THIS AND THAT

Are you feeling low and depressed on these gloomy Winter days, or "all in" from too much Christmas preparation? If so, perhaps you need a spiritual uplift. I would like to offer a suggestion that might help accomplish this. Simply go to your phone, pick it up, and dial 848-2772. You will be not recorded massage on certain will hear a recorded message on certain Bible verses, followed by prayer. These messages, or daily Bible lessons are brought to the public via telephone by Reverend Paul Harbaugh, of the Calvary Bible Church. I have been listening to them now for many weeks and have found them most helpful Try dialing in your-

The pair were engrossed in the comic strips, and as Dad read them aloud (and I noticed he was very discriminating in his choice), the boy's eyes and whole face radiated pure delight, as only a child's face can. This man is a busy farmer and probably on this particular evening, still had the milking to do. Nevertheless, he wisely put the youngster's need for love and attention first, a thing which too many parents fail to do these days

In the midst of our plenty, and sad to say, even waste — one-half of the people in the world go to bed hungry every night. Hunger is a painful, shattering experience, but it has become a way of life to far too many of the earth's inhabitant's. Most piting the believe the bildren innocent ful of all are the children, innocent victims of misery and malnutrition. We, who are more fortunate can do our part to relieve the distressing situation, either by giving a special Christmas offering through the church, or by sending in a contribution to CARE or some similar organization. Let us not forget, in the midst of all the shopping, wrapping, baking and decorating, that Christmas is a religious holiday. All of these other activities, as traditional and pleasant as they are, must take a secondary place. To get the real meaning of the season, read the Christmas story in the gospels of Luke and Matthew. Meditate for awhile on the age-old wondrous words, and then try to imagine what a wicked, sad and dreary place this would be, if the long-awaited Saviour had never come. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. Yes, John 3:16 summarizes so well the entire Christmas message and is the real key to our joy and happiness at this wonderful time of the year.

Dear B. P. Rather than have family quarrels, it is best that you move and rent your apartment and with that rent you could pay for the other apartment. Writing in Newsweek, Henry Hazlitt says: "It is the great superstition of economic planners everywhere that only they know exactly what commodities their country should produce and just how much of each. Their arrogance prevents them from recognizing that a system of free markets and free competition, in which everyone is free to invest his labor or capital in the direction that seems to him more profitable, must solve this problem infinitely better."

The Wall Street Journal looks at the Area Redevelopment Administra-"The whole idea behind the ARA reflects the simple old pork barrel theory that just about any depressed area can be revived if you inject enough Federal dollars into it, which may be true in the short run. The fact is, however, that some areas simply cannot be restored to full economic self-sufficiency with any amount of Government funds. Some, for example, lack the manpower, material and natural resources on which a revival might be built. That, however, does not seem to bother the ARA. For in its zeal to spread dollars around as widely as possible, it has approved projects in which a large part of the manpower and materials have to be brought in from other areas - hardly a technique designed to be of substantial aid to the local depressed economy."

Less attention should be paid by America's business schools to the production of technicians and specialists and greater efforts should be made to provide future businessmen with a liberal education, in the view of the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development.

The American Medical Association points out that Old King Cold is a king-sized trouble-maker. In a new pamphlet, it states that the common cold costs the nation $5 billion a year in lost wages, lost production and medical expenses. More than 20 million people suffer from colds on any given wintry day. No specific treatment, so far available, is effective against the cold virus. Any treatment should be directed toward relief of the symptoms and prevention of complications.

Writing in Parade magazine, Lloyd Shearer says that the number-one industry in America is gambling. Its gross annual business runs to an estimated $50 billion, with $10 billion of profit.

According to a railroad tax attorney, the railroads haul only 43 per cent of intercity freight traffic. but pay 90 per cent of all state and local taxes levied on common carriers.

Observations on the World of Sports

FRAN TARKENTON of the Minnesota Vikings didn't invent the part of scrambling quarterback but he has gotten a lot of mileage out of it. Both on the football field, where he runs opposing linemen dizzy, and off the field in radio and newspaper publicity.

Tarkenton insists he runs "only from fright," A line he may have borrowed from his coach, Norm Van borrowed from his coach, Norm Van Brocklin. He also insists that there are no scrambling plays as such and that they just happen.

Fran played his college football at the University of Georgia, where he never ran. It is only coincidental that it is much colder in the Fall in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area than it is in Georgia and the thought occurs that sometimes Fran may run to keep warm.

When asked at the pro quarterback club luncheon in New York yesterday how coach Van Brocklin feels about scrambling, the clever young quarter-back answered: "It all depends on the final score."

Although there have been rumors out of Minnesota from time to time that Van Brocklin prefers a "Pocket Quarterback" to a scrambler, Tarkenton says that Van Brocklin has not tried to make a stereotyped pro quarterback out of him. In other words he gives Fran an okay to scramble if that's the only way to make the play go.

When Tarkenton came into the National Football League a few years back he was the one and only scrambling quarterback in the league. There are now a few others, Gary Wood, of the Giants, for one and fellows like the injured George Mira of San Francisco and Rookie Jack Concannon of the Eagles. All of them, you might note are young.

might note, are young.

The pro coaches, by and large, do not like scrambling for a variety of reasons, most of them good. It exposes the quarterback to physical harm by opposing linemen to a great-er degree. It breaks up the rhythm of the offense. It often results in huge losses. But, of course, scrambling also has its good points. It turns a bad play into a good play, sometimes a touchdown. It gives more receivers a shot at it, rather than a primary man who gets first call and it has an un-expected benefit. Take for example a recent New York game—

Three large New York defenders, Andy Robustelli, Jim Katcavage and Andy Stynchula chased Tarkenton all over the stadium turf. He went back about 30 yards and was rapidly being surrounded by the three men when he saw Hal Bedsole open and connected with him on a 40-yard pass that gained eleven yards. Not only was there a gain on the play but Katcavage, Robustelli and Stynchula were so exhausted from the long chase that they barely made it back to the line of scrimmage for the next

Over the course of a full game that could do great damage to a de-GENE MAUCH is only half-kid-

Few baseball people would agree with Gene. He had a team that did not seem as good as at least three other clubs in the league, but he coaxed them and cajoled them into playing several miles over their

There had to be a leveling off and it came a week too soon for the Phils. A week later and they might have leveled off in the World Series have leveled off in the World Series. That's what happened to the 1950 Phils who staggered home in front of the pack in the National League with the Dodgers Breathing down their necks and the Giants finishing fastest of all. If the 1950 season had run another week the Phillies could have blown the perpent also. They have blown the pennant also. They seemed to have it won with a week to go, but the Giants took them apart in the polo grounds, winning back-to-back double-headers, and the Dodgers came within a-base-runner-thrown-out-at-the-plate of tying them for the pennant.

The Phils made it into the World Series in 1950 and leveled off against Yanks, who whipped them four straight. The Phils have been busy in the trade markets recently, picking up right-handed punch in the person of Dick Stuart and pitching help in the person of Ray Herbert.

Stuart is expected to give the team extra base power, which he will, although there may be occasional confusion in the vicinity of first base when the Phils are in the field. Herbert will be used as a spot pitcher and could be very good at Mauch is smart and tough. He blames himself and gives his players credit for a tremendous try, which, by the way, they made. That way he is a cinch to get another tremendous try out of them in 1965. And if certain other national lague clubs go into the same kind of stumbling, bumbling act they did this year, who knows, perhaps the Phils will go all the way in '65.

REMEMBER WHEN DEPT. — The big talk around the "league" was the shifting of the St. Louis Browns franchise to Baltimore. The Classic picture of them Mayor of Baltimore Tommy D'Alesandro peeping in the keyhole of the American League clubowners meeting room. It was ten years ago this week.

TODAY'S SPORT LAUGH - New York Giant quarterback Y. A. Title thinks he has the answer why baseball pitchers last longer than pro football quarterbacks. You can get something out of going to church, if you stay awake, even if you don't try.

These two aren't going far, but they're having fun. And you can make travelling with Rover just as much fun this Summer by following the suggestions of Purina Pet Care Center authorities. Take along the dog's own bowl which can be used as his water dish first, then for mixing his feeding. He will have an water dish first, then for mixing his feeding. He will have an added feeling of security from using his regular bowl. A six-foot leash is also desirable. Shorter ones may be jerked out of your hand, and you won't be able to grab the short end if the dog bounds off to meet another dog. Take along a square of old blanket or his sleeping pad too. This can be the dog's bed in the car and where you spend the night. After you've shown it to him a couple of times, he'll understand and will take his place automatically.

"God With Us" Lesson for December 20, 1964

Background Reading: Matthew 1. Devotional Reading: Isaiah 40:1-5.

WHAT DO WE SEE most at Christmas? A fat "saint" who probably never lived; babies; manger scenes; sleighs (who sees real ones any more?), wreaths and poinsettias. But these are not the real Christmas.

The day is a birthday. Never mind the fact that the date is almost certainly not the date on which Jesus was born; granted that the date and the festival were not specially not-ed until about

Dr. Foreman three hundred years later. The fact is, this is the day now marked off by the church as an approach colcharation of the hirth annual celebration of the birth of our Lord. It is not meant to be a day for glamorizing motherhood or babyhood; not a day best celebrated in department stores. Santa Claus will do as a happy make-believe; but Santa is not the meaning of the day. If we celebrate it as the Lord's birthday, we may well say we are at the same time celebrating the birthday of the world.

The two names of Jesus

- We can put together two sentences about the name of Jesus. When a baby is born, visitors who come to admire ask as a first question: What do you think you'll name her (or him)? The baby born at Bethlehem, whatever the year, whatever the weather, had been named before he was born. It's a very interesting thing Matthew says here. The child is to be called Jesus, the angel told Joseph; and Matthew comments that this fulfills a prophecy which says plainly that his name shall be called Emmanuel. So far as the New Testament goes, no one actually called Jesus Emmanuel. The family did not, his mother did not. the writers of the New Testament*generally use other ways of speaking of him. Every reader is entitled to his own guess as to why this was, and why Mat-thew sees in "Jesus" the fulfilling of the prophecy that his name would be called Emmanuel. (Immanuel is, of course, just another spelling, meaning the same thing exactly, God with us.) The guess ventured here is this: Jesus was so to speak his public name; Emmanuel was a private name (even Jesus never used it) — one might say God's name for his son; we might say that the private name explains the public

Name of an Army man

Nobody in Jesus' time could have been surprised by the name he bore. No doubt many boys had the same. Just as boys to this day are named for George Washington and Robert E. Lee, so boys in those days were named now and then for Joshua, the famous army man, one of Israel's heroes in her hall of fame. The name Jesus and the name Joshua are just the same in Hebrew, Jesus' own language. The name means deliverer, rescuer, one who comes to the help of those in distress. The name has also a tinge of triumph about it. It means a conquering hero, one who delivers by beating down the enemy. The name would suggest something like a gallant knight of feudal times, his sword unsheathed for the defense of the weak and helpless, rescuing prisoners from dungeons. In olden times men had given the name "Messiah" to the hoped-for Deliverer; and the language of many of the prophets used had led people to think the Coming One would be a great military man, saving the Jews from the Greeks or the Romans as the case might be. But the name Jesus was never taken by Jesus in a military way. He raised no army, would not accept even an army of angels if it were offered him. Jesus' enemy was not the Roman empire, not Pilate, not Herod. It was Evil in every form, it was most of all Sin. Sin is the worst tyrant that ever choked the life out of men who should be free. Every time we hear the name Jesus, we are meant to think of him as the

Like Mistletoe. Legend Surrounds Holly Plant

W Holly, like mistletoe, has become a part of Christmas tradition, but the similarity does not end here. Both holly and mistletoe were once surrounded by numberless superstitions.

The legend of the mistletoe, which changed from a symbol of evil to one of love is the best known. Yet, there are some interesting superstitions regarding holly. They believed that its evergreen leaves signified that it was never deserted by the sun, and is derived from the custom of early Christians who celebrated the feast of the Nativity of Christ for 12 days, placing special emphasis on the last or twelfth day. The "Twelfth Night" tree burning is also said to commemorate the light of the Star of Bethlehem.

The manufacture of toys for Christmas gifts and other uses last year required approximately 130,-000 tons of steel products from all

The first Christmas tree in San Francisco was made in 1850 from Douglas fir branches wired on a stick by a German wine shop proprietor.

Over three-fourths of the nation's Christmas trees come from the states bordering Canada.

The Puritan government of England outlawed Christmas in 1643. With the restoration of the Stuarts, Christmas customs and traditions were revived, but Christmas never regained its former prestige in England.

The first Christmas cards were mailed in 1846 by Henry Cole, an Englishman. The cards depicted a Victorian family assembled at the festive board and bore the nowfamous greeting: "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to

Legend Says Christmas Trees Came From Egypt

Legend has it that the Christmas tree originated in Egypt, where the first trees used were palm

The Germans brought the tree to America, however, as they also introduced it to England. The German Prince Albert, consort of Queen Victoria, introduced the first tree into England when he had a tree for his young daughter.

Martin Luther is said to have brought the first Christmas tree indoors for decoration, early in the 16th century.

When you fasten ornaments to your tree this year you will be commemorating a centuries-old Arabian legend that relates how plants blossomed and flowered and trees miraculously bore ripened fruit on the eve of the first Christmas.

MINCE PIE

The oriental character of the spices and flavoring in mince pie was said to represent the rich gifts the wise men brought to the Christ Child.

The firm of Whitman, Requardt and Associates was retained in 1960 to make the detail studies and plan under the guidance and counsel of the Planning Commission staff.

Colonial girls and boys had few toys to play with. Boys went tiding, hunting and fishing. Girls played "keeping house." We read of one little girl who used to tie a string to a chair and pretend to spin, and then sweep the floor with a splintered stick

Today's youngsters get great fun out of pull toys. Pull-along pup Lady

Gaylord not only cheerfully waddles after her diminutive owner, but her display carton converts into a colorful dog house. She also comes with a wagon, play dog bis-cuits, feeding dish and fire hydrant — enough fun to keep children happily occupied for hours, indoors or out.

Our colonists sometimes ordered toys from overseas. Music boxes were very popular, and even nowadays children love toys that make sounds. Smarty Bird is just such a toy. He announces proud whistle. Ideal has made him of colorful, durable plastic. Just touch his tail and he moves back, forward, starts and stops on his rotating feet.

"My gosh Bill," groaned the managing editor of the tabloid, "nothing scandalous has happened in twenty-four hours. What'll we do for the front page?"

"Aw, don't get discouraged, Steve," the city editor comforted. "Some-thing'll happen. I've still got faith in human nature.
