Ambulance & Fire create Fire Corps

EMMITSBURG, Md. – Vigilant Hose Company and Emmitsburg Ambulance are working to put their differences behind them and have teamed up to create an Fire/EMS Corps.

Vigilant Hose Company President Art Damuth said, "The Fire Corps unit will be helpful friends to the department. We have already had expressions of interest from the community, and our members are excited to get this assistance."

The Fire/EMS Corps creates opportunities to be friends of the fire and EMS service companies in Emmitsburg and to give back to the community. Members of the Fire/EMS Corps will be providing non-emergency assistance to Vigilant Hose Company and Emmitsburg Ambulance Company. From information technology, website maintenance, vehicle maintenance, assisting with fundraising dinners, administrative and record-keeping and a host of other ways, Fire/EMS Corps members will help their community become safer and better prepared for natu-

» Kelly Miller Circus in Emmitsburg

Emmitsburg's first circus in a generation

THRILLS CROWDS

Both the human and animal performers for the Kelly Miller Circus displayed color, flair and showmanship for the Emmitsburg audiences on June 10.

-RAYMOND BUCHHEISTER / THE DISPATCH

BY STEPHANIE LONG
Contributing Writer

EMMITSBURG, Md. – Hundreds of people gathered at the Emmitsburg Community Park to take in the sights and tastes of a true old-fashioned big top circus. Visitors had a chance to take a pony ride, look at a giant snake, pet an elephant, ride a camel or simply chow down on classic circus food before the big event.

At three o'clock everyone gathered under the big top to watch a 90-minute performance filled with feats of human strength, talent and animal tricks. An elegant trapeze routine, dazzling contortion act and amusing canine revue mystified wide-eyed children, as did many other acts.

Crystal Darr, 12, said she enjoyed the circus and couldn't simply pick one act out as a favorite.

Nor could Taylor Wiles, 5, who simply said she enjoyed "everything."

But by far, the act that was the talk of the town was the Ponderous Pachyderms act. Libby, Nina and Viola, three elephants, drew loud applause for their performance packed full of balancing tricks and choreographed moves.

But the attention surrounding Libby, Nina and Viola was not strictly confined to the tent. Outside the gates of the circus, Lena Fiore was calling attention to the elephants as well.

Instead of taking in the performance, Fiore, an animal rights activist, spent her time being the "voice of the voiceless," handing out fliers containing information about animal abuse. A staunch supporter of animal rights for 12 years, Fiore said the elephants in the circus were being treated cruelly and she wanted to let the public know the truth about the circus.

"I feel that they suffer greatly," Fiore said. "I'm trying to educate the public against cruelty to animals, especially elephants."

Fiore said that she simply wanted circus goers to be informed about what goes on behind the scenes of the circus, that the elephants performance was a product of cruelty imposed by whips and chains.

But according to Tammi Stocker, an officer with the Fred-

Emmitsburg Community Day coming

BY JAMES RADA JR.

EMMITSBURG, Md. – For 25 years now, residents of Emmitsburg have gathered to celebrate their community with fun, food and fireworks. This year, the 25th Annual Emmitsburg Community Day will be on June 30 with activities scheduled throughout the day.

"Our theme this year is service and while it's our 25th year of doing this, we are trying to highlight, focus on and showcase the other organizations that have given so much to the community," said Emmitsburg Lions Club President Joe Ritz.

To get the town in the mood for the celebration, the Emmitsburg Community Chorus will sing patriotic songs and songs of yesteryear at a free performance at the new Community Park bandstand. The concert will be Friday, June 29 from 7-9 p.m.

Community Day begins June 30 with a 6:30 a.m. breakfast at the Vigilant Hose Company Fire Hall on West Main Street. Company members will serve sausage, bacon, cream chipped beef, pancakes, eggs, home fries, coffee and juice for $6. Children 5-10 are $3 and those under 5 eat free.

The games begin at 10 a.m. behind the Community Center on South Seton Avenue. The Yellow Springs Concert Band will provide music from 11 a.m. – 1 p.m. the band is known for its patriotic tunes, marches and polkas.

Adults can compete in a closest-to-the-pin golf competition from 2-4 p.m. and horseshoes

Kudos to O'Neil for opposing circus

I want to applaud commissioner William O'Neil for opposing the Kelly Miller Circus coming to Emmitsburg. I too, am against cruelty to animals. I believe the general public is not aware of the abuse that these animals suffer daily.

Circuses have many "fun" things. But, things under the big top are not fun and games. Animals are forced to endure lives of abuse, neglect and exploitation, all in the name of commercial entertainment.

These animals live lives of captivity, confined to cramped cages or chained. The majority of their life is spent in cages or tractor trailers traveling from city to city.

Performances force animals to behave unnaturally and uncomfortably; elephants standing on their heads.

Behind the scenes, violent acts of abuse occur behind locked barn doors and secret ware houses. The public only sees the result of this cruelty - the performance that allows us to have a "good time". This is the reason why I think having the Humane Society at a performance is good but the damage has already been done.

We can stop this cruelty by not supporting another circus in Emmitsburg. Urge the elected representatives of Emmitsburg to protect circus animals.

Say "NO" to the circus.

100 Years Ago "In this place" From The Emmitsburg Chronicle

This column offers a regular look back at Emmitsburg through the eyes of The Emmitsburg Chronicle which first appeared on June 14, 1879, published by Samuel Motter. In 1909 the paper became known as The Weekly Chronicle. It continued regular publication, allowing for a 5-year hiatus during World War II, until February 9, 1977.

CASE OF RABIES

Last Saturday a cow belonging to Mr. Robert Stultz, of Liberty Township, died of rabies. The case was reported by Dr. J.W. Reigle of this place, to Dr. M. Moriarty, of Gettysburg, who, acting for the State Life Stock Sanitary Board of Pennsylvania, placed the cattle and dogs of Mr. Stultz under quarantine for one hundred days. The cattle, eleven head, and dogs are now penned up in Mr. Stultz's barn and will be kept there until the quarantine is lifted.

Room Used By The Young People For A Dance

The addition to the factory building of the Emmitsburg Improvement Company on Green Street which was completed some-time ago has been accepted by the company. The new building is 25 by 40 feet and is built of the best material. The work room is amply lighted and is finished in natural wood and plastered with hard coating plaster.

The contractor, Mr. C.G. Walter, as usual, finished long before the time specified in the contract had expired. On the occasion of the visit of the inspecting committee the contractor entertained them and other visitors with a light lunch. Mr. Walter desires to thank the building committee for the help they extended him and the good will shown throughout the construction and completion of the building.

On Friday night the young people took advantage of the large floor space afforded by this building and gave a dance. The affair was a delightful one and much enjoyed by all who attended.

ERRATIC TEMPERATURES

The spring of 1881 was unseasonable cold. In the first week of April snow fell in the Middle States, and frost nipped Mississippi. In the middle of April lake navigation was blocked by ice. May opened with the thermometer uncomfortable low, and railway traffic obstructed; it was wet and cold in the middle of the month. June began with severe and widespread storms, low temperatures, and frost in the North West; on June 24 commercial reviews reported weather "much too cold for the season."

With July 1 an extraordinary change occurred throughout the United States. Intense dry heat began; a week later dispatches from interior cities reported so violent a hot spell that business in many cities was necessarily suspended. August opened with a continuance of the drought; September began with prostrating heat, culmination in the famous "yellow day" when the smoke of the forest fires in Maine swept over New England.

Precedent is neither proof nor prediction; therefore, the well-known crop results that year, the disturbed financial markets are no more than interesting analogy. Still the reminiscence is the point; perhaps the more so in that the records show no parallel in the period between 1881 and 1907.

THEY BOTH TOOK TO THE DITCH

On Friday night about ten o'clock, while Messrs. Jacob and George Winegardner were returning from Frederick, in Mr. Jacob Winegardner's automobile, near the Catoctin Furnace a piece of the mechanism that controls the steering gear of the machine broke. The night was extremely dark and when the accident happened they were not going at a very high speed but as soon as the driver lost control the automobile jumped the road and went down the eighteen foot embankment. By a strange good fortune the men were in nowise injured but the machine was wrecked. The gentlemen telephoned to Thurmont for assistance and Dr. Birely responded to their call in his automobile. On Saturday morning the broken machine was drawn to Thurmont and the gentlemen reached Emmitsburg on that day.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Tuesday night Samuel Woodyard imbibed more "short cut" liquid than was good for him and proceeded to let the town know that he was present. In this he succeeded very well, but towards morning, in the neighborhood of two o'clock, he wandered into Mr. Geo. Clutz's ice cream factory - through the window it would seem, judging from the amount of broken glass found on the scene soon afterwards - and began playing tag with the freezers, upsetting several of them during the game.

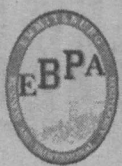

It would reflect on this midnight artist to say that he took no account of time for in some mysterious way a certain alarm clock, afterwards identified by the owner, kept pace with him as he bade good bye to the ice cream tubs and wandered into the alley to chant a few warbles.

Under normal conditions Sam has a sweet voice, but he "short cut" made inroads on its cadence during the early part of the evening and naught but volume remained. Somehow or other Sam must have been trying for a diploma in a cussing university the way he filled the air with choice expressions, and the effect was like unto a short fuse dynamite bomb mixed up in a mining camp poker conversation.

Well, Sam was apprehended and tried before Squire Stokes and committed to the Frederick jail to await the action of the grand jury which meets in September.

erick County Animal Control, there was nothing of the sort going on at the circus.

"Everything looks good," Stocker said, "I've done an inspection and it is all okay."

Stocker said that the circus had all of the necessary papers and that there was no evidence of animal cruelty.

Considering the controversy surrounding the circus, Mayor Hoover said he was glad that animal control had showed up and found no evidence of animal cruelty.

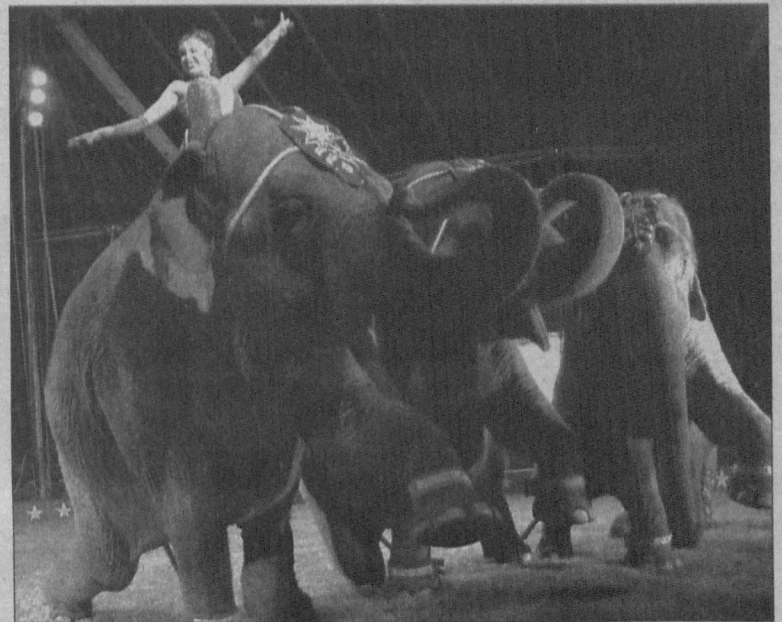

Hoover, who rode in on an elephant at the beginning of both shows, said that he had no issues with the protest to the circus and Fiore's presence, but felt that it was "inappropriate to protest just because they can" and "inappropriate for someone to spoil someone else's fun."

But despite the protest and opposition, Hoover thought the circus was a success.

"From what I can see everyone is having fun... I enjoyed it," Hoover said, smiling.

The Kelly Miller Circus entertained visitors for two shows on June 10. The circus featured a variety of human and animal entertainers who performed tricks and spectacles. It was the first time that a circus has performed in Emmitsburg for at least 25 years, according to Mayor James Hoover.

ral disasters, terrorist threats and other emergencies.

"The Fire Corps is open to people from teenagers to 100 years old," said John Hoyle with Vigilant Hose. "Even if a person likes to build bird houses or make quilts we'd like them in the Fire Corps because we can use these things as raffle items."

Since September 11, 2001, fire and ambulance service departments across the nation have been struggling with increased demands for service coupled with reduced funding. In order to respond to these increasing demands and provide more services to the community, Vigilant Hose Company and Emmitsburg Ambulance Company has worked for the past two years to establish their Fire/EMS Corps and registered it with the U.S. Citizens Corps.

Mary Lou Little, spokesperson for Emmitsburg Ambulance Company said, "These units will be a great help to both departments and a benefit to improved community service and safety."

The Fire/EMS Corps will debut during Emmitsburg Community Day with a float in the parade.

"After that, it's up to each individual organization to recruit and administer their own program," Hoyle said.

Fire Corps, a component of the Department of Homeland Security Citizens Corps program, is a national grassroots effort to increase the capacity of volunteer and career fire and EMS departments through the use of community volunteers in non-emergency support roles.

A Word from the Mayor
Circus a success despite protest

On Sunday, June 10, 2007 many residents took the opportunity to enjoy one of the two shows put on by The Kelly Miller Circus. I have been told that it's been 25 to 30 years since a circus has performed in Emmitsburg. I enjoy circuses and my wife and I bought tickets and went to both shows. I received a lot of positive response about the circus, everyone enjoyed the show and thought that the acts were done in good taste and the circus employees were friendly and professional. But, no matter how good something may be, no matter how many people enjoyed it, someone is always there to try and turn a positive in to a negative. Yes, freedom of speech is our legal right but, just because you have the right to protest something, does not mean you have to do it. I feel that the protest and the attempt to intimidate circus employees were done without any respect or concern for our community or the residents who were looking forward to the circus. Just two weeks before The Kelly Miller Circus came to Emmitsburg, another circus who advertised in Emmitsburg performed in a neighboring community just 10 miles away. Why didn't those protesters protest that circus? To not drive the 10 miles and express their freedom of speech about an issue that they are so passionate and sincere about leads me to believe that it was done for other selfish reasons. For personal gain, political or whatever reasons they may have had; I was happy to see that our community did not allow those few protesters to spoil our Sunday afternoon at the circus.

I also want to thank commissioners Staiger, Rosensteel, Sweeney and Blanchard for supporting the circus. Without their support, the circus may have been canceled.

Citizens stage protest against circus

-RAYMOND BUCHHEISTER / THE DISPATCH

The day before the Kelly Miller Circus performed in Emmitsburg, a group of about 10 people, including Town Commissioner William O'Neil, Jr. and Planning Commissioner Catherine Forrence, protested the circus saying it was cruel to animals.

By JAMES RADA JR.
News Editor
jrada@thedispatch.us

EMMITSBURG, Md. — Not everyone was pleased to see the Kelly Miller Circus come to town on June 10. About 10 people, most of them Emmitsburg citizens, protested against the circus on June 9 on the town square.

"When parents take their children to the circus, they are in effect teaching them that it's okay to make some animals do some incredibly unnatural and painful things —against their will—purely for our entertainment," protest organizer Catherine Forrence wrote in a letter to the editor in The Frederick News-Post.

The protesters held up posters that called circuses of being cruel to their animals, particularly elephants. To emphasize the point, Forrence wore elephant ears, an elephant trunk and chains around her neck during the protest.

Forrence says that the Kelly Miller Circus has a long list of animal care violations. The most-recent was in 2005 when the circus was cited for not providing adequate veterinary care to two of its elephants.

She also protested the circus on the grounds that town tax dollars were being spent on something that she didn't approve of.

"There are many families whose tax dollars are being spent for an event they can't enjoy because they can't afford the ticket price. Then, there are also folks, like me, who oppose public money being allocated to support the inhumane treatment of animals," Forrence wrote in a letter to the commissioners protesting the circus.

Besides arguing that the circus is cruel to animals, Forrence asked that commissioners do the following things to protect the animals and the attendees:

- Kelly Miller employee-list provided to Sheriff's Deputies for an employee background check prior to circus opening.
- List of elephant handlers and record-check that the elephants have had annual testing for tuberculosis to prevent the spread of the disease among captive elephants.
- Tent inspection by the fire marshal ensuring it meets code requirements (stability, inflammability) and exit signs are properly lit and marked.
- Inspection of trailers to ensure structural stability and compliance with Maryland commercial vehicle laws.
- Permit and proper health inspection to include hand washing facilities and bathroom facilities for circus employees and guests.
- Compile anticipated budget impact: portable bathrooms, on-site fire and police service, waste disposal, water allocation, legal and insurance fees.
- Trained animal inspector on hand during the unloading, set-up, throughout the day, and loading.
- Review of required AWA reports upon arrival of the circus.

Protecting your home while you're on vacation

BY DFC JOHN BARTLETT

The school year has ended and now the fun begins. As families plan their summer vacations, so too, are criminals planning their summer events. In the U.S., a property crime occurs every three seconds, robberies every 60 seconds, and burglaries every 15 seconds. With this in mind, let's plan a safe summer for our homes.

Before we head off to the beach, visiting far away family members, or taking a weekend away, let's think about making our homes less tempting for a burglar or more difficult to enter. If gaining entry into your house is hard, the burglar may simply bypass it. If too much effort is required, or more skills and tools are needed than they have on hand, this, too, may lead them elsewhere.

Good entry doors are the most important thing for deterring a burglar. The best exterior doors are ones that use a solid core or are made of metal. The doors to the garage or rear of the house afford a burglar good concealment. They generally are not as strong, but because of this, should be made up of this similar construction. The exterior doors should also have a quality, heavy-duty, deadbolt lock with a one-inch throw bolt. The strike plate should have four screws that are at least 3 inches long. The screws need to be this long to penetrate the wooden frame for the best strength. Having good locks on the doors and windows is a must; however, the most important aspect of having good locks is using them. Several burglaries have occurred in town and it was found that the doors or windows were left unlocked. The goal for home security is to make entry difficult. Make sure to lock the garage or storage shed doors and windows as well.

Never leave a spare set of keys to your house hidden outside. Ask a trusted neighbor to watch your house while you are gone. It is a good idea to give your vacation address and telephone number to your neighbor so you can be reached in case of an emergency. Ask your neighbor to report any suspicious people or activity around your home.

Stop all deliveries of mail, newspapers or packages, or arrange for your neighbor to pick them up. Newspapers gathering on the front step announce your absence. Leave your blinds, shades or curtains in a normal position. If you have these closed 24 hours a day, it may announce to a burglar that you are gone. It is a good idea to install motion detector lights around the rear of the house and detached garages or sheds. The last thing a burglar wants is a spotlight on his actions.

Ask your neighbor to park in your driveway occasionally. This will help to create an appearance that someone is at home. If you plan on being gone for several weeks, make arrangements to have the lawn mowed or any other outside weekly maintenance completed. Also, put away any bicycles or any outside items you do not want stolen. If a vehicle is being left in the driveway, make sure to lock it and remove any valuables from inside.

Last but not least, contact the Sheriff's Office and request a patrol check of your house while you are on vacation. This will inform the deputies that are assigned to Emmitsburg or your patrol area, that you are gone. If you contact the Sheriff's Office and request a check of your house, your house will be put on a patrol check sheet that deputies will get.

Remember, plan ahead and give your house and your valuables the best protection possible. Have a safe summer!

EDUCATION

Catoctin High School graduates 246

By SUSAN ALLEN
 Contributing Writer

EMMITSBURG, Md. — “This is the turning point,” said Catoctin High School senior Kristyn Bradshaw to her 245 classmates at graduation ceremonies held at Mount St. Mary’s University on June 6, 2007. Now they all would begin to answer the question “what do we want to be when we grow up?” The class included nine sets of twins, an occurrence which drew attention from newspapers and television stations around the county and state.

In his remarks, Principal Jack Newkirk II spoke of the directions members of the class of 2007 were taking toward their goals. Sixty-five percent of the class is going on to post-secondary education; cumulatively they have been awarded over $1.2 million in scholarships. Six students have enlisted for military service. He praised the class for their character, compassion, and willingness to help others. They had, he said, “raised over $10,000 on more than one occasion to benefit others,” most recently toward the medical expenses of their classmate, Casey Bly, who has been undergoing chemotherapy. Bly was the first student to receive his diploma, accompanied by a standing ovation from his class, faculty members, and the graduation audience.

“You look awesome in your Catoctin blue!” was Frederick County Schools Superintendent Dr. Linda Burgee’s opening greeting. She went on to speak of the many changes the students had witnessed in their schools and the world over thirteen years of education. They had begun their school years, she said, using black-and-white composition books for their school journals, and now they express themselves through weblogs, text messages, and MySpace. “From here forward, the book is blank, the screen is blank...Have dreams [and] have plans for how to reach them...it will take courage, character, determination, and [the right] attitude.”

Sarah Foster, president of the Student Government Association, announced the 2007 Teacher of the Year award. Class members each nominated a member of the faculty, and the nominees were narrowed to four: Steven Cree, David Gadra, Mark Kimbrell, and Doug Williams. Cree, who teaches psychology and sociology, received the award. Class members Bethany Lillard and Scott Gautney presented the musical selection “You Raise Me Up.”

Honored guests included Frederick County Board of Education members Donna Crook, Jean Smith, and Katherine Groth, Director of High Schools Ann Bonitati-bus, Maryland Delegate Paul Stull, Mayors James Hoover and Martin

Burns and commissioners from both Emmitsburg and Thurmont, principals and representatives from each of the Catoctin feeder schools, and PTA/PTSA officers.

Earlier in the week, at the Senior Awards Convocation held at CHS, class members received colored cords, medallions, ribbons, hoods, and sashes denoting academic honors and membership in special organizations and governing bodies. They wore the emblems with their caps and gowns at graduation. Winners of numerous local scholarships were announced. Five students received the Principal’s Award from Newkirk: Christopher Forrence, Scott Gautney, Amber Kline, Ryan Lenhart, and Lauren Wildasin.

Mount student athletes excel academically

EMMITSBURG, Md. — Thirteen of Mount St. Mary’s 18 sports ranked above the national average with four teams ranked in the 80-90th percentile, according to the NCAA’s latest Academic Progress Rate scores for 800 Division I teams. The NCAA honored the Mount’s women’s golf and tennis teams for their perfect scores. These two team posted multi-year APR scores in the top 10 percent of all squads in their respective sports.

“We are proud of our Division I athletic program,” Mount President Thomas Powell said, “not only for the athletic accomplishments of our student athletes, but particularly for their academic achievements.”

Four Mount teams ranked in the 80-90th percentile. Those teams are men’s basketball, men’s soccer, softball, and baseball. Because APR scores are based on a sport-by-sport basis, the baseball’s APR score of 975 is not comparable to the men’s basketball’s APR of 967.

The average APR for all Division I student athletes is 960, according to the latest data, which for most teams is based on three years of academic performance. The average APR for male student athletes is 950 while the average for female student athletes is 970.

APR scores per institution, along with penalties per school and teams receiving public recognition, are available online at ncaa.org. For more information, please contact the Mount’s Office of Sports Information at (301) 447-5384.

A place of peace in Fairfield

- JAMES RADA JR. / THE DISPATCH

Our Lady of Peace in Fairfield is a retreat center for those seeking solitude to meditate. Beginning soon, suites will also be available for vacation rentals for people who want to take in Gettysburg, Ski Liberty and other area attractions.

BY JAMES RADA JR.
News Editor
jrada@thedispatch.us

FAIRFIELD, Pa. — Sometimes you just need to get away from everything.

When those times come that you need to retreat from life for a few days, you can head to the Fairfield, Pa.'s rolling hills and seek refuge in Our Lady of Peace Retreat Center.

"Our purpose is to allow people to get away from their daily routine of life and have a quiet place of solitude," said owner Sue Tichy.

Our Lady of Peace resembles a bed and breakfast inn at first glance. The main house features three roomy bedrooms and a peaceful décor.

But then you notice the large barn out back of the house. Entering the barn, you'll find a rustic chapel and downstairs are two suites, a library/conference room and large kitchen.

"Depending on who's coming, I figure I can take care of around 10 people," Tichy said.

Tichy said other differences between retreat centers and bed and breakfast inns are that people who visit retreat centers tend to stay on site rather than simply sleeping at the inn and visiting area site. However, the biggest difference is that retreat centers have a spiritual element.

Carriage House expands outside of the region

EMMITSBURG, Md. — The Carriage House Inn is now the sole on-site caterer for Stone Manor, an elegant inn in Middletown. Stone Manor accommodates everything from intimate dinner parties to large events such as weddings.

- J. Rada

Our Lady of Peace has been at 620 Tract Road in Fairfield for four years. Before that the 10.5-acre farmette was another retreat center called Ain Karim.

When Tichy was considering starting a retreat center, she stopped in Ain Karim. "We just wanted to look at the place and see if we could run a retreat center," Tichy said. Instead, the nuns who owned the center opened negotiations with her about buying the place.

When Tichy came into a small inheritance, she was able to put a down payment on the center and purchase it. Now she has visitors coming from all over the region to spend time in peace, and sometimes, solitude.

"What is totally amazing to me is that I'm still here," Tichy said "I feel I've been invited by God to do this job and I'm trying to do what God wants me to."

In order to continue growing, Tichy will be offering the suites on the ground floor of the barn for vacation rentals.

Tichy also offers fresh-baked goods for sale on Friday mornings from 8:30-11 a.m. She offers bread, cookies and her trademark cin-not buns.

For more information about the Our Lady of Peace, call (717) 642-9353.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE... WHAT WAS THE QUESTION?

BY BILL MEREDITH
Dispatch Columnist

June is nearly gone, and 2007 is half gone with it. It has been a strange year, partly because of the effect of global warming on the weather and partly because of my wife. To give her credit, it must be admitted that her effect was accidental; she broke her hip when a downdraft hit her just as she went off a ski jump last March.* As a result, neither of us could be outside as much as normal this spring; and while we missed a lot, we did learn things about each other that had gone unnoticed in the past 56 years of our acquaintance.

It was not long after we were married that I began to suspect our mechanisms of thinking were fundamentally different, and the subsequent half-century has confirmed it. When confronted with a question, her approach is to flip quickly through her file of experiences, select an answer that satisfies her intuition, fix it indelibly in her memory bank, and get on with life. My approach is to consider the question, select a tentative answer, make the caveat that it could be wrong, and start looking for facts to affirm or negate it. The result is that by the time I reach a conclusion, she has already done three or four other things and forgotten that the question ever came up.

This makes for some strange conversations. Case in point: one morning she looked out the kitchen window and remarked, "There aren't any birds around this year. Wonder what happened to them?" I was surprised, because she doesn't usually pay any attention to birds. My first reaction was to think she wouldn't know, but upon reflection I had to admit that the unaccustomed tasks of housekeeping and caregiving had taken up an inordinate amount of my time this spring and I hadn't been out much, and maybe there weren't any birds around. So I went out on the porch and listened.

No, but I can't water it if they have a nest...

Things looked and sounded normal. The usual starlings, English sparrows and pigeons were all in their usual places. The yard was full of robins, catbirds and chipping sparrows. Normal numbers of cardinals, mourning doves, grackles, house wrens, chimney swifts, fish crows and house finches were chirping from the edges or flying overhead. The phoebe that has always nested in the old haunted house next door was in good voice, and from the woods behind the house came the songs of wood thrushes, peewees, a towhee and a red-bellied woodpecker. Off in the distance I heard common crows, killdeer and geese. As I started back inside, I was almost run over by a Carolina wren that came careening around the corner and deposited a mouthful of straw among the petunias in the hanging planter by the swing.

I went in and reported, "There are lots of birds out there, and everything seems normal I heard at least..."

"Were you out on the porch?"
"Yes, and I think I might have heard a yellow warbler out near the..."

"Did you remember to water the hanging pots?"

"I was going to, but the wrens are building a nest in the purple one."

"Will they hurt it?"
"No, but I can't water it if they have a nest..."

"Well, they'll have to nest somewhere else. I don't want that plant to die."

So, back on the porch, I picked a softball-sized wad of straw, sticks and moss out of the petunias while the wrens sat in the shrubbery about five feet away and shouted choice selections of avian profanity in my direction. Back inside to report:

"OK the plant is watered. I'd better fill the feeder one more time; the goldfinches are hanging around it, and..."

"I think I hear the garbage truck coming. Did you remember to take the garbage out?"

As I went out with the garbage bag I couldn't help noticing that the wrens had resumed hauling nesting material into the sopping wet construction site. Over the next several days the conversation was repeated with minor variations, until they finally gave up and moved into a multiflora rose bush in the field west of the house.

It got hot the next few days, and I started opening the windows in the TV room each evening so the house would cool off over night and the air conditioner wouldn't run so much. My wife is always up early, and yesterday when I came staggering in she said, "Do you hear all those birds out there? There sure are a lot of them this year."

Thinking fast, I replied, "I hadn't noticed... but there's a pair of robins building a nest in the petunia pot on the porch."

"Will they hurt it?"
"No, but I can't water it if they have a nest..."

"Well, they'll have to nest somewhere else. I don't want that plant to die."

*Actually, the hip was broken by a fall in a friend's living room when she got up to go to dinner, but we think the ski jump makes a better story.
