A Reply to Recent Letters that Appeared in The Garroll Record

First of all, I think it was good that the letter was printed. At least from the standpoint that at last this conception concerning new industry has been brought publicly into the open and can be publicly answered by those "in the know". In fact, I think we deserve a complete and factual answer. However, after investigating some of these rumors myself many months ago, I am satisfied in my own mind that there was no basis whatsomonths ago, I am satisfied in my own mind that there was no basis whatso-ever to them. At least the fairly recent ones. Black and Decker, for example, found exactly what they were looking for in their present location. It is extremely doubtful if they would have considered building near Taneytown, no matter how extraordinary an town, no matter how extraordinary an offer we might have extended. The more I get around over Northern Maryland in my work, the more I am beginning to appreciate the efforts which have been put forth in this field by someone here in Taneytown. And believe me, I had nothing more than passive interest in it. than passive interest in it.

I was born and raised in this little town. Sure, I gripe and complain and fuss and argue about things, too, but when some jerk calls it a Zoo, he's in effect inferring that me and my neighbors are a herd of stupid, wild animals, and I for one resent it. There are surely many who love this community, for all its short-comings, and are happy here. If they were not, they would be calling for Moving Vans. There are no gates, no iron bars, no fences, little animal. If you don't like us, you can run away!

Dear Editor:

Two weeks ago an open letter appeared in your paper addressed to the citizens of Taneytown from a little animal. I must say that I was terribly disappointed that there was not an answer last week from those in authority who could have set the record straight. Perhaps their reply will appear this week.

I was tempted to answer some of the statements last week, but then lost my nerve. However, I now have heard enough people question this gem, that I must put in my two-cents worth.

Sunday, Your Observer was one of the group which attended the Church Services at Jessop "The House of Correction." The Chairman of The Council of Churches managed the entire Service and she surely is in the "Know How" the way the entire affair was planned with the talent of several of the prisoners. All were women prisoners and only four White along with all those Colored. One of fair was planned with the talent of several of the prisoners. All were women prisoners and only four White along with all those Colored. One of those white young women became hysterical as a Hymn was being sung by one of the Colored women. No one knows, Folks what is in the hearts of those women! I sat there and wept all the time as I had studied each face as they came through the door to the Pews. It was an experience that I long will remember!

A Film which every one should see and is now at the Hippodrome is "MEIN KAMPF"! We have read about much of it and seen some on T. V. but, Folks this is all deeper and the scenes of horror of that picture is almost unbelieveable! We wonder how in these days, that such a crime could be committed? I often wonder if it could be thus:—I have always noticed that when the Jewish people are massacred, that the country falls! Read back in history and you will learn. Could all the Chaos now existing throughout the world be the direct cause of punishment to us of those dear Jewish people? I asked a German bride as she landed in New York City who was one of the last brides at the time coming to America what the Germans really thought and this is the reply that she gave to me, 'Oh ve taught it vas vonderful for Hitler vas looking out for the Goimans by killing dose Jews and ve yould get all their possessions—der homes, money, jewelry and their jobs!" Never will I forget the light in her eyes and that smile as she told it to me! See what I mean, Folks? But don't miss that picture for it will teach you plenty—all in a civilized world! There is even so much more than that which is coming out now through the trial of Eichmann. His punishment should be to retrace every step to the very end as he put those Jewish people through—as we are taught—GOD'S CHOSEN

Well, the Film Colony always have stated that the death in that community means three of those famous. This time it was Grant, Clark and Joan Davis! They are always jittery and it does seem odd! Plus the Writer of 500 songs who collapsed and died on the stage in Chicago. Never will I forget the catchy tune which was all his, "I WONDER WHO'S KISSING HER NOW?"

He was assisted by the Rev. Dr. M. R. Hamsher, former pastor of Rev. Jennings, and the first President of the Central Pennsylvania Synod. Interment took place in Trinity Cemetery, Taneytown, Md.

The very large assemblage in attendence at the services attested to the high esteem in which Pastor Jennings was held by the Clergy, by the members of his own congregation and the members of Taneytown's other churches.

His passing represents a great loss to his large circle of friends, but is recognized and accepted as a prometric process.

Town Election Get Out and Vote

The Jaycees of Taneytown urge all eligible citizens to cast their vote for three town councilmen on Monday. June 5th. The records show that during past elections as little as approximately 10% of the qualified citizens in Taneytown actually come out and vote. This means that 90% of the citizens of our town willingly sit back and take every thing for granted forfeiting their sole and precious right which a land of democracy affords. Let's remember that on ceived his Commercial Diploma from Taneytown Jr. - Sr. High School in 1957.

PERSPECTIVE FOR PARENTS

The recent death on the diamond of a nine-year-old Little Leaguer from a pitched ball that struck him over the heart, struck a tragic blow also at every one of the 5,400 Little Leagues around the world and the million youngsters playing in them.

But the very fact that this has been the first fatality we have heard of in all the years of Little League play, is in itself a splendid tribute to excellent coaching and effective supervision of this vast adventure in sport and recreation. It would only compound the tragedy if this incident were to deny this carefully supervised play to our youngsters, leaving them to the more perilous alternative of undirected

There is one area of Little League play, however, as pointed out by Coach Donald R. McNeil in the June Reader's Digest, in which there is serious need of reform. This lies not with the eager young players or the hundreds of public-spirited fathers who donate 10 to 15 hours a week as umpires, coaches and managers, but with all too many Little League parents.

The oldsters, Mr. McNeil charges, are losing sight of the fact - in their demands of professional expertness that this is a sport designed for children eight to twelve years old. All too many parents, he says, are applying the pressure to win - through their behavior in the stands and in harping on errors and failures after the game - so as to obscure the basic facts of sportsmanship, teamwork and fair play. Mr. McNeil is scathing in his criticism of fathers and mothers who abuse their sons before their teammates, officials and other parents for not playing like professionals.

"My blood still boils," he writes, "as I recall the mother screaming epithets at her eager little boy of ten who unluckily got caught off base for the third out. And the foghorn-voiced father who dictated from the stands, by shouts and hand signals, what pitches his boy should make when in trouble out on the mound. And the fathers who pay money for hits: extra money for extra base hits - ten dollars for a home run in one family I know. At this point, Little League baseball loses its purpose."

The McNeil article, "Little Leagues Aren't Big Leagues" is must reading for all Little League parents and uncles and aunts, brothers and sisters, too.

Policyholder Questions Answered by the Institute of Life Insurance

Q. I've heard a lot of talk from some agents about how they can help us policyholders "get more protection from your present policies without paying any more money." Is such a thing possible?

A. Yes, it is sometimes possible and one of the first things a life insurance agent will do for a new client is to check over all of his existing insurance to see if something can be added to his protection within the premium money now being paid. For instance, if he has some of his insurance on a quarterly or monthly premium basis, it might be possible to put it all on an annual premium basis and then rearrange payments so as to keep a periodic payment plan. This might save enough to add some extra protection. For example, through such a basis, a man with $15,000 of insurance increased his protection to $18,000, without any additional payment. Also, some people add to their protection by using their policy dividends to buy paid-up insur-ance additions. Then, too, if you have a high-premium endowment policy and need more protection, it might be possible to have your company exchange the endowment for a straight life policy, if you are still insurable. This would give you materially more protection for the same premium.

Q. What is a "non-forfeiture value" in a policy?

A. All life insurance policies except term insurance have nonforfeiture values-which are the values in cash or some form of pre-paid insurance, available to the policyholder if he stops paying premiums. These values grow as premium payments are continued. They may be taken either in cash; or as "extended insurance," that is continuation of the full amount of the policy for as long as this value will pay the term insurance premium; or reduced paid-un insurance, which continues insurance protection without further premiums, o but for a reduced amount. The details of these values are spelled out in your policy and you should read them and be familiar with them,

A VOICE FROM CARROLL

Whenever we see a Diesel engine pulling a string of freight cars, a wave of nostalgia for the old steam engine or nostalgia for the old steam engine sweeps over us. For our youthful days were spent in a railroad town where the steam engine was king and goverened our lives like one. We were maybe this one is suffering from a dull then. The ringing of the yard engine bells, the hissing steam and the shrieking whistles of the big passenger engines being over-hauled at the repair shops kept the town always in a holiday mood. The people absorbed this mood too, for they were well aware of the importance of the railroad and also of the men who drove the trains across the land in sun and roin in ice and biggard. rain, in ice and blizzard. As a child we loved to hear the rumble of the freight trains coming down or going up the steep grades, but we loved best the passenger trains, sometimes pulled by two huge steam engines, flashing by with adventure humming with every turn of the wheels on the tracks. The last car with the observation platform was to us the very best way to see the country. Now, the railroads are in deep trouble. It is in evidence everywhere in the town where once the steam engine reigned supreme and no one ever dreamed that it would be put aside by a Diesel that has neither steam, romance or even a good sized noise maker.

What has happened to "Bismark" the Charley McCarthy of our radio station WTTR? We miss his abstract jokes and modern philosophy. Some-times our musical taste rebelled at some of the records played over our favorite station but we never turned it off for we wanted to hear Bismark's clever remarks. We do hope that noth clever remarks. We do hope that nothing has happened to him. It would just be like Charley McCarthy to be jealous of him and mow him down."

Marylanders may be interested to know what one English newspaper thinks about our politics. It says, and we quote: "Marylanders, who take a kind of morbid pride in the open chicanery of their political system, have been surprised out of their usual cynicism by what has been hapusual cynicism by what has been happening in their Legislature. The immediate cause is a pair of bills to regulate the building-and-loan industry which are uncontrolled in two states...Maryland and Alaska. In Maryland the bulk of this business, perhaps 90 percent of it, is concentrated in 73 firms with assets around $1.2 billions which is insured by the run, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers, 11., son Mark, Mrs. Bessie Freet and Mrs. Walter Myers, Sr. this place and Pamla Albaugh, Frederick.

One way to get the post office out Mrs. Grant Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Claude Selby called on Mr. and Mrs. Charley Smith and son and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Reddick and daughter on the control of the red is to stop printing so many different kind of stamps. This suggestion will make stamp collectors turn purple, but for those who buy turn purple, but for those who buy stamps to just get a letter to it's des tination it makes common sense. Every time a new stamp is issued, the ar tist must be paid to design it; the engraver must be paid to put it on a printing plate and printing a new stamp cost extra and so on and on. Sometimes the stamp is so big that when its attached to the letter there is no place for the address. This is the time of year when all volunteer Fire companies put out an effort to raise money. The most popular method is the carnival. Some people complain that there are too many carnivals but no one complains that there are too many Fire Companies. We would hate to see the carnival disappear from the American scene, for it should remain as a part of every childhood. It brings people together for a pleasant evening. Parents bring their small children in a festive mood and older people come for good food and entertainment. And while everyone enjoys themselves, the Fire Departments earn much needed money. Carnivals have more uses than abuses. They are really community projects for it takes many man hours to have a successful one. Every community takes pride in its Volunteer Fire Department. Miss Jean Luckenbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Luckenbaugh, Taneytown, Md. became the bride of Dr. Francisco G. Japzon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ramon Japzon, Cebu City, Philippines, in Holy Trinity Church, Washington, D.C. on May 20. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Fr. Alfred Kienle, amidst a setting of pink gladioli and candles. Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a chapel-length lace gown, fashioned with three-quarterlength sleeves and a bouffant skirt length sleeves and a bouldant skirt, featuring a scalloped hemline. Her veil fell from a matching lace cap, accented with pearls. She carried a white Prayerbook, topped with a white orchid, surrounded by carnations, gift of the groom. Miss Carol Borig, Baltimore, Md. was the maid of honor. She wore a light blue maid of honor. She wore a light blue batiste dress, with matching headpiece and gloves, and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses. Dr. Silvino Muneses was the best man. The reception was held following the The reception was held following the ceremony. For a short wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride wore a two-piece black and white cord dress with black and white accessories, and the corsage lifted from her prayerbook. The couple presently reside at 2417 Maryland Avenue, Baltimore 18, Md. and are both employed at South Baltimore General Hospital, Baltimore, Md.

SALMONBURGERS A SUMMERTIME FAVORITE

If YOU have never tried serving canned salmon between hamburger buns in place of ground meat, you have missed a treat. Not only are the fish cakes colorful and appetizing. but tender, moist and flavorful. Salmon is high in protein, low in calories, and a 1-pound can will make 6 large salmonburgers.

Salmon has been nourishing the human race and delighting human palates since prehistoric times. Today, thanks to modern canning methods, it is becoming known more widely than ever as a cosmopolitan food fish.

The protein in salmon is a complete protein, in the same food group as meat and poultry, cheese and eggs. When you serve salmon, you're serving the kind of food that your family needs every day. And if you're counting calories, you'll be glad to know that four ounces of salmon contain only 150 calories, while four ounces of lamb chops contain

Pineapple-Strawberry Cheesecake

Here's an exciting party dessert.

Cheese cake has the well-earned reputation of being a classic in many lands. Elegant cheese cakes are also the specialties in many famous restaurants.

Here's a home-made version combining cottage cheese and cream cheese in a graham-cracker crust, topped with a luscious glaze of golden pineapple tidbits and ruby red strawberries.

PINEAPPLE-STRAWBERRY CHEESE CAKE 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin 1 cup fine-curd cottage cheese 3/4 cup sugar 1/4 teaspoon salt

1 (8-ounce) package cream 3 tablespoons lemon juice 1/2 cup whipping cream
1 #211 can (11/2 cups) pineapple tidbits syrup 1 tablespoon grated lemon Graham-cracker crust: Mix 1½ cups fine graham-cracker crumbs with ½ cup melted butter or margarine. Press into bottom and around sides 2-inches deep in 8-inch spring form. Bake 10 minutes at 350°F. Cool.

2 cups pineapple juice or

Mix gelatin, sugar, salt, pineapple juice and lemon rind in saucepan. Stir over low heat until gelatin is melted. Cool slightly. Force cottage cheese through sieve and mix with cream cheese. Work with a fork until soft then blend in a little of the melted gelatin. Gradually blend in all the gelatin and lemon juice, a small portion at a time. Beat until it is smooth and creamy. Set in freezer or refrigerator to quick-chill till it will mound but is not set. Whip cream until stiff but not dry. Drain pineapple and fold half the pineapple and whipped cream into gelatin. Spoon carefully into crumb crust. Chill several hours.

Pineapple-Strawberry Glaze: Slice 1 cup strawberries, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons sugar. Crush 1 cup strawberries and force through sieve. Blend 2 teaspoons gelatin and ¼ cup sugar with crushed berries. Stir over low heat till melted. Add 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Cool till syrupy. Arrange sliced berries and rest of pineapple tidbits on top of cheese cake in an attractive pattern. Spoon glaze over to cover. Chill till glaze sets. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

Time For Coffee

Two-story percolators — so high they go right through the ceiling - brew instant coffee at the Maxwell House plant in Hoboken, New Jersey, the world's largest. They work just like the family coffeepot at home, despite their size — but there the resemblance ends. Continuous operations keep these percolators brewing coffee 24 hours a day to satisfy the nation's thirst. From here the coffee goes to giant spray dryers where it is converted into soluble form. Instant products now account for a third of all U.S. coffee consumption, according to the

Who Controls The Hospitals?

There are more than 6,000 voluntary, non-profit hospitals in this country. Who runs them? The public! Community hospitals were once just pest-houses for contagious disease victims. The president of the nation's first voluntary hospital was Benjamin Franklin who, in 1751, helped his friend,

Ever since, when a comm nity has needed a hospital, its citizens have organized to raise funds, oversee construction and appoint as Board of Trustees or Governors. These trustees, serving without pay, must detheir responsible positions. They must see that the bopital gives the best service

What's It About? Lesson for June 4, 1961

WHAT'S it all about? Once in a while we sit down and ask ourselves that question. It's the biggest question there is,-or it can be, depending on what you mean by the little word "it." football stadium with 22 men running this way and that, in the middle of it, and with 100,000 plainly crazy people filling all the seatsyou can explain the game and you can maybe explain why the viewers act crazy. Dr. Foreman A supermarket, a school, a hospital, and so forth, you can understand them after a fashion. They fit in, they make

But does life make sense? Bits and pieces of it do. But what's life all about? Does life, my life, your life, the life of mankind, fit into any conceivable pattern, or is it a meaningless madness in the midst of an empty universe?

A Strange Book

The strangest book in the Bible was written by a man who was haunted by this question. Does life make sense, and if so, what? The book called Ecclesiastes tells of this man's search for the meaning of life, and of his conclusions. What makes the book strange is not the question. It is the answers that are strange, or rather the answer. For his main conclusion is that we don't know. The writer of Ecclesiastes is what might be called a tired cynic. He had tasted the cup of life and found it bitter, or rather he had tried to drink and found the cup empty. One mournful refrain comes over and over,—"all is vanity and a striving after wind." Vanity—not meaning to say pride, but emptiness. Life is like a man trying to catch the wind. He can't do it and even if he could, he would still have-nothing. The wheel of life go -- around and around, till "all things are full of weariness."

A Few Certainties

And yet life, even tor this strange old man, is not entirely a swamp. As it is in a real swamp, so it is with life, here and there in the bog are small solid islands. Some of these islets of certainty he names. (At least for him they are certain.) One is the fact, which he feels he has to accept, that this life, for all its good, has evil to match. Light and dark-good and evil—cause for rejoicing and cause for mourning—seem to have their settled places. There is a time for everything, he says, and then he lines up good-and-bad pairs, such as weeping and laughing, killing and healing, losing and seeking, hate and love, war and peace. This is one of the certainties of life, that not all of it is good. Ecclesiastes more than hints that we might as well admit this and make the best of it. Man cannot figure out what God has done; so the thing for men to do is to enjoy themselves as long as they live. If sorrow is real, so is joy. Furthermore, it is possible to work at something, and to enjoy what one has done. In short, this tired old cynic is not altogether a cynic, because he does believe in a few things. One bit of wisdom we can take from him at this point is that there are unpleasant features of life that cannot be changed. Waste no time quarreling with life; accept it!

Fear God!

One of the strange features about Ecclesiastes is that the author, who believed so little that was good, still did believe in God. It was not a high faith that he had. It was nothing like the faith (for example) of a Saint Paul. God for Ecclesiastes is not a Companion, he knows nothing of God's love. "God is in heaven and you upon earth," he says, "therefore let your words be few," that is, God is so far away that you'd better not say too much about him, he lives in a different world. Nevertheless, though God cannot (this man thought) be known or loved. he can be feared. You can make vows to him, you can do some service for him. God has no pleasure in fools; so don't be one. Empty words grow many; don't pour out more talk. Just live the best you can in the world as it is. If this seems too dark a world, remember Ecclesiastes hasn't the last word in the Bible!

Safety

By Ona F. Lathrop

First

WAS standing at the top of I the steps of my plane remembering all the things they had impressed upon us in our training for stewardess-safety and comfort of the passengers come first -things like that. It was my first flight on this line and I wanted to do just the right thing-sort of a trial run.

The two young things coming O - Minute across to board Fiction the plane looked like a honeymoon couple. She had on a light blue suit and a little flowered hat covered with pink veiling over her blonde pony tail, and he had a flower in his navy buttonhole.

Then suddenly a figure came dashing through the crowd and out through the gate, gesticulating madly for them to wait. He carried a cardboard shoebox and his dark curly hair was flying in the wind and rain. A fine drizzle had started and the girl came on up the steps out of it, and turned to look back. There seemed to be a great argument going on down there. Her boy-friend kept pushing the box back into the other man's arms.

"NO, NO, I won't take it. No. Nick, I don't want the thing." "But you must. It is the only way. It is our one chance-The dark foreign-looking fellow gave the box one final thrust into the young man's arms and then dashed back and disappeared in the crowd.

"It's my cousin, Nicholas, baby. He wants me to-to-" he looked at me apprehensively and then rushed into the plane, dragging the girl with him. I followed along curiously, making a pretense of helping them find a seat. He kept shifting the box nervously.

"Would you like to sit near the front or back?" I queried in my usual Hostess Voice. They chose the seat next the emergency exit window, and strangely, he went in first. The thought flashed in my mind that I could always open it if worst came to worst. I went right on up front to the pilot's cabin.

"I don't like it," I told him. "He holds that box gingerly as I walked back and stopped to chat. "Would you like me to put the package up on the shelf for you?" I inquired pleasantly.

"Oh, no, no, no," he cried. "I have to hold it. It must be kept -uh, warm." He broke off as if he were biting his tongue.

"But darling, wha: is it?" the girl kept asking.

He answered impatiently now. "Francie, I can't tell you. Now don't ask again. Why don't you go sit in the back? The view is

The plane had taxied out to the takeoff runway and was revving up the engines, but still we didn't go. I glanced at my wristwatch. Probably waiting for the tower-signal—the fog was getting worse.

It must be a matter of time. I went forward and pulled at Wilcox's sleeve. "You've got to do something," I cried. "I can't get it away from him, and he says we MUST get off on time. This is murder!"

Wilcox snorted. "All right, Miss Benson. Take over, Hannigan." He followed me back. "Let's have a look, young man," he said sternly, grabbing the box.

"Oh please, sir, don't open it here-I beg of you." Reuel scrambled over his bride's knees and followed us to the control room.

Wilcox was opening the strings. He lifted off the cover and there lay-a setting of duck eggs, I guess-big fancy white eggs. "What on earth-" I screamed in relief.

"It was my cousin's idea—he wanted to send them to our uncle in California, but I told him nothey might even hatch on the way. But he made me take them, and I didn't want Francie to know-" snuggled his bride's head on his shoulder, Wilcox laughed. "Delivering ducks-what next! And I breathed a sigh of relief.

After he had gone back and

I had done my best-for the safety and comfort of the passengers!

By DICK WOLFF

All's fair in love and war, but what about fishing? Emily Post failed to mention fishing etiquette in her classic on manners which by default leaves the field wide open to comment.

Before World War II there was no problem about streamside etiquette. There were simply more streams and lakes than anglers. Those halcyon days no longer exist, and the addition of a few million new anglers makes a rule or two worth the knowing and doing.

Manners are a necessity of numbers. And, a little restraint produces more enjoyment and fish, too. Casting at another man's target is just plain poor sport and usually ruins the fishing for both.

ularity. Equipped with Mitchell 300 or ultra-light 308 spinning reel, you can fish twice the river in half the time the fly fisherman can cover. Nothing can be more disasterous to a fly fisherman carefully courting a trout than to have a shiny new lure splash into a pool he's been carefully floating a dry fly through.

Wading a stream is an art in itself. Waders or boots are clumsy at best. Splashing carelessly down the center of a small stream or sloshing through the pools will ruin everybody's fishing faster than any way I know. Move slowly, pick your footing with the body turned slightly sideways to the current. It is the safest, easiest, and quietest way to navigate. Use the shore line to move any long distance. Choose the unproductive water areas to move in premember trout linger in the quiet water areas to move in - remember trout linger in the quiet Manners apply both at stream side and in a boat. Boat fishing calls for etiquette, too. I once watched an ardent bait fisherman cutting up bait on the seat of a friend's new rowboat. He should have seen his buddy's face as he watched his new boat get scarred. Snagged lines result from casting across your partner's line. If he's fishing the bow, point to the one you saw jump, don't cast across his line to get it.

Party boat fishing calls for greater restraint than almost any other kind. You'll probably never see your railside companion again. Do you grab his place when he goes off for a bag of popcorn? If he leaves his rod tied to the rail, remember he's coming back. Someday it might be you.

Fishing almost more than any other peaceful sport calls for exercise of the golden rule: Do Unto Others As You Would Have Them Do To You.

Tea For Three

Lee Tracy and Leora Dana, stars of the current Broadway hit comedy, "The Best Man," take time out between acts for a cup of tea with Mrs. Helen Britt (left), home economics director of The Nestlé Company. During a recent matinee performance of the play, Mrs. Britt, who is an old friend of Miss Dana's, went backstage to say hello and was invited to join Mr. Tracy and Miss Dana in an impromptu intermission tea party in his dressing room. Mrs. Britt was pleasantly surprised to find a handy hot plate and Instant Nestea are dressing room standbys. 'The Best Man' will soon celebrate the start of its second hit year on Broadway.

The Eale of Time

When a man fell into his anecdotage it was a sign for him to retire from the world.

"Fortunately for the country, neither party is quite as bad as the other insists it is."—Earl Wilson.
