

FOUNDER.

A disease that is far too common in horses is caused most frequently by driving or working the animal till he is overheated and more or less exhausted, and then allowing him to cool off suddenly without rubbing...

A Texas man was lynched for riding a mule on Sunday. It was another man's mule by the way. A Californian who tied one end of a rope around his waist and lassoed a cow with the other, reports that "at first he thought that he had the cow, but at the end of the first half mile he became convinced that the cow had him."

"Is this my train?" asked a traveler at the Grand Central Depot of a longer. "I don't know," was the reply. "I see it's got the name of some railroad company on the side, and expect it belongs to them. Have you lost a train anywhere?"

"Well, neighbor Simmons, how much shall we put you down for to get a chandelier for our church?" Neighbor S.—"Nothing. What do we want a chandelier for? We haven't got anybody in the parish who could play on it after we get it."

A boy came home from school much excited, and told his father that he believed all human beings were descended from apes, which made the old man so mad that he replied angrily, "That may be the case with you, but it ain't with me. I can tell you that, now."

A VERY good bit was made a day or two after the election by one of the defeated candidates. A gentleman approached him with, "Well, Mr. —, how do you feel?" "Well," said he, "I feel, I suppose, pretty much as Lazarus did." "As Lazarus did?" said the first speaker. "How was that?" "Why," said he, "Lazarus was licked by dogs and so was I."

"Gentlemen," says the new Mayor of the village, who is presiding over the sessions of the Council for the first time—"gentlemen, we have met to take action concerning the proposed new bridge across Thumb-nail Creek. Three courses present themselves—ahem! First—Shall we build the bridge? Secondly—Shall we not build the bridge? Thirdly—Shall we do neither the one nor the other?"

"You must admit, John Webster, that you stole those pullets," said the Galveston judge to the culprit. "Jedge," responded Jim, "I don't really believe I stole dem chickens. In de first place, Jedge, nobody saw me take 'em. In de next place, dey could not be found on my premises, because I had done hid dem chickens under de floor. I can't help believing, Jedge, dat I'm innocent as a lamb."

A great many curious and funny stories are told of good Mather Byles, who could not repress his comicalities, and who was jocose in spite of his Puritanism. One cold winter day he was mailing list on his door. A parishioner said, "Doctor, don't you know that the wind bloweth where it listeth?" "Yes," was the quick reply, "and I know every man of common sense listeth where soever the wind bloweth."

A funny story is told of Belva Lockwood, the female lawyer of Washington. A witty fellow was once her opposing counsel, and when he desired to refer to the Hon. Belva was perplexed. He couldn't say "my brother," as he did when speaking of the lawyers who wore pants. He didn't like to say "my sister," for he sent a smile over the room by referring to Belva as "my sister-in-law," but she certainly looked daggers at him.
