SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS

More than 67,000 people in Maryland are now receiving monthly social security benefits as survivors of deceased workers, according to R. W. Hughes, District Manager of the Baltimore (North) social security district office. These beneficiaries—widows, children, and aged dependent parents of deceased workers—receive a total of $11,546, 000 each month.

The average American worker can count social security's survivor benefit protection as one of his most valuable economic assets," said Mr. Hughes. "It can mean as much as $50,000 in benefits to his family in the event of his death."

Mr. Hughes said that with 91 million workers insured under social security, 9 out of every 10 young children and their mothers would qualify for monthly benefits if the family breadwinner died. The family benefits range from $50 to $254 monthly depending on the worker's average earnings under social security.

To illustrate the impact of survivors' protection, Mr. Hughes cited the benefits being paid to the surviving dependents of the men killed in the U. S. S. Thresher submarine disaster on April 10, 1963. A total of 129 men lost their lives when the nuclear-powered Thresher failed to surface after a test dive off Cape Cod, Mass.

The Social Security Administration found that 86 of the men left survivors eligible for benefits. Monthly benefits are now being paid to 178 children and 69 widows. Another 16 widows who do not have young children in their care will be eligible for monthly benefits at age 62. The benefits payable to these survivors over the years are expected to exceed 2 1/2 million dollars.

"It's a good idea for every worker to find out what social security benefits would be payable in the event of his death," Mr. Hughes said. "That he should be sure to tell his family to get in touch with the social security district office in the event of his death. We still find people who've lost out on benefits for months or even years because they didn't know benefits were payable."

Administration of the program in Carroll County is the responsibility of Albert H. Barouh, field representative, who advises that social security service and information are available at:

Westminster in the County Administration Building on any Wednesday between the hours of 10:00 A. M. and 2:00 P. M.

"SPICE 'N' EVERYTHING NICE" (Your Chatty Column)

With all my heart, I wish you every morning a smile that shall last until the next day's dawning. I wish you health—life's greatest wealth; I wish you always near so that I may help to cheer. Each future day and in some way—help to bring you happiness!

Well, it surely was a "big exchange" in all the stores after Christmas for those gifts! Perhaps it may have meant only to the wrong sizes, yet it could have been for something else in exchange. Eh? Down at the "New" theatre the show entitled, "Who's Been Sleeping In My Bed?" was just another show and I could not tell you just what it was all about but it was senseless, yet every seat was taken!

Winter is just beginning, folks and here is for the month of January, "In moon phase comes snow and an hard ice glaze. Windy gusts make musts. Clear and fair means travelers beware. Cold and raw this January thaw. Alas, no luck, another storm to buck!" Wheeeeccccccc! And the February and March page in that "Farmer's Almanac"—I'll stop right here!

What a beautiful Service for New Year's Eve of "Candle Light" at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church! The crowd was huge and a lesson was learned! The very beautiful special music from the organ was a Sermon in itself!

LETTERS LONG OVERDUE — Dear Observer: I am a widower and live in an efficiency apartment and retired recently. My wife passed on a little more than a year ago and as I never was a lone wolf—it truly is unbearable! I have two married sons with whom I could live by dividing the year in half, in other words six months with each one. Somehow, I hesitate doing this. Who will want me when I get old? That is the part that worries me and I hesitate as to marrying again. Any suggestions please? Signed C. M.

Dear Mr. C. M. — If you have the money to travel around a bit, it would mean much to you. By all means marry again. Men that means Widowers are usually much more lonesome than Widows, as they do not know just how to adjust themselves. An elderly man stated not long ago as he lives with his married daughter that it is really the very worst thing that a Widower can do and that is to remain single and then he added, "it is too late now!" And his cheeks were wet with tears! Good luck, sir, your Obs.

Dear Observer: I am a girl of 29 (not married) and recently insisted that my parents move into a house which I selected. Previously, we lived in a house on a busy thoroughfare for 25 years and I am sorry to write the following but my mother is very lonely. Although it is in the suburbs, it really is the most quiet neighborhood as she never sees anyone other than the tradesmen to bring either the laundry, a package from the stores and so on. I really regret making even the slightest suggestion as to the move. Now what do I do? Signed—So Sad.

Dear So Sad: You did not tell me in your letter if your parents purchased the house or rented it? I am wondering when nice days come around even the Spring if your mother will be able to adjust herself to the location. Many times a mother is not considered and even a wife at times if a husband desires to move he does not state to the little woman, "Well do you like it for you must remember you are the one who lives here as I only sleep here!" It should have been talked over for sometime before such a move is made anywhere. I think what you could do is to make your mother as happy as possible. Take her out whenever she desires to do so and especially if you drive. No matter how beautiful a home is what does one benefit if they are not happy? Happiness even makes health as to contentment of mind! Your Observer.

Dear Observer: My friend and I are past 21 years of age and we are secretaries. We have read so much about San Francisco and would like to go out there and live for a year. We have saved enough money. Our parents object but we are 3-7's. Don't you agree that it would be a grand experience for us? Please answer as soon as possible. Signed—Two Girls.

Dear Girls: I am sorry but I certainly do not agree with this set up at all. Listen to the wise parents! Your Observer. Have a grand week-end, folks. Hope you did not miss Victor Borge on TV. Will be seeing you next week D. V.

I am, Faithfully, YOUR OBSERVER.

"FACTS AND OPINIONS"

Senator Strom Thurmond writes: "To a communist the life of any individual is not worth much because it is society—the planned society—which counts most. To an American who cherishes freedom and individual rights, a life is indeed dear, even where deep political differences exist. Under the American system we settle our differences at the ballot box. Under the communist system, ideological differences are settled with a bloodbath, individually and collectively. This is just one of many reasons why we cannot continue to tolerate the communist ideology, especially in our own midst."

It is reported that, in 1962, the 100 largest companies in this country spent 55 cents of each income dollar for goods and services bought from outside their own organizations. The next largest expenditure, 25 cents, represented wage cost. Taxes took nine cents, profit came to six cents, and five cents was spent to replace tools. Only about half of the six cent profit was distributed in dividends. The other half was used for business expansion to create more products and more jobs.

Walter Lippmann views a changing world: "We are in the 1960s, and we must search our minds lest we accept unexamined the assumptions of the postwar years. . . . The paramount theme of the 1940s was the necessity of American intervention to save European civilization from destruction. The paramount theme of the 1950s was to consolidate the western world against the onset of revolutionary communism. The paramount theme of this decade as we know it thus far is that we are emerging from a two-power world and entering one where there are many powers."

The General Accounting Office—the federal fiscal watchdog—charges some loans made by the Rural Electrification Administration should not have been made at all and that others should have been made for shorter periods of time. In a report to Congress it cites several cases in which these 2 per cent loans cost the government millions. It also says that one loan of $14.7 million should not have been made, since an investor-owned utility was ready to provide the needed power at less cost.

Columnist Sylvia Porter has summed up the findings of a study concerning the dollars-and-cents value of education. On the average, men with less than 8 years of schooling will have lifetime earnings (from age 18 through 64) of $143,000. The average steadily rises with more schooling, and reaches $417,000 for those with four or more years of college.

In a new book, "Taxes, Loopholes and morals," published by McGraw-Hill, Jerome R. Hellerstein says that in 1962, "About 125,000 leads suggesting possible tax frauds were screened and evaluated by the IRS (Internal Revenue Service); some 34,000 possible tax-evasion cases were considered, and about 3,500 full-scale investigations were conducted; 1,736 persons were indicted for tax frauds, and 1,146 convictions were obtained."

After decades of experimentation, the American Medical Association says, solid advances in the ability to provide spare parts for the human body through organ transplantation were reported during 1963. Accomplishments in this field added up to the most exciting medical story of the year. The major gains in organ transplantation were with kidneys.

Jumbo Size
Extra Wide—51 1/2"
Extra Long—Up To 24 Ft.

Alcoa Aluminum Sheets

1. You Save Laps

The extra width of Alcoa Aluminum Sheets reduces the number of end laps—compared with ordinary 26" sheets. The extra length lets you run up to 24 feet without an end lap. With fewer laps, you have less buried metal and a neater job.

2. You Save Work

With these big double-size sheets, you make fewer trips up the ladder, handle fewer sheets, finish faster, cut labor costs.

3. You Keep Cooler

Alcoa Aluminum Sheets bounce heat rays off, rather than absorb them. In hot weather, your buildings stay 8 to 15 degrees cooler inside.

4. You Get Protection

Come in and read Alcoa's generous 30-year warranty carefully. You'll agree, only a superior product can stay in business with a policy of protection like this.

One day all on his own Billy started learning how to ride a bike (his older brother's). The straightaway was a breeze, but the first corner cost Billy a badly skinned knee.

His mother felt the doctor ought to take a look at it. She picked up her phone. "Bring him right over," said Doctor Williams.

Problems have a way of disappearing when you lift your phone.

After the doctor treated the battle-scarred knee, Billy's mother relaxed. She really was proud of Billy's feat.

Maybe a bike for his birthday?

The phone call? Certainly not the major event of the day, but still an important one. It brought peace of mind to a conscientious mother.

For emergencies of any size—for pleasure any day—phones are friends.

Almonds Glamorize Baked Apples

Baked apples, a standard favorite in so many American homes, go glamorous for "Almond-Glazed Apples."

A two-tone effect comes from partially paring the apples before baking. Basting with a tangy orange syrup provides interesting flavor as well as a beautiful glaze. Toasted slivered almonds sprinkled atop each apple add crunchy goodness to give the finishing touch to this appetizing, nutritious dessert.

Whole, slivered, diced or chopped almonds revive interest in numerous oft-served desserts, vegetables, main dish sauces, salads and sandwich fillings.

- |                               |                                  |
|-------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| 6 medium-size baking apples   | 3/4 cup sugar                    |
| 1 teaspoon grated orange rind | 1/2 teaspoon salt                |
| 1 cup orange juice            | 1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds |

Core and pare apples 1/3 the way down; arrange in shallow baking pan with pared ends up. Blend orange rind and juice, sugar and salt; bring to boil. Pour over apples. Bake in 350-degree (moderate) oven 30 minutes to 1 hour, until done, basting often with syrup. About 5 minutes before apples are done, cover tops with almonds. Bake and return to oven. Serve with whipped or sour cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

'64 Jet-smooth Luxury Chevrolet

What does it take to make a car a great highway performer?

If the car happens to be a '64 Chevrolet, one thing only. A highway.

You'll find everything else already neatly packaged for you—on the car exactly as you pick it off the showroom floor.

There's a choice of seven engines—all the way up to a twin-carb high-compression 425-hp V8*—and four transmissions, including a finely honed 4-speed stick shift.*

And underlying it all—a bump-skimming Jet-smooth ride that helps keep the performance great even when the highways aren't so great.

What about special performance equipment? Professional driving skills? Forget them.

Nobody has to doctor or coax or soup up these Chevrolets to get the best out of them.

And that's really the test of a great highway performer: Just about anyone can get a kick out of driving one, just about anywhere, just as it comes out of the showroom.

Next time you're out your dealer's way, allow a few extra minutes to sample one of these highway performers on your own. A few are really all you'll need. That's enough time to do a lot of driving in a Chevrolet. *Optional at extra cost

THE WAY I SEE IT . . .

Observations on the World of Sports

The 1963 major league baseball season will not be remembered as one of the most memorable on record, unless you consider the Dodgers sweep of the Yankees. Frankly, it probably will be recalled best as the year of the flop. San Francisco Giants fans will have a full winter to set the blame for the demise of the team which last year won the pennant, and came within inches of beating the Yankees in the '62 World Series. The finishing third is no disgrace, but the fact that the Giants lagged eleven lengths behind the Dodgers is nothing to take bows for.

In the American League, the Los Angeles Angels took a monumental nose dive, falling from a surprising third place last year to ninth place this time. The Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League dropped four notches to eighth place.

Off years were not confined to teams alone. How about Cincinnati pitcher Joey Jay? Last year, he won 21 games. This year he won only 7 and lost 18. San Francisco infielder Jimmy Davenport, who last year came within three percentage points of hitting .300, this time batted only .252. Brooks Robinson of the Orioles fell off by a similar amount in the American League. The junior circuit was not for the hitters this year. Of the ten men who hit .300 or better last season, only Al Kaline was in that group this year. Carl Yastrzemski, Albie Pearson, and Rich Rollins were the only other American League players to reach the .300 mark in 1963.

For many, the windup to the 1963 campaign was a long, long time in coming.

No matter how you look at it, that supposedly selective 20-game winners club has a rush on its membership last year. Whitay Ford and Sandy Koufax leading the way in their respective leagues. This was the largest number to enter the magic circle since 1951 when 13 pitchers took 20 or more decisions.

Koufax and Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants tied for the most victories with 25. Ford had 24, and Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves had 23 victories and also had the distinction of being the oldest at 42. Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds also had 23 victories. Dick Ellsworth of the Chicago Cubs had 22. Camilo Pascual of the Minnesota Twins and Jim Bouton of the Yankees had 21 each. And Bill Monbouquette of the Boston Red Sox and Steve Barber of the Baltimore Orioles had 20 each.

Several factors in this large number of winners, one that the pitchers have had nothing to do with—the enlarged schedule. It is much easier to win 20 games in a 162-game season than it would be under the old 154 game schedule. This year the pitchers had another important change going for them—the enlarged strike zone put into effect this season. To some pitchers, those added inches on the strike target is the greatest thing to happen to their profession since the invention of the resin bag.

Another factor being credited for the boom of the 20-game winners is the advancement in the science of relief pitching. Most major league teams have both a right-handed and left-handed specialist, who earns his pay strictly by balling out the starting pitcher when the going gets rough.

For instance, what would Monbouquette have done without Dick Radatz, or Steve Barber without Dick Hall and Stu Miller.

Checking on the Bird's progress through the 1963 campaign, we see that on the half-way point, the 4th of July, the Orioles were 43 and 39 and only 7 1/2 games out of first. At the end of play they were 86 and 76 and 18 1/2 games from the number one position. As you can see readily they didn't have those long win streaks to pull them into contention. They failed to win the "big ones" time after time. That could be the summing up point to the Orioles this year. When they had the chance to gain ground and pull close to the leaders they would falter and lose the "big" game.

That was baseball 1963 and now to pro football of the moment. . . . From the very beginning of the season, the Chicago Bears showed little respect for private property rights. Their humming bird defensive backs operated on the premise that the football belonged to no one while it was in flight during a pass. The Chicago defenders felt they were entitled to try for the ball just as hard, if not harder, than the man the ball was meant for. It was catch as catch can. To their credit, the Bears did not change their outlook for the big championship game in the National Football League. And because of that they, and not the Giants, are the World Champions today.

Throughout the season, New York Giants quarterback Y. A. Tittle had only 14 of his passes intercepted. Since he played in 13 games, that figures out to a little more than one interception per game. But that was against competition other than the Bears. The Bears threw Tittle's average for a loop by intercepting five of his offerings. Two of them paved the way for the two Chicago touchdowns. It isn't as if Tittle and the Giants did not know what to expect. The figures showed that the Bears were the best in the league on pass interceptions. Their defensive backs boasted that they would be out to catch as many of Tittle's passes as they could. Yet, there was only one thing Tittle could do to prevent, interceptions, and that was not to throw at all. That of course, was out of the question, since passing is three-quarters of the Giants' offense.

Something also should be said for the front end of the Bears' pass defense. The rushing of their linemen and linebackers had a great deal to do with what happened when Tittle quickly got rid of the ball.

Passing has become the chief weapon in pro ball, and it is significant that the Bears won the title by coming up with the best ways to combat the forward pass.

If you watched the game on TV, just how many of you figured, like many of us that Tittle would pull it out for the Giants with a "long bomb" in the closing seconds like Johnny Unitas? Well, it just didn't happen and we have new champions of the N.F.L.

One of the most destructive forces in the state today is fire, which each year takes a terrible toll in lives and property.

Every week should be fire prevention week to alert our citizens to the seriousness of this threat to their lives, their families, their homes and their future. The seriousness of the fire problem is a challenge to every citizen and I urge them to join in a campaign to correct existing fire hazards and promote safety measures to reduce this drain upon the resources of our community.

At all times citizens should check for fire hazards in their homes and places of business. Heating plants, fuses and electrical wiring should be examined and made safe. Premises should be cleared of combustible trash.

Those in charge of schools, theaters, hospitals, churches and other places of public assembly, have an especially heavy responsibility. It is their duty to be certain that the buildings are fire safe and equipped with proper fire fighting tools and adequate exits.

Special fire safety programs should be held in schools where lifelong habits of fire consciousness can be instilled in young people by proper training. An awareness of fire hazards, of the tragic toll of fires and the methods of preventing fires can have a dramatic effect in helping to lessen the dangers of this element.

EVANGELISTS

Lesson for January 12, 1964

Background Scripture: Mark 3:14-19a; John 1:35-41; 6:5-14; 12:20-22; 14:1-12; Acts 1:15; Devotional Reading: John 14:1-11.

THE BIBLE studies selected for us this quarter are focused on persons, characters, rather than events and stories. The Bible seldom uses adjectives. We seldom or never hear, from the pages of the Bible, of a man who was mean, charming, resourceful, lazy, cowardly, courageous . . . not in so many words, at all events. We hear about people of those and many other kinds; but the Bible lets us see like (foremost as it lets us see what God is like) not by adjectives but by verbs—not so much by saying what he is as saying what he did.

Dr. Foreman what a man it like (foremost as it lets us see what God is like) not by adjectives but by verbs—not so much by saying what he is as saying what he did.

Two in the outer circle

Everybody has heard of the inner circle of Jesus' friends, those closest to him, who shared his most sublime and most agonizing experiences. Peter, James and John are as familiar as they are important. But most Christians would be hard put to it to name the other nine of the special disciples who were later to be called Apostles.

Two of these meet us in the first chapter of John: Philip and Nathaniel. Maybe Nathaniel was the same as Bartholomew; but if this guess is true, still we hear nothing of either Nathaniel or Philip after that Pentecost time. (We hear of other Philips, but none of the Apostles by that name.) All that is known of Nathaniel is in this fragment of the Gospel by John. We do know a little more about Philip, but it adds up only to the fact that the man was a little stupid.

However, the point here is that Jesus needed, invited, made friends with and made use of ordinary men

These two men, Philip and Nathaniel, are sometimes called "evangelists" in 20th century America, with the kind of church organizations we have now, it sounds a little odd to call these men evangelists. They were not Billy Grahams. They had no organization of their own; we never hear of either of them preaching a sermon; they had no choir to accompany them, they had no publicity at all. They never issued an "altar call"; they were not known for the large number of their converts. Then why called evangelists? Because that word evangelism just means spreading the good news, and these two men did that in the simplest way possible. The good news was about Jesus. These men were not theologians, they might have made a low grade in a seminary class; but they could do this much—they would tell others about Jesus.

Laymen

In an age of specialization, the present-day church follows the usual pattern and thinks of the minister (parson, pastor, rector, whatever they call him) as the only person in the outfit "licensed to preach." That was not the way in the New Testament. Undoubtedly in our churches today we need organization and specialization; but the point here is that non-ministers, laymen, have just as much right—and just as much duty—to tell others about Jesus, as any minister has. There is a seminary which has a rule forbidding students to preach during their first year. But not so many years ago two young men who didn't know this rule, during the summer before they enrolled as students in the seminary, brought fifty-eight persons to Christ.

Is there a secret?

What did those boys have? What does any successful evangelist have, in or out of the pulpit? Is it some mysterious gift? No, what Philip and Nathaniel had we can all have—if in our hearts we desire it so. We note that these two men were open-minded. They believed the good news with minds free from prejudice, or at least willing to be convinced. Then they had the open mouth (in a good sense)—that is, they did not keep quiet about the Master. (What a contrast to most of us!) And they were men of the open hand. It is not just loyalty to Jesus that makes the evangelist, it is friendliness with other persons. Suppose these two men had had no friends with whom to share the News?

MARINES OFFER THREE-YEAR ENLISTMENTS

Gunnery Sergeant K. L. Day, USMC, local Marine Corps Recruiter, reports that the Marine Corps has recently authorized a limited number of three-year enlistments.

He also announced that men enlisting in the United States Marine Corps may enlist under the 120-Day Delay Program, which offers the young men to pick their date of reporting for active duty during this 120-day period. The time spent in the delayed program will count toward fulfillment of their total military obligation as well as for pay and promotion purposes.

Contact Sergeant Day at the USMC Recruiting Sub-Station, Carroll County Court House, Westminster, or call 848-4650 for further information. This is a limited program and may be terminated on a very short notice.
