LITTLE THINGS.

BY MRS. F. S. LOVEJOY.

One day a little acorn dropped
Down from its native tree,
And helpless lay upon the earth,
A tiny thing to see.

And looking up in sad surprise
To where it once did grow,
It said: "Tis over now with me!
What can an acorn do?"

But Mother Earth, to comfort it,
Spoke softly, as it lay,
And turning o'er, it fell asleep,
Its sorrow soothed away.

Then gently o'er its little bed,
She spread a quilt of mould,
And there it slept through autumn rains
And snows of winter cold.

But when the sun with cheering rays
Told of the warm, bright spring,
And Nature said to Mother earth:
"Come; now your treasures bring!"

The acorn heard the flowers talk,
And open'd its eyes to see,
And stretching out, it cracked its shell,
And grew into a tree.

There, sheltered in the forest shade,
In stately pride to stand,
A noble oak—as grand a tree
As grows in all the land!

Oh, children! heed these little things,
Whatever they may be;
Remember—little boys make men!
An acorn makes a tree.

FATE OF A COQUETTE.

Twenty years have passed since
The events I am about to relate took place.

Through all these years the memory of Amy Lee's pale face has haunted me, and will to my dying day.

Twenty years ago I was a beauty and a belle, and, as might be expected a heartless coquette. Suitors I did not lack, but to all gave the same answer after they had laid their hands and fortunes at my feet.

An orphan, with plenty of money, and none to control, I led a gay life. I usually spent my summer at one of the numerous fashionable resorts.

But this summer, with which my story has to do, I received an invitation from my cousin Amy to spend the summer with her at my uncle's farm.

To be sure the prospect was a little dull.

But I was beginning to tire of fashionable society, and longed for a few months of quiet country life.

So I went.

Amy was a sweet girl, with brows curls and dark violate eyes.

Quite a beauty in her quiet way.

My beauty could be compared to some glowing, tropical flower—hers to the simple, unpretending daisy.

A few days passed quite pleasantly.

But I soon began to tire of this quiet life, and longed for excitement.

I felt that I must get up a flirtation with some one.

An opportunity soon presented itself.

One evening when I entered the room I found a stranger there, who was immediately introduced as Mr. Grey.

He was a handsome man, this Mr. Grey, was not a stranger to education and good society.

Another fact I was not slow in comprehending; he was Amy's lover.

Amy loved him I knew by the proud, happy glance that followed him.

A demon whispered:

"Why not bring this man at your feet, as you have many others?"

What if he is your cousin's lover?
The conquest will be the greater.

I heeded the tempter, and exerted myself to please.

Two or three times, in the midst of an animated conversation, I glanced toward Mr. Grey; his eyes were fixed upon me, and in his glance I read unmistakable admiration.

I retired to my room that night, fully satisfied that before many weeks I might number Mr. Grey among my list of victims.

Amy was unusually quiet, and there was a sad look in her dark eyes, as she kissed me and said good night.

After that night Mr. Grey's visits at my uncle's house were frequent.

For a while we three walked and rode together.

Soon Amy began to make some trivial excuse, and we ceased to expect her company.

Each day she grew paler and her eyes were at times strangely brilliant.

She worshipped that man, and wretch that I was, I gloried in my triumph.

One evening my aunt and Amy were sent for.

A neighbor, who had been ill for some time, was thought to be dying.

Uncle and I tried to while away the time with chess, but somehow chess seemed uncommonly dull that evening, and we gave it up.

Presently Mr. Grey was ushered into the parlor.

Soon after, uncle excused himself,
and we two were alone.

I tried to keep up a lively flow of conversation, but Mr. Grey seemed thoughtful, and conversation soon flagged.

I spoke of returning to the city soon.

A sudden change swept over his face.

He caught my hand and said passionately, 'Isabel, I can no longer keep my secret; I must speak. You are dearer to me than life itself. Tell me that my love is returned, and I shall be the happiest of men.'

'Excuse me,' I said coldly, drawing away my hand; 'I thought you and my cousin Amy were engaged?'

'We were. But, Isabel, she will, she must free me! Promise me that you will be my wife if Amy tells me I am free?'

I gave the promise. I did not mean it.

I was brought to my senses by the passionate kisses he pressed upon my lips:

'Don't, for pity's sake, smother me,' I said, coldly.

He put me from him.

'Isabel,' he said sternly, 'are you trifling with me?'

I tried to laugh lightly.

He bent down, and almost hissed
in my ear:

'Beware, Isabel Wayne—beware
how you trifle with me; then he was gone.

Then I heard the door open, and Amy's light step sounded in the hallway.

'I hope you haven't been lonely, Isabel, dear,' she said as she entered the room. 'Why did you wait up for me? Poor Mrs. Brown is no better, and mamma is to remain all night. She thought I had better come home, as I could do no good by staying.'

'I didn't mind sitting up,' I replied. 'Besides, I had agreeable company. Can you guess who called here this evening?'

She started, and that wild, haunted look I had noticed so often of late, crept into her eyes.

'Mr. Grey?' she asked, eagerly.

'Yes, and what do you think?—
He asked me to be his wife.'

upon me as if she would read my inmost soul.

'God forgive you! I never can,'
she said, turning to the door. 'He shall be free!'

I sprang forward.

'Back!' she cried wildly. 'If you follow me I will kill you.'

Like a flash it came to me; insanity was hereditary in her mother's family.

She had gone mad.

How long I sat there I never knew; but when, cold and trembling, I reached my room, Amy's door was locked, and with a vague dread that something terrible was about to happen, I crept into bed.

It was nearly morning when I fell asleep.

I dreamed of a swift flowing river and a white, upturned face—Amy's I awoke in a fright.

The sun was shining brightly in the little window, and I was so thankful it was only a dream; but slowly the events of last night arose in my mind.

I sprang quickly out of bed.

Amy's room was still locked and I received no answer.

I hurried down stairs and entered the sitting room.

My aunt had returned.

I told her I feared something had happened to Amy—she would not answer me, and her door was locked.

Silently I followed my aunt upstairs.

'Poor child,' she said, anxiously.
'I fear she is ill. She has not appeared at all like herself lately.'

No answer came to my aunt's repeated calls.

The door was forced open.

The room was empty!

My brain seemed to whirl!

Was my dream, then, true?
A search commenced.

My steps turned toward the river.

I seemed to be drawn there by some invisible chain—drawn to the spot where a turn in the river had left a pile of drift wood; and there, among the drift wood, lay Amy's body with the white, still face upturned.

My dream was realized, and with a shriek I sank insensible.

We were found there together.

I was too ill to attend Amy's funeral, and as soon as I was able I packed my trunks and left for the city.

How my heart smote me when my aunt begged of me to stay awhile and comfort her sad heart—I, her Amy's murderer.

I never saw Mr. Grey again.

I returned to my home and tried to bury the past in gayety; but, vain hope! even in the ball room that white pale face haunted me.

At last I loved—loved and worshipped as Amy had done.

Need I say I did not marry the object of my love?

He flirted with me, then married another.

FASHION NOTES.

Moire antique is coming into use
once more.

A new color called moonbeam is a soft silver green.

Gilt pins for bonnets are now
made with pearl heads.

Belts with ribbon bows are more popular than sashes.

Fine white tarlatan is the best material for widows' caps.

Pansies and very little poppy buds are made into necklaces.

Fine checked woolen goods are imported for the winter.

Flower wreaths for bonnets are either all leaves or all flowers.

Fayal straw hats retain their stiffness and shape in the densest fogs.

The heads of women grow smaller and smaller in the barber's show cards.

Tucks and tucked ruffles are the only trimming for thin dresses worn as mourning.

Cardinal capes are made with loosely and richly embroidered in silver and colored chenille.

The very lightest of puffs and braids are the only ones which hair-dressers find it possible to sell.

Heliotrope is the prominent color in most elegant toilets, and shirring is the noticeable trimming of all light and semi-diaphanous dresses.

The Pronunciation of "U."

Ninety-nine out of every hundred Northerners will say institoot instead of institute, dooty for duty—a perfect rhyme to the word beauty.

They will call new and news, noo and noos—and so on through the dozens and hundreds of similar words. Not a dictionary in the English language authorizes this.

In student and stupid, the "u" has the same sound as in cupid, and should not be pronounced stooitent or stoopid, as so many teachers are in the habit of sounding them.

If it is a vulgarism to call a door
a doah—as we all admit—isn't it as much of a vulgarism to call a newspaper a noospaper? One vulgarism is Northern, and the other Southern that's the only difference. When the Lindon Punch wishes to burlesque the pronunciation of servants, it makes them call the duke the dook, the tutor the tooter, and a tube a toob. You never find the best Northern speakers, such as Wendell Phillips, George William Curtis, Emerson, Holmes, and men of that class, saying noo for new, Toosday for Tuesday, avenoo for avenue, or calling a dupe a doop. It is a fault that a Southerner never falls into. He has slips enough of another kind, but he doesn't slip on the long "u." As many of our teachers have never had their attention called to this, I hope they will excuse this notice.

A True Patriot.

When Marshall Lannes was General of a brigade, he entailed the censure of the great Napoleon, although the latter admired him for his genius and his bravery. The Emperor, in one of his characteristic fits of passion, deprived him of his command, telling him he should never again draw a sword in the service of France. Some months after, and while reviewing his troops, Napoleon saw a private in the ranks whose appearance was strikingly like that of the degraded General. The Emperor advanced toward him, and with a glance recognized in the humble soldier his once distinguished Brigadier.

"Lannes," said Napoleon. "I thought I ordered that you should never draw a sword in the French service."

"You did, sir," replied the private; "but you can't prevent me fighting for my country with a musket."

Napoleon acknowledged the true nobility of the man, and immediately restored him to his command.

The Sand Blast.

Among the wonderful and useful inventions of the times is the sand-blast. Suppose you desire to letter a piece of marble for a gravestone:

you cover the stone with a sheet of wax no thicker than a water, then cut in the wax the name. Now pass it under the blast, and the wax will not be injured at all, but the sand will cut letters deep into the stone.

Or if you desire raised letters, a flower or other emblem, cut the letters, flowers, etc., in wax and stick them upon a stone; then pass the stone under the blast, and the sand will cut away.

Remove the wax, and you have the raised letters.
Take a piece of French plate glass, say two feet by six, and cover it with fine lace; pass it under the blast, and not a thread of the lace will be injured, but the sand will cut deep into the glass wherever it is not covered by the lace. Now remove the lace and you have every delicate figure raised upon the glass.

In this way beautiful figures of all kinds are cut in glass, and at a small expense. The workmen can hold their Lands under the blast without any harm, even when it is rapidly cutting away the hard stone, but they must look out for their finger nails, for they will be whittled away quite speedily. If they put on steel thimbles to protect the nails it will do but little good, for the sand will soon whittle them away; but if they wrap a piece of soft cotton around them they are safe. You will see at once the philosophy of it. The sand whittles away and destroys any hard substance, even glass, but does not affect yielding, like wax, cotton or fine lace, or even the human hand.

A Brave Young Lady.

A young man called, in company with several other gentlemen, upon a young lady. Her father was also present, to assist in entertaining the callers. He did not share his daughter's scruples against the use of spirituous drinks, for he had wine to offer. The wine was poured out, and would have been drunk, but the young lady asked, 'Did you call upon me, or upon papa?' Gallantry, if nothing else, compelled them to answer, 'We called upon you.' 'Then you will please not drink wine; I have lemonade for my callers.' The father urged the guests to drink, and they were undecided. The young lady added: 'Remember, if you called upon me, then you drink lemonade; but if upon Papa, why in that case I have nothing to say.'

The wine-glasses were set down with their contents untasted. After leaving the house, one of the party exclaimed, 'That is the most effectual temperance lecture I have ever heard.' Indeed, it was sown in good ground. It took root, sprang up, and is now bearing fruit. The young man from whom these facts were obtained, broke off at once from the use of all strong drink, and is now a clergyman, preaching temperance and religion. He now sees former dangerous position, and holds in grateful remembrance the lady who gracefully and still resolutely gave him to understand that her callers should not drink wine.

An authority in such matters attributes the scream of a woman partly to vulgarity and partly to vanity. It says that no well-bred woman screams, but only those who morbidly wish to attract attention.

It is a curious fact that Pastrum,
Italy, was famous 600 years before Christ for its roses, which bloomed twice a year—in May and November and the same fact is annually exemplified now.

THE PROBLEM OF DOMESTIC LIFE.

There have been many attempts to solve the vexatious problem of domestic life, in its bearings on household work, but after all the subtle distinctions, nice definitions, and shrewd suggestions of experience, with moral advice and economic ideas, it has often seemed to us that the true solution lies in the homely saying—"When you have anything to do, do it."

To trace the general progress of society from its primitive state, to that of refinement and wealth, is the office of the historian, he marks the time when wants were few and easily satisfied, he shows that the exertion necessary to such satisfaction produced the most of the enjoyment in life, but the onward course of things, resulted in an increased accumulation of care, requiring outside assistance, to meet the demands for the internal disposal of things.

The natural wants of persons are comparatively few and easily satisfied. But those which may be called artificial, are many and ever increasing, just as every new invention leads the way to others yet untried.

In family training, it must needs follow that the discipline and the home teaching will exert an influence on the after life of all who come under its influence. This training moreover will often be found to have certain characteristics, which may be peculiar to a large district or section of a country, and shows itself under forms that are national, hence we constantly read and speak of nationalities, in as many different forms, as there are nations. These all differ, just as the climates differ, and out of this difference proceeds the life and activity which has made and still makes history. On these facts hang the outgrowth of all that is involved in the food consumed, the clothing that is worn, the pleasures which are sought after; the modes of shelter, the homes, with their architectural arrangements and so on.

In the settlement of our country it always seems to us to have been a Providential matter, that the Puritans should have occupied the rocky coasts of the North, as an adaptation of means to an end, that might have failed had they settled in the sunny South, and with like reason the Cavaliers, who betook themselves to the more genial climate and richer soil of the South found the proper conditions for their development.

The Northern settlers possessing indomitable perseverance and stern determination of purpose, were well suited to compel an intractable soil, in an inhospitable climate to yield fruit for subsistence and also for commerce; In the exercise of their ingenuity in devising means to promote wealth and comfort, they had only to regard the success of adventurers in other parts, and with an instinctive insight for gain, they tried the agency of African slavery, but in course of time this proved unprofitable, and they managed, for valuable considerations, to transfer it to the south. Having gotten rid of the institution, in the progress of events, and true to the restless and aggressive demands of an imperious character, they made it the occasion of continual dispute and wrangling between the sections, until finally to an end, and with this there was necessarily an uprooting of the general order of domestic life in that part of the land, so intimately was it intertwined in every department.

We doubt whether in all history there has been a parallel to the rapid emergence of this people from adverse circumstances, such as has characterized their course, and how have they done it? Why simply, as we understand by applying themselves industriously, to the retrieval of their situations in other forms of endeavour.

It is just in this way we incline to judge, that sooner or later the question of household service will have to be settled. Every family will accommodate itself to its circumstances, and regarding the work on hand, as something to be done in the interest of the common good; the comfort and moral well-being of the family, discharge the task with good will and alacrity.

In all this there will be need of system, and a general adaption of means to the ends to be effected.

In any and all such proceedings there will be need for the common concert and mutual agreement of the respective members of the household. With the habit once established, the general routine will follow as a matter of course.

It must necessarily be the case, that those whose necessities compel this course, work upon this basis, and hence we cannot see why persons who are troubled with frequent changes in servants may not voluntarily adopt some such line of procedure, and though the difficulties of dependence on unreliable aid, enter the domains of personal freedom and home independence.

DIPHTHERIA SPREAD BY A CAT.—Three deaths from diphtheria have recently occurred in the family of Baldwin Gordon, who lives at the beach opposite Patchogue, L. I., under very remarkable circumstances. Some time ago a cat, which had been owned by a family, several members of which were suffering from the disease, was taken to the Gordon house. While playing with this cat a little child of Mr. Gordon was bitten in one of its fingers.—The wound caused intense pain, and was soon followed by a soreness and ulceration of the throat, which a physician pronounced to be diphtheria. Others of the family were taken with the disease, and two of the children died. Mrs. Gordon, who was recovering from sickness, was seized with the disease and died. It is reported that still another member of the family has died.—Physicians believe that the cat was suffering from diphtheria when it bit the child.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sep. 21th.

The question of who shall be Governor of Maine still remains in doubt. The Republicans claim the election of Davis, by about three hundred plurality, while the fusionists claim Plaisted's election by less than two hundred plurality. It is a very close race, and the official figures may be required to decide who is the successful man. It would seem from the slowness with which returns from certain of the outlying Districts come in that a change in the election laws of Maine is necessary by which more promptitude in this regard could be secured. The tricks perpetrated last year in Maine does not give one a very high opinion of the political morality of that State.

The Ohio Republicans are awake to the fact that they have no mere dress parade before them, and are waging a State campaign that might well be imitated in other States.

The demand for the standard silver dollar is steadily increasing.—The amount issued by the Treasury for the week ending the 18th aggregated $822,000, as against $560,000 for the week previous. In anticipation of an increased demand for silver certificates under the late notice of the Secretary of the Treasury, orders have been issued for the printing of $25,000,000.

General Weaver passed through this city yesterday, on his way to West Virginia. The General has made an earnest active campaign, and has made a splendid impression upon all who have had the pleasure of hearing him speak. He is sincere in his beliefs, and honorable in the treatment of his opponents. Though he has no hopes of being elected, his campaign will bring honor to himself and his party.

The General expects in the next Congress to have at least, twenty Greenback members, and to hold the balance of power. The General has heretofore voted with the Democrats in Congress for the repeal of the election laws, but his Southern experience has changed his opinion, and will hereafter, on such subjects vote with the Republicans.

It is now definitely settled that there will be no compromise between the Readjusters and "Fund-er" wings of the Democratic party in Virginia upon the electoral ticket. Both factions believe themselves able to carry the State and the campaign now opening there, will be one of exceptional vigor. The Republicans now have a good fighting chance to carry the State, and will take advantage of it. MERRILL.

BOSTON, September 22.—A special from Mount Washington to the Journal says the thermometer today ranged from 27° at 7 o'clock this morning to 24° at 9 this evening, the coldest weather since May 16th. Frost feathers formed from 12 to 16 inches long. The maximum velocity of the wind was 90 miles an hour. The weather is foggy.

THE abolition of capital punishment in Michigan does not seem to work well, as more murders are now committed in that State in proportion to the population, than any other Northern State. ALL arrangements have been completed for the meeting of the Pan Presbyterian Council which commences in Philadelphia on Thursday next, the 23d instant, and which will continue until Saturday, October 2. The regular session of the council will be held in Horticultural Hall, and about 300 delegates are expected to attend from all parts of the world.

A SISTERHOOD OF NURSES.—During his visit to Paris Archbishop Gibbons called on the Bon Secours, a charitable order of nuns in that city, for the purpose of making himself thoroughly acquainted with the management of that institution, with a view to establishing a like order in Baltimore at some future day. The Archbishop states that negotiations have been opened with the Sisters, with every indication of success, and that it is probable some of them will come here when the project is once fairly started. The Sisters have a house to themselves, and are subject to the order of a superior, but instead of taking the sick to their house and making a hospital of it, they go to the homes of those in need of nursing, and remain there, watching and caring for them. The Archbishop intends to do all he can to establish the order in this city.

A party of fifteen destitute boys was started on Tuesday for the West by Whitelaw Reid, of the New York Tribune, through the Agency of the Children's Aid Society. This is the tenth party that has been sent out to seek new homes, making a total number of 412.

MORE than half the horses in Boston and suburbs are suffering to a greater or less degree from a distemper resembling a mild form of the epizootic of 1872. The malady has within two or three days become widespread, and in the opinion of veterinary surgeons in a few hours there will scarcely be an animal in the city unaffected. The affection appears to be a form of equine influenza.

The horse epizootic in Boston is spreading rapidly and has assumed quite an alarming condition. Eight horses have died since Sunday last, and in the stalls of horse car railroads, express companies and the fire department, many of the animals are entirely unfit for work, and as the disease is general all through the city and suburbs, it is impossible to supply their places with healthy equines.

At the recent meeting of the American Society for the Advancement of Science, Prof. W. O. Atwater, of the Wesleyan University, read a paper upon "The Chemical Composing and Nutritive Values of Fish." He referred to the widespread but unfounded notion that fish is valuable for food on account of its large contents of phosphorus. The fact is that there is as yet no proof that fish is very much richer in phosphorus than other animal foods, nor if this were proved would it necessarily follow that it was made valuable to nourish the brain the phosphorus theory has no solid foundation in fact.

GLANDING'S Patent Trunk, Patented September 30, 1879, by Thomas Glanding, Baltimore, Md.

This Trunk is presented to the public, and the special attention of buyers is called to its advantages. The body and lid of the trunk are made in the usual manner. The trays, which are a special feature, are divided into two sections, the smaller tray or parcel case being attached to the lid, is raised out of the body when the lid is raised.

The larger or main tray is attached to the ends of the body by means of parallel arms, so that the tray may be raised and carried back into the lid in its original horizontal position, and is supported on the arms, thus giving access to the body of the trunk.

The arms are pivoted to plates of suitable metal, on which are knobs or projections to stop their motion and prevent the tray from falling back against the lid.

We ask the ladies when in town to call and examine the Trunk at GEO. A. GILBERT'S Hat, Boot & Shoe Store, NO 16 N. MARKET ST., Frederick City, Maryland. Ask for Glanding's Patent Trunk. Use no other. mar 1880

LOCALS.

PUT UP your stoves. Fly time is nearly over. Look out for Jack Frost! A CHEAP country seat—a stump. CARLISLE and Westminster Fairs next week. GET ready to attend the CL. anniversary at Baltimore. A MAN who bets on the election loses his vote, if challenged. HALF a cranberry bound on a corn, it is said will destroy the pest. THE Maple trees are now beautiful, clad in tints of gold, orange and crimson. FAIRFIELD, Pa., and vicinity consume six beaves a week, besides calves, sheep, &c. MR JAMES A. ELDER, has in his yard, an apple tree, now in blossom. Go see it. OUR politicians are as quiet as sleeping curs. Why don't they demonstrate some? If you approve the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE recommend it to your friends and neighbors. THE September term of the Circuit Court for this county began on last Monday in Frederick. THE Potomac Synod of the Reformed church will meet at Woodstock, Va., on the 13th of October next. A LITTLE son of Mr. George Noggle living on the old Paxton place, fell off a fence and dislocated his wrist. Mrs. D. RHODES has kindly sent us a cabbage, which she calls the Hancock variety, it weighs ten pounds net. Thus far Prof. Verner's frosts have failed to come to time. We trust the October snows will follow suit. THE Gaslight company of Hagerstown proposes to furnish gas for street lamps, for two dollars per thousand feet. Now the bald-heads may compose themselves in peaceful slumber at church, since the flies have ceased their troubling. THE city cousins have generally gone home, and the dear ones from the country are contemplating their visits in return. THE Gettysburg Compiler entered upon its 63d year this week, it says: "A trifle old, but never more vigorous." That's so. THEY've shut down, the oysters have, the warm spell don't agree with them, happily one can lay back on cabbage and bacon. SOME sneak thief entered the kitchen of the Newcomer House during Sunday night and carried off a lot of provisions.—Odd Fellow. PROF. GUILMETTE'S FRENCH KIDNEY PAD.—Prof. Guilmette's French Kidney Pad is a sure cure. Try it. For sale by Jas. A. Elder. THE Democrats of Abbottstown, Pa., raised a hickory pole one hundred and twenty eight feet long, in six minutes last Saturday. WE repeat! replace your broken window panes; when the wind is blowing, and putty refuses to yield to the knife, is no time for glazing. A CALL.—The Rev. McMeen, has received a call from the Presbyterian congregation of this city, to become their pastor.—Maryland Union. MR. ROBERT BROWN, aged about 56, dropped dead on Monday at his residence near Green Spring Furnace, Washington county, the result of heart disease. FOR Fire or Life Insurance in first class companies, call on W. G. Horner, Agt., office West Main St. opposite P. Hoke's Store. may29-1y DON'T forget to get registered. The officer of registration for this district will sit in Emmitsburg, on the 4th and 5th of October next, from 9 o'clock, a. m., to 6 o'clock, p. m. THE Maine election was followed by a warm wave in the weather extending to Florida, and from the far-west to the place of beginning. There must be a hot time a coming on this prognosis. THE persistent maintenance of an assertion once made, seems to be a reliable mode of making political thunder, this revolves itself into the Moral: "A lie well stuck to is as good as the truth." OUR Almanac says 23, 24, 25 variable a good bit if tomorrow don't disturb the arrangement, but look out 26 and 27 are set down for thunder showers! We never could find out whether the almanacs or tomb-stones lied more squarely. INSURE your Homes, your Crops, your Farming Implements and your Live Stock against fire or damage by Lightning, in the Old Agriculture Insurance Co. W. G. HORNER, Agent. Emmitsburg, Md. may29-1y DAVID H. SHRYVER, Esq., an aged and respected citizen of this city, died here on Thursday in the 74th year of his age. He was well known throughout the country. His funeral will take place from his late residence this (Saturday) morning at 10 o'clock.—Westminster Advocate.

HEAVY SUIT.—Hon. John Ritchie has instituted a suit against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company for $5,000 damages claimed by Philip Grove, of Knoxville, Frederick county for injuries sustained. Mrs. JAS. M. SCHLEY, wife of the Democratic candidate for Congress in this District died suddenly at her home in Cumberland on Monday evening, her remains were interred at Frederick on Wednesday. THEY are leaving no effort untried to make "the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth Anniversary of the founding of the city of Baltimore," during the week commencing October 11th, 1880 a notable feature of this year. THE venerable Solomon Powers has returned to his old quarters on Poplar Ridge, where he blasted granite rocks for St. Josephs church in 1839, and with his grandson Powers Pittenturf is again blasting granite, on a piece of ground Mr. J. A. Elder is clearing. DR. JAMES CORRIE, Dentist in Baltimore, writes: "I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup personally, and in my family for two or three years, and am prepared to say that there is nothing to compare to it as a remedy for Coughs, Colds, etc." THE only objection we can figure out to the Hill Cemetery project is the fact that it may take the contents out of our long cherished hope that the Artesian Well we have hoped for, to irrigate this valley, was to have been sunk up there, but perhaps Poplar Ridge may afford it after all. LIST OF LETTERS.—The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., Sep. 20th, 1880. Persons calling will please say advertised, otherwise they may not receive them: Bryce, Miss Maggie; Bell, Miss Florence; Bercau, Miss Ellen J.; Dayhoo, Mrs. Mary J.; Roddy Abraham F.; Warren, Miss Ella. S. N. McNair, P. M. SMITH & SHUFF desire us to state, for the benefit of all who may be concerned, that they keep a full stock of shrouds and burial robes on hand, of different sizes and various grades of cost. There is nothing in the line of undertaking with which they have failed to provide themselves. sep25 3t WE wish our young men and maidens, and all of whatever age to familiarize themselves with the cemetery prospect—go up there, "view the landscape o'er," fill your hearts with the scene of beauty which will open to your view, and learn to prize more and more the loveliness wherewith the Creator hath endowed our beloved valley. WE observe that some of our exchanges have their subscribers interested to send new names to their lists, and have thus called forth their expressions of thanks. If our subscribers would take the hint and do likewise, they would not only call forth our gratitude, but aid in furthering our aims for the common good, and thus be personally benefitted in the end. WE have heard the complaint that the frequent Railroad excursions, with the prices, so cunningly arranged, have drained the pockets of the people, and that erewhile their will be a call for their suppression, like unto the lotteries. We believe in the moral influence of excursions, and think it were better to stimulate a spirit of industry and thereby supply the means to keep the good work a going. DIED in Kansas, September 17th, 1880, after a brief illness of Typhoid fever, George J. Stokes, aged 33 years, a son of Mr. Joshua Stokes of Mechanicstown. The deceased left home in July last, and spent some time at the Eureka Springs in Arkansas. On his return he visited an uncle in Kansas, where he died. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him, as well for his filial demeanor, as for his energy of character and kindness of disposition. PERSONALS.—Miss Belle Rowe returned home, having made an extended visit at Gettysburg. Miss Baker of Hagerstown, is visiting Miss Minnie Harbaugh. Mrs. Mary A. Motter, and her son, I. Snively Motter, Esq., of Cloverton, near Williamsport, made a short visit among their relations in this place. Miss Belle Hopp returned home from Cumberland, after a prolonged visit. Miss Mary King of Gettysburg, was among the visitors. Miss Luella M. White has gone to Pittsburg, Pa., to attend school. Master Samuel Lewis Motter, son of Rev. I. M. Motter of Waynesboro, Pa., spent a few days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis M. Motter. Mr. and Mrs. Vic Newcomer, and their daughter Miss Jennie who has been visiting Misses Carrie and Grace Motter, have returned to their home in Washington county. Mrs. Dr. Reindollar and daughter Miss Annie, are the guests of Mrs. L. M. Motter. Miss Lou Manning of San Marino, Md., spent a brief time with Misses Carrie and Grace Motter. Miss Maggie A. O'Dell returned home from a visit to Columbia, Pa.

ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last, whilst Mr. Clayton Blessing, of Ellerton, was helping to lay the girders for a new barn which himself and partners are erecting on Mr. Mansson Bussard's farm, near Jefferson, one of the girders slipped and caught Mr. Blessing's left hand, cutting off the third finger at the first joint.—Valley Register. MR. JOSHUA ROWE showed us a cotton shrub which he grew in his yard from a seed. It looks quite interesting with the balls hanging all through the branches, some of which have expanded and reveal the snowy wool within. He gave us a fine specimen. "Tis something to show—cotton grown in Emmitsburg. A VALUABLE MARE LOST.—On Tuesday morning a valuable mare belonging to Mr. Wm. C. Scott, who lives near this place, on being brought from pasture by a boy, got upon the platform of a well, near his barn, which gave way, and she fell to the bottom. After ineffectual efforts to get her out alive, they were obliged to shoot her, and drew the carcass up. SAD ACCIDENT.—A sad and painful accident occurred to Glen, a five year old son of Mr. S. Theodore Stauffer, living on the road leading from Mt. Pleasant to Walkersville, on last Wednesday morning. Mr. Stauffer was boiling apple butter and had taken a portion of the boiling cider out of the kettle to make room for apples and put in a tub near by. Glen, who was playing around accidentally fell into the boiling cider backwards, fearfully scalding his entire right side. Drs. Nicodemus and Maynard, were summoned and are doing all in their power to relieve the little sufferer. From the last accounts we had the little fellow had regained consciousness, is doing very well and may probably recover.—Examiner. THE October number of Scribner's Monthly closes the twentieth volume. It opens with an entertaining article on "Porpoise-shooting," by Chas. C. Ward, finely illustrated with a number of sketches. The Biography of Millet, appears in advance of its publication in France, is continued, with reproductions of ten of the artists most noted pictures. The feature of New York, known as "Shantytown," is described by H. C. Bunner with sketches. Mr. Schuyler's life of "Peter the Great," concludes as to his early life; that as the "Great Ruler and Reformer," will commence in the November number. Trips of "One hundred miles in a Mammoth Cave," by H. C. Hovey. "Seaside Lawn-Planting," with sketches by Gibson, Vanderhoof, and others. "The New South," by Sidney Lanier, which is interesting in the highest degree. Mr. Cabell's novel "The Grandissimes," is brought to a dramatic close. These together with short stories, sketches, poetry, &c., sustain the standard of excellence of this sterling periodical, which must be seen and read for its due appreciation. ECLECTIC MAGAZINE.—The October number of the Eclectic presents the usual attraction. The illustration, in substantial fare and variety of stand of being a portrait as usual, is a marine view entitled "Robbins' Reef Light, New York Harbor." The table of contents, happily combining the instructive with the entertaining, is as follows: "Hours in a Library—Sterne," by Leslie Stephen; "Pessant Life in Bengal," by J. Talboys Wheeler; "Letters to and from Hans Christian Andersen;" "A Scandalous Romance;" "A Reindeer Ride through Lapland;" "Fiction, Fair and Foul," by John Ruskin (containing Ruskin's already famous attack upon Wordsworth); "The Carver and the Carjibb," by Austin Dobson; "Jelly Fishes," by Andrew Wilson, F. R. S. S.; "Central Asia: the Meeting Place of Empires;" "White Wings: A Yachting Romance," by William Black, Chapters XLII to XLIII; "Minutes;" "Romance of Literary Discovery;" "In Memoriam: Tom Taylor," by Thomas Hughes; "Instances of Longevity;" Foreign Literary Notes; Science and Art; and Varieties. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond street, N. Y. Terms, $5 per year; single copy, 45 cents. Trial subscription for three months, $1. WE had a return of summer on last Friday the 17th inst. Persons who had donned winter clothing, in the cool days, just preceding found the air or the clothing oppressive. We were obliged to set out our stove and coax it into comfortable action in the cool period. That day its oxidized sides seemed to glare at us derisively, as much as to say, aha! here I am! With hoisted windows and doors open, and coats on their hooks, we got along comfortably. The evening also was highly pleasant, with the full moon resplendent in cloudless skies, the air balmy, our people sat at their front doors, as in summer, to a late hour. Saturday and Sunday were like unto the preceding day, with a light rain on Monday. Tuesday was all the better for the rain of the day before, it proved exceedingly pleasant and closed with one of the glorious sunsets for which this valley is well known, the air itself seemed to be golden. Wednesday was again genial, in like manner with the night increasingly cooler.—Thursday began cloudy and chilly, but it cleared up about 10 o'clock and proved a perfect copy of the days preceding of late.

A BEAUTIFUL VISITOR.—On last Monday there came into our office, a humming bird, which naturally sought a rapid exit, and it made for a closed window, there it went on like a scissors grinder, and seemed bent upon drilling through the glass with its long bill, we caught it gently, put it under a glass for a few moments, and when we removed the glass, the bird sat perfectly quiet for some time, and we had the first near view of one of the lovely creatures we could ever obtain, its array is most resplendent, the combination of green, gold, &c., in colours, being exquisite beyond description. The poor thing soon got out by the open window. HOTEL ARRIVALS.—The arrivals for the week ending Thursday, were as follows: Emmitt House—M Jones, M J Meyer, Wm J Courrier, Chas Waller, B Gallagher, R Courtney, S J Weems, F A Brouer, Benj F Collins, Baltimore; W T Delaphane, J M Seabrook, Chas Walters, Samuel Baer, Frederick; Joseph Grupp, Levi Markler, Hanover; Jno H Fox, Miss Mary Fox, Brooklyn, N Y; Jacob Newcomer, Emmitsburg; F. Rahter, Phila; H Rahter, Littlestown; Jos Rosensteel, New Haven; G M Raffensperger, Hall Thomson, Hemlerstown, Pa; Mrs W E Weber, Cumberland, Md. Western Maryland Hotel—I S Moorhead, Littlestown; A W Gill, Mrs M L Shirine, New York; O S Voyes, Worth Reed, B Hart, Philadelphia; W H Young Lewis Rice, Frederick; W Maynard, Jos. G Cummins wife and son, Mr Dover, John Wallach, Baltimore; E V Morley, Wilmington, Del. THE season just ended has well shown what accommodations and enterprise may effect, towards unfolding the advantages of our village as a place of resort for the summer. The influx of sojourners was greater than for several years past. There is no reason why it may not also include the winter. A just pride in the locality and a determination that its merits shall be known and appreciated, should be entertained by every citizen, and every laudable exertion be put forth to promote the common advance. Our mountain sides, and the Poplar Ridge hills and others to the Eastward, present most eligible sites for the building of summer resorts. To bring these into notice should be the aim of all. The time must come when we shall have nice roads up to Indian Lookout and Carrick's Knob, and these shall become famous for excursions. Ye men of Emmitsburg be not content to loiter on your counters, and grow fixed to your arm chairs, but look ahead, and devise the ways and means to develop this valley, on which the hand of Almighty Goodness has lavished so much beauty, and bestowed the gifts of health and every possibility of happiness. Let enterprise and activity have fair play, and the benefits will be felt in every interest. A PROJECT.—For many years gone by there has been more or less talk, and once there was a movement, in reference to laying out a cemetery. The talk and the movement both ended for the want of definite aims, and proper exertion to reach decided results. It is now contemplated to form a company, with a view to the purchase and the laying out of the lots of the Rev. A. R. Kremer, being the northern side of Falter's hill, (formerly known as Robinson's.) From a personal view of the grounds, we think they are admirably adapted to the requirements of a cemetery. They are elevated, affording a birds-eye view of the village and a view in part of the South Mountain from the West, as well as a most picturesque one of the valley throughout, and many miles into the distance, whilst to the South-West the mountain peak whose summit is known as Carrick's Knob, rises in symmetrical grandeur, less than a mile away; a more beautiful prospect than can be enjoyed from the hill, is rarely met, a more fitting place of resort for a morning or evening walk in summer tide, we could not wish for. The soil is in excellent condition for the growth of such foliage and evergreens as it may be desirable to cultivate.—The distance from town, is but a pleasant walk being just outside of the corporate limits. The hill may be compared to a grand mound, whose drainage is a natural one on all sides, the moisture being conveyed away in the stratification of rocks several feet below the surface, it will admit of beautiful circular avenues and may readily be terraced, or is adapted to any form of survey that may be desired; a nice and convenient entrance can readily be arranged on the S. W. corner with arches and porter's house, or from the lane which runs along the Eastern boundary of the lands. These comprise, we are told, eight acres, which in their rectangular form when neatly enclosed will be a conspicuous object of attention from many parts of the town. We trust this project may receive such earnest and hearty interest, from the start, as may insure its success. With proper personal interest and determination, it cannot fail in entering upon a new departure as it were, looking to the advancement of the interests of this community we can scarcely conceive of an object more inviting than that of provision for the resting place of our dead. We trust that wise counsels, free of jarring elements, may prevail, and that ere long we may be permitted to record the inauguration of the Hill Cemetery.

WE remarked in our issue of last week: "There were certain scenes of disorder growing out of the gatherings which the late Festival brought together which were simply disgraceful, &c.:" A friend has suggested that persons not acquainted with the circumstances might draw inferences therefrom discreditable to the Festival itself. Nothing could have been farther from our intentions, our information respecting its conduct was in all respects most favorable; perfect order pertained to all its doings, as became the character of the Association, good taste, polite attentions and the strictest propriety, reflected credit on the managers and their agents throughout. ACTION OF LIME ON THE SOIL.—Lime, as it comes from the kiln, is known as caustic or quick lime—the heat having expelled the carbonic acid gas of the carbonate of lime or lime stone. Upon exposure to the air and moisture this caustic lime absorbs water and carbonic gas, and again returns to the carbonate. During this reversion it decomposes vegetable matter and sets the elements of plant food free. It is in this power to prepare food for the growing crop from the vegetable matter in the soil that the chief value of lime resides. The greater the per cent of the lime that is in the caustic state, the more valuable it is for this work. The quicker the lime can be applied after burning the better.—American Agriculturalist. CHARMED BY A SNAKE.—On Sunday last Mr Jas. O. Hooper, living at Highland, in this valley, started out from home to take a walk through the fields and woods, and without his knowledge his little three year old son followed after him. After walking about for an hour or two he returned to the house without the little boy, Mrs. H., who supposed the lad had accompanied his father, asked what had become of him. Mr Hooper replied that he had not seen him since he left him at the house when he started out, and at once went in search of him. After looking about for some time he discovered the little boy seated in a piece of woods some distance from the house, perfectly quiet and motionless, and intently gazing upon a huge black snake which was stretched upon the ground only a few feet from him. Mr. Hooper at once realized the fact that the child was charmed by the reptile, and without the least delay proceeded to kill the snake, in which he succeeded. The snake was a very large one, measuring over six feet in length. It is supposed that the child had been fascinated by the reptile for perhaps an hour, and but for his timely rescue by the father, might soon have been wrapped by it and killed.—Valley Register. How to Harvest Tobacco.

There are two signs that indicate when tobacco is fit to cut. The leaf on close examination appears mottled with spots of a lighter green, approaching to orange. Second, the vinelets on being bent between the thumb and finger, break with an audible snap. Tobacco that shows both of these signs should be cut at once. Many good growers think that the very first appearance of the mottled leaf indicates the proper time for cutting. Tobacco that shows both of the signs mentioned should certainly be cut at once. Before the plants are cut they should be "wormed" and "suckered" carefully. There is a right way to do the suckering. The shoots should not be broken off, leaving a stem of some inches long in the axils of the leaves, but they should be broken out close down to the stalk. If a stem is left, the leaves in the curing become folded close around it, so that it is nearly impossible to take them off in stripping without tearing them more or less. The suckers should be picked out clear down to the lower leaves. In cutting tobacco in hot weather great care must be taken to avoid sunburn. On clear days it is hardly safe to have any cut tobacco in the fields between the hours of eleven and three o'clock. When this is unavoidable, however the burning may be usually prevented by turning the plants over frequently, or by piling them up, putting from six to twelve plants in a pile.

The best way to manage loose leaves is to strip the stems of one or two behind a plant after it is hung on the pole. The weight of the plant will hold them in place, and they will cure out as well as the leaves that are not detached.

In sultry weather it is unsafe to leave a load of tobacco on the wagon over night, as it is liable to damage from heating. If tobacco is rained upon while lying in the field it is injured more or less.

WOOD ASHES FOR APPLE TREES.—Wood ashes are an excellent application to apple trees or any other trees or plants. Spring is the best time to apply them. Regulate the quantity by the facilities for obtaining the supply. There is little danger of applying too much, unless the land is surfeited with potash. Ashes are good for fall or spring wheat. They may be sown at any time, though we would prefer spring, and there is little fear of applying too much of them, as a liberal dressing strengthens the straw and enlarges as well as improves the grain. Composting either lime or wood ashes with muck is one of the best methods of utilizing them for manurial purposes. None of their fertilizing virtues are then lost, while they help greatly to neutralize the injurious acids of the muck and to render its manurial elements fit to be readily taken up as pot food.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

YELLOW LILY CAKE.—The yolks of six eggs, two cups sugar, three cups flour, 1/2 cup sweet milk, 1/2 cup butter, two teaspoonfuls cream tartar one teaspoonful soda.

A FARMER who has experimented with poultry, well-rotted cow manure, barn manure and bone dust for melons reports that the best yield was obtained when the bone dust was applied.

COLD CATSUP.—To half a peck of ripe tomatoes, three green and three red peppers, and a large bunch of celery, all cut fine, add three pints vinegar, one teacup salt, one teacup mustard-seed, one teacup grated horseradish, and two tablespoonfuls black pepper; mix well and bottle.

CHICKEN HASH.—This is the proper way to serve whatever roast or boiled chicken may be left over dinner: Mince the cold chicken, but not very fine, and to a cupful of meat add two tablespoonfuls of good butter, a half cup of milk, enough minced onion to give a slight flavor, and salt, mace and pepper, to taste. Stew it taking care to stir it, and serve daintily with a garnish of parsley. Every particle of bone must be extracted.

A NIGHTGOWN is nothing but a nap sack.

BETTER to have loved a short girl than never to have loved a tall.

EVERY woman should have a rush hat ready to put on in a hurry.

A PRINTER's girl fell exhausted in his arms at a ball. It was a feat to work in an embrace.

If you have a pretty daughter you will have a brain full of anxiety and a house full of scented note paper.

A Lowell young lady is so enthusiastic over croquet that her father says she is the "maiden all for lawn."

You can never convince a man whose lawn has been trampled down by a crowd but that there are sometimes more than three feet in a yard.

AN impecunious man generally designates a ten dollar note at a "William," because he is not on such terms of familiarity with it as would entitle him to call it "Bill."

"WHY are you in such a hurry?" said a man to an acquaintance.—"Sir," he replied, "I have bought a new bonnet for my wife and fear the fashion may change before I get home."

"I suppose," said a quack, while feeling the pulse of a patient, "that you think me a humbug." "Sir," replied the sick man, "I perceive you can discover a man's thoughts by his pulse."

AN economical father writes to his son: "My dear boy, I send you six new shirts, made from six old ones of mine. When you are through with them send them back; they will make six new ones for your little brother."

A LADY tells something which ought to have remained a secret with her sex. It is that a woman in choosing a lover considers a good deal more how the man will be regarded by other women than whether she loves him herself.

"ELLA, is your father at home?" said a bashful lover to his sweetheart. "I want to propose something very important to him."—"No, Clarence, papa is not at home but I am. Couldn't you propose to me just as well?" And he did with perfect success.

On a barber shop at the Highlands is a sign of "Kindling wood for sale," and as Barker walked past there last night with his family his wife asked him if he supposed that barber saved his shavings and sold them, too. Barker says he never knew how smart a wife he had before.

A COUNTRY doctor, being out for a day's shooting, took his errand boy to carry the game bag. Entering a field of turnips, the dog pointed, and the boy, overjoyed at the prospect of his master's success, exclaimed, "Lor, Master, there's a covey! if you get near 'em won't you physic 'em?" "Physic them, you young rascal, what do you mean?" said the doctor. "Why kill 'em, to be sure," replied the lad.

"Why how do you do?" and then two female mouths collided with an emphatic kiss. "I haven't seen you for ever so long; you haven't called you know," The response was, "I know it; I don't go anywhere: last week I was at the seashore, and week I'm off to the mountains; September is so delightful you know, and I'm over to mother's, or up to sister's every day, and then I've so much shopping to do, I really don't go anywhere." Then they smiled and said goodbye.

A LITTLE girl, who was left in charge of the house by her mother, with special warning against going into a press containing certain good things, was found in the forbidden closet on the lady's return. Vexed at her daughter's disobedience, she asked her if she knew who it was that tempted her to do wrong. "It was Satan," said the girl. "Then you should have said: 'Get thee behind me, Satan!'" said the lady.—"So I did, mother," replied the girl, "but then he pushed me into the press."

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.
An Encyclopaedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopaedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.
THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopaedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopaedia in the field.
Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.
Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.
Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:
I. Publish only books of real value.
II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.
III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.
IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.
V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding" fat and heavily-lead type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.
VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
