THE SHADOW OF THE WORKING-MAN.

BY EUGENE C. PISK.

Behold you swiftly flying boat!
In conscious might it streams along;
With graceful lines and powerful frame,
It proudly bears its living throng.
To distant lands it ploughs its way,
And to the many wealth doth bring;
Its tidings from the absent friends
Are welcome as the smiling spring.
You see it cleave the restless wave,
And know old ocean's space 'twixt
span;
But, cast o'er all, can you behold
The shadow of the working man!
See, on the locomotive rush
With heading speed o'er iron road,
Like living, breathing monster, whom
Some unseen powers onward goad,
Through cities, towns, and shady dells,
O'er gurgling streams and woodland
glades,
It speeds you on with clang and roar;
Ay, 'neath mountains gloomy shades,
With ease it quickly bears along
Pilgrims of every tribe and clan;
but o'er each fleeting visit doest see
The shadow of the working man?
Come, gaze upon this mighty pile,
The spire of which in cloudland dwells,
Kissed by the sinking sun's last ray,
As gently chime the distant bells;
Come view its grandly massive walls,
Its pillars, halls, and arches true,
Which are so neatly, deftly wrought,
Without one flaw to meet the view.
O'er all this blended strength and grace,
As round it zephyrs gently fan,
Can you not see, in outline bold,
The shadow of the working man?
Go seek the lofty mountain height,
And there behold the glowing scene—
The forest, field and waving grain,
The rippling lakes, the meadows green;
Each beauty of the prospect view,
All thronged with busy, useful life,
Where once the gloomy wilds were seen,
Where savage revels once were rife.
Go, look upon all earth's broad face,
Replete with art and nature's plan;
And there, in bold relief you'll see
The shadow of the working man.

BEAUTIFUL THINGS.

BY ELLEN P. ALLESTON.

Beautiful faces are those that wear—
It matters little if dark or fair—
Whose soul's honesty printeth there.
Beautiful eyes are those that show,
Like crystal panes where lighthouse fires
glow,
Beautiful thoughts that burn below,
Beautiful lips are those whose words
Leap from the heart like songs of birds,
Yet whose utterance prudence guards.
Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest and brave and true,
Moment by moment the long day through
Beautiful feet are those that go
On kindly ministries to and fro—
Down lowliest ways, if God wills it so.
Beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Ceaseless burdens of homely care,
With patient grace and daily prayer.
Beautiful eyes are those that bless—
Silent rivers of Impossibility,
Whose hidden fountains but few may guss.

"POLITENESS PAYS."

Among the acquaintances of my youth there was one Peter Cox; and I am sorry to say that, from what little stock of patience he may have possessed, he invested none of it in politeness. At all events he did not do it when he entered business. Peter was a builder by trade, and one of the most thorough and faithful workmen in the country. If he undertook a contract, he was sure to perform his part punctually and properly. Still he was not always employed, for many who might otherwise have hired him, were repulsed by his uncouth manner of treating them, and sought assistance elsewhere.

"Peter," said his wife to him, one evening, "do you know that you have lost a good job by offending Mr. Graham?"
Peter looked up from his paper and asked her what she meant.
"I mean," she replied, "that Mr. Graham has hired Leavitt to build his new house."
"Well—what of it," said Peter, rather crustily.
"Why, I am very sure that he meant to have hired you to do the job; and that he would have done so had you not offended him."
"How did I offend him?"

"By not listening to him when he wished to describe the plan for the building."
"His plan was a foolish one."
"Well, suppose it was; if you had felt it to be your business to tell him there, you might have done it in a polite way."
"Bah!" cried Peter with a snap of his finger, "don't talk of politeness in business. If I were to bother myself to be polite to everybody who happened to call on me, I should have my hands full."
"I think it would pay," ventured the wife.
Peter hooped at the idea; and then told his wife that he wanted to read.

About a month after this Peter came home in unusual spirits. He had been out of work for some time, and he had been rather moody and crusty. His wife noticed the change and asked him what had happened.
"There's a prospect of work," he replied, "we are to have better times in town. Sumner Wilkins, of Byfield, has bought the whole of the water-pond, on our stream, and is going to erect a factory here. I think I'll get the job. They say that Wilkins had rather have some one here to do it, and my friends will recommend me."
Mrs. Cox was highly delighted, for she knew that such a job must pay well; and she hoped that her husband might not be disappointed.
A few days afterward an order came for some window-blinds; and one afternoon, while he was busy at his bench, a man came, and watched him at his work for a few seconds without speaking. He was a middle-aged man, rather coarsely clad, and Peter supposed it must be some one who wanted work.
"How dy'e do?" said the stranger, as Peter laid aside the slat which he had just finished.
"How dy'e do?" returned Peter, in a sort of uncouth grunt.
"That looks like good lumber you're working there," remarked the visitor.
"It's good enough," was the response.
"What is such lumber worth here?"
"I don't know," and as Peter thus answered he took another slat and began to plane it.
"I suppose you buy some lumber, sir?" said the stranger.
"I do when I want it," returned Peter, without looking up from his work.
"Is there any in town to be sold?"
"They'll tell you at the mill. I don't saw lumber myself."
"But you know the value of it," remarked the stranger, with a slight touch of feeling in his tone.
"Who told you?" retorted Peter.
"I supposed, as you were in the habit of using considerable lumber of various kinds, that you would be a proper one to ask."
"Well, sir," said our grouty builder, in his uncouth, unkind and ungentlemanly way, "it so happens that I have something else to attend to besides keeping the price of lumber for everybody who may happen to want a few boards."
"Ah! yes; I didn't know you were so busy," returned the visitor, in the coldest and most polite manner imaginable. "Pardon me if I have interrupted you." And with this, he left the shop.

Peter Cox had done no more in this instance than he had done a great many times before; but yet he could not put it from his mind so easily. Somehow it clung to him and even after an hour had passed, he found himself wishing that he had treated his visitor with a little more decency. But it was too late now.
Peter got his blinds all made, and then awaited news from Byfield, as it was expected that Sumner Wilkins would soon make arrangements to commence operations. He felt sure of the job, as his friends had seen Wilkins, and recommended him strongly. It would be as good as three dollars a day to him for several months.
One morning as Peter came out on the street he heard it remarked that Wilkins had got his hands all engaged, and would break ground very soon. It could not be possible, thought our builder. Surely he would have had some notice of this if he had more orders of valuable contracts than he could possibly attend to.

But Peter Cox did not forget the prime secret of this new success. He knew that he was eminently qualified as an architect and builder; but this was not all. He also knew that the first lesson he had learned was the most valuable one—that investment he had made was yielding him the greatest interest. And, moreover, the income from the politeness which he had come to possess was not all gross and material. No, no—one of its highest and purest fruits was that which came to his heart, and which remained with him to bless him, wherever he went.

Paper-Mache for Building.

A trade journal has the following regarding papier-mache: It may claim to rival iron in the multiplicity of its industrial applications. In Europe it is employed to a considerable extent in architecture, from a complete church building in Bavaria (capable of seating 1,000 persons), having columns, walls, altar, roof and spire of papier-mache, to the finest traceries of a Gothic screen. Some of the most tasteful halls in Britain and on the continent are finished in it, in preference to wood. The mantels and the mirror frames they support are of its composition; and, strange as it may seem, the very chandeliers, in their gilded elegance, are of this humble material. Its use in architecture can literally have no limit: for no one to day can say what may not be made of it. In toys, tables, bijouterie of all kinds, we have examples of its extensive uses, and suggestions of its future applications. Papier-mache never cracks, as wood, plaster, terra cotta, etc., will do. In the same articles it can be made, if required, far lighter than plaster, terra cotta, metal or even wood. Neither heat nor cold affects it; it can be sawed, fitted, nailed or screwed, quickly adjusted or removed, gilded, painted, marbled or bronzed. It can be made light as cork, or heavy as stone; never discolours by rust, as with iron; is not affected by temperature or oxygen, as is even zinc. It can be made for a given thickness stronger than any white or rare marbles, and is even tougher than slate, quite as hard, and will not chip corners nor crack off in strata. One of the great advantages of papier-mache is that it can be produced very cheaply. In architecture it can be supplied very nearly at plaster price, and, taking into consideration the price of putting up, costs no more, and sometimes even less. This depends on the size of the ornament, the larger being the cheaper in proportion. It can be made to imitate the rarest marbles, as it takes a polish even superior to slate, and costs not half so much as the preparation of plaster of Paris, known as scagliola, while it is infinitely stronger. Pedestals, columns, newel posts, vases, clocks, and multifarious other articles are made of it in elegant and durable forms. Possibly, as a recent writer remarks, when the forests of the globe are regarded as curiosities, and the remaining groves are preserved with the same care that has guarded historic trees, the cast off rags of mankind, and the other wise useless weeds, reeds and grasses of the marsh and swamp, will take the place of timber in the construction, and many will welcome the change, if for nothing else than that it will obviate much of the nuisance of frequent repainting.

"I was rude," replied Peter, frankly; "and as you have intimated, I found a lesson in the result; and I hope I may profit by it."
"That's enough, sir. And so we'll let the past go." Wilkins extended his hand as he spoke, and Peter grasped it warmly.
"And now," the visitor continued, "let's come to our business. The man whom I engaged to superintend the erection of my mill, has so much other business that he would be spared from this; so if you will take it, I will let him go."
Of course Peter took it; and when the mill was done, so well and faithfully had he performed his work that he had more orders of valuable contracts than he could possibly attend to.

But Peter Cox did not forget the prime secret of this new success. He knew that he was eminently qualified as an architect and builder; but this was not all. He also knew that the first lesson he had learned was the most valuable one—that investment he had made was yielding him the greatest interest. And, moreover, the income from the politeness which he had come to possess was not all gross and material. No, no—one of its highest and purest fruits was that which came to his heart, and which remained with him to bless him, wherever he went.

THE most remarkable whirlpool is the maelstrom, off the northwest coast of Norway and southwest of Moskenesol, the most southerly of the Lofoden Isles. It was once supposed to be unfathomable, but the depth, has been shown not to exceed twenty fathoms. The whirlpool is navigable under ordinary circumstances, but when the wind is north-west it often attains great fury and becomes extremely dangerous. Under strong gales the maelstrom has been shown by official statistics to run at the rate of twenty-six miles an hour.

RHEUMATIC diseases. These ailments follow from torpid liver and costive bowels; the skin, bowels and kidneys failing in their proper work, an acrid poison is forded in the blood, which is the occasion of these acute diseases. Kidney-Wort produces healthy action of all secretory organs, and throws off the rheumatic poison. Equally efficient in liquid or dry form.—Inter-Ocean.

NINE coloured persons were baptized in the Patapsco river on last Sunday. Three of them were men, five women and one little girl about five years old.

The polar wave now prevails over the land, the weather is cold, since 1881, and is very beautiful. We go to press with our "Radiant Home" all aglow.

If any person has on hand a project to make us a Christmas present of a nice pair of slippers, without soles on them we simply say, in advance, desist! Mad as a hatter!

MINISTERS, Lawyers, Teachers and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid Liver and biliousness. One is a dose.

At the sale of Mr. Henry Rattle, on Nov. 30, the fine Holstein cattle brought an average of $76 per head. Wheat $1.15, 70 cents, Corn 50 cents and Oats 35 cents per bushel.

REV. J. A. BULL, who was transferred to Lebanon a few months ago, will return to Gettysburg in a week or two, to resume the pastoral charge of St. Francis Xavier's church. Rev. Father Shanahan goes to York.

His advertisement in another column will show that Edward S. Eichelberger, Esq., has his law office, opposite the Court House, in Frederick, in the room formerly occupied by his father, the late George Eichelberger.

Mrs. CLARA STANHOPE, nee Hamilton, concluded her studies in Paris, and arrived in New York last week. She proposes to spend the winter in Annapolis at the Gubernatorial Mansion, with the Governor and his family. In the meantime the suit for divorce will be prosecuted without opposition from her husband, Mr. Stanhope.—Hagerstown news.

A Powerful Contrast. When the soldiers of the dark ages were attacked with tetter, they could do naught but suffer. Medical science had not yet developed a cure. This labor of love and humane duty was left for Dr. Swaynes, whose Ointment for skin diseases is infallible in its results, as was the inspiring potency of Patrick Henry's memorable words, "Give me liberty or give me death."

Local Opinion.

At the elections held in Anne Arundel and Howard counties, on Tuesday, decisive Anti-secession majorities were given, in each case.

Guard Against Fires. Watchful housekeepers will wisely look to their stove pipes and chimneys, to see that they are in proper condition against taking fire in these times, when extraordinary demands are made upon them. The prudent man provides against possible disasters.

A High Opinion. Capt. John J. Dawson, late of the British Army, residing on Love street, between Mandeville and Spa'n, this city, says he used St. Jacobs Oil with the greatest possible advantage when afflicted with rheumatism.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The veteran engineer, Mr. Jos. S. Gilt, has given through the Gettysburg papers, the elevation of various points of interest around that place. We note the top of Little Round-Top, 249 feet, the top of Big Round-Top, 366.4, Emmitsburg Road, 137 feet, the lowest place fittingly is the run near the Devil's Den, 81.6.

BALTIMORE had two suicides on Monday, both fast young men in high social circles, and both members of the 5th Regiment. John W. Dorsey, son of Judge Dorsey, put a bullet in his brain, because the parents of Miss Venie Train wouldn't consent to his marriage to their daughter Warwick H. Butler, son of a leading Episcopal clergyman in Prince George's county, shot himself in a bagin.

A Happy Family. On last Sunday morning two guests arrived at the home of Mr. J. Theophilus Gelwick, under circumstances indicating a determination to remain permanently, and they have had places assigned them in accordance with their pretensions. Mr. and Mrs. G. are quite elated by the accession of a daughter and son to their hitherto small family circle. The happy parents have our hearty congratulations.

The American Farmer for December denotes a large space to the Dairy, particularly butter making, which it would be well for all engaged in that business to read. There are also important items of information of Live Stock raising and feeding, vegetable growing and fruit growing makes this number, valuable as well as unusually interesting. Terms, $1.50 a year. Samuel Sains & Son, 128 W. Baltimore St., Baltimore.

The Bohemian Times of this week contains an extended tribute on the death of "Old Coley," an old mule, that belonged to Mr. R. I. Stafer, and died aged 33 years or more, and winds up patriotically with quotations from the book of Ecclesiastes—as to there being one destination for both man and beast, that such notices are worthy of commendation when properly written, and this one is well done. They illustrate the spirit of human kindness, and give valuable service to his credit.

The Maryland Farmer for December will be found full of important suggestions as well as plain matter of fact directions for the farmer and also, the household. The long winter evenings give ample time for reading, and those engaged in Agricultural pursuits cannot spend an hour or two more profitably than in glancing the valuable information which this publication offers to its readers. Published by Ezra Whitman, Baltimore, Md. Terms $1.00 per year in advance.

We are highly gratified to learn that our young friend Mr. J. Upshur Dennis, son of Col. Geo. R. Dennis, has become by virtue of his admission, on Friday last, a practitioner at the Frederick bar. His examination in legal lore by Messrs. Urner, McSherry and Wood, is said to have been both creditable and satisfactory. Mr. Dennis has been a student for several years past in the office of Mr. Wm. P. Maulsby, Jr. He is a young man of decided talent and ability, and we predict for him a successful career in the honorable but laborious profession he has chosen. To this end he has our very best wishes.—Examiner.

Fire at Hagerstown. Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 1.—A fire broke out this afternoon in the large stable attached to the Antietam House. It was first discovered in the second story of the building, where some five tons of hay were stored. In an instant the whole building was in flames, and the prospect of a large fire was serious. It was the first occasion on which the new water-works were seriously put to the test. In a few minutes the building was deluged with water and the fire extinguished simply by attaching hose to the plugs, and without bringing an engine into play. The horses in the building were all safely removed. The loss is estimated at $500, and is covered by insurance.—Sun.

Nothing Short of Unmistakable Benefits. Conferred upon tens of thousands of sufferers could originate and maintain the reputation which AYER'S SASSAPARILLA enjoys. It is a compound of the best vegetable alteratives, with the iodides of Potassium and Iron,—all powerful, blood-making, blood-cleansing and life-sustaining,—and is the most effectual of all remedies for scrofulous, mercurial, or blood disorders. It uniformly succeeds and certain, it produces rapid and complete cures of Scrofula, Sores, Boils, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Skin Diseases and all disorders arising from impurity of the blood. By its invigorating effects it always relieves and often cures Liver Complaints, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, and is a potent renewer of waning vitality. For purifying the blood it has no equal. It tones up the system, restores and preserves the health, and imparts vigor and energy. For forty years it has been in extensive use, and is to-day the most available medicine for the suffering sick. For sale by all druggists.

That's What's the Matter!

"The Old Man" has been as cross as a bear for a week past. No wonder that bread is heavy enough to kill an ostrich. Good to Bussey's and get a package of "Dry Hop Yeast," it will cost you but 10 cents for one dozen cakes. Give the "Old Man" some light bread, and he will "smile again."

Mount-View Cemetery. Mount-View Cemetery is becoming more and more recognized as a well designed improvement for this community. It was incorporated in May, 1881, since which time, quite a number of lots have been sold, and interments made in them, and a goodly number of monument already adorn the premises.

Most of the ever-green trees, however, have died, we fear from lack of necessary attention; for trees, particularly ever-greens, will not always grow by being simply stuck into the ground, but must be watched and watered carefully, until they have fairly taken root.

The directors seem to think they have done all their duty, by providing the place for us to bury our dead, and making necessary rules and regulations to govern us therein. Not only the providing of such places, but the proper care of them, is an obligation resting on the living, and they, unable to act successfully, as individuals, in this as in other matters of public concern, form associations and appoint officers with authority to act for them collectively, and these officers having assumed the responsibility, are bound to activity and faithfulness in carrying out the work committed to them. We owe it to ourselves, as well as to those who have gone before us to make the resting places of the dead as pleasant and attractive as possible to the living.

Mountain-View Cemetery is unsurpassed for beauty of location, but without the necessary improvements of art, ornament and cultivation, it can never become what its originators intended it to be. The Directors have work before them, and if they fully recognize what is required of them, we do not think they will neglect it, or shrink from it.

Mr. Milton Main and family were the guests of Mr. Henry Stokes, Esq.

Mrs. John Sheets of Baltimore made a short visit to this her native locality. Times seem to deal gently with her, and she is a remarkably active person for her age.

Rev. G. B. R. esser arrived on last Saturday, preached at the Reform Church on Sunday morning and evening and is for the present the guest of Mr. J. Taylor Motter.

This Oil is extracted from peculiar species of small sharks abundant, as the water, in person known as Caracharon Rondeletia. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 500 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Scarcely changes prepared, to any address at $1.00 per bottle.

Hear What the Deaf Say! It has performed a miracle in my case. I have no unearring noises in my head and hear much better than I have for years. I have been greatly benefited.
