THE ROSARY OF MY YEARS.

BY FATHER RYAN.

Some reckon their age by years,
Some measure their life by art—
But some tell their days by the flow of their tears,
And their life by the means of their heart.

The dials of earth may show
The length, not the depth, of years, Few or many they come—few or many they go—
But our time is best measured by tears.

Ah! not by the silver gray
That creeps through the sunny hair,
And not by the scenes that we pass on our way—
And not by the furrows the finger of care

On forehead and face have made;
Not so do we count our years;
Not by the sun of the earth—but the shade

Of our souls—and the fall of our tears.
For the young are oftentimes old, Though their brow be bright and fair;
While their blood beats warm, their heart flies cold—
O'er them the spring time—but winter is there—

And the old are oftentimes young,
When their little hair is thin and white;
And they sing in age as in youth they sung,
And they laugh, for their cross was light.

But bend by my years!
The rosary of my tears;
From a cross to a cross they lead—"tis well!"
And they're blest with a blessing of tears.

Better a day of strife
Than a century of sleep;
Give me instead of a long stream of life,
The tempest and tears of the deep.

A thousand joys may foam
On the billows of all the years;
But never the foam brings the brave back home—
It reaches the haven through tears.

THE ARROW AND THE SONG.
I shot an arrow into the air,
It fell to earth, I know not where;
For so swiftly it flew, the sight
Could not follow it in its flight.

I breathed a song into the air,
It fell to earth, I know not where;
For who hath sight so keen and strong,
That it can follow the flight of song.

Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend.

Long, long afterward, in an oak
I found the arrow, still unbroke;
And the song from beginning to end,
I found again in the heart of a friend.

broken, and no one has done it.
Knives will disappear, and no one has taken them. An old saucer that was given to your grandmother the day of her marriage is cracked and set back on the shelf as though it had been uninjured. The tea-caddy has been despoiled, or flour unreasonably failed, with no miracle, as in Zarephath, to replenish it. There are but few women who can keep their temper when their best china set gets broken. To tidy economy for a month, and to find the result of this unusual carefulness has leaked out at some mysterious spigot; to have a whole mass of milk soured by one thunderstorm; to have the washboiler boil over and put out the fire; to have the desert only half done when people at dinner are waiting, wondering whether it is to be sago pudding or Narcissus blancmange; to have the servant make up her mind she don't like the place, and leave the house in the midst of the ironing; to have to provide elaborate entertainment for some one whom you asked to come to your house without any idea she would accept the invitation; to find after the quinces are all peeled and cut that the brass kettle has been borrowed—all this demands grace for the kitchen.

We, masculines, have yet to learn that the kitchen is the most important end of the household. If that go wrong, the whole establishment is wrong. It decides the health of the household, and health settles almost everything. Heavy bread, too great frequency of plum pudding, mingling of lemonade and custards, unmanageable beef have decided the fate of sermons, storehouses, legislative bills, and the destiny of empires. What if Bismarck had been seized with a long fit of indigestion about the time of the breaking out of the last French and German War? What if, when Plimsoil was trying to raise an insurrection among the sailors of Great Britain, Disraeli should have been overcome of the gout? What if, when the monetary system was shocked by the failure of Duncan, Sherman and Co., the cook at Saratoga Springs should, by means of some unhealthy pastry, have killed Commodore Vanderbilt?

The kitchen knife has often cut off the brightest prospects. The kitchen en grignon has often consumed a commercial enterprise. The kitchen kettle has kept many a good man in hot water. It will never be fully known how much the history of the world is affected by good or bad cooking.

Let no housekeeper, therefore, despise her occupation, but rather pray for grace to fulfill her mission.
The toils and fatigues and vexations of such a sphere may be unappreciated by husbands and fathers and mothers, but God knows and sympa-thizes. If, according to the Bible, God puts into a bottle His people's tears, He will count the number of sweat-drops on your forehead while bending over the stove in the midsummer solstice. By the potential way in which you perform your duties, you may make the rolling-pin a sceptre. Be faithful! There will be a grand supper after a while for the preparation of which you will have no anxiety. It will be the Marriage Supper of the Lamb, and you will be one of the banqueters.

"I don't want a plaster," said a sick man to a druggist, "can't you give me something to cure me?" His symptoms were a lame back and disordered urine and were a sure indication of kidney disease. The druggist told him to use Kidney-Wort and in a short time it effected a complete cure. Have you these symptoms? Then get a box or bottle to day—before you become incurable. It is the cure; safe and sure.—Knowlton's Kidney-Wort.

"When did George Washington die?" asked an Austin teacher of a large boy. "Is he dead?" was the astonished reply. "Why it is not more than six months ago that they were celebrating his birthday, and now he is dead. It's a bad year on children. I reckon his folks let him eat something that didn't agree with him."

Hand-Shaking and Hand-Shakers.

I am not unsocial, but I had rather not shake hands with everybody; and I am quite sure a good many people would rather not shake hands with me. Then why do we do it? It is just one of those unwritten laws which might with advantage often be more honored in the breach than in the observance; just in a matter in which people trust their instincts, and in which their instincts are really not to be trusted. I am dead against the current frequency of hand-shaking in society. Jones drops in for an afternoon call; he does not really want to see me; I don't really want to see Jones; when he comes I shake hands with him, more or less; when he leaves in five minutes, he shakes hands with me, less or more. I hate

Jones' hand, because it is always damp; Jones knows that as well as I do, and sometimes offers me his hand gloved—but I detest a gloved hand. I had rather not shake hands at all. If I must do so, I will do it once, and no more; no one but a lover wants to shake hands more than once in five minutes.

But Jones has a detestable habit of lingering on his way out. He gets up to go. I give him my hand.
It's over! No, it's not. A picture catches his eye. He turns and says with a simper, "Capital portrait, pon my word!" "Ye-as," I say, half accompanying him to the door.

"Who's it by?" "O-by—Smearum, R. A." "Dear me! he painted —a—who did he paint?" "Don't know; paints everybody—paints himself." "Really—a—goodbye?" Shakes hands again, but before he has got through the door, he remembers a message from his wife. I'll see him out; he shant get into the room again. I accompany him to the door. He shakes hands again at door! There ought to be some rule about this. It should be understood that once is enough in one visit. Of course, I know we often shake hands with a man to finish an interview and bow him out. Well, that is for our own convenience, although it does not always act—just as a man's after dinner speech is sometimes applauded rapturously in the middle to make him sit down—but he does not always sit down.

Those people who shake hands should consider their ways. I hate a man, for instance, who can't leave off shaking hands. He begins so heartily, you think he will soon be done. He relaxes his grip, you attempt to withdraw; but he tightens it again; he holds you in a vice.
You begin to shake him up and down, when you suddenly find he has dropped your hand like a hot potato, and you are left shaking the air! This is bad enough, but the wooden shake is almost worse. A hand is stretched out, and you get nothing but the sensation of bore—angular bone; there is no flesh and blood, no grip—the hand might belong to a lay figure. I don't want to shake hands with a lay figure.

Then I object to the crusher. Ladies suffer more than gentlemen from this festive "bore," because they wear more rings; he seizes you impulsively, and manages to crunch your fingers vertically one on top of the other. You don't like to scream if you are a girl, or to show displeasure if you are a man, but you are dreadfully hurt, and you suffer what Mrs. Gamp called "all the tor-toises of the imposition" from the oppressor's effusive, but iron grip.

Then there is the flabby, pulseless shake, which means nothing, or means "you are less than nothing to me, and I hope I am the same to you."

SATURDAY, AUG. 19, 1882.

THE ELECTION OF JUDGES.

In the exercise of that foresight which so often enables the Baltimore Sun to send forth useful suggestions, or to utter timely warnings on the topics that enlist attention, on the 7th inst. an editorial appeared, presenting the above subject in a manner that has been highly commended. We reproduce portions of the article below, regretting that space does not admit its entire appearance.

If the reader will substitute the word "State," for "Baltimore," where it appears in the original article, the applicability of the language will be found suited to its several Districts.

"Of all the elections which are to be held next fall the most important, and by far to the people of Baltimore city will be the election of four judges of the Supreme Bench, to serve for fifteen years. The agitations of party strife excite a much more lively interest over the fortunes of competing candidates for political advancement than can ordinarily be aroused in the selection of judicial officers, yet the former is ephemeral, and sinks into insignificance when compared with the enduring importance of the latter.

The wise and just administration of law is the end and aim of all civilized governments. An English statesman once tersely remarked that the whole object of the British constitution was to get twelve honest men into the jury box. So far as establishing an indisputable guarantee for personal liberty and freedom of thought and action under a monarchical form of government is concerned, the observation of the English statesman was most just. But under our institutions, secured, as we hope, permanently by written constitutions, the interpretation of the constitution, the administration of justice and the preservation of social order rests chiefly with the judges. Our rights of property, our domestic peace, our social relations, our reputations, the activities of trade, agriculture and manufactures, are all under the guardianship of the judiciary. Every individual in the community is dependent upon its efficiency, and any one is liable to the necessity of appealing to it for his protection.

In the selection of persons to discharge such important and enduring trusts, what considerations ought to control the people? The behests of any political chieftain certainly ought not to be an element in the choice. Neither should the transient success of a partisan triumph disturb the impartiality of the people's judgment. The administration of the law, falling like the dew of heaven upon all men alike, should not have its blessings tainted by a partisan sentiment. What are the considerations, then, to be submitted to those nominating bodies which shall in the very near future propose the names of persons to be voted for as judges at the coming election? First—intellectual ability of a high order. Secondly—long and severe training in the study of law. Third—ripeness of judgment, attained through a reasonably extended practice in the courts; an intimate knowledge of human nature, to enable its possessor to weigh the credibility of testimony and to distinguish the true from the false in the ever varying conflicts of personal testimony. Fourth—an integrity which is spotless; an impartiality of mental and moral constitution which cannot be blinded by sophistry nor warped by favoritism; a courage which will not quail before popular clamor; a patience which will not weary, and an industry which will not flag in the pursuit of truth and justice, and that no less important quality, quickness and promptness in dispatching business, and finally a dignity which shall command respect, and an amenity of manner which will encourage the diffident, and take away the sting of defeat from the unsuccessful advocate. All these qualities are essentials of the perfect judge.

It is reasonable to suppose, if the political party which is so largely in the ascendant in Baltimore, actuated by the motives which have been suggested, and through nominating agencies controlled by that patriotic spirit which on other occasions we have endeavored to show should alone govern them in the presentation of candidates, shall present for popular suffrage men worthy of such exalted station, that there will be no organized opposition of a partisan character. Indeed there are plain intimations that such a feeling exists, and it needs but to be encouraged to end in the happiest results. It would be most lamentable to witness a scramble for the office of judge, and to have the judicial urns soiled in the mire of partisan passions. We can be saved from all danger and public opinion lifted to the plane of pure solicitude for the general welfare if the thoughtful men of both political parties, and especially those of the dominant party, shall speak out in time and give proper direction to the current.

It begins to look as if the labour strikes were about to end.

THE BALTIMORE ORIOLE

The Order of the Oriole of Baltimore held a general meeting last week at which plans had been matured for the September pageant, were reported together with plans, &c., of the entire procession, showing the character of the celebration. The celebration will last three days, covering the anniversary of that city's defence, September 12, and the two succeeding days. The programme will include a splendid military display, a royal day pageant incident to the reception of Cecilius, Lord of Baltimore, and a grand night pageant of brilliant tableaux, comprising a larger number of floats than has ever been put on wheels in any city of America. There will also be a brilliant assemblage and a royal reception by card at the Academy of Music, where it is expected Rex and perhaps the beautiful Queen of the Carnival of New Orleans, the maids of honor and many of the royal dukes and dignitaries of the Mardi Gras festival last year will be guests of the ladies and gentlemen of Baltimore. It is very generally desired by all the members of the Order of the Oriole to extend the utmost hospitality to the dignitaries of the carnival from New Orleans in return for the kindness and consideration shown the ladies and gentlemen of Baltimore last spring, and the social aspect of the celebration will therefore be, no doubt, one of its brightest features.—Sun.

The papers report great fires in Massachusetts, one was in two parts, each over two miles wide. The other at latest accounts was six miles wide and rapidly approaching a village which it was thought could not be saved, the destruction is terrible.

JUDGE BROWN of Baltimore has sentenced a wife beater to receive 30 lashes. There are stirring times ahead for these brutal offenders.

THE original of Rebecca, the heroine of Scott's "Ivanhoe," was a Philadelphia Jewess—Rebecca Gratz. She was a friend of Irving's early love—Matilda Hoffman. Irving told Scott about her, and he made her the heroine of his most popular novel. The September Century will contain her portrait, engraved by Cole from a miniature by Malbone, owned by Mrs. Rebecca Gratz Nathan.

LETTER FROM COLORADO.

Special Correspondence.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 8, 1882.

The tourist in search of either health or pleasure may profitably spend many days, or even weeks, in the vicinity of Colorado Springs. To the health seekers the air here is probably more exhilarating and bracing than that of the higher altitudes, or of any other place in the State, except, possibly, Idaho Springs, about one hundred miles further north. And then the various points of interest near here, some of which I mentioned in my last letter, furnish ample sources of amusement to the explorer. Then, too, from whatever point you view them it is impossible to avoid an ever recurring feeling of admiration for the grandeur of the two lofty mountains always before you—the majestic appearance of Pike's Peak, towering above the line of mountains around it, and the beautiful Cheyenne, whose massive contour is so striking as to make you overlook the fact that its height is several hundred feet less than Pike's. There is a unity of conception in its unpassed by any mountain I have ever seen, and you feel that it is full of living power. "Pike's Peak or bust," is as much the cry now as it was in the earlier days, and all who feel equal to the task invariably climb its rugged ascent and then lay by a few days for repairs.

In 1540 Coronado was sent into this region by those old fellow Spaniards who were consumed with that fierce hunger for gold which induced them to scour the earth in search of it; and eighty years before the Pilgrim Fathers landed upon Plymouth Rock he was perishingly traversing the San Luis Park and, perhaps, seeing the West Mountain Valley lying, as it does to day, green and fertile between the two ranges. But he went away disappointed after all. Then in 1806, when Mr. Jefferson was President, and Aaron Burr was engaged in his treacherable conspiracy to found a new empire west of the Alleghenies, Lieutenant Zebulon Pike, an adventurous and persevering officer of the army, was ordered to proceed westward and explore the region between the Missouri River and the frontier of Mexico, which then included considerable territory now belonging to the United States. He left St. Louis on the 24th of June and camped in the foot-hills near this point on the 26th of November. To-day the same journey may be made in less than sixty hours, and the traveler need not go into camp upon arrival here either, but may be assigned a comfortable room by a hotel clerk with eye-glasses. Pike saw the great peak on the 15th of November—just as travelers by rail now see it when at least 150 miles distant. It appeared, he said, "like a small blue cloud," and on the 17th he "marched at the usual hour, pushed with the idea of arriving at the mountains that night; but found when night came no visible difference in their appearance from yesterday." And on the 25th he again "marched early with the expectation of ascending the mountain, but was only able to camp at its base." This recalls the old stories we have so often heard about the deceptive distances in the clear atmosphere. It is absolutely true that mountains twenty miles distance appear to be near enough for a morning walk before breakfast. Probably the reader has heard about the Englishman who wouldn't jump a three foot irrigating ditch because he "couldn't tell, by Jove, you know, that the blasted thing wasn't three-quarters of a mile wide." But to return to Pike. He called his discovered peak Mexican Mountain, and left others to give it his name. Upon the very top of it, where cold winds blow and snow equals cold at nearly all seasons of the year, a Government signal station is now maintained, the officers in charge living there a portion of the time.

It was the "old, old story" which turned the tide of emigration in this direction. People probably never wanted gold more than after the panic of 1856, and the report of its finding here the following year caused such a stampede across the plains as has never been equaled, except in early California's days. Events moved rapidly, and in the winter of 1860—61 a Territorial Legislature, numbering some twenty-five devoted patriots, met at what was then Colorado City, located just about where Pike, followed by Fremont in 1848, had each pitched their tents. The remains of this old Capital are still to be seen less than two miles from the town of Colorado Springs, or about midway between here and Manitou. The "city" consists of four or five rough adobe frame buildings, never much more than shanties, but now sadly dilapidated.—The old state house is still standing like some sea-faring hulk left high and dry upon a deserted beach. Tradition states that it contained three rooms: in one the members met, in another they slept, while in the third was that always necessary adjunct of a legislative body—the bar. In the course of the proceedings, at the first session, I believe, a motion was made to transfer the seat of government to Denver, then a sprig of a town. "And we carried our point," said an entertaining pioneer with whom it has been my good fortune to converse, "because we had the best wagon, and four mules, and the most whiskey." This old "state house" has until recently been a station for retailing "hay and feed" to the mule teams traversing the mountain roads, and in another of the buildings "chain lightning" and lager beer have been supplied to the drivers. Alas, for departed greatness; the remains of it are found in this now frontier country, as in the historical lands of the old world.

THE "PRACTICAL" DIFFERENCE BETWEEN POETRY AND PHILOSOPHY.—It sounds very poetic to say "man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," but why not apply the principle to the more practical side of the subject, and render the quotation thus:—"Swayne's Ointment on account of stopping the itching caused by the Files has made countless thousands well and happy." There would be sound logic in this but poets are never cheerful, are they?

GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS.—The following list shows the bills to erect public buildings, with the amount to be expended, that have passed both houses of Congress during this session: Hannibal, Mo., $75,000; Louisville, Ky., $500,000; Rochester, N. THE officer of Registration says a large percentage of persons who come to be registered, say they would not have known of the registration, had not others told them. This shows that the mode of publishing the notices has been at fault.

Run Off.

ON Monday evening a horse attached to a buggy, that was being driven along the turnpike road, ran off; on reaching the square in town he became detached from the vehicle, and attempted to enter the Post Office; being about half way in Mr. McNair signified his objections and backed him out again.

THE Republican county central committee held a meeting in Frederick on last Saturday, and fixed upon Saturday, August 29th as the time for holding primaries in the district, and Saturday, August 30th for holding the county convention to select delegates to the judicial and congressional conventions.

List of Letters.

The following letters remain in the Post Office, Emmitsburg, Md., August 14th, 1882. Persons calling will please say advertisers, otherwise they may not receive them:

Miss Annie Gool, John Kimmel, Mrs. Mary J. Linn, Miss Annie E. Rosenfeld.

EX-U. S. Senator Geo. R. Dennis, died at his residence near Kinston, Somerset county, this state, on last Sunday, aged 60 years. The funeral took place on Monday from St. Andrew's P. E. Church, Princess Anne, and was an immense gathering, and a high tribute to the memory of a great man most highly esteemed.

SISTER AGNES GUBERT, who possessed a most remarkable voice, having the range of both soprano and alto, and who was, perhaps, the most distinguished teacher of vocal music connected with the Roman Catholic Sisterhood in this land, died on Sunday 6th inst. at St. Agnes Hospital, Maiden Church lane near Baltimore, aged 50 years.

AN Intelligent Cow belonging to Mr. Geo. W. Philippi, of New Centerville, Somerset county, Pa., strayed off and got into a neighbour's stock yard, and in the evening was shut in with the other animals. She butted off some of the pailings from the gate, but not being able to get her body through between the frames, she lifted the gate from its hinges and carried it home on her horns.

WE continue our warning against burglars. Petty thieving is on the increase. The guns are generally all ready, and the surgeons are impatient to get to work. The inconvenience of carrying shot in the body, the loss of time, and the weariness of being laid up, if not the cold "abstraction" of being "planted," should be considered by those whose enterprise leads them in doubtful ways.

Committed.

Uncle Peter Brown's new vest was found well concealed on the premises of John Constant, the other week, and the evidences of his guilt were so convincing that Justice Stokes committed him to the care of the Sheriff. The Constable also discovered, near the vest, a lot of plums, as like those Mr. McNair was deprived of, as two pins are to one another.

A HORSE belonging to Mr. Carlton Keller, tenant on Rev. L. A. Mann's farm, two miles this side of Jefferson, met with a singular death about ten days ago. The knot on a rope halter with which it was tied, failed to slip, and when the animal pulled against the halter it closed both mouth and nostrils and strangled it to death.—Valley Register.

A BOY Terribly Mangled, HAGERSTOWN, August 11.—A shocking and probably fatal accident occurred this forenoon at Huggett & Schindler's bone mill, in this town. A lad employed in the establishment, named Edward Cunningham, whilst endeavoring to place a belt upon a pulley was caught in the shafting and whirled around at a fearful velocity, finally dropping to the floor shockingly mangled, the left arm and leg being broken and torn off. He was otherwise terribly cut and bruised. The boy has since died.—Bal. American.

BEST ever made, Emory's Little Cathartic Pills, pleasant to take, sugar-coated, no griping; only 15 cents a box, of Druggists or by mail. Standard Cure Co., 114 Nassau Street, New York. 8m

Just Indignation.

The editor of the Clarion seems to be indignant, and we thing justly so at an attempt of certain parties to induce his hired girl, to leave, by offering higher wages. It is hardly possible to conceive of any thing more despicably mean, than the underhand effort to deprive people of the services of those in their employ.

That's What's the Matter!

"The old Man" has been as cross as a bear for a week past. No wonder that bread is heavy enough to kill an ostrich. Go right to Bussey's and get a package of "Dry Hop Yeast," it will cost you but 10 cents for one dozen cakes. Give the "Old Man" some light bread, and he will "smile again."

A Family Nearly Poisoned.

An attempt at wholesale poisoning was made on Thursday on the family of Mr. Benjamin Jackson, of Sharpsburg, by some party or parties yet unknown placing large quantities of Paris green in the week's baking, consisting of rolls, biscuits and bread. Happily the outrage was discovered before the family had eaten any of the poisoned food.—Examiner.

CIRCULARS are being sent to soldiers in different sections of the country, by western parties, saying that for the sum of $10, a hundred and sixty acres of good land will be secured without the formality of occupying it for four years, less the time of service in the army, as provided by law. The land commissioner at Washington states that the law remains unchanged, and that the circulars are for the purpose of deception. Soldiers will therefore take warning.

A Supposed Coal Deposit.

FROSTBURG, Md., August 9.—Mine Inspector Thomas Brown went to Oakland yesterday, at the request of Judge Ritchie, to examine into the supposed deposit of coal on a tract of land between four and five hundred acres belonging to the Judge, and located six miles above Oakland. Mr. Brown was satisfied there was coal there, but in what quantities he does not know. He goes back tomorrow to investigate further.

"Let Him Who Wins it Bear the Palm."

"He who cures the fish of flesh" quoth the sage, "is even greater than he who conquers in war." Certain it is then that Dr. Swayne has earned the laurel of greatness. His Ointment for skin diseases has been the means of releasing thousands from the indescribable horrors of that complaint. The best evidence of an article is obtained by a practical test, and the unsolicited endorsement of those who profit by its use.

Church Fair.

COMMUNICATED.

MR. EDITOR: A fair that commenced in St. Vincent's Hall on Tuesday at noon has been in successful progress ever since. The proceeds reached $92 on Tuesday night, on Wednesday $50, and Thursday $79.66. The first prize on Wednesday evening was drawn by Mr. Frank White, who secured a rabbit. The fair will continue some days. The ladies are very grateful for the patronage bestowed upon their efforts, and hope it will continue.

Church Pic-Nic.

THE Annual reunion Picnic of the Presbyterian congregations of Emmitsburg, Taneytown and Piney Creek, was held in the woods adjoining the Piney Creek church, on Thursday, and as usual was attended by large numbers of all the congregations. The day was as beautiful as possibly could be, and every one seemed to enjoy themselves, and when the time came to leave they all seemed loath to part. The usual games and rural amusements were heartily enjoyed by all.

A Terrible Fall.

ON Friday morning last four painters, Messrs. John Winters, Henry R. Lampe, Edward Murry and Jacob Veit, whilst engaged in the preliminary work of frescoing the ceiling of the Methodist Episcopal Church in this city, met with a mishap that was not one of the contract. In making their rounds on the scaffolding they unfortunately came together, it seems, on a single board which was supported by a defective plank nailed edge-ways to the scaffolding. The result was that the board broke under the too great weight and the men were precipitated, the two first named into the gallery, and the others to the floor below, a distance of about 20 feet. With the exception of Veit, however, who fell in one of the pews, a number of painful bruises was the extent of the injuries received. Veit was taken to his home, suffering it was feared with some internal hurt, but we are glad to state that such was not the case and that he is now rapidly recovering. The accident attracted a large crowd of persons.—Examiner.

Tribute of Respect.

At a meeting of the Consistory of the Reformed Church at Emmitsburg, held on the Tenth Sunday after Trinity, (August 13th, 1882), the following action was taken:

Whereas it has pleased God in His all wise Providence, to remove by death our beloved brother, Elder Mathias P. Zacharias, after a lingering illness—

Resolved that this consistory, bowing in humble submission to the Divine will, recognizes the wisdom that seeth, as we cannot, and knoweth best how to dispose of our lives.

Resolved that in the exemplary Christian life, fidelity in office and patience under suffering, our departed brother has left us an example worthy of imitation; and that his death, in the prime of manhood, should be regarded as a call to renewed diligence on the part of us who survive, and increased vigilance in the discharge of duty, that our latter end, like his, may be blessed.

Resolved that we sincerely sympathize with his wife and his family in their bereavement, and commend them to the comforting promises of the Holy Gospel.

Resolved that these proceedings be entered upon the records, and that a copy of them be sent, by the secretary, to Mrs. Zacharias, and that they be published in the Messenger and the EMMITTSBURG CHRONICLE.

(Signed)

SAMUEL MOTTER, Secretary.

From the Gettysburg Compiler.

The Reformed congregation of Hanover has extended a call to Rev. Henry M. Kieffer, of Norristown.

W. H. Bayly, Esq., of this place, has been appointed to a $1,200 clerkship in the pension office at Washington.

It is estimated that the tobacco crop of Lancaster county will not average more than five hundred pounds to the acre.

Shenandoah, Pa., August 12.—Yesterday while Robert Parker and Hiram Neiswiter were engaged in shooting a pigeon match on the Ringtown mountain, one of the birds flew toward Parker, when Neiswiter fired and shot Parker, tearing the top of his head off and scattering his brains around for several yards. Parker died shortly after being removed to his home. Neiswiter surrendered himself to the authorities.

From the Star and Sentinel.

Last week Black Earnshaw, found in Culp's field a U. S. breast-plate, bearing the name of W. H. Smith, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ON Monday Mrs. Henry Garlach, of this place, had all of the fingers on her left hand crushed by a stove falling on them.

A most dastardly attempt, thrice repeated, to fire the house of Mr. Elias Waltman, of Littlestown, by some sneaking felon, after pilfering the sum of $24.00, occasioned quite a sensation on last Monday evening. The guilty party has since made confession, and the stolen money has been returned.

Lancaster city has been suffering from a series of incendiary fires. On Sunday afternoon the barn of Samuel N. Wetzel, on East King street, opposite the County prison, was fired and burnt with contents; loss $2500. While this fire was in progress the County Insane Asylum was found to be on fire, a three story building 100 feet front with a 100 feet wing extending to the rear. The building and furniture were destroyed; loss $100,000. There were 114 persons confined in the building, but all were safely removed.

From the Maryland Union.

ON Thursday last The Maryland Union was sold at private sale to Mr. O. C. Warehouse, of Hanover, Pa., who will take charge of the paper next week. It will be democratic, and we bespeak for it a hearty support.

One day last week while Postmaster Miller and Dr. Barnes, of this city, were out gunning, they came across an enormous horned owl near Mr. George Padgett's in Buckeystown District. Mr. Miller took a shot at it as it was flying over them and brought it down with a broken wing. It fell at his feet and made fight, but a rail brought it to terms. Mr. Miller brought it home with him, and it measured four feet, six inches, from tip to tip.

Registrar's Work.

Up to noon to-day, (Friday) the Registrar of this district, has recorded 23 names this week, making in all thus far registered 429.

From the Keystone Gazette.

Alfred H. Adams, Esq., the well-known editor of the Carlisle Herald met with a serious accident at the South Mountain Junction recently. He was standing on the rear platform of a car when the sudden putting on of the air brakes caused him to fall violently to the ground, sustaining bodily injuries, and it is feared internal, also.

The mill known as the "shoddy mill" at Woodstock, this county, was destroyed by fire on Monday morning last. The loss is about 8,000. It is said that valuable machinery to the amount of $4,000 was but recently added to it. In the mill at the time of the fire were 18,000 pounds of shoddy, 11,000 in process of manufacture, and about 7,000 manufactured. An insurance of $5,300 on the stock and $500 on the building. The mill was operated by Mr. Chas. Schreiber, of Chambersburg, and owned by Mrs. T. J. Nill of Greencastle. So says the Opinion.

We are glad to announce that the new copper company known as the "Head Light" which recently purchased, through Dr. I. N. Snively of this place the well known mineral property on South Mountain owned by Mr. Washington Benchoff have struck a well defined vein of copper bearing rock over five feet in thickness after tunneling into the hill about 25 feet. The vein is near the surface and is not very rich but carries native copper, red oxide, green and blue carbonate, all in the same ore. A prominent expert who examined it yesterday thinks it will rapidly widen and grow richer as it is followed into the earth.

ON Thursday evening last as the Pennar Orchestra was being conveyed to this place in a bus, driven by Andrew Kauffman, an accident occurred which might have resulted seriously with the occupants. When near town they were descending a steep hill, and the rubber breaking, the vehicle ran on the horses heels, scaring and causing them to run at a frightful speed, the driver not getting control of the animals until they ran a considerable distance, which happened at the foot of another big hill.

No damage was done, but the occupants had a complete shaking up and said they were pretty badly scared. The Prof. thinks the next time he comes to Waynesboro he will take the cars, and avoid a repetition of the last trip.
