Cycling During Independence Day Holiday

Bike riders were warned to exercise caution and observe all traffic rules during the heavily-traveled three-day Fourth of July holiday by Police Chief Emory Hahn.

Chief Hahn noted that all through streets would be heavily traveled and urged all cyclists to confine their cycling to less crowded secondary treets and roads during the peak traffic hours.

"Bike riders should make an effort to avoid heavily-traveled traffic ar-teries during the peak traffic load hours at all times", the Chief said, "and in particular should avoid prim-ary traffic areas during this week-

The local police official stated that bike riding has grown in popularity in recent years ,ands tressed the ne-cessity of heeding all traffic rules and regulations on the part of the cyclists.
"A bike is a vehicle", he said,
"and as such it is required to obey all traffic rules and regulations."

He said that riders should wear light colored clothing at night, equip their bikes with the proper signaling and lighting equipment and be sure that their brakes are in good perating condition. Chief Hahn reminded bike riders that bike riding enters its most intensive period during the summer school races and urged all bike owners to be sure their two-wheelers are n good mechanical condition summer of care-free riding fun.

Visiting Dignitaries and Other Guests Present for Ceremony

Retiring President, Delmar E. Rif-fle gracefully handed over the gavel, symbol of his authority, to Presidentsymbol of his authority, to President-elect Glenn O. Reever at a ladies' night in Taney Inn, Tuesday, June 28, after an exhortation by the in-stalling official, Lou A. Dorsey, Woodsboro, Governor of Western Maryland District 22-W, for presi-dent, officers, and members alike to work in such harmony during the twelve months which begin July 1 that they shall even surpass the out-standing record of the year 1959standing record of the year 1959-

Lion Tamer John T. Hottinger led the singing of several appropriately nostagic songs—with Harry I. Reindollar at the piano following opening formalities by President Riffle and the invocation by the Rev. Edmund P. Welker The program, after the Inn's tasty ham dinner, was placed in charge of Past-president, Frank T. Dunham, but not before the president's introduction of guests—Governor and Mrs. Dorsey; District Governor-elect and Mrs. Harry B. Dougherty, Taneytown; International Counselor, Russell H. Marsh, Union Bridge, and Deputy District Governor and Mrs. Charles G. Petry, Westminster. A certificate of membership was presented Lion Fred B. Garner, and 100% attendance pins were given to 100% attendance pins were given to all Taneytown members by the president, with Secretary Kenneth C. Shorb assisting him.

Chairman Dunham then called upon Governor Dorsey, who, in endeavoring interestingly and yet briefly to bring some message of value, called upon his own experience to acquaint Governor-elect Dougherty with the year that lies before him: No two clubs operate in the same manner, some will sandwich him with a ten-minute limit between two announcements, or when he arrives, there will be another speaker: altogether, or somewhere else the presiding officer will say when he has sat down, "We always save the best until last, and now that is coming up". The problem of filling the demands of clubs for his presence on the self-same night presence on the selfsame night must be resolved, or another organization will say, in all seriousness, "Mail in a check for $15 for you, and your wife" to this or that affair, and so on —but with it all "the reward and the satisfaction are great and it is wently satisfaction are great, and it is worth the time, and effort, and a little mon-

Coming then directly to the installing ceremony, he said, "Your officers have the right to expect your full cooperation, your club is in the limelight this year with a district government from your rooks and his goals for Club Reporter.

S. S. Payments for Household Employees

Do you know that you are required by law to pay social security taxes for employees who work in your private household?

This requirement and other helpful information about social security are explained in a handy, four-page leaflet, "Social Security and Your Household Employee", which is available without charge.

The booklet contains a clip-out registration card for employers of house-hold workers to mail to Internal Revenue Service for tax reporting

Employers paying their maids, ooks, chauffeurs and other domestic help more than $50 in a calendar quarter of the year must make quar-terly reports to Internal Revenue. The report must be accompanied by the payment of 6% social security tax on wages paid. This tax is shared equally by employee and employer.

Free copies of the booklet are available upon request. You may get your copy by visiting or writing to the social security office located at 3107 Greenmount Avenue, Baltimore 18, Maryland. Ask for leaflet 21.

YOUR NEXT PAY RAISE

The Pioche, Nevada, Record asks an unusual question: "How do you want your next pay raise--in more money or in lower prices?"

This was prompted by a statement made by Dr. Ralph Robey, a nationally known economist. nSice World ally known economist. Since World War II, he points out, almost every American worker has received a wage increase every year. He then says: "In my personal judgment the time has come to start using the entire growth in output per man-hour for a reduction of prices. This will not undermine the welfare of workers. It would mean that their present wages would buy more and more as the cost of living declined. That certainly is better than getting slightly higher wages which buy less and

This proposal is sure to receive the back-of-the-hand treatment from labor union officials, who seem to work on the principle that their duty is to force round after round of wage increases on the country, no matter how much inflation accompanies them. But what does the worker gain if his wage increases are cancelled out, or more, by prices? What does he gain if the worth of his old-age pension and other benefits are imperilled by the endless wage-price - spiral? And what happens to other millions of people who must exist in whole or large part on fixed dollar incomes?

A VOICE OF CARROLL (Feesersburg)

Occasionally we hear it said that it does not matter what a person believes so long as he does the right thing. There is in other words, a endency among some people to emphasize the importance of action or leeds and to place less stress on the importance of beliefs and convic-tions. But ideas are the foundation of action and a person is not likely to make any determined effort unless he believes something. Ideas and be-liefs tend to express themselves in actions. Communism as we know would never have come into being Marx had not laid its foundations his philosophy; once men accepted his ideas, it was almost inevitable that these ideas should be expressed in action. There is a deep tendency all of us to become whatever we think ourselves to be. As a result ideas have a tendency to become the decisive power in human history. The capacity to believe is the most significant and fundamental human faculty, and the most important thing about a man is what he believes in the depth of his being. This is the thing that makes him what he is; the thing that organizes him and feeds him; the thing that beens him. feeds him; the thing that keeps him going in the face of all odds; the thing that gives him courage and drive. Let confusion, indifference or skeptic ism enter this inner place, and the very springs of life will cease to flow. Men will quit, lose heart, yield flow. give up, become bitter or cynical, commit suicide, become a criminal or retreat into a world of phantasy. In a broad sense, a person's belief or philosophy is the pattern on which his whole life will be based. Life forces us to make decisions. If we are to decide wisely, we need a sound philosophy. We must establish standards and goals that will meet the tests of time and a sense of direction which our children will gladly follow. The Baltimore Sun last week gave the people of Union Bridge a nice write-up on the proposed Recreational Center to be built on the land donated by Mrs. Earle Shriner. The Sun labeled the project a "Do-it-yourself" affair because nearly all the 874 residents in Union Bridge will have a part in the Center before it is completed. With so much publicity and good will expressed already about the undertaking there seems little doubt that the twelve acre recreation site will become a thing of beauty and a joy forever to Union Bridge and its citizens.

Mrs. Gately Flynn, of Pleasant Valley has purchased the Fleagle property in Uniontown and is now in the process of restoring the old home. From experience we know how much un and satisfaction comes from working with an old house and trying to restore it to its original beauty. Its a challenge to take a tired and neglected house and use one's ideas and muscles to bring it back to beauty and charm. We will watch with in terest the transformation that Mrs. Flynn will give her historically old salt-box house. The people of Uniontown are proud of their maple trees and houses that have stood over a hundred years or more. They are always happy to have people move into the town that appreciate the maple trees and love the simple old homes

We seem not to be able to get away from polls. There seems to be a dozen going on each week; maybe more. Anyway we are always interested in the ones they do on young people for we want to know what the young citizens of our country are thinking. It seems that few boys and girls today admire the "rebel" any more. Even in colleges inves-tigators find that most of the students do not admire the type of young man or girl who wants to go his or ner own way and has the courage and brains to do it. Three out of four students believe that the ability to get along with people is the most important thing. And judging from the state of the world, they are entirely right. Conforming to the group rather than going it alone is the law of the new generation. The herd instinct has never been more apparent than now. It may be due to the feeling of uneasiness and anxiety that belonging to a group gives one security. Every new batch of young adults has its own ideas about cer-tain trends and its wise to allow them to explore their own ideas, and to learn by experience whether they are on the right or wrong track. Though this years earthquakes in Chili were severe and created untold suffering, such disasters aer not new to the country. Three times the city of Concepcion was destroyed by quakes and tidal waves. It was ruin ed in 1570, again in 1657, and again in 1751. After that last time it was rebuilt on its present'site, higher and safe from the sea, much against the protest of the clergy who considered quakes and tidal waves as visitation, from God, and any provision against them as sin. Altogether Chile has now suffered over thirty devastating earthquakes and tidal waves, culmi nating in the most disastrous one of all, on January 24, 1939, which killed 10,000 people and destroyed numer ous towns and cities. No final figure have been released in the quake that hit Chili this year and so the latest one may have been the worst of them all. But Chili has survived in spite of all these disasters and its people deserve our respect and help for their bravery and fortitude. Americans are giving generously with money, clothng and medical supplies to help the Chillean people in their latest trag-edy, and it is fitting that they should do this. The richest country in the world, that rarely suffers a national calamity, should be willing to share its wealth with a sister democracy who every few years is shaken to its foundation by the pranks of mother nature.

Be ashamed to die before you have won some victory for humanity .-Horace Mann. A hypocrite is one who pretends to be burying the hatchet when he is only digging up dirt. Two things often keep people from taking a vacation. The first one is getting everything necessary for the rip in three suitcases and

Keys To Confidence Here are seven keys to confidence on your vacation trip—simple car-checks that many motorists forget. Protect your pleasure by asking your dealer to check: The crankcase breather. It must be clean to let gas fumes escape properly.

2. The gas filter. A dirty filter can hinder the flow of gasoline to the engine.

3. The oil filter. If it gets too clogged, a bypass valve opens, letting unfiltered oil reach the engine.

4. Spark plugs. Obvious, but when were yours last cleaned or replaced?

5. The distributor. Check for pitted or worn points. Even if they look all right, a good cleaning and a little lubricant is recommended. 6. The thermostat. This governs the flow of water through the cooling system. A severe winter, dirt, rust or corrosion can throw it off, leading to summer troubles.

7. The air filter. Only if it's kept free of dirt can it let the right supply of air reach the carburetor to provide the correct mixture of air and gas.

Fall Fertilizing Offers Benefits Plant Food Ready For Use in Spring

Midwestern agronomists list these benefits from adding fertilizer in the fall:

1—Farmers save time and work in the spring, when every minute counts.

2-There is no storage problem. The plant food is in the ground, ready for immediate use by crops in the spring.

3—The ground is usually firmer in the fall. Machinery pulls easier and there is less damage from packing down the soil.

4-In the fall, farmers find it easier to get the exact ferilizer ratio and grade they want. 5—Plowing down in the fall puts the fertilizer in moist soil. This increases its efficiency in dry years. 6-It is easier to take soil samples in the summer months and you get quicker return of results. 7.-When permanent pastures are top-dressed in the fall with fertilizer, cattle have extra days of grazing. Top-dressing meadows with phosphate and potash cuts down winter kill of legumes, promotes quick spring growth and helps hold the legume in the legume-grass mixtures.

Fall-fertilized pasture (right) in Wisconsin tests makes quicker, thicker growth, gives cattle more forage, extra grazing days.

The agronomists point out that on sandy soils it may not pay to add nitrogen in the fall because losses of this element sometimes occur. The same may be true on well-drained loam or clay soils under heavy rainfall in fall or winter.

Consumers Will Pay More for Lean Pork

There's a market for lean pork but not enough lean pork for the market reports National Live Stock Producer, the live stock magazine.

A recent survey in Illinois proved that consumers would buy twice as many lean pork chops priced 10¢ a pound higher than fat chops. Even an 18¢ a pound premium for lean chops didn't faze housewives. They wanted lean pork.

Despite consumer preference for lean pork, the average weight and lard yield of hogs is increasing. The average hog marketed in 1953-55 weighed 241 pounds or 9.7 pounds more than the average 231.3 pound hog marketed in 1937-39. Weight has gone up 4% but lard yield per hog is up 24%.

Our present method of marketing hogs is not reflecting consumer desires back to hog producers. Consequently hog producers are not producing the quantity of lean pork that consumers want and will buy at premium prices.

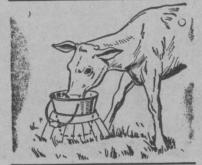

First, farmers must raise and market the type and weight of hogs desired and have them ready when the market wants them.

Next, the markets must be able to identify the differences in hog values—indicating to farmers what grade processors want, what weights and when certain hog weights are wanted. "

Third, processors must buy according to the value of meat derived from the hog and sell to wholesalers and retailers on the basis of what the consumer wants.

Finally, grades and standards for pork at retail should be developed to follow consumer preferences and merchandising and pricing of pork products.

A sunken nail keg will hold feed pail for young calf and eliminate the task of holding the pail at proper height for feeding. Keg is partially imbedded, and earth is shoveled into keg to help anchor it securely.

It's The Fourth!

Celebrating the Fourth of July is always a good excuse to cut loose for a romping good time. You say to yourself, there isn't any more sense in celebrating the Fourth alone than there would be in not sharing Christmas with others, and you know, you

If this is your thinking then start right now to plan a party. Should you send invitations, or call? It's more exciting to send invitations, but make them novel! To start you off with an idea, you might try making them in the form of a firecracker. Compose your own invitation — something about lighting the fire for an evening of fun. You may make them out of a fairly heavy red paper or red mat stock, white crepe paper, patriotic seals and paste. Cut a piece of red paper, 4¼ by 5¼. Across the horizontal bottom, paste a 2½" wide strip of white crepe paper with a 2" overhang on one side. Print the invitation in the inside of the red paper, in white ink. Roll paper loosely and hold at ends with patriotic seals, twist white crepe paper strip very tightly to represent fuse. Then, for table decorations, try a STAR NUT CUP which can be done by using Lily paper cup, blue, white and red crepe paper and paste.

Wrap a 1" wide band of blue crepe paper around the base of the Lily paper cup. Overlap this strip at the top of the cup with a 1" wide strip of red. Cut a strip of white crepe, 2" wide, 12" long and paste around the inside of the cup, gathering as you paste. Stretch edge of white and bend over top of cup. Decorate white ruffle with red and blue star seals and a double bow of red and blue crepe pasted to ruffle.

For centerpiece, cover a large paper bucket with alternating strips of red, white and blue, frilled crepe paper, with flowers of the same color to finish it off. The entertaining part of your party can fall into any category your crowd especially enjoys such as dancing, games, charades, etc.

Spiced Peaches Go With Any Barbecue

Now that peaches are at the height of their glory eat plenty of them for low-in-calorie, between-meal snacks. Have them for the hastiest breakfast, too. Here's the trick: After slicing, pour over them a solution of 1 part honey and 2 parts water. In one stroke, this sweetens the peaches and keeps them from turning brown. Fix them thus the night before. Put them into the refrigerator and they're ready for all . . . whether your family eats in relays or all together. Served over cereal they make the perfect meal in a bowl.

Spruced up a bit peaches lend any meal a gourmet touch. The National Peach Council suggests this: Serve them warm from a pretty copper pan or chafing dish. Indoors or outdoors, they're the ultimate grace note for a barbecue.

Fresh Spiced Brandy Peaches (Makes 6 servings) 6 fresh peaches ½ cup honey

1/4 cup vinegar 2 pieces whole stick cinnamon 2 tablespoons peach brandy

1 cup brown sugar, pack firm Put 1½ quarts water into 2 or 3-quart pan. Bring to boil. In a 2 or 3-quart pan mix honey, water, sugar, vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly, over high heat until mixture boils. Turn heat very low. Simmer 10 minutes. While sauce simmers, put peaches into boiling water for 1 minute. Then plunge peaches, at once, into cool water. Strip off skins. Cut into halves. Remove pits. Add brandy and 6 peach halves to hot honey sauce. Cook 10 minutes over low heat. Keep spooning honey-brandy sauce over peaches. Put peaches into serving dish. Cook remaining 6 peach halves the same way. Pour sauce over peaches in serving dish. Serve hot, at room temperature, or chilled. Top with ice cream, pudding- or whipped cream. Or serve with pork, poultry or ham as a garnish or accompaniment.

Vegetable Deluxes

Chee-Scalloped Cauliflower

A year-'round vegetable favorite makes a fresh springtime appearance in a new version, "Chee-Scalloped Cauliflower", that's an elegant addition to any menu. Easy on the budget, and very easy to prepare, this new dish gets all its delicious cheese flavor from crushed inch-square cheese crackers used with tomato soup in making the sauce. More of the same tasty crackers are crumbled over the top for extra flavor accent. A single medium-size cauliflower makes four generous servings. Here's how:

Chee-Scalloped Cauliflower

er, or 1 pkg. frozen cauliflower $1 \frac{10\frac{1}{2}}{\text{-oz.}}$ can cream of tomato soup 1 cup crushed Cheez-It

1 medium head of cauliflow- 1 teaspoon instant onion

2 teaspoons chopped fresh parsley, or 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Remove outer stalks from head of cauliflower; separate flowerettes and cook in boiling salted water for 10 minutes. Or, cook frozen cauliflower as package directs. Drain. Arrange in greased 1-quart casserole. Blend together tomato soup, half of cheene cracker crumbs, onion and parsley. Pour over cauliflower. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs and dot with butter. Bake, uncovered, at 375°F. (moderately hot oven) for 20 minutes, or until sauce is bubbly hot. Makes 4 servings bubbly hot. Makes 4 servings.

Attention Small Milk Producers

We have now established in this area milk routes offering the small producer a milk market, who at present feels he does not wish to meet the requirements for Grade A, also those farmers who do not wish to invest and risk a large amount of cash in calves or sell cream

Any one interested in a steady year around cash income from a small herd of dairy cows without expensive alterations and costly requirements can benefit from our market. There is no barn inspection required—the only requirements are good milk cans, a strainer and electric milk cooler. Address all inquires to:

Speakers For God

Lesson for July 3, 1960

"OMORROW" is almost a ■ magic word. It is the wonderful day when our dreams are going to come true. It can also be the black day of dread, the day when we get what is coming to us, the day when we have to pay for our follies and our sins. Sometimes neither dreams nor nightmares collect around that word "Tomorrow," it is a word of mystery. We do not know what is going to happen, and we wish we did. Of

No crystal ball

Now there have been men and women who profess to have that inside peek. Sometimes they do it with tea-leaves, sometimes with a crystal ball, sometimes they claim to have a friend on the "other side" who gives out special information. Sometimes they just "see" tomorrow by shutting their eyes. But it is very seldom that such people are highly respected. They are regarded as rather comic characters -Old Man Mose for example. Crystal balls appead in countless cartoons. Sensible people don't take them reiously-for the good reason that most forecasters make too many mistakes. If the tealeaf reader really could tell you which stocks would go up, she would be much richer than she ever will be by telling fortunes.

A large part of the Bible was written by "prophets;" and they are low-rated by many who ought to get better acquainted with them. They are low-rated because the very word "prophet" suggests crystal balls, palm-reading and all that stuff. As a matter of fact, the Bible word "prophet" did not mean fore-caster. It meant spokesman, a person who has the authority to speak for another. The Other for whom the Bible prophets spoke, of course is GOD.

One of the greatest prophets, Jeremiah, once drew a clear line between a genuine prophet and a fake. If a man has a dream, he said, let him tell it if he likes; but a Word from God is another thing altogether. Prophets said what they said because they knew what God wanted them to say. When a man thinks what God wants him to think, especially if no one has ever had the thought before, we call it Revelation. And if a man who has had a revelation feels the urge to write it or to preach it, that is called Inspiration. Revelation has to do with the truth as it bursts (or perhaps grows quietly) within a man's mind. Inspiration has to do with passing on God's truth to others. The point is, the prophets of the Bible never said "I think," "I guess," "The probabilities are

'-they all said "Thus saith the Lord." Of course the woods were full of people saying "Thus said the Lord," and it was pretty confusing at the time. Who knew who was right, or whether any of them were? But history, which in a sense is the handwriting of God, sifted out true from false prophets. Men and nations who took heed, and men and nations that paid no attention, found out in time who were the real spokesmen for God.

Prophet and people

The Sunday School lessons, as followed by the more than 80 denominations using the "Uniform Lessons," are going to be looking at some outstanding Old Testament prophets for the next three months. We should try to get it straight in our minds that a prophet and a priest were two different things. A priest had an official position; a prophet had none. Priests were very well paid, but prophets drew no salary, and some (like Amos) were very poor. Priests were born to their positions; only men of certain old families could be priests at all. Prophets might be distinguished and wealthy men; most of them were neither, at the time. Priests kept their mouths shut. They were supposed to teach, but they generally neglected to do this. Prophets could not keep their mouths shut. God had given them something to say. Jeremiah once said that when he tried to keep silence, the Word within him was like a fire in his bones. These men had to speak.

Home Can Tomato Juice

but don't overlook tomato juice. It is not only superb as a beverage, but is handy for use all winter long in making soups and aspics and for cooking stews and pot roasts. In preparing tomatoes for juice, there is none of the bother of peeling the tomatoes. The same household food mill you use all year around for mashing, ricing and straining can do the chore for you. If you don't own a food mill, then here is the perfect excuse to get one.

Home Canned Tomato Juice For each quart of tomato juice, you will need 3 to 31/2 pounds of tomatoes. A bushel of tomatoes will be enough to make 12 to 16 quarts of juice. Select firm, red-ripe tomatoes avoiding those with cracks or decayed spots. Prepare only enough for one canner load at a time. Wash and rinse the tomatoes; quarter and cut out white core and stems. Place in kettle and simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, until soft. Put tomatoes through the food mill into a bowl or into another kettle. Add 1 tea-spoon salt for each quart of juice. Reheat juice just to the point of boiling. Pour the hot juice into hot scalded jars to within 1/4 inch of the top. Remove air bubbles. Wipe around top of jar. Cap and screw the Take jars from bath and set two or three inches apart on several thicknesses of cloth and let cool, about 12 hours. Remove bands; if dome is down or stays down when pressed, jar is sealed. Or test for seal, following jar manufacturer's directions.

To Prepare

If you don't have a boiling water bath canner, an ordinary kettle with a cover and a rack in the bottom may be used. The rack should hold the jars about 1/2 inch above the bottom of the canner and the kettle should be deep enough for water to cover the jars at least one inch over the top without boiling over.

6 Before beginning the preparation of the tomatoes, fill the canner about half full of water and heat the water over low heat. The water should be hot but not boiling when you put in the jars for processing. After the jars are in the can-ner, add boiling water to cover. have the same pink-colored cere. But look closer — the male bird's cere is usually more pronounced, with a livid look about it as though it is trying to burst through its skin. Also, inside the nostril you can see the eventual blue pigmentation just beginning to show. You'll need a good light for this! With a female paralect the installant the protein. keet the inside of the nostril will be rimmed with a color like skimmed milk. Estimating age is easier. The budgie retains his "nest feathers" until his first moult, which usually starts when he's about three months old. And his appearance is very distinctive.

The forehead is ered by trans verse wavy lines of dark gray right down to the eventually be, there is only a light flecking of black or dark gray. It is at this stage of development that budgies are known as "barrheads." Finally, the eye is full and round and completely black all over — and this is the bird you want.

Recognize an adult budgie by the sweep of clear yellow or white from the cere up over the weeks old.

How do you tell the sex of a baby budgie? With adults it's easy, because the cere (that spongy lump at the top of the beak) is blue on a male and brown or putty-colored on a brown or putty-colored on a training point of view. so don't be persuaded into buying it.

Stop cutting brush . . kill it chemically with Reddon

It's REDDON*-the all-season farm brush killer. Use Reddon as a foliage spray in pastures and along fence rows during the growing season. Or you can use Reddon as a "frill," basal, or stump treatment any time of the year. It even controls tough species like oak and maple. Brush requires up to 10 times the amount of moisture and fertility needed by desirable plants. Eliminate the brush that shades crops and crowds out pasture grasses . . . order Reddon now Trademark of The Dow Chemical Company
