OUR WANING FORESTS.

The following article on "Our Waning Forests," which we publish entire, from the American Agriculturist, will be both interesting and comforting to those who have brooded, unnecessarily, over the dismal prophecies, that point to a time when our fair earth shall be a barren, trackless waste, and of necessity, from the drying up of all its water courses, at last become unfit for the habitation of any living thing.

It is pleasant to be assured that such a state of things is not likely to be reached, in our time at any rate; but have not our New England friends reason to dread, on the other hand, if statistics be correct, that the fair and cultured land of which they are now so justly proud, will, ere many centuries have passed, be again a howling wilderness? The ever-increasing population of the other sections of the country, must of necessity spread over the uncultivated land, cutting down the forests and building cities, crowding onward still, till the shores of the Pacific are reached; and Western forests, Indians and wild beasts will only be heard of in the stories of "the olden time."

However much cause there may be for congratulation in the fact that the forests are renewed in the regular course of nature, it is hard to understand, how our New England brothers can take pleasure in the knowledge that the decrease of population and abandonment of homesteads are furnishing more and more opportunity for such natural increase. It would be a strange commentary on human progress, if, while the perfected results of science, culture and skill are shedding their dazzling lustre on the crowded cities of the Pacific, the waves of the Atlantic should beat upon the rocky New England coast, wild and lonely as when the "Pilgrims" landed there.

In all the numerous articles that have fallen under our notice about the destruction of our forests, we have never seen any doubts expressed about the facts in the case, or anything hopeful upon the other side of the question. The impression left upon the mind of the reader is, that every acre of woodland cut off is never renewed without artificial means, and that the country is doomed to barrenness in a few generations at the longest, by reason of the disappearance of our forests. It takes so many millions of acres for fuel, still more for lumber, millions for railroad ties, agricultural tools and machines, lasts, shoe pegs, matches, boxes for packing, etc., every year, and at this rate, the country is soon to be denuded of its forests, the streams dried up, and our agriculture and manufactures depending upon water-power are coming to ruin in a very short time. This is the picture as it is presented to us by the city editor, as he looks at things from his sanctum. It is about time this nonsense was exploded, and the facts in the case stated as they appear to us wood-choppers and clod-hoppers in the country. It is undoubtedly true that there has been a great decrease of forests in the old seaboard States, since the first settlement of the country, for that has been a necessity, without which there could be no agriculture, and not much in crease of population. It took at least a hundred years in these States to remove so much of the forest as was an obstruction to agriculture. Not more than one fifth of the area of a country need be left in wood, to secure its highest productiveness in farm crops. This point has not yet been reached in some parts of the seaboard States, yet in other parts it has been somewhat passed, and there is a deficiency of wood for fuel and timber. The alarmists overlook the most important fact that very much of the timber land that is cleared in the older States is very soon renewed by natural agencies. There is a regular system of growth and clearing, and timber and fuel are as much reliable money crops as corn and potatoes. On fair, average soil, a forest will renew itself once in twenty five years. It would probably pay better to stand thirty or forty years, but it is available, and can be turned into ready money every twenty-fifth year. A farmer with twenty-five acres of forest can clear an acre every year, with no diminution of woodland. In the rural districts of Connecticut, with which we have been familiar for the last fifty years, there has been no want of forests. Ship timber, near seaports, has grown scarce and high, but the price of wood for fuel is no higher, and in some markets is even cheaper than it was fifty years ago. The Census shows that, in the exclusively agricultural towns, there has been no increase of population, and in some of them a decrease during the last 40 or 50 years, so that there is no more demand for fuel and timber to day than there was in the days of our grandfathers. Wood for fuel, except in the shape of kindlings and charcoal, has gone out of use in our cities and villages on the seaboard and along the lines of our railroads. Farmers, not a few, within four or five miles of these villages, are beginning to use coal, and the base burner, once in the parlor or sitting room, soon drives out the wood fires and stoves from the rest of the house. Coal is found to be far cheaper, and a cleaner and more convenient fuel than wood, even for those who own wood lots. Kerosene is also becoming available for heating, and we see no prospect in the future that wood for fuel will ever be any more in demand than it is to-day. It is doubtful if it ever will be dearer for lumber. Iron is taking its place in ships, bridges, machines, houses, and public buildings, and the demand for iron, stone and brick, as the most desirable materials for building, is likely to increase as the country increases in wealth. In some of the rural districts there is more danger of a relapse into wilderness and barbarism, than of exterminating our forests for the advance of high farming and civilization. In 75 of our farming towns there was a decrease of 12,000 in population during the last decade, which means an increase of woodland. In a ride of an hour, yesterday, in one of the towns bordering on the Connecticut River, we passed six old chimney stacks and cellars, the sites of deserted homes, the road for much of the way bordered by forests. Even in the Nutmeg State, where we use some superior fluous wood, it is difficult to feel the alarm about waning forests.

CONNECTICUT. THE other European powers seem determined to let England have all the glory and responsibility of the Egyptian war. Russia positively refuses to ally herself with England, Turkey is not willing to play second fiddle, Germany mutters, and makes no move, whilst France smilingly takes a position that will enable her to secure her own interests no matter which way the struggle terminates. In the meantime, Christians are tortured and murdered, property destroyed and every imaginable horror perpetuated, and it will be long after the conflict is over and the smoke of battle cleared away before the world will understand what it all means or how it might have been avoided.

LETTER FROM COLORADO.

Special Correspondence.

PUEBLO, COLORADO, July 25, 1882.

It is a long journey from the Eastern Metropolis across the prairies and plains of the West to Colorado, but it is through such a diversified country, affording a glimpse of so much varied and interesting scenery, that time and space are alike annihilated, as it were, without fatigue or weariness. In these days of multiplied railroads and luxurious accommodations travel in every direction has reached the maximum of comfort and speed, but nowhere do these conditions exist in a greater degree than in the great West; and to the open eyed observer there is a charm in gliding over this vast expanse of country, the panorama of which opens out before like the views of a kalidoscope, to be found in nothing else. Yet in this fast age even lightning express trains are too slow for the impatient American who now looks forward to the day when "balloon navigation" will be the thing.

Our route traversed in part the great agricultural States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas. In all of these the crops are much better than were realized last year, and corn though somewhat backward in some sections, promises to turn out a fair crop, judging from our "bird-eye" view along the way. Of the States east of Kansas it is not necessary to take much note in this correspondence. The one thing that suggested itself forcibly to me was the inquiry why people ever leave those fertile and easily cultivated States to seek homes further west. It is not strange that men desert the old thickly settled Eastern States and the over-crowded cities to follow the lamented Greeley's wholesome advice—though only a limited number of them are recommended to take a Hoe Cylinder Press—but those located in the broad States just mentioned should be sufficiently imbued with worldly wisdom to let well enough alone. Ills they may have, as drawbacks and discouragements are everywhere in this world, but it is better to bear them than to fly to where we know not of. In northern Missouri, for instance, there are, uncultivated, thousands of acres of good farming lands as the sun ever shone upon, and it is a mystery why people pass them by to go to Kansas or anywhere else.

Our only stop of consequence was at Kansas City, which has now grown to an important commercial centre of over 60,000 inhabitants. It is a peculiar place, yet all who stop like it. In appearance it is odd because being built upon high and uneven bluffs the streets run up and down hill and the cellars of some houses are high above the roofs of many near neighbors. Yet the buildings are mostly of a substantial character and there is a solid, business like aspect to the whole town. A slow process of grading the streets down to a level is going on in some parts of the city and perhaps in the course of time much of this rough and rugged exterior will be removed. It has been a place of rapid growth, commercially and otherwise, and there is undoubtedly a promising future before it. Its trade comes from a vast territory to the west and south-west, some even from Texas and New Mexico. Of course a journey through on the cars is not sufficient to gain much accurate knowledge of the advantages of Kansas as a farming country. Much has been written pro and con about it by those whose opportunities of knowing the truth are better than mine, but I am satisfied that there are as good lands in the Cottonwood and Arkansas Valleys as can be found anywhere on top of God's green earth. Taken all in all there is ample room and opportunity in Kansas for those who are willing to work and endure the trials of a beginning. And it is difficult to understand how men will remain in large cities living in hovels and rearing their children in hot-beds of vice, when broad fields invite them to come and make themselves homes. Few fail of a good living who come West with willing hands and a determined spirit. Without these the experiment is useless, for there is no royal road to wealth even upon fertile Western prairies. But the same labor and energy which earns a scanty living in the crowded cities of the East will in a few years surround a family with peace and plenty and a secure future. Speaking of Kansas reminds me of a story lately told: "How is the soil of Kansas?" asked one of the group as the traveler paused. "Richest in the world, sir," was the reply. "I know a New York statesman who went to Kansas seven years ago with only $18 in cash, and he is now worth $20,000." "Whew! what did he raise principally?" "I believe it was a check, sir; but they couldn't exactly prove it on him! Think of a soil that will raise a bank check for $190 to $19,000, and in a backward season at that!"

The traveler who enters Colorado at the south will not at first be greatly prepossessed with the country, or at least with its surface indications. For nearly a hundred miles the route to Pueblo is through a barren, sandy plain, which has been denominated the "Great American Desert." Yet beneath this uninviting exterior lies a rich soil, which, by the application of water and the usual processes of cultivation, produces a transformation more wonderful than the magic influence of Fairy's wand. Amias, in and about Pueblo, and in various spots near the river ranchmen have by their efforts interspersed little oases grateful to the eye. The soil here, and for miles back along the road over which we have come, is on top, about like pulverized limestone, and the alkali dust which drifts in the car windows is enough to both blind and strangle you—especially if you happen to come through on a hot day. The water, too, is enough to turn your stomach if you are rash enough to put any of it in your whiskey. Yet right here is a town which stands as the only rival of Denver, and which for more than a year past has been enjoying a boom of considerable proportions. The opening of the railroad lines into San Juan and other Southern Colorado mining sections contributed to this result. Many of the buildings are Mexican adobes, and the place is otherwise unattractive to me at a first glance. After a calm inspection it may appear to better advantage. One thing which has been the source of constant surprise to us on the way here is the excellent meals furnished at eating-houses along the route. After we crossed the Mississippi river we rather expected hard fare and made up our minds to eat anything, from a Prairie dog to a pickled Indian, but the reality was a very different thing. At the eating, all through Kansas, the regular spread excels even the famous Union Depot Dining Rooms at Pittsburg and Cleveland, and at the same price.

DOM PEDRO.

THE Indians are again robbing and murdering in Arizona.

LAST year Texas imported corn, but this year will have 50,000,000 bushels to sell.

FIFTY FOUR deaths from yellow fever occurred at Havana during the week ending Friday night.

OVER a million dollars' worth of property was destroyed by fire in New York, on Monday, July 31.

THE Striking Miners are beginning to yield to the pressure of necessity, and show a disposition to resume work.

The effects of the potato blight in Ireland have been exaggerated. In badly drained ground the crop has been damaged, but on the whole the prospect is encouraging.

On Monday, at Bradford, Pa., Robert J. Thompson, aged 19, returning from a Niagara Falls excursion, fell from the platform of a train and was killed, both legs being cut off.

A MAN in Iowa, who had been ill for some time with consumption, died, apparently, a few days ago, and his body was prepared for burial, when he suddenly revived and inquired what they were doing? At last accounts he was still living.

At New Windsor, N. Y., on Thursday a wagon containing two women and five children was struck by a locomotive and wrecked. A babe, a few months old, was thrown thirty feet away. Strange to say that all, except being stunned for a few moments, were unharmed.

HECKER'S mammoth flour mill, ten stories high, and in which 500 men were employed, was totally destroyed, together with two tenement houses and other property. The explosion of the steam boiler during the progress of the fire caused great consternation.

JUDGE MEN BY THEIR WORKS.—A man is judged in this life by his works, and in this connection it may not be inopportune to add, that Dr. Swayne has accomplished more good through the medium of his Ointment for skin diseases, than has the entire school of physicians combined. "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good." What the physicians have lost Dr. Swayne has gained.

THE River and Harbour Bill has been passed, notwithstanding the President's veto, by a two-thirds majority.

REMARKABLE STATE OF AFFAIRS.—The Baltimore Sun says that within the past week or two Southern wheat and corn have brought the same price per pound, a thing which was never known to have happened before. A bushel of prime Southern red wheat sold for $1.20, and a bushel of prime white corn at $1.12. There being 60 pounds to a bushel of wheat and 56 pounds to a bushel of corn, made the price of each article that day two cents per pound. This is certainly a remarkable state of affairs.

CORNELIUS GELWICKS, fireman, ran the engine by himself for the first time on Wednesday, and made three trips between this place and Rocky Ridge.

SOME of our neighbors are boasting of ripe tomatoes from their own gardens. The condition of ours, leads us to think the boasts originate in sinister practices.

WE would advise our citizens to be careful about removing every kind of decayed vegetable matter, weeds, etc., from their gardens and drains, disinfesting the latter, with lime or copperas, the hot sun coming out after this rainy spell will be sure to develop malaria, if there are any places around in which the seeds can germinate.

That's What's the Matter! "The old man" has been as cross as a bear for a week past. No wonder that bread is heavy enough to kill an ostrich. Go right to Bussey's and get a package of "Dry Hop Yeast," it will cost you but 10 cents for one dozen cakes. Give the "Old Man" some light bread, and he will "smile again."

From the Keystone Gazette. Josephus Burger, employed at the saw mill of Daniel Shockley, had a finger severed from his hand on Monday last by a circular saw. Dr. Koons rendered surgical aid.

We understand from a gentleman who came from Chambersburg, this (Monday) morning, that a dispatch had been received in that place, to Hon. John Stewart, tendering him a foreign mission.

"Pro Bono Publico." It is a remarkable fact, that while thousands of people refuse to read paid puffs of worthless nostrums none skip over Dr. Swayne's little squib about his Ointment for Itching Piles that it is so much at night. The people well know that it is published for their benefit, in other words, it is pro bono publico. May its far reaching effects be perpetuated to the end of time. july 22

A Large Copper Strike. The Harrisburg copper mining and smelting company have struck a rich vein of copper ore in shaft No. 1, at forty-four feet in depth, in Washington county. MR. HENRY ROUZER'S 76th birthday was celebrated on the 26th ult. From 6 until 11 o'clock p. m., the Honored and venerated the vocal notes of 17 grand children ranging in age from 3 months to 15 years. Simple presents were given, the refreshments of the season served, and a very pleasant evening was spent and enjoyed by none more than the honored sire. In two years his golden wedding will occur.

McSherry, Jr., Esq., will deliver an address of welcome.—Star and Sentinel.

WE are informed that Col. P. E. Dye, of Washington, has been prospecting for gold, which he expects to find in paying quantities upon the Showman farm on the Antietam. On Monday he had a number of blasts set off in a stratum of rocks, which is claimed to exhibit quartz yielding gold, lead and copper. Rumor goes so far as to state that a specimen of quartz, obtained in that vicinity, was submitted to a practical assayer, who pronounced it worth five hundred dollars per ton.—Boonsboro Times.

Journalist. The Village Record, published by W. Blair, at Waynesboro, entered upon its thirty-sixth year, last week. Mr. B. has had individual control of it for thirty-two years, and at this time the paper has a degree of prosperity unequalled in its successful history. Mr. B. has survived all the publishers of his early days and we trust he may yet have many years in which to continue the usefulness he has so deservedly effected in the past.

Body Found in the Mountains. On Sunday afternoon last, John Hockenbury and son visited Burns' Valley, about three miles from Concord, Pa., and near the Perry county line, for the purpose of picking some huckleberries.—While passing along the mountain side, the son found a skull which he supposed was that of a bear. Upon closer investigation, however, it was found to be the skull of a human being. About six feet from it lay the arms, legs, and trunk of the body. The flesh had nearly all disappeared from it, and there was nothing left by which the body could be recognized. Some distance away a shoe was found with the heel kicked off, which looked as though it had been done in a scuffle. A leather strap, with a buckle on one end, and an oil cloth package containing some buttons, were found near by. The man is reported as being of medium height, but as there was no clothing to be found any place, the authorities will have considerable trouble in making the investigation.—Repository.

We acknowledge the receipt of the Illustrated Los Angeles Herald, for July, from our kind friend, Mr. J. DeBarth Shorb, a native of this vicinity. It is a splendid periodical throughout, equal to our best Eastern ones. Among other excellent cuts is one representing Mr. Shorb's residence, another the winery and warehouses of the San Gabriel Wine Company, of which Mr. S. is President, and there are several views of Los Angeles, on a large scale, and reading matter accords with the general finished character of the periodical.

Please Take Notice. It is always unpleasant to dun subscribers. The majority of our subscribers, we are pleased to say, are punctual, and consequently need no urging to pay their dues to the printer. We have some on our list however, who can easily afford to pay their subscription, but prefer to wait. Pay in advance, is always required by city newspapers, and if city newspapers can't get along without advance payments, it is clear proof that the rural newspaper can't afford to wait from month to month for its money.

Accident in Funkstown. Last Tuesday a part of the second floor of Stonebraker's large Bone Mill gave way and in falling carried away some of the supports of the two upper floors, tearing down parts of those floors also. The accident was probably due to a defective girder. No one was injured and the damage to the building was slight and will be covered by $800. This building was erected by the famous Funkstown Manufacturing Company for a Woolen Mill and is one of the largest buildings in the county.—Mail.

In Memoriam. In the death of Mathias P. Zacharias, whose funeral took place on the 3rd inst., this community has lost a most estimable citizen; the church of which he was a member, a faithful officer; and his family, a noble son and companion. But "He who tempereth the wind to the storm lamb" will "comfort those who mourn."

"God hath His mysteries of grace— Ways that we cannot tell: He hides them deep, He hides the sweet sleep, Of him He loved so well."

The mournful occasion was improved by a very beautiful and impressive discourse from Rev. W. A. Gring, who was assisted in the services by Rev. J. B. Kerschner. A FRIEND.

Special Meeting of Classis. COMMUNICATED. MR. EDITOR—On Thursday, the 3rd inst., there was held in the Church of the Incarnation, a special meeting of the Maryland Classis of the Reformed Church to dissolve the pastoral relations existing between the Rev. W. A. Gring and Emmitsburg charge. This action was the result of disaffection in the Fairfield congregation, together with the fact that Mr. Gring's failing health necessitates his withdrawing from the active ministry for the present. But for this latter fact, Mr. Gring could, and would have been retained as pastor of the Emmitsburg Congregation only, at a salary exceeding that which both congregations have hitherto given their pastors. The Emmitsburg members desire through your columns to express their affectionate regard for Mr. Gring, and their appreciation of his faithful ministry among them. VERITAS.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN HAIR RESTORER is a scientific combination of some of the most powerful restorative agents in the vegetable kingdom. It restores gray hair to its original color. It makes the scalp white and clean. It cures dandruff and humors, and falling-out of the hair. It furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a hair dressing. It is the most economical preparation ever offered to the public, as its effects remain a long time, making only an occasional application necessary. It is recommended and used by eminent medical men, and officially endorsed by the State Assayer of Massachusetts. The popularity of Hall's Hair Restorer has increased with the test of many years, both in this country and in foreign lands, and it is now known and used in all the civilized countries of the world.

For sale by all dealers. As the Editor is off on a pleasure trip, and the Devil, becoming ambitious, has moved to a higher plane, order and quiet reign supreme in the office of the CHRONICLE this week. To the readers it is but right to say that "there is a power behind the throne," willing to be held responsible for all the errors and shortcomings of this issue.

The Editor, having reached his destination, and being anxious to commune with his readers and friends in general, writes at length to the Journal, whose work he left behind him, thus: CLOVERTON, August 1st, 1882.

DEAR CHRONICLE.—To fold away the editorial scissors, with a deprecatory glance at the past-pot, required but a few moments yesterday, and we soon found ourselves aboard the moving train, from which, after a few minutes ride through the pleasant breeze, we alighted among the shades of Rocky Ridge. The ridges are all there, but as to the rocks, they are only visible as ballast to the railroad track. An hour's waiting at this point gives ample time to view the situation, which, prosaic in itself, is important as the point where the Emmitsburg Railroad connects with the Western Maryland. The waiting traveler has to look out for himself, if he desires any extra comfort: three chairs of antique pattern, make up the sum of the sitting accommodations, their remnants of cane seats, showing how comfortable they once might have been, hang down on all sides, the frames alone being entire; on these you sit or get down into the uncovered interior where seats ought to be. A bench or two would be a great convenience at this place.

Speeding onward from Rocky Ridge, through the valley and over the mountain heights, we found the changing scenes of the foliage and landscape, so often described, beautiful as ever, and at 12 o'clock, 45 minutes reached our destination, and were soon comfortably settled in the hospitable homestead, round which cluster so many cherished associations. The beauty of the country home make it very pleasant to dream away the hours in idleness, forgetting that it is man's lot to work while in this world, earning his bread by the sweat of his brow.

We noticed quite a quantity of wheat on the fields, yet in the shocks. In many places, the huge stacks of straw show the abundance of the garnered grain. Come what may, these rich limestone lands, yield their fruits year after year in abundance, whilst the farmer has really no more work to do than our farmers have.

The out-pot of potatoes, is very large, and the growth both healthy and vigorous, promising abundant supplies of this important vegetable. With corn and potatoes abundant and cheap, we can anticipate universal comfort in the year before us.

This is a great day for Williamsport, being the appointed one for Miles Oron's New Mastodon Show, Royal German Menagerie, with three great Circus Troupes, &c.
