Letters to the Editor

Dear Sir:
The Carroll County Times, in its issue of January 5, 1967, states:
"Taneytown's Mayor Powell seeks selective growth." He wants to see Taneytown grow rapidly but selec-

Some taxpayers in Taneytown think the present administration has done a mighty poor job of "selecting."

A modern manufacturing plant in Taneytown is now being used for storage. Could this be the results of this administration's selectivity?

This administration is spending $30,000 of the taxpayers' money to give them complete control of one of the few undeveloped sites in this area where both sewer and water are Article 47 of the City Charter states: "The Council has the authorstates: "The Council has the authority to acquire by conveyance, purchase or gift, real or leasable property for any public purpose." I ask this question of the present administration: for what public purpose are they buying this land with the taxpayers' money?

Is there any place in the City Charter where it states that the Council has the authority to spend the taxpayers' money to purchase land outside the city limits to give the Council the privilege of selecting who shall develop it? Is this part of this administration's selective growth?

Has this administration taken action of any kind in the last 12 months to prevent an industry from locating in this area?

The present administration should tell the taxpayers what industries they have selected to keep out of Taneytown. The taxpayers should be informed of all the facts in each case. They will give them an opportunity to decide whether the administration's selection is good for the community

Why should a small select group decide what is good or bad for an entire community?

January 24, 1967

Dear Mr. Editor: An item in the January 20th, 1967, edition of a newspaper widely circulated in this area is of considerable interest to many of your subscribers For the benefit of those who did not read the article, it reported that the Carroll County General Hospital (of Westminster) had donated to the Community Swimming Pool for Littlestown, Penna., 500 wire baskets valued at about $1,000.00.

Now I'm sure most, if not all, of your subscribers will agree that charty is a virtue. But, it seems to me charity ought to begin at home, particularly when the benefactor is a semi-public organization for whose benefit the Legislature authorized the County Commissioners for Carroll County to compel the taxpayers of Carroll County to make a donation, by the levy and collection of a tax to the tune of $100,000.00, for capital improvements, over a 4-year period after June, 1962.

I know that unsophisticated country bumpkins from the rural counties of the State of Maryland should not question the benefactions of the polished, intellectual urbanite brothers, nor, in our own county, should the clods who live out-side the intellectual, economic center of the county presume to inquire of the actions of those who hold office in public or quasi-public organizations - but doesn't it seem some question should be posed or some inquiry made? Needless to say, it is not my intention by this letter to suggest that any type of explanation of policy should be made. But the article to which I referred is an interesting news item. Don't you agree?

Very truly yours, Donald M. Smith.

And thinking about TV hope you did not miss the "Singing Nuns" on the Ed. Sullivan Show for they were simply sweet and precious with the opening number, "It's A Lovely Day Today!" PROGRAM OF SCARCITY OUTDATED

The head of the American Farm Bureau Federation, perhaps the largest organization in the country, has asked for an end to government farm controls. Forty years experience with such controls, he said, has shown that "government supply management in agriculture does not work." He added that one of the chief causes of massstarvation in India is price controls imposed by the Indian government. The theory of the government's program of controls in this country has been to protect farmers against the depressing effect of over-abundance. Whatever justification there may have been for such controls in the past no longer exists. Rapid population increases in the U.S. and throughout the world have ended the age of surpluses. As the Farm Bureau spokesman suggested, the government should now devote its attention to production, marketing research and promotion of international trade. The time is rapidly approaching when every available acre of tillable land will have to be used for food and fiber production. The inherent efficiency of the American farmer will be needed as never before. It should be recognized once and for all that a free market in agriculture, as elsewhere, is the most productive market.

ASKING FOR A CHANCE?

Conceivably the day may be approaching when it may be good politics, as well as a national necessity, to bring federal income and outgo into balance. A late Opinion Research Corporation survey shows that 71 per cent of the people approved a cut in federal spending as an alternative to a further tax increase to help control inflation.

The big question now is will spending cuts be looked upon with favor when they begin to pinch, or will it be the old story all over again of being in favor of government economy so long as it is your next door neighbor who is making the sacrifices? Congressmen trying to keep their constituents happy are pouring billions of dollars down the drain of countless federal projects and programs. This, not the war in Viet Nam, is slowly bankrupting the country. The war in Viet Nam has come on top of a trend that already existed, a trend toward fiscal insolvency. If the people mean what the Opinion Research poll indicates, there may be some hope of bringing federal spending under control. It would not take too much effort nor too much sacri-

The tremendous productivity of our industries and our people can guarantee the financial integrity of the nation if given half a chance. Perhaps the polls and recent elections indicate that we are asking for that chancebefore it is too late.

GRASSROOTS OPINIONS

WYTHEVILLE, VA., ENTER-PRISE: "Officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture have charged that it was (or at least should be) illegal for Armour and Company to offer a 50¢ refund on each package purchased of a new line of bacon the company introduced several years ago. . . We know of no law passed by Congress authorizing the Department of Agriculture to tell a private industry how it can or cannot advertise its products. And we suspect if the 'Aggie' boys get away with it in this case, the Justice Department, Federal Trade Commission and a host of other federal agencies and agents will pick up clubs for a big 'crackdown' on advertising by all private industries. We agree with Mr. Herbert Brownell (former U.S. Attorney General), counsel for Armour and Company in this case: 'The very future of creative and responsible American advertising and promotion may well be at stake. The real issue is . . . freedom in the marketplace under the existing laws or manacles in the marketplace by administrative ukase."

First, you fill out a questionnaire, go to a government office, buy a coupon book, then you go to a government-owned station to trade coupons for gas. At the stations, which are sparse even in larger cities, you'll have to wait in line for a long time. Then you guess how much the tank will hold, check the number of coupons, set the pump dial . . . you manipulate the hose. All the attendant does is collect the coupons."

The election would be settled in a hurry by a half a dozen voters in Henniker, New Hampshire. No one else need go to the polls for the machines would grind out the outcome on the basis of those six votes. We need to attend church on Sunday to renew ourselves for the next week's service: to give each day to and for the Lord. We must never forget, he went on, that only through serving others, will Christ have meaning for us and for those we serve in Christ's name. The morning anthem, "Day by "The House That Jesus Builds" (by M. Johnson) There is a house that always stands upon the rock of time. It is the house that Jesus builds; is it yours? It sure is mine! He built it there some years ago within the cleft of love. It never left, it still abides; for it is from pled up so none could see its form; for Jesus is the light within; and always keeps it warm.

You Can't Move In With Me, You Know

'Tis silly so to think—just come to Jesus as you are — and leave the stormy brink. Just say to him, "This house is sin; it needs an occupant,"
"will you come in the inner room?"
Don't leave him out in front.

IN MEMORIAM

KEEFER-In loving memory of my husband, Earle F. Keefer, who passed away three years ago, January 31, 1964.

This month recalls sad memories Of a loved one gone to rest, But love lives on in memories As the rolling stream of life rolls on.

God in His wisdom has recalled The boon His life had given And though the body slumbers here The soul is safe in Heaven.

And when life's short race is finished And we face the setting sun, God will have time to smile upon us And to greet us one by one.

Loving wife, MATRONA M. KEEFER

FEED GRAIN PROGRAM HAS BENEFITS

In the hustle and bustle of starting off a new year, farmers should not forget the signup dates for the 1967 Feed Grain Program, cautioned Gary R. Brauning, Chairman of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, 33 Court Street, Westminster.

The 4-week signup period begins Feb. 6 and ends March 3. The office will be open on Saturday morning during this period from 8:00 A. M. until 12:00 noon. The 1967 voluntary program is similar to the program for 1966, although it has been strengthened in some respects. The Chairman listed these changes:

—The price-support loan rate has been increased. For 1967 corn crop the rate is up 5 cents, from $1.00 to $1.05 per bushel. The loan rate for grain sorghum is up proportionally—from 1:52 to 1.61 per hundred-

"These changes will mean an average increase of about 5 percent in price support for 1967 participants." They should provide a higher floor price for the market, according to USDA program forecasters," Brauning said.

—The support payment rates continue at the 30-cent per bushel level for corn and 53 cents per hundredweight for grain sorghum production on 50 percent of the farmer's base

The loan rate on barley is up from 80 cents per bushel to 90 cents, national average. This rate is available to all producers on their entire acreage. Barley is not included in the feed grain program this year. Farmers who grow barley and also par-ticipate in the 1967 Wheat Program may arrange with the county ASCS office to plant wheat as a substitute on barley base acres on a full acre-for-acre basis.

Chairman Brauning also outlined some of the benefits that are continued in the 1967 program from preceding voluntary feed grain programs:

There will be advance payments.
If a farmer wants to take it he may receive one-half of his total payment at the time of signup. This provision will be of particular interest to farmers who earn only a price-support

The small base provision remains in effect. Small farms with feed grain bases of 25 acres or less may divert more than the qualifying minimum of 20 percent on up to as much as the entire base. They will be eligible for payment on all of such diversion.

Farmers may plant soybeans on all or any of their permitted corn and grain sorghum acres in 1967 without loss of program payments or loan eligibility. Chairman Brauning said the need to expand feed grain production in the range of 12 to 15 million acres in 1967 and divert 15 to 18 million acres is indicated by the reduced carryover this year.

"The marketing year begins October 1 each year. Last October 1, the carryover of old corn was 886 million bushels, down one-fifth from a year earlier. Grain sorghum stocks October were 393 million bushels, down nearly one-third from a year earlier. If we add in barley and oats, the total feed grain carryover is about 43 million tons. This is about the cushion or reserve that is desirable," he added.

THE WAY I SEE IT .

Observations on the World of Sports -John Breth

It is freely claimed—and in most places conceded—that BALTIMORE won the 1966 American League Pennant in December of 1965 when grabbed Frank Robinson in a trade with the Cincinnati Reds.

That brings up the inevitable question. . . has any team, either in the National or American League, won the 1967 pennant in December of 1966? of 1966? There was a lot of horse-trading— if the Players Association will permit us that phrase—at the Winter meetings last month.

The principal swappers were the Los Angeles Dodgers, Minnesota
Twins, Los Angeles Angels, Pittsburgh Pirates and Atlanta Braves. If you want to climb out on a very sharky limb and put your finger on a team that might—we repeat might Minnesota. The reason for that is the Twins got in Dean Chance, a man who might do for their pitching staff what. Frank Robinson did for the Baltimore batting order. Chance is young, strong and already has shown the elements of greatness. That was in 1964 when he won the Cy Young award as the best pitcher in baseball after winning 20 games for the Angels. If Dean puts it all together next year at Minnesota he may team up with Jim Kaat and Mudcat Grant to give the Twins an overpowering big three. You don't have to put any strain on your don't have to put any strain on your imagination to see them winning close to 60 games among them. That would give any team a long stride toward a Pennant.

The Twins did not weaken their down-the-line punch to get Chance, either They parted with three play-either. They parted with three players, outfielder Jimmy Hall and first baseman Don Mincher; plus, pitcher Pete Cimino. Minnesota has what appears to be adequate personnel to replace all three.

There will be a winter-long debate on how much help Maury Wills will be to the Pirates who gave Bob Bailey and minor leaguer Gene Michael for him. There is the question of Wills' ailing knee, his age, 34, and a new position . . . the Pirates intend to use him at third base. However, we will supply ever, debate or no, Wills will supply the answers himself on the field next year. That is, if he plays. Maury is already sounding like a holdout with an announcement that he might quit. Don't bet anything more than the price of yesterday's newspaper on that one. The Dodgers in getting Bailey, Michael and Ron Hunt in trades with the Mets and Pirates do not seem to have taken any the worst of it in trades. But they will miss Sandy Koufax, who retired.

A trade that did not attract much attention but one which could loom larger next Summer is the one that sent third baseman Clete Boyer from the Yankees to the Braves Minor League outfielder, Bill Robinson. Boyer, an outstanding glove man, just might make the left side of the Brave infield one of the strongest defensive areas in the game. Clete doesn't hit much more than the size of his hat and shoes added together. But he sure carries a big league glove around with him and the braves have enough hitting to take up any slack he leaves.

he leaves.

Honors keep piling in on FRANK ROBINSON, the Baltimore Belter, who currently is recuperating from his knee operation of last Fall.

Frank has been voted "Male Athlete of the Year" by the associated press, an honor he added to his most velvable player award and nomination valuable player award and nomination as the outstanding player of the 1966

World Series.
Will any of this make Robinson's task any easier this year? He has a lot to live up to. But Frank has faced that problem before. And the last time he encountered it he handled it very well.

In 1961, Robinson won the most valuable player award in the National League while playing for the Cincinnati Reds. In '61 Frank hit .323 with 37 homers, 124 runs batted in and 117 runs scored.

That gave him a lot to live up to in 1962. All he did was to top himself. He batted .342, just 19 points over his 1961 mark. He drove in 136 runs, a dozen more than in '61. He hit 39 homers, an increase of two. He hit 39 homers, an increase of two. He scored 134 runs, which was a total of 17 more than the previous season. Incidentally, did a great year like that earn another most valuable player award for Robinson? The answer is no. The M-V-P winner in the National League in 1962 was Maury Wills of the Dodgers.

How about the knee operation, will

How about the knee operation, will it bother Robinson this year? Nobody can get too definite about that but the doctors say that surgery was a complete success and that Robinson will be running and hitting at the efficiency by opening day in top efficiency by opening day in Many home owners are troubled with bare spots in their lawn and play areas. This is particularly true after the extreme dry conditions of the past year. These bare areas can easily be seeded in February when no snow is on the ground.

The big advantage is the seed can be scattered over the bare area without any ground preparation. The freezing and thawing action of the ground covers the seed. Germination then takes place as soon as temperatures begin atures begin to warm up in March. Grass seeded early has an excellent chance to establish a good root system during the wet spring period.

The most important task facing the Legislature in this 1967 Session will be the calling of a Constitutional Convention in September of this year. The Constitutional Convention to the Legislature which proposes that a special election for delegates to the Convention to be held on June 6, 1967 and that each County and Baltimore City District elect the same number of delegates as such County and District now has representing it in the House of Delegates. Crosses: One-Half Off Lesson For January 29, 1967

Background Scripture: Luke 9 and 10.

I heard this little ditty on the radio the other day: I don't care if it rains or

Long as I have my plas-board of my car! Some people, it seems, look to Jesus for insurance against any unforseen hazards (including crosses!). What they want is security. What Rev. Althouse he offers, however, is a cross! Of course, we all love the cross.

We love those little crosses we wear on the lapels of our coats or on dainty chains around our necks. We admire the golden and silver crosses on our altars or the remote crosses of church steeples. We love to sing about "the old rugged cross on a hill far away," but the life-sized crosses close at hand is a cross of another color.

Unconscious Irony

Last spring one day I saw a sign in a downtown store window: "POST-EASTER SALE: CROSSES AND BUNNIES ONE-HALF OFF!" It struck me that the sign carried a certain amount of propositions in the pain. the sign carried a certain amount of unconscious irony. The pain and the agony of the cross are quickly forgotten. What most people want is a marked-down Christian discipleship.

Many of us, perhaps, are like the two ladies who went to Stratfordon-Avon to see Shakespeare's home and attend one of his plays. How wonderful it would be to How wonderful it would be to write home to say they had actually seen a Shakespeare play in his own town. The play they went to see, however, was Titus Andronicus, a thoroughly gory play. When they emerged from the theatre, the two women were obviously shaken by their experience. For a while they said nothing until one of them spoke up with a force smile: "Let's simply have some tea and forget it!" People often have the same reaction to the cross.

we can imagine that the disciples reacted in much the same way. Jesus had suddenly taken them from Galilee to Caesarea Philippi. They knew something was in the air. Then, he began to question them. Who did the people say that he was? They told him. Then, ". . . who do you say that he was "Without a moment's more than a moment's a moment's a moment's moment's a moment and a mome that I am?" Without a moment's hesitation, Peter sprang forth with a confession which, until now, had never been spoken in Jesus' presence: "The Christ of God." It was out in the open at last! What a wonderful moment for the little

Strange Response

Yet what a strange response Jesus made to that wonderful con-"The Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed ... "(Luke 9:22 RSV) One moment they were rejoicing in the knowledge that they were to share the honor of being the disciples of the Chosen One of God. Now, however, he seemed just as quickly to snatch that joy away with his dire predictions of suffering, rejection, and death. It was obvious: there would be no bargain-basement discipleship for those who followed him.

A member of a former parish once told me irritably:"Preacher, I come to church to relax, to find peace and quiet; all you do is stir me up and make me uncomfortable." I could sympathize with him. It gets to the point that one gets very, very tired of all the challenges thrown out to the Christian, all the human needs marked "urgent." It is understandably human that we seek peace of mind, not crosses.

What we must realize, however, is that we can find our peace of mind as he found his: not by making peace with the forces of evil, but by remaining faithful to our calling. Our peace is found, not so much in being withdrawn from the bombardment of life's trials and challenges, but in remaining faithful even unto the True peace cannot be marked-down below the price of the cross.

ANNAPOLIS REPORTS

The Maryland General Assembly convened in Annapolis on Wednesday, January 18, in the oldest (1772) State House in continuous use in America

The newly apportioned Legislature at Izmir Dependents School. (one man-one vote) took on a new look as the voting majority shifted from the rural to the urban counties. The membership of the House remained at 142, but the Senate was increased from 29 to 43 members. To show the extremes of representation, Baltimore County has 22 Delegates and 7 Senators, while Garrett County has but one Delegate and shares a Senator with part of Allegany County. The first bills introduced, and many of these will be the first considered resulted from studies made by the Legislative Council during the time between the last session of the General Assembly and the opening of this

The first day saw the introduction of 33 Senate Bills and 26 House Bills Among the more important matters to be considered are the State Budget, Conflict of Interest, Highway Safety, Credit, Tax Reform, Election Laws, Education, Scholarships, Constitution-al Convention and Home Rule for Code Counties.

It will be impossible to discuss all matters that will be considered during the 70-day Session, but we will attempt to discuss those Bills which we feel will be of particular interest to the readers of this paper.

If any of our readers desire copies of specific bills, either of your Senators or members of the House of families on our street; so while we are not in an all-American communication.

This will be the first of a series of articles that we will write in an attempt to inform the citizens of Carroll County concerning the legislation that will affect our county as well as major state-wide legislation.

The General Assembly convened on Wednesday, Jan. 18. This is the beginning of the 70-day session for this year. It is interesting to point out that of the 185 Senators and Delegators in both heaves 121.

Delegates in both houses, 121, or 65 per cent, of them are new.

The first day there were 26 bills introduced in the House and 33 introduced in the Senate. The majority of these bills are the result of the Legislative Council's recommenda-Legislative Council's recommenda-tions. Of interest are the bills per-taining to the Constitutional Conven-tion which will be called this September. I know many Carroll Countians are interested in legislation pertaining to handicapped children. There were two bills and two resolutions introduced in this area.

This first week was mainly a week of organization and committee asof organization and committee assignment. The size of the major committees have been cut, so we are fortunate to have Delegate Yingling named to the powerful Judiciary Committee. Delegate Matthews has been named to the Banking and Motor Vehicles Committees Vehicles Committees.

We solicit your comments and suggestions and hope you will feel free to inform us of your thinking on any legislative matter.

The people are very friendly and many times I have been invited into their homes for meals and visits. Although the Turkish people do not observe Christmas, my landlady brought us a specially prepared dish to add to our traditional Christmas dinner and also some gifts.

"Izmir is a fascinating city. The view of the mountains, the blue waters and the temperate climate make it more and more attractive to tourists. The shopping area is a typical Arab bazaar. The women's dresses range from the ultra-modern to those of the ancient Arabs, but the ladies do not wear veils. It is not unusual to look out your window and see camel trains, sheep herds and donkeys pulling carts. Many people ouy vegetables from little vendors that come by selling their wares. We buy some fresh fruits and vegeables from them but we do not buy meats on the Turkish market because very few have refrigeration.

"Along with all the atmosphere and romance of an Arab country there are a few drawbacks. One is the uncertainty of electricity. We are never sure when the current will be on. We do not have a TV or radio. These items are considered luxuries here. We do have access to them on the Base. We never have hot water un-less it is heated an hour and half in advance and there is no central heating system in our apartment. I understand some homes have it but again it is a luxury. The problem of transportation at times is an inconvenience. If we can not catch a Base bus we depend on a dormus (taxi) or a vapor (ferry) to make sure we arrive at our desti-nation. We also do a lot of walking. Impossible? Not By A Pipkin

They all laughed when Marvin Pipkin sat down. It was his first day on the job, and his fellow engineers handed him the "unsolvable" problem which they traditionally foisted on the newest

"Develop a frosted light bulb," they said, then sat back to laugh to themselves, because they "knew" it was impossible.

When you read by the pleasantly diffused light of a frosted electric lamp today, you pay tribute to the bulb engineer who didn't know that it couldn't be done. Young Marvin Pipkin just went ahead and did it. He also found a way to etch the glass with soft, rounded pits which gave the bulbs added strength and a maximum diffusion of light.

2. Cut "lost-memory" time.

One filing tip that can save both time and embarrassment is a simple follow-up technique. Make up a set of file folders marked 1 through 31. File materials ahead in the numbers corresponding to the dates you want the information to be your desk for action. Check this file first thing every morning.

3. Cut look-up time. If you can't locate each category of information instantly, make a map or chart and keep it on your desk until you have a mental picture of where every important category is in the files or other storage areas.

4. Cut letter-answering time. How? Simple - cut out the typewriter, answer mail immediately by writing your answer in longhand at the bottom of letters, making electrostatic machine copies for your file and sending original back to
