MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL MEET

The regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and City Council was held Monday evening, April 1, at 7:30

P. M. in the Town Hall.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $26,066.73 in the General Account and $6,332.52 in the Parking Meter Fund.

The 150,000-gallon elevated standpipe located near the old fairgrounds is in need of paint. This project will be let out for bids and will be completed in the near future. A minimum of three (3) bids has been asked for.

In order to clarify certain ques-tions raised by taxpayers of Taneytown, the Mayor and City Council wish to submit the following information: The tax year for Taneytown begins on July 1st and ends on June 30th. All taxes are paid in advance. If you move into town during the first six months of the calendar year (January thru June), you do not start paying taxes until July 1st. You will then be sent a tax bill for a year in advance.

Yellow lines will be repainted throughout the town marking crossings, parking meter spaces, etc.,

during the month of May.

Wantz Bros., being the lowest of 3 bidders, has been awarded the contract to install 729 feet of 12" storm sewer line on Taney Heights Drive. Water has created quite a problem in this area making this action necessary.

The Fire Department will be contacted in regards to the flushing out of the fire hydrants throughout the water system.

Action was taken to have repaired the fence around the Baseball Field in Memorial Park and to have instal-led a board at the top of the fence around the entire field.

The Mayor and City Council wish to announce that in the future, all property holders will be required to lay sidewalks or curbing in all new developments before new streets are The town will, at the request of the property holder, install this curbing or sidewalk at the same time the street is laid, but, the property holder will be billed for the cost of the curbing or sidewalk at this time.

All delinquent taxpayers are again reminded that only a few more days remain before notice of tax sales will appear in the newspaper. Each delinquent taxpayer was sent a legal notice stating the amount of taxes and interest due and was given 30 days in which to pay same.

Bids will be secured for the patching, leveling, and resurfacing of the following streets: Broad Street to Nusbaum's Canning Factory; from Robert Bankard's house to Clifford Ott's house; from Cities Service to Samuel Breth's house; from Joe Shaum's to York Street; from the United Brethren Church to the Presbyterian Church; Commerce Street; Mill Avenue; both Park entrances back to the Town Equipment Build-ing, and from Dean Nusbaum's to the Corporate Limits.

It was hoped that more new streets could be built this year in Taney-town, but due to the bad winter, we can only hope that our finances will allow us to bring our present streets up to the very best condition. The meeting adjourned at a late

Easy Come, Easy Go

I'd like to talk to you today about waste in our Government — millions frittered away through incompetence, extravagance and heedlessness. Here are a few examples: In 1961, the Army wasted five million dollars rebuilding rubber tank tracks left outside to rot. The Corps of Engineers bought a half million dollars worth of outboard motors, though it already had 1,400-all new and unused. Navy's Aviation Supply Office failed to review a defense firm's recent costs before negotiating two fixed price contracts. It thereby lost the chance to get a reduction of $41,000.

Perhaps to demonstrate unity, all the military services cooperated to waste more than two and a half million dollars a year in Japan, until the General Accounting Office stepped in. These installations in Japan were overstaffed by about 1,800 laborers, none of them Americans; yet a backlog of work—accumulated because many bases had not been properly cared for-was then done under outside contract at a cost of half a million dollars.

These are just a few explicit wastes audited and proven. None the less costly are over-luxurious offices and chauffeured limousines for highly placed—and not so highly placed—officials. Does anybody think we can defeat the Communists with thick carpets and mahogany-paneled planes?

Devices used by Government agen-Devices used by Government agencies to justify expenditures are sometimes laughable. Last week, while sitting as a member of the Armed Services Committee, I happened to look at a picture submitted as justification for a new building. The picture, entitled "inadequately-heated classrooms," showed that all but one of thirty persons sitting in the class of thirty persons sitting in the classroom was in shirt sleeves.

UP TO A TON MORE MILK PER COW

... with Puring Cow Chow D

If you feel that your cows have the bred-in capacity to produce more milk than they're making now ... take a tip from leading Eastern dairymen and switch them to Purina Cow Chow D.

This exciting "high efficiency" milking ration brings out the best; often lowers your feed cost per hundred pounds of milk. It works—not only in Purina's big Dairy Research Center, but on farms of every size here in this area.

Feed exactly as you would any other good milking ration—according to production of each individual cow. But it's what happens inside the cow that makes the big difference. Purina Cow Chow D is heavy with energy. It packs a milkmaking punch that pays off in milk checks.

The world has come awake from a cold snowy Winter. The fields are pretty and green. The birds are busy building their nests; honey bees are seeking honey among the crocoses and early daffodills. Pussy Willow trees are in full bloom. Other trees are in bud ready to burst forth in all their glory. Some of our folks have lettuce growing in their gardens. The farmers are busy with field work; getting in oats, peas, and plowing for corn, a little later when the weather is more settled. The women folks are cleaning house or thinking

For, lo, the Winter is past, the flowers appear on the earth, the time of the singing of birds is come, and the voice of the turtledove is heard in our land.

Love Never Faileth (by S. N. Hutchison)

Once there was a barn door that was very hard to move. It was one of those old-fashioned doors we used to see in the country. It slid along on a track, and sometimes it was al-most impossible to open it. At last Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richter on it stuck fast and no one could move it so they sent for a carpenter. He took Sunday dinner guests with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Shildt, at the Hillcrest Restaurant, were: Mr. and Mrs. David Shildt, son Thomas, Littles-Law David Shildt, son Thomas, Law David Shi need something to make them go, and gins to build her hanging nest from I am going to tell you what will always make hard things easy, it is love. Sometimes, there is trouble in the home, or in school, or on the playground, and when we come to look we find we have forgotten to put the love in and things won't run very long without love any more than a car will run without oil. The above story is very true. How many times has a child asked us to love it and cuddle it just a little and we say we are too busy. Let us give more love.

The Strength By Which You Stand It takes a lot of grit and grace to look your fellowman in the face when they are tempting you to sin by doing what the Devil's in.

Tell them you are not for sale, nor out to follow in their trail, in spite of what they do or say, or what they offer you as pay.

Deep in your heart and soul and mind where all your nature is refined by true salvation, rich and sweet you find at God's good mercy seat deep in your morals and your will where there is nothing mean or ill there is the strength by which you stand while marching through this pilgrim land. —W. E. Isenhour.

ANOTHER VIEW FROM MY KITCHEN WINDOW

Two lovely harbingers of spring arrived today, March 25, a pair of bluebirds. I was delighted when I spied them from my usual point of observation, the kitchen window. Henry David Thoreau was so right when he said, "They carry a piece of the sky on their backs." Their breasts are a warm chestnut color and they are one of our prettiest

As I watch them, they go flitting here and there—from the electric wire, down to the fence post, and then up into a tree. Evidently they are selecting a suitable nesting place. They like deserted woodpecker holes, and will also readily reside in special bluebird houses. A few moments later, a meadow lark flies past. This chunky brown bird, another early spring arrival, is easy to identify with its bright yellow breast, mark-ed with an unique black "V". Several red-winged blackbirds are exploring the meadow and a gorgeous rooster pheasant walks boldly down the lane, coming quite close to the house. At this season of the year, bud life is greatly activated.

But the birds are not the only But the birds are not the only things I notice. There are other things of interest to observe. The sky, for instance. Today it is a clear, bright blue, laced with fleecy white clouds. The sun is smiling warmly down upon the earth. The smile is reflected in the little brook, as it goes happily along its way. as it goes happily along its way Patches of green grass are refreshing to see after so much ice and snow. Directly outside of my window, the Easter flowers are in bud. Around on the other side of the house, a different variety is already in bloom. All of the trees are budding now, as they prepare to don their new spring outfits. A particularly lovely are many things in life that are like a wonderful view of it. This means even mentioned it that barn door; they are hard, we that when the Baltimore Oriole beone of its highest branches, I enjoy a front-row seat. Each May I look Sometimes, however, my view is of a little different nature. This happened the other day when I spied a skunk sauntering leisurely through the yard (he undoubtedly had our chicken house in mind). Strolling along beside him, evidently intent on making a new friend, was one of our inquisitive cats. The skunk's tail was erect and I expected disaster at any moment. I hurriedly stepped outside and called the silly cat, who had sense enough to retreat. He was just ucky to have escaped the skunk's lethal spray.

And so goes the view from my kitchen window. It is always interesting and varied, and helps to bright en each day.

A VOICE FROM CARROLL This is the time of year when insects of many descriptions will begin to appear along with the daffodils and tulips. Before we reach for the spray gun and pesticide to make war on the insects, we should read the book "Silent Spring." Some people accuse the writer of the book of cre ating fear and panic among those interested in agriculture, while others declare that the book came in time to save all of us from the use of pesticides indiscriminately. When the first DDT spray came on the market it was used very effectively in dairy barns to kill flies. In fact it was too effective. It also killed the bees that pollinated the orchards, clover and alfalfa fields. It also killed wildlife and some small farm animals. This is what the book "Silent Spring" trying to get across to the public. The misuse of pesticides, not adequately tested before they are put on the market, can destroy the insects and wildlife that is essential to man's existence. Last year while riding in hime. a car, a bee flew in the open window. Someone suggested killing it but we suggested stopping the car and putting the insect out. For we still remember on the farm one year when bees were as scarce as rain in August due to the sprays used on the fields that summer. We are certain that those who live close to the land and observe what is happening around us know that Rachel Carson is sounding a timely warning in her book "Silent Spring." Insecticides have their place in farming but they should be used only after the long range effects have been studied. We should not be like the woman who burned her house down to get rid of bedbugs.

When we were in school studying from England's domination we didn't care too much about the English but since that time we have lived to see the English people do hard and difficult things and now we admire them to the extent that we are proud to their cousin. We still can hear Ed Morrow broadcasting from London during the last war with Big Ben sounding in the background like the voice of doom, and German planes spitting bombs in a reign of terror. The English took it and their perwas magnificent. Since the war Mr. and Mrs. Donaid Swope are the things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations on the birth things have not been too pleasant ceiving congratulations. sonal courage in those terrible days either. France, who quickly gave up at the beginning of the war is now trying to squeeze out England's eco-nomic life blood by excluding her from the Common Market. She has been stripped bare of her colonial wealth and left to struggle alone. But in spite of her vanishing wealth and power she has given the world that which the world so badly needs . . . an example of personal courage and decency. It used to be said of England that the sun never set on her far flung empire. This is true no her far flung empire. This is true no longer. What can be said of England today is: "May her courage never fail for the world needs her example more than ever." Last winter when we were having so many days of near zero weather we wished we lived in Mexico, but this week we're glad we stayed in Carroll. Spring is here and already the signs are everywhere. Pasture fields are covered with a green fuzz; birds are running scales with their vocal exercise; boys are out with baseballs and bats; the older Tom Sawyers are out with fishing tackle along the streams and salesmen are trying to convince the homemaker that she needs a new vacuum cleaner.

We have been reading about the small town's effort to revive their once healthy economic activity. The perplexing question as to why people earn their living in a town but go somewhere else to shop has never been answered by experts. The answer by the people themselves is that it's cheaper. But is it? When one counts the cost of running a car ten or twenty miles, the saving is can-celled out. If one wants the satis-faction of working and living in a small town then the individual must understand that he has certain obligations to that town. He must have pride in its appearance, in its services, and he must be interested in the well-being of the people that make up the town. One of the weaknesses of every small town is its inability to offer opportunities to the young men and women after they graduate from high school. There is only a limited number of jobs for them and these do not satisfy the ambitious person. A small town is not equipped to handle large department stores or large industry. Maybe its best point is to advertise its possibilities for casual living. A place for retired people; for young couples to raise children and where tourists can visit for a quiet week-end. Baltimore is surely pushing out in Carroll's direction. Nothing can stop the migration. The small towns are wise to plan ahead and be ready for it. But in planning it should be remembered that the small towns of America have been one of its chief assets in human material. For every prominent man or woman had his or her beginning in a town the size of Taneytown or Bridge. There is something about the smallness of a town to bring out the

Giving back a penny for every abandoned can and bottle along our highways could do more for the scenic beauty of our nation than six new national parks. To the men who mend the county roads, a word of thanks for the rapid progress they are making in restoring the damage the winter and weather did to our highways and byways. We understand that our county commis-sioners have bought some modern equipment that is making the work of repairing the roads much easier and faster. The Carroll County Tuberculosis Association, at a special meeting March 27, awarded a grant of $850 to Western Maryland College to be used by Miss Shirley Stauffer in completing her survey of Tuberculosis Case Finding in Carroll County. This survey will aid the local association in their effort to find every person in Carroll with tuberculosis. Each and every individual with a cough that hangs on and on or with shortness of breath should see his doctor. He will be helping himself be certain that he does not have T.B.

The Torn Veil Lesson for April 7, 1963

Bible Material: Mark 14:10 through 15:41. Devotional Reading: II Timothy 3:1-5, 14-15.

ONCE upon a time Gethsemane and Calvary were only names. People in Jerusalem knew where they were. Gethsemane was in one kind of suburb; it was an orchard, much like a park, a good place to go for quiet and rest not fresh, it smelled of death. For that place (Skull Place they called it) was the Roman army's place of execution. The Dr. Foreman place reeked with blood and the flies were everywhere. Nowadays these names have a different sound. They are beloved names, poems have been written and hymns sung about them.

The Torn Veil

What sort of place would be best suited for the God of heaven and earth? In contrast to the jeweled shrines which enclosed the images of the pagan gods, the God of the Jews lived in a dark chamber into which even His priests were forbidden to enter. Of course those who thought much about such matters knew that God was not in there. Yet if you asked them, "Where is the house of God?" they would have pointed to the Temple. It was resplendent in marble and gold, to be sure; but in that Temple, as in its model the little tabernacle or tent in the wilderness 12 centuries before, God Himself did not sit among the lights; His own chamber was dark, silent and bare, empty of all but Himself, invisible and ter-

Between that chamber and the rest of the Temple hung an immense veil. It was a symbol of the mystery and the barrier be-tween man and his God. Now on the afternoon in April when Jesus died, a strange thing happened. That great veil was found to be

What does Gethsemane mean? • We may be bold to say that the torn veil let in light upon what otherwise would have remained dark forever. The tearing of the veil may symbolize the light shed by God's Spirit, as Christians believe, on the dark events we call Gethsemane and Calvary. What d Gethsemane have meant to you if you had been there? In the shadows of the great spreading trees hiding the full moon, you might have seen four men, three of them asleep but one of them praying. You could not have heard all that he said, but you might have been close enough to have heard the words wrung from him, "Let this cup pass from me . . . Nevertheless, not as I will but as Thou wilt." You could see that he dreaded something. Yet you could not see what it was he dreaded. Certainly not death, nor failure; for he had faced death and failure before this, and he knew how to take them. What was this "something" worse than death? One of the men sleeping here would one day write: "Christ suffered for you... He committed no sin... He bore our sins..." (I Peter 2.) By the light the Spirit pours through the opened veil, we can see what Gethsemane means: that Christ took on His own heart the sins of mankind. What does Calvary mean?

Through that same rending of the mystic veil, a light is shed also on Caivary. If at Gethsemane Christ felt the shame of our sins, on Calvary He felt the dire result of our sins. For the nature and the result of sin is to separate the sinuer from God. Again without the light that the Spirit shed (in various ways through the New Testament) we could make very ittla of Calvary. What could you heve seen? Three men being tortured to death, Roman style, by bring nailed to crosses. You might not have known-for certainly his executioners did not know-that the few words spoken by the man on the middle cross, in all the bews He hung there, would be in mortal. Even if you had known, you could hardly have understood.
Yo: in the light that pours through the torn veil we can see even a meaning in the darkest of Calva-27's sayings: Why hast Thou forsaken me? The meaning, part of the meaning, of Calvary is that Christ underwent, for our sake and taking our place,-being shut out of the presence of God. Our shame, our sentence, He took on

Paintings Add Cultural Touch

The new look in home furnishings is the "intellectual look," an expression of awareness of our culture in our homes. The furnishings used to express this look include a choice of, or a mixture of, paintings, sculpture, music, books, book cabinets and tables, and sconces, ranging from the antique one candle type to massive modern sconces of metal and plastic.

Paintings, too, range from originals, to fine reproductions, to yardages of silk prints mounted on light wood frames. When silk prints are used, as wall accessories, the silk is stretched over the frame, and tacked to the reverse side. They can be very effective.

In the room shown here, a painting of George Handel is grouped with the Hammond self-contained console organ together with a tall plant for a music area. The painting above the sofa repeats the upholstery blues of sofa and "tuffet" seating which form the conversational area.

Caulking Made Easier

EASY is the key word describing a new all-purpose caulk in an aerosol can for do-it-yourself home maintenance.

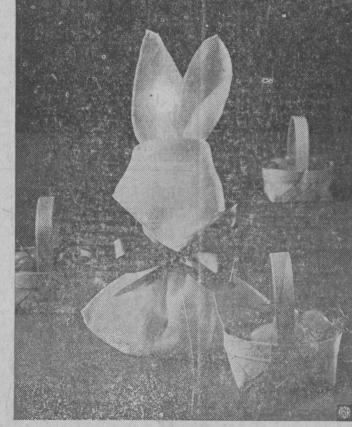

This unique invention called Instant Caulk, waterproofs around plumbing fixtures, windows, doors, baseboards and grouts between all types of wall tile. It also patches plaster or wood cracks, cements loose tile and caulks boats at the press of a finger.

The snow-white compound may be painted or enameled

The patented, pressurized container insures a smooth, even flow which is difficult to achieve with squeeze-tube caulks. A scientifically designed spout permits fingertip control may be painted or enameled without loss of flexibility or durability. Curtis Products, Inc. of Chicago, makers of Instant Caulk, says the aerosol can produces up to 50 percent more than ordinary tubes.

To Please a Child

Bunnies are easy to make from a dinner napkin (or a large man's handkerchief). And such fun for the children with a cargo of jelly beans inside! Bunnies at breakfast could well become a cherished family tradition.

To make this perky bunny, the makers of Niagara Spray Starch say: start with a clean, white napkin, spray lightly with starch, then iron. Fold diagonally and spray and iron again. Draw creased corners up for ears. The starching keeps them up. Holding ears about four inches from points, bring up triangle point and fold forward to form face. Tie ribbon bow around "neck." Fill base with goodies and tuck in back opening.

A reminder—always shake spray starch well before using.

WHAT'S NEW IN AGRI-BUSINESS?

Research by Butler Manufacshould cover 25 percent of the drying floor. Why? Because air spaces between the stored grain or corn are about 25 percent. When this percentage is matched by warm air entering the bin, each kernel dries uniformly and safely - even in bad weather.
