Winter Green.

BY E. W. GOSSE.

To-day the winter woods are wet, And chill with airs that miss the sun; The autumn of the year is done, Its leaves all fallen, its flower-stars set, Its frosty hours begun.

Should last year's gold narcissus yearn For next year's roses, oh! how vain! No brief dead flowers arise again, But each sweet little life in turn, Must shoot and bloom and wane.

Sweet, had the years that slip so fast Brought you too soon or me too late! How had we gnashed our teeth at fate! And wandered down to death, at last, Forlorn, disconsolate.

Surely before the stars were sure, Before the moon was set in heaven, Your unborn soul to mine was given, Your clear white spirit, rare and pure, For me was formed and shriven.

Ah! surely no time ever was When we were not; and our soul's light Made those cold spaces infinite That lie between the years like glass, Seen only in God's sight!

How'er it be, my one desire, If chance has brought us face to face, Or if the scheme of things found place To store our twin hearts light and fire In strange forcing grace—

How'er it be, for us at least The woodland pathways are not dark, New lights are on the boughs and bark, And in the rainless sunset east, We hear a mounting lark.

The Spider Webb.

Who but a fairy

Ever lived in a house so airy? A bit of cloud tied fast, as it were, And framed of the finest gossamer. A wonderful, shining, silky house, Swaying here in the sweet-brier boughs. Sprite of some kind, queen of the air, Must needs be the one for a home so fair.

Does she, I wonder, Stand these pale pink blossoms under, Dressed in a skirt of vapory blue, All sprangled over with drops of dew? Does she wear a crown, and in her hand Carry aloft a long gold wand? Has she wings to fly with, gauzy, green? And where are the folk she rules as queen?

I look and linger, And touch the web with careful finger; When—in an eager, crafty way— Out leaps a little gnome in gray! The tiniest ogre that ever sat, And watched for prey at his castle gate, His eight long arms so strong and bold With which to seize and strangle and hold!

Should he discover Some truant creature passing over— A bee or fly on tired wing, Careless and fond of loitering, I wonder if a mimic roar, Will reach its ears from out his door: "Pe, fi, fo, fum! fe, fi, fo, fum! I will have some!" I will have some!" —Youth's Companion

DO THE DUTY AT HOME FIRST.

"I despise this horrid life. If I only had a chance of making something of myself—but it is work, work, work, no time for anything but work. Some people get on as by magic. I believe life is a lottery, after all, and I am going to try my my luck in the casting of stones. I have all faith in the number nine. If I can hit that maple more times out of nine than I miss it, I'll be somebody. If I fail, I'll go on like the nobodies around me."

The sleepy figure in the grass sat upright, and commenced pelting the innocent tree with pebbles. "Hit, miss, miss, miss, hit, miss, miss—no use! I'll try no more. Five unlucky throws out of seven."

"For shame, boy, to call this noble, intense life a lottery, and try your destiny for time and eternity with bits of stones thrown from a lazy, indolent hand. Get up, and take hold of life in earnest. Turn something up, instead of lying there waiting for something to turn up."

The big straw hat in the grass turned slowly against the gentleman in the sulky, who had stopped beneath the spreading boughs of the great oak to allow his thirsty steed the benefit of the cooling draught that trickled through the fissures of the rock into the rough trough.

"I am the new doctor, who has put out a sign in the neighboring town of Elton," said the voice, which had aroused the boy. "Now, tell me who you are, and what you are doing here."

"My name is Joe Harkness."

"Joseph, you mean," said the doctor.

"Yes, but I am too lazy to say it, and I came out of that old farm house you see on the hill there to dig taters for the dinner."

"First potatoes I ever saw grow at the roots of timothy," laughed the doctor.

"Patch is across the run. I stopped here to rest."

"And carve out a grand fortune by dreaming. How long have you been here?" Long enough I dare say, to have dug and cooked them too."

Joe's only answer was a grin.

"Let me tell you, boy, the very foundation of true greatness consists in doing your every-day work in the very best manner possible. Let it be digging potatoes, hoeing corn, blacking boots, studying a lesson, or even playing a game of ball, go to work determined to succeed. Get all the pleasure and good out of your every-day work. What is worth doing at all is worth doing well, ought to be printed in letters of gold and nailed over every door in the land. Make this your own motto, and you will never need to spell f-a-i-l!"

"I do not want to spend my whole life digging and delving. I want to go to college and know something. I am tired of work."

"Then, my boy, you will have to be transplanted to a more heavenly soil, for I tell you there is no success anywhere on earth without incessant toil. You will have to dig, dig, dig for knowledge, if you are ever its possessor. Let me see, How old are you?"

"Fourteen, sir."

"And what do you know of books?"

"I've been twice through arithmetic, know something of geography, and despise grammar and spelling."

"And they are at war with you, I observe. You will never be a scholar until you have a fair fight with these two chief corner-stones, and come off victor. You must be master at every step of the way. Nor must you cut across lots in order to shorten your journey. Men often try this way, but they find so many ups and downs, so many streams and swamps, that if they do not lose themselves altogether, they will find their road, though shorter, by an air line, in reality much longer than the lawful route. There is a great deal of going across lots to make a beggar of a man in this world. Do you go to school?"

"Only in winter. I have no time in summer."

"What do you do with your odd moments and rainy days?"

"Rest."

"Hm! I see you are not worth saving. Never will amount to anything. Why, boy, don't you know some of the greatest men who are alive to-day, or who ever lived, received no education, except what they gained in their odd moments? Wake up and catch these minutes as they fly. Rest assured they will not wait for you. Study all spare time and go to school wet days."

"But our teacher is a woman," replied Joe.

"Well, ain't your mother a woman?"

"None of the fellows go to a woman."

"Why?"

"Who wants to be managed by a woman? You must take me for a coward."

"A most despicable coward, to speak of a woman in such a way. If you cannot help this teacher manage these young savages, and one in particular, the sooner you are transferred to the care of the angels the better. Has your teacher a certificate?"

"Of course, or she would not have been employed."

"Then she is capable of teaching you a few things."

"The boys would laugh at me."

"Be a brave boy! But there is your mother calling you to bring the potatoes, so I'll bid you good day, and hope you will make up your mind to do the work before you and give up dreaming about something great, which you are too lazy to achieve."

The hint was not lost upon the boy, it set him to thinking earnestly and with the thought came the determination to take the advice so plainly given, and in after years he had reached a position of prominence, he often spoke of the time the doctor found him dreaming in the grass, as the turning point of his life.

The Old Rail Fence.

The placing of barbed wire fence around farms, usurping the place of the old rail fence, destroys half of the pleasure of farming. There is something about the old rail fence that is real comfortable, and the barbed wire fence is forbidding, cold, repulsive. Until you come to think of it, there does not seem as though there was a great deal of solid comfort in a rail fence, but there is. Did you ever see two old farmers leaning against a rail fence, whittling and talking politics or a horse trade for hours together? They are more comfortable, and rest more than they would if they were occupying the softest sofa or the best stuffed arm chair in the world. There are so many shapes a man can get into to rest about a rail fence. First the farmer will fold his arms and rest them on the top rail and lean his breast on the fence and talk for half an hour, until his legs are tired, then he will step one foot up on the second rail from the bottom, and stand and whittle for half an hour until the top of the rail is as polished as a piece of mahogany. Then he will change feet and lean one elbow on the second rail from the top, and sharpen his knife on his boot and talk for half an hour about how he is going to pay the mortgage on his farm next year. After that position becomes irksome he will turn his back to the fence, stand on his heels, and place his two elbows on the top rail, and lean against the fence, and for half an hour he will tell about how the old mare that he is trying to trade off cleared out the teams on the road coming back from the celebration at town, after the fireworks on the Fourth, and how if he wasn't fixed just as he is, and wanted the twenty dollars boot money to send Nathan off to the select school, there is no man on earth can buy that mare. Then he will get tired and stand around sideways, put his left arm up on the fence, and begin to whittle again, and swear the man who runs the cheese factory down at the corner is skinning us farmers out of our eye teeth. Without going into details as to ninety-nine other combinations by which a farmer can rest on, about or against a rail fence, it may not be out of place to speak of sitting on top of a fence. The farmers, after trying several positions, will instinctively climb up the fence and rest on the top rail, their feet resting on the third rail from the top, which is always laid with projection enough to make good footing, and an hour will pass as the fellows talk of the times when they settled in the country, and of the hardships they have endured, and how the children have grown up and gone away, and the conversation will drift into a sleepy channel, and the sun will begin to sink in the west, and the hornyhanded sons of toil will suddenly remember that the chores are to be done, and with a "good-night, Lige," and a "Drop around agin tomorrow, Ike," they will separate, and one will take a milk-pail and a one legged stool and go towards the lot where the cows have come home while the other will go across the road to the barn and throw down some hay for the horses, and they will both go to bed at eight o'clock as tired as though they had been moving. But they had a splendid easy visit on the old fence.

THE celebrated remedy Kidney-Wort can now be obtained in the usual dry vegetable form, or in liquid form. It is put up in the latter way for the especial convenience of those who cannot readily prepare it. It will be found very concentrated and will act with equal efficiency in either case. Be sure and read the new advertisement for particulars.—South and West.

"Pa, are we going to have any girlvanized iron on our new house?" "Any w-h-a-t?" "Any girlvanized iron?" "Galvanized you mean, don't you?" "Yes, ya; but teacher says we musn't say gal; it's girl!"

DON'T DIE IN THE HOUSE.—Ask druggists for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, bedbugs, roaches, vermin, flies, ants, insects. 15c.

Some Familiar Sayings.

Shakespeare gives us more pithy sayings than any other author. From him we call: "Count their chickens ere they're hatched," "Make assurance doubly sure," "Look before you leap," "Christmas comes but once a year." Washington Irving gives us the "Almighty dollar." Thomas Norton quarried long ago, "What will Mrs. Grundy say?" while Goldsmith answers "Ask me no questions and I'll tell you no fibs." Thomas Tusser, a writer of the sixteenth century, gives us "It's an ill wind that turns no good." "Better late than never," "Look ere you leap," and "The stone that is rolling will gather no moss." All cry and no wool! is found in Butler's "Hudibras." Dryden says: "None but the brave deserve the fair," "Men are but children of a larger growth," "Through thick and thin," Of two evils I have chosen the least," and "The end must justify the means," are from Matthew Prior. We are indebted to Colley Cibber for the agreeable intelligence that "Richard is himself again." Cowper tells us that "Variety is the spice of life." To Milton we owe "The Paradise of Fools." From Bacon comes "Knowledge is power," and Thomas Southey reminds us that "Pity's akin to love." Dean Swift thought that "Bread is the staff of life." Campbell found that "Coming events cast their shadows before," "Tis distance lends enchantment to the view." "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," is from Keats. Franklin says "God helps them who help themselves," and Lawrence Sterne comforts us with the thought that "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

Pre-Indian Relics from Virginia.

Mr. M. S. Valentine, of Richmond, Va., has sent to the Anthropological Institute of London, for exhibition, a collection of very curious articles fashioned in soapstone and clay, which were found lately between the ranges of the Blue and Alleghany Mountains, near Mount Pisgah, N. C. The objects are said to be of a type absolutely unique, consisting partly of animal figures, either in the round or in various degrees of relief. Some are household utensils. They appear to have been sculptured by metal instruments, so perfect is their workmanship. The human type is alike in the various objects, but is not Indian. All are fully clothed in tight-fitting garments. Some are seated in arm-chairs, others on all sorts of animals—bears, prairie dogs, birds, and other shapes belonging to North America. But some also represent types of the Old World, such as the two humped camel, rhinoceros, hippopotamus. Some of the specimens were obviously made since the advent of the whites, and these are fresher-looking and of ruder workmanship. The inference hazarded is that the articles were made by an earlier and more civilized race, subjugated and partially destroyed by the Indians found in Virginia on the arrival of white men.—Scientific American.

"I've got such an appetite!" exclaimed Mrs. Brown, at the end of the first week at the shore. I feel as though I could eat all before me." "Yes, so I perceive," replied the landlady, gloomily. The landlady had reason to be sad

JOHN C. MOTTER, Esq., of Frederick, and John T. Vinson, of Rockville, were nominated on the 23d inst., by the republican judicial convention at Point of Rocks for associate judges of the sixth judicial circuit of Maryland.

THE Editor of the Old Fellow has been sick, and his ailments cover pretty well the body of Nosology, known and unknown. The greater the conflict, the more glorious the victory! We trust he may beat himself bravely.

AFTER the next sitting of the registration officers, those who fail to register, being self-disenfranchised, will have their mouths closed, if inefficient officers are elected or objectionable laws are enacted, indifference in this matter is disloyalty to government.

That's What's the Matter! "The old Man" has been as cross as a bear for a week past. No wonder that bread is heavy enough to kill an ostrich. Go right to Bussey's and get a package of "Dry Hop Yeast," it will cost you but 10 cents for one dozen cakes. Give the "Old Man" some light bread, and he will "smile again."

Rev. W. A. GRING, late Pastor of the Reformed Church in this place, and his family have gone to reside in Somerset, Pa. His leave taking among his late parishioners, was one of sadness on all sides, and the best wishes of his numerous friends attend him, for his welfare and success in his new home.

Election Next Year. The election next year will be for Governor, Comptroller, Attorney General, Senator and delegates, Sheriff, State's Attorney, County Commissioners, Judges of the Orphan's Court and Surveyor. In Baltimore city it will be for Mayor, Sheriff, State's Attorney, Judges of the Orphan's Court and both branches of the City Councils.

GOVERNOR HOYT has appointed Professor Charles J. Little, of Carlisle, State Librarian, in place of Charles H. Ehrenfeldt, resigned. Professor Little is connected with Dickinson College and two years ago ran against Belzhoover for Congress in this district. Dr. Ehrenfeldt, the retiring State Librarian, has accepted a Professorship in Wittenberg, Ohio. —Star and Sentinel.

READ the advertisement of the Washington county Agricultural and Mechanical Association. The exhibition this year promises even to surpass those of the past. The arrangements of the grounds, the buildings, and all its appointments offer unusual inducements for visitors and exhibitors to attend the Fair, with the new facilities presented by the Water works just recently completed, the Fair cannot fail to be successful throughout.

THE Maryland Synod of the Ev. Lutheran Church will hold its 63d annual session in this place, to begin next Wednesday evening, (Oct. 4th). It is composed of 65 ministers, and 46 lay delegates and the representation from corresponding bodies being added will make the number connected with the body 120, which itself represents nearly 13000 communicant members. We present in another column a directory of the synod, kindly furnished for publication, and we trust it will prove convenient for reference.

"What Alexander might have Done." The late Czar of Russia was eminent, a great man, as his action in liberating thirty-six million serfs from slavery qualified him to be. Yet with all his greatness, Alexander left it to Dr. Swayne to liberate the world from the annoyance and pain of scores of skin diseases, by producing Swayne's Ointment. Think of the tens, hundreds, thousands it has cured, and then remember it is economical, effective, reliable, and pure, and if you only try it you will have a cure. 1m

A Hotel Burned. CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 25.—The Centennial Hotel, formerly the Potomac House, in this city, was partially destroyed by fire tonight. Basil Garlitz is the proprietor, and the building is owned by his wife. Most of the furniture was saved, though much of it was damaged. There is $5,000 insurance on the building, which will more than cover the loss. Owing to the bursting of the city water main there was great difficulty in extinguishing the fire. Many other buildings were threatened, but none damaged.

[COMMUNICATED] DIED.—In St. Louis, Missouri, William David Agnew, third son of John and Kate Agnew, aged 21 years.

This young gentleman was born in Emmitsburg, Maryland. His life, though short, had been useful, and his record is certainly a balm to his widowed mother and friends, who now share the sympathy of those who knew and loved them.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, for their works follow them."

FATHER VILLIGER, a well known Catholic priest, was found dead in his bed on Wednesday morning, 20th inst. He was a man of unblemished honor, sincere religion, purity of life and social and private virtues. His career of usefulness was crowned by old age, and he died the beloved Pastor of Littlestown Congregation. For many years he served as a missionary priest, preaching in four or five different languages. His sermons were very eloquent, and his lectures came from his heart and made a very happy and lasting impression.

"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the Crown."—Apoc. 10.

Terrible Fight With a Dog. Yesterday morning a son of Mr. John Rice, residing on Little Valley road, had a terrible encounter with a vicious bulldog. Young Rice, who is about 23 years old, went to a neighbor's house, where he had previously been employed. On entering the gate, the dog immediately attacked him, grabbing for the throat. He was three times thrown off, and then the young man reached the porch, some five feet high. Here the dog attacked him again, and the two fell off the porch. In the fall Mr. Rice sprained his ankle and the dog got him down. By this time help came, and the dog had to be killed before he would let go. —Cumberland Times, of Saturday.

A Wait. On Monday night at about ten o'clock Dr. Eph H. Kline, living at the first toll-gate on the Frederick and Woodsboro turnpike, heard a peculiar cry near his house and on going out found a supposed white female babe, aged about four or five months lying in his buggy, kicking and crying. The child was well dressed and its appearance gave evidence of its having been well cared for. A man dressed in black was seen in the vicinity some time before and was his apparently mysterious actions he is supposed to have had something to do with the precious find. The perpetrators of an act of this kind, if found, should be made to suffer the penalty of capital punishment. It is a disgrace upon civilization and an outrage upon humanity. —Examiner

Various Causes.—Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brassy, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its results, it is incomparable as a dressing, and is especially valuable for the soft luster and richness of tone it imparts.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye; and keeps the hair soft and supple, and it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous, imparting an agreeable perfume. For sale by all druggists.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor Doane at St. Joseph's Academy.

COMMUNICATED.

On the 27th inst. the Rt. Rev. Dr. Doane of Newark, New Jersey, visited this time honored Institution. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor celebrated the Silver Jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood a few days ago and he came to pay his respects to old friends at St. Joseph's, and to offer up, in their devotional Chapel, the Holy sacrifice of the Mass for the repose of the soul of the late Archbishop Bayley who when Bishop of Newark about twenty-five years ago conferred the sacred orders of priesthood on Monsignor Doane. The Rt. Rev. Dr. Doane is a ready, fluent and pleasant speaker and his affable disposition and suavity of manners please and impress all with a high estimation of his dignified and gentlemanly character. He made a pleasant and an appropriate speech for the young ladies of the Academy and among his remarks he said that it was a great blessing and honor and a source of pride for any young lady to be educated in such a grand Institution as St. Joseph's, where every facility is afforded to young ladies to acquire that thorough training and polished education that will fit them for every department of domestic and social life and render them worthy ornaments of society. It is the thorough training as well as the complete accommodations of this Institution that brings within its halls so many young ladies from every part of the country; here, under the care and teaching of the zealous and devoted Sisters of Charity, young ladies receive a thorough training and complete education. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor expressed his satisfaction at seeing so many young ladies in the Institution. He wound up his speech by giving them a holiday. VIATOR.

MALARIA, Chills and Fever, and bilious attacks positively cured with Emory's Standard Cure Pills—an infallible remedy; never fail to cure the most obstinate, long-standing cases where Quinine and all other remedies had failed.—They are prepared expressly for malarious sections, in double boxes, two kinds of Pills, containing a strong cathartic and a chill breaker, sugar-coated; contain no Quinine or Mercury, causing no griping or purging; they are mild and efficient, certain in their action and harmless in all cases; they effectually cleanse the system, and give new life and tone to the body. As a household remedy they are unequalled. For Liver Complaint their equal is not known; one box will have a wonderful effect on the worst case. They are used and prescribed by Physicians, and sold by Druggists everywhere, or sent by mail, 25 and 50 cent boxes. Emory's Little Cathartic Pills, best ever made, only 15 Cents.—Standard Cure Co., 114 Nassau Street New York. ap 23-8t
