THE PATCHWORK QUILT.

In sheen of silken splendor, With glittering threads of gold, I've seen the warring marvels That hung in the walls of old;
And brave hands held the lance,
And stately lords and ladies Stepped through the courtly dance.
I've looked on rarer fabrics,
The wonders of the loom, That caught the flowers of summer,
And captive held their bloom;
But not their wondrous beauty, Though fit for queens to wear,
Can with one household treasure, That's all my own compare.

It has no golden value,
The simple patchwork spread;
Its squares in humely fashion, Set in with green and red,
But in those faded pieces For me are shining bright, Ah! many a summer morning,
And many a winter night.

The dewy breadth of clover,
The leaping light of flame, Like spells my heart came over,
As one by one I name These bits of old-time dresses—Chintz, cambric, calico—That looked so fresh and dainty On my darling long ago.

This violet was my mother's I seem to see her face, That ever like sunshine Lit up the shadiest place.
This buff belonged to Susan,
That scariest spot was mine;
And Fannie wore this pearly white, Where purple pansies shine.

I turn my patchwork over—A book with pictured leaves—And I feel the blue fragrance, And the snow-fall on the eaves.
Of all my dear possessions, I think I least could spare The quilt we children pieced at home, When mother dear was there.

AN "OLD BOYS" ADVICE.

K. Rexford.

My boy, you're soon to be a man;
Get ready for a man's work now,
And learn to do the best you can,
When sweat is brought to arm and brow.
Don't be afraid, my boy, to work;
You've got to, if you mean to win!
He is a coward who will shrink; Roll up your sleeves, and then "go in!"
Don't wait for chances; look about!
There's always something you can do.
He who will manfully strike out Finds labor plenty of it, too!
But he who folds his hands and waits For "something to turn up," will find The toiler passed for one's gates, While he, alas, is left behind!

Be honest as the day is long;
Don't grind the poor man for his cent.
In helping others, you grow strong,
And kind deeds done are only lent;
And this remember; if you're wise,
To your own business be confined.
He is a fool, and falls, who tries His fellow man's affairs to mind.

Don't be discouraged and get blue If things don't go to suit you quite;
Work on! Perhaps it rests with you To set the wrong that worries, right, Don't lean on others! Be a man!
Stand on a footing of your own!
Be independent, if you can,
And cultivate a sound backbone!

Be brave and steadfast, kind and true,
With faith in God and fellow-man, And win from them a faith in you, By doing just the best you can!
—Golden Days.

The Drummer Boy.

One cold December morning about eight years ago, a party of tourists were crossing the Alps—and a pretty large party, too, for there were several thousands of them together.
Some were riding, some walking, and most of them had knapsacks on their shoulders, like many Alpine tourists nowadays. But instead of walking-sticks they carried muskets and bayonets, and dragged along with them fifty or sixty cannon.

In fact, these tourists were nothing less than a French army; and a very hard time of it they appeared to be having. Trying work, certainly, even for the strongest man, to wade for miles through knee-deep snow in this bitter frost and biting wind, along these narrow, slippery mountain paths; with precipitous hundreds of feet deep all round.— The soldiers looked thin and heavy-eyed for want of food and sleep, and the poor horses that were dragging the heavy guns stumbled at every step.

But there was one among them who seemed to enjoy the rough marching, and tramped along through the deep snow and cold gray mist—through which the great mountain peaks overhead loomed like shadowy giants—as merrily as though he were going to a picnic. This was a little drummer boy ten years old, whose fresh rosy face looked very bright and pretty among the grim, scarred visages of the old soldiers. When the outting wind whirled a shower of snow in his face he dashed it away with a cheery laugh, and awoke all the echoes with the lively rattling of his drum, till it seemed as if the huge block rocks around were all singing in chorus.

"Bravo, Petit Tambour!" (little drummer) cried a tall man in a shabby gray cloak, who was marching at the head of the line, with a long pole in his hand, and striking it into the snow every now and then to see how deep it was. "Bravo, Pierre, my boy. With such music as that one could march all the way to Moscow."

The boy smiled, and raised his hand to his cap in salute, for this rough-looking man was no other than the general himself, "Fighting MacDonald," one of the bravest soldiers in France, of whom his men used to say that one sight of his face in battle was worth a whole regiment.

"Long live our general," shouted a hoarse voice, and the cheer, flying from mouth to mouth, rolled along the silent mountains like a peal of distant thunder.

But its echo had hardly died away when the silence was again broken by another sound of a very different kind—a strange, uncanny sort of whispering far away up the great wide side. Moment by moment it grew louder and harsher, till at length it swelled into a deep, hoarse roar.

"On your faces, lads!" roared the general; "it's an avalanche!" But, before the men had time to obey, the rain was upon them.— Down thundered the great mass of snow, sweeping the narrow ledge path like a waterfall, and crashing down along with it came heaps of stones and gravel and loose earth, and uprooted bushes, and great blocks of cold blue ice. For a moment all was dark as night, and when the rush had passed, many of the brave fellows who had been standing on the path were nowhere to be seen. They had been carried down over the precipice, and either killed or buried alive in the snow.

But the first thought of their comrades was not for them. When it was seen what had happened, one cry arose from every mouth: "Where's our Pierre? Where's our little drummer?" Where, indeed? Look which way they would, nothing was to be seen of their poor little favorite, and when they shouted his name there was no answer. Then there broke forth a terrible cry of grief, and many a hard old soldier, who had looked without finching at a line of leveled muskets, felt the tears start that that face would never be seen among them again.

But all at once, far below them, out of the shadows of the black unknown gulf that lay between those tremendous rocks, arose the faint roll of a drum beating the charge.
The soldiers started and bent eagerly forward to listen; then up went a shout that shook the air.

"He's alive, comrades! our Pierre's alive after all!"
"And beating his drum still, like a brave lad! He wanted to have the old music to the last!"
"But we must save him, lads, or he'll freeze to death down there.— He must be saved!"

"He shall be!" broke in a deep voice from behind, and the general himself was seen standing on the brink of the precipice, throwing off his cloak. "No, no, general!" cried the grenadiers, with one voice; "you mustn't run such a risk. Let one of us go instead; your life is worth more than all of ours put together."

"My soldiers," answered Macdonald, quietly, "and no father grudge his own life to save his son." The soldiers knew better than to make any more objections. They obeyed in silence, and the general was swinging in midair, down, down, till he vanished at last into the darkness of the cold, black depths below.

Then every man drew a long breath, and all eyes were strained to watch for the first sign of his appearing, for they knew well that he would never come back without the boy, and that the chances were terribly against him.

Meanwhile MacDonald, having landed safely at the foot of the precipice, was looking anxiously around in search of Pierre; but the beating of the drum had ceased, and he had nothing to guide him.

"Pierre!" shouted he, at the top of his voice, "where are you, my boy?"
"Here, general!" answered a weak voice, so faint that he could hardly distinguish it.

And there, sure enough, was the little fellow's curly head, half buried in a huge mound of snow, which alone had saved him from being dashed to pieces against the rocks as he fell. Macdonald made for him at once; and although he sank waist deep at every step, reached the spot at last.

"All right, now, my brave boy," said the general, cheerily; "put your arms around my neck and hold tight; we'll have you out of this in a minute."

The child tried to obey, but his stiffened fingers had lost all their strength; and even when Macdonald himself clasped the tiny arms around his neck their hold gave way directly.

What was to be done? A few minutes more, and the numbing cold of that dismal place would make the rescuer as powerless as him he came to rescue. But General Macdonald was not the man to be so easily beaten. Tearing off his sash and knitting one end of it to the rope, he bound Pierre and himself firmly together with the other, and then gave the signal to haul up.

And when the two came swinging into the daylight once more, and the soldiers saw their pet still alive and unhurt, cheer upon cheer rang out, rolling far back along the line, till the very mountains themselves seemed to be rejoicing.

"We've been under fire and snow together," said Macdonald, chafing the boy's cold hands tenderly, "and nothing shall part us two after this, so long as we both live."

And the general kept his word.— Years later, when the great wars were all over, there might be seen walking in the garden of a quiet country house in the south of France, a stooping, white-haired old man, who had once been the famous Marshal MacDonald; and he leaned for support upon the arm of a tall, black-moustached, soldier-like fellow, who had once been little Pierre, the drummer.—Western Catholic.

The Value of a Name.

Forty-five thousand dollars was recently paid in London for a painting by Leonardo da Vinci. The painting had the mischance to be stolen some twenty years ago and was offered for sale as an unknown waif. Sir Charles Eastlake thought it a copy; others gave other opinions. No one wanted it at any price; its owner offered it finally for twenty-five dollars and in vain. By chance some one recalled the robbery of Lord Suffolk's gallery and suggested that the picture be taken there for identification. The waif was found to match perfectly the hole in the original canvas from which it had been cut. It proved to be the missing picture. The recent sale of the work illustrates the value of authentication. A canvass that on its own merits would not sell for twenty-five dollars, may sell when duly authenticated for forty-five thousand dollars.

COURTESY.—Courtesy is a powerful aid to him who gives and him who receives. Treat even a base man with respect, and he will make at least one desperate effort to be respectable. Courtesy is an appeal to the nobler and better nature of others to which that nature responds.
It is due to ourselves. It is the crowning grace of culture, the stamp of perfection upon character, the badge of the perfect gentleman, the fragrance of the flower of womanhood when full grown.

A TRAP FOR SEVEN.

Catch a rat in a trap and he will fight. Trap a man and—well, you can't rely on him. It is according to the trap. In the heavy stage coach, as we roll out of Leadville, were seven men. One is an army officer who has half a dozen scars to prove his bravery. Cut off from his command on the plains last summer by a score of Indians, he intrenched himself and fought the band off until help arrived. Two of the others are desperadoes, who have killed their man. Three of the others are stalwart miners, each armed with two revolvers, and they would prove ugly customers in a row.

The seventh man might do some shooting on a pinch, but he hopes there will be no pinch. In the crowd are ten revolvers, two derringers, three repeating rifles, and four or five bowie knives, and there is perfect good feeling, as the stage rolls along. It is tacitly understood that the captain is to assume command in case the coach is attacked, and that all are to keep cool and fire to kill.

It is 10 o'clock in the morning.— The windows are down and the passengers are smoking and talking and seeking for comfortable positions. The coach has just reached the top of a hill, when every horse is suddenly pulled up.

"If it's a bear, we'll have some fun," growled one of the miners, as he put his head out of the window.
"If it's a robber give me the first pop at him?" whispered one of the desperadoes.

No one could say what the trouble was, when a wiry little chap about five feet six inches tall, with black eyes and hair, clean face and thin lips, appeared at the left-hand door with a cocked revolver in either hand, and said:

"Gents, I'm sorry to disturb you, I've got to make a raise this morning. Please leave your shooters and climb down here, one at a time?"

It was sudden. It was so sudden that it took ten seconds to understand the drift of his remarks.— Then every eye turned to the right-hand door, and the two revolvers held by a second robber were seen at the open window. It was a trap.
The rats were caught, and would they fight?"

"Gents, I'm growing a little impatient," continued the first robber, "and I want to see the procession begin to move!"

Let's see? The captain was to lead us, and we were to be cool and fire to kill. But the captain was growing white around the mouth, and nobody had a weapon in hand. The rats were not going to fight. One of the miners opened the door and descended, and the other six humbly followed.

The seven were drawn up in line across the road, and while the robber held his shooter on the line he coolly observed to his partner:

"Now, William, you remove the weapons from the coach and then search these gentlemen."

As William obeyed every victim was ordered to hold his hands above his head, and whatever plunder was taken from his pocket was dropped into William's hat. Four gold watches, two diamond pins, a telescope, a diamond ring, a gold badge and $1,200 in cash, changed hands in ten minutes. Not a man had a word to say. The driver of the coach did not leave his seat and was not interfered with. When the last man had been plundered, the genteel Dick Turpin kindly observed:

"You are the most decent set of men I ever robbed, and if times weren't so blasted hard, I'd make each of you a present of $10. Now then, climb back to your places and the coach will go on."

The crowd 'clumb,' and the vehicle resumed its journey. Not a weapon, or a timepiece, or a dollar had been saved. Seven well-armed men had been cleaned out by two and not a shot fired or a wound given. Each man took his seat without a word. Mile after mile was passed in silence, and finally the seventh man, the one who might fight on a pinch, but didn't plaintively suggested:

"Can't some of you gentlemen think of a few remarks which would be appropriate to the occasion?"

No one could and the silence was renewed.

To Give Pine an Oak Color.

Wash the wood carefully in a solution of copperas dissolved in strong lye, in the proportion of a pound of copperas to a gallon of lye; when the wood is dry, after being thus thoroughly saturated with this wash, oil it, and it will look fresh and nice for a year or two, when it can be restrained and again oiled. Often, when not subjected to hard usage, the color will remain undimmed for several years, only requiring to be oiled occasionally. The color may be put on with a short-bristled brush, or, the hands being protected with thick buckskin gloves, the wash may be applied with a cloth, which will saturate the wood more evenly. It will blister the hands if they are not well protected.

Circumstantial Evidence.

I have heard some very extraordinary cases of murder tried. I remember, in one where I was counsel, for a long time the evidence did not appear to touch the prisoner at all, and he looked about him with the most perfect unconcern, seeming to think himself quite safe.
At last the surgeon was called, who stated that the deceased had been killed by a shot (a gunshot) in the head, and he produced the matted hair and stuff cut from and taken out of the wound. It was all hardened with blood. A basin of warm water was brought into Court, and as the blood was gradually softened a piece of printed paper appeared—the wadding of the gun, which proved to be half of a ballad; the other half had been found in the man's pocket when he was taken.— He was hanged.—Lord Esher's Note Book.—From the National Intelligencer, of August 24th, 1844.

Editors' Trouble.

If an editor omits anything he is lazy; if he speaks of anything as it is, he is mad; if he smooths down the rough places, he is bribed; if he calls things by their proper name, he is unfit for the position of editor; if he does not furnish his readers with jokes, he is stupid; if he does, he is a rattle head, lacking stability; if he condemns the wrong, he is a good fellow, but lacks discretion; if he lets wrongs and injuries go unmentioned, he is a coward; if he indulges in personalities, he is a blackguard; if he does not, his paper is insipid. In short, if he edits a paper properly, and sticks to truth and facts, he is a fool and doesn't know how to edit a paper half as well as his readers could.

Umbrella Language.

To place your umbrella in a rack indicates that it is about to change owners. An umbrella carried over the woman, the man getting nothing but the drippings of the rain signifies courtship. When the man has the umbrella and the woman the drippings, it indicates marriage.— To carry it at right angles under your arm signifies that an eye it lost by the man who follows you.— To put a cotton umbrella by the side of a nice silk one signifies "exchange is no robbery." To lend an umbrella indicates "I am a fool." To carry an open umbrella just high enough to tear out men's eyes and knack off men's hats signifies, "I am a woman."

Liquid or Dry.

Some people prefer to purchase medicines in the dry state so that they can see for themselves that they are purely vegetable. Others have not the time or desire to prepare the medicine, and wish it already to use.

To accommodate each class the proprietors of Kidney-Wort now offer that well known remedy in both Liquid and Dry forms.

Sold by Druggists everywhere.— Truth.

WHEN a member in the course of a very long speech yesterday called for a glass of water, a member sitting near exclaimed, sotto voce, to his neighbors, "This is all contrary to the laws of mechanics—a windmill running by water."

The Prevention of Sunstroke.

The following hints for the prevention of sunstroke are given by Dr. Edward C. Mann, of New York, in an article upon this subject in one of the medical journals: "To avoid sunstroke, exercise, in excessively hot weather should be very moderate; the clothing should be thin and loose, and an abundance of cold water should be drunk. Workmen and soldiers should understand that as soon as they cease to perspire, while working or marching in the hot sun, they are in danger of sunstroke, and they should immediately drink water freely and copiously to afford matter for entaneous transpiration, and also keep the skin and clothing wet with water. Impending sunstroke may often be warded off by these simple measures. Besides the cessation of perspiration, the pupils are apt to be contracted, and there is great frequency of micturition, there is marked exhaustion, with a weak pulse, resulting from the cold water application, we should administer stimulants. The free use of water, however, both externally and internally, by those exposed to the direct rays of the sun, is the best prophylactic against sunstroke, and laborers or soldiers, and others who adopt this measure washing their hands and faces, as well as drinking copiously of water every time they come within reach of it, will generally enjoy perfect immunity from sunstroke. Straw hats should be worn, ventilated at the top, and the crowns of the hat filled with green leaves or wet sponges. It is better to wear thin flannel shirts, in order not to check perspiration. We may expose ourselves for a long time in the hot sun, and work or sleep in a heated room, and enjoy perfect immunity from sunstroke if we keep our skin and clothing wet with water."

It is now a question in England whether Lord Beaconsfield died a Christian or a Jew. Sir Nathaniel Rochechild, one of Lord Beaconsfield's executors, is said to be in possession of the fact, that before his death Disraeli returned to the faith of his forefathers. His death-bed, owing to the wonderful absence of all religious influences or allusions, or any reference to the world into which he was going, might be called Pagan.

Colic in Horses.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune says that for colic in horses he has used for years, and never known it to fail, the following preparation: One tablespoonful black pepper in one pint of milk, and drench; it will afford immediate relief.

A new puzzle is to find the letter "M" three times on the legal tender silver dollar. To a great many persons it will prove a great deal harder puzzle to find the dollar itself.

It is never too late to mend or to worry, says a certain writer. But if you marry a woman who says "Mend I can't" you may be a men-

The Scientific American for June 25th, contains a cut of a velocipede carriage, it is so contrived that the rider sits in a easy chair over the front axle, there is a place for light baggage in the rear, and over-head a canopy. It looks very enticing, and we wish we had one, to go and come as we please. It is a German invention.

We tender our acknowledgments to the Brethren of the Press, for the very kind and flattering terms where with they have noticed the new departure of the EMMITSBURG CHRONICLE. To reproduce them in detail would occupy too much space, and we are not inclined to be discriminating, where, as with one voice the most kind and encouraging good wishes are extended to us.

DURING Monday's storm the fruit and vegetable packing-house of Chas. P. Newman, on the Western Maryland Railroad, not far from Oakland, was struck by lightning. Three girls who were shelling peas in the place were knocked senseless by the shock, but were not badly injured. Little damage was done to the building.

ADVICES is cheap,—dreadfully cheap.—But we must be true to our instincts of humanity and tell our suffering friends to use St. Jacobs Oil, and surprise their rheumatism and themselves also at the result. J. D. L. Harvey, Esq., of Chicago, says: I would be recreant to my duty to those afflicted, did I not raise my voice in its praise.—St. Louis Chronicle.

THE Hagerstown (Md.) correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, says: The grasshopper plague is beginning to be a subject of serious consideration to the farmers of this county. In myriads they are appearing along the base of the state hills east of the Conococheague, where they are devouring as they go, and traveling eastward and westward from this point. A number of farmers in this region have had not only their crops of wheat destroyed, but their clover-pasture fields have been laid bare, and in consequence are disposing of all stock not actually needed. The wheat on prime lands is thought to be too far advanced to be subjected to serious depredations in this region, from this new enemy of the agriculturist.

The July number of the Editor's begins a new volume, and is embellished with a very beautiful steel engraving, entitled "Opheleia." As regards the literary contents the number is unusually rich, containing about twenty-five articles, many of them of first-rate interest and importance. As none, but the works of authors of acknowledged merit are ever selected to fill the pages of this admirable Magazine, the reader is sure of a literary treat in every number published.—In an age and a country so filled with trashy literature, one can hardly appreciate too highly, the dignified and instructive entertainment which this periodical affords. Published by E. R. Pelton, 25 Bond street, N. Y. Terms, $5 per year; single copy, 45 cents; Trial subscription for three months, $1.

New Windsor College. This college has just closed its annual commencement, occupying the past week with interesting and attractive exercises. Emmitsburg was ably represented by the Misses Horner. Every thing was a success from Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. J. T. Smith D. D. of Baltimore to conferring of gold medals and degrees, and the yearly announcement by the President. Particular mention is due to one or two parts taken by the students of this place, viz, an Instrumental Duet—Woodland Echoes by Misses Gelbert and Mollie Harner, was very fine and loudly appreciated, and in the comedy—Modern Antiques Miss Lu Horner took and well sustained the part entitled "Mrs. Louce" the young ladies carriage and stage manner were excellent calling forth much deserved praise, both students and instructors seemed to be very happy and the feeling as it was manifested during commencement was most excellent.

Largest Book Published. The edition of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary recently issued, in the quantity of matter it contains, is believed to be the largest volume published. It will surprise many readers to know that it contains eight times the amount or matter contained in the Bible, being sufficient to make 75 12mo. volumes that usually sell for $1.25 each! Its vocabulary comprises over 118,000 words, (4600 of which have recently been added.) It has a new Biographical Dictionary, giving brief important facts concerning 9,700 noted persons. There is a Memoir of Noah Webster, a brief history of the English language, Principles of Pronunciation, Lists of 4,000 Scripture Proper Names, 10,000 Geographical Names, 700 common English Christian Names, several pages of Proverbs, &c., a vocabulary of Names of Noted Fictitious Persons and Places, and many other valuable features,—all of which, in a volume of 1,928 pages, embellished with 3,000 Engravings, go to make up a great store-house of useful knowledge.

COMMENCEMENT DAY!

MT. SAINT MARY'S EMMITSBURG, MD.

The Seventy-Third Annual Commencement of this venerable institution of piety and learning, was held last Wednesday, before one of the most select and representative audiences ever gathered within its classic walls. Added to the wonderful affection, which inseparably unites all mountaineers to their Alma Mater, was the fact that the institution of their pride had lately passed through a trying ordeal, and that it was now more than ever in need of their generous support. This fact naturally awakened the keenest interest in the hearts of her countless sons, many of whom came to give their counsel and material aid. They also wished to show their unbounded admiration for the men who generously volunteered to come to preside over the college, and extricate it from all its difficulties—the energetic and able Rev. Wm. Byrne, V. G.

On Monday at noon visitors began to come in, and from that hour until the close of the exercises every train brought its quota to swell the grand assemblage.

His grace Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore, occupied the main seat on the stage, above which were hung the portraits of Bishop Dubois and Archbishops Purcell and Hughes. About the archbishop were grouped Right Rev. Michael A. Corrigan, D. D., archbishop coadjutor to Cardinal McCloskey and archbishop of Petra; Rt. Rev. Henry W. Elder, D. D., bishop coadjutor to Archbishop Purcell; Rt. Rev. John A. Watterson, D. D., bishop of Columbus, formerly president of the College; Rt. Rev. F. Silas Chataud, D. D., bishop of Vincennes, Ind.; Rt. Rev. John Loughlin, D. D., bishop of Brooklyn; Rt. Rev. J. F. Shanahan, D. D., bishop of Harrisburg; Rt. Rev. Richard Gilmore, D. D., bishop of Cleveland; and Bishop Conroy, formerly bishop of Albany; also, Rev. Wm. Byrne, V. G., president of the college; Rev. Edward Saurin, of Loyola College, Baltimore, and Rev. Thomas S. Lee, Cathedral, Baltimore. Besides this brilliant array of prelates, dressed in the cardinal robes, there were present in the hall the following clergy: Revs. C. B. O'Reilly, Harry McDowell, Father Cody, James Kelly, J. Griffin, New York; N. Walker Coughney, E. A. McGurk, Baltimore; Edward Terry, B. McLaughlin, Jas. E. Duffy, Albany; F. X. Fallon, George Kelly, Wm. Dollard, Wilmington; Charles Gallagher, Father Cummins, Jno. McCullough, Brooklyn; J. P. McCafferty, Mobile, Ala.; T. F. Grogan, Chicago; John Larkin, Limerick, Ireland; Edward Martin, Hartford, Conn.; Wm. F. Cook, Philadelphia, John Mackey, Cincinnati; James Dunn, Meadville, Pa.; Thomas J. Fitzgerald, vice president of the College; Massinus Casini, Thos. J. Keelan, Brother Azarias, president of Rock Hill College; A. L. McMullen, professors; al-o-Mr. C. H. Jourdan, Joseph Black, Ernest Lagarde, Jas. D. Hickey, Chas. A. Leloup, members of the faculty and others. The graduates occupied seats on the stage. There were present besides those already mentioned the following lay alumni: Thomas J. McTigue, Thomas J. Maloney, Alfred V. D. Watterson, Pittsburgh; Michael J. Roche, Frank Coughney, Richard J. Malone, John and William Holloway, Baltimore; Samuel Attick, Richard Kelly, Lancaster, Pa.; Robt. T. Kelly, New Orleans; William Walsh, Jr., Cumberland; John Markriter, Washington, D. C.; Henry T. Coleman, James Wilcox, Philadelphia; William McSherry, Littlestown, Pa.; Dr. Edward McSherry, Frederick; Captain James McSherry, receiver of the College; Outerbridge Horsey and Vincent Sebald, Frederick, Md., and others.

The weather was all that could be desired, and therefore offered every opportunity to the guests to stroll through the historic walks around the college. It was very pleasing to notice the joy pictured on every countenance at being allowed to visit his old Mountain Home, as each nook and launt recalled volumes of happy association. It was truly a gala day, the most glorious and eventful in the long history of the institution. Everything was done to accommodate the guests, yet we know no one will take umbrage when we say that many of the old friends of the institution missed the kind and genial Father McCloskey.

The spacious hall was tastefully decorated with wreaths and festoons of unique devices. From the walls and pillars proudly floated beautiful banners, on which were emblazoned the names of the bishops and archbishops, that have gone forth from what is justly called the "nursery of bishops." We would gladly give place to their names did we not know, that they are household words in every catholic family.

At 8 o'clock the doors were thrown open, and soon the large hall was crowded to its utmost capacity. The students of the college, over one hundred in number, took their places on either side of the platform. The graduating class occupied seats on the platform.

The clergy, over thirty in number, then entered, preceded by the seminarians. Then came the Archbishops and bishops who came to lend their support and encouragement to their old mountain home. As these great dignitaries of the church entered, attired in full pontificals, the applause was deafening, and even the reporters shrank in the enthusiasm.

The gentleman of the class of '82 acted as ushers, and the smiles passing over the faces of the audience showed how satisfactorily they discharged this important duty.

After the orchestra, under the direction of the famous Dr. Dielman, had discoursed some inspiring music, the president of the college, the very Rev. Wm. Byrne, arose and made a few introductory remarks, saying that classes would be resumed next September, as the uninterrupted career of the college's usefulness had been secured. He said it was preposterous to think for a moment, that any difficulties should seem insurmountable to an institution such as Mt. St. Mary's, so strong in the befriend of her distinguished sons. He wished all parties to rest confident of these facts, and the rounds of applause that greeted his earnest remarks showed how his words found a responsive echo in the hearts of his audience. After these speeches were made by the graduates. R. O. Deppen, Louisville, Ky., made a "Plea for Music," "Royal and Republican France" was treated by Allan St. John Bowie, of San Francisco, Cal.; "The Middle Ages" was reviewed by J. M. Jarboe, Upper Marlboro, Md.; J. Dunn, Savannah, Ga., spoke on the "Basis of Government," and John E. Malone, Lancaster, Pa., on "Ireland during the last 80 years." The subjects chosen were of a very practical character, and the young gentlemen seemed to have a creditable knowledge of the subjects discussed. Speeches were also prepared by C. B. Bayne, on Moral Courage and Jas. F. Smith on the Practical and Emotional, but were omitted for want of time. After another musical treat, the audience had a recess for half an hour, when the beautiful college terraces were all aglow with beauty and enthusiasm. Every now and then cheers were given for a passing bishop or priest.

Recess over, all returned to the Hall to witness the conferring of honors and distribution of premiums. The honors of the college for general proficiency were awarded as follows: In the first class the gold medal to Jas. F. Smith, Easton, Pa., 2d class, William G. Greenwell, St. Mary's Co., Md.; 3rd class, Daniel Quinn, Yellow Springs, Ohio; 4th class, Romaldo Echeverria, Plainfield, N. J. In the Preparatory Department as follows: the silver medal in the first class to Francis H. McHugh, Albany, N. Y.; 2nd class to Basil J. Shorb, Littlestown, Pa. In the Junior Department, the honors were awarded as follows: 1st class, the silver medal to Haldeman J. O'Connor, Harrisburg, Pa.; 2nd class to Matthew Wilcox of Lawrenceburg, Va. Then followed the distribution of premiums, in which every one seemed to be perfectly satisfied with what he had received. It was a common remark that the prizes were much more valuable than those given in years past.

The medals were kindly contributed by his Eminence Cardinal McCloskey, Bishops Elder and Watterson Rev. H. C. McDowell, Gen. Jas. M. Cole, L. D. C. Hon. John Lee Carroll, L. D. Dr. Joseph Corrigan and Chas. B. Roberts, Esq. After the distribution there was an able address by Archbishop Gibbons, which the want of space obliges us reluctantly to omit.

Then came the recess, and at 1 o'clock the audience again assembled. Then degrees were conferred as follows: Doctor of Philosophy on Prof. Jos. Black, College; the degree of Master of Arts on Rev. C. B. O'Reilly, New York; Rev. John S. Singleton, Cincinnati, and Messrs. John P. McGrath, Malanoy City, Pa.; W. A. Cunningham, Pittsburg; Thomas L. Kelly, Providence, R. I.; William E. Walsh, Cumberland, Md.; John J. Markriter, Washington, D. C.; John Doran, Providence, R. I.; Robert E. Kelly, New Orleans; Michael J. Roche, Baltimore. The degree of Bachelor of Arts was conferred on A. St. John Bowie, San Francisco, Cal.; Charles B. Bayne, New Orleans; Matthew F. Dunn, Savannah, Ga.; James M. Jarboe, Upper Marlboro, Md.; Bernard J. Duffy, New York; Rudolph O. Deppen, Louisville, Ky.; John A. Malone, Lancaster, Pa.; James F. Smith, Easton, Pa.; Francis V. King Leonardtown, Md.; Jno B. McGinty, New Orleans; Wm. Murphy, Elizabeth, New Jersey, and John P. Judge, Philadelphia.

After the conferring of degrees, the graduates were addressed by Bishop Elder. In a few fitting words he exhorted them to abide by the efficient training they had received, and thus show themselves "worthy sons of worthy sires."

Interesting as the performances had been, the event of the day now followed. It was the conferring on very Rev. Wm. Byrne the degree of Doctor of Divinity, by Rev. Edward Sourin, S. J., in the name of the faculty of Georgetown University.

B. J. Duffy of New York City, then delivered the Valedictory, which was a neat production. In the course of his remarks, he paid a glowing tribute to the humble and unpretending vice-president, Rev. Thos J. Fitzgerald, who when others had fled, bravely stood at his post, and thus saved the college from irreparable loss. This allusion fairly brought down the house, the applause lasting several seconds.

Thus closed the interesting exercises, when all save the members of the Alumni Association set out for their respective homes. At the conclusion of the programme, the Alumni held their regular annual meeting in the Exhibition Hall, Henry T. Coleman, Esq., in the chair, and Rev. Thos. F. Gambon, A. M., Secy. We learned that the officers of last year were reelected by acclamation; also that it was resolved to erect a monument to the memory of the late Dr. McCloskey.

After other important business they all repaired to the grand Dining Hall, where a fine repast had been prepared. Dinner over, Rt. Rev. Silas F. Chataud, of Vincennes, Ind., addressed the Alumni in behalf of the College. He made an earnest appeal to them, setting out the magnitude of the work they were engaged in, and urging them to do their duty under the present troubles. Then the president, Dr. Byrne, read the amount of contributions, reaching nearly $35,000, after this subscriptions amounting to $15,000 or $20,000 were taken up. All seem to have entered fully into the spirit of the meeting, as some of the subscriptions were handsome amounts. After a few toasts had been attended to, all left the hall evidently elated over all that had transpired, and over the bright hopes of the Institutions' secured perpetuity.

DISTRIBUTION

ST. JOSEPH'S ACADEMY, EMMITSBURG, MD., JUNE 23rd, 1881.

Distribution Day at this well known institution never fails to call out a most select and appreciative audience, and the attendance at the seventy-second Annual Distribution was no exception to the rule. At an early hour on Thursday morning the beautiful Corvet walks were thronged with visitors, who had come from all parts to show their admiration for an institution, that for nearly three quarters of a century has done so valiant, faithful service in the cause of female education.

The proverbial system and good order prevailed; every one was most courteously received by the kind sisters and their efficient corps of assistants. Among the visitors were his Grace the Archbishop of Baltimore, Archbishop Corrigan, and Bishops Elder, Gilmore, Controy, Shanahan, Chataud and Watterson. In addition to these were many friends, among whom we noticed the very Rev. Dr. Byrne, president of Mt. St. Mary's, and Revs. Thos J. Fitzgerald, H. McDowell, C. B. O'Reilly, C. White, John H. Crogan, Jas. Dunn, Edward Sourin, S. J., and many others too numerous to mention.

The programme consisted of the conferring of "Academic Honors," "Badges of Excellence" and premiums, pleasantly interspersed with rare selections in vocal and instrumental music. We say every thing of the musical character of the programme, when we say that it was under the direction of the veteran Dr. Dielman, of Mt. St. Mary's College. As the young ladies filed into the beautiful exhibition hall from rooms on either side of the platform, they presented a dazzling array of beauty. Their dress and carriage bespoke that true lady-like modesty which their teachers are so eminently successful in inculcating.

The coronation ceremony was truly a grand one, where five young ladies, in testimony of having creditably completed their course were "crowned" by His Grace Archbishop Gibbons, who presided at the exercises. They also received beautiful gold medals in reward for their excellence. The names of these young ladies who had just passed from Girlhood to Womanhood are Misses E. H. Kelley, New Orleans; S. O'Gorman, Newark; M. Stewart, Lancaster; L. R. Baker, New Windsor; and M. L. Followell, New Orleans.

The performances on the piano and harp reflected great credit alike on the performers and their instructors. "Coronation ode," a chorus, "Laudate," a quartette, and the "Grand Chorus," were received with great appreciation. "Farewell to St. Josephs, solo and chorus, was beautifully and truly interpreted. We might be tempted to make individual mention, but where all did so well, it would seem invidious to particu larize.

"The Farewell to St. Josephs," a poem by Miss S. O'Gorman, was spoken of in terms of unqualified praise. In wealth of imagery, vivacity of description, truthfulness of nature and chasteness of language it would certainly do honor to writers of far greater pretensions.

At the conclusion of the exercises, Archbishop Gibbons addressed the pupils, expressing his gratification at having seen so many evidences of their faithful application, amiable deportment, and flattering progress. He also paid a well merited tribute to the good sisters, who without any hope of earthly remuneration, gave themselves entirely to the cause of education. Next Archbishop Carrigan addressed them, and spoke almost to the same purport.

Then closed the pleasant exercises, and the fair young ladies went out to receive the hearty congratulations of their parents and friends.

HOW Much Will Keep a Horse. A horse weighing from ten to twelve hundred pounds will eat about six tons of hay, or its equivalent, in a year.

Keep Stock in Good Condition. That there is no better preservative against the attack of many diseases both in animals and plants, than such a mode of feeding and care as produces what is generally understood by the phrase "good condition."

Feeding Young Chickens. Give the young chickens a weekly feed of chopped onions. It helps to keep them healthy. A medium-sized onion minced very fine is enough for a brood.

Destroying Curculios. Allow me to say to the many readers of your very valuable paper, that if they will place a hen and small chickens under their plum trees soon after the fruit begins to set, and jar the trees two or three times a day, (say morning, noon, and night), they can raise plums.

Grooming a Horse. There is no mystery about it—Feed him on any nutritious food, keep his skin clean, brush and rub the hair thoroughly, and often; keep him in a warm, comfortable stable, and in unusually cold weather blanket him.

Bread Omelet. One teacup bread crumbs, one of sweet milk, let the milk come to the boiling point, pour it over the crumbs, let it stand a few minutes, then take six eggs, break in a dish, stir until well mixed (not beat), pour the eggs into the milk and crumbs, mix well, season to taste with salt and pepper; now pour the mixture into a hot skillet in which a large tablespoon of butter has been melted, let it fry slowly, out in squares and turn, fry to a delicate brown, serve at once.

Humorous.

THE time has arrived for cream-ating the girls. THERE is no secret nook where a man may hide from his fate.

A MAN must be a hardened sinner when he "lies" at the point of death WHEN is a lady's hair like news? When it is found in the morning papers.

AN old tin kettle may not point a moral, but we have often known it to adorn a tail.

THE place for spies—Pekem. The best end—the dividend. Sure to succeed—the canary.

WHY is the earth like a black-board? Because the children of men multiply on the face of it.

POSTAGE stamps are great travelers, and yet the majority of them are found sticking in some corner.

LET the poor sufferers from female complaints take courage and rejoice that a painless remedy has been found. We refer to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is prepared at 238 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., Send to Mrs. Pinkham for pamphlets.

A GENTLEMAN complained to old Banister that some malicious person cut off his horse's tail, which, as he meant to sell him, would be a great drawback. "Then," said Charles, "you must sell him wholesale."

THE little ones will keep on saying things. Six years old Mabel is industriously engaged in "teaching out" a preserve jar which her mother had just emptied. Four year old Bobby looks at her for a while and then blurts out: "Say Sis? Don't you wish you could turn it inside out, so you could lick it?"

THE Boston Post tells of a case of native politeness. A man had just taken his seat in a street car, in fact he had got fairly down, when a lady entered. He immediately rose—"Don't rise, sir; I beg of you don't," she said. "Good heavens, ma'am," he yelled, "I must! There's a pin three inches long set up at that seat!"

PARENTAL experiment: John Van Ness, a Galveston father, wanted to test the affection of his son, so he said to him: "You have been a very good boy, and now I'll give you your choice. Which would you prefer, my esteem or $5?" The boy took the $5 as if it had been the measles, remarking that it was impossible for his father to have much esteem for a boy who failed to take advantage of his opportunities.

A LIQUOR dealer who kept a small farm which was much infested by rattlesnakes asked the sunbrowned agriculturist who worked it for him if he wasn't afraid of being bitten. "Waal," drawled the brawny tiller of the soil, "the critters used to waltz up to me quite chipper wunst, but I've been drinking your whiskey 'goin' on nine year now, boss, and when they see me comin' they just kiver their noses with their tails and wheel off lively."

Summary of News.

THE Pennsylvania Legislature adjourned sine die at noon on Friday. THE Civil Service Reform Association, of Baltimore, met last week and were fully organized. Mr. Jas. Hall Pleasants was elected president.

THE centennial anniversary of the birth of George Stephenson, the distinguished engineer, was celebrated in England Tuesday the 9th inst. At his birthplace, near Newcastle, there was a procession of locomotives, in which nearly every railway in the United Kingdom was represented by its most powerful engine.

THE thread for the glass cloth, now made at Pittsburgh, is drawn out of a molten bar by means of a rapidly revolving wheel at the rate of 2,000 yards a minute. The weaving is done on looms, about the same as with silk. The coloring is done with minerals when the glass is originally melted.

A FEMALE rider of considerable notoriety in Southern Indiana has, through her agent, A. S. Surt, of Indianapolis, issued a challenge to compete with any equestrienne in the world, in saddle, a distance of twenty miles, with relays of twenty horses. Ida Wray is the name of the lady, and the challenge for a stake of $2,000 has been forwarded to England, and will probably be accepted by some celebrity as a steeplechase rider, provided her expenses to this country are paid.

MISS BLANDING ELTING, a bouncing country girl, living near Port Jarvis, N. Y., captured a burglar, recently, after a desperate struggle. Miss Elting was at the barn. Hearing the dog barking at the house, she went out and discovered a man on the roof. She ordered him down, and when he came she collared him. The burglar fought and struggled desperately, and tried to throw Miss Elting into the Never-sink river. She finally threw him down, and placing her knees on him, held him until the help summoned by her cries arrived.

MRS. OELLIE INGRAM, of Battle Creek, Michigan, who since last October has been in bed unable to take either food or water, is now thirty-six years old and has been twice married, her present husband being a teamster. On October 11th, 1880, while in perfect health, she had a bad tooth extracted, and the operation caused a severe shock to her nervous system. Ever since that time she has had a severe pain in the stomach, accompanied by constant nausea. Not a morsel of food has passed her lips since that time, but her life has been sustained by baths of beef tea and milk, with an occasional bath of alcohol to keep the pores open.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge:

An Encyclopedia in 20 Vols., over 16,000 pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for $10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint entire of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of Chambers's Encyclopedia, with about 40 per cent of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopedia in the field.

Special Volumes in other style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price. Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the American Book Exchange: I. Publish only books of real value. II. Work upon the basis of present or prospective sales, about one-half of what it was a few years ago. III. Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 per cent commission commonly allowed to dealers. IV. The cost of books when made to order at a time that a fraction of the cost when made for a dealer. V. Use post-free paper, etc. do careful printing and strong, good binding, but avoid all "made-to-order" and heavily bound up in sponge paper and glue, and which greatly add to their cost but do not add to their value. VI. To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $2 and an enemy.
