FRIENDS OF LONG AGO.

When I sit in the twilight gloaming
And the busy streets grow still,
I dream of the wide, green meadows,
And the old house on the hill.
I can see the roses blooming
About the doorway now;
Again my heart gives greeting
To the friends of long ago—
Dear long ago!

I can see my mother, sitting
With life's snowflakes in her hair,
And she smiles above her knitting,
And her face as saintly fair.
And I see my father reading
From the Bible on his knee,
And again I hear him praying
As he used to pray for me—
So long ago!

I see all the dear old faces
Of the boys and girls from home,
As I saw them in the dear old days,
Before we learned to roam.
And I sing the old songs over
With the friends I used to know,
And my heart forgets its sorrows
In its dream of long ago!
Dear long ago!

How widely our feet have wandered
From our old home's tender ties,
Some are beyond the ocean,
And some are beyond the skies.
My heart grows sad with thinking
Of the friends I used to know;
Perhaps I shall meet in heaven
All the loved ones of long ago.
Dear long ago!

LOST AND FOUND.

"I—I beg your pardon, sis," said the American, casting his eyes around the room with considerable surprise; "but I thought—in fact, I expected to meet a much more elderly gentleman. May I inquire if I am addressing Mr. John Gordon?"

"No, sir; I am his son, Archibald Gordon; but that need make no difference. I am thoroughly in my father's confidence with regard to all business matters."

"I—I have just arrived from New York, Mr. Gordon."
"Yes; I am aware of that; you sent in that message by one of our clerks. I presume you bring us letters of introduction?"

"I—no—I merely passed through New York in a very great hurry."

"Pardon me, sir, for interrupting you," said Archibald, quite resolved upon the line of conduct he should pursue; "but we never do business with strangers."

"Still, sir—"
"Give us a reference, or bring us a letter of introduction, and we shall be most happy to entertain any suitable proposals which you may have to make. Are you not known to anyone in London?"

"It is the first time that I ever was in England."

"May I inquire your name?"

"Certainly; my name is Jonas Crech."

"And can you afford us no reference, as to your standing?"

"I told you, sir, that I was a perfect stranger in London."

"Then I am afraid it would be quite useless to prolong this interview."

"Very well, sir; but I repeat that it may lead to the transaction of business of great importance."

"To you or to us?"

"To both parties; but most assuredly to you?"

"Oh, well; no mercantile house willingly loses a chance of increasing its connections profitably. From what part of the United States do you come?"

"From the South."

"I beg ten thousand pardons.— Our business lies almost entirely in the southern portion of the United States. Pray take a seat, Mr.
Crech."

"Yes."

"What State?"

"Louisiana."

"Then of course you know its principal city?"

"New Orleans?"

"Yes."

"Certainly, I know it; very well, indeed."

"But we have a branch house there."

"I know that, too. At least I knew that you had a branch house
there."

"True; you are right. But was it not opened when you left?"

"No; it closed three days before I quitted the city."

"Ah!—still pardon me—could you not have laid your important business before it while it was still open?"

"I could not!"

"Why not?"

"Because the opportunity for transacting that important business had not then arisen."

"Indeed! May I ask when and how it arose?"

"Certainly you may! As to the
'when,'—that occurred on the night that the 'Planters' Hotel' fell in, and buried three hundred people beneath its ruins. As to the 'how,'
—that occurred when Mr. Duncan Gordon was dug out dead from the debris twenty-four hours afterwards!"

"My poor uncle! Yes, Mr. Crech, we have heard of that sad accident with the deepest sorrow, for he was a most worthy man, and was very, very dear to all of us."

"Can they have heard of the loss of all these valuable securities?" thought he. "It is scarcely possible, if they had, that they would sit down so quietly, and take no notice of the broad hint I've just thrown out."

Mr. Crech began to be uncomfortable, and to think that possibly he might not be the cleverest man in England.

"But still," continued Archibald, eyeing his visitor narrowly, and resuming the conversation when he saw that he paused, "I don't see what the sad, untimely death of my dear uncle has to do with your application to me?"

"It has a great deal to do with it," replied Mr. Crech, somewhat abruptly, for he began to think that he was not getting the best of the game.

"But there surely were other large houses in New Orleans with whom your business could have been transacted?"

"My business, sir, could not have been transacted with any other house but yours," replied the stranger still more brusquely. "I suppose your house is not aware that when Mr. Duncan Gordon was killed he had in his personal possession a large quantity of very valuable papers?"

"Oh, yes; we are quite aware of that!" replied Archibald, with the utmost nonchalance.

"But you don't know that they were lost in the ruins?"

"We feared so, but we are now very glad to hear that they are found!"

"Found? I—I don't believe it!"

"I do!"

"By whom were they found?"

"By you, of course, Mr. Crech!"

This was a fair knock-down blow.
Mr. Crech caught it just in his wind, and felt as flat as a pancake.

"What do you mean?" exclaimed he.

"I mean, my good friend, that you found and secured these missing papers; that you perhaps were an occupant of the same hotel; that you possibly occupied the very next room to my poor uncle" (this was a tremendous hit, for it happened to be the exact truth); "that you picked them up, and finding how valuable they were to the owner, although of comparatively no value to you, you have come to England to make as good a bargain as you can for their restoration."

"I—I don't acknowledge a word of it," said Mr. James Crech; but he was wofully crest fallen.

"Then I shall take the liberty of detaining you in this room until I send for John Forrester from the Mansion House, and we shall see what he will say about it. You can't escape, for we have six clerks, as you may have observed, in the outer office."

"And this is all the thanks I get for all the expense I've been at in coming all the way from New Orleans!" said the baffled villain.

"Not so, Mr. Crech; we shall pay all your expenses; and although you don't deserve it; if you will give the papers up quietly, my father will make you a present of a hundred pounds into the bargain."

"Yes, I promise that!" said the old merchant, as he entered from the inner room.

"Ah, well! I suppose I had better make the best of a bad job," muttered Jonas, as he produced the papers from the inner pocket of his coat.

The lost was thus luckily found;
and so ends our tale.

A Miracle of Honesty.

At a party, one evening, several contested the honor of having done the most extraordinary things. A reverend gentleman was appointed judge of their respective pretensions.
One produced his tailor's bill with a receipt attached to it. A buzz ran through the room that could not be quidone; when a second proved that he had just arrested his tailor for money lent him.

"The palm is his," was the general cry, when a third put in his claim.

"Gentlemen," said he, "I cannot boast of the acts of my predecessors, for I have just returned to the owners three lead pencils and two umbrellas that were left at my house."

"I'll hear no more," cried the astonished arbitrator. "This is the very acme of honesty! it is an act of virtue of which I never knew any one capable." The prize—

"Hold!" cried another; "I have done still more than that!"

"Impossible!" cried the whole company. "Let us hear."

"I have been taking my paper for twenty years, and always paid for it in advance."

If it is needless to say he took the prize.

POVERTY AND SUFFERING.—"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring, which did them no good I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I procured Hop Bitters and commenced their use, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost—I know it.

THERE is no virtue that adds so noble a charm to the finest traits of beauty as that which exerts itself in watching over the tranquility of an aged parent. There are no tears that give so noble a lustre to the cheek of innocence as the tears of filial sorrow.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

OF EMMITSBURG, And its Vicinity.

BEGINNING OF THE ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.

It was the immigration of some Irish Catholics that caused the church to be built in Emmitsburg. Rev.
Mathew Ryan passing through the village, on his way to path valley, suggested to Mr. Joseph Hughes, the idea of building a church and gave him ten dollars as the first subscription. Accordingly, in 1793, Captain James Hughes built the first Catholic church in Emmitsburg.
He was the architect and contractor under the supervision of four trustees, viz:—Richard Jennings, Henry Arnold, Joseph and James Hughes.

The two last gentleman donated the lot upon which the church is built, including the cemetery, where their bones now rest. Mr. Richard Jennings is also buried in this hallowed spot. Father Frambach from Frederick, and Father Suffremont from Conewago, were the first priests who ministered to the spiritual wants of the people. They were also visited by Fr. Dubois, an exile from France during the bloody reign of Danton, Robespierre and Marat. Landing in 1791, at Norfolk, Va., Fr. Dubois brought letters of introduction from Lafayette to some of the most distinguished families of Virginia, and soon became the friend of such men as Patrick Henry, the Randolphs, Lees and others. Having removed to Frederick, Md., in 1794, he visited from thence, Emmitsburg and Elder's Settlement—now Mt.
St. Mary's. Fr. Dubois was truly an apostolic man, whose heart was the centre of all the virtues, whence they went forth in search of suffering humanity, aiming to benefit all within reach. His countenance spoke of the peace that reigned within, and like St. Vincent De Paul, he was always surrounded by a band of loving children, made happy by kind words of encouragement. Ever on his lips were the words of our Saviour, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven." Such was the good, amiable Fr. Dubois. He was succeeded by Fr. Mathew Ryan, a native of Kildare, Ireland, a man blest with indomitable energy, with the welfare of his countrymen at heart. His soul was filled with a holy ambition, and to do good to his fellow creatures was his morning and evening orison. This faithful follower of Christ, the first resident pastor of St. Joseph's church, died on the 5th of January, 1817, and rests in the shadow of the church.
Fr. Charles Dahamel, who died in 1818, also ministered to the congregation for some time. He was followed by Fr. Simon Gabriel Brute, Rev. John F. Hickey, Fr. Thomas McCaffrey, and other zealous priests until 1852, when this church was taken in charge by the Lazarist Fathers, an order instituted by St.
Vincent De Paul. In 1831, Father John Hickey enlarged this venerable edifice, and in 1841, finding the congregation still increasing, determined to erect a more fitting Temple, in which to worship Almighty God. On the very day that the old Church was torn down, Fr. Hickey was transferred to Baltimore, to the lasting regret of his flock, and the labor of erecting the new church devolved upon Rev. John McCaffrey of Mt. St. Mary's College, who entered upon it, with zeal and energy.
It was finished in 1842, (Mr. Tehan of Frederick, architect), and dedicated on the Feast of St. Michael, that year, by Most Rev. Archbishop Eccleston, the sermon being preached by Rev. Fr. Ryder of the Society of Jesus. This church was crowned in 1869 by a handsome steeple, the do-sign of which was furnished by the late Fr. Burlando, and erected by Tyson & Lansing. It may be worth mentioning that the original title of this church was St. Mary's, until in 1808 Bishop Dubois having given that name to his mountain sanctuary, the church in town was placed under the patronage of St.

Joseph, and has ever since retained the name of the holy patriarch.— It is worthy of remark, that since the foundation of St. Joseph's church, Emmitsburg in 1793, the choir has been composed of the descendants of the original choir of 1793, a period of 87 years, with the exception of six months. The Catholic church of Emmitsburg is intimately connected with

ELDER'S SETTLEMENT.

William Elder, who emigrated from St. Mary's county, and was the first white man that trod this mountain, gave the name of "St. Mary's Mount" to a portion of it. From the land of the "Pilgrim Fathers," Wm. Elder directed his steps northward, and settled at the foot of the Blue Ridge, then the abode of numerous Indians, and the haunt of wild animals. He called his place "Pleasant Level," saying "God's smile beamed in the shadow of these mountains." Here he built a house, reserving one room for religious services, calling it a chapel. He was then joined by his family, and a few friends from St. Mary's county.— This house was erected many years before the Revolution, for we find, that in 1732, Ann Wheeler first wife of William Elder, was buried in the little cemetery attached to the dwelling. This good woman, who shared the hardships of her husband's pioneer life, died of consumption, in the 34th year of her age, leaving four children to mourn her loss. At this early date of the settlement, there being no undertaker, necessity compelled them to hollow out a chestnut tree, and in this rude coffin the remains of Mrs.
Elder were deposited. In 1775 Mr.
Elder was interred by her side.—
His second wife, Jacoba Clementina Livers, is also buried here, surrounded by many of their children and friends. This old graveyard, which is cherished by their descendants, has been lately renovated, and a marble cross erected to the memory of these worthy pioneers. This chapel of the Elder's was the home for all weary travelers, and a delightful resort for all professing the Catholic faith. Hospitality was religiously practiced by this good family and their descendants. This congregation was often visited by Priests from St. Mary's County, Conewago and Frederick, and sometimes by Fr. Mathew Ryan from Path Valley, Pennsylvania, until 1807, when Mt.
St. Mary's church was built.

AFTER THE CONFLICT.

After the din of the battle has subsided and the smoke has disappeared, comes the time to review the scenes of conflict, to gather up the wounded and to bury the dead.—There is that in the balances and checks of our governmental institutions which must delight the heart of every lover of Liberty. The country may be agitated throughout its borders, the bitterness of party warfare may show itself in every quarter, and the portents of evil may gather thick and fast; but ours is liberty regulated by law, and the law must work out its destined results. When the sun has been eclipsed and the shadows have passed away, the original brightness bursts through the gloom, and the universal law proceeds in its accustomed course. Even thus does our country emerge from its grand contests for the choice of its rulers. A foreigner, looking on, might conclude that bloodshed and devastation must end the strife; but silently, and naturally business resumes its legitimate course and society is restored to its normal state. It is but the outgrowth of human nature, that the shouts of the victors shall rend the air, and the gloom of the conquered shall seek relief in retirement. But secure in the protection of the laws which extend their beneficent influence over every interest, resentments and mortifications are buried out of sight.

The people in our late conflict have decided to let, what they have been pleased to regard, well enough alone. They have done so, in such numbers as to do away with doubts and cavils, in regard to their will. There is matter for congratulation in this, because it precludes the continuance of agitation, which always disturbs business relations, and unsettles society.

Whatever may be the merits or the demerits of the doctrines of State rights which have had such a mighty influence in shaping the policies of our institutions from the formation of the government onward, and which have governed, to a greater or less extent, the course of our wisest and best Statesmen. We should think there is no one so ignorant as not to recognize the fact, that they come forward in overwhelming and unmistakable force in the Presidential election. Whatever may be the popular vote in favour of a candidate is necessarily overlooked and unregarded, for the States through their Electoral Colleges elect him, and not the people. Such was the sentiment of the gathered wisdom of the colonies in forming the Constitution, and thus they embodied it into the fundamental law. There are functions pertaining to the general government exclusively its own, these were separated and consigned to its domain, whilst again there are many subjects of internal policy pertaining to the States which cannot be invaded without upturning the entire system as originally devised.

Whatever may be the seeming demands of party, we doubt not in the end, there will always be accorded a just respect to the will and purposes of the Fathers of the Constitution. The people now demand time for a calm and quiet order of business. Having elected those who are to make the laws and to execute them, they now expect these their servants to enter upon their duties and be prepared to render strict account of their stewardship. Let us hope that with the favouring smiles of Providence by which we have been so signally blessed in the past, the future before us may be, if possible, yet more glorious.

CURIOUS.—Did the voters of Allegany county in the late election mean to indicate that they had an eye to the fitness of things? They voted 1,087 majority against the prohibition of liquor, and at the same time, by 835 majority, for building an insane asylum in the county.—Chron.

EVERY Family, without Exception in City, Village, and Country, will find it highly useful to constantly read the American Agriculturist.—It abounds in plain, practical, reliable information, most valuable for indoor as well as outdoor work and comfort, and its 800 to 1,000 Original Engravings in every volume are both pleasing and instructive. In this respect it is preeminent and stands alone, and it should have a place in every Household, no matter how many other journals are taken. Its Illustrated Department for Youth and Children contains much information as well as amusement. Its Humbug exposures are invaluable to all classes. The cost is very low, only $1.50 from now to the end of 1881, or four copies for $5. Single numbers, 15 cents. One specimen, 6 cents. Take our advice and subscribe now for volume 40 (1881). WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 9th.

The result of the election last Tuesday is without doubt, accepted as final by all peace loving and law abiding citizens. It will, in fact, stand among the fairest ever held in this country. The peaceful inauguration of General Garfield should follow next march, and the present business prosperity continued, and not retarded by dangerous agitation of political or revolutionary questions. In this connection I am sorry to notice a disposition among New York Democrats to change the vote of that State, or try to, from Garfield to Hancock.—Such action can only plunge the country into anarchy and strife. Is it possible we have in public life a class of men caring so little for the peace and welfare of the country, as to sacrifice it for the advancement of their own selfish aims? It is hard to believe so. But when Chairman Barnum, John Kelly and others, seek to overthrow the verdict of an honest majority of the votes of a State, they become revolutionists and should be treated as such before the law. I do not think the American people will be trifled with in a matter so vitally concerning them. They care not for the petty ambitions of partisan leaders, nor care they to apply the balm of sympathy and support to the defeated Democratic bosses. I hope Mr. Barnum and his friends will see the folly of their course before advancing further in a direction so full of danger.

I am glad to see that Northern capitalists are taking active interest in the development of the uncultivated lands of the South. A wide field for profitable investment is opening up in that section of our country. Not only do large profits await those investing in lands there, but also to those investing in manufacturing. Georgia is attracting more attention at this time perhaps, than any other Southern State. The State contains 37,120,000 acres of land, nearly all of which is capable of profitable tillage, yet only 7,000,000 are improved and cultivated.—Four fifths of the land in the State lying idle, unimproved and unproductive. The one fifth that is cultivated yields annually 500,000 bales of cotton, worth, upon an average $22 500,000, besides corn, rice, fruit and various other crops. The unimproved land can be made just as productive as that under cultivation, and it can be bought almost at the purchasers terms. The climate is good, none better in the United States. Georgia is not the only state that offers great advantages to settlers; as thousands upon thousands of acres of the most fertile lands in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas have never been touched by the plow. The near approach of the session of Congress is drawing public attention to the important measure likely to come before it for consideration. Among others prominent, is the necessity for improving our sea coast defences. Congress will be urged to take up the subject and to provide for the protection of our sea coast against the powerful armament of the powers. Though we are "at peace with the world and the rest of mankind," no man can see into the future. The old adage says, "in time of peace, prepare for war." I think the least Congress can do is to protect our great sea-port from devastation in the event of unexpected war.

CONFIDENCE MEN.—Beware of them. They are generally well-dressed, well-educated, clever men, studied in the arts to "take in" the unwary. Trust not strangers in a business rule, which may well be adopted to regulate private life, as well.

A NOTED physician of New York, writes to a friend: "I have in my mind a sufferer from gravel and a complication of kidney disorders, that was permanently cured by the use of Prof. Guilmotte's French Kidney Pads." The druggists sell them.

GOV. HAMILTON has appointed Samuel M. Buzzard, commissioner of Frederick county, vice George H. Ambrose, deceased. Also, A. H. THE brightness which characterized the beginning of this week, was changed to gloom and dampness on Wednesday, when it rained more or less all that day, but after 8 o'clock in the evening there was a notable change, and then it just poured down. The streets became rivulets and few persons ventured out. It was a grand wash-down.

STRANGELY, the mosquito, with its "Fairy-like music," "steals over us still." They appeared not through the summer, but with the lighting up of the stoves. They came forth and maintain possession, in lonely delegations here and there, in spite of clapping hands, and deep breathed blessings.

ROBBERY.—On Saturday night, the 27th ultimo, the bed chamber of Col. Charles E. Trail was entered by some thief and his gold watch and chain and his pocket book containing about $50 stolen therefrom. Mr. Trail informs us that he has no suspicion whatever of the party or parties who committed the theft.—Examiner.

By a singular coincidence, the Frederick Examiner of this week, has placed at the head of the President's Thanksgiving Proclamation, the cut of a big savage-visaged man, with his mouth wide open and his eyes darting fire, who looks as if he were about to eat the comfortable dwarf before him, whom he addresses with the words, "And don't you forget it."

THE Baltimore Sun of last Tuesday contained the Official Report of the National Board of Health, by Dr. Chancellor, it is a long article, but replete with interest. The question of sewerage is treated of, in full detail. When they have worked up the matter thoroughly in Baltimore, the people will just rear out like old machines, and dying will come only of accidents.

HOW IT WORKS.—The governors of the states issue certificates of election to the respective electors of the states. The electors meet in their several states on the first Wednesday of December next, they there cast and certify their votes, these will be transmitted to Congress, and there on the second Wednesday of February, 1881, they will be counted by that body, and it will be declared who are elected.

CLOSING OF MERCERSBURG COLLEGE.—The Mercersburg Journal of last week contains this notice: "We are sorry to make the announcement that on account of the troubles under which Mercersburg College has for some time been weighed down, the institution has been suspended for the time being. We trust however, that it is only a temporary suspension, and that in a short time its labors will be resumed."

FEELS YOUNG AGAIN.—"My mother afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No Physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters, with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, Providence, R. I.

AFTER writing of the disappointment of the late Agricultural Fair of this county, by reason of the rain, the Frederick Times thus sums up the conclusion of the matter:

The society is not so badly off after all. Since counting up receipts it is found that the number of visitors, in spite of the bad weather, was large and the receipts consequently reach a figure by no means small. A small sum will cover all damages. If the weather had been fair, judging by the success of the exhibition under the most adverse and damaging circumstances, the success of the show would have been enormous.

FROM a copy of the St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette, of a recent date, we clip the following item, which will commend itself to the many friends here, of the young gentleman to whom it refers:

The board of directors of the Board of Trade held a meeting yesterday morning to complete the organization of the new Board. The first business in order was the election of a secretary to fill the place so efficiently occupied by Mr. A. P. McDonald for the past two years. Several names were proposed, but it was finally decided to choose Mr. Frank Motter, and he was accordingly elected as secretary for the ensuing year. This is an excellent choice. Mr. Motter is an energetic, steady, efficient young business man, and will make a good secretary. He has grown up from boyhood in St. Joseph, and the Gazette is glad to see him honored with so important a trust.

SUDDEN DEATH.—A sudden death, says the Banner of Liberty, occurred at the residence of Mr. Daniel Hartsock, residing between this place and Unionville, on Monday night last. A tramp, who gave his name as Casper Gabrue, aged 52 years, from Bohemia, who came to this country about five years ago, stopped at the residence of Mr. Hartsock, on Friday evening last, complaining of feeling unwell and unable to travel farther, and asked for shelter. Mr. H. gave him a bed and made him as comfortable as possible, and on Monday made preparation to take him to the almshouse. The next day, but on Tuesday morning found him on the floor, lying on his face, dead, having fallen out of bed some time during the night. He was decently buried in the graveyard at Ligonore Chapel, on Tuesday evening. The deceased said he had a brother and sister living in Pittsburgh.

HOTEL ARRIVALS.—The arrivals for the week ending Thursday, were as follows:

Y.; J. Newcomer, Fayetteville, Pa.

"SOUND THE TRUMPET, BEAT THE DRUM."—The event of the week for our town and neighborhood was the Republican demonstration on Tuesday night, in honor of the success of that party in the recent election. There was a torch-light parade with about two hundred and fifty men in line on horseback, in buggies, wagons, &c. The music was by the Drum Corps, the Brass Band, and a String Band composed of about one dozen colored men. The illumination which consisted in the main of Chinese lanterns, suspended in front of the buildings, and some neat arrangements of windows with house-plants lit up with lamps, together with displays of wreaths and a profusion of flags, was on the whole very creditable to its projectors, and displayed good taste on the part of those who assisted in carrying out the plans. The only drawback in the case was the paucity of torches; but for this too Moon made due amends. After the procession Capt. H. S. McNair, of York, Pa., made an eloquent address amid much applause.

THE Sunday News published by Hermann & Brewer, in Baltimore city, thus commends the History of Emmitsburg: "The Emmitsburg Chronicle of Saturday contains the first installment of a well-written sketch of Emmitsburg and its vicinity. It was a happy thought of the publisher to introduce so desirable a feature in the paper and its continuation will be looked forward to with special interest by those whose lives have been associated by birth or residence with this time-honored town."

A celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Emmitsburg, which will occur in 1868, is also suggested, and should by all means be carried out. The Chronicle is an admirably conducted paper, and deserves great credit for its efforts to foster among the people a proper pride in the prosperity of the place whose history so far has been highly honorable.

We recognize in the above, the hand of one who was "to the Manor born," and still loves to recur to the scenes of native beauty, amid which his childhood and youth were passed.

In adhering to the only orthodox and correct method of spelling the name of the village, (with but one t), the Editor knows whereof he writes, and will accept our thanks, for his valuable aid in our efforts to correct a concealed and ill-founded innovation against reason and truth.

On last Saturday night one of the large paper-mulberry trees in front of our office, yielded to the fury of the gale—"Where the tree falleth there it shall be"—(till it is cut up), so the next morning the huge trunk attracted general notice. For the winter season its absence will enlarge our western view, and add somewhat to the brightness of our light, but in the summer we shall miss its cooling shade, and the softening rays of light which the green foliage reflected into the office.

We have so few shade trees in our town that the loss of any, may be regarded as so much taken from the comfort and beauty of our streets. We cannot understand why tree-planting is neglected or overlooked among us. There are few towns, in which there is so little attention paid to this matter as with us.

There is a moral influence connected with the presence of shade trees. They conduce to health, and undoubtedly add to the pecuniary value of property. Go where you may, all along the railways, and in retired quarters even, attention is given very successfully to the cultivation of trees, and along with them everywhere at the stations and elsewhere, are found plots of flowers, beautifying the locality, pleasing the eye of the traveler and inviting his return that way. Everywhere in the cities the porches and often the walls are beautified by climbing plants.

The cultivation of house-plants, as they are called, is commendably encouraged amongst us, and the displays through the winter months have met the praises of visitors; this cultivation should be continued and become universal.

In planting trees a wise discrimination should be exercised to obtain the varieties which are noted for beauty, durability and cleanliness. The English elms and the Lindens are trees of rapid growth, but their being so liable to the attacks of insects renders them well nigh useless. Maples, some Poplars, Horse Chestnuts, and many other varieties, are desirable and worthy of attention. There is yet time to set out trees this season, we hope the subject will not be overlooked, but will be considered and acted upon, as one which enters into the improvement and beautifying of the village.

A PLEASANT MEDICINE.—Croft's SENSITIVE PILLS, supply the long desired substitute for the nauseous oils, boluses, pills &c., of the part, for cases of "Constipation," and bilious complaints. Put up in neat boxes of one dozen doses to the box, they are in a very convenient form to take; are to be eaten as figs, and are as pleasant to the taste as the fruit itself.—Are sold for 35 cents a box, to be had of all Druggists, or direct from the proprietor, S. F. Croft, opposite the Court House, Hagerstown, Md. oct 21st

WEEK OF PRAYER.—The Evangelical Alliance has issued the programme for the Week of Prayer commencing January 2nd and continuing until the 9th. It is recommended that on Sunday, January 2nd, services be preached from the text: "Jesus Christ the same yesterday, today and forever." The topic for January 3rd, will be praise and thanksgiving for all blessings; January 4th, humiliation and confession for personal and national sins; January 5th, prayers for the Church of Christ that it may be faithful and united; January 6th, prayer for the young and their instructors, for parents, colleges and Sunday-schools; January 7th, prayer for all nations and rulers, and for universal liberty, for cessation of wars; January 8th, prayer for Christian missions and all engaged in promoting them.

WE clip the following from the Maryland Union.

DEATH OF AN AGED LADY.—Mrs. Elizabeth Dorsey, a well known and highly esteemed lady, mother of Mr. Washington Dorsey, died at her residence in Market Space, in this city, on Friday last, at the advanced age of 87 years.—Her remains were buried last Saturday afternoon in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

ON DR.—A rumor is afloat to the effect that our highly esteemed fellow-citizens, Edward A. Gittinger, Esq., is to be the successor of Col. John L. Thomas, present Collector of Customs at the Port of Baltimore. The position could not be conferred upon a worthier or a more deserving gentleman, or a sounder, more active and influential Republican. He has our best wishes.

MILL DESTROYED BY FIRE, AND GEORGE SHAUM MISSING.—The Flour Mill of Mr. Edward T. Getzendanner, situated at the mouth of Fishing Creek, seven miles north of Frederick city, was destroyed by fire yesterday morning at about 1 o'clock, together with all its contents, and it is greatly feared that Mr. George Shaum, who was employed by Mr. David Trimmer, the miller, and who lodged in the Mill, was burned to death as it is known that he was in his bank in the mill, at ten o'clock at night and was missing after the fire. How the fire originated and the loss sustained, and whether there was any insurance on the property, we were unable to learn before the hour of going to press.

THE man who tried to please everybody, discovered that to do so, was like finding perpetual motion.

N. W. AYER & SONS American Newspaper Annual for 1880 has reached us. It is a very handsome volume of 616 pages, excellently bound, printed on fine heavy paper, and is evidently made for use. It gives the name of every paper published in the United States and Canada, with the times they are issued, their politics, and other peculiar features; the date of their establishment, circulation and advertising rates, together with the population of the places where they are issued, and that of the county as well as the political majorities of the localities. United States populations are given from the census of 1880. The Annual is arranged according to geographical sections. Under each State is given its capital, the number of its counties, and the population of the places from which the papers are published. It is thus made a most convenient medium of information in everything pertaining to the business of advertisers, and also contains much useful knowledge for business, and professional men generally. Its excellent binding, splendid paper and perfect typography, will commend it to all who may consult its pages.

Care for Balty Horses.

We have seen all sorts of things used to start a balty horse. We have seen them beaten, coaxed, have their ears filled with garvel, their mouths filled with dirt, etc., but we have had occasion several times to help fellows out with a balty horse in the following manner:

Take a short strap or rope—we generally used the hitch-rein, which is always at hand—and fasten it just below the fetlock of one of his fore legs. Be sure to fasten it with a sort of slip-knot, so that you can let it go at any instant. Then go forward and pull on the strap until the horse lifts its foot. Continue to pull and the foot will be brought down and set down a little in advance of the other. The horse, thus thrown out of natural position, will move forward to regain his equilibrium. Another pull will cause another move forward. This may be repeated several times, or until the horse moves without having the foot pulled forward. We have usually found that two or three pulls will start him off right, and if the hitch-rein has been fastened in the manner we have indicated, it can be let go when it will slacken itself and drop from the horse's foot.

Of course, some one should be in the wagon to drive the horse after he has been started. Beating and pulling and hauling do no good to a balty horse; in fact, cruel treatment is of no avail in any case, with any horse.

Any of our readers who may chance to have a balty horse we think will find this a reliable starter.

WHOLE WHEAT FOR FOWLS.—There is more solid nutriment in whole wheat, as a feed for poultry, than in any of the cereals, weight for weight. It is an excellent kind of grain for this use, though somewhat more expensive than any other sorts; but too much of this hearty feed is detrimental, particularly when fed to Cochins.

IMPLEMENTS, put away for the winter, should be painted or protected in some way from the action of the air and moisture. Paint or varnish for the wood-work, and a varnish of two-thirds rosin and one-third mutton tallow is excellent for protecting iron and steel.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

A WEAK solution of carbolic acid in rain water will cure pimples and simple eruptions.

AMMONIA, saleratus water, and other alkaline washes are the usual remedies for bee stings. A fresh tomato leaf crushed and rubbed on the puncture is recommended as an easy and sovereign cure.

THE very best contrivance for guarding the wall above a washstand from splashes is a piece of stout linen, hung without folds, and embroidered in some rapid and easy design with crows or worsted, which will wash sufficiently well, and for this purpose make a firmer and more effective line than cotton.

A CORRESPONDENT residing at Honolulu, Sandwich islands, says that a good health preservative is to sponge the body in cold water, containing a small percentage of some alkali, such as ammonia. The ammonia combines with the oil or grease thrown out by the perspiration, forming a soap, which is easily removed from the skin, leaving the pores open, thus promoting health and comfort.

TO KILL RATS.—Take two parts of corn meal to one part of unsalted lime, and place it where the rats are likely to find it. They will eat it speedily, and as soon as they drink water the lime will slack and kill them. The Scientific American says that copperas is the aversion of rats. In every crevice, or in every hole where a rat treads we scatter the grains of copperas, and the result is a stampede of rats and mice, and not a footfall of either has been about the house since. Every spring a coat of yellow-wash is given the cellars as a purifier, as well as a rat exterminator, and no typhoid, dysentery or fever attacks the family.

Humorous.

A COLORED woman, boasting the other day of the progress made by her son in arithmetic, exultingly said, "He's in the mortification table."

A LITTLE girl, who had seen an advertisement of an aquapult, and was told by her teacher that it was a machine for throwing water, naturally and innocently inquired if a catapult was a machine for throwing cats.

It always sounds pretty to say: "The sun had sunk beneath the western horizon;" but a moment's reflection shows that that is about the only horizon he could sink beneath under the circumstances.—When he feels like sinking away he always selects the western horizon in this section.

THREE Irishmen, who dug a ditch for $4, were quite at a loss to know how to divide the pay "equally."—But one of the number had gone to school, and reached division in the arithmetic, so it was left to him.—He did it at once, saying: "It's easy enough. Sure, there's two for you two, and there's two for me, too."—The two received their portion with a greatly increased respect for the advantage which learning gives a man.

FRANK BURY was robbed and hanged by Chinamen, several years ago, near Gold Hill, Nevada. Soon afterward he met one of the rascals and killed him. A clever and plucky use of his own knife had severed the rope in time. A later exploit increased his reputation on the Pacific coast. He froze the fingers of one hand, and a physician told him they would have to be amputated, at a cost of $100. He decided to save money by doing the job himself. He fastened one blade of a pair of sheep shears in a vise, stuck in his hand, and struck the other blade a hard blow with a sledge. It was a successful operation. These episodes in his history are culled from his obituary, for he has just been killed in a barroom row.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chambers's Encyclopedia," with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopedia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange:

I. Publish only books of real value.

II. Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV. The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V. Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.

VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
