THE CARROLL RECORD

CHRISTMAS ON THE FARM

The spirit of Christmas thoroughly permeates our old farmhouse these days. Even the jolly little red-faced stove is all aglow with Christmas cheer. As I write, he is crackling and sputtering for all he is worth. His efforts are to be commended, for even on this bitter day, the kitchen is pleasantly warm and cozy.

Christmas on the farm, of course, means lots of extra baking and cooking. Today, a huge yellow bowl of dough is rising, and a glazed ham, dotted with cloves, has just come from the oven. The blend of aromas is truly mouth-watering. Baking vartruly mouth-watering. Baking various kinds of rolls, bread and coffee-cake has become a Christmas tradition at our place. This project is particularly enjoyed by our oldest daughter, who revels in working with the resilient, aromatic yeast-dough. The next few days will be given over a valusively to cookie and cake hakexclusively to cookie and cake baking, and candy making, for many of these goodies will be used as gifts. For instance, my Mother and Dad will receive a Maryland Black Walnut Cake, and other relatives will receive either cookies or walnut fudge. These items will be packed in attractive tin boxes, which in themselves make nice gifts.

Our rural mail-carrier is struggling, as usual at this season of the year, under a heavy load of cards and packages. We eagerly await his arrival each afternoon. Opening Christmas cards is so much fun! However, am sure delivering them is a different story, especially on these nar-row, snow-covered country roads. The lively red kitten, Rusty, seems to know that Christmas is close at hand. He rolls and slides across the sitting-room floor in great glee, chas-

sitting-room floor in great glee, chasing his rubber ball and mouse. Somehow, I have visions of him climbing up into our tree, getting entangled in icecicles and breaking ornaments. The piano in the living room is piled high with gaily wrapped presents. We gather around it each evening to play and sing our favorite carols. I have also made it a point to read portions of the Bible each night, particularly the prophecies of the Savior's coming, found in Isaiah and Jeremiah. By doing so, one gets a much deeper and fuller meaning of the Christmas story, found in Luke the Christmas story, found in Luke

I sincerely hope that each and everyone of my readers has the Mer-riest Christmas ever! Your nice compliments and words of encouragement have been greatly appreciated. Throughout the year, I have thoroughly enjoyed writing these little articles, and it makes me very happy to know that you have enjoyed reading

BOWLING BROOK BOYS SING

In keeping with the Christmas season, the Bowling Brook Boys sang two requested selections at the Union Bridge Methodist Church as a part of the regular Sunday Service. Subsequently they sang Christmas carols in the Middleburg community, at the Brookfield Manor Nursing Home and in the Westminster and New Windsor communities at the homes of the members of their Record of Trustees. members of their Board of Trustees.

The highlight of the evening for the boys was to see the expressions of appreciation on the faces of the patients at the Nursing Home. The boys all enjoyed the new experience and the superintendent expects to make a practice of having the boys sing carols at Christmas in the years

THE LEGEND OF CONRAD THE COBBLER

"The charities that soothe and heal and bless, lie scattered at the feet of men like flowers." - WORDSWORTH

Many years ago, there lived in a small village a cobbler by the name of Conrad. Day by day, early and late, the "tap, tap, tap'* of his hammer could be heard as he mended the shoes brought to him by the villagers. Though alone and poor, this kindly old man always had a friendly word for everyone, and many there were who took lighter hearts away from his little hut, as well as mended shoes.

Now, Christmas is a time when families draw closer together. But for Conrad there was no one to look forward to with joy no guest with whom he could share his Chirstmas.

On Christmas morning, some neighbors, thinking how alone he was, decided to pay him a visit. They found him sweeping away the snow in front of his dwelling and, to their surprise, his face was radiant as he greeted them.

As they entered the hut, they gazed in amazement. Instead of a cheerless room, they saw a place made festive with holly and evergreen. Christmas decorations brightened the walls and hung gracefully from the rafters. And there was the table - set for two, with even the worn dishes taking on an extra sparkle. It was plain Conrad was expecting a guest.

"Who is coming to visit you?" the neighbors asked. "Last night," Conrad said, "the Lord appeared to me that I would not be alone on Christmas Day, for He Himself was coming to be my guest. That is why I have prepared so joyfully. Everything is ready now. I am waiting for Him to come."

After the neighbors had gone home to tell of the wonderful guest he was expecting, Conrad sat by the window, quietly waiting.

As he watched, the minutes passed into hours, but he scarcely noticed, as he thought again what he would do when his guest came - how he longed to bathe Christ's feet, kiss His hands, and partake of the blessed bread with Him.

While he watched, a beggar passed his window, ragged, weary, almost frozen in the wintry winds. Conrad called him in he offered him the warmth of his humble dwelling and gave him shoes for his frozen feet.

After the beggar had left, an old woman hobbled by, carrying on her back a heavy load of fagots. Conrad ran out, lifted the load from her back, and helped her into his little hut. There he gave her food for her starved body, and when she had rested, he helped her on her way again.

Again he sat by the window to wait. Now he heard the sound of a child sobbing. Opening the door, he found a small child wandering in the snow, lost and frightened. Some warm milk and soothing words stilled the frightened cries, and soon afterward he restored the child to its mother's arms.

Once more he returned to his vigil. But now the sun was sinking and the winter day was coming to an end. Where was the promised guest?

Anxious and weary, Conrad dropped on his knees. "Oh, Lord, what delayed you?" he pleaded brokenheartedly. Then out of the silence came a beautiful voice:

"Conrad, be not dismayed, for Three times I came to your friendly door, Three times my shadow crossed your floor.

I was the Beggar with frozen feet,

I was the Woman you gave to eat,

I was the Child in the homeless street."

"THE GREAT DECISION"

(The following article is the Dedi-ation Address of Charles O. Fisher, Chairman, Civil War Centennial Com mission of Carroll County, at the Dedication of Meade Headquarter Marker, Taneytown, October 20, 1963. -Editor.)

The time is July 1, 1863. It has been a dry, burning day, as July 1 can be in Carroll County.

It is now six o'clock. The sun is falling in the West. It is a bit cooler in the lengthening shadows of a summer evening.

If this red, dusty, red-lands road leading into Dutch Country could talk, it would tell of its burdens during the past 48 hours. Of tramping feet, galloping hoofs, of rolling wheels, of thousands of men and boys, rollicking yet nostalgic, with the multi-accents of America falling from their lips. Yes, this simple country road has, today, taken its first strides toward greatness.

The white military tent, under the sycamore, beside me now glows ruddy-bright in the sun's slanting rays. Do you notice the flag hanging limp from the staff? It is the colors of the Commanding General of the Army of the Potomac.

Now, let's step to one side and observe. For within the next few hours an historic decision will be made here.

George G. Meade, a saturnine man, sat at his field desk, re-reading the dispatch. General Reynolds had been killed this morning at Gettysburg. The Union forces were in confusion, but he did not know for certain.

Earlier this afternoon, he had sent General Hancock, Commander of the II Corps, into Gettysburg to take command and advise him of the true situation. How soon would he hear?

situation. How soon would be hear?
He rose heavily from his camp stool and walked over to the field map.
His eye fell affectionately on the terrain which he called the "Pipe Creek Line," running from Bruce-ville on the West, through Union Mills, to Manchester on the East.
Here he planned to engage and de-Here he planned to engage and defeat the Army of Northern Virginia, on grounds of his own choosing. But what of Gettysburg? Where was word from Hancock Meade turned and strode from the tent. He stood in the falling light, gazing anxiously down the road. A Commanding General of only three days experience, he had none of the hauteur, imperious manner, or the poise usually associated with great field commanders. Yet he had quickly decided, on June 28, upon his plan of action and with great rapidity had disposed his troops accordingly. So here he stands tonight, at Taneytown, between Lee's Army and the Nation's Capitol. Here he stands, the latest of a series of Lincoln's generals who had been prominent for their indecision, poor strategy, and lack of aggressiveness. How will he react under pressure?

A solitary horsemen approaches at

A solitary horseman approaches at great haste from Taneytown, Meade pianist. looks up expectantly. The courier The reins to a halt, dismounts, salutes, ell, aide-de-camp of Hancock, from the Gettysburg battlefield.

What is the situation there? Mitchell hands Meade a letter. Hancock advises that the committment at Gettysburg is a great one and recom-mends that the battle be fought there. Meade asks some questions; then gazes at his Pipe Creek Line battle map. Mitchell is dismissed.

In the solitary lonliness of a commander, he sits at his desk, head in hands. A half hour later, he calls his adjutant and dictates the Order:
"The V and VI Corps of the "The V and VI Corps of the Army of the Potomac will proceed at once under forced march to Gettysburg, prepared to engage the Army of Northern Virginia." With this decision, made here on this ground, Taneytown and Carroll County were saved the travail of being the great battleground of the Civil War.

Although Meade left here for Get-tysburg that same night, until late the following afternoon, July 2, he still considered withdrawal to the Pipe Creek Line a possibility. For his abandonment of this Line was a great risk for Meade. In fact, had the Confederates attacked his march-weary troops early in the morning of July 2, the outcome may well have been different. But such are the accidents of battle.

Dr. Frederic Shriver Klein, in "Just South of Gettysburg," says of Meade's decision:

"If he was reluctant to abandon the plan at once, it is easy to understand the doubts he must have had about throwing the entire Army into the field he had never seen . . . and yet there is no evidence that Meade ever tried to resist the circumstances which created the confused accident at Gettysburg."

And then Doctor Klein continues with this conjecture:

"It is quite possible that if Meade had been able to move to the Pipe Creek Line as late as July 2, and if he had won the battle, as he probably would have, he would have emerged as one of the greatest stra-tegists of the war, instead of having the reputation of a lucky commander who felt so satisfied with his Gettysburg victory that he neglected to follow it up by the capture of Lee's YEAR — 1964!

Recipe for a Happy New Year: Take 12 fine full grown months, see these are all thoroughly free from all memories of bitterness, rancor, hate and jealousy; cleanse them completely from every clinging spite; pick off all specks of pettiness and littleness; in short see that these months are freed from all the past have them as fresh and clean as when they first came from the great storehouse of Time. Cut these months into thirty or thirty-one equal parts. This batch will keep for just one year. Do not attempt to make up the whole batch at one time (so many persons spoil the entire lot in this way) but prepare one day at a time.

Into each day put twelve parts of faith, eleven of patience, ten of courage, nine of work, (some people omit this ingredient and so spoil the flavor of the rest) eight of hope, seven of fidelity, six of liberality, five of kindness, four of rest (leaving this out is like leaving the oil out of salad—don't do it), three of prayer, two of meditation and one selected resolution. If you have no conscientious scruples, put in about a teaas follows: tious scruples, put in about a teaspoon full of good spirits, a dash of fun, a pinch of folly, a sprinkling of play and a heaping cupful of good humor.

Pour into the whole love, ADLIB-TUM and mix with a vim! Cook thoroughly in a fervent heat; garnish with a few smiles and a sprig of joy; then serve with quietness, unselfishness and cheerfulness and a HAPPY NEW YEAR is a certainty!

A handy thing to have in your freezer at this busy season is a stack of ready-made ham-burger patties. The Greendell Packing Corp. of Prattsville, N. Y., which puts them up singly and ten at a time in polyethylene bags, reports a growing number of supermarkets are handling them.

Of the $80 billion consumers spent on food last year, how much would you say was spent on meals away from home? You're right if you said $20 billion. The institutional food business is now around 25 per cent of all food sales and even higher than that at this time of the year.

From the McCadam Cheese Co. of Heuverton, N.Y., come some interesting facts about cheddar cheese. It's by far the most popular cheese in this country, accounting for 72 per cent of production. It's so preferred, in fact, that U.S. standards say the term "cheese" without any further description shall mean cheddar. Connois-seurs recognize New York State cheddar, the first cheddar made in this country, as the Cadillac of the family.

PREVENT THOSE WINTER DRIVING WOES? The Safe Winter Driving League presents the following tip for better visibility this winter from the National Safety Council: "Be sure your windshield wiper blades are in good, live condition to prevent streaking. Arms should provide at least an ounce of pressure for each inch of blade length to sweep off snow, sleet and road-muck. You must see danger to let us mix your milking ration!

Wherever grain is grown and cows are milked, thousands of farmers depend on Purina Check-R-Mix rations to keep their cost of production low. We believe you'll find you can't beat a ration made with your own grain and Purina Cow Chow Concentrate.

Try us and see. Watch production. See how it goes up-because our rations are mixed for results-according to directions from the Purina Research Farm.

Try our service, too. Bring in your grain, and we'll quickly grind and mix it. If you're busy, we'll pick up your grain and deliver the Check-R-Mixed ration. Or we'll work with you on a grain exchange program.

Call us or bring in your grain. Prove to yourself... Purina Check-R-Mix feeding can cost you less.

We meet here this afternoon, a century later, to dedicate an historic marker. This marker carries the simple legend: "Meade's Headquarers, Major General George C. Meade Commander of the Army of the Potomac, maintained headquarters on the nearby Shunk farm from June 30 until the night of July 1, 1863. From here he directed the initial concentration of the Union Forces at Gettysburg. Maryland Historical Society."

Behind such terse and bare historic fact lies the drama of a "Great Decision."

What are the ingredients of great

In this instance the recipe was:

—a small Maryland community called Taneytown nestled between two armies of "brothers' fighting." —a dusty red-lands road network leading into Pennsylvania.

-a white headquarters tent under a sycamore in Benjamin Shunks' yard.

—a Commanding General.

-a messenger, and -a decision.

Here, a century later, Taneytown, the road network and the tree remain. The tent, the cast of characters and the decision have all completed their rolls and passed behind the scenes.

Yet, "if you listen closely on a quiet summer evening in July, you can hear the distant calls of the sentries of Hancock and Gibbons, of Slocum and Sickles.

"In the rustling of this sycamore, you can hear the faint strains of campfire songs of those young men who moved on to Gettysburg, never to return."

Yes, they moved on, and Taneytown remains, in quiet reflected glory of being "Just South of Gettysburg," the place of the "great decision."

That is history-and-History is truth. History is realism. History is sentiment.

History is the gift of our forefaths to us. May we, by such dedication as this, carry their heritage with pride, dignity, and courage.

Thank you.

Our destinies are decided not by chance but by choice — our choice.

Apple Pie's All Sugar 'N Spice

Apple slices and buttery cinnamon topping combine layer on layer for this delectable apple pie. The crust is special too, for it's made with a pie crust mix for a quick 'n easy crust that's just right every time.

CINNAMON APPLE PIE Makes one 9-inch pie

Topping: 1/3 cup all-purpose flour 3/4 cup firmly-packed brown sugar teaspoon cinnamon

Pie Crust: One-half 10-oz. pkg. (1 cup)
Flako Pie Crust Mix
2 tablespoons cold water
5 cups sliced, peeled raw apples

1/4 cup butter or I tablespoon lemon juice margarine Heat oven to hot (425°F.). Combine flour, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumb

For pie crust, measure pie crust mix into bowl. Sprinkle cold water over mix; stir lightly with fork until just dampened. (If necessary, add another one-half tablespoon cold water to make dough hold together.) Form into ball. Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to form a 13-inch circle. Fit loosely into 9-inch pie plate. Trim, allowing 1/4-inch beyond rim. Flute edges.

Sprinkle apple slices with lemon juice. Alternate layers of apple slices and topping over pie crust. Bake in preheated oven (425°F.) for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate (350°F.) and bake an additional 30 minutes or until apples are tender.

LITTLE TENDERFOOT DESERVES PROPER SHOE FIT

by Frances Pendelton, R.N. "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined", never had a truer application than in the vitally important task of correctly fitting your infant's and toddler's shoes

Baby is born with only one tiny bone in his foot — the heel bone — together with 25 loose pieces of disconnected cartilage all waiting to be formed — properly, we hope, for his walk through life.

I know that it is sometimes difficult to get a satisfactory reply from the youngster when trying on new shoes to your question, "How does it feel?"
Merely pinching the shoe's toe might give you an idea of length, but little concerning width, or heel and arch fit.
Podiatrists and shoe manufacturers for years have been experimenting with measuring devices which would give the sales person and the watchful mother a quick and fool-proof method of properly sizing the very pliable pre-school child's foot. The flat-type measuring machine I discount because the shoe is not absolutely flat and open. And the X-ray machine open. And the X-ray machine has been banned due to the harmful radiation factor.

However, a new device has been developed which eliminates all the guesswork. These are clear plastic mounted fitting shoes developed by the Medical hand Cooperation Department of the future.

famous Mrs. Day's Ideal Baby Shoe Company. They're called Vis-U-Fit Size Viewers, and are taken from plaster cast im-pressions of normal feet of more than 400 babies at a Boston hospital. The plastic fitting shoe corresponds exactly to the interior design of the Mrs. Day's baby shoes (sizes zero to 8 in N. M and W widths for babies from birth to about 3½ years) which are sold in about 7500 stores around the country.

Most babies are born with perfectly formed feet, yet important medical surveys have revealed that more than 850 of every 1000 children examined had foot defects of some kind.

Proper care of feet from cradle through the early years is a necessity for good allaround health. So, a little extra care now in fitting and selecting your baby's shoes will pay handsome dividends in his

Sunny Coffee Cake

Buttery-rich, delicately orange-flavored Sunny Coffee Cake brings holiday festiveness to your breakfast table any season of the year. It's prepared like muffin batter to go from mixing bowl to oven in minutes.

After baking the attractive ring-shaped cake "gild" it a bit with an easy icing. Allow the icing to drip decoratively down the sides of the cake for a professional touch. For crunchy goodness sprinkle chopped nuts over the icing.

Whenever you serve your family home-baked coffee cakes and other flour products prepared from enriched flour you're also adding essential nutrients to their meals. Enriched flour contains three B-vitamins and the mineral iron — all vital daily for good health and lasting pep and vitality.

SUNNY COFFEE CAKE

1½ cups sifted enriched flour*
¾ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder

1 teaspoon grated orange

1 egg, beaten 1/3 cup butter or margarine, melted 1 cup confectioners' sugar 2 tablespoons milk 2 tablespoons chopped nuts

3/4 cup milk Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Stir in orange rind. Combine 34 cup milk, egg and butter or margarine. Add liquid ingredients to dry ingredients, stirring only until well blended. Pour into well-greased 5 ½-cup ring mold. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Cool on rack about 5 minutes. Loosen edges with spatula, invert and remove from pan. Stir confectioners' sugar and 2 tablespoons milk until smooth. Spread over top of cake. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Makes one ring-shaped coffee cake.

ON ANOTHER TOPIC—There was never a better all around Pro basketball player than Bob Cousy. And therefore, there was never anyone who could thrill a basketball crowd more than Cousy. During the 13 yrs. he played with the Boston Celtics in the N R A he was the league's top did so on the logical assumption that, nearing 35, he was all finished.

Y. A. was hired to help Charlie Conerly, then in his last season with the Giants, but in rather short order Tittle became the No. 1 quarterback. Now he is the number one quarterback of the National Football league. How can you make a case for anybody else? Y. A. is the best passer, the quickest thinker—his automatics are deadly—and the finest leader on the field. On too of all that you can are deadly—and the finest leader on the field. On top of all that you can add something else—a tremendous zest for the game. Y. A. went into the Giant-Cardinal game a few weeks back with a virus that threatened to keep him in bed. But Y. A. insisted on playing and pitched four touchdown passes. He had the same kind of virus once before, when he was at Louisiana State and on that occasion threw only three touchdown aerials. See how Tittle improves with age.

Were you ever so emotionally upset that you were a menace to other motorists? Think back a little before you answer this

Remember the time you drove home from work in a bad mood because of that argument with the boss? Or the time that another car cut you off and you chased that "crazy fool"? Or the other times you've driven when you were too angry, worried or impatient to concentrate on driving?

There are many moods that could cause you to be careless. Do you ever carry tough business problems with you when on a long trip? And those family problems: do you drive trying to figure out finances, how to put Junior through college, or how to heal a family spat?

Then, too, some fellows like to get away from problems by visiting with friends for a casual drink. It's not difficult to be absorbed in more time than you had planned. Often, different moods result from such gatherings and on the trip home you become careless and inattentive to normal driving habits.

Get a good safe grip on life. Check yourself every time you drive. If you are worried, impatient, angry, in a hurry, or upset, think twice before driving. The second thought may save your life.

Freedom For What? Lesson for December 29, 1963

Bible Material: Mark 10:32-45; Galatians 5 and 6. Devotional Reading: Romans 8:1-11.

FREEDOM IS a great word, a rousing word, one that in all times has thrilled the hearts and fascinated the minds of men. But it is also a misunderstood word It is no more than half understood when people forget that freedom s both freedom from and freedom for.... Moses had his troubles with the Israelites on this point. All they could think of was getting out of Egypt. Free dom was their hope and dream.

Dr. Foreman But when they actually became free, when Egypt's chains were broken, those Israelites didn't care for their freedom after all. They actually wanted to go back to Egypt. They discovered that freedom meant work, danger, uncertainty, risk, and they pre ferred the protected assurances of slavery to the adventures of free-

Freedom from what?

Freedom can be misunderstood on the other side. This is particu-larly true of Christian living. All through the New Testament the reader seems to hear the bugles of freedom. Christians are reminded on page after page that freedom is good and that Christ came to set men free. But people then as now sometimes got a wrong idea about this. They supposed that they were now set free from obligations, they "wore no man's collar," so to speak. Paul (among others) sets us straight about this. He underscores some thing quite different. Christ was not born to set men free from obligation to each other nor to God. On the contrary, the Christian more and more recognizes the duties. services, and ways of help which he can render to other

The worst masters Being free from ourselves, we are free from those tyrants that so cruelly dominate the lives of those who have lost touch with God. Fear, for one thing. The man who by God's grace can forget himself, even for a while, has a vacation from fear. Fear of death, of disgrace, of failure, of unpopularity, of pain, of frustration. If you were asked, what is the greatest evil, the harshest cruelty, un-der which men suffer? What are the necessities to which men bow their heads-and their souls? You might well answer: Certainly two of the greatest enemies of peace and freedom in the individual life are fear and sin. When a man commits a sin, even one that hurts him personally, doesn't he say, nine times out of ten, "I couldn't help it"? When he stops to think why he fears death. doesn't he say again, "I can't help it"? That's simply admitting to being a slave. Fear and sin are hard masters, cruel, relentless and ruinous. But the Christian in their presence is a free man.

Freedom for what? But knowing this, or thinking about it two weeks in a row, as we have tried to do, does not clear up all the trouble we have in understanding what freedom means. The New Testament lays equal stress on freedom-for, as on freedom-from. Paul puts it in a single sentence: "Through love be servants of one another." To use freedom selfishly is to misuse it. To use freedom selfishly is to go back into slavery to ourselves all over again. To serve others in love is not a rule, but like the "golden rule" (of which it is a twin) it is a guide to the traveler through this tangled world. To serve others is not to meddle in their affairs. To serve others does not mean to force helpfulness on them. Serving others grudgingly, enviously, is to miss the mark entirely. Serving in love is the right use of freedom. In a harbor of a great seaport, two ships are free. Each is being pulled by tugs. A sudden burst of wind snaps the line that ties one ship to one of the tugs. The ship is free, but unprepared; and it lurches, crashing into nearby craft, spreading destruction. The other ship, at the right moment, casts off its lines and is free-free to sail under power to the ends of the earth. Which ship is the better illustration of Christian freedom? (Based on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S. A. Released by Community Press Service.)

Like Mistletoe, Legend Surrounds Holly Plant

Holly, like mistletoe, has become a part of Christmas tradition, but the similarity does not end here. Both holly and mistletoe were once surrounded by numberless superstitions.

The legend of the mistletoe, which changed from a symbol of evil to one of love is the best known. Yet, there are some interesting superstitions regarding holly. They believed that its evergreen leaves signified that it was never deserted by the sun, and is derived from the custom of early Christians who celebrated the feast of the Nativity of Christ for 12 days, placing special emphasis on the last or twelfth day. The "Twelfth Night" tree burning is also said to commemorate the light of the Star of Bethlehem.
