

New York, Dec. 30, 1882.

The failure of Kate Field's Co-operative Dress Reform establishment did not create much of a sensation in the metropolis, nor is it such a bad failure that anybody is likely to lose much.

Charles Porterfield Krauth was born in Martinsburg, Va. (now West Virginia), March 17, 1839. His father was the Rev. Charles Philip Krauth, former president of Pennsylvania College, at Gettysburg, and he graduated there in 1859.

He entered the Lutheran ministry in 1864, and was pastor successively of churches in Baltimore, Winchester, Va., and Pittsburg, Pa. In 1852-3 he visited the Danish West Indies, and during the prevalence of yellow fever preached in the Dutch Reformed Church in St. Thomas.

In 1861 he was elected professor of systematic theology and church polity in the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia from 1859 to 1864, and in 1861 became editor of the Lutheran and Missionary. In 1861 he was elected professor of systematic theology and church polity in the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Philadelphia from 1859 to 1864.

He gathered a large library, and was distinguished as a biblical and historical writer. He was a member of the American committee of co-operation with the British committee in revising the authorized version of the Scriptures.

He published a number of books, his chief distinction as an author being due to a work entitled "The Conservative Reformation and its Theology."—Sun.

Rev. EDWARD W. BENSON, bishop of Truro, Cornwall, who has been appointed Archbishop of Canterbury, was born in 1829, and was at one time assistant master at Rugby, where the late Archbishop Tait was head master.

He was after ward a canon of Lincoln Cathedral, and during Beaconsfield's administration, in 1876, was made bishop of Truro. He is said to be a moderate high churchman.

The salary of the bishopric of Truro is $15,000, and that of primate of all England $75,000.—Day.

The sudden death of Hon. Elisha H. Allen, the Hawaiian Minister, at the President's reception at the White House on Monday, caused a sad interruption and close in the proceedings. He was the oldest resident minister, and after being presented to the President, was engaged in presenting the other diplomats when he died.

A FIRE at the Mt. Clare Works, on Wednesday night destroyed the passenger car shop of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The loss is estimated at $40,000, uninsured.

THE Small-pox having assumed a somewhat alarming character in Baltimore, the authorities are taking vigorous measures for its abatement.

ARABI and the other rebel chiefs, condemned to exile, left Suez for Ceylon, on Wednesday, 27th ult.

GEN. ABE BUFORD, who created such a stir in religious and sporting circles a few months ago, by joining a church and starting a turf paper at the same time, has left the latter and sued the financial manager for services rendered. The General says the paper has prospered, but his pocket book has not, and here after he will discontinue his attempt of reconciliation of religion and racing.

A SALE OF A WIFE.—A dispatch reports much excitement in Stokes county, N. C., over the discovery of the sale of Mrs. Alfred Jenkins to Mr. Noah Glidewell, a neighbor of her husband, for $500. The vendor's explanation of the transaction is that "he wanted to move away, and was not able to take his wife," while the vendee took her because he was "tired of living alone."

No compulsion was used, for Mrs. Jenkins "cheerfully agreed to the sale," and transferred herself to Glidewell without any objection, and now expresses herself as "perfectly happy and contented" in her new home.

car line running almost parallel to one of the elevated roads reports that during the past year it received in five cent fares the enormous sum of more than eight hundred thousand dollars. This almost imperial revenue shows that there is still some profit left in the surface road business.

No one of them has gone into bankruptcy or thrown up its charter. The fact is the city is growing at a pace almost unequalled, and there is room enough for all. If the elevated roads were managed with some regard to the interests of the public the surface roads probably would not be so prosperous.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable outlook a fair holiday trade in all lines of goods, and an unusually large business in Christmas and New Year's cards, gift books, etc. Piles of "Zig-zag Journeys" and other illustrated and instructive children's books disappeared from the counters of retail stores like magic.

Some dealers who had laid in large stocks of prize cards sold out before the middle of last week and have had nothing but common stock on hand ever since. Salesmen could not wait on the crowds of customers fast enough, and the windows were stripped of their showy goods to satisfy the demand.

These things not only went to homes all over the city, but the mails were loaded with them, destined to all parts of the country. Such loads as were piled upon the postal carriers! It was simply enormous. Well, Christmas comes but once a year. By the way, it is true as reported, that Oscar Wilde was fleeced by a confidence operator the other day out of a check for $1,050. But Oscar has made enough in this country by means of his little aesthetic game to be able to part with so much of it.
