ONE YEAR AGO.
What stars have faded from our sky!
What hopes unfolded but to die!
What dreams so fondly pondered o'er
Forever lost the hues they wore!
While like a death bell, and slow,
Tolls through the soul "one year ago!"

Where is the face we loved to greet,
The form that filled the fireside seat,
The gentle smile, the winning way,
That blessed our life-path day by day?
Where fled those accents, soft and low,
That filled our hearts "one year ago?"

Vacant is many a fireside chair,
The smile that won no longer there;
From door and hall, from porch and lawn
The echoes of dear voices gone;
And we who linger only know
How much was lost "one year ago!"

Over their graves the marble white
Keeps silent guard by day and night;
Calmly they sleep, nor heed the tread
Of footsteps near their lowly bed;
Then pulseless breasts no longer know
The pangs they felt "one year ago!"

And would we call them back again,
To cares and fears, and toil and pain,
They who, we hope, forevermore
Are safe upon the farther shore,
Who doubt and weakness never knew,
That wrung their hearts "one year ago?"

For us is left, at most, some years,
A few more hopes, griefs, smiles and tears
Then we the sloping path shall tread,
Where angel-guarded, they have led,
To that far world we too shall go,
Whither they passed, "one year ago."

THE PALMS.

Linnaeus has well called the tall and crested palm trees "the princess of the vegetable world," for wherever they bloom they enrich the landscape with their grace and majesty. The most perfect of the family have a tall cylindrical stem, which shoots upward from the earth, without knot or blemish, like an Ionic column; springing to an immense height, and yet so symmetrical that its slenderness conveys no idea of feebleness. The summit bears a crown of emerald-green plumes, like a diadem of gigantic ostrich feathers. These are frequently twenty feet long, droop slightly at the ends, and rustle musically in the breeze.

In the arid desert it forms an object of peculiar beauty, as it soars, erect and graceful, near some well come spring of living waters, a landmark to the wayworn traveller. But to see it in all its glory you should visit the palm-groves of tropical America or Polynesia, and wander enchanted in their grateful shades. Under the natural screen which their thick green feathery branches supply, the orange and the lemon, the pomegranate, the olive, the almond, and the vine flourish in wild luxuriance, and yield an abundance of luscious fruit. And, while the eye is never weary of gazing on the glorious blossoms which brighten and adorn the scene, the ear is also ravished with the sweet clear melody of numerous birds, attracted to the palm grove by its cool shadows, its fruits, and its crystal springs.

In Ceylon and Malabar one of the principal palms is the remarkable talipot, or umbrella palm, sometimes called the great fan-palm, which frequently reaches a height of a hundred feet. It is straight as a giant's spear, five feet in circumference at the foot, and tapers toward the summit, where it terminates in a magnificent crown of enormous plaited leaves. Each leaf, near the outer margin, is divided into numerous segments, and united to the trunk by spiny leaf stalks. It usually measures about eighteen feet in length, exclusive of the leaf stalk, and about fourteen feet in breadth, so that a single leaf will form an excellent canopy for a score of men.

This palm is employed for many important purposes, such as roofing houses or making tents. The Singapore noble, on state occasions, is always followed by an attendant, bearing above his head a richly ornamented talipot leaf, which can be folded up, like a fan, into a roll of the thickness of a man's arm, and is wonderfully light. In Malabar the leaves are used as a substitute for paper, after a preliminary process of boiling, drying, dampening, rubbing and pressing. The oil employed in coloring the writing preserves them from insects, but changes with age, so that a Singapore determines the date of a book by carefully smelling of it.

All the palms serve the needs of man. What would become of the wanderer in the deserts of Arabia and Barbary should the date palm suddenly become extinct? Thousands of human beings would inevitably perish for the inhabitants of Fezzan live wholly upon its succulent and delicious fruit for nine months of the year. In Egypt, Arabia and Persia it forms the principal food of the people, and a man's wealth is computed by the number of date-palms he possesses. When dried, the fruit becomes an important and commercial staple. Cakes of dates, pounded and kneaded until solid enough to be cut by a hatchet, supply the provision of the African caravans on their toilsome journey through the wastes of the Sahara.

To the inhabitants of Northern Africa the date is food, comfort, wealth,—nay, life. It is easy to understand the gratitude cherished by the Arab towards the date palm. It thrives in the sandy waste, draws sustenance from brackish water fatal to almost every other plant, preserves its freshness when all around it decays and withers under the rays of an implacable sun, and resists the tempests which bow its flexible crest but cannot tear up its solidly planted roots. Without this tree the nomadic tribes of this region must cease to exist.

What the date palm is to the Arab, the cocoa-palm is to the Polynesian. Originally it would seem to have been a native only of the Indian coasts and South Sea Islands but it is now diffused over all the tropical world. It flourishes best in the neighbourhood of the sea coast, and is the crown and glory of the coral islets which stud the sapphire expanse of the Pacific Ocean. Its cylindrical and slender stem, about two feet in diameter and from sixty to one hundred feet in height, with its crest of green, drooping, pinnated leaves, generally sixteen to twenty feet in number, and from twelve to twenty feet in length, forms a conspicuous ornament of the tropical landscape.

The uses of this tree are manifold, and its valuable properties claim man's gratitude. Its hard, agate-like, polished timber, known as porcupine wood, is prized by the cabinet-maker; the hard nut which encloses its fruit the savage carves into handsome bowls and goblets; the milky liquid within has a sweet and delicious flavor, and is very wholesome, refreshing and digestible; the fibrous husk can be woven into sails and cordage, or used for stuffing mats and cushions; the terminal bud, or palm-cabbage, is delicate eating; the central part of the stem, when young, affords a sweet and excellent food; the fermented sap yields the spirituous liquor so well known as arrack; the dried leaves can be employed for thatch; and the nut itself is a popular and justly prized dainty. The cocoa-palm ripens in about six years, and continues productive for seventy or eighty, each tree bearing annually from eighty to one hundred nuts.

It seems odd that the cocoa-nut trees should have such very small flowers, and yet such very large fruit. From a flower not larger than a grain of rice a great fruit will grow, much larger than a man's head; but it takes a whole year for the fruit to grow to that size, ripen and fall to the ground. The larger part of the cocoa palm fruit is a thick husk, while the round hard nut itself is inside of the husk. We must understand, then, that the cocoa nut as it hangs on the tree is at least six or eight times as large as the nut with which we are so familiar. If the fruit is left to ripen on the tree, the husk, which for a long time is green and full of juice, turns a brownish color, gets quite dry, and then falls off. When these great heavy nuts, especially if the husks be yet green and laden with juice, fall from the trees, they come down with great force, and people have been killed, while walking beneath the trees, by the nuts falling on their heads.

The flowers of the cocoa-nuts grow out of a kind of one sided pod, which attains a great length and looks much like a curved sword. Out of a large and thrifty sword twenty or more large nuts will grow.

To us, the nearest land of cocoa-nuts is that of the Bahama Islands. Sir Emerson Tennent, in his most interesting and valuable work on the island of Ceylon, speaks of the Palmyra palm. It is cultivated more or less in every district of Ceylon, but grows in such profusion over the north, and especially in the peninsula of Jaffna, as to form extensive forests, whence its timber is exported for rafters to all parts of the island, as well as to the opposite coast of India.

To the inhabitants of the northern provinces of Ceylon, this invaluable tree is of the same importance as the cocoa-nut palm is to the natives of the south. Its fruit yields them food and oil; its juice palm wine and sugar, and its leaves, besides serving as roofs to their dwellings and fences to their farms, supply them with matting and baskets, with head-dresses and fans, and serve as a substitute for paper in their deeds and writings, and in the sacred books which contain the traditions of their faith.

It has been said, with truth, that a native of Jaffna, if he be contented with ordinary doors and mud walls, may build an entire house, with walls, roof, and covering from the Palmyra palm. From this same tree he may draw his wine, make his oil, kindle his fire, carry his water, store his food, cook his repast, and sweat it if he pleases; in fact, live from day to day dependent on his Palmyra alone. Multitudes so live, and it may be safely asserted that this tree alone furnishes one-fourth the means of subsistence for the population of the northern provinces of this island.

What is here said of the Palmyra palm of Ceylon is true in almost every particular of many other species of palm growing in various countries with the tropics. In a multitude of uses they are exceedingly important to the people of those summer lands. One palm tree, however, must yet be mentioned, as it belongs to our own country, being a natural product of the Southern Atlantic States, and found as far north as North Carolina, and this is the well known palmetto.

In Florida the palmetto is very abundant, growing best in moist, swampy situations, where are found the finest and tallest specimens, some of them attaining a height of more than a hundred feet. It is, of course, of the seashore, where the trees may be seen growing plentifully in the white sand of the beach, just at the very edge of high water.

The palmetto is a very beautiful tree, and is that kind of a palm which has fan-shaped leaves, whilst the cocoa-nut is of that group of palms which have pinnated leaves. The palmetto is perhaps the hardest of all the palms. The visitor in Florida is surprised to see with what indifference it endures the piercing cold northwest winds that sweep over that peninsula in winter; and while frost covers the land, the palmetto cheerily waves its broad fans on high, and smilingly greets the rising sun.

Some Hints to Mothers.

When your daughter performs a task in an ill fashioned manner, always say: "There! I might as well have done it myself in the first place," and then take the work out of her hand and do it your self. This will encourage the girl not to try to do the thing next time she is set about it.

Never permit your son to have any amusement at home. This will induce him to seek it in places where you will not be annoyed by his noise.

There is no place like home. Impress this truth upon children by making home as disagreeable and unlike any other place as possible.

Never neglect the lock on the pantry. Some boys have probably turned out first-class housebreakers, all on account of this judicious treatment in early childhood.

Be gentle and courteous before company; but if you have a temper, let your children have a taste of it as often as convenient. A mother should never practice deception upon her brood.

Talk slightly of your husband to your boys and girls. This will make them respect their father.

Tell your child he shall not do a thing, and then let him tease you into giving your consent. This will teach him what to do on subsequent occasions.

Make promises to your children and then neglect to keep them. This will lead your children not to place too much reliance upon your word, and shield them from many disappointments.

Tell your children they are the worst you ever saw, and they will no doubt endeavor to merit your appreciation. — Boston Transcript.

Bogus Certificates.

It is no vile drugged stuff, pretending to be made of wonderful foreign roots, barks, &c., and puffed up by long bogus certificates of pretended miraculous cures, but a simple, pure, effective medicine, made of well known valuable remedies, that furnishes its own certificate by its cures. We refer to Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines. See "Truths" and "Proverbs," in another column.

A GENTLEMAN went into a Gay street dry goods store yesterday, and asked for ten yards of "naked cambric." The young lady blushed and said: "I guess you mean undressed cambric." "Oh, yes; that's it."

Pleasing an Amateur Musician.
[San Francisco Chronicle.]
"I think," said a well known orchestral leader, "the best joke ever played in this town was on an ambitious amateur pianist when Gottschalk was here. The amateur's father was the owner of a large hall, and offered the use of it to Gottschalk for his benefit. There was to be a place for eight pianos, and the amateur was to play one of the instruments. I was the leader. I thought Gottschalk would have a fit when I told him that the amateur couldn't play three straight notes."

"He is sure to throw us all out," said I, "and ruin the performance." "Gottschalk swore like a major, but 'twas no good. The bills were out and he couldn't go back of his programme, even if the gift of the hall for the night was no consideration to him. At last I hit on an idea that fixed the whole business. The amateur came down to rehearsal and we praised him up until he thought he was to be the star of the night. As soon as he left we took the hammers out of his piano and made it dumb as an oyster. I guess he would never know the difference with seven pianos going at once."

The tuneful convention laughed. "And just as I thought," said the leader, hammering on the table with his glass, "that amateur or his friends never discovered the trick." "No?" "No, sir; he just sailed in and pounded on that piano as if it was the worst enemy he ever had. He was bound to show off among so many good pianists, and hammered on his keyboard until the perspiration nearly blinded him. Now and then I looked at him approvingly to give him fresh courage, and every time that I did he gave the piano a lick that nearly made matchwood of it. His friends all around threw bouquets at him till he looked like a wedding arch, and when it was all over his fond parent fell on his neck in the green room and slipped a check for $250 into his hand. The old man didn't know whether he was standing on his head or his heels, he was so tickled, and the way he set up the wine for the crowd was a custom."

"I never heard an amateur do so well in public," said I, and what's more I meant it, eh? Don't you think I was right?"

Ponder on these Truths.

Torpid kidneys, and constipated bowels, are the great causes of chronic diseases. Kidney-Wort has cured thousands. Try it and you will add one more to their number.

Habitual costiveness afflicts millions of the American people. Kidney Wort will cure it. Kidney-Wort has cured kidney complaints of thirty years standing. Try it.—Exchange.

THE personal column is the place to find advertising absurdities. The ambiguity of the following are hard to match. They are from England: "Missing from Killarney, Jane O'Fogerty, she had in her arms 2 babies and a Guernsey cow, all black, with red hair and tortoise shell combs behind her ears, and large spots all down her back, which squints awfully."

THE cloud which appeared to the prophet Ezekiel carried with it winds and storms, but it was enveloped with a golden circle to teach us that the storms of affliction which happen to God's children are encompassed with brightness and smiling felicity.

ONE can't be too careful of firearms. A boy carried a pistol in his pocket, and one day while he was in swimming the pistol unexpectedly went off. He has no suspicion as to who took it.

"PINS," said little Johnny, "have saved many people's lives." "How so?" asked the puzzled schoolmaster. "By not swallowing them," replied Johnny.

THE HOLLY.

FROM PUNCH.

The holly was full of berry, the winter was hard and white. As white as my girl-wife's face and as hard as our life's long fight. "It will sell all the better," she said, as she kissed me a faint good-bye, And I gathered the scanty rags round her, and went with a tear-dimmed eye.

No fire in the rusted grate; chill cheer for our Christmas Eve! And I left her to wheel out the holly, though bitterly loth to leave. It was brought from the far white woods, near the cottage where Polly was borne; Twenty long miles I had trudged with it only that same bleak morn.

But the shining red berries were thick on it, showing so ruddily warm, That I left just one scarlet spray on her pillow. Her frost-pinched form Shook 'neath the tattered quilt; but she said: "I feel cosy and well, And I never saw holly so fine, Tom; 'twill sell, dear, I'm sure it will sell."

"Holly-ho! Holly-ho! Holly-ho!" Oh! I shouted and smiled with the best, And I chaffed with the jovial chaffers, longing for midnight and rest. Yet the pennies came slowly in; but at last, when the throng had grown thin, There passed me a portly old fellow, wool-swathed to his round red chin.

Was he caught by the gleam of the berries—my face's cold trouble? Who knows? But he turned, and he bought the whole lot. What a laugh to my lips arose! The thought of the glisten of Polly's dark eyes drew me on, hot and swift, Till my scanty breath failed, and I reeled, as the latch I was ready to lift.

And I burst in, singing the strain, "Oh, this life is jolly, most jolly, It is Christmas morning, my girl, and I've sold every bit of our holly, Save the spray on your pillow, my pet. Let me kiss your poor cheeks as red. And I stooped, with my heart at my lips, almost happy—and Polly was dead!"

How a Story Grows.

A farmer once was told that his turnip field had been robbed, and that the robbery had been committed by a poor, inoffensive man, of the name of Palmer, who, many of the people of the village said, had taken away a wagon load of turnips. Farmer Brown, much exasperated by the loss of his turnips, determined to prosecute poor Palmer with all the severity of the law. With this intention he went to Molly Sanders, the washerwoman, who had been busy in spreading the report, to know the whole truth; but Molly denied ever having said anything about a wagon load of turnips. It was but a cart load that Palmer had taken, and Dame Hodson, the huckster, had told her so, over and over again. The farmer, hearing this, went to Dame Hodson, who said that Molly Sanders was always making things worse than they really were; that Palmer had taken only a wheelbarrow full of turnips, and that she had an account from Jenkins, the tailor. Away went the farmer to Jenkins the tailor, who stoutly denied the account altogether; he had only told Dame Hodson that Palmer had pulled up several turnips, but how many he could not tell, for that he did not see himself, but was told it by Tom Slack, the plowman. Wondering where this would end, Farmer Brown next questioned Tom Slack, who in his turn, declared he had never said a word about seeing Palmer pull up several turnips; he had heard say that Palmer had pulled up a turnip, and that Barnes, the barber, was the person who had told him about it. The farmer, almost out of patience at this account, hurried off to Barnes, the barber; who wondered much that people should find pleasure in spreading idle tales which had no truth in them! He assured the farmer all he had said about the matter, while he took off the beard of Tom Slack, was, that for all he knew, Palmer was as likely a man to pull up a turnip as his neighbors.

DIGNITY AND DEMOCRACY.

The following article, which the Messenger credits to the London Spectator, is so full of truth as regards the increasing tendency in this country to ridicule, or entirely set aside, everything in the way of ceremony, as well as social and intellectual distinction, that it ought to be copied into every journal in the land.

"There is one idea of democracy which we observe almost everywhere in the world, Switzerland being perhaps, the only marked exception, and which we believe to be wholly injurious. This is the notion that the world is better—or at all events, that the masses are the better—for the extinction of manners, the abolition of forms, the disregard of reticences, the degradation of methods of procedure intended to impart external dignity to the graver concerns of life. The origin of this impulse is not always bad, being on the continent a misdirected desire for a certain visibleness of equality, and in America and England a wish for reality, as opposed to ceremonial; but its effect in all places is, we are convinced, essentially bad. It is simply just that all men should be equal before the law; most expedient that they should be equally entitled to serve the State; very beneficial that they should be equal in their right to social respect; these are all among the best proved truisms of democracy. But there is nothing gained, either for the happiness of men, or their good order, or their equality, by the contempt for dignity which democrats are so often tempted to display. Much of the failure of Vestries, City Councils, and others municipalities to acquire the confidence of the people is due, not to the absence of ability, for there is plenty of ability for the work to be done, but to the want of self-restraint, arising in the main from the absence of peremptory and binding forms. The very same man would be twice as able in any bank parlor or other committee in which a tacit but peremptory rule or opinion prevented vulgar self assertion. In Courts of Justice, the evil is even more direct. Not only is popular respect for the law—the very first of practical citizen virtues—weakened by the spectacle of vulgarity and disorder in Court, but we are convinced that jurymen and judges become less competent for their functions. The former think less carefully; the latter, like legislators, lose the self-restraint which doubles the value of their thoughts, and which disappears with loss of dignity. We will not go the length of saying we believe that Courts owe much of their efficiency to wigs and gowns, though the democratic dislike of uniformity is, we believe, an error of ignorance, and though the British masses have notoriously a singular awe of a "Red Judge," as compared with any other magistrate; but that the unapproachableness of judges, the atmosphere of reverence which encompasses them in a British or German Court, is favorable to the distribution of true justice—that first interest of democracy—we entertain no doubt.

Look at this Giteau trial. That the prisoner is obtaining as fair a trial as he could obtain in any country, there is no doubt whatever. He has chosen his own counsel. He produces practically any evidence of any kind he pleases, including a great deal which, under any recognized theory, is not evidence at all. He cross-examines at discretion. He calls as witnesses anybody he likes, including the President and the Secretary of State. His jury-men are most attentive. The Court except for one five minutes—allows him unlimited latitude of protest. He appears simply monstrous. And yet, owing solely to the want of dignity in the Court, the whole trial is felt in America, as well as here, to discredit the administration of justice. No awe is created, to operate hereafter against the repetition of the crime. No horror is felt for the position in which Giteau stands. There is no additional confidence in the Court and the Judges, such as should follow a trial for life and death which has, from the nature of the crime, attracted the attention of an entire country. No innocent man has the feeling that he would like to be tried in that Court—that its mere existence is a protection to him. The only feeling excited is either one of contempt, most injurious to the people—who, if they can not create decent Courts, are protanto, unfit to govern—or one of vulgar and demoralizing interest in a contest in which the stake is a human being. The intolerable vulgarity of the proceedings, quite as painfully felt in America as here, destroys the effect of the great trial, just as vulgar jocularly would destroy that of a great religious service, injures the jurymen's reverence for their functions, and in part, at least, overthrows the equanimity of the Judges. The Court is giving Giteau a fair trial, more than a fair trial; but, nevertheless, in the single moment in which the Judge lost himself, and threatened to have the prisoner gagged, he was not in the frame of mind which the community, however regardless of dignity, accepts as impartial. No such scene as this trial should be possible in a democracy, which, if only because its will is irresistible, not limited even by the fears which restrain despots, is bound to insist that its laws be debated, and its trials heard, and its sentences carried out with a gravity, self-restraint, and absence alike of wilfulness or levity even beyond what sovereigns can enforce. We are quite aware that in this special case Americans may be unfairly blamed, the Court being a Court of the District of Columbia, which is an anomaly in the States, is filled with a heterogeneous population, and has exceptionally muddled laws—muddled by the conflict of the ideas of the North and the South—but still, Congress is absolute legislator for the District; and no such trial, so undignified in all its elements—save the shadow thrown from the scaffold in the background—should have been possible. The ultimate cause of the mischief we maintain, that cardinal blunder of democracy that it is the more vigorous, the more recognizable to itself, when it does dispense with it. The truth is not so, but is this—that every loss of dignity requires and ultimately receives compensation in a display of force. If the popular officer is not respected, the popular officer is armed. If the Judge is not revered through feeling, he may, and he will at last, secure reverence through force. It is in France and the United States that it is necessary to arm the police—in France with powers, in the United States with revolvers—till resistance, justified or otherwise, becomes too dangerous to be possible. The natural consequence of the loss of Judge's dignity is the gag, and that is not the outcome by which democracy—still on its trial, though it does not believe that—can ultimately be justified.

AWAY WITH IT!

Our system of internal revenue taxation is a creation of the civil war. Before the war we had no such taxes; and they were imposed merely to supply funds for the purpose of carrying on the struggle. It was a good system for the time and the purpose of its creation. But that time has long since passed away. There is no occasion now for such taxation.

Let us abolish the whole system. Why should we perpetuate a product of the civil war, when that war was finished seventeen years ago?—N. Y. Sun.

THE MISSING JEANNETTE CUTTER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Mr. Frelinghuysen, the Secretary of State, has just received the following telegram from our Charge d'Affaires at St. Petersburg:

Danenhauer and five of the crew of the whaleboat arrived at Yakutsk Dec. 17. Comfortably lodged; all wants supplied. Melville and six men expected soon. DeLong and crew of first cutter not found up to Dec. 16, the date of last advices from Boulounga. It is reported that the Jeannette was caught in pack Oct. 1, 1879, and drifted with winds and currents till June last, when it was abandoned. HOFFMAN.

A TERRIBLE rail-road accident occurred on the Hudson River Road, on Friday of last week. One train of cars ran into another and the resulting telescoping had added to it the horrors of a burning wreck in which many lives were lost. The accident was attributed to carelessness—carelessness should meet its just punishment, if the public safety is to be secured. Milins the brakeman, whose negligence was at fault, has since given $5000 bail to answer before the jury.

WISCONSIN is entitled to go up head. Gov. Rusk last week, in surrendering the chair of State, announced that Wisconsin was entirely out of debt, and had a balance of $117,000 in the treasury. Her neighbor, Minnesota, however, has been struggling to repudiate certain railroad bond obligations, and has finally settled them at 50 cents on the dollar.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 17th, '82.

The office hunters and the Cabinet makers are alike considerably off their bearings of late and do not hesitate to manifest their impatience with the president for what they term his procrastination. Mr. Sargent was to have been snugly located in the Interior Department, they thought, long ere this, but he is still on the outside while Mr. Kirkwood quietly toasts his shins before the Secretary's glowing gate. The town is still full of rumors and counter-rumors about the remaining Cabinet positions, but no one seems to know for certain just what is going to be done. One day it is stated positively that Mr. Sargent will be appointed February 1, and the next day somebody on just as good terms with the White House asserts that he will not be appointed at all. It is one of the things not worth speculating upon from day to day, for I do not think the President himself knows exactly what he will do. Still I think both Secretaries Kirk and Hunt will eventually give place to successors of Mr. Arthur's own choosing. It is not charged that the President is playing fast and loose after the manner of the late Mr. Hayes, but the impression is that he makes haste slowly.

Though a month has elapsed since the Committees of the House of Representatives were appointed the dissatisfaction among members was so great that it has not yet passed away, and the attention of that body is still largely taken up with plans and schemes for getting matters right. The plan reported by Mr. Robeson from the Committee on Rules, to increase the members of nearly all the important Committees, does not meet with much favor. It is understood to be really the Speaker's scheme, devised to help him out by making new places for Members slighted in the first instance. But they all say he must stand by his work. Both Mr. Orth and Mr. Springer have advanced plans for selecting Committees in the future, and contemplate taking this power out of the Speaker's hands. The votes so far taken in the preliminary consideration of this subject indicate that all the better class of Congressmen think the Speaker has too much power as things go. He can sufficiently control the legislation of the country by recognizing or refusing to recognize members on floor, without having also in his hands the monarch wields a sway more despotic. One thing worthy of note is that the disorder in the House this session is very great and interferes seriously with the transaction of business. Mr. Kiefer hardly has the body in hand as well as either Mr. Randall or Mr. Blaine.

A torrent of bills continues to inundate both Houses, nearly 1,500 having been introduced in the last two weeks. In the House the number to date reaches a grand total of 3,169 with nearly 200 joint resolutions. In the Senate the number is relatively greater having come to within a few of 800. This makes an appalling total of 4,169 legislative projects awaiting action at the hands of this Congress. If it were to sit for 365 days and dispose of measures at the rate of 11 a day there would at the end of that time still be a surplus of 154 bills unacted on. That is a pleasant prospect for Congress and the country. The grave and reverend Senators are talking about voting themselves each a clerk at $1,200 per year. A Senator's correspondence is certainly very large, and there probably is not one who could unaided answer all his letters and attend to all his other duties. They are all obliged to employ more or less assistance, and this they think should be paid for by the public as the salary of $5,000 a year is barely sufficient for the proper support of a Senator who has no other income. Yet for fear of public disapprobation they will very likely refrain from adopting this proposition.

There are many strange people in Washington. One of them is a brother of a distinguished General in the army. He is not very old, but his hair is white and his flowing white locks are like snow. He has rooms in the Corcoran building, and is said to be very rich. He drives a handsome pair of horses, and his rooms are furnished in the quaintest fashion. He has been a great traveler and has picked up very queer odds and ends for his rooms. He has the oldest furniture that can be procured and he has a penchant for the skins of wild animals. The floors of his rooms are covered with the skins of white bears, black bears, tigers, wolves, leopards, foxes and other animals. This gentleman's chief peculiarity is in having a servant who never leaves sight of him. If he walks on the Avenue Joe is somewhere behind him; if he goes to church Joe watches him in the vestibule; if he goes to the theatre Joe will be found looking down upon him from the gallery; if he drives Joe is always at his side. Even the boys in the street are in the habit of watching for Joe whenever the master is in sight. What if Joe should die?

DOM PEDRO.

MR. GOWEN beats the Bond-Mont party, and is elected president of the Reading Railroad by a majority of fifty thousand shares. With the aid of the Vanderbilt proxies, he carried too many guns for the Pennsylvania interest. It has been considered that this result would help the Baltimore and Ohio road in obtaining an independent connection through Philadelphia to New York. American.

THE Baltimore Times came to a full stop on last Saturday, having been just fifteen days in the field. We anticipated the result from the moment it failed to make good its engagement with the Gazette. It came as a missionary among us to correct the failings of Baltimore, and of our State, and ended as other reformers may do, whose zeal extends beyond correct knowledge of their work.

A BILL has been introduced into the House of Delegates, to make "wife-beating" punishable by whipping. This is a move in the right direction, for anything in the form of a man, so lost to decency and the common feeling of humanity, as to beat his wife, should be punished like other brutes, that are intractable, and a few examples of such punishment would put a stop to such outrages.

SUMMARY OF NEWS.

BOSTON is the home of 203 women worth a million dollars each.

Of the fifty one metals, thirty were discovered in this century.

THE pecan crop of Texas this year is valued at $2,000,000.

THE annual fair of the Florida State Agricultural Society, which is to be held at Jacksonville, begins Tuesday, Feb. 21, and will continue five days.

THE estimates of the Florida orange crop vary widely. Col. Elliott, of Jacksonville, puts the number at 45,000,000, while the Palatka Journal says it will reach 84,000,000.

THE Reading Railroad Election was concluded in Philadelphia on the 13th inst., and Mr. Gowen was elected President. The Gowen ticket received, in round numbers, 272,000 votes and the Bond ticket 222,000.

DENNIS O'DONAHUE, a Catholic parish priest of Brownsville, Ind., has commenced a suit for $5,000 damages against Bishop Chatard, of that diocese, for suspending him from his priestly duties, as alleged, without just cause.

CARDINAL McCLOSKEY has received information from Rome to the effect that Viceroy-Generals Quinn and Preston have been promoted by the Pope to be "domestic prelates of the Papal household."

ONE hundred cows on a grand drunk in the astonishing report from a milk farm near Berlin, Somerset county, Pa. In watering the cows the contents of a tank of spirits instead of a tank of water were let in to the trough by mistake. The cows found the drink very palatable, and imbibed so freely that the whole herd were soon on a grand treat, below and kicking like all possessed. This method of making milk punch is not patented.

WESTERN prices are curious sometimes. In Miles City, Montana, corn is forty cents a bushel and eggs ten cents apiece. The hired girl demands $10 a week; with every Sunday out.

HENRY C. SPAULDING, whose name was made familiar in connection with glue, but who got none of the millions made out of it, was lately arrested at New Albany, Ind., for drunkenness.

IN the Senate of the United States on the 12th inst., the President pro tem. presented a communication requesting the Senate to unite with the people in celebrating, at New Orleans, April 9th, the 200th anniversary of the discovery of the mouth of the Mississippi river by Robert Cavalier de La Salle.

THE Message of Gov. Cornell of New York, covers seven and one quarter columns of the New York Sun. So large and wealthy a State as New York must needs keep up appearances in all things. But a long winded Governor can make a great ado even for Rhode Island or little Delaware.

Nothing Short of Unmistakable Benefits.

Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SARSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the most valuable alteratives, with the lodices of Potassium and Iron,—a powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. Uniformly successful against all eruptions, rashes, skin diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses, Irrregularities, and is a potent remedy of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick. For sale by all druggists.

TOOTH, EAR AND HEADACHE, FROSTED FEET AND EARS, AND ALL OTHER PAINS AND ACHES.

No Preparation on earth equals Dr. J.C. Jacobs' Oil as a safe, sure, simple and cheap External Remedy. A trial entails but the comparatively trifling outlay of 25 Cents, and every one suffering with pain can have cheap and positive proof of its claims.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS IN MEDICINE.

The Date of the Next Fair.
The Board of Managers of the Washington County Agricultural Association have chosen the 17th, 18th, 19th and 20th days of next October for the holding of the twenty seventh annual exhibition, which is one week later than the Frederick County exhibition.

APPLY to W. G. Horner, for insurance in the U. B. Mutual Aid Society, of Lebanon, Pa., Office West Main street, Emmitsburg, Md. sep 17-1y.

Disinfect Your Premises.
It is a mistaken idea that disinfectants are needed only in the Summer season. The prevalence of disease in the winter, proves that foul air and noxious vapours, do their work as well in the winter as at other times; therefore, the means for the correction of such influences, wherever they may be liable to arise, should not be neglected because the temperature may be low. Prevention is better than cure.

INSURE your Homes in a Company that takes no liens or mortgages on your Property, in shape of premium notes.—The Agricultural Fire Insurance Co., takes no premium notes. W. G. HORNER Agt. Emmitsburg, Md. ja 21-6m.

Death of a Venerable Lady.
Mrs. Sarah Syester, mother of Ex-Attorney-General A. C. Syester, of Maryland, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Nelson Miller, at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, on Sunday, January 8th. Her mother died, not long since, nearly 100 years of age, and this lady had nearly reached her 78th year. Deceased was born in Virginia, and was a sister of Mr. E. W. Stake, Cashier of the National Bank of Williamsport, and of the late Mr. Karshner Stake. She was also a sister of Mrs. Joseph Seibert, of Clear-spring district. The early portion of her life was passed in Williamsport, where her memory is particularly cherished.—Herald.

A Good Recommendation.

EMMITSBURG, Oct. 23, 1880.
All I have to say of the Willie Rat Trap is: It is the best I have ever seen. The most we ever caught, was 27 rats in one trap, one night. I just put it in the cellar last night, and had three rats this morning. I would not be without one.
Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM P. GARDINER.
Sold in Emmitsburg, by D. Zeck.

To Our Friends.
The friends of the Emmitsburg Chronicle, can render us valuable assistance, by recommending it, to those who are not subscribers; They may thus enable us largely to extend the circulation, and reap the benefits which are sure to follow in the encouragement of our work, and the widening of the circle of its influence and that of our town and its vicinity.

We will cheerfully send specimen copies free when so desired.
A little effort on the part of our numerous friends, will be highly encouraging.

[Terre Haute Saturday Evening Mail.]
Mr. George Knoehr after having tried all remedies recommended to him for Rheumatism, received no relief until he tried the St. Jacobs Oil, the first application of which gave him relief, and the continued use cured him.

From the Gettysburg Compiler.
Dr. W. O. Smith, of Cashtown, Adams county, has gone to Bolling Springs, Cumberland county, to practice medicine.

The cost of the new monument put up by Dr. Swope was about $4,000.
By reason of the bad condition of a public road in Perry county, James A. Robinson's buggy was upset and his right arm broken, rendering him a cripple for life. The court awarded him $3,530 damages.

Sixty-five thousand dollars have been subscribed towards the Taneystown machine shop enterprise. Only $10,000 more are needed.

"The Columbia Mutual Aid Association of Middlemen," quietly departed with all its traps, last Monday morning, for Frederick, where it will settle down, it is reported, in Mr. C. H. Eckstein's law office. A few short months ago, when this enterprise was started, some of our citizens were led to believe that immense wealth would flow into the community, and that the revenues of our postoffice would soon increase to such an extent as to make the P. M. a Presidential appointment. But by the removal of the concern to Frederick all these bright hopes are blasted.—Valley Register.

NOTICE TO FARMERS AND OWNERS OF PRIVATE RESIDENCES.—The safest and best company in which Farmers and owners of Private Residences can insure their Property, is the Time Trifled and Fire-Tested Agricultural Insurance Company. It insures nothing but private Residences and Farm Property. In the last 27 years it has not had a loss of over $5,000, in one Fire, and it cannot be affected by sweeping conflagrations, as its risks are all detached. It insures against damage by Lightning, whether fire ensues or not, and insures Live Stock against being killed by Lightning anywhere on the farm. The Agricultural Insurance Co., is a stock company, and the strongest and largest company, doing an exclusive Dwelling Business in the United States, and not in the world, and is now insuring 50,000 Policies a year. For further particulars, apply to W. G. HORNER, Agent, Emmitsburg, Md.

Two Youths Arrested on the Charge of Theft.

SYKESSVILLE, CARROLL CO., Jan. 13.
Two youths, giving their names as Chas. T. Smith and Wm. Watts, and residence Baltimore, were arrested last night by officer James Hutchinson, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, at Gathier's Siding, and charged with the theft of several articles from the engine-house of that place. It is said they entered the house with a key, which, it is alleged, they had for that purpose, and it is charged were about to take all the removable brass in the place when they were surprised by the officer. They were captured, it is said, with several dollars' worth of Baltimore and Ohio property in their possession, and taken before Justice Chas. R. Favour, who committed them to Carroll county jail for the action of the grand jury.

COMMUNICATED.

EYLER'S VALLEY, Jan. 17, '82.
DEAR EDITOR:—The scholars of Eyer's Valley Sabbath School celebrated the birthday of their superintendent, Mr. B. Eyer, by assembling at the church last evening and presenting him with a number of useful articles, in token of their appreciation of his services. After a prayer by the Superintendent, and a short address by Mr. Clark, the gifts were presented, consisting in part, of handkerchiefs, stockings, suspenders, books, cakes, confectionery, cigars, crackers, cheese, apples, &c., &c. The exercises were quite interesting, and a general good feeling prevailed. The superintendent acknowledges gratefully his indebtedness to scholars and teachers, while he can but feel strengthened and encouraged by this expression of their kindly feeling. M. E.

We have received the biennial report of the Maryland School for Deaf and Dumb, from October 1st, 1879 to October 1st, 1881. It is a very neatly gotten up pamphlet, and represents one of the most flourishing institutions of the kind in the country. The number of pupils in attendance has been 121. From Baltimore city, 49, and the counties as follows:—Alleghany 6, Baltimore 8, Carroll 2, Dorchester 4, Frederick 11, Garrett 2, Harford 6, Montgomery 3, Prince George's 2, Queen Ann's 2, Somerset 1, St. Mary's 1, Talbot 4, Washington 4, Wicomico 3, State of New Jersey 1. The remarks of the principal, Prof. Ely, on the plan and method of instruction, are highly interesting. The expenditures for the years 1880 and 81, were $24,667.26. The health of the pupils has been good and no death has occurred during the two years.

Mr. Isaac Eiker, of Adams county, Pa., caught 27 rats on last Sunday night, in a Willie Rat trap, and he has not seen a rat since, but thinks he gathered in the whole settlement.

THE American Farmer for January 15, is a splendid number. The Farmer is now issued twice a month, in quarto form, on fine paper, beautifully printed, and commends itself to all readers.—Published by Samuel Sands and Son, Baltimore.

A SLEET.
There was rain on Wednesday night which froze as fast as it fell, next morning the enameled bushes and trees and fences presented scenes of wintry beauty which now and then relieve the general gloom. There were a few cases in which persons changed their standing to a recumbent position. These all passed off with some evidences of chagrin, and the smiles of the by-standers, but no serious hurts occurred.

PERSONALS.
Miss Carrie Motter is visiting friends in Baltimore.
Miss Jennie Newcomer has returned to her home in Funkstown.
Mrs. Emma J. Hartman, of Chambersburg, visits her parents in this place.
Messrs. Joshua S. and L. Edwin Motter, made a short visit to Waynesboro'.
Mr. Jos. E. Hopp, of Middleburg, being on a visit in this place, called to see us on Thursday. He was looking well, and we congratulate him on his happy recovery from the accident we recorded some months ago, whereby he had his leg broken.

Death of John Theodore Peddicord.
Mr. John T. Peddicord died at his home, near Mt. St. Mary's College, at 1 o'clock, a. m., on Wednesday, the 18th inst., and was buried from Mt. St. Mary's Church, on last Thursday morning. He was born near Emmitsburg, on the 26th of August, 1824. By his industry and untiring energy, he had acquired a considerable amount of property, both in Emmitsburg district and in West Virginia. Up to the 15th of last December, he was blessed with uninterrupted good health, and then he was obliged to give up his work in Cumberland, and submit to medical treatment, for which purpose he returned to his home; but Typhoid fever had taken such a firm hold of him, that after a short lapse of time, his physicians pronounced him beyond recovery.

The consolations of the Church were his to the hour of death, and the sacraments and rites thereof were received by him. His death will be greatly felt in the neighborhood wherein he resided.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth Heyser.
On Wednesday morning, Mrs. Elizabeth Heyser, widow of William Heyser, who died in November, 1853, says the Chambersburg, Pa., Opinion of the 14th inst., departed this life after a short illness. She was a native of Frederick city, Md. Her father, Geo. Benz, was one of the founders of the Reformed congregation of that place, and donated to that congregation a part of the ground used by it as a cemetery. Mrs. Heyser came to Chambersburg in 1820, as a bride, and has resided here ever since.—She was a member of the Reformed Church for more than sixty years, and of Zion's Reformed congregation of this place ever since her coming here. Her pure life and constant Christian character won for her the esteem of all who knew her, and the love of her brethren in the church; indeed, any form of trouble called forth her ever-ready sympathy, and there are many who will long miss her cheering and consoling words. She lived to the good old age of eighty-five, surrounded by her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Her last hours on earth were painless and tranquil.

From the Examiner.
On Thursday last, Mr. Henry C. England, of Rockville, Montgomery county, was admitted to the bar of this Court.

On Friday last, the County Commissioners reappointed Aaron Taneystown, keeper of the Court House and Yard.—Aaron has held this position for quite a number of years and has given general satisfaction.

The President and Directors of the First National Bank of Frederick, have declared a semi-annual dividend of seven per cent., ending on the 4th instant, payable on the 25th. This shows superior financial ability.

CENTRAL HOTEL SOLD.—Mr. Benj. Steward has purchased this well-known property from Col. John T. Sinn for $7,000. Mr. Steward designs remodeling the property and opening an Agricultural Store. He will get possession on or before the first day of April next.

LIST OF JURORS.—On Saturday last, the following gentlemen were drawn as Jurors for the February term of the Circuit Court, which on the third Monday and 20th day of February: John P. Davis, Michael J. Colliflower, Daniel Baker, Jr., Noah Barnes, Edward Firor, William Long, Robert B. Thompson, John Nichols, James H. Gambrill, David Albright, Charles E. Poole, Albert W. Burkhardt, J. Herman Routhahn, Carlton Shank, James H. King, John Kalebahg, John Stein, John M. Holbrouner, David F. Kolb, William T. Chiswell, John A. Fleagle, David W. Summers, John T. Watkins, Isaac Young, Charles A. Eyer, David Shafer, Rufus K. Magruder, P. H. Griffith, Sr., Charles Dronenberg, Fredrick A. Clary, Geo. Eisler, Hiram Z. Zimmerman, L. Fulton, B. Rice, Lafayette Norris, Francis T. Brown, David F. Bussard, Norman B. H. Hagin, John Murdock, George J. Rhodes, Thomas Ott, Ezra Slifer, Claggett W. Dorsey, Joseph J. Fox, John W. White, Lewis M. Washet, Thomas E. Pope, Nathan S. Tyson.

ANYBODY can catch a cold now. The trouble is to let go, like the man who caught the bear. We advise our readers to keep a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup handy.

By Universal Accord,
AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long laborious and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use, by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effectual purgative Pill that medical science can devise. Being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use, and being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take. In intrinsic value and curative power, no other Pills can be compared with them; and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effectual, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild but effectual cathartic is required.
For sale by all druggists.

Bridge Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the subscribers, citizens of Frederick county, in the State of Maryland, intend to petition the County Commissioners, for said county, after the expiration of thirty days, from the first publication of this notice, (the date of which publication is noted below,) to build and erect a bridge on Tom's Creek, below the mill of Frederick Stambaugh, (formerly Myers,) on the road leading from the Taneytown road to the Middleburg road, the public convenience greatly requiring a bridge thereat.
