Lunch Week

October 11 to 17, has been designated as National School Lunch Week, Presidential proclamation, ac cording to an announcement by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

In his proclamation, the President points out that some 17 million youngsters now eat well-balanced unches in more than 68,000 school lunchrooms across the Nation as a result of the Program, which came into existence 18 years ago. It is administered by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Marketing Service in cooperation with the various State educational agencies and local school

The theme for this year's observance is "School Lunch Serves Youth." Under the program, designed to safeguard the health and well-being of our youngsters, they are provided with meals that assure them 1/3 to of their daily nutritional needs. The meals are low in cost — average about 27¢—or, in the case of needy children, are at reduced price or free of charge.

The cost of the program is shared three ways. Federal and State funds pay for about 23 percent of the cost each, while the remainder — about 54 percent — is paid for by the youngsters. The total food bill runs over $900 million a year, most of which is paid by the schools in their local markets. Federally donated foods also make up a large share of the school lunch meals. Foods in the school lunch meals. Foods in USDA inventories as well as foods in abundant supply currently purchased make up the federal donations.

In recent months, USDA has made large purchases of such plentiful foods as beef, turkeys, chicken, Barlott pears plums vegetables and lett pears, plums, vegetables, and other items for the lunch program. In addition, the Department has also donated from its own inventories, cheese, butter, dry milk, flour, peanut butter, rice, and many other foods that make up the staples in the school lunch larder.

President Johnson has requested that observance of the week be designed to promote public understanding and awareness of its significance to children, the home, to farmers, industry and the Nation as a whole.

Our deeds still travel with us from afar, and what we have been makes the chastening of the Almighty.—

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK

National Newspaper Week is to be observed during the October 11-17 period. And when, over those days, editors risk the appearance of immodesty by blowing their own horns, they have a right and an obligation to do just that.

The local newspaper provides a service that is unique, irreplaceable, and a fundamental part of our national life. Its pages tell an endless story of the events, great and small, that influence and determine the destinies of each of us. There is good news and bad-but, what-ever its character, it is part of the scheme of things. Only the newspaper can adequately record it-and keep it as history in the ever-growing files of past issues.

Beyond this, there is no freedom more vital than that of freedom of the press. A good newspaper is, in a sense, a watchdog of the public. It stands for integrity and fair dealing in public and private affairs. Newspapers, on innumerable occasions, have unearthed and revealed violations of trust that would otherwise have remained forever buried. And newspapers have successfully fought for every conceivable kind of reform, often against disheartening odds. that the public interest demands.

No other nation has a press quite like ours, ranging as it does from great metropolitan dailies down to the smallest of the country weeklies. Every one of our thousands of papers, each working in its own special way, is a vital part of the great edifice of freedom on which this country rests -Industrial News Review.

"FACTS AND OPINIONS"

A study prepared for and published by the American Bar Association holds that "Communists employ the language of 'peace' . . . to mask their true strategic purpose: the isolation, encirclement, weakening, and final destruction of the free world." It adds the warning that "to mistake the illusion of peace for genuine peace would be a profoundly dangerous, perhaps fatal, mistake.'

Anticipation by I. G. Hallan Sometimes when dusk is creeping on and shadows gather 'round the door, When low sweet sounds of evening

Are faintly heard o'er field and moor, I steal away in the darkness— Out there in the luminous night

Where a thousand stars are speaking of Him, who is our glorious light. Amazed I stand with gaze intent Before such power and majesty, To think—the one who made it all Now cares so tenderly for me. Yes it's a story really true, That some day I shall rise Above the starry firmament, Above the planets in the sky. No pain or sorrow will be there For tears and death will be no more. The loved ones I have lost awhile Will meet me on that lovely shore. But greater far than glory land Or stars that fill the boundless space,

Will be the joy that I shall know
When I behold his blessed face.

ICE CAPADES TO INTRODUCE LAVISH NEW PRODUCTION TECHNIQUES AT CIVIC CENTER

New dimensions in skating surfaces and dancing areas will be created by the introduction of a two-level stage complete with rear-projection screen, winding staircases, entrance ramps and aerial scenery when the Silver Anniversary Edition of Ice Capades plays at the Baltimore Civic Center from Oct. 28 through Nov. 8.

Measuring 60 feet wide, 15 feet deep and 12 feet high, the set operates on hydraulia ramps and seiseen ates on hydraulic ramps and scissor jacks. Two curved ramps on either side allow skaters to make spectacular sliding entrances. To dramatize the area, the stage includes two sets of curved steps and a dance floor with a second level creating an en-

The upper area behind the dance floor features a rear projection screen 24 feet wide and 10 feet high

Set designer Robert Fletcher has many important shows in addition to Ice Capades. A few of his recent Broadway credits include "How to Succeed in Business without Really Trying," "Little Me," "Foxy" and the current hit, "High Spirits." His sets have been seen on major television productions such as the Jack Paar Show, the Perry Como Show and specials for Eydie Gorme, Steve Lawrence and Mary Martin.

In order to provide great strength with minimum weight and maximum portability, the set design, as executed by Al Teaney, is made of airframe materials manufactured by Douglas Aircraft.

Elaborate production numbers with over 100 skaters to be staged here include the opener "All of Us," a Japanese "Night of the 13th Moon," "At the County Fair," "When Paris Was Young," Ravel's "Bolero," "New York's Got It" and "The Big Game." The latter is a rousing finele feeture. The latter is a rousing finale featuring a football game, a high school prom and a precision skating sequence for which Ice Capades is famous.

The 12-day Civic Center run will top Cardinals scorinclude Saturday and Sunday matinees in a total of 15 performances. The Cardinals Group sales are being handled by Grace Hammann at the Civic Center and there will be reduced prices for

Observations on the World of Sports

If the ST. LOUIS CARDINALS ever recover from a long overdue case of National League pennant fever, they could beat the New York Yankees in the World Series. But the Cardinals, weary of body and mind after winning one of the most astonishing races in history had better

However, so dim was the Cardinals' outlook at one point that one of the biggest front-office shakeups in recent history was made. Manager Johnny Keane's job reportedly was in jeopardy, but the pennant undoubtedly saved it for him.

The Cardinals are a resourceful ball club. They have enough front line pitching for a short series, with Bob Gibson, Ray Sadecki and Curt Simmons, and adequate relievers in Barney Schultz and Ron Taylor. They have consistent hitters, although not many are home run threats. In every season, there seems to be some turning point which helps the Championship Team to a pennant. For the Yanks this year will go down in history as the year of Phil Linz and his harmonica.

The harmonica rascal played a poor rendition of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" one day in the back of the team bus, and the chords struck a team bus, and the chords struck a sour note with manager Yogi Berra. The Yanks lost their next two games, but on the night of August 22nd, the day the Linz fine was announced, they broke their losing streak as Rookie Mel Stottlemyre shutout the Boston Red Sox.

In addition to the Linz incident, the arrival of Stottlemyre, the acquisition of Pedro Ramos from Cleveland, the inspirational leadership of injury-riddled Micky Mantle, the recovery of Whitey Ford, and the steady hitting of Elston Howard were the main factors in the Yankee's pennant

TABLE-TOP THEMES ARE FUN TO PLAN

Summer's blistery days mean "Whoa, there! Take it easy on the entertaining!" When it's your turn to play hostess at lunch to your club or bridge group, it's a good idea to make your splash with a catchy and unusual table setting which you can plan ahead, and let the menu be a cool and casual one.

TO BEGIN WITH, choose a table theme appropriate to the purpose of the group. Get ideas by giving a new look at the unexpected "treasures" found around the house. That ancient and ignored humidor, filled with junk jewels, could double as pirate's chest when it's lady investors' day; grandma's dainty waste basket, as a cornucopia spilling gaily wrapped prizes, for a festive bridge luncheon; or, to launch a fall fund drive, how about a giant wooden salad bowl overflowing with lettuce of the real and figurative varieties?

In the setting shown here, white woolly lambs frolic in a straw-flower meadow near an antique yarn holder—a natural opener for a friendly afternoon with the gang caught up in the current "old fashioned" crewelwork craze. A sparkling color scheme is inspired by the gay orange, brown and pink blossoms on the lustrous dinnerware—melamine, naturally, because it's so easy to handle and washes in a jiffy in the automatic dishwasher. The tangy colors are repeated in the linens, a deep orange cloth used with lush raspberry and pale peony pink napkins. Cool accents are supplied by touches of white in the dinnerware, yarn holder and lambs.

Experiment with snappy napkin folds, as they're an easy way to perk up a table. To do this one, fold a square dinner napkin into a smaller square. Turn up the closed-edge corner to an inch below the opposite open-end one. Now turn up the base of the resulting triangle about an inch and fold under both left and right corner angles, tucking them into each other in back to hold in place. And

Why Jesus Came Lesson for October 11, 1964

Background Scripture: I Timothy 1:12 through 2:15. Devotional Reading: John 10:7-18.

WHEN we ask the question why? we can mean either one of two things by it. One "Why?" looks backward the other forward. Imagine a straight line with an arrow at each end, one pointing right the other left. Let the straight line represent any event, let us say your grandfather's moving to Alaska. Now if I ask, "Why did your grandfather move to Alaska?" can mean either: What was

Dr. Foreman the cause of your grandfather's move? or, for what purpose did your grandfather move? Now, if we let that line stand for the coming of Jesus Christ to this world, "Why did Jesus come?" can mean What was the cause, What were the causes, or What was the purpose, What were the purposes? In this week's study we ask the second question. For what purpose did Jesus come? To save sinners

The first answer, which includes most others, is that Jesus came "to save sinners." Let's not skip over that as if we knew what it meant already. It suggests a great deal, and points up some of the differences between Christian and other religions. Some religions deny that man, any man, is a sinner. Communism, which is a kind of religion in reverse, gives up the notions of "right" and "wrong" for the simpler ideas of "correct" and "incorrect." Even if the words "good" and "bad" are used, they do not refer to God at all, for the communist recognizes no God. One may offend man but not God, they say. There are people who behave unpleasantly, but none who sin. For sin is a religious word, a word with God in the background.

To be a bridge

her reason for which Jesus carro—and comes every day—into this world, is to be a "Mediator" There is one mediator between God and men, Paul says,-himself man. Christ Jesus. The gulf between man and God seems too deep and too wide to be spanned. Man looked across and could see nothing but darkness and mystery. The Bebrews themselves, who knew much that is true about God, when they built a temple, left one room in it without a window and without even a place to set a lamp. This dark room was God's room, its darkness symbolizing man's ignorance of God. It was written in the Old Testament that God said, "No man shall see my face and live." The Apostle John in the New Testament speaks of God as one whom "no man has seen at any time"; and in this same letter to Timothy God is one whom "no man has seen nor can see." (I. Timothy 6:16 How terribly discouraging this is. Unless somehow this gulf of darkness is crossed, we are doomed to be forever separated from God. To give himself

Jesus, we say, revealed God. He did this in words, in his teachings. By the way he talked about God, yes and the way he talked to God, Jesus opens for all who will look, windows into the character and purposes of God. But the unique and amazing thing about Jesus is that he not only gave us information,—the prophets had done that; he gave himself. He was not merely a wise man who told us much about God we did not know. He offered himself as a sacrifice, for our sakes. He is the Bridge; one who is not only a sharer of wisdom and truth, but one who shares our sorrows and even takes on himself the burdens and shame of our sins. He gave his wisdom, his time, his courage, his faith, his love; and in giving these things he was giv-

FAIR FACTS Nearly 19,700,000 people flocked to St. Louis in 1904 for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. The New York World's Fair expects more than 70 million visitors. The St. Louis Fair, which ran for 7 months, cost $421/2 million. New York's Fair, which will be in full swing for a total of 12 months, will cost about $1 billion. A heat wave hit St. Louis at the height of the Exposition. Young Englishman Richard Blechynden took advantage of it. Dismayed because the crowds hurried past his steaming cups of tea to buy cold drinks nearby, he filled tall glasses with ice and poured tea into them. Iced tea was "born" and was an immediate success. Today, thirsty Americans down over 12 billion glasses of iced tea each summer. The long, refreshing drink has established itself as a firm favorite since it was discovered by chance 60 years ago. This cooling discovery from the 1904 Exposition is still reviving hot, weary fair-goers at our newest, biggest World's Fair.
