invisible heat-energy waves from the sun do not turn into heat until they touch an object, such as an animal."

Agricultural engineers need complicated scientific equipment to measure how well different types of shade shield livestock from solar radiant heat. The difference, however, is easily noticeable by anyone standing under an aluminum shelter for awhile.

If livestock are not sheltered from these rays, Mr. Jefferson points out, they become overheated and partially lose their appetite. This results in lowered production—less meat, less milk and fewer eggs.

Iowa State College recently made a study of protection provided by various types of shade. In this test, as in others, aluminum was the most effective solar radiant heat-reducing shade. The following table shows the relative effectiveness of different types of shade:

Table with 2 columns: Material, Radiant heat transmittance (in Btu ft. 2/hr. exposure). Rows include Aluminum (11.9), Asbestos-cement shingles (53.4), Asphalt shingles (57.0), Steel, new galvanized (39.1), Wood shingles (1 yr. exposure) (41.2). Source: From thesis of Alvin C. Dale, Iowa State College, Ames.

In a farm test to determine how aluminum shade prevents the hot-weather slump in livestock production, Morton Brothers of Elizaville, Ind., cooperating with Reynolds Farm Institute, erected a simple, pole-type, aluminum cover shelter over the feed bunk for 44 head of cattle. This was the only shelter provided for these cattle during the test.

In another lot they placed 44 similar cattle with a conventionally galvanized roof barn for shelter.

During the 42-day test, the cattle under aluminum gained an average of 9.37 pounds per head more than those under galvanized shading. They also reached market finish two weeks earlier and brought $1.50 per cwt. more because they graded higher.

Similar results have been recorded in tests with hogs, dairy cattle and poultry. "The use of aluminum shading," Mr. Jefferson reported, "is the most effective method developed for battling the 'summer slump' in livestock production and helping farmers boost their profits."

Homes Electrically Heated

The warm glow of electric home heating—sometimes described as "current comfort"—is rapidly becoming more popular in this section of the country. In fact, there are now over 150 homes in this area which are now heated electrically, according to Mr. A. E. Short, local Residential Heating Representative for the Potomac Edison Company.

Mr. Short explains the principle of electric heating like this: Current flowing along a conductor encounters resistance, and this resistance produces usable heat for warming our homes.

"Ever strike a match and notice how long it burns, and how much heat it gives? The heat of your single match about equals the heat value of one British Thermal Unit, called a Btu. The comfort heating potential of electricity is enormous—there are 3,412 flameless Btus in every kilowatt hour of electricity you use in your home, yet your cost for this kilowatt is from one to two pennies—sometimes less," Mr. Short explains.

A survey by ELECTRIC HEAT and Airconditioning Magazine found that more than a half-million homes in this country are completely heated with electricity alone, using simple baseboard units, wall panels, ceiling resistance cable, or heat pumps. And the same survey found electric utility executives predicting that by 1965 more than two million homes will be heated electrically.

Flameless electric heating is far simpler than the conventional heating systems requiring bulky burner units in the basement. When the home is heated electrically, the thermostats respond to the particular temperature requirements of each individual room in the house. When one of these thermostats calls for heat, a power company boiler and generator miles away respond at the speed of 186,000 miles a second, to begin bathing the room in the warmth of electric heat. It's easy to understand why this "current comfort" heating method is growing in popularity.

The marriage of Miss Anna Marie Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin J. Baker, Westminster R. F. D. #2, to William Martin Ebaugh, son of Mrs. Grace V. Ebaugh and the late William A. Ebaugh, Westminster RFD 4, took place last Sunday at 2 p. m. at Benjamin's (Kriders) United Church of Christ Evangelical and Reformed, Westminster. The Rev. Edmund P. Walker performed a double-ring ceremony in a candle-light setting of palms and ferns, and altar vases of gladioli and carnations. David E. Byers, 3rd was the acolyte, cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Neal Hearing was the soloist, and Mrs. Neal Hearing organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length dress of chantilly lace and net with fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves and Queen Anne collar, bouffant skirt of lace pelum over net and taffeta. Her finger tip veil fell from a crown of pearls and net. Her only jewelry was a pair of cultured pearl earrings, a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis cascading to a very narrow point down the skirt, with white orchid in the center.

Maid of honor was Mrs. Arlene Baker, Westminster, sister-in-law of the bride, and she wore an orchid ballerina length dress of lace and net over taffeta, with a crownless picture hat of lace to match her dress. She carried a crescent bouquet of yellow carnations and yellow fringed carnations. Her bridesmaids were Mrs. Edna Stephan and Mrs. Thelma Carr, of Westminster.

Serving as best man was Jack Stoner, of Westminster. Ushers were Scott Carr, Westminster, brother-in-law of the bride, David Martin, cousin of the groom, Benjamin Crowl, Westminster, and William Essich, also of Westminster. Serving as ringbearer was David Grant Baker, brother of the bride.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the parish hall of the church, attended by approximately 300 guests, after which the couple left for Niagara Falls and Canada. For traveling, the bride chose a light blue dress with white accessories. She also wore her cultured pearl necklace and earrings given by the groom and her corsage of white orchid and stephanotis.

The couple will reside at 22 New Windsor Road, Westminster. The bride is employed at the Carroll Manufacturing Co. (Pants), Westminster. The bridegroom is self-employed as a brick mason.

After splitting the first 2 games of the play-offs, Liberty defeating Taneytown by a score of 28 to 8, and Taneytown winning from Liberty by a score of 8 to 5, Liberty won the deciding game, Monday evening from our boys by a score of 13 to 8, thus becoming the champions of the 1959 season of the Frederick-Carroll League.

Our team went down fighting and could possibly have won this game but it was called at the end of the 5th inning on account of darkness.

This Saturday, Aug. 3 the new champions, Liberty, will play an all-star team at Woodsboro at 2 p. m., followed by a picnic for all the boys in the league. This is an annual affair, sponsored by the league, and a large crowd is expected.

COFFEE SAUCE MAKES A SUNDAE

One of the nicest ways to use up the coffee that's left over from breakfast is to make a luscious sauce for ice cream. Men especially like this Coffee Sundae Sauce. It's full-bodied and richly flavorful because it's made with pressure-packed Chase & Sanborn Coffee.

COFFEE SUNDAE SAUCE 1/2 cup Chase & Sanborn coffee beverage 1/2 cup light corn syrup 1/2 cup light brown sugar 3/4 cup granulated sugar 3 tablespoons margarine 1/2 cup heavy cream

Bring coffee, corn syrup, sugars and margarine to boil in saucepan, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Then boil without stirring until mixture forms soft ball when a small amount is dropped into cold water, or to 240°F. on candy thermometer. Remove from heat; cool 10 minutes; stir in cream. Serve wazn on ice cream. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

IN HOMETOWN AMERICA

THE PRICE OF YOUR MILK IS GOING UP—UP—UP UNLESS— — —

There's a move afoot to bring Federal Milk Regulations to Baltimore City, and the majority of Maryland counties. THIS HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH HEALTH or SANITATION—this is PRICE regulation.

There's a national pattern in this matter. In practically every case where these Federal Regulations have been invoked—the price of milk has gone up to the consumer, many dairy farmers have received less for their milk—and many farmers and dairies have been forced out of business.

FOR INSTANCE

in Washington—the price of milk went up the same day the Federal regulation went into effect—July 1st, 1959!

FOR INSTANCE

in Bernardsville, New Jersey—the price of milk went from 26c to 30¾c per quart in less than 3 years.

FOR INSTANCE

in New York City—the number of dairies dropped from over 40 to 5.

All As A Direct Result Of This Federal Regulation!

We don't need or want Federal Milk Controls in Maryland.

All it will do is raise the price of milk to consumers and work hardships on hard-working dairy farmers and dairymen. Federal Milk Controls will be another step toward inflation.

We repeat: this Federal Regulation will RAISE THE PRICE OF YOUR MILK.

BUT—IT CAN BE STOPPED!

YOUR SENATORS CAN GO A LONG WAY TOWARD STOPPING IT—AND THEY'RE WAITING TO HEAR FROM YOU.

NOW—TODAY—FILL IN THE BLANK—CUT IT OUT AND MAIL IT TO EITHER SENATOR J. GLENN BEALL—OR JOHN M. BUTLER—SENATE OFFICE BUILDING—WASHINGTON, D. C.—TODAY!

DO IT NOW—Time's Running Out!

CUT THIS OUT AND MAIL TODAY—
KEEP MILK PRICES DOWN!

DEAR SENATOR:
WE DON'T WANT THIS FEDERAL MILK
PRICE CONTROL IN MARYLAND. PLEASE USE EVERY EFFORT TO HAVE IT STOPPED.

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Ecclesiastes. Devotional Reading: Philippians 3:8-14.

Is Life Empty?

Lesson for August 9, 1950

THE COMMITTEE that chooses the "Uniform Lessons" represents more than 34 denominations. This quarter, as readers may have noticed, whole books of the Bible have been chosen. Unusual, indeed unique among these is the book called Ecclesiastes. It is not quoted by any New Testament writer. In fact, at the time of Christ debate was still going on among Jewish teachers as to whether to keep or discard this book from the sacred collection. It is a long way removed from the religion of the prophets, the apostles and of Jesus. For instance, it not only doubts immortality, it positively denies it. Whatever religion it presents is all of this world.

Dr. Foreman

The Religion of a Cynic It was evidently written by a cynic, or a man whose cynical moments shadowed his writings. A cynic is not necessarily a sinner, except so far as lack of faith is sin. The cynic is a man who has tasted the cup of life and found it—not so much bitter, as empty. Like a mournful refrain the words run through the book, "All is vanity and a striving after wind." "Vanity" here represents a Hebrew word which does not mean pride, but emptiness. The modern expression would be, "Nothing to it." Life (to the author of this book) is like one of the boxes you may buy in a toy store—on opening it you find another box, and when that is opened, there is another . . . and so on and on. But what is in the last box? Nothing at all. So life has gay wrappings, it promises a great deal, but at the heart of it—nothing but emptiness and a striving after wind. It is discouraging to see all the things the cynical author had found without value: work, wealth, fame, pleasure, novelty . . . Of love he only mentions it to say that there are times when hate is more appropriate. Of the life beyond he can only say "the dead know not anything." . . .

The Riddle of Ecclesiastes Now a curious thing about this book is that here and there in it are flashes of something like religion. It is religion, but (as we said) not much like what Paul and John knew. Along with all the expressions of unfaith, of cynicism, there are some expressions of faith—a chilly kind of faith to be sure, but still faith; a crocus in the snow is not a summer garden, but still it's a flower. How account for the little crocus of the author's faith in the snowy waste of his cynicism? Various answers have been given. One is that this book is a sample of what little faith man can have without revelation; another is that one man couldn't have written the whole book, but that some pious editors added religious footnotes contradicting the irreligious pages. Another explanation is that this book was written all by one man, who had various moods. In his dark moods he lost faith in nearly everything, but in his better moods he could say, "Well, in spite of all that, nevertheless . . ."

Nevertheless . . . ! For there were some things in which this poor rich man could believe. It may be true, he says, that man toils for the wind, that he seldom is rewarded in proportion to his toil; nevertheless a man may find enjoyment in the toil itself. The days of life may be few, nevertheless they can be used as well as possible while they last. God may be far away; but nevertheless there is a God, and it is stupid to act as if there were none. Of God's love, this ancient writer has no conception; of his forgiveness he feels no need. He had never been through the furnace of suffering as Job had; he suffered from having too much, not from having too little. He had never found any one to love, or to love him, we may judge. In short, this man had lived on the glittering surface of life. Nevertheless, though the deeper experiences were denied him, though he did not know God at close range, though he knew no way to love God, nevertheless he could obey God, he could pay his vows even to the distant God. If this faith of the cynic is not saving faith, it still is on the way.

BLOOD IS THE LIFE CURRENT

Blood represents Life - (it is the means they say By which Life is carried from day to day); The Spirit of Truth giveth Life, the scriptures say; So, God uses blood in all bodies of clay. This healing current runs through all bodies to-day; So, let nothing terrestrial change its course, they say; "Thou shalt decree a thing", the scriptures say; So, to be healthy and strong, that is God's way. In the legends which tell of days of old Many fabulous stories are told; But the ancient astronomers stand alone, Because of the erudition they have shown. Of a prince who had a crooked back, we are told, Who tested this law in days of old; He studied a perfect statute of himself each day; And his body grew like it in every way. Of the ringstreaked and spotted cattle in Jacob's day The Bible speaks; and, has much to say About how they all came so to be— (He hung colored hoops and rings on a tree). Greek mothers studied statuettes, so their progeny Perfect specimens of humanity might be; And the law seemed to work 9 times out of 10; For, Greece once produced some illustrious men. The patriarch Job knew this law 3000 years ago; And, it is one law we all should know; For, we build our bodies by the thoughts we think; The words we speak, and the water we drink. Our God is a Creator; and, so are we; For, in His likeness, we are said to be; So, the things which happen to you and me Are the very things we so often decree. Back of all that exists is a Master Mind— That, too, is something you shall find; So, if the thing I ask for does not come to me, It is because I don't see it when I decree. In a mental world things which appear Exist long before we see them here; So it is with diseases of every kind; They all have their origin in mind. If there is something which you greatly fear Don't let a picture of it in your mind appear; Close your eyes, your mouth, and each ear; For, the thing you dread is very near. So, let us all give ear to the distant past; In its annals many laws are classed; And, they all are intended to teach you and me On our journey from Time to Eternity. To get something the ancients always made a decree; And, that should be a custom with you and me; Your God always hears the things you say; So, He will cause things to come your way. God is always with us, the scriptures say; So, learn to know Him; and, do things His way; Always do what the real you tells you to do And, he will make a perfect man of you. When the blood stream is kept pure, they say, The body is free from disease and decay; Just so, they tell us, we all must be At the end of time; and, through all eternity. An appearance of weakness is a false sensation, they say; So, to keep well and strong, try God's way; Why in a false paradise do mortals dwell? It is God only, who keeps us well! Jesus used no drugs, the scriptures say— (Except in one instance, a handful of clay); He caused men to see their real self, they say; And, just so He made cures day after day. In your body, the Christ Life streams through every cell; So, say to your body: "I shall soon be well"; An appearance of weakness is false, they say; So, to keep well and strong, do things God's way. The spirit of truth through the blood brings Life, they say; So, to keep us well and strong, that is God's way; God never intended that you should be sick; So, listen to Him! and get well quick. God uses blood as a symbol, they say, When the Hebrews left Egypt, in that early day; The destroying angel spared the life of everyone Before the journey to Canaan had begun. So, if you would be healthy, happy and strong, Keep praising your Savior all the day long; Say to God: "Father, show me the way Through the jungles of time to the endless day. Fill me with understanding so I shall know How to serve Thee better; and how to go; Make my path so clear, as the scriptures say, That, only a fool would lose his way. Let me neither listen to men nor do as men say; Jesus said to the peoples: "I am the way"; God also said: "This is my beloved Son"; And those words were meant for everyone. God's laws are perfect, they also say; So we pay the price when we disobey; That is also a doctrine of mortal man; But, it is one of the secrets in God's great plan. God never punishes mortal man, they say; When Cain slew Abel He showed us His way; The punishment is in the deed; they say; "To make all perfect, that is His way."

THOUGHTS FOR THOUGHT

What we do with the problems of the day make us strong or weak.

Character cannot be bought for the price of a drink, but reputation can.

The way of Freedom is by adhering to the principles of freedom and by their practical observance.

Haman was hanged on the scaffold which he had built on which to hang Mordecai.

Patriotism is "God's way of training individuals for common action for unselfish ends."

—William Adams Brown

What cowards we are! We are afraid of fortune, afraid of death, afraid of each other, said Emerson.

It is much harder to leave undone what we ought to do than to do what we ought not.

a - There are 6,000,000 Alcoholics in the United States

b - Four other people at least are affected by every drunk

c - ABC Stores promote not control alcoholism

d - ABC Stores make bootlegging easy

e - ABC Stores increase revenue at the expense of human suffering, family privations, and the risk of making additional alcoholics

f - ABC Stores do not add to revenue rather they take away, for more money is spent to care for public drunks than the amount of revenue received

g - Furthermore, what shall it profit a man to gain the whole world, and lose his own life?

Daily routine is a life preserver to the aging.

really knows just about everything! He is doing everything to promote these civic affairs for the public. An evening at the stadium was delightful and all for free!

A beautiful letter arrived from Washington from our Vice President, Mr. Nixon, just before leaving for Russia telling me he would write again upon his return. Also a nice letter from Mr. Lawrence Welk.

That old saying and from a President, "Good to the last drop!" is really a fact when one drinks a cup of "Maxwell"! Your Observer dropped drinking even that morning cup of coffee and the real reason was because it was not "Maxwell" which I discovered later! As to that powdered coffee—not just the same in any brand as "cooked" coffee. Eh?

If you desire a real rest, folks, there is a grand place—a small horse farm right in Carroll County. Mrs. Albin Duvall accepts guests all year round. Rt. 1, Westminster P. O., just 3 1/2 miles from that little town. Most modern farm house and most comfortable with delicious meals served and a very "homey" individual is Mrs. Duvall.

Letters to be answered—Dear Observer, Recently, I visited an aunt of mine for the week end and I was quite surprised when she told me to remove my suit case which I was unpacking and which was on her bed, in the guest room. I was very hurt at this. Did I do anything wrong as I did not remove the suit case but continued to unpack and she did not say another word? Signed—Favorite Niece. Answer—Dear Niece, When your aunt suggested removing your suit case you should have done it immediately. Even in hotels you are not supposed to place your suit case on the bed—that is the reason each room in every hotel is equipped with a collapsible stand just for this reason. You know as well as I that your suit case in traveling has been standing on the cement floors of the station and there is always dust and grime which would soil any bed covering. Your aunt was right and you should have done immediately as she requested. A nice guest always whom I love dearly! Your Observer.

Dear Observer, I have a friend who never bathes stating the vet told her not to bathe him. She allows this dog up on all her good furniture which is ruined beyond describing and somehow I dislike to sit down on these pieces of furniture. I do not want to hurt her. Please tell me if I would be wrong in telling or suggesting about that dog. That dog even sleeps on her beautiful bed with her each night. Thank you; Signed, Constant Reader.

Answer—Dear Reader, That sounds very much like that old saying, "Love-me, love my dog"! I will answer only as to my own experience. You know I have "Sugar", my pet cocker red spaniel which I would not sell for $5,000, and I love her as much as I do a human being, yet, she would not attempt to sit on one piece of furniture! And as much as I love her she could not ever share my bed! As to a bath, everything I own as to life even a cat would get a bath. Sugar is bathed three times weekly and combed with a wire brush daily and she surely is a dream! And, believe it or not, she has never had a flea! Everyone tells me she is the most beautiful cocker they have ever seen. She minds beautifully, more so than many children and she is such a joy! How would you like it not to be bathed? The product I use for Sugar is called "Sergeant's Skip Flea Shampoo" and she is as sweet at all times that everyone loves to pick her up and hug her! Your Observer.

Have a grand week end, folks, even in this hot spell. Go to church of any denomination for after all you are sitting in "God's House" and your belief is no better than the next. Be kind and be careful always. Rest on Sunday afternoons and that way you will be as fit as a fiddle on Monday morning for your work. See you next week D. V. I am,

Comment from the Capital —

DEADLINE FOR LABOR RACKET REFORM
by Vant Neff

Let's face it. We have been delivered into the hands of the labor bosses. The high command of organized labor is - next to the U.S. Government itself - the most powerful force in America. Did we say "next to the Government?" It may be that the union bosses are the strongest force. Surely nothing now stands between them and absolute power but the 86th Congress. With only a short time left until Congress recesses, the question is: will Congress stop this abuse of power before it's too late?

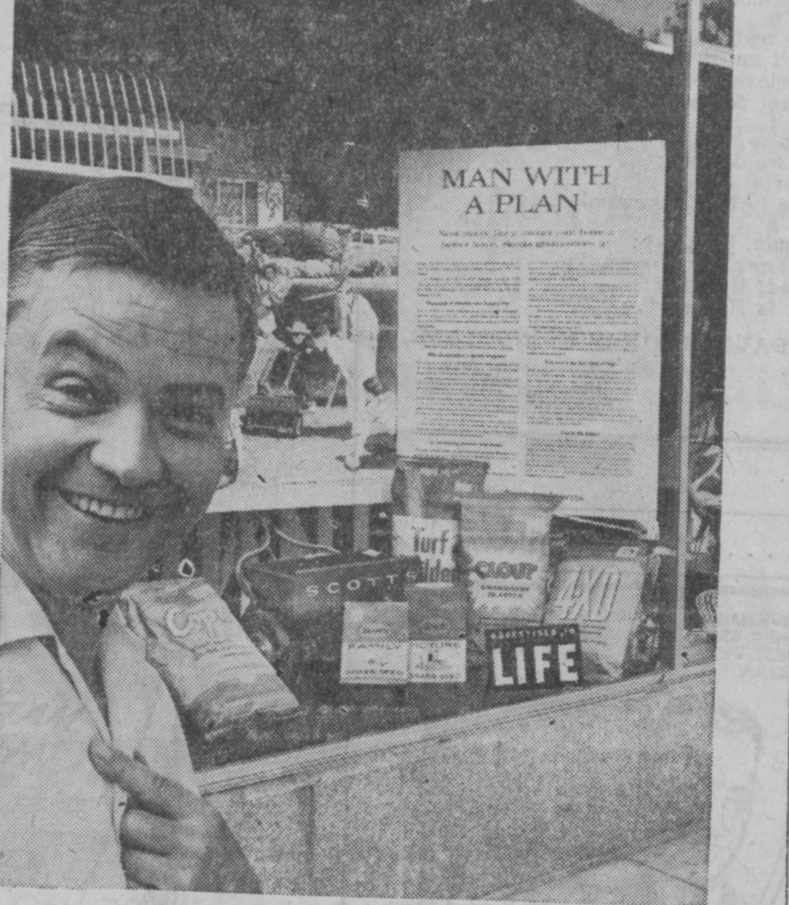

The union power grab is only too obvious. Take, for instance, the Teamsters' official who was quoted in the McClellan Committee hearings. This official admitted that what he was doing was against the law. But he boasted, "you could go to the Department of Justice and you can go to the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department, and it won't do you any good. The union has plenty of money and we would fight it."

You can see the results. Day after day the long parade of fearful men pass before the McClellan Committee... men who dare not sleep without shotguns by their bedsides... men who have seen others "purged" because they did not cooperate quickly enough to suit union gangsters... men who risk their very lives by coming before the Committee in the first place. All this is happening right here in America!

The danger signal is up. "If we cannot get effective legislation now," warned Senator McClellan, "God help the country!"

Yes, it's up to the 86th Congress. Fortunately, there is still time. The House is now considering the Kennedy-Ervin bill. It's called a "labor-reform" bill. But it is actually a labor reform bill in name only. Sure, it contains some nice words about the basic rights of working men and women. But these provisions are so watered down that they mean next to nothing. Kennedy-Ervin offers no protection against blackmail picketing... no protection from secondary boycotts. Worst of all, it does absolutely nothing about the thugs and hoodlums who have muscled in on union leadership. The Kennedy-Ervin bill is, as one Senator said, "a flea bite to a bull elephant."

And a "flea bite" won't do. The country is fed up with flea bites where a bulldog grip is needed. We must have a labor reform law with real teeth in it. The deadline is adjournment day for the 86th Congress. The time to enact a law is now!
