JAYCEE WEEK PROCLAIMED IN TANEYTOWN

Mayor Neal Powell proclaimed January 15-21 as "Jaycee Week" in Taneytown and asked local organizations to cooperate in the observance. He said the purpose of the week is to focus attention on young men and the work they are doing and emphasized that the Taneytown Jaycees have done an outstanding job in the field of community service. The Jaycees is an organization of young men between the ages of 21 and 35, who are dedicated to community service. Over the years since 21 and 35, who are dedicated to community service. Over the years since their charter in 1956, the Taneytown Jaycees have completed many worth-while projects. Among the projects most recently completed, with the cooperation of the city of Taneytown, are the basketball and tennis courts the community swimming pool and the Little League baseball diamond in the town park. The Jaycees also carry on many youth activities, such as youth basketball, Punt Pass & Kick, Junior Champ, and shooting education. By working on these activities, the members are provided with an opportunity to develop themselves as young leaders. The Taneytown Jaycees would like to take this opportunity to thank all those who have supported them and their projects in the past and urge their continued support in the future. "THANKS."

League Holds First Congress TANEYTOWN REPRESENTED

The Maryland Municipal League held its first Annual Congress of Maryland Cities at the State House in Annapolis on Saturday, January 14, 1967.

A majority of Marylands' 136 member cities were represented at the legislative sessions which were held in the House Chambers. Highlighting the deliberations was the leagues Fiscal Reform recommendations for 1967. This proposal was presented in detail and adopted in principal. It will now be refined and adoption will be urged by the 1967 Legislative Session. Details of the proposal will undoubtedly appear in the press in the near future. Following the business meeting the delegates were taken on a guided tour of Maryland's Historic State House. It could be noted that our State House is the oldest in con-

A CRACKED RECORD

News stories of late have carried accounts of a near breakdown in the U.S. postal service. Several months ago in an attempt to help alleviate the problem of chronic postal deficits, Congress authorized an increase by progressive stages in the size and weight of packages carried by parcel post. The theory is that permitting parcel post to take over some of the business of the investor-owned express companies will help trim chronic postal deficits. In the past, this same theory has been applied with dismal results.

Recent announcements that the change in parcel post weight and size limitations is the opening of a new era of improved service may sound like a cracked record to those with long memories. Back in 1931, size and weight limits were boosted to eliminate a $15 million annual parcel post deficit. Then, as now, it was forecast that the move would greatly expand the usefulness of parcel post. By 1951, the deficit was $131 million.

More government competition with the express companies which are a vital part of the over-all transportation system is not the way to improve postal service. On the contrary, shippers may be thankful that the express companies are still around. At a time when the country seems to be facing a crisis in general postal service, the common carriers of express are working harder than ever to provide the best in service. During recent years, they have simplified rate procedures, introduced containerization and at least one of them, REA Ex-

In 1962 the average employee at the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency received $9,970 a year. Four years later, his salary has nearly doubled to $17,000, according to Representative Harold Collier of Illinois. "I just wonder what these 187 people do eight hours a day, five days a week and 52 weeks a year at a time when we are increasing the size of our military armaments and expanding the defense budget . . . ," Collier added.

The nation's interstate highway system is more than half completed. The U.S. Bureau of Public Roads reported that 22,141 miles of the 41,000mile network are open to traffic. Another 6,382 miles are currently under construction.

Tung Chi-ping, a former member of the diplomatic corps of Communist China, stated reecntly in a Reader's Digest institutional message: "During my two years in the United States I have come to believe that the sense of individual worth is one of the strongest qualities that Americans possess.

Retired Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, Charles E. Whittaker, writing in a recent issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, declared: ". . . It can hardly be denied that a large part of our current rash and rapid spread of lawlessness has derived from planned and organized mass disrespect for, and defiance of, the law and the courts, induced by the irresponsible and inflammatory preachments of some self-appointed leaders of minority groups 'to obey the good laws, but violate the bad ones'. . .'

FACTS AND OPINIONS

Speaking on the state of the economy, Robert G. Dunlop, president of Sun Oil Company, says: ". . . Government must bear a considerable responsibility for what has been happening. For a very high level of Government spending and a policy of deficit financing, with a consequent increase in the supply of money, have contributed importantly to the situation in which we now find ourselves. This, in brief, is the problem for which our country is now seeking an effective solution. The present danger is that if the wrong remedies are applied we will not only fail to solve the inflation problem but we will be likely to intensify it for the future."

All-time records in freight volume and capital improvement spending highlighted 1966 operations of the nation's railroads. The year 1966 saw railroads handle 7 per cent more freight volume than in 1965 and a whopping 32 per cent more than in 1961, reports the Association of American Railroads.

Representative H. R. Gross, a member of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, commented in a recent newsletter on the breakdown in mail service: "Despite steadily increasing postal rates and all kinds of gimmicks supposedly designed to improve service, there has been a breakdown in mail delivery service across the nation that is beyond .belief . . . something is seriously wrong and yet there appears that little is being done to improve service. . . Instead of worrying so much about ZIP code and other gimmicks, what we badly need is a thorough congressional investigation of the breakdown in mail service. . . ."

Aren't we glad God has time for us all — as Ruth M. Williams so everyone who visited me in the hosbeautifully expresses it:

God has time to watch the stars fade, And the sun grow dim and cold,

See the endless ages enter, and the centuries unfold. God has time to watch the redwood

Grow to full maturity, And to note the ceaseless minutes nibbling at eternity.

God has time to shape the sunbeams,

And the slanting silvery rain, Color every flower that groweth and to count the amber grain. God has time to note the falling Of a sparrow to the ground, And rejoice with all his angels When a lost sheep has been found. And when life's short roll is finished, And we face the setting sun, He'll have time to smile upon us, And to greet us, one by one!

FISH FOR A WONDERFUL MEAL

A fish dish, impressive enough for your most discerning guests.. and yet within family-meal budgets, too ... is a whole stuffed fish. Point up the flavor of the fish with a smooth, flavorful sauce, made from condensed mushroom soup. Condensed soups always assure you satin-smooth, perfectly seasoned sauces.

Incidentally, if you can't get a whole striped bass at your market, substitute red snapper, bluefish, mackerel, whitefish, or cod.

BAKED STUFFED FISH WITH MUSHROOM-PIMIENTO SAUCE 2 tablespoons onion, 2 table-1 can (2 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces, drained 1/4 cup finely chopped onion 3 tablespoons chopped parsley 2 tablespoons finely chopped celery 1/4 teaspoon salt Generous dash each crushed marjoram, pepper, crushed thyme 6 tablespoons butter or margarine 1 cup small dry bread cubes 3-pound whole striped bass, boned 1 can (10-1/2 ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup 1/3 cup water

2 tabiespoons chopped pimiento 1 tablespoon sherry (optional)

In saucepan, cook mushrooms, spoons parsley, celery, and seasonings in1/4 cup butter until vegetables are tender. Remove from heat; stir in bread cubes. Lightly stuff fish; fasten with toothpicks or skewers. Place on rack in shallow baking pan; brush with 1 tablespoon melted butter. Bake at 350°F. for 1/2 hour or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Meanwhile, in saucepan, cook remaining onion and parsley in 1 tablespoon butter until onior is tender. Gradually blend in remaining ingredients. Heat sti now and then. Serve ever f.sh Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Observations on the World of Sports -John Breth

Pro football's greatly-anticipated SUPER BOWL GAME now is part of sports history, and there is no doubt that it will be remembered for doubt that it will be remembered for a long time. The contest had the greatest build-up of any sports event which preceded it, and for the first half, at least, it was a contest wor-thy of all the drum-beating. But once the Green Bay Packers began to assert their superiority, the difference between the two teams difference between the two teams and between the two leagues for that matter, became very apparent. To borrow a phrase from the throroughbred racing set, "Class Will Tell" — and it did.

Determination can take a team so far, and in this case it took the Kan-sas City Chiefs through the first half. They trailed by only 4 points when the half ended. Then the Packers opened up, and the game was a contest no more.

Willie Wood is being credited by many as being the player who broke the game open. Early in the second half, he intercepted one of Len Dawson's passes and returned it 50 yards to put the Packers in position for their third touchdown. Dawson and the Chiefs never seemed the same after that.

The Packers also seemed to take heart from that play, as if they real-ized it was time to show who they were. Their defensive linemen began to crash in on Dawson, as all the reports predicted they would. And it was obvious that Kansas City, in-deed was over-matched. Dawson did a noble job in the first half, but Green Bay's quarterback, Bart Starr, did a professional job for the two halves.

professional job for the two halves. That, too, was a key factor. The Chiefs did show flashes of brilliance, especially with Mike Gar-rett's running and some fine pass catching by Otis Taylor. But those were momentary flashes. Packers coach, Vince Lombardi, may have summed up the truth of the have summed up the truth of the "Maybe next year this will be the most important thing in the world, but right now it isn't." The Chiefs and the A-F-L just weren't quite ready.

Someone who had never watched OSCAR ROBERTSON in action be ore came away from his first pro basketball experience with the im-pression that Robertson is not very interested in what happens during the game. Nothing could be further from the truth, of course. But Robertson does appear to be taking a cool view of the proceedings, and it takes a great deal to get him excited. The young man who has seen the "Big O" for the first time, was even more surprised when the game was over to learn that Robertson had scored close to 30 points and had been credited with ten assists. The observer wondered out loud—"When did he do all that?"

People who have been watching Robertson play for years, at the University of Cincinnati and with the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association, know he is true professional at making a tough

THE FAMILY LAWYER

HOW MUCH RELIGIOUS LIBERTY?

"The crowning glory of American freedom," wrote one exultant judge,

"is absolute religious liberty." Yet, is "absolute" the right word? Are there really no limits at all to our religious liberty?

The great, historic test of this question arose a century ago when a Mormon was arrested for polygamy. In his defense he relied on the constitutional guarantee of religious freedom

But the Supreme Court drew a momentous line dividing that freedom into two parts: freedom of belief and freedom of practice. The Court said freedom of belief has no limits, but freedom of practice must necessarily have limits if society is going to function successfully.

Otherwise, said the Court, any anti-social act—including even human sac-rifice—would be lawful if it bore a religious label. "Every citizen (would) become a law unto himself. Government could exist only in name." Thus, in assorted test cases, courts have held it illegal—even for religious reasons—to use child labor, to violate reasons—to use child labor, to violate a liquor law, to curse a policeman, or to handle snakes dangerously in church. However sincere the defend-ant's religious belief, his religious practice went beyond what society could fairly permit. Nevertheless, in each one of these cases the court acted only because cases, the court acted only because the need for setting limits seemed very clear indeed. By and large, the law has bent over backwards to avoid putting limits on religious practice For instance, courts have upheld the right of religious partisans to ring doorbells (even if that might annoy some folk) and to hand out leaflets (even if that might cause litter). Furthermore, under the sturdy con-stitutional shelter, unusual forms of worship continue to sprout and worship flourish

So our religious freedom, if not quite "absolute," is reassuringly close to it—just as the Founding Fathers intended.

"They fashioned a charter of gov-ernment," the Supreme Court has said, "which envisaged the widest possible toleration of conflicting possible toleration of conflicting views. Man's relation to his God was made no concern of the state."

Beyond Words Lesson For January 22, 1967

Background Scripture: Luke 7 and 8 Devotional Reading: Isalah 6:1-8.

A great violinist begins to play a concerto by Brahms. Two men sit side by side in an automobile and hear the music as it swells from their car radio. To one man the sounds are music of indescribable beauty and emotion. To the other, it is only "so much horsehair scraping over cat-gut." One medium of communication – two entirely different responses. One man's ears collect the vibraand he Rev. Althouse tions finds them pleasurable. The other man, however, hears only harsh, shrill sounds and wants only to flick the dial to another station.

Both And Neither

Who is correct? Both and neither, for the fact is that we do not all respond to the same attemps to communicate. What is meaningful to some is a puzzle to others. It does no good to berate another because he responds differently to some of the things that seem good to me. People are different and God has made us that way. If we are truly concerned about communicating with someone, we must be careful to choose language that is meaningful to them. Jesus seldom used what might be called "religious language" in his preaching and teaching. He used figures of speech, analogies, and illustrations that were drawn from the experiences of his hearers. Of prime importance for him was the truth he wished to communicate. The form of the communication, the package in which the truth was wrapped, was adjusted according to his audience.

Beyond Sheep

Christians today often forget this and cannot understand why they are not more successful in getting across the message of good news. They speak of "shepherds" and "sheep" to people who have spent all their lives in the concrete cities. We use "churchy" words and Sunday school expressions that no longer have the power to communicate. We ask not only that the outsider will listen to us, but also that he learn our vocabulary too.

Our task, however, is not only to find new language, but of going beyond language. Jesus not only preached and taught the Sometimes American appetites need a little coddling to appreciate the unfamiliar—like Far Eastern curry. So my advice to new brides or any would-be gourmet—apply a light hand until you know your own strength. To practice this art, here's the perfect recipe for your next party buffet: my Crusty Curried Chicken. It's so subtle in East Indian curry, you can't possibly frighten all-American appe-tites. But you will impress your guests with a wisp of elegant dif-ference in flavor. Of course, you'll prepare this dish ahead, refrig-erate until an hour before serving and bake as directed. Just like erate until an hour before serving and bake as directed. Just like any calm, cool and well-organized gourmet cook.

CRUSTY CURRIED CHICKEN 8 chicken breasts 1 cup Bisquick 2 tablespoons curry powder

11/2 teaspoons salt 1/4' teaspoon pepper 1/4 cup shortening (part butter)

Heat oven to 425°. Wipe the chicken with damp paper towels. Mix remaining ingredients except shortening in paper bag. Shake 2 or 3 pieces of chicken at a time in the bag until they are thoroughly coated. Melt shortening in oblong pan, 13 x 9 x 2 inches. Place chicken skin side down in a single layer in pan. Bake 40 minutes. Reduce tem-perature to 375°, and turn chicken with tongs. Bake 20 minutes longer. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

See how easy it is to be cagey with curry by combining it with familiar seasonings? Now give chutney a whirl with this quick and easy garnish. Again, do it ahead and heat just before serving.

A Low-Cost Way To A Loaf

Spare the cost, but never the pleasure of fine quick breads. By using inexpensive instant nonfat dry milk, a family can enjoy the qualities of whole milk at a saving. Here's a delicious example: a Nut-Brown Wheat Bread made with dry milk, mixed with molas-ses, and dappled with coarsely chopped walnuts. Complement the bread's nutty sweetness with butter, margarine, or cream cheese, or, for those with a sweet tooth, with preserves.

gospel, he was the embodiment of it. Ours is particularly a day and age in which men will re-spond more readily to what they see than what they hear.

If they hear us proclaim, "For God so loved the world ...," but see that we have something less than the whole world in mind, the message will not get across. If they hear us exalt a crucified Christ, but see us shy away from costly involvement for others, they will not believe the good news. If they hear us sing, "Just as I am," but demonstrate that we don't want them just as they are, the song will be in vain.

In our city a number of churches and interested individuals have combined their resources to provide a coffee house ministry to rootless older youth and young adults. Although it has been in operation just a few months, young people already know that it is a place where they are wanted and accepted, where someone is interested in them and their problems. Named "The Source," the coffee house is staffed by volunteers from various churches who wait on tables, wash dishes, and sit down to talk when dialogue and conversation are desired.

Sooner or later, many of the young people want to know: "Why do you people do this? Why are you concerned with us?" Inevitably, the answers of the volunteers lead them back to the source of their concern: the love of Jesus Christ.

Love in action is still one of the best ways of communicating the good news. It takes us beyond words.

Rudyard Kipling appreciated better than most the making and meaning of a man.

And if he were alive today, he'd undoubtedly have applied the famous quote above to America's newspaperboys. By faithfully delivering the news day-inand-day-out, fair weather or foul, a newspaperboy learns responsibility at an early age.

He learns enterprise. Dedication. Dependability. How to fill an important place in the community.

And he learns the value of money and saving, too ... and of looking ahead to the future. That's why many a newspaperboy develops the habit of buying U.S. Savings Bonds regularly. Maybe to help put himself through college someday.

More than that, newspaperboys have slone their communities and their nation a real service since 1941 by buying Bonds and by helping to promote and sell Savings Bonds and Stamps.

I recall this same thought expressed numerous times by my daughter, who is a registered nurse. Self-pity, indeed, is a luxury that few of us can afford to wallow in, for it narrows the mind, locks the heart, and freezes the sensibilities. One sure remedy for counteracting this damag-ing emotion is to think of others and to lend them a helping hand. Sit down and write a letter to that boy in the service, send a get-well card to a shut-in, or visit a lonesome neighbor. If you cannot help others, at least help yourself by KEEPING BUSY!
