COUNTY COMMISSIONERS APPROVE BUDGET

The County Commissioners of Carroll County this week unanimously approved the 1964-65 Fiscal Year Budget and set a tax rate of $2.00. Such action was taken in accordance with a previous resolution approved by the County Commisioners chang-ing from a calendar year to a fiscal riscar year system of accounting.

The $2.00 rate for the year beginning July 1, 1964, and ending on June 30, 1965, indicates no increase in the tax rate in comparing it with the half-year rate of $1.00 for the current period of January 1 to June

Total receipts and expenditures estimated for the new year total $4,-131,509 and is based on an assessable base of $171,483,431 for real and personal property, railroads and public utilities, and ordinary business corporations, and $8,204,052 on financorporations, and $8,204,052 on financial corporations (for which a $1.00 rate is applied). A total of $3,457,709 has been estimated from these sources. The remaining $673,800 of the $4,131,509 is derived from other general revenues, both state and general revenues, both state and county.

Of the total budget of $4,131,509 approved, $2,987,065 or 72 per cent was for school purposes from county budget sources. The remaining 28 per cent of the budget was earmarked for the needs of general government including administrative, courts, elections, finance, planning, roads, health, safety, and welfare.

safety, and welfare.
Under the current fiscal year change, the Board of County Commissioners was required to set the tax rate no later than April 7. For the past month the Board has been studying all budget requests with department heads and was required to trim many of the requests made to maintain the $2.00 tax rate.

The guest list for this affair is quite impressive and the Post has been fortunate indeed to secure as the main speaker, Mr. Donald G. Han-ning of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. A more detailed report will be published when plans are completed.

Cast Announced for Arsenic and Old Lace

The Taneytown Jaycees have announced the cast for their play, "Arsenic and Old Lace" which will be presented April 24 and 25 in Taneytown. The comedy, under the directions of the comedy of the comedy. tion of Wayne Baumgardner, will begin both nights at 8:00 P. M. in the High School Auditorium. Proceeds will go toward community betterment projects including the new Little League diamond now under construc-

Heading the cast are: Mrs. Mildred Stine and Mrs. Nadine Riffle playing the dear old Brewster sisters, Miss Abby and Miss Martha. Their nephew, Mortimer, a drama critic who dislikes his work and a very eligible bachelor, is portrayed by John M. Skiles. Also featured are James Fair as the slightly mixed-up nephew, Teddy, who thinks he is Teddy Roosevelt, and John S. Harner as Jonathan Brewster, Teddy's brother, who has gotten himself into a great deal of trouble around the world. Dr. Herman Einstein, Jonathan's "business" partner, will be played by Wayne Hively. Adding romantic interest, Elaine Harper, (Mrs. Glenna Lambert), falls in love with Mortimer much to the chagrin of her Minister father, the Rev. Dr. Harper, por-trayed by Roland "Buddy" Clingman. The very inefficient Brooklyn police force headed by Lieutenant Rooney, (George Fream), includes Donald Wantz as Officer Klein, Bill Weeks as Officer Brophy, and Cecil Lewelling as Officer O'Hara. Argyle Kaufman portrays Mr. Witherspoon, the superintendent of "Happy Dale" Santarium where in fact the whole itarium where, in fact, cast should be committed. Mr. Gibbs, a lonely old man who comes to the Brewster house to rent a room, is played by Thomas Lambert.

The play, which was a smash hit both on Broadway and on the road, is being produced by the Jaycees by special arrangement with Dramatists Play Service, Inc. General Adspecial mission tickets are available from any Jaycee or reserved seat tickets may be purchased at the First National

LETTER FROM ALASKA

Dear Folks: How does one begin to tell you about a "major disaster"? I suppose the things that have been foremost in our minds is how thankful we are—for we have been lucky. We were together at home — that was all that mattered — we haven't even speculated as to the possibilities as to what COULD have been.

Secondly, let us say that what you have heard on the various news media probably has pictured Anchorage as a devasted pile of rubble — we've 5:36 P. M., March 27th.

I was sitting on the bed basting a skirt I had just cut out. Mal was out front talking to the gal next door. It had been snowing intermittently all day, though the temperature was above freezing. I had on my ski-pants and my bedroom slippers. I was just thinking I should start supper. We had the day off and had eaten a late lunch so were not too hungry. We had been downtown wandering thru the bookstore, Singer Sewing Co., and J. C. Penney's new store—a $5,000,000 modern edifice of serene windowless exterior rising handsomely above the exterior rising handsomely above the surrounding buildings.

While meditating on the supper problem, the bed began to shake, and I thought — hm-m must be an earthquake. The bed continued to quivver, only more strongly, and I considered the possibility of alarm. Soon the house began (the house is a row of 4 apartments built motel-style-small, neat and compact) to creak and the trees began to sway so I got up to (Continued on Page 2)

HOMEWORK TO DO

The number of those who lost their lives in the Alaskan earthquake and in the tidal waves that followed may never be known.

The original estimate of 600 would have been low for the mightiest quake ever recorded, that toppled and crushed whole sections of Anchorage-a city of 100,000—that inundated Kodiak Island with waves as high as 40 feet, tidal waves that tore at the west coast of Canada and the shores of Washington and Oregon and northern California, and swept westward to lash the Hawaiian Islands.

At last report, the Alaskan death toll stood at 72, with 12 dead and 15 missing at Crescent City, Calif.; four children drowned at Depoe Bay, four children drowned at Depoe Bay, District No. 6, Precinct No. 2—In Ore., one man drowned at Klamath, the Firemen's Building, Manchester. Calif., and one man at Bolinas Bay, Calif. This adds up to a total of 90 known deaths, but almost certainly there will be more, and more Postrict Line in Harken Motor added to the list of missing. In Hawaii, 300,000 fled from their homes, but no deaths have been reported.

Governor William A. Egan, in a preliminary estimate, placed Alaska's economic loss at $250 million, but Senator Ernest Gruening, former Building, on East Main street, West-Territorial Governor who had flown to Anchorage from Washington with Senator E. As we reached the downtown areas the total damage was tragically evident. A basket full twice with debris, filled the teakettle with water, put newspaper over the oily floor and splintered glass, righted the upset articles and calmed down a bit. It was over. Little by little the realization arose that this had been quite an experience—let's go look around. We got in the car — it had moved 2 feet from its parking place — and started looking around. It was still snowing and was rapidly growing dark — the sun sets about 6:30-7:00 now. We drove towards the high school 2 blocks away. The houses had lost a chimney here and there, carports had collapsed at a couple of houses. And then we saw the high school — the whole second the window, and then a swath about 10 blocks long and a block wide which had sunk from 10-50 ft. straight down — houses sunk at weired and bluff lots overlooking the inlet. > to total fright - continuing tremors (slight but magnified in our constant state of apprehension and uncertainity) and increasing reports of damage done. We have four major multistory buildings in town, 3 of them badly damaged and condemmed. They must come down. Hundreds of people not only lost their houses but don't even have the lot to rebuild on. The whole Turnagain area is condemmed since it's built on gravel and sand and break-up will finish what the quakes had started. The whole North side of 4th Avenue for 4-6 blocks has sunk below street level. The bottom has just dropped out. Yes, we were frightened — terribly, terribly so, and are still so, but the worst is over — we must believe this or our morale will suffer.

> Many places in town suffered only minor damage — the entire town is no where near flattened and only a very few casualties. But the damage is great, make no mistake, and we were frightened badly. Things are rapidly returning to normalcy — we have our power and water, but no heat since we have gas heat and the mains are damaged, but we expect it in a day or so. (Our oven does its jobs.) The schools are closed until inspections are completed, but only 2 suffered major damages. People are back to work — cleaning up. We have had typhoid shots, though our water is probably okay; it's not city water; we have a community well system for the neighborhood and it's a very deep well. However, we are boiling and purifying the water until we know for sure that the sewer is undamaged and the water is okay!
> We have been fortunate — we were together, no small children to tend, no house damage, our only loss was replaceable, even though in passing we mourn the loss of many of our lovely wedding gifts. Our house is cleaned up and we are safe and together. We thank God!

It was 2:15 on a Wednesday when Bill remembered he and Janet hadn't been out to supper in a month or more. How about tonight? Call her. Now.

Janet was all for the idea, but there was the matter of getting a baby-sitter on short notice.

"And my hair!" she exclaimed.

Problems have a way of disappearing when you lift your phone.

Her first call reserved the sitter just in time. The second revealed a last-minute cancellation at the beauty parlor. 4 o'clock? She'd be there!

Your phone is perfect for sudden inspirations. Makes quick arrangements possible. Here, three calls meant a delightful evening.

A VOICE FROM CARROLL

Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, a 79 year-old retired school teacher has found-ed the American Association of Reed the American Association of Retired Persons, for the sole purpose of helping people over 55 lead a fuller and a more dignified life. A graduate of the University of Southern California, she prefers being called an "old woman" to "senior citizen" any devict the week week property and helping the production of the week week production. day of the week; wears her red hair upswept; favors orange colored lipsticks, medium heels and gold-charmed bracelets; doesn't mind working more than 12 hours a day. Claims her energy comes from her red haired mother and her red-bearded father. In 1945 after teaching school for 40 years she retired, but after two years learned that a person couldn't make ends meet on a teacher's pension. It was then she decided to work for strengthening the income of persons 55 and older by insurance, mail order drug sales, hearing aids and trips all over the world. The theme of Dr. Andrus organization is: "AARP helps you to help yourself." Membership in the organization costs two dollars per year. The address is: Dupont Circle Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20036. There is more than one way to make Life Magazine. One way is to have a commercial photographer as a friend and neighbor, and pose as a model for an ad. This is just what David Buffington and his young son did and made the March issue of Life. Mr. Buffington formerly lived at Mt. Union, near Union Bridge. He is a graduate of Elmer Wolfe School; Western Maryland College and the University of Maryland Law School. He now lives in Catonsville and is affiliated with a law firm in Baltimore. His former neighbors and friends of Carroll County will be interested to turn to page 74 in the March 13, issue of Life and learn what his young son thinks of his dad and the Black and Decker tools.

We had reason last week to learn first hand how nice it is to have an organization like the Red Cross to turn to in time of disaster. Our bro-ther has lived in Anchorage, Alaska, for 20 years and when the earthquake hit we were deeply concerned for his safety. We contacted the Red Cross in Westminster and soon a telegram was dispatched to Seattle, Washington, to be relayed to Anchorage when communications were restored there. On Thursday we received word that our brother and his family were safe but like a great many others their home was destroyed along with their job. Quite a few people in Carroll have relatives in Alaska and the Red Cross was trying to locate each and every one of them. We have learned first hand how much it means in relieving mental anxiety to know that there is an organization like the Red Cross to turn to in time of disaster and know that all that can be done is being done. Our deep appreciation is extended to the Red Cross work-ers for their kindness and help during the past week.

In the April news letter published by the Carroll County Historical So-ciety there is a copy of a will by William Winchester written in 1774. Among the things he left to his daughters were feather beds. Today one might laugh at such an article but less than a 100 years ago, feather beds were considered both elegant and valuable. It took many pounds of goose down to make a good feather bed and not until one slept in an icy bed could one come near appreciating the comfort of such bedding. Mr. Winchester had 12 children and in his Will he mentions all of them but in different degrees of generosity. He also in his Will he mentions the City of Westminster as a part of Frederick County, which of course it was in 1774. Bequests of money was mentioned in pounds, and guineas. Old family documents give one a fairly clear perception into the past, inclu ding human nature and environment. This is one reason why Historical Societies are important for they collect and preserve the things that link one generation with the other.

The Carroll County Tuberculosis Association will hold its annual dinner meeting on April 23, at 6:30 P. M., in the Civic Center, Union Bridge. The after dinner speaker will be Dr. Earl Griswold, Professor of the Sociology Department, Western Maryland College.

Corfam, is Du Pont's new substi-tute for leather, and promises to do for the shoe industry what nylon did to textiles. Corfam resembles leather but wears better and is easier to work with in making other things like dresses and jackets. At the present time shoes made from corfam sells for $20.00 or more. This is a little more than the average person likes to pay for something to put his feet in, but the price is incidental to the comfort and wearability of the shoes. More and more our fabrics are coming from the chemists instead of nature. Very soon animals will not have to lose their skins to clothe humans. Am sure they will appreciate

Albert Einstein once admitted that figuring out his U.S. income tax was too much for him and he had to go to a tax consultant. It is too difficult for a mathematician. It takes philosopher. We certainly agree with his statement for filling out an income tax form should not be difficult, but it is. One knows how much money he had and where it went, but what he can't figure out is under what heading it belongs. Sometimes he wishes that he could turn his en-tire income over to Uncle Sam and let him do the figuring. Then whatever Uncle Sam returned he would learn to live on. Nobody was ever meant, to remember what he did with every cent. No longer does a lone Robin or a

THE WAY I SEE IT ...

Time was when bandits and robbers wore masks, badly needed a shave and rode a black horse (at least in the movies and TV westerns) and did their foul deeds in the dead of night. But now that has all changed. The robbers and bandits work out in the open in plain view of everyone and instead of getting caught they are applauded for their work. The bandits I'm speaking of are the robbers who stole the deserved title of "Most Valuable Player" away from bers who stole the deserved title of "Most Valuable Player" away from Wilt Chamberlain and gave it to Oscar Robinson. This was the biggest robbery since the Dutch bought Manhattan Island from the Indians. If ever a basketball player in the NBA deserved an award as the "Most Valuable" it is Wilt Chamberlain of the San Francisco Warriors. Wilt was never a team player. He was the high never a team player. He was the high scorer every year. He would never pass off to a man open under the pass off to a man open under the basket. He would never try and work the defensive board. He would never think of blocking shots. He was, in general, playing for Wilt Chamberlain and not for the Warriors. Every year he would run away and hide with the scoring lead. At the end of the season Wilt would have the high with the scoring lead. At the end of the season, Wilt would have the high-est point total of the players, the Warriors would most likely not be in the final season playoffs and Mr. Chamberlain would sit back and wait for the Most Valuable Player award, but it was power forthcoming. Bill but it was never forthcoming. Bill Russell of the Boston Celtics would easily wrap it up. Chamberlain could never figure this out. Didn't he score the most points? Yes, but Russell was the complete ball player and the Celtics would not only be in the playoffs at the end of the season, but likely as not would wind up as the World Champions. Then last season, the Warriors got a new coach, Alex Hannum. He set out on the monumental task of mak-ing Wilt a team man. Chamberlain was hard to teach new tricks. But after much blood, sweat and tears, it paid off. The Warriors were playing with the "new" Chamberlain. True, he didn't score as many points, but he was sweeping both boards, passing off more, and in general he nicked up the whole tears "The picked up the whole team. The result—the Warriors won first place in the Western Division of the NBA (a feat they haven't accomplished since 1956 while they were in Philadelphia) Wilt was way up there in the final assist figures. He personally led the San Francisco Warriors to their division title. He richly deserved the award. Oscar Robertson stole it away. award. Oscar Robertson stole it away. Now Oscar is a great ballplayer, we don't disagree with that. But when it comes to most valuable we have to stick with Chamberlain. Now if the Royals had stolen the division championship away from Boston, then we would be inclined to go along with Robertson but such was not the case. Robertson, but such was not the case so how can he get the award? The Cincinnati Royals had figured to finish second to Boston in the East and they did. San Francisco had figured to finish third to St. Louis and Los Angeles. But they didn't and that should have been the deciding factor. Yes sir, Wilt Chamberlain was robbed pure and simple and the robbery occured in the light of day. I think the FBI should be called in.

Most pitchers head for the bullpen

when they have lost their fast ball. Dick Radatz, the towering terror of the Boston Red Sox relief staff, in-tends to leave the bullpen when his quick one is gone. But not to go into retirement. Dick figures that he will qualify for a starting role then. He qualify for a starting role then. He intends to have a well-rounded repertoire which will include several pitches he does not have now. As one of the best relief pitchers in base-ball last year—with 15 victories and 14 saves for the Red Sox—Dick used nothing but fast balls and fast sliders. They were thrown with a de-livery that tended to be side-arm, the purpose being to intimidate the batter. At his lofty elevation of six feet and five inches, Radatz can go quite a way toward third base before delivering to a right-handed hitter. This spring he will try to develop a new pitch. All he will say about it now is that it will be thrown overhand and will be some kind of a half-speed pitch. Perhaps a change-up curve. Dick reported to the Red Sox training camp in Scottsdale, Ariz., weighing 252 pounds, which is six pounds less than he weighed at this time a year ago. He says he has shifted some poundage from his stomach to his chest and shoulders. He thinks that will give him more force behind his fast ball and more flexibility in his delivery. Dick also had his tonsils out during the winter and thinks that will improve his general health

Art Mahaffey went from a 19-game season in 1962 to a seven-game performance last year and now he'd like to go back to that rich 19 neighborhood. Art had all kinds of trouble last year, a severe ankle injury and a sore shoulder among other things. Time has healed the ankle. And a vibrator which Art bought during the winter seemingly has fixed up the shoulder. The big right-hander re-ported to the training camp of the Philadelphia Phillies two weeks ahead of time and even paid his own ex-penses. A big league ballplayer can show no greater desire than that. After a few weeks of working out, Mahaffey is optimistic about the coming season. The ankle is giving him no trouble. And while he has not cut loose on the mound, his shoulder feels better than it has in a long time.

Art had a big knot in back of his right — or pitching — shoulder last year. And it hampered his style so much that he found himself throwing side-arm instead of coming over the top with his fast ball. The shoulder put Mahaffey out of action on July 30 of last year and he did not return to the mound until the end of the season when he pitched well in two games. It was a couple of months later that he purchased the $140 vibrator. He says his wife thought girls; it's the first way they learn he was in orbit when he told her how much he paid for the device. But when it got rid of the shoulder trouble it looked like a bargain.

Remember When Dept. — The top Michigan State basketball player for the 1944-45 season was none other than Robin Roberts, star pitcher for the Orioles.

Observations on the World of Sports

Today's Sport Laugh—Sandy Koufax of the Dodgers got one award after another this winter, but one small thing has always bothered him. After receiving one certain trophy, he looked at it carefully and muttered: "Don't they make any left-handed trophies?"

-John Breth.

Why Am I Here? Lesson for April 12, 1964

Background Scripture: Genesis 1:26-30; Psalm 8; Luke 12:4-7. Devotional Reading: Psalm 1.

IF THIS is God's world, then it is my world too. Not mine in the sense that I can do what I please with it. Only God is free to do as He likes with the world, for He and He only has the power, the wisdom and the goodness to what is absolutely right. This is God's world first because God made it. It is my world first not because I made it, but because the same God who made it made me.

will and to do

Dr. Foreman If I can speak of my mountains, my country — much greater than I but still truly mine, I can speak of my world, the home God made for me. I belong here. I am created just as all things are created,not all at once with a big bang, but through the long centuries to the hour of my birth and beyond, I have come to be,—and this is the good pleasure of God.

"Little less than God" The poet who wrote Psalm 8 speaks of man as created little less than God. Perhaps that seems too bold: our older English translation says "little lower than the angels," but the Hebrew means plainly "little less than God." This is a staggering thought. Let us take it at its lowest meaning, so as not to be puffed up with pride. In the beginning of the Bible it is said that man is created in the image of God. That means that there is something in man, creature though he is, which shows a likeness to the God who made

"All things under his feet" This joyful Psalm 8 thinks of man not in seclusion with a fence between him and the other creatures around him, but as having "dominion," that is, control and mastery over the rest of creation. Now this can be done in two very different ways. A man who owns many hundred square miles of forest can cut the forest down and by careless, greedy methods lay waste the entire countryside-it has often been done. That man has demonstrated his "dominion" -his machines have been victorious over every tree that stood in their way. But the end is a vast countryside destroyed. An opposite example is another man who is a woodcarver. Out of pieces of wood, not specially beautiful, he makes objects which are useful and a delight to the eye. He is master of the wood; but when he gets through with it, he has brought beauty and usefulness into the world, not an empty desert. In times gone by witchdoctors would use poisons from plants they knew of to bring death to their enemies. Today some of those very plants and their poisons are used by chemists to make medicines that save people's lives. Witch doctor and scientist both have dominion over the plants of the field,-but what a difference!

We are obliged High though we are in the scale life, nevertheless we are obliged to "our neighbor the universe" in ways past counting. Every atom in our bodies was drawn from the ground on which we walk, the air we breathe and the water we drink. If the universe had not nourished us we could never have been born. All the clothes we wear, everything we use and enjoy, is a gift of the universe around us. If we have friends, they too were cradled by the selfsame earth and sea and sky. When our Lord was here, it could have been arranged that he be fed by manna from the sky. But no, one of the marks of Jesus as a true and not makebelieve man was that He too had to be nourished and furnished by the world around him, even as we. So, although we are indeed to have dominion over other creatures, the thought of what we owe to our wonderful world will keep us from being tyrants, hateful and destructive. If we have any power, it is God-given; and we have no right to use our powers in ways that defy the laws and slander the character of our Creator.

We look into the long avenue of the future and see the good there is for each one of us to do, when we realize after all what a beautiful thing it is to work, and live, and be happy. - Robert Louis Stevenson.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

Andrew Carnegie was one of the great pioneers in building the steel industry. He was thus a member of a select company, with the vision and the courage to take long risks, who did much to lay the foundation on which this nation's industrial might was built.

Yet it is likely that Mr. Carnegie is best remembered for a very different kind of achievement—the Carnegie libraries. They were built in community after community across the country. the country. He wanted a better-educated nation, and his contribution to that end can hardly be exaggerated.

This is worth noting now that National Library Week, which is to be observed April 12-18, is almost here. The American library system has grown to a point of size and expenses.

has grown to a point of size and ex-cellence far beyond anything that Mr. Carnegie or anyone else could have envisaged. Even the smaller communities have their free libraries, and good ones. The books are there and good ones. The books are there and waiting — it is up to us to take advantage of them.

What should our resolve be during the Week? Just this: That year in and year out we will read more books and better books. The strength of this nation depends on the knowledge and understanding of its citizens.

ADMINISTRATION ESTABLISHES NEW RECORDS

The present Administration can claim the record for a number of things — for instance:
—the highest cost of living;

-the lowest value of the dollar;
-the biggest promises about reducing Government spending;
-the highest peacetime Government spending;

—the largest number of new agencies requested; -the largest number of Federal employees;

—the biggest drop in the nation's

gold reserve;

the largest number of foreign insults to America;

the worst foreign relations in American history; the quickest shut-off of an investigation embarrassing to the Administration.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor, Browsing, no doubt, among the sort of stuff we all save with the thought that we'll do something about organizing it some day, Editor Dick Barton of the GLENWOOD (Ia.) OPINton of the GLENWOOD (Ia.) OPIN-ION-TRIBUNE came upon a 30-year-old clipping from THE SALEM (Mo.) MONITOR that has a certain timeless quality. It says:

"Many people believe that a newspaper falls together without work or concerted action or plan."
Rev. McLeod, a Presbyterian minister at Pasadena was of that opinion and asked to be allowed to edit one edition of the Pasadena Star. The editor gladly accepted the opportunity to go ly accepted the opportunity to go fishing, and the minister took up his duties in the newspaper of-fice. This is how he felt when he found himself at the end of the

"'My time is almost up as I pen this last line: my hand is almost paralyzed; my brain is befuddled and I am right glad to vacate the holy spot. Such rush and riot and dismay. Such a jumble of potpourri; it strikes me as the effort to have and on the second of the seco fort to bring order out of chaos, and to do it lightning-quick.

"'I am reminded of the memorable words: "The earth was without form and void and darkness was upon the face of the waters."
Never shall I criticize newspaper men any more. I shall pray for them. They shall have my heart's forbearance henceforth and for-ever. They are hardest-working, shortest-lived, poorest-paid brain workers in this weary old world of ours."

We have no doubt the readers of this page will agree with the reverend gentleman's discoveries and convic-tions. But, in all fairness to the Cloth, it should be noted that the editor who gave over his chair did not swap desks with the minister for the educational benefit of both. He did not buckle down to writing next Sunday's sermon. He did not undertake a day sermon. He did not undertake a day of preaching, praying, consoling the bereaved, advising the distraught, visiting the sick, consulting with the Ladies' Aid Society on the Church Fair or the covered-dish supper, counseling wayward youth or conferring on the Easter music.

No. The editor went fishing. -Bob Taylor.
