OLD ST. DAVID'S AT RADNOR.

What an image of peace and rest
Is this little church among its graves!
All is so quiet; the troubled breast,
The wounded spirit, the heart oppressed,
Here may find the repose it craves.
See how the ivy climbs and expands
Over this humble hermitage,
And seems to caress with its little hands
The rough, gray stones, as a child that stands
Caressing the wrinkled cheeks of age.
You cross the threshold, and dim and small
Is the space that serves for the Shepherd's fold;
The narrow aisle, the bare white wall,
The pews, and the pulpit quaint and tall,
Whisper and say, "Alas! we are old."
Herbert's chapel at Bemerton
Hardly more spacious is than this,
But Poet and Pastor, bent in one,
Clothed with a splendor as of the sun,
That lowly and holy edifice.
It is not the wall of stone without
That makes the building small or great,
But the soul's light shining round about,
And the faith that overcomes doubt,
And the love that stronger is than hate.
Were I a pilgrim in search of peace,
Were I a pastor of Holy Church,
More than a Bishop's diocese
Should I prize this place of rest and release
From further longing and further search.
Here would I stay, and let the world
With its distant thunder roar and roll;
Storms do not rend the sail that is furled,
Nor like a dead leaf, tossed and whirled
In an eddy of wind, is the anchored soul.
—Henry W. Longfellow.

A CURIOUS FACT.

THE LAST DEBAUCH.

Some ninety years ago, there flourished in Glasgow, a club of young men, which, from the extreme profligacy of its members, and the licentiousness of their orgies, was commonly called the Hell Club. Besides their nightly or weekly meetings, they held one grand annual saturnalia, in which each tried to excel the other in drunkenness and blasphemy; and on these occasions there was no star amongst them whose lurid light was more conspicuous than that of young Archibald B., who, endowed with brilliant talents and a handsome person, held out great promises in his boyhood, and raised hopes that had been completely frustrated by his subsequent reckless dissipation. One morning, after returning from this annual festival, Mr. Archibald B., having returned to bed, dreamed the following dream:
He fancied that he himself was mounted on a favorite black horse that he always rode, and that he was proceeding towards his own home—then a seat embowered by trees, and situated upon a hill, now entirely built over and forming part of the city—when a stranger, whom the darkness of the night prevented his distinctly discerning, suddenly seized the horse's rein, saying:
"You must go with me."
"And who are you?" exclaimed the man, with a volley of oaths, whilst he struggled to free himself.
"That you will see by and by," returned the other, in a tone that excited uncomfortable terror in the youth, who, plunging his spurs into his horse, attempted to fly, but in vain. However fast the animal flew, the stranger was still beside him, till at length, in desperate effort to escape, the rider was thrown; but instead of being dashed to the earth as he expected, he found himself falling, falling, falling still, as if sinking into the bowels of the earth.
At length a period being put to this mysterious descent, he found breath to inquire of his companion, who was still beside him, whither they were going.
"Where am I? Where are you taking me?" he exclaimed.
"To hell!" replied the stranger, and immediately interminable echoes repeated the fearful sound, "to hell! to hell! to hell!"
At length a light appeared, which soon increased to a blaze, but instead of cries and groans, and lamenting, as the terrified traveler expected, nothing met his ear but sounds of music, mirth and jollity, and he found himself at the entrance of a superb building, far exceeding any he had seen constructed by human hands. Within, too, what a scene! No amusement, employment, or pursuit of man on earth but was there being carried on with a vehemence that excited his unutterable amazement. There the panting horse still bore his brutal rider through the excitement of the goaded race! There over the midnight bowl, the inebriate still drawled out the wanton song of maudlin blasphemy! The gambler plied for his endless game, and the slaves of Maommon toiled through eternity their bitter tasks; whilst all the magnificence of earth paled before that which met his view.

He soon perceived that he was with old acquaintances, whom he knew to be dead, and each, he observed, was pursuing the object, whatever it was that had formerly engrossed him; when finding himself relieved of the presence of his unwelcome conductor, he ventured to address his former friend, Mrs. D., whom he saw sitting, as had been her wont on earth, absorbed at loo, requesting her to rest from the game, and introduce him to the pleasures of the place, which appeared to him to be very unlike what he had expected, and indeed an extremely agreeable one. But with what a cry of agony, she answered, that there was to rest in hell, that they must toil on at those very pleasures, and innumerable voices echoed through the interminable vaults, "There is no rest in hell!" whilst throwing open their vests, each disclosed in his bosom an ever burning flame! These, they said, were the pleasures of hell, the choice on earth was their inevitable doom! In the midst of the horror this scene inspired his conductor returned, and at his entreaty, restored him again to earth, but as he quitted him, he said:
"Remember! in a year and a day we meet again!"

At this crisis of the dream the sleeper awoke, feverish; and whether from the effect of the dream or his preceding orgies, he was so unwell as to be obliged to keep his bed for several days, during which period he had time for many serious reflections, which terminated in a resolution to abandon the club and his licentious companions altogether.

He was no sooner well, however, than they flocked around him, bent on recovering so valuable a member of their society; and having wrung from him a confession of the causes of his defection, which, as may be supposed appeared to them ridiculous, they soon contrived to make him ashamed of his good resolutions. He joined them again—resumed his former course of life, and when the annual saturnalia came round, he found himself with his glass in his hand at the table; when the president, rising to make his accustomed speech, began with saying—"Gentlemen, this being leap year, and a year and a day since our last anniversary, &c.

The words struck upon the young man's ear like a knell; but, ashamed to expose his weakness to the jeers of his companions, he sat out the feast, playing himself with wine even more liberally than usual, in order to drown his intrusive thoughts; till, in the gloom of a winter's morning, he mounted his horse to ride home. Some hours afterwards his horse was found, with his saddle on, quietly grazing by the road side, about halfway between the city and Mr. B.'s house, while a few yards off lay the corpse of his master.

Now, as I have said, introducing this story, it is no fiction. The circumstances happened as here related. An account of it was published at the time, but the copies were bought up by the family. Two or three, however, were preserved, and the narrative has been reprinted.

The Arctic Regions.

It is quite impossible for any one who has not seen the ice in these regions to form any adequate idea of its wonderful appearance. The surge of the heavy sea is breaking upon the outer edge of the huge floating masses of ice, and the distant prospect is laden with heavy-looking blocks, interspersed with flatter snow, covering all the fields on which little hummocks of ice have formed. The first impression naturally is that the barrier is impassable for a ship, and this depressing effect is hardly relieved by the wonderfully beautiful appearance of the obstacle. Here the opposition is seemingly constructed out of a multitude of gigantic gems glittering in all the splendor of the diamond, emerald, and sapphire. The great waves of the sea strike against the glistening diadem, and as the spray dashes down its surface, the sun's rays catch up all the prismatic hues of the frozen facets, and so reflect them with redoubled lustre. Nor is the mind contented with the contemplation of these vast riches of rubies and opals. There are fantastic forms floating over the surrounding sea which have an interest of their own nearly equal to the lustre of the ice itself—we mean the air and water-worn portions of the ice, which in their dissolution, grow into the resemblance of quaint forms, but the constant wasting of these objects is very striking; their destruction is rapid, owing to their evaporation from the causes mentioned; and not only is the sense of sight affected by the prospect, the air is tortured by the thundering sound of the disrupted masses as they tilt against each other and are rent asunder.—From "The Gateway to the Polynia."

SUBMARINE LANDSCAPES.—When the sea is perfectly clear and transparent it allows the eye to distinguish objects at a very great depth. Near Mindora, in the Indian Ocean, the spotted corals are plainly visible under twenty-five fathoms of water. The crystalline clearness of the Caribbean sea excited the admiration of Columbus, who in the pursuit of his great discoveries ever retained an open eye for the beauties of nature. "In passing over these splendidly adorned grounds," says Schopf, "where marine life shows itself in an endless variety of forms, the boat, suspended over the purest crystal, seems to float in the air, so that a person unaccustomed to the sense easily become giddy. On the clear sandy bottom appear thousands of sea-stars, sea urchins, molluscs, and fishes of a brilliancy of color unknown in our temperate seas. Fierce red, intense blue, lively green, and golden yellow perpetually vary; the spectator floats over groves of sea-plants, gorgonias, corals, alcyoniums, flabellums, and sponges, that afford no less delight to the eye, and are no less gently agitated by the heaving waters, than the most beautiful garden on earth when a gentle breeze passes through the waving boughs.—From "The Sea and its Living Wonders."

WHY A CAT WASHES ITS FACE.—A cat caught a sparrow, and was about to devour it, but the sparrow said, "No gentleman will eat till he washes his face." The cat, struck with this remark, set the sparrow down, and began to wash his face with his paw, but the sparrow flew away. This vexed puss extremely, and he said, "As long as I live I will eat first and wash my face afterwards," which all cats do even to this day.

Ike and the Mule.

Old Isaac Saunders has just been arraigned before the court on a charge of embezzling a mule from the church. Ike had been assigned to circuit work by the conference, but had failed to adhere to his letter of acceptance. In fact, he refused to preach after making way with the mule, and the three churches that alternately were to receive food from him combined and had him arrested. After the examination of several witnesses a colored lawyer for the defense arose and said:

"De parson has de law all on his side; because he ploys a lawyer and de church don't. Dat am a powerful factor in his resemblance. An' now I ax de judge ob dis court ter let de prisoner go. I don't make long speeches, but I comes down to de pint. Dis man ain't guilty no more nor I was last year when da dited me for stealin' a hog. Dis am canvincin', and de court can't step aroun' it."

The justice, also a colored man, pondered a long time and at length, said:

"De attorney hab stated one fact. De fence has got all de law fur de under side haint ployed no lawyer. An' I'll state right heah dat some powerful arguments will be needed to vict dis preacher, unless he can't show why he 'bezzled de mule."

One of the church members arose and told how Ike had disappointed the church people by not coming, and how after coming he had started them by failing to account for the church property.

Ike being called on for a statement arose and said:

"I tuck charge ob dat circuit in good faith, but when da fotch me out a mule ter ride my faith commence ter suffer wid de rheumatiz. Dar is two classes of niggers, de mule haters and de mule lubers. I se always been a mule hater. Well, las Sunday mornin' I tuck my him book, my testament an' mounted de mule, paratory fer de holy work. Ob all things in dis world I think dat mule is de unfittinest for gospel work.—You can run a groun' hog thrasher and think 'bout David and A braham, but yer can't run a mule in de same connection. I rid along a piece an' commence ter frame my openin' prar. 'Lord, I sez, 'we thank thee fer thy goodness'—De mule stopped in de middle ob de road an' looked aroun' at me quirinly. I kicked him an' continued. 'Lord, de craps ob de pas' year hab reminded us ob thy—' De mule began to lif' up his back. 'Steady, sez I. 'An', Lord, we is—' 'Whoa, sez I, but it was too late, fer de mule had flung me. Den I cussed an' damned dat mule till his har must hab been all kivered wid sulphur. I got on him agin.—He went on putty well for a while. Jes' as I hed 'bout got my prar half finished, we cum to de creek. He tuck his head down like he wanted to drink, an' jes' as I was drawin' a long breaif, he flung me inter de creek. I los' all my 'ligion right dar, an' when I walked up ter de church, I wan't no more fitten to preach den de debil would a ben. Course I sole de mule an' got de money fore I got to de church, but yer needn't ax me what I done wid it, 'case I lost it on de road, an' I reckon yer'le find it an' my 'ligion somewhar down in de bottoms."
Ike was honorably discharged.

A LITTLE girl, aged three, went to church lately to see a christening. When, on her return, she was asked what she thought of the baby, she replied: "It was a good baby; it did not cry when the gentleman washed its head."

WHY is an elephant the most sagacious of travelers? Because he never takes his eyes off his trunk!

Professional Rivalry.

A man who had his coat on his arm and his hat in his hand, yesterday, entered a butcher shop on Woodward avenue, and began:

"Say, sir, one of your blamed carts knocked me down on Park street half an hour ago, and I'm going to have satisfaction!"

One of my carts? I guess not. William! William!"

William made his appearance from the back room and the butcher said: "William, this man accuses you of running him down with the cart this morning on Park street."

"I don't think it," was the reply. "Well, I know it!" shouted the man, as he drew down his hat.

"Whereabouts on Park?"

"At the corner of High!"

"Ah! then, it couldn't have been," said the driver. "Here is the route I took: I first went up Woodward avenue, and ran over a boy at the corner of Alfred street. Then I went down Charlotte and took a wheel off a carriage. Down at the corner of Cass I run down a boy and a vaicicpede. I came down Cass to Sprout, and out again to Woodward, where I expect I ran over two women and a horse, and then came directly here. It couldn't have been me, sir."

"Then who was it?"

"Indeed, I couldn't say, sir; but a few doors above this is a butcher who has three carts. If it was him he'll own up and be glad to see you, for he's keeping a record of the killed and wounded to show off the rest of us. You'd better try him, sir."—Detroit Free Press.

AFTER a Griowold barber had finished shaving a stranger yesterday the man asked what the charge was, and when told that it was ten cents, he asked:

"Don't you have any wholesale rates? Wouldn't you give me three shaves for twenty-five cents?"

"Yes I reckon I could do that."

"Then go ahead and shave me twice more!" said the stranger as he climbed back into the chair.

The barber lathered, shaved, recombed his hair and cried "brush!" and the man reseated himself and took a third shave without saying a word. His face had a lobster color when he got through, but he handed out a quarter and said:

"I don't know but it would have been better to take seven shaves for half a dollar, but this will do just now."

"Yes," said a witness, "I remember the defendant's mother crying on the occasion referred to. She was weeping with her left eye—the only one she had—and the tears were running down her right cheek." "What," exclaimed the judge, "how could that be?" "Please your honor," said the witness, "she was awfully cross-eyed."

It is nice when a wife gives her husband a box of cigars on his birthday, but it somehow takes the romance all out of it when she quietly observes next morning, "You'll have to give me some money to pay for those cigars; I spent all mine for other things."

THE long and short of it—"What, 25 cent a pound for sausages? Why, I can get 'em down at Schmidt's for 20 cents." "Vell den vy didn't yer?" "Cause Schmidt was out of 'em." "Vell uv I was out of 'em I'd sell 'em for 20 cents, too."

APOTHECARY:—"You want this prescription filled, sir, I understand?" Patrick, "Divil a bit of it, sorr! It's the bottle I wud have filled."

ANYBODY is apt to be mistaken, but a boy never but once attempts to pat a short-horned bull on the head.

HUMOURS.

"GIVE the devil his due, Pat, and where would you be?" "Alone, yer Honor."

A NEW YORK coal dealer is named Littleton and he cannot understand why people look so suspiciously at his scales.

A PHILADELPHIA boy who went fishing on Sunday explained that he only wanted to see if the fish were wicked enough to bite.

TAILOR, to stout customer—"Have the kindness to put your finger on this bit of tape, sir—just here; I'll be round in a minute!"

WHEN usefulness is considered, the man who smokes cigars dwindles into insignificance by the side of the individual who smokes hams.

THE hardest thing in the world for a young woman to do is to look unconcerned the first time she comes out in a handsome engagement ring.

THERE are two kinds of oranges growing in this county; one is the kind that is good to eat, and the other is the kind that is sold on the railway trains.

"You promised to pay that bill yesterday," said an angry creditor to a debtor. "Yes," calmly replied the other, "but to err is human, to forget divine, and I forgot it."

"SILENCE is golden," Aunt—"Has any one been at these preserves?" (Dead silence) "Have you touched them, Jimmy?" "Jimmy—" "Pa never" lows me to talk at dinner."

Mrs. Partington—Well I decl'ed, Here's an ingenious young man who has invented an arrangement by which the deaf can see and the blind talk. Such talons as his should be reorganized by statute.

"MAMMA, says it is not polite to ask for cake," said a little boy.—"No," was the answer; "it does not look well in little boys to do so."—"But," said the urchin, "she didn't say I must not eat a piece if you give it to me."

"I don't see how there ever came to be so many words in the world!" exclaimed a girl who was studying her spelling lesson. "Why, sis," said her brother, "they come through folks quarreling." Then, you know, one word always brings on another.

"WELL, Ethel, dear" said an uncle to his little five-year old niece, "If you like your new toy come and put your arms around my neck and give me a kiss." The little maiden complied, but as she did so, she remarked: "Oh,uncle, how I do spoil you!"

A MAN from Honey Lake saw a rail road train for the first time in his life, the other day, at Reno. In speaking of the wonder to a friend, he said: The forward thing gin a couple of coughs, and then the whole string of em got up and started right off.

A YOUNG fellow tried to scare a Brooklyn widow by appearing as her husband's ghost. But, as he was in the house before 12 o'clock at night and didn't appear drunk, she detected the fraud at once and thumped the intruder on the head with the fire shovel.

JOSH BILLINGS says: "Herring inhabit the sea generally; but those which inhabit the grocery always taste to me as though they had been fattened on salt. They want a deal of freshening before they're eten, and also arterward. If I kin have plenty of herring fur breakfast, I generally make the other two meals out of water."

As we announced last week, and as is now apparent to every reader, with this issue, THE EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE enters upon its second year, and of course volume 2d appears in its proper place. To us the retrospect of the year just ended is one of deep interest. Not possessing a disposition in which self-confidence is a distinguished trait, we entered upon our work with feelings of great diffidence, and naturally enough our progress was one of hope not seldom mingled with despondency.

We had no special training for the work, nor any experience in the novelties of the situation. From a comparatively inactive life, we took upon ourselves the responsibilities and exacting duties of an editorial career.

The conscious aim of being useful has animated our efforts throughout, and the approval which they have met, from a host of generous and discerning patrons, has continually added to our satisfaction, and now enables us to renew our energies for the new year, upon which our paper is entering, trusting that the generous encouragement heretofore extended may not only be continued, but greatly increased.

To our friends and fellow citizens at home, in particular, we appeal, and ask, if our work has not already proved itself beneficial to the community? and could any one be satisfied that our community should now be without the weekly visits of a live home-made newspaper?

With your approval then, your encouragement and support, the work shall go forward; our best endeavours shall be put forth to continue the work thus promisingly begun. We would have our labour recognized as being in the interest of our native village, a medium of communication between the resident people, and those of our kindred and friends who have gone forth from our midst into distant places, and the agency through which enterprise and activity may be imparted to one material interests.

To this end we ask your aid and influence, by the enlargement of our subscription lists, and communication of such news and items of interest as may indicate the progress of events. Make our advertising columns the medium through which your business pursuits shall be known, and the inducements you hold forth, in the way of enlarging the same, may be set forth.

We purpose hereafter as in the past, that our work shall rely upon its own merits, rather than upon fictitious claims, or empty boastings, we prefer to be believed upon our given word, rather than upon promises of a speculative nature that may have to be changed, or unfulfilled, and therefore shall pursue the even tenor of our way, upon the principles on which we started out. The size of our paper is equal to all present requirements, its value as heretofore will consist not in the amount which may be compressed into it, as much as in what most properly may be left out. Its price too with the cost of materials, the work of printing, and the due care in the preparation of contents properly considered, and the money invested in it, is quite low, for the demands of justice on all sides. Thus, then, dear patrons, we proceed to fulfill our promise, to be "earnest in the defence of truth, justice and honesty."

THE ceremony of unveiling the monument to the Maryland dead on the Confederate side, in the late war, was observed last Saturday at Winchester Va., with imposing demonstrations. An address of welcome to the immense crowd, was delivered by Gov. Holliday, and an eloquent oration by the Hon. Spencer C. Jones. The monument is the work of Mr. John O'Brian, the sculptor and represents his ideal of the Maryland Confederate soldier. It is said to be beautified in design and most admirably executed.

The Republican National Convention, which assembled at Chicago on the 2d inst., adjourned on the 8th having been in session six days.

It was the most remarkable political gathering ever held in the land, and was distinguished for the pertinacity wherewith the rival parties maintained the claims of their respective favorites for the nomination to the Presidency. Throughout, the contest was one between persons, no principles were involved.

From the first to the thirty-sixth ballot, the vote stood for Gen. Grant from 304 to 311 votes, and for Mr. Blaine from 284 to 257, with variations between, on both sides. On the 36th ballot, Gen. James A. Garfield of Ohio received 399 votes and was thereupon declared the unanimous choice of the convention. Gen. Chester A. Arthur, of New York, received 468 votes as candidate for the vice-Presidency, and the vote was also made unanimous.

We cannot but think that the country may feel relieved, that the "third term" agitation is definitely settled.

The result of the nominations was celebrated in various cities and towns by the firing of cannon, bonfires and jollifications.

All eyes will now turn to the Democratic National Convention, which meets in Cincinnati, on the 22d inst., awaiting the nominations of that body, and then the contest for victory, will interest the people, as perhaps never before, until the November election shall have ended it.

The Baltimore Gazette says: In another column we print the report of Hon. A. P. Gorman, president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, which was presented at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. The decrease in revenue is explained by the unusual business depression and striking of the miners. It is shown by the report that the canal from Cumberland to Georgetown is now in better condition than it has been for twenty years, and the contract with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has opened up a new trade and the outlook for the future is promising. The old board of directors were reelected with one exception, and Mr. Gorman was reelected to the presidency, which he has in the past filled with such marked ability.

LAST Sunday a week, at the Academy of Music in Baltimore, the Raikes Centennial was celebrated. It was a fitting honour in memory of Robert Raikes, who is everywhere regarded as the founder of Sunday schools. Since the days when he gathered around him, the ragged boys, with whom he began his work, the idea of it has gradually expanded and enlarged, until the system is everywhere acknowledged to be of vital importance in the training of children and leading them in the pathways of morality and religion. The impulse given to the system from its founder, has caused his name to be regarded with lasting gratitude.

THE COMING COMET.—The last observations of the comet discovered by Professor Schjoberle, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, in April last, indicate that in the course of the next week it will create a sensation among the star-gazers. Its brilliancy is decreasing, not because it is going away, but on account of its plunging rapidly towards the sun, and will soon be obscured by the powerful rays of the great luminary. After a few days it will recede, but will remain visible through the telescope till late in the fall. It is not now visible to the naked eye, but with a powerful telescope it can be seen about 11 o'clock at night to the left of the North star and half way between it and the western horizon. It appears but a mere speck even with the telescope, but can be distinguished from the other stars by a tiny train of light that follows in. The comet is thought to be a stranger, of whose existence there is no record.

SNOW HILL, June 3.—The trial of Colonel Aydelotte, charged with assaulting Mrs. Polk, which was commenced on Monday before Judge Wilson and Goldsborough, was terminated to-day, when a verdict of not guilty was rendered. The accused was at once discharged and left the court room accompanied by his friends.

HUNDREDS of people are still dying of the famine in the East.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 8th. Nothing is talked of, thought of, or written about here but the Chicago Convention. The interest is unprecedented. I suppose the reasons are that most of the gentlemen mentioned are property owners and residents of this city, and have many personal friends here, whose earnestness in advocating their favorites have caused an intense feeling of preference.

General Grant, of course resided here eight years, as President, and four or five as General of the army. He also owns a House here.

Senator Blaine is also an old resident. He has been in Congress since 1861, and has been in Washington every winter. He owns a fine house on 15th Street. Secretary Sherman, from his long term in Congress and as Secretary, may also be called a resident. He owns too, a fine house. The same is true in regard to, Senator Edmunds, General Garfield, and Senator Windom. It can be seen then that the sentiment or preference in each State for its favorite is brought here, and we have a little union containing all the different sentiments intensified by contact with each other. Around all the bulletin boards the friends of each candidate cheer as the scale fluctuates, but all are anxious for the break to come, and are growing reckless as to where it goes.

The House and Senate will not adjourn on the 15th as was expected. The session in fact, may continue into July as was originally predicted by some wiseacres. The Ute agreement bill, previously passed by the Senate passed the House yesterday.

The supporters of Mr. Blaine, whether successful or not, have exhibited their good sense in the selection of Mr. Hamlin as their chief advisor and counsellor at Chicago, and the result thus far, show how admirably he has excited his trust. Not a mistake has been made, while the third terms have been placed more than once in open hostility to the cherished principles of the Republican party and baffled on every hand. In their attempt to enforce the unit rule as against individual preferences, states rights as against district representation, and in their attempt to drive out of the Convention the three delegates of West Virginia who did not choose to be gagged by Lord Conkling, we can see how recklessly the third terms strove to override the popular wish Mr. Hamlin's long public service, his thorough knowledge and understanding of the principles of free government, his sagacity eminently qualified him for the position assigned him in this Convention. Mr. Hamlin is one of the few statesmen who, without thought of self has served his country long and wisely—always true to his friends, his fame has never been marred by the charge of corruption, nor has he ever betrayed the confidence of the people of his own State or the country.

Though there may be a successful attempt to bring up the sugar bill and other tariff matters prior to adjournment, I don't find that any one expects to pass a bill on the subject. The Eaton tariff commission bill, which is already through the Senate, and which provides only for inquiry, has some chance of passing. The bills concerning special deputy marshals and election supervisors will be brought up early this week.

GEORGE THOMAS, a barber of Harrisburg, Pa., fell dead on Monday evening while in the act of shaving a gentleman. The latter suddenly felt the barber's hand falling, with the razor's edge resting on his own throat. He caught the hand in time, and the barber fell to the floor, dying in a few minutes. Heart disease was the cause of death.

THE recent saying of the Catholic mass in the Tower of London is believed to be the first instance of the kind since the time of Henry VIII. A number of guardsmen about the tower are followers of the Catholic religion, and permission has been granted them to practice their own faith when on duty in the ancient keep on Tower Hill.

A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On last Saturday, Mr. Daniel Krug, a farmer, who resides near Motter's Station on the Railroad, was on his way home from this place and had gotten a short distance beyond the bridge over the R. R., at Mr. Handley's, when his horses took fright from the approaching train, ran off, overturned the spring wagon, and threw Mr. K. to the ground, when an empty coal oil barrel fell upon him, noticing which, we were told, the engineer stopped his train and ran to Mr. K.'s assistance, and found him insensible. Dr. Brawner in due time was in attendance.

WE have only learned since then, that the case has improved, though there were a couple of broken ribs.

CHURCH DEDICATION.—Trinity, the new Reformed church of Mechanicstown, will be dedicated on Sunday morning (to-morrow) June 13. The dedication exercises will begin on Friday evening, when the pulpit will be filled by Rev. C. Clever. On Saturday night Rev. M. L. Firor will occupy the pulpit and at the final service on Sunday.

REV. DR. J. O. MILLER of York Pa., will be present. As is customary on such occasions there will be a collection taken up for the benefit of the church and as the members of the church have already done so well, it is to be hoped that our citizens will attend on this occasion and give liberally, each according to his ability. It is the intention to organize a Sabbath School at this church who numbers are properly adjusted. The regular appointments for services have not as yet been made out, but they will be so arranged so far as possible not to interfere with other churches here.—Clarion

DISCOVERY OF A CAVE.—In blasting a large rock with dynamite cartridges for Dr. E. T. Bishop's lime kiln at Cavetown last Saturday a fissure in the rock was discovered, which opened into a cave of considerable dimensions and of curious beauty. It is situated near the railroad station on the opposite side of the track from Mr. W. Fockler's house, and extends under the other cave which is well known, and which gave Cavetown its name. As far as has yet been ascertained, the chamber into which the hole was made extends back about ninety feet, and a gallery which branches off at right angles is about the same length. The highest point of the ceiling is about fifteen feet. It has not yet been carefully explored, and it may be found to be of much greater extent. The stalactites and stylagmites are of delicate and beautiful color, and there are deposits of limestone sediment which have assumed curious and fantastic shapes.—Mail.

Mrs. M. EYLER will please accept thanks for a delicious bunch of cherries, which were the largest we have seen this year. The bunch contained nearly a quart, and was not over a foot long.

PERSONALS.—Messrs. C. E. Aughinbaugh, Chas. E. Frey, E. Z. Miller, Chas. E. Musser, printers from Gettysburg called at our office on last Saturday. Call again gentlemen, the latch string always hangs out when any of you are about.

PROF. E. HAMILTON'S Great New York Circus, and Gold Band, has struck Emmitsburg at last! to its citizens and the surrounding population there is about to be presented a source of amusement, such as there is seldom opportunity to enjoy. It will give two exhibitions here, on Friday the 18th inst. The records of the company, as presented by the newspapers where it has exhibited are of a highly flattering character, inspiring confidence that the show is first class in character, and that its business is conducted on a fair and honourable basis. It is a feature of the establishment that no intoxicating liquors are allowed on their exhibition grounds, while sharpers, gamblers and the usual entrapment of the unwary, by side shows and the like are also excluded. Altogether the bills present a most inviting fund of amusement, and the records go to show that the performance comes up fully to the advertised promises. See advertisement on another page.

Rev. Mr. Shields of Illinois, took his place here, and is much thought of by all who have had the pleasure of meeting with him.

Our farmers are busy in their corn and hay, and some expect to cut grain by the 14th. The wheat crop promises to be a good one. A. C.

THE Festival for the benefit of the Brass Band came off last week according to announcement, and yielded the sum of $133.25. Quite a number of visitors from the neighboring towns attended the entertainment, and on Saturday afternoon "The Southern Tier Band" of Gettysburg, under the direction of Prof. Seng, enlivened our village by their presence, and added considerably to the attractions of the festival. Prof. Seng, who by the way, can be recommended to those of our citizens whose musical instruments need attention, gave abundant proof of his skill and ability as an instructor of music, and the band under his direction, not only added to the entertainment of those who attended the festival, but serenaded several of the citizens before leaving. The prizes at the festival were awarded, as follows: Guess Cake, to Miss Edith Motter, of this place; Work Box, to Miss Millie Hoke, of York, Pa.; Wall Pocket, to Miss Clara Hoke, of this place; Writing Desk, to Mr. Harry Robinson, near this place; Chance Cake, Mr. David Ziegler, of Gettysburg.

[COMMUNICATED] Emmitsburg, June 11, 1880.

MR. EDITOR.—I would like some information in regard to the Game Laws in this county. I was under the impression that the law for Woodcock was out on the 15th of June, but I must have been mistaken, for a prominent attorney from Frederick was in our neighborhood yesterday, June 10th, hunting Woodcock and I take it for granted that he is posted, and he would be the last man to violate the law. Please understand me, I would not object in the least to the visits of our worthy friend, on the contrary, will always be glad to see him and would never for a moment think of objecting to his hunting in our neighborhood, but simply ask for information, without any idea or intention of finding fault with our friend. SUBSCRIBER.

OUR reading has been, that Woodcock may not be killed, between February 1st and June 15th, but there may be later enactments.

MARRIED.

SHRIVER—MOTTER.—On the 3d inst., in Hagerstown, at the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. Walter Mitchell, Mr. Arthur Shriver, (business manager of the Cumberland News) to Miss Fannie Motter, daughter of Hon. William Motter.

LAST week during an examination of old packages of the Merchants National Bank of Baltimore, one was found containing $10,000 in first mortgage bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with coupons attached for 15 years, making the present value $20,000. They turned out to be the property of the Hagerstown Bank, having been deposited as collateral during the Presidency of the late Dixon Roman. On the death of the latter the transaction was lost sight of, and the disappearance of the bonds has been a mystery, which is now cleared up and the Hagerstown Bank adds $20,000 to its surplus.

GOD'S-ACRE.

I like that ancient Saxon phrase, which calls The burial-ground God's-Acre! It is just: It consecrates each grave within its walls, And breathes a benison o'er the sleeping dust.

Agricultural.

Gas Tar for Peach Trees.

Mr. Editor:—The statement in a recent issue of your valuable paper that gas tar would destroy the worms now infesting so many peach trees, recalls the experience of a gentleman in starting a peach orchard.

The same party found found in the garden of his newly-purchased place ten peach trees which harbored nearly two hundred worms. He bared the collar and roots of each tree and scrubbed the exposed parts with soap suds and a scrubbing brush.

High Farming—What is it.

To be brief, is it the growing of the best crops on the best soil under the best conditions; and finally the best profit in return?—No. There are cases when a comparatively poor crop grown on a poor soil with little or no attention, may give the best returns—as is the case in the imperative extensive farming of a new country.

PREPARING SEED CORN.—Mr. Thomas T. Norris sends the Gettysburg, Pa., Compiler the following. He says it not only prevents the corn from being injured by the wire worm, but causes the crows and birds, squirrels and mice to desist after a first attempt.

Humorous.

To raise sorghum—Go to a dentist THE dearest thing on earth—a wife. CHECKERS are always played upon the square. TREES and pigs must root for their living.

A YOUNG man being told to "bring out the old lyre," brought his mother-in-law. "Lost in the desert," exclaimed the boarder, as he fished a roach out of the pudding.

WHAT a paradox to say that gout runs in a family. Who ever saw gout make even a decent attempt at walking. ONE of the problems which puzzle a musician is how to strike a bee flat, without getting stung by its demisemiquaver.

A CITY missionary was asked the cause of his poverty. "Principally because I have preached so much without notes," he said. A WESTERN firm named Nice & Good, are said to have a book-keeper named Simmons.

THE observant small boy went to church and heard the minister say in his prayer, "Grant us, O Lord." He reported at home that the minister had "come out strong for Grant."

"Oh, grandma," cried a mischievous little urchin, "I cheated the hens so nicely just now! I threw them your gold beads, and they thought they were corn, and ate them as fast as they could."

SOME one says there is one good thing about silver.—Printers can jingle a bunch of keys and an old rusty-bladed knife in their pockets and the world don't know but that they are trade dollars!

AN IRISHMAN recently purchased an alarm, which he placed beside him on retiring. Being asked by his room mate what he intended doing with it, he looked surprised, and replied:

A GENTLEMAN not extremely given to piety was dismayed by being asked to say grace at a strange table. To refuse and explain would be embarrassing; to comply would be equally so; but he chose the latter, and started off briskly enough with, "Oh Lord, bless this table—"
